MR. MESEREAU: Can I inquire, Your Honor? With all due respect, what would be relevant after the arrest to the time period that’s being litigated in court? I don’t think there is anything. I believe the allegations --

THE COURT: The relevancy is one issue, granted. But that’s not what we’re talking about now. We’re talking about the scope of the waiver that you represented that you were -- that existed. Mr. Geragos is on the witness stand. He’s answering questions, and then you inform him during a break that there’s some limitation. I think relevance has to be dealt with on a question-by-question basis. I’m not dealing with that. I’m dealing with the extent of the waiver that you indicated to the Court and to Mr. Geragos that you have.

MR. MESEREAU: I guess I did do that. And unfortunately, I meant to cover the period involving this case, which I thought was before the arrest, and that was my mistake.

I didn’t think it included, Your Honor, the period of time following the initial Information. I didn’t think that was relevant. I wasn’t even considering that. I was thinking about the time period during which the prosecution has elicited testimony and he elicited testimony regarding these alleged events.

THE COURT: Well, what’s your position?

MR. ZONEN: I think it may be appropriate to ask this witness questions about his conversations with the defendant and questions about his involvement in the case even after the arrest. It could have bearing certainly on his conduct here, or conduct that he took after the time of the arrest could have bearing on whether or not he did or didn’t do certain things prior to the arrest. I just don’t think that we should be restrained from having to limit our questions only up to the time of his arrest.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, may I just interject one thing, since I’m going to be the one asked the questions?

If there’s not a waiver from the client --

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object.

THE WITNESS: If there’s not a waiver --

THE COURT: No, he has my permission to speak.

THE WITNESS: If there’s not a waiver by the client, I believe under State Bar rules, I am completely exposed. And I would inform the Court, without a written waiver, I am not going to answer, even under threat of contempt, any further questions that have to do with anything which is stated at least in the written waiver that I have, under -- or after December of 2003, because I can’t put that genie back into the bottle at this point.

Frankly, I think technically the arrest was in November of 2003, in the first place, but the letter states December of 2003. And I believe under State Bar rules, I'm not allowed to answer anything unless there's a written waiver that is fully informed by the client.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, we haven't been furnished with a copy of that waiver. We would like to see it, please.

THE COURT: Go ahead and --

MR. MESEREAU: We have another copy, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: Do you want to make a copy or --

MR. ZONEN: That's okay.

THE COURT: The question that was asked was whether or not he'd made an investigation into the 1993 allegations. And that was when he advised us that he had been given a limited waiver.

So I guess if the question was whether you'd made any investigation into the allegations about 1993 back in February, that you would be able to answer that question.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, Your Honor.

In fact, if the question was limited to anything prior to, I believe it was November -- I want to say 18th or 19th of 2003, anything prior to that date I'm comfortable with and don't have a problem.

Anything after that date, I'm going to refuse or decline to answer. Respectfully, of course.

THE COURT: I'm not quite sure how to deal with it, but one way we can deal with it is that the relevancy of his testimony is based on what happened in February, March, and maybe up to the time of arrest. And then we could complete that testimony, and if you then thought you had some need to go into other areas, we could get some points and authorities on where we stand on the misrepresentation that Mr. Mesereau has made to the Court and to counsel.

That way, though, if we take evidence limited in that respect today, we can free counsel up to get back to his trial. I know he's got a trial in Los Angeles that he needs to be at. And if we do it that way, then what I would do is hold you on call to me.

THE WITNESS: I kind of thought I already was.

THE COURT: Huh?

THE WITNESS: I kind of thought I already was.

THE COURT: Yeah, you are. But, you know, in the future, and --

MR. ZONEN: Judge, is the Court under the expectation that we're actually going to finish by 2:30 today?

THE COURT: Uh-huh. Aren't you?

MR. ZONEN: Not optimistically, no. Not with redirect as well. I may finish cross. I don't know that we're going to finish redirect.

THE COURT: Well, let's see what we do. Sometimes -- anyway, I then will proceed in this fashion, reserving what remedies exist -- what should be done under the circumstances, but we don't waste the last hour, and perhaps we're able to free counsel and perhaps not.

Is that an agreeable way to proceed?

MR. ZONEN: It is.

And while the jury is out, let me also ask that we be furnished at this time Mr. Geragos's 10336 file, at least the file that existed up to the date of the arrest, which would include all of his billing records, his notes, his e-mails, his handwritings, communications and reports. There is a waiver up till that time.

THE COURT: I'm not going to order that, Counsel. You can use the proper process for that.

Now, is that an agreeable way to proceed, Mr. Mesereau, today?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor. And I apologize for the -- it was not intentional, what you've categorized as a misrepresentation. I apologize for that. It was not intentional. I was thinking of the period of the alleged conspiracy.

THE COURT: People can't hear you.

MR. MESEREAU: I was thinking of the period of the alleged conspiracy. I was not thinking beyond that, and that's my mistake. And I do apologize to the Court.

THE COURT: All right. We'll see where that gets us. I don't know where that gets us. Let's bring the jury in and see what we can achieve.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Go ahead, Counsel.

MR. ZONEN: All right.

Q. Mr. Geragos, the tape-recording of the telephone call that I had asked you about previously, the call between Frank Cascio and Janet Arvizo, you did tell us that you listened to that tape-recording; is that correct?

A. Yes, I -- well, we're right back to where we were before.

THE COURT: Excuse me. I was just -- let me just take care of something.

I'll just have the court reporter mark that. Next question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Mr. Geragos, at some time after that interview that your investigator, Mr. Miller, had with the Arvizo family at your direction, you became aware of the fact that there was going to be a filming of the entire family; is that right?

A. I don't know if it was the whole family, but I was aware there was going to be a videotaping, yes.

Q. And were you aware at that time that that video was going to be used in a commercial production?

A. I knew that the videotaping was going to be -- they were trying to sell it. That's what they were going to do. So if you mean "commercial" that way, yes, they were trying to sell it. I don't know if they had already cut a deal or not.

Q. Was it your understanding that the Arvizos' participation in that video would have commercial value to your client, Mr. Jackson?

A. I don’t know if I’m qualified to answer that.

Q. Was that your belief at the time?

A. I don’t know that I ever thought about it at the time.

Q. Did anybody ever talk to you about the commercial value of their involvement in this video?

A. Nobody was looking for my advice on commercial value of the rebuttal video.

Q. Did anybody ever consult with you at all about the propriety of using the Arvizo family in this video?

A. I don’t know about -- well, I just said if some statements were going to be taped, I wanted a copy.

Q. Did you know that Gavin Arvizo was a cancer survivor?

A. I did not then, when that tape was made.

Q. Well, that tape was made, what, the 20th?

A. I think that tape was made the 20th. And I probably -- probably knew that either on that following day or the day after. But I think very close in time.

Q. Mr. Geragos, you had not watched the documentary “Living with Michael Jackson” prior to that?

A. I had, but I had -- I had not investigated records or anything like that. I later got records and confirmed what was being said.

Q. Isn’t it true that the documentary “Living with Michael Jackson” has clearly stated that Gavin Arvizo is a cancer survivor?

A. Yes.

Q. And you did view that documentary prior to the taping on the 20th?

A. Right, but I wasn’t buying anything until I had documentation.

Q. All right. But you had information, at least, that Gavin Arvizo was a cancer survivor; is that right?

A. That’s what the claim was.

Q. Did you ever ask Michael Jackson if it was true that Gavin Arvizo was a cancer survivor?

A. Not in February of ‘03.

Q. Of any of the conversations that you had with David LeGrand or Ronald Konitzer, did you ask either one of them if it was true that Gavin Arvizo was a cancer survivor?

A. I think that the discussions were had sometime in February about that subject.

Q. You were aware, were you not, that the filming and presentation and airing of the documentary “Living with Michael Jackson” caused Gavin Arvizo considerable problems in his life?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I was aware that the claim was made that he was being taunted at school.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And you knew that prior to the 20th of February; is that right?

A. I don’t think I knew it prior to the 20th. I think I knew it closer to the end of the month or the beginning of March.

Q. When you viewed the documentary “Living with Michael Jackson,” did you understand at the time that that documentary was going to cause Gavin Arvizo problems?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE WITNESS: My --

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Gavin Arvizo wasn’t my client. Michael Jackson was my client.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: I understand that.

A. I was not -- you know, I don’t want to sound heartless, but I was worried about my client’s problems.

Q. I understand you were worried about your clients problems, but did you, in fact, understand that the airing of that documentary could cause Gavin Arvizo problems because of how he was depicted and portrayed?

A. I -- I suppose in retrospect, yes. At the time, I thought that it was -- it would have the opposite effect for him. He would be able to exploit that for money. That was my worry; that he was going to, or the family was going to go sell their story for a six-figure sum. I had that concern.

Q. Now, actually “sell the story,” sell the story to whom?

A. One of the tabloids.

Q. Well, they would have a right to do that, wouldn’t they?

A. Yes.

Q. There’s absolutely nothing illegal about selling your own story?

A. If it’s false, then you have actions that you can take, and that’s -- that’s one of the reasons I wanted to have the tape, because I didn’t want -- I wanted to have them locked into what the truth was and not later sell a false story, because my experience is that the tabloids are not always absolutely accurate.

Q. All right. Now, that’s not necessarily the problem of the Arvizos, whether or not the tabloids are accurate, right?

A. I don’t know that I would agree with that.

Q. All right. But the Arvizos certainly would have a right, in this country, to sell their story to anybody?

A. They would. And as I stated, I already had a concern about the Arvizos because of the J.C. Penney lawsuit, so I was not exactly looking at them as being pristine or pure at that point. I had -- for lack of a better word, I had a rather jaded view at that point.

Q. In fact, Michael Jackson was marketing the Arvizo’s story for profit; is that true?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: They were trying to do, my understanding, what they called a rebuttal video.

And the reason they were trying to do a rebuttal video, I suppose, was, as you indicated, for profit. It wasn't being done pro bono.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And your client believed that if the Arvizos were included and their story was included in this production, it would be more profitable to him; is that true?

A. Actually, I don't know.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Actually, I don't know what my client believed. All I know is when I heard that they were going to be included, I wanted to have a copy of the statements, the videotaped statements.

I did not specifically talk to Michael about, "Are you doing this for money?" "Is this something that you have a belief we're going to use them for marketing?" or anything of that nature.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you have a conversation with anybody at Hamid Moslehi's home -- easy for me to say.

A. Common spelling.

Q. -- (continuing) Hamid Moslehi's home on the 19th of February of 2003?

A. I could have, if Brad was there. It would have made sense that Brad might have called me and said, "They're not giving me the videotape," because they didn't give me the videotape.

Q. Did you at any time during the evening of the 19th, into the early morning hours of the 20th, give any direction to any employee of Michael Jackson about what they should ask or what they shouldn't ask --

A. Absolutely --

Q. -- the Arvizo family?

A. Absolutely not.

Q. Did anybody consult with you about the script that would be used for the Arvizo family?

A. I didn't know that there was a script.

Q. Did anybody ask you whether or not the Arvizos should be specifically asked questions about whether Gavin was molested?

A. I specifically said, “I want copies of the videotape.” I do not believe that I talked to Hamid. And I can’t pronounce his last name.

Q. Moslehi.

A. Easy for you to say.

And I don’t believe that I talked to anybody else that evening but Brad. I could be mistaken. But that -- my memory is that I would have talked to Brad; that Brad told me that they weren’t giving up a videotape, or that it was getting late, or I told him, “I don’t want to talk to you anymore. Don’t call me anymore. It’s late. I’ve got to go to bed.”

Q. Did you talk to Mark Schaffel that night?

A. I don’t think so. I think I might have talked to Schaffel the next day to find out why we didn’t get a copy of the videotape.

Q. Did you talk to Christian Robinson?

A. I don’t think I’ve ever talked to Christian Robinson. At least back in February or March of 2003, I don’t believe I’ve talked to Christian Robinson.

Q. Did you talk to Vicki Podberesky that night?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you refer anybody to Vicki Podberesky?

A. I think Brad called and said that --

Q. Mr. Geragos, did you refer anybody to Vicki Podberesky?

A. I was trying to answer the question. Brad called and asked for a referral. I did not refer to Vicki Podberesky. I referred to Michael Nasatir. Vicki Podberesky is Michael’s partner.

Q. All right. And you referred Brad Miller to Michael Nasatir; is that right?

A. Brad said that Janet wanted a lawyer. I said, “I can’t represent Janet. My firm’s not going to represent Janet. Call Mike Nasatir and see if it’s something he can handle.”

Q. All right. You were the one who then gave Brad Miller the name of Mike Nasatir’s law firm; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. You didn’t say “Vicki Podberesky”?

A. I did not say “Vicki Podberesky.” I said “Mike Nasatir.”

Q. Did you have a conversation with Vicki Podberesky that night?

A. I don’t believe it was that night. But if she says it was, I would defer to her. My memory is that I talked to Mike Nasatir.

Q. Did you talk to Mike Nasatir that night?

A. Might have. Might have said, “I’m referring over a case,” or “Brad’s going to call you. Talk to him,” you know, “Do whatever you have to do.”

Q. Did you tell Mike Nasatir that you would be financially responsible for his bill?

A. Absolutely not.

Q. Did you tell him that Michael Jackson would be financially responsible?

A. Absolutely not.

Q. Did you know who was going to be responsible for his bill?

A. It wasn’t my firm. It wasn’t my business.

Q. Did it come up in the conversation with Brad Miller?

A. No. Why would it -- no.

Q. Now, at this point, you understood that Janet Arvizo did not have a lot of money?

A. I don’t know that I understood that. I was aware of a J.C. Penney lawsuit. I was aware that she had a boyfriend who seemed to be making very good money. So, no, I’m not aware that she was completely limited in terms of her funding.

Q. Did you ever make any effort to determine whether or not she was going to have to pay a retainer to the law firm of Mr. Nasatir?

A. Absolutely not. It wasn’t my business.

Q. You did have a conversation with Mr. Nasatir either that night or the next morning?

A. I believe it was the next morning, but I could be mistaken. It might have been that night. And I believe the conversation was that, “I referred somebody over, and this is the name and the number.” And, you know, “Handle it however you want to handle it.”

Q. Did you ask Mr. Nasatir to contact you after his interview with Janet Arvizo and tell you the content of that interview?

A. If -- if I talked to him that night, I probably would have said, “Let me know what happens,” yes.

Q. Would you have asked him to tell you about the content of the conversation?

A. I would have wanted to know what was being said, yes.

Q. Would you have asked him to get an express waiver of attorney-client privilege from Janet Arvizo so that he could talk to you about the exact content of that conversation?

A. No. I wouldn’t have advised him how to practice law. He’s a -- I think a certified specialist in criminal law, and I would assume he would know that.

Q. Did you tell Brad Miller that you wanted Brad Miller to become informed of the conversation that Janet Arvizo was having with this attorney?

A. No, it was the opposite. Janet kept telling Brad she wanted him there.

Q. Did you have --

A. And Brad said he couldn’t go, and that’s why he volunteered Asaf instead.

Q. Did you have a conversation with Brad Miller wherein you specifically asked Brad Miller to get as much information as he could of the conversation between Janet Arvizo and the Nasatir lawyer?

A. No. In fact, I -- my understanding was, I told them, “I can’t get in the middle of that. Refer it out.” And she kept asking Brad to attend with her at that interview.

Q. Did Brad Miller tell you specifically that the interview they were referring to was a Department of Child Family Services interview?

A. I think he did, yes.

Q. Did you understand that that interview was existing, was taking place because of concerns about whether or not her children were being exposed to Michael Jackson?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I -- I learned that after the fact, after the interview.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Who is it who told you that Janet Arvizo was going to have an interview with the Department of Child & Family Services representatives?

A. I believe it was Brad.
Q. And he told you that that night?
A. I believe so. I believe that it was that night that he said she was asking him to go with her to the interview.
Q. Do you know why this interview was conducted at two o’clock in the morning, hours before the start of the interview with Janet Arvizo and the Department of Child Family Services?
A. I have no idea --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I have no idea why it was 2:00 in the morning. I do have a memory of saying, “Stop calling me, because I’m going to bed.”
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you tell Brad Miller at any time that they should have that interview done before the start of her interview with the Department of Child Family Services?
A. Absolutely not. One, in my mind, had nothing to do with the other.
Q. Did you tell Brad Miller to tape-record that interview with the Department of Family Services?
A. Absolutely not. If I -- no, I absolutely did not.

Q. Did you tell Brad Miller that he should have somebody else tape-record that interview?
A. Absolutely not. I didn’t know that he was going to have anybody there.
Q. Did you have Asaf there that day?

A. I did not have Asaf there that day.
Q. Did you know Asaf prior to that day?
A. I think I met Asaf on one prior investigation that I had hired Brad on.
Q. Is that Asaf Vilchic?
A. I think that’s his last name.
Q. And did you understand him to be an employee, a part-time employee, of Brad Miller?
A. Yes.
Q. Is Brad Miller someone you had worked with for a period longer than five years prior to that day?
A. No.
Q. Did you feel that you knew Brad Miller fairly well?
A. I thought I knew him, yes. At that time, I don’t know if I would say “fairly well,” but I used him, as I indicated, probably on three or four different cases. I use a number of investigators.
Q. Was there any conversation between you and Brad Miller that night, on the evening of the 19th, about whether or not the DCSF interview would be tape-recorded?

A. No, absolutely not.
Q. When did you first learn that that interview had been tape-recorded?
THE WITNESS: I can’t answer that, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Mark that.
Next question, please.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When did you listen to the tape-recording for the first time?
A. I can’t answer that.
Q. Did you have a conversation with Brad Miller within the next week about the -- about the meeting with the Department of Child Family Services?
A. I probably would have, yes. I don’t have -- as I sit here, I don’t remember it, but it would not have been unlikely.
Q. Did Brad Miller brief you about the content of the Department of Child & Family Services meeting?
A. I think I was told that there wasn’t any problem. And I don’t -- and I don’t know if I was told that within a week or within a day, but I think I was just told that there was no problem.

Q. Did you ask him, Brad Miller, if he was, in fact, present during the course of the meeting with the representatives from the Department of Child & Family Services?

A. I don’t remember doing it, but it certainly would not have been unusual for me to have done it. As I sit here, I don’t remember asking him that, but it’s logical that I would have.

Q. Did Brad Miller tell you that he was personally present during that interview?

A. I don’t remember the conversation, but I don’t at any time remember Brad telling me that he was present during that interview.

Q. Did he ever tell you who was present during that interview?

A. That’s another question I can’t answer.

THE COURT: All right. Mark it.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did Brad Miller ever tell you that Asaf was present during the beginning of the interview?

A. That’s another question I can’t answer.

THE COURT: Next question. Mark it.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did Asaf ever tell you how that tape got in the hands of MS-NBC and Dan Abrams?

A. That’s another question I can’t answer.

THE COURT: All right. I think we’ll take our recess early today. I don’t think this is productive to proceed this way.

(To the jury) Any objection if you go home seven minutes early?

A JUROR: Oh, no.

THE COURT: See you Monday morning at 8:30.

Remember the admonition.

Counsel remain a moment.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

MR. ZONEN: Mr. Geragos, do you still have that exhibit in front of you or did I take it back already?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: Mr. Geragos, you may step down, but remain within the bar. You have an interest, a stake here. I think you have counsel here.

MR. GERAGOS: Pat’s sitting here, but I’ll be one of those pro pers.

My biggest concern is I’m engaged in Department C35 in a jury trial that has been ongoing now for eight weeks in Santa Ana court before the Honorable Judge --

THE COURT: Could you come to the microphone? There’s people that just can’t hear you back there.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll move out of your way.

MR. GERAGOS: I’m presently engaged in jury trial in Department C35, long-cause court, in Santa Ana. I’ve been there for eight weeks. We have 18 jurors in the box. I’m in the middle of cross-examination. This is a case that’s estimated to last till August. The case is actually seven years old. It’s been to the Supreme Court and back, and there is a published decision on it. The -- all the jurors are ordered back for Monday morning at nine o’clock. I am ordered back by Judge Fasel at 8:45.

Obviously I do not want to incur the wrath of this Court, but I believe that if I’m ordered back for Monday, I’m going to be under competing Court orders, and somebody’s going to find me in contempt.

THE COURT: Who do you want to do that?

(Laughter.)

MR. GERAGOS: I think I’d rather -- I hate to say this, as much as I love Santa Maria, I’d rather spend my time in the OSC jail, so --

MR. SANGER: We have a nice jail here.

THE COURT: We can call that judge. I understand. In fact, that’s why I ordered you up today, was when I heard that you were in a lengthy jury trial, my choice was not to disturb the jury trial on Monday, because I know how hard it is for any jury to have to deal with these kind of problems.

And I fully anticipated that we'd be able to get all of your testimony in today. You know, the District Attorney had said that he only had a few more minutes with LeGrand, and that didn't happen, so you were kept upstairs for a period I didn't anticipate this morning.

But his courtroom is dark on Fridays?

MR. GERAGOS: He I think -- I believe has a law-and-motion calendar on Fridays, and that's why it's dark for jury trials.

The jury was ordered back at -- for nine o'clock. The next day off is the 20th. I've already inquired here. I guess you're not working, I guess this court is dark on the 20th. And then we do have, even though I'm supposed to be out of the country, we're dark on the 26th of May. I suppose I could always delay that trip to later in the day if I could get --

THE COURT: Well, I'm not going to put it off that long. What I could do is cancel our day off on the 20th. The 20th was going to be a day off because Mr. Sanger had made a commitment to appear --

MR. GERAGOS: If it's just Mr. Sanger, I've got no problems screwing up his day off.

THE COURT: So I'm trying to -- what I'm going to require here is some points and authorities from both sides. I'm not quite sure of what -- where we are and what we should be doing. And so it wouldn't hurt if -- I mean, clearly everyone's going to have their points and authorities to me Monday, but then we could take your testimony next Friday and --

MR. GERAGOS: That's fine. And I'd appreciate it. The case I had on Friday I was hoping that you would say that. I had somebody go out to San Bernardino this morning and continue a prelim that was set for the 20th, so I have -- I can move the other two things that I have, so it's not a problem.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, on Friday, from a selfish standpoint, could we limit the day to Mr. Geragos’s testimony?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: So when we’re through, then we could go, because I could still make part of it.

THE COURT: Right. We can set Friday just for Mr. Geragos’s testimony.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: How much more testimony -- how much longer do you think you’re -- I know. The problem is if I give you a week, then it will -- to think of questions, then....

MR. GERAGOS: Exactly.

MR. ZONEN: You’re asking me how many more minutes of cross-examination I have?

THE COURT: Estimate your time.

MR. ZONEN: Oh, gosh. A half hour at least.

THE COURT: Is that all?

MR. ZONEN: Well, no.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Well, we have a serious problem to deal with, and I really don’t have a -- I really am not -- all we can do is do some research.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll try to accommodate the Court as best I can.

THE COURT: If I bring the jury in, I’m not going to bring them in just for a half hour of testimony on Friday, so we’ll use the whole day. That would not be fair to the jury.

MR. SANGER: Whatever the Court decides.

THE COURT: I think that’s what we’ve got to do.

MR. SANGER: If we quit early -- let me put it this way. If we quit early on Friday, it would be nice, but whatever the Court can do with that in mind.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. GERAGOS: May I be excused, with the promise that I will return at 8:30 on Friday the 20th?

THE COURT: You’re ordered to return on Friday --

MR. GERAGOS: And I promise I’ll be here.
THE COURT: -- by 8:30.
MR. GERAGOS: Thank you.
THE COURT: I want points and authorities from Mr. Mesereau, and I want points and authorities from Mr. Sneddon. Are you interested in --

MR. GERAGOS: Yes, I had hoped that you would invite me to, but I was going to -- I’ll try to keep it short, but I’ll point to what I think are the applicable code sections that are appropriate and the Rules of Professional Conduct.
THE COURT: The issue -- here’s -- the issue I want addressed is not what the ethical rules are. We know that. What I want to address is what happens in the middle of testimony when the party who’s asserted that they have given you a waiver on the record, a waiver of the attorney-client privilege, suddenly reveals in the writing that you don’t have a complete waiver. And what are the remedies? What should I do?
MR. GERAGOS: My belief is that under the --
THE COURT: Well --
MR. GERAGOS: I won’t give it to you now.
THE COURT: Don’t shoot from the hip. I can’t believe that this ever happened to you before, did it?
MR. GERAGOS: No.
THE COURT: Okay. Well, let’s do some research on it.
MR. GERAGOS: I just think it’s similar to the conflict situation. If it’s not done by the client on the record, then that’s the problem.

THE COURT: Well, that’s not the -- the client -- the attorney made the waiver. The client is sitting there, you know. There’s all sorts of issues here that are different than that. The question is what do we do now? So I would like all of you to weigh in on the issue at hand, which is what do we do now?
MR. GERAGOS: I’d be happy to. Thank you.

THE COURT: Now, will you fax your materials to my office? Do you still have that number?

MR. GERAGOS: I do. I saved that on my Word Perfect.

THE COURT: I'll authorize fax service on Mr. Mesereau and Mr. Zonen, Mr. Sneddon. And I want to have all of this by eight o'clock Monday morning.

MR. GERAGOS: That's fine.

THE COURT: And then would you call your judge and tell him that I have accommodated him and do understand the situation with him?

MR. GERAGOS: I will. Thank you very much, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Anything else?

MR. SANGER: I'm still struggling with this matter that I have on Friday. Assuming we're through with Mr. Geragos by the 11:30 break, would you be willing to call the jury in -- in other words, we would have witnesses -- if he's done in a half an hour, we would have witnesses to take us to the 11:30 break. Would that be all right?

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: Would you have -- I would like to have the jury commissioner immediately leave a message for all the jurors right now that the day off on the 20th has been cancelled. We're going to use it so that any plans they have they can change, and prevent them from making plans in anticipation.

Anything else?

Okay.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:30 p.m.)

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. Good morning. Dr. Seamount, what is your professional background?
A. Should I state my degrees?
Q. Sure.
A. I obtained my Bachelor of Science in biochemistry from UCLA. I obtained my doctorate of dental surgery from UC San Francisco. And I obtained my masters of science in dentistry from the University of the Pacific.
Q. All right. And are you an orthodontist?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. How long have you been an orthodontist?
A. About 17 years.
Q. All right. Where is your office located?
A. 511 Fifth Street, Solvang.
Q. In Solvang.
All right. Your Honor, there’s an exhibit that was previously received in evidence. May I put it up on the board? It’s 5030.
THE COURT: You may.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Give that a second to focus and give you a chance to look at it.

Do you see the star there?

A. Yes.

Q. Does that appear to be where your office is located in Solvang?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said Fifth Street. How close is that to the main drag in Solvang?

A. It’s almost to the corner.

Q. And I disrespectfully said “the main drag,” but what is that street called?

A. Mission.

Q. Is it also a highway?

A. Yes, Highway 246.

Q. Is that where -- when you’re going from 154 to 101, you have to slow down to 25 and enjoy the shops and the scenery there?

A. As you enter Solvang on 246, you do have to slow down.

Q. All right. Excuse me one second. We’re all going to trip over something here.

Okay. All right. Your Honor, I’d like to approach the witness with a series of exhibits.

THE COURT: You may.

MR. ZONEN: Go ahead. I’ve seen them.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I’m going to show you 5020 through 5029, which is a series of photographs, and just ask you to take a look at those photographs, and then I’ll ask you a question after you have a chance to inspect them.

All right. Having looked at those photographs, do they appear to be photographs of your dental offices?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. And do they appear to be a fair and accurate depiction of the offices?

A. Yes, they are.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I would move into evidence -- most of them have come in, but I would move into evidence the ones that did not, which would be 5023, 5028 and 5029.

THE COURT: Any objection?

MR. ZONEN: No objection.

THE COURT: They’re admitted.

MR. SANGER: And may I publish them on the overhead, please?

THE COURT: You may.

MR. SANGER: 5020 is now being placed on the board.

Q. All right. And what does that represent?

A. That’s the sign in front of my building.

Q. All right. 5021, what is that?

A. That is the exterior of my building. The front entrance.

Q. Front entrance.

5022, go ahead and tell us what that is.

I’m sorry.

A. That’s the handicapped parking in the front area of the exterior of my building, facing Mission.

Q. And you see some cars parked on the street, like that little red car there?

A. Yes.

Q. About how far from Mission Street, 246, is that red car?

A. Not very far. You can see the truck that’s going to be crossing the intersection, so, you know, as far as how many feet, you know, I don’t know, but it’s pretty close.

Q. All right. And is this a populated area of California or are there people that live and work in this general area?

A. Yes, there’s a residence right next door to my building. That’s a hotel that you can see right over there.

Q. I’m going to point here to the right side of 5022. That’s a hotel; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And you mentioned earlier a truck. I now have a pointer, for the record.

So you mentioned a truck. It looks like a white pickup truck --

A. Yes.

Q. -- going from left to right on the -- on the exhibit. Is that truck on Mission or 246?

A. It’s on Mission, which is 246.

Q. All right. Now I’m going to put up 5023. Do you recognize that?

A. Yes. This is the counter in my waiting room, my reception area.

Q. So when you go in the front door, you have a reception area. Looks like there might be a chair there or a couch?

A. Yes.

Q. And then there’s -- looks like a barrier of some sort with a swinging door; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And when patients are brought back into the examining room, which way do they go?

A. Not through there. There’s a large entry area, or a large hall that goes into the treatment rooms.

Q. Is that to the right or the left here?

A. It’s --

Q. Or behind us, I suppose.

A. It’s in front of this.

Q. Okay. So as far as this is concerned, is this area the place where your staff would work?

A. Yes.

Q. And is there a telephone back there?

A. Yes.

Q. I’m going to put up 5024. And this appears to be a different view of the same area; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So if I understand you - I apologize for getting that backwards - this would be the front door coming in; is that correct?

A. No. That’s a window.

Q. That’s a window. Okay. What is this? I give up.

A. The front French doors.

Q. Okay. So that's the way you would come in to the office?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And then where do you go to go to the examining rooms?
A. To my left, right here.
Q. So in the forefront or in the back?
A. In the back.
Q. All right. So near where you enter, you also go -- you also go back to the examining rooms; is that correct?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. All right. All right. I'm going to show you 5025, and ask you if that's one of your examining rooms.
A. This is my main treatment room where I see three patients at a time.
Q. All right. Now, I take it the chairs are for the patients, right?
A. Yes.
Q. I see here what appear to be some doors; is that correct?
A. Yes.

Q. And actually, there's a clock right above that; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Does that clock work?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Did it work in February and March of 2003?
A. Probably.
Q. All right. Now, where do these doors go to?
A. To my private office and consultation room.
Q. All right. To the left there appear to be some doors; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And where do those doors go to?
A. To the exterior deck in the back.
Q. Now, is there another set of doors to the left of this that are excluded from the picture?
A. Yes.
Q. So I'm going to put up 5026 and ask you, is this the set of doors that we saw in the other picture, that being the doors on the right here?

A. Yes.

Q. And then here's another set of doors in this picture by the rocking chair on the left, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And that goes out to the back patio; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Are those doors -- if there was an emergency of some sort, can people go through those doors to get outside?

A. Absolutely. You can never lock them from the inside.

Q. All right. I'm going to put up 5027 and ask you what this represents.

A. That is one of our private treatment rooms.

Q. And is there a name for this room?

A. Pardon?

Q. Is there a name for the room?

A. It's called the western room.

Q. Okay. And that's because there's some western pictures on the wall, that sort of thing?

A. A western theme.

Q. And what was the name of the other room, by the way, if there was one?

A. The windmill room.

Q. Okay. So this is a separate room, and then I see some doors here. Where do those doors go?

A. To the outer deck.

Q. Are those doors unlocked so if there's an emergency somebody could go right out?

A. Yes.

Q. Now I'm going to put up 5028. And what does 5028 depict?

A. This is the exterior, the back side of my office, showing the four sets of French doors.

Q. All right. Now, I see one set here. Which room does that go to?

A. The western room.

Q. And then it looks like there are two sets there in the middle, by the chimney. What do they go to?

A. Okay. The door right next to the western room goes to the sunrise room.

Q. Okay. That's the room we didn't see?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right.

A. And then there's two sets of French doors on either side of the fireplace that go into the windmill room.

Q. All right. So what did you say that was called, the --

A. The sunrise room.

Q. It almost makes you want to go have your teeth worked on.

A. That's the point.

Q. All right. I said "almost," though, by the way. Let me clarify that.

All right. Now, if you come out the back here, if somebody wanted to, you know, get away, and go to other people, to civilization to get help or whatever, could they leave by way of this back door?

A. Yes. There really aren't any barriers.

Q. Okay. I'm going to show you 5029, and ask you if you recognize 50 -- I think you told us you do, but what is 5029?

A. This is the side of my building next to the western room.

Q. So on the left here where we only see the corner of the building, if we followed that a few feet to the left, you would have the first of those French doors, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And what -- the photographer's point of view seems to be from the patio itself, is that correct, or the deck?

A. Yes.

Q. And then there's a ramp here; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, there's a walkway, it appears, also in the picture; is that correct?

A. Yes.
Q. Does this ramp lead to that walkway?
A. Yes.
Q. And right out in front, there seems to be a van parked there. Is that Fifth Street?
A. Yes.
Q. And then we saw in the original picture that a number of yards down to the right from this picture would be Mission, also known as 246, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. All right. Do you know --
Your Honor, we can have the lights, if that's all right.
I'll come back to it in a minute, but not right now.
Do you know Mr. Jackson?
A. I've never talked to him. I know of him.
Q. But you never met him at any time?
A. I've never been introduced.
Q. All right. Have you had occasion to be contacted by anybody from Mr. Jackson's ranch?
A. I think I should have my attorney address the Judge.
MR SANBORN: Your Honor, Max Sanborn. Could I approach?
THE COURT: Do you have an objection, Counsel?
MR. SANBORN: Actually, Your Honor, we're looking for a point of clarification. I understand that Dr. Seamount's testimony is going to be in connection with an examination and treatment of the alleged victim's older brother, and to the extent his mom was involved with it, the mother as well.
I understand that Evidence Code Section 998 says that there is no physician-patient privilege in a criminal proceeding. And we're looking for clarification with the Court, because I reviewed cases and I can't find any cases where a witness is testifying about a witness. Only the defendant is the holder. So could I have a clarification on that?

THE COURT: I’ll order her to testify.

MR. SANBORN: Thank you.

THE COURT: Go ahead, Counsel.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Okay. I forgot what I asked you. Did somebody contact you from the ranch? Have you ever been contacted by anybody from the ranch?

A. Once I was contacted by, I think it was Joe Marcus, regarding two high-profile patients that needed their braces removed.

Q. All right. And did you eventually treat those patients?

A. I removed their braces for them.

Q. All right. And do you recall the names of those patients?

A. Gavin and Star.

Q. Last name Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And was their mother present?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was her name?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Okay. But Mrs. Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, do you recall when the appointment was scheduled for?

A. It was on a Monday evening, and since they said it was two high-profile patients, I decided to place them at the end of the day.

Q. When do you usually close your office?

A. That night, I think it was six o’clock.

Q. Okay. Do you usually close -- do you have a usual closing time of some sort?

A. For the Solvang office, it’s either 5 p.m., 6 p.m. or 7 p.m., depending.

Q. All right. And on that particular night, when did you meet with these particular patients?

A. I think it was around six o’clock.

Q. Now, you indicated something about taking off the braces. What was the nature of the request? First of all, starting with Mr. Marcus, did he tell you what they needed to have done?

A. Yes. I'm pretty sure that they wanted their braces removed. I think so.

Q. And when you eventually met with the mother and the two boys, did you conclude that that's what they were requesting?

A. The mother requested removal of the braces.

Q. All right. Now, first of all, before we get to what happened there, did you see anybody arrive with the Arvizos?

A. I didn't.

Q. Okay. Where did you see the Arvizo children? Did you see them in different rooms or the same room?

A. One patient was in the western room. The other was in the sunrise room.

Q. All right. So these rooms are rooms that have doors, you can exit to the back patio; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, can you explain to us the best you recall the attitude and demeanor of the mother that you observed that night?

A. She was angry at another orthodontist who had placed the braces, and she wanted the braces removed so she could send the braces back in the mail to the orthodontist. She claimed that once the orthodontist found out who she was, he wanted more money, and so she was very angry and she just wanted them removed. And she wanted to personally send them back by mail to him.

Q. Now, was that consistent with your medical advice?

A. No. I spent quite some time explaining to her about the need for treatment, and that I could take over or any orthodontist could take over the braces that were placed, and I recommended not removing the braces and continuing on with treatment.

Q. How did that advice -- how was that received by Mrs. Arvizo?

A. I think that she discussed it with her sons. I can't completely remember. And then we also discussed other treatment options, such as braces behind the teeth.

Q. Now, did she specifically ask about options that would be more expensive than the ones that she had?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Okay. You say "braces behind the teeth." Is that sort of an invisible braces procedure?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And did she ask you for a quote to install those kinds of braces?

A. She seemed interested. I don't remember if she asked for a quote or not.

Q. All right. Now, why was it that you recommended that she not remove the braces that were there?

A. Because they need braces and it's their best interest to continue on with treatment.

Q. Did you inspect the braces that were in place?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they appear to be installed properly?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they appear to be doing the job they were designed to do?

A. Yes.

Q. And taking them off at that time, did that appear to you to be counterproductive?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, did you have an opportunity to review your medical records and determine the date that this visit occurred?

A. No. It appeared that they had been recently placed, and that there hadn't been much tooth movement. She refused to fill out the paperwork that we normally have patients fill out.

Q. Okay. I guess what I was asking, and it’s my fault, did you review your paperwork to determine what day this family came in to see you?

A. Oh, yes, I did.

Q. And what day was that?

A. That was February 24th.

Q. 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. How long were the three Arvizos in your office that night?

A. Probably a couple of hours. I’m not sure.

Q. And during that period of time did you ever see anybody with them?

A. No.

Q. So if Mr. Marcus was there at all, he never -- you never saw him, he never came back in the back?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Were there any other bodyguards or anybody else like that?

A. I didn’t see anybody.

Q. Was there a positive PR film crew that was following this group around taking pictures of you doing this orthodontic work?

A. No.

Q. When they left, did -- were they -- how did they leave? In other words --

A. They just left.

Q. All right. Said goodbye to you and they walked out on their own; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Nobody came and took them out?

A. I didn’t see anybody.

Q. All right. Now, besides the telephone that’s located in the reception area, are there other telephones located in your suite of offices?

A. Yes.

Q. If a patient or client wants to use the telephone, makes a request, do you allow them to do so?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Does that happen on a fairly regular basis?

A. Yes.

Q. Did anybody in this family during that two-hour period ask to use the telephone?
A. No.
Q. Did they give any indication that they were being held against their will?
A. Not at all.
Q. Did anybody in this group make any request for help or assistance?
A. No.
Q. Did anyone attempt to go out the back door and leave that way?
A. No.
Q. Now, during the time that you had Star in one room and Gavin in the other room, what was Mrs. Arvizo doing?
A. I don’t know.
Q. Was she up and walking around or was she seated in one particular place?
A. I don’t know where she was.
Q. You talked to her from time to time during the --
A. Yes.
Q. -- during the visit, right?
And was she in there with one or the other of the boys from time to time when you were working on them?
A. I don’t really remember. She was free to go where she wanted to when she wanted to. I wasn’t really focusing on her.

Q. All right. Now, did you observe the behavior of the two boys?
A. Yes.
Q. And can you describe the behavior of Gavin?
A. He’s the older boy, right?
Q. Yes.
A. He was undisciplined, and he started to go through my drawers with my disposables.
Q. All right. Does that pose a health hazard?
A. Yes, I’d have to throw everything away.

Q. Okay. Did you try to stop him from doing that?
A. Yes. And I told Tiffany, “Please don’t leave the boys alone.”
Q. All right. Did he seem to be intimidated or in fear at any time?
A. Not at all.
Q. Did Mrs. Arvizo appear to be intimidated or in fear?
A. Not at all.
Q. What about Star, the younger of the two? Do you recall what he was doing?
A. His behavior, I think, was better.
Q. Did he appear to be intimidated at all?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Now, with regard to the two boys, are you clear on which one is which right now as you sit there?

A. The boy that I thought was older was in the western room and exhibited the worst behavior.
Q. Okay. Between the two, was one heavier than the other one; do you recall?
A. I -- the boy in the western room appeared to be bigger, heavier, to me.
Q. All right. And was he the one that had the -- the worst behavior or --
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: All right. I have no further questions.
THE COURT: Mr. Zonen?
MR. ZONEN: Thank you, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Doctor, good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. Tell me what made those two patients VIP patients.
A. At the time I didn’t know.
Q. What could -- do you have a collection of VIP patients that you schedule for certain times during the week?

A. Why is that important?
THE COURT: Excuse me, ma’am. Answer the question.

THE WITNESS: Answer the question?
MR. SANGER: Let me do this, Your Honor. Let me object --
THE COURT: Just a moment, Counsel.
MR. SANGER: I’m sorry.
THE COURT: Ask your question.
MR. ZONEN: Is there an answer? I don’t know if there was an answer.
THE COURT: No, you can answer the question.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
If there are scheduling problems with a patient, I will make special arrangements, and it doesn’t matter how important they are as far as the world’s concerned. If somebody has a special need I have come in on off hours for them.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: My question dealt with why these two children were designated VIP. What exactly was it that made these two children VIP patients?
A. I did not determine that.
Q. Was that your understanding, that somebody in your office determined them to be VIP patients?
A. No, we were told that they were high-profile patients from Joe Marcus.
Q. Okay. Now, “high-profile patient” means what to you?
A. Someone recognizable.
Q. Did Joe -- is Joe Marcus somebody you knew prior to that day?

A. No.
Q. But your understanding is Joe Marcus contacted your office and said both of these kids are high-profile?
A. Yes.
Q. That they would be recognizable?
A. He didn’t say that. He said, “high-profile.”

Q. And that he did not want them recognized; is that the case?

A. He did not say that.

Q. Did he specifically ask that this be at a time when the clinic was otherwise closed to other patients?

A. No, he did not.

Q. Was that a decision that was made by you?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Did you feel that that was necessary in this particular case?

A. After I met them, no, I never would have recognized them.

Q. And were you aware that Joe Marcus was there the entire time that the patients were there?

A. No.

Q. Did you learn that afterward?

A. I think I just recently heard something to that effect. I had no idea he was there.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. I have no further questions.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. SANGER: Okay. I have no further questions. Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Call your next witness.

MR. SANGER: We call Tiffany Haynes.

THE COURT: Come forward, please. When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing. Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

TIFFANY HAYNES

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Tiffany Haynes. T-i-f-f-a-n-y; H-a-y-n-e-s.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Miss Haynes, how are you employed?

A. I’m an orthodontic assistant.

Q. For whom are you working?

A. Dr. Jean Seamount.

MR. SANGER: All right. Your Honor, Mr. Sanborn, the lawyer for Dr. Seamount, asked that we clarify that the same ruling would apply to the assistant.

THE COURT: The same ruling does apply. I’ll order her to testify.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: I’ll make it clear that the Court has waived the considerations of privacy of the patients in this situation and has ruled that the testimony -- the need for the testimony outweighs those considerations, and that’s why I’ve ordered the doctor and any of the staff to testify.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. SANBORN: Thank you.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Miss Haynes, how long have you worked for Dr. Seamount?

A. Four and a half years.

Q. Did you recently take a leave?

A. Yes. I’m on maternity leave.

Q. You’re on maternity leave?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you working for her in the office on February 27th, 2003?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And have you had a chance to go back and look at some of the records to refresh your recollection as to that date?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. All right. Now, on that particular day -- I think the bailiff is going to tell you --

BAILIFF CORTEZ: She’s fine.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Everybody has this problem.

You have to get real close to the microphone. On that particular day, did you receive a telephone call from anybody requesting an appointment for someone?
A. Yes, we did.
Q. And who made the call, to your knowledge?
A. A staff member from Neverland Ranch.
Q. All right. Now, Mr. Jackson is seated right there. Have you ever met Mr. Jackson before?
A. No, I haven’t.
Q. All right. What happened as a result of the telephone call coming from a ranch employee, or staff person at Neverland?
A. We made them an appointment and they came in.
Q. All right. Do you -- as the office manager, do you know who was billed for the services for this family?
A. I’m positive it was Neverland Ranch’s bill.
Q. And did they eventually pay the bill?
A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, during -- do you recall the name of the people who came in?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And what was their names?
A. I remember -- well, one was Star.
Q. All right.
A. And I can’t remember the other one. I’d have to look at his paperwork.
Q. All right. Were there two boys?
A. Yes, they were two boys.
Q. And were they brothers?
A. Yes, I believe they were.
Q. So Star and his brother.
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And did anybody accompany them?
A. Yes. Their mother accompanied them.
Q. All right. Did you see any employees of the ranch or any drivers or anybody that might have come with them?
A. Yes.
Q. And who did you see?

A. It was a man from the ranch who made the appointment brought them.

Q. Did you see him inside the examining rooms at any time?

A. No.

Q. Where was he during the time of the examinations and treatment?

A. I believe he was waiting in the lobby.

Q. Okay. Did you ever see him anywhere other than the lobby?

A. No.

Q. Now, do you recall roughly what time the family got there that night?

A. 6:45.

Q. Okay. That’s roughly? All right. And at that time, when was the Solvang office open until?

A. We were seeing patients until 7:00.

Q. Was it unusual to see patients who remained after the official closing time?

A. We do for certain patients that request to be seen after patient hours.

Q. All right. So it sounds like these people got there 15 minutes before closing and were there beyond?

A. Correct.

Q. How long were they there?

A. About two hours.

Q. Now, did you assist Dr. Seamount during the course of her seeing these patients?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Was there anybody else there from your office?

A. No, there wasn’t.

Q. Just you and Dr. Seamount; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. During the time that you were assisting Dr. Seamount, did you have an opportunity to observe the behavior of the two boys?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And can you describe their behavior?

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I'll object as irrelevant.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Well, the younger boy stayed in one room with his mother. And he seemed to be fairly quiet, you know. Nobody likes to go to the dentist.
The older boy I ended up assisting was very, could I say kind of rude.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. When you say "kind of rude" - I know it's not nice to talk about people when they're not there, but this is a court, we have to ask you - what did -- why do you say that?
A. Just the way that he acted with us. He just thought that pretty much he was better than us.
Q. Okay.
MR. ZONEN: Judge, I'm going to object to the answer as a conclusion and speculative.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. ZONEN: Move to strike.
THE COURT: Stricken.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Can you explain the actual behavior? Give us an idea of what occurred that caused you to feel that the older boy was rude.

A. Well, we tried to convince them to stay in treatment, you know, for the better of their teeth, and he just was very abrupt and said, "No, this is what I want done. This is what's going to be done."
And so we ended up doing whatever he wanted.
Q. Now, was there any problem with either of these boys getting into things in the office?
A. No.
Q. Was there any time when either one of them, to your knowledge, was going through drawers or trying to get into things?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Now, tell me about what you were -- what you were explaining to the patients about their braces. Did you actually talk to them in addition to Dr. Seamount?

A. Yes.
Q. And what did you talk to them about?
A. Well, you know, trying to keep their braces on, because he wasn't done with his treatment at all. And so if he were to take them off, then most likely, when he became an adult, he might have to have braces again, or eventually, you know, get broken teeth and crowns and dentures and whatnot. Trying to save money in the long run.

Q. Now, did he tell you where he was from?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. Where did he say?
A. He was from L.A.
Q. And how did he tell you that?
MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as irrelevant and hearsay.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Well, I was trying to make small talk and asked him where he was from. And I asked if he was from around the valley and he said, "No, I'm from L.A."
Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, did you ask either one of the boys any other questions, any other personal questions?
A. No. Not after the answer that I got.
Q. All right. And did you try to keep it on a professional level?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Did either of the boys appear to be afraid of anything? Was there anything that --
A. No.
Q. Other than having a big drill or something?
A. No.
Q. But they didn't appear to be afraid of anybody around, they didn't indicate --
A. No.

Q. Did you talk to the mother?
A. I didn't personally talk to the mother.
Q. Did you see her around?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you see her interact with Dr. Seamount?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was her attitude?
A. Well, she was just there to see what was going to be done to her children pretty much. She didn’t have any reaction to anything really.
Q. Did she make any requests in your presence with regard to their treatment?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Did you ever put together a proposal to replace the braces that were removed?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you do that at the mother’s request?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall roughly how expensive that procedure would have been?
MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as beyond the scope of this witness’s expertise and relevance.
THE COURT: Foundation; sustained.
MR. SANGER: Okay.
THE COURT: Relevance; sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. During the time that you were talking with these boys and the mother was present, was there a discussion by Dr. Seamount regarding whether or not they should remove the braces or not?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; hearsay.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: Yes, they talked about removal of the braces.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: And the proposal that you wrote up, did you write that proposal in the course of your duties as office manager?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that something that you did on a regular basis?
A. Yes.
Q. And how would you go about determining what kind of a proposal to write up for a patient?
A. We just had a standard pricing that we give to everyone.

Q. So who makes the determination as to what treatment would be required?
A. Dr. Seamount does.
Q. And she’d do that in consultation with the patients?
A. Yes.
Q. And after that occurs, does she then turn to you and ask you to do the proposal?
A. Yes.
Q. And the proposal that you did in this case, did that involve working with the existing braces or putting on new braces?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as relevance.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, at the time that these people were there, did you have telephones in the office in Solvang?
A. Yes, we did.
Q. And did any of the Arvizos ask to use the telephone?
A. No, they didn’t.
Q. Did anybody cry out for help?
A. No.
Q. Did anybody indicate in any way that they were being held against their will?
A. No.
Q. Did you see any evidence that anybody was holding them against their will?
A. No.
Q. Did they behave in any fashion that suggested that they were not free to do as they pleased?
A. No.
Q. There are some back doors -- we saw some pictures -- I won’t put them up again, but we saw some pictures of some back doors that go out to the patio. Were those unlocked in the event that people could leave in the event of an emergency?
A. They’re locked, but you can unlock them very easily. They don’t require a key or anything.

Q. So you turn the knob and you can go out?

A. Yeah.

Q. Did anybody attempt to escape?

A. No.

Q. Was there any indication that any of these people wanted to escape?

A. No.

Q. Was there -- during the time you saw these people, other than Joe Marcus, I think the gentleman you said that was waiting in the reception area, right?

A. I believe so. I was in the back office with the patients, so I wasn’t aware of whether or not he possibly left to go outside or what not. My main concern is patients.

Q. All right. You saw him there at one point, one or two points in the course of things; is that right?

A. I saw him when they came in.

Q. All right.

A. And then I was in the back office the whole entire rest of the time.

Q. When you saw him when they came in, you saw Joe Marcus in the presence of the Arvizo family, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see anything that suggested that there was any tension between Joe Marcus and the Arvizo family?

A. No.

Q. Did you see anything that suggested that he was holding them against their will?

A. No.

Q. All right. Now, other than Joe Marcus, did you see anybody else -- other than Dr. Seamount and the Arvizos, did you see anybody else in the office during the period of time that we’re talking about?

A. No.

Q. Joe Marcus -- did Joe Marcus have a camera?

A. No.

Q. Was there a positive PR film crew following everybody around?

A. No.
Q. Was anybody filming the removal of the --
A. No.
Q. -- orthodontic work?
A. No.
Q. You’re sure about that?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. I have no further questions.
THE COURT: Cross-examine?

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Miss Haynes, good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. Who was it who called for the appointment that day?
A. It was Joe.
Q. And did you know Joe Marcus prior to that day?
A. No.
Q. All right. Was he the one who told you that these were high-profile patients?
A. No, they didn’t say that they were high-profile patients. He just said that he was calling from Neverland Ranch, and needed to make an appointment for two guests that were at the ranch.
Q. All right. Who was it who made the decision to make the appointment for the end of the day?
A. They were. They wanted to be seen without so many patients there.
Q. All right. So who was it who said that they wanted to be seen without patients there?
A. Well, Joe was the one who called to make the appointment.
Q. Joe -- was that appointment made with you or somebody else at the clinic?
A. It was made with the front desk lady. It wasn’t made directly with me.

Q. But your understanding was that Joe had indicated that he wanted the appointment when no other patients were there?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object and move to strike as no foundation and hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.

MR. ZONEN: No further questions.

MR. SANGER: No further questions. Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

Call your next witness.

MR. MESEREAU: Defense will call Miss Katie Bernerd.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

Face the clerk over here and raise your right hand.

CAROLE McCOY

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Carole McCoy. C-a-r-o-l-e; M-c-C-o-y.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: I can take her.

MR. MESEREAU: We'll switch, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Best laid plans. Sorry about that.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Miss McCoy, how are you?

A. Fine, thank you.

Q. What do you do for a living at the present time?

A. I am a licensed aesthetician and I also manage a restaurant.

Q. And what restaurant do you manage?

A. Cafe Angelica.

Q. Where is that?

A. In Solvang.

Q. All right. Now, you said you were licensed. And can you tell us what that license is, please?

A. Licensed aesthetician is I do skin care, body treatments.

Q. All right. Now, you're doing pretty good, but I think the best thing is to lean into the other microphone.

A. Sorry.

Q. And you got to go right up to it. Everybody's having that problem.

A. All right.

Q. All right. So you do skin care?

A. Yes.

Q. And have you been doing that for a long time?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you get your license?

A. That's a good question. I've been doing it for probably about eight years.

Q. All right. I think maybe if you pull -- the bailiff was approaching you to -- maybe pull it up just a little bit. There you go. And then just talk right into it.

Where were you working February the 11th, 2003?

A. At my day spa.

Q. All right. And what was the name of the spa?

A. Bare Skin Aromatherapy Day Spa.

Q. Where was that located?

A. In Los Olivos.

Q. Do you recall receiving a telephone call from somebody at Neverland Ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you know Mr. Jackson, who's seated here?

A. No.

Q. Never met him?

A. No.

Q. Have you dealt with people at Neverland Ranch?

A. No. Well, yes. I have a client that worked out there.

Q. All right. So you had a client that worked there?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Have you had occasion to treat any of their guests?

A. No.

Q. On February the 11th, did you receive a call from the ranch?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And what was that -- what did that call pertain to?

A. They had a guest that wanted to come for waxing.

Q. Did you schedule an appointment?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What time was that appointment?

A. It was my last appointment of the day.

Q. All right. Roughly what time of day was that?

A. Probably around five o’clock.

Q. Okay. Did you have occasion to go back through your records to verify all of this?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. All right. And do you recall the client who finally showed up for this procedure?

A. I’m sorry?

Q. Do you recall the person who showed up?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And who was it?

A. Her name was Janet.

Q. All right. Did you get her last name?

A. It was written in the book so I didn’t really refer to her, her last name.

Q. And what was she there for? What services did you render to her?

A. She was there for waxing.

Q. What kind of a waxing?

A. Do you want me to give you details about what she had done?

Q. Yeah. In fact, let me do this. We've marked a one-page document as Exhibit 5087. Who has this witness?

MR. SNEDDON: Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: May I approach the witness, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Miss McCoy, I'm going to show you 5087 for identification and ask you if you recognize this document.

A. Yes, I do. That's one of my statements.

Q. All right. And what does that pertain to?

A. The services she had done. It's listed all separately what she had done.

Q. All right. And those are the services for Janet, who came over from the ranch; is that correct?

A. Uh-huh.

MR. SANGER: All right. I would move 5087 into evidence, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: No objection.

THE COURT: It's admitted.

MR. SANGER: I'd like to put it up, if I may.

THE COURT: You may.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Q. Okay. 5087 is on the -- is up on the overhead. And I think you told us that is the receipt for the work that you did, the services you performed for Janet from the ranch; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. First of all, what date is that receipt dated?

A. February 7th.

Q. And that's consistent with the date that you had the appointment with this particular individual, correct?

A. Yes, that's correct.

Q. Now, can you tell us, either by looking at the receipt or from memory, what precise services you performed?

A. She had a brow wax, a lip wax, face, leg, and bikini.
Q. Is that pretty much a full body wax?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. You have to say “yes” or “no” for --
A. Oh, yes.
Q. Thank you. All right. Now, do you recall talking with Janet during that period of time?
A. Yes, I did talk to her a little bit.
Q. What was your policy or is your policy when you’re treating people in the spa as far as chatting with them?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Immaterial, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Did you have a long, chatty conversation with her?
A. No, I didn’t.
Q. Okay. Was there any reason for that?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Immaterial.
THE WITNESS: No.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right.
THE COURT: The objection is overruled. Next question.
MR. SANGER: I’m sorry, Your Honor, I didn’t mean to speak so quickly.
Q. Do you recall anything that Janet told you?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Hearsay.

MR. SANGER: Not offered for the truth of the matter.
THE COURT: All right. Overruled. You may answer the question.
THE WITNESS: I try to make my clients feel comfortable and I do ask them some personal questions.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: What did she say; do you recall?

A. I --

MR. SNEDDON: Same objection, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: I asked her, you know, if -- where she was from. I asked her if she had any kids.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Where did she tell you she was from?

A. I believe that she told me she was from South America. And that she did have children.

Q. Did she at any time while she was there -- well, let me withdraw that.

Let's establish how much time she was there. She got there about five o'clock; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. How long was she there?

A. She was there for about an hour, maybe a little more.

Q. Okay. And at your spa -- do you still own that spa?

A. No. I sold it.

Q. You sold it. So can you tell us what it looked like inside roughly? What was the physical layout for the spa?

A. Well, you would walk in, and there was a reception desk. And then to the left, there was two treatment rooms. And to the right, there was some stations for manicure patients.

Q. Were there telephones in this office?

A. Yes.

Q. And if a client -- do you call them clients or --

A. Yes.

Q. If a client wanted to use the telephone, did you allow people to use the phone?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. You have to say "yes" or "no" for the reporter.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Thank you.

A. Okay.

Q. Did Janet at any time ask to use the telephone?

A. No.

Q. Did she come by herself or was there somebody with her?

A. No, someone came, dropped her off.

Q. Did that person wait around?

A. No. They left her, and then came back and picked her up.

Q. Okay. Was there anybody with Janet during the course of time she was there?

A. No.

Q. And I know you answered this and I forgot the answer. She was there from 5:00 till about when?

A. She was there for about an hour.

Q. So from about 5:00 to about 6:00?

A. 6:00, uh-huh.

Q. During that time that she was there, was she free to leave?

A. Yes.

Q. Did it appear to you that she was restrained in her liberty in any way whatsoever?

A. No.

Q. Did she ask for help?

A. No.

Q. Did she say anything whatsoever that suggested that she was not enjoying her visit at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Did she say anything or do anything whatsoever that suggested that she was being restrained in her liberty?

A. No.

Q. Now, you said somebody dropped her off. Was it a man or a woman; do you recall?

A. It was a woman.

Q. Do you know the woman by name?

A. No.

Q. And that woman, you said, dropped her off and then came back later, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So how long a period of time while Janet was there without anybody else there except you?

A. She was there at least an hour, a little bit more.

Q. Okay. And during that time, did you see anybody with a camera taking pictures of any of you?

A. No.

Q. Did you see a positive PR film crew come into your spa and film the hair removal from Janet’s legs?

A. No.

Q. Is that something that would have stuck in your mind?

A. No, I have a private room.

Q. Did you see a positive PR film crew of any sort anywhere on that day in any way related to Janet?

A. No.

MR. SANGER: No further questions.

MR. SNEDDON: No questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

Call your next witness.

MR. SANGER: Why don’t I step out just to make sure. Oh, here we go.

MR. MESEREAU: We’re going to try again, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MESEREAU: Defense will call Katie Bernerd.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

Face the clerk over here and raise your right hand.

KATHRYN BERNERD

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE COURT: You were right the first time. Take the other microphone.

THE WITNESS: This one? My name is Katie, or actually Kathryn Bernerd. And it’s spelled K-a-t-h-r-y-n, B-e-r-n-e-r-d.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning, Miss Bernerd.

A. Good morning.

Q. Miss Bernerd, which county do you live in?

A. I live in Nipomo now. Previously than, I did before, so it would be San Luis Obispo.

Q. Okay. And did you ever live in Santa Maria?

A. I did.

Q. Okay. And when was that?

A. It was a year ago.

Q. Okay. And how long had you lived in Santa Maria?

A. Many years.

Q. Okay. Are you familiar with a place called Neverland Valley Ranch?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. How are you familiar with Neverland Valley Ranch?

A. I worked there.

Q. How long did you work there?

A. I worked there for approximately three, three and a half years.

Q. And do you know when you worked there, what years?

A. It was from -- I want to say ‘01 to ‘04, I believe.

Q. And what were your responsibilities at Neverland?

A. I was the administration -- I worked in administration, so I was the assistant along with --

I did the HR and did the events, hosted the events, different -- miscellaneous. If you work at Neverland, you did pretty much everything. Everybody was able to do different jobs.

Q. Okay. Now, where was your office at Neverland?

A. It was in the administration building.

Q. Okay. Could you describe what the building looks like?

A. It was a smaller building next to the fire station.

Q. Okay. And where at Neverland is that building?

A. It's up by where -- the mechanic's shop, and if -- okay. If you knew where Neverland was, when you pulled through the gates and before you went around to the main house area and where the train depot -- before you even get to that area, and you would go -- if you would go up the hill, there is also a building up that way, that is where the administration building would be.

Q. So it's up on a hill next to the fire station, correct?

A. Right.

Q. Did you have an office there when you worked at Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. You said you did HR work. Do you mean human resources?

A. Correct.

Q. Please explain what kind of work you did in the human resources area.

A. Meaning, you know, work comp claims. Anything that dealt with all the employees, along with anything that would just come in and out of the office for Neverland. Invoicing. Pretty much anything that would deal with office work.

Q. And how many people worked in the administration building when you were working there?

A. Me, and the office manager.

Q. And who was that?

A. Joe.

Q. Joe Marcus?

A. Correct.

Q. Anyone else work there with you?

A. No.

Q. Now, you said you worked on events at Neverland, right?

A. Correct.

Q. What did you do in that regard?

A. I would put them together. Arrange -- a lot of times I would be the contact person for the main people to call. I would then try to set the dates up with another person, see if it’s available to set the event up, and then arrange for it to happen, start everything going, you know, get the supplies, what we needed for the day. And then when the day would come, get the schedule for the day, you know, how we would get it going. And then also host it, take the groups around.

Q. And who would tell you to plan an event, generally?

A. Well, me and Joe both would talk about it together.

Q. So -- but how would the idea of an event originate, if you know?

A. It would originate just by -- well, normally events would be -- every year we would do events for schools. Schools would call us. The normal -- like, local schools. Or there were -- Evvy would call us when she would have events from the L.A. areas that would be coming, would just call us, and that’s how we would call, you know, and just try to get the dates available.

Q. Now, you said local schools would call and they would want to schedule something at Neverland?

A. Correct.

Q. Would this happen often?

A. Every year.

Q. Okay. And what kind of events are we talking about?

A. They would -- it just depends. If they were doing -- every year, the school themselves, if they were wanting to for that class -- say that class that was graduating or something, they wanted to do one day for them, for the graduating class that did well and they wanted to bring them out. Say another school for good grades. It just would depend upon that school.

Q. So the school would want to bring students to Neverland for an event?

A. Correct.

Q. And you would help plan the event?

A. Correct.

Q. And you're talking about graduation-type ceremonies?

A. Not ceremonies.

Q. Parties?

A. Yes. A day of fun for the students.

Q. And was there a typical time of year when you would schedule these events or would they happen anytime during the year?

A. We would always schedule them at least when the days weren't rainy. They would always be sunny.

Q. Would they typically be at the end of the school year or did things go on during the school year as well?

A. During the school year.

Q. Any other type of school events that you would get involved in yourself?

A. No, just the events.

Q. Now, you said you would help plan them, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you also said you hosted them?

A. Correct.

Q. What would you do to plan them?

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object as immaterial, irrelevant.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When you hosted these events, what were your responsibilities?

MR. SNEDDON: Same objection, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You said you planned events with the groups from Los Angeles, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Same. Irrelevant and immaterial.

MR. MESEREAU: We need her responsibilities, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You said you helped plan events from Los Angeles, correct?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. And what events are you referring to?

A. Well, in regards to events from L.A., it would be Evvy contacting us, and what would happen is she would give us a list of who would be coming, so she would start that process.

And pretty much from then on, we would just put the day together as in getting the materials, the food, the supplies we needed for the day, and then making sure everybody that we needed to work for the day to be there.

Q. And what events are you referring to? What kind of things did you plan with people from Los Angeles?

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Immaterial and irrelevant.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: It just would depend on -- let me see. Let me think of one. Say one that comes to mind, you know, because they have labels to them, “A Time For Kids” was -- you know, is one. That is what one event was called.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: So that was a group that came?

A. That was a group that came.

Q. And you would coordinate their visit?

A. Yes.

Q. And would you arrange for food and things of that sort?

A. Correct.
Q. Okay. And was this sort of a regular part of your work at Neverland?
A. One part, yes.
Q. Okay. Now, you said you had an office in the administration building, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you do other types of work at Neverland besides what you just described?
A. Yes, I would help out also in the house once in a while.
Q. And that’s the main residence?
A. Correct.
Q. What would you do in the main residence as part of your work?
A. Whenever they were -- the cleaning ladies were a little shorthanded I would help them with housekeeping.
Q. Okay. And what percentage of your work do you think was involved in housekeeping, where you would just help out?
A. Very small percentage.
Q. And what were your hours typically when you worked at Neverland?
A. Always 40 hours, but I also had overtime also.
Q. And when you worked in the main residence, who did you work with?

A. A lot of the times I would work with Maria, who is one of the head housekeeping -- housekeeping cleaners.
Q. Was that Maria Gomez?
A. Correct.
Q. Who else would you work with?
A. Let’s see. Luz. And I can’t recall everybody’s name right now.
Q. Now, you mentioned you talked to Evvy, right?
A. Correct.
Q. Was that someone named Evvy?
A. Evvy, yes.
Q. And she would help you plan events; is that right?

A. That’s mainly what I would talk to Evvy about, yes.

Q. And was it your understanding that Evvy was Michael Jackson’s personal assistant? Right?

A. Yes.

Q. So she would call you from time to time and get you going on various planning, right?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, if you helped out in the main residence, who would ask you to do that?

A. It would be Joe. If he would know they were shorthanded, he would -- and I had my work done in the office, he would see if I needed -- if I could go down and help.

Q. And he would simply ask you, you know, “We’re shorthanded today. Would you come down and help out?”

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you would just do that?

A. Yeah. Or sometimes the ladies would tell me, you know, if I had time, and then I would see if it was okay.

Q. And if you -- if you helped out in the main residence, what are the kinds of things that you would do?

A. Cleaning.

Q. Okay. Clean rooms?

A. Clean rooms. Uh-huh.

Q. And which rooms; do you remember?

A. I’ve cleaned guest rooms, the guest cottages. I’ve cleaned train depots. The main house. The theater.

Q. Okay. And are there any other activities that you were involved in as part of your work at Neverland that you haven’t described?

A. Mainly those.

Q. Were you ever asked to transport people from time to time?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Please explain what you mean by that.

A. Also, again, whenever some people just were shorthanded and, you know, people were busy doing other things, they would also ask me if I could run around or do other errands for other -- whatever reasons might be. And, yes, when I was asked to give rides to certain guests, take them off property from time to time.

Q. And who would typically ask you to do that?

A. It would either be Joe, the ranch manager, or sometimes it would be the person who was in charge of the house, whoever at that time would be in charge of the house.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Take our morning break.

THE COURT: Counsel?
MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.
Q. Miss Bernerd, have you ever met somebody named Janet Arvizo?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. And when did you first meet her?
A. First time I met her was just passing by in the main house area.
Q. And you say “passing by.” Now, what do you mean?
A. I was going to the main house just to pick up something, and she was in the garage area, and it was just a “hello” kind of thing.
Q. This is the garage area of the main house?
A. Correct.
Q. And is that attached to the main house?
A. It’s attached -- yes.
Q. And what did you see her doing in the garage area of the main house?
A. She was just standing outside.
Q. Okay. Did she appear to be doing anything in particular?
A. No.
Q. Was she talking to anyone, to your knowledge?

A. No.
Q. Just standing there?
A. Yes.

Q. In the garage area, what do you typically see?
A. You would just see the garage doors and the entrance then to the opening to the main area where you can go to the pool area or the arcade room or the main door to the main house.
Q. And did you say hello to her?
A. Back door, I mean.
I'm sorry, what was that?
Q. Did you say hello to her at that time?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And that was the first time you had ever seen her?
A. Yes.
Q. Did she say hello to you?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. But you saw her standing there not doing anything in particular?
A. Yes.
Q. And what time do you think it was?
A. It was mid-afternoon. I couldn't give you an approximate time. I don't actually recall. It was just afternoon.
Q. And you went into the main house after you saw Janet Arvizo?
A. Correct.
Q. Were you just doing some work in the main house that day?

A. I believe I was just picking up something real quick.
Q. Did you ever see her again that day?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Do you recall ever talking to Janet Arvizo on any telephone?
A. Yes.
Q. And could you explain what you mean?

A. She used to call up several different times to -- while I was in the -- in my office requesting different things.

Q. Okay. Now, we're talking about sometime in February 2003, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And did she start to call you after you met her in the garage area?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And you introduced yourself by name to her?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you tell her what your position was at Neverland?

A. I didn't tell her what my position was. After we did introduce ourselves, she did ask what I did there, and then that's how she found out. She asked me and then I told her what I did.

Q. Sorry. Did you finish?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. I'm sorry I interrupted.

A. That's okay.

Q. After you met her in the garage area as you were on your way to the main house, she started to call you; is that correct?

MR. SNEDDON: Object; asked and answered.

THE WITNESS: What was that?

THE COURT: Just a moment. He's objecting.

THE WITNESS: Oh.

MR. SNEDDON: It's me.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer. I'll have the question read back so you know.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Would she call you at your office in the administration building?

A. Correct.

Q. Was that the only phone you had while you worked at Neverland?

A. No. There was many phones, but for a direct number, because they were direct-connect lines, she would call me directly.

Q. And do you know how she got your direct line number?

A. Yes, there's main phone lists around Neverland. Every phone has a phone list as to which numbers connect you to which phone.

Q. And would the guesthouses have that phone list?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So it was not difficult to find out how to get ahold of you, correct?

A. No.

Q. And is that phone list revised from time to time?

A. All the time.

Q. And who typically revises the phone list?

A. I do.

Q. And when you revised the phone list, what do you do?

A. I would just go into the computer and revise it and make copies again, and send it to the -- whoever's in charge of the main house and they would make sure it got around.

Q. And the phone list would have numbers for virtually everyone who worked at Neverland, right?

A. It would have -- the phone list actually had, for every phone, like, the numbers. Like it would be No. 21 for this phone would be whoever this phone, you know, it would connect you to.

Q. Okay.

A. So every phone to Neverland.

Q. So it was no secret how to call people who worked at Neverland if you were on the ranch, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And how many phone lists do you think there were around Neverland showing you where to call someone if you wanted to?

A. There was at least approximately probably 20, if not more.

Q. Okay. And you are talking about phones in the theater and phones at the train station and phones all over, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And you would redo the phone list, and you would arrange to have someone insert it in all the phones at Neverland, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you recall approximately the first time Janet Arvizo called you after you met her?

A. If you’re asking for a date, no.

Q. Approximately when? Would it be sometime in February of 2003, do you think?

A. Yes, February of 2003.

Q. Okay. And what did you talk about?

A. She had asked if I can get her --

MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object to the statements as hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever do anything for Janet in response to any request of hers?

A. Yes, I took her off property.

Q. Where did you take her?

A. To a day spa.

Q. And where was that day spa?

A. It was located in Solvang.

Q. And why did you take Janet to a day spa?

A. She wanted to get some different things waxed and wanted to also get her hair done up and different things done to her hair.

Q. Did she make that request to you?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. Did she call you on the phone to make that request?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. And when she asked you to take her to a spa to do the things you described, what did you do in response?

A. I first told Joe about it, just to let him know that she’s making this request, and to make sure if it was okay to set an appointment for -- like that, and got the okay, and went ahead and set the appointment up.

Q. Okay. And did you choose any particular date for that appointment?

A. She wanted it done right away.

Q. Okay.

A. Within the hour.

Q. Okay. And Joe gave you the approval, right?

A. Correct.

Q. You called the spa, right?

A. Correct.

Q. How did you know which spa to call?

A. I just tried to find one real close by. It was one I had never -- I didn’t even know we had one that close by, so I had looked at the phone book.

Q. Had anyone at Neverland ever made a request like that to you before?

A. Never.

Q. And was it your understanding that you were supposed to make the appointment and take Janet to the appointment?

A. I didn’t know I was supposed to take her to the appointment.

Q. At some point in time, did you actually learn you were going to take her to the appointment?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. How did you learn that?

A. After I set up the appointment.

Q. What happened?

A. I just got asked if I could take her.

Q. Okay. And who asked you that?

A. Actually, at the time the main house -- who was in charge of the main house, Jesus, asked me if I could take her.

Q. Okay. And did you take her?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now, did you transport her yourself?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Was anyone with you and Janet when you took her?

A. No.

Q. And what car did you take her in?

A. I took her in a van.

Q. And whose van was that?

A. It was Mr. Jackson’s, one of his vehicles.

Q. Okay. And so it was just you and Janet in the van, right?

A. Correct.

Q. This is the appointment you had arranged, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And approximately what time of day do you think you took Janet to her appointment?

A. This was closer towards the evening. I want to say it was approximately around 4:00-ish. I could -- yeah.

Q. And when you took Janet to her appointment at the salon, did you have any understanding as to who was going to pay for it?

A. We were.

Q. How did you know that?

A. Because we always do with -- with any request from any guests. We just pay -- we do. We just pay for whatever the request might be.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Janet who was going to pay for the waxing treatment at the salon?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Was it your understanding that she just assumed you’d pay for it?

A. Correct.

MR. SNEDDON: Object, Your Honor. Calls for a conclusion.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SNEDDON: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever tell Janet, “Mr. Jackson’s going to pay for your appointment”?

A. No.

Q. So there was no discussion about payment at all?

A. Never.

Q. Okay. And when you took her to the appointment at the salon, tell us what happened.

A. As we were driving?

Q. Sure.

A. As we were driving -- again, I really didn’t know Janet too well except for the few phone conversations and the request that she had. We were driving along, and she started to tell me about --

MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object to anything she says as hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: Not for the truth, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: What relevance does it have,

then?

MR. MESEREAU: It impeaches.

THE COURT: Just a moment.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, that’s just a basis --

THE COURT: Let’s not start.

MR. SNEDDON: Relevance. Hearsay and relevance.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: She started to talk about her ex-husband, and about how she was trying to get away from him. Going into detail about those type of -- how badly she had it; how well, you know, Michael had been treating her; how he was so much of a father figure to her kids; how he’s helped them out so -- you know, how he’s helped them out. She just pretty much was praising Michael and telling me also just how -- how bad she had it off with her ex.

And I was just driving the whole -- you know, the distance, because it’s not too far from the salon to Neverland. And the whole time, though, I was thinking, “I don’t know this lady and I can’t believe she’s telling me this much into her background of her story,” because I wouldn’t normally tell anybody my kind of story. And --

MR. SNEDDON: Object to the narrative, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How long was the drive to the salon?

A. It would be about a ten-minute drive.

Q. Okay. And did you drop her off at the salon?

A. I took her inside and talked to the front lady that I had talked to on the phone, and we talked about payment. And if I recall, I think I did pay then. And then -- and then they told me, “Okay, it will be about this long.” And I decided -- I still had more work to do, so I said, “I’ll come back for her,” and I left.

And then after she had told me how long it would be, and I think it was maybe about 45 minutes she said to come back, and I came back.

Q. So after you dropped Janet Arvizo at the salon, did you go back to Neverland?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. And you resumed your duties at Neverland when you got back?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And at some point you decided to return to the salon to pick Janet Arvizo up, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, while Janet Arvizo was at the salon, did you speak to her at all on the phone?

A. No.

Q. Did you speak to anyone at the salon while you were back at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Okay. So at some point you drive back to the salon to pick her up, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And you get to the salon, and what do you do next?

A. Go inside to get her, and then she wants to get her hair done. And I just talked with the lady at the -- you know, the front desk lady. And we tried to arrange for her to get her hair done.

And the person who was going to do her hair, she didn’t have anything available until the next morning, so then we walked through the back, because I guess the hair place is just right through the back of their area. The salon’s right in front.

And we spoke to her, and she was going to make a special trip in for the next morning, and we set it up for the next morning, and we were going to bring Janet back the next morning to get her hair done.

Q. Okay. Now, while you were driving Janet to the salon and while she was telling you about her personal life, did she ever complain that she was being held against her will at Neverland?

A. Never.

Q. During that drive to the salon, did Janet Arvizo ever say she and her family were being falsely imprisoned at Neverland?

A. Never.

Q. During that drive to the salon, did she ever complain that Michael Jackson or anyone associated with him was doing anything bad to she or her family?

A. Never.

Q. Were you ever part of any effort to hold Janet Arvizo against her will?

A. No, I was not.

Q. Were you ever part of any conspiracy to falsely imprison the Arvizo family?

A. No, I was not.

Q. Were you ever part of any conspiracy to extort or threaten anyone in the Arvizo family?

A. No, I was not.

Q. Did anyone at Neverland ever ask you to hold the Arvizos against their will?

A. No. No one ever did.

Q. Anyone at Neverland ever ask you to extort the Arvizos or threaten them in any way?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did you ever get the feeling, separate and apart from what she told you when you drove her to the salon, that she was being held captive?

A. Never.

Q. Now, when you drove Janet Arvizo to the salon, do you recall there being any public relations group following you with cameras?

A. No.

Q. When you brought Janet Arvizo into the salon, do you recall seeing any public relations crew following you?

A. None whatsoever.

Q. Did you see anybody with cameras following you when you took Janet Arvizo to the salon?

A. No, I did not.

Q. When you went to pick up Janet Arvizo, after she'd completed her appointment, did you go into the salon?

A. After I had picked her up?

Q. No, excuse me. When you went -- I didn't rephrase it. Excuse me, I didn't phrase it very well. Let me withdraw the question.

When you returned to the salon to pick up Ms. Arvizo, did you park the van?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you get out of it?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you go into the salon?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did you do when you got in the salon?

A. That's when we went to the back area to try and schedule the appointment for her hair.

Q. Okay. Was Janet with you when you went into the back area?

A. Yes.

Q. Was she with you when you tried to schedule another appointment?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she ever complain that she was being held against her will at the salon?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did she ever complain that her children were being held against their will at any time?

A. No.

Q. Okay. And because she wanted a hair appointment, you scheduled one, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. After you scheduled the hair appointment, what did you do next?

A. We just drove back to Neverland.

Q. And you recall paying for the salon appointment, right?

A. Yes.

Q. On the way back to Neverland, did you and Janet chat?

A. I'm sure it was small chitchat.

Q. Was anyone else in the van with you?

A. No, it was still -- we were alone.

Q. On the way back, did she ever complain about anything Mr. Jackson had ever done?

A. No.

Q. On the way back, did she ever complain about anything that was going on at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Now, you said that Janet called you from time to time at Neverland, right?

A. Uh-huh. Yes.

Q. And on -- obviously on one of the occasions she asked for the opportunity to go to the salon, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you recall her calling and asking you other things?

A. Yes.

Q. What else did she ask you to do?

A. She has asked for us to take her off property to go shopping for clothes for her and her children.

She's also asked me to set up an appointment with a dentist so she could get some braces removed from one of her sons.

Q. Okay. And did you set up that dental appointment?

A. Actually, I believe Joe Marcus did.

Q. Okay. And when she asked you to set up a dental appointment, was there any discussion about who would pay for the appointment?

A. No, there was not.

Q. Was it your assumption that Mr. Jackson would pay for it?

A. Correct.
Q. Okay. And did you have anything to do with that dental appointment other than what you’ve just described?
A. No. That was it.
Q. Okay. Now, you said she called up and asked you to take she and her family out to buy clothes?
A. Correct.
Q. And do you remember what she said?
A. Just --
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Hearsay.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, she said that she had lost her suitcases and didn’t have any clothes at all, and needed to get some clothes.
And at the time, Chris Carter was in the office when I was taking the call, and was standing there, and he said that he had just taken them to get clothes and some shoes, and he didn’t understand why she was calling asking for those things.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: So your understanding --
MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object to the second hearsay statement.
THE COURT: It’s stricken.
The jury is admonished to disregard the statement by Chris Carter.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was it your understanding that this was not the first time she had called and made a request to go shopping for clothes?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you arrange for Janet Arvizo to go shopping for clothes?
A. No.
Q. Why didn’t you do that?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Immaterial.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How many phone calls do you think you had with Janet Arvizo while she was at

Neverland?
A. Maybe four or five.
Q. In any of those conversations, did she ever complain that she was being held against her will?
A. No, she did not.
Q. Did you ever get the impression in any of those conversations that Janet was scared of anything?
A. Never once.
Q. Did you ever get the impression that she was trying to hide anything when she spoke to you on the phone?
A. No.
Q. Were those phone calls all initiated by Janet or would you call her as well?
A. No, they were initiated by Janet.

Q. And did you know where she was calling from when she made those calls?
A. No. I don't have that capability of knowing where she's at.
Q. Okay. Did Janet explain to you why she wanted a dental appointment?
A. Yes.
Q. What did she say?
MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object. Excuse me. Are you finished with the question?
MR. MESEREAU: Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Hearsay.
MR. MESEREAU: State of mind, Your Honor. And not for the truth.
THE COURT: The objection is overruled. You may answer.
THE WITNESS: She stated that she was being hassled by the dentist who put the braces on, and couldn't afford to pay for them. And she wanted to send the braces back in an envelope to the dentist.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And did you relay that information to Mr. Marcus?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Okay. Did you ever see Mr. Jackson interact with Janet at Neverland?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever see -- excuse me. Did you ever meet any of Miss Arvizo’s children at Neverland?

A. Just passing by.

Q. Okay.

A. Like how I did with her outside in the garage areas.

Q. And where was this --

A. Also --

Q. -- at Neverland?

A. Also -- when I met them, it was also in the garage areas.

Q. Okay.

A. When they were just standing around.

Q. Were the children with Janet or without Janet?

A. One time they were with Janet. And then one time I believe they were just getting ready to get on some quads or something.

Q. Okay.

A. Or go-carts.

Q. At the time you saw them with Janet, approximately what time of day was that?

A. Again, in the afternoon. It could have been one, two, three o’clock.

Q. And approximately where at Neverland did you see Janet and her children together?

A. In the front -- in the main house area, in the pool -- in the garage/pool area.

Q. So roughly were you had seen Janet the first time, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And what did she seem to be doing with her children?

A. She was just standing around with them. She wasn’t doing anything.

Q. What do you recall the children doing on that day?

A. Nothing. On the day that she was with them?

Q. Yes.

A. They were just standing around with her also at that time, at that moment.

Q. But there was no question in your mind they seemed to be together, right near -- Janet seemed to be together with her children?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Near the main house, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Okay. So for how long did you observe them all on that particular day?

A. It wasn’t long at all. I was just passing by, so it was a few minutes.

Q. Now, were you going to the main house or away from the main residence?

A. To the main residence.

Q. Okay. Did Janet introduce you to her children?

A. No.

Q. Okay. You just said hello?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Okay. Have you ever spoken to any of her children, other than what you described on that day?

A. No.

Q. All right. Did you ever see Janet inside the main house when you were helping out?

A. I believe I saw her one time in the kitchen area, but that would be it.

Q. And what do you recall seeing her doing?

A. Sitting at the kitchen bar.

Q. Okay. And the kitchen bar --

A. Stool.

Q. -- is like a counter where you can see into the kitchen, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And that’s a counter which has wooden seats attached to it, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And you typically have plates with homemade buns on the counter every day, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And people will sometimes order food and it will be prepared right in front of them in that kitchen area, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And are you saying you remember seeing Janet sitting there?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you see her eating anything?

A. I don’t recall.

Q. Was she talking to anyone, if you recall?

A. I don’t believe so.

Q. Were her children with her on that occasion?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Any other time you remember seeing the Arvizo children doing anything at Neverland?

A. No. A lot of the times I was in the office working, so they were always running around playing.

Q. And you’d see them playing?

A. No. We would just -- I would know -- we would know a lot of times if they had requests to take the quads out, because then we’d have to call security to pull them out or the mechanics to pull them out. So a lot of times I would just know when those kind of things -- you know, if the kids were out running around on those.

Q. So part of your job would be to arrange for the children to drive the quads?

A. Or just to let the security or somebody know to pull them out or put them away.

Q. And typically when this request was made, who would make the request?

A. The kids would ask somebody around the house area, and then they would call one of us in the office. Just depends on whoever was around to ask, and then they would call us.

Q. And if you got a request to arrange for the children to drive quads, what would you do?

A. Well, we always need the okay and the authorization from Joe, so he would be the one to go to next.

Q. And was any such request ever turned down; do you know?

A. I don’t believe so, no.
Q. Okay. And how many times do you think you were involved in a request to provide quads for the Arvizo children?
A. Maybe just a couple times.
Q. Okay. Did you ever see them actually driving around?
A. It’s possible.
Q. Not sure?
A. I’m not sure. A lot of times people wear helmets, you know, or we make sure everybody does wear helmets. So I couldn’t tell you underneath the helmets who was who.
Q. Have you seen other children drive quads?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you been involved in arranging for other children to drive quads?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you have to do to make that arrangement?

A. Just get the authorization through Joe, and then just make sure that they’re available and working and ready.
Q. Would you then contact the children who wanted to drive quads and let them know that they were available?
A. No.
Q. What would happen next as far as their being able to drive a quad?
A. If I was involved with that actually, I would just let security know, and security would come and take over from there after I found out -- or had the authorization. They would get them available and then find the kids or let them know where they are. And I don’t know from then on what they did.
Q. Now, you said your work was mostly at the administration building up on a hill, right?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. And the main house, when you helped out --
A. Uh-huh.
Q. -- right?

And did you ever work at the theater?

A. On events, yes.

Q. What events are you talking about?

A. When -- when I wasn’t hosting events, and, say, if we had weekend events and they needed help, I would -- like, working behind the theater, the snack bar. I would work inside the theater, like handing out candy or popcorn, those kind of things.

Q. Would you hand out candy and popcorn to children?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. They were children who were there for specific events?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall seeing the Arvizo kids in the theater?

A. No, I don’t believe so. I don’t think I’ve ever -- not for an event.

Q. Do you think you’ve seen the Arvizo children anywhere else at Neverland during the time that you worked?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: No questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

Call your next witness.

MR. MESEREAU: Defense will call Ms. Maria Gomez.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

Face the clerk here. Raise your right hand.

MARIA GOMEZ

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Maria Gomez.
THE CLERK: Will you please spell that?
THE INTERPRETER: The interpreter will spell.
M-a-r-i-a; G-o-m-e-z.
THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Good morning, Miss Gomez.
Miss Gomez, do you know the fellow seated at counsel table to my right?
A. Yes.
Q. Who is he?
A. He is my boss. I work for him.
Q. What is his name?
A. Michael Jackson.
Q. And how long have you worked for Michael Jackson?
A. I have worked for him ten and a half years.
Q. And have you worked for him at Neverland?
A. Yes.

Q. And what kind of work have you done at Neverland?
A. (In English) The housekeeping.
Q. Okay. And as a housekeeper, what are your responsibilities?
A. Cleaning. Cleaning the house. To serve.
Q. And is all of your work in the main house?
A. No. In other areas as well.
Q. And what other areas do you work at?
A. The units. The theater. The train depot.
Q. And when you say “the units,” do you mean the guest units?
A. Yes.
Q. And as part of your responsibilities, do you and others clean the guest units?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, is there a particular time of day that you usually clean the guest units?
A. Yes. We always clean them when the guests go out to lunch.

Q. So do you typically clean the guest units around midday?

A. Yes.

Q. And when the guests go to lunch, where do they typically go?

A. To the kitchen.

Q. And is that the kitchen in the main house?

A. Yes.

Q. And so you will watch to see when the guests go to the main house and then go to clean the guest units?

A. Usually, yes.

Q. And how long does it typically take to clean a guest unit while the guests are having lunch in the main house?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; relevancy.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: About an hour.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Now, if the guests don’t leave for lunch and stay in the unit, what do you do about cleaning the unit?

A. We ask. We call them on the phone and ask if they would like service.

Q. So you try and schedule an appropriate time with the guest?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, in the main house, what areas do you typically clean?

A. The whole house. Well, not his room.

Q. What areas, do you think?

A. The upper floor of the house, the library. All the areas except for his room.

Q. Would you be responsible for cleaning the wine cellar area?

A. Yes.

Q. And let me direct your attention to the year of 2003, okay? And I’d like to talk about January, February, March of 2003. Okay. Were your duties the same as you’ve just described?

A. Yes.

Q. And were you cleaning the wine cellar then?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you cleaning the guest units then?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Do you recall ever meeting someone named Janet Arvizo?
A. Yes.
Q. And when do you recall first meeting Janet Arvizo?
A. I cannot recall.
Q. Do you recall seeing them in 2003?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you recall seeing them in the time period of, say, January, February, March 2003, roughly?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you ever see Janet Arvizo's children at Neverland?
A. Yes.
Q. And what were their names, if you remember?
A. Davellin, Star and Gavin.
Q. And do you recall the Arvizo family staying at the ranch?
A. Yes.

Q. Would you see them often?
A. Yes, all the time.
Q. Did you see Janet Arvizo all the time?
A. Yes.
Q. And where would you often see Janet Arvizo?
A. Sometimes I saw her in her room, because I cleaned when she was inside the room. And other times, most of the time in the kitchen.
Q. What would you -- excuse me, let me rephrase that.
What did you see Janet Arvizo doing in the kitchen?
A. Well, not exactly in the kitchen, but at the counter.
Q. And what would you see her doing at the counter?
A. When she would go for meals, she would spend a lot of time there, because there was a machine where they can play games there.

Q. Did you see Janet with her children in that area of the house?
A. Yes, many times.
Q. Would you see them all playing games?
A. Yes.
Q. Was there a particular time of day where you would see them playing games in the kitchen area?
A. Well, at lunchtime or mealtimes.
Q. Did you see Janet in the main house at other times?

A. Yes.
Q. And how often do you remember seeing Janet in the main house at times other than lunch?
A. Well, usually they would go and spend time there at the sitting room.
Q. And what is the sitting room?
A. It’s an area next to the kitchen.
Q. And what do you see in the sitting room?
A. How is that?
Q. Well, is there a television in the sitting room?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it a big television?
A. Yes.
Q. And would you see Janet and the kids watching television in the sitting room?
A. Yes.
Q. And you have couches near the T.V., right?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you see them there at all times of day?
A. Many times they would spend a lot of hours there.
Q. Now, what hours did you work during the first three months of 2003?
A. Well, we’re always rotating. Usually my schedule, I would go at 9:00, 8:00. Then sometimes

I would leave at 4:30. But when I had the afternoon shift, actually I would stay until we locked up the house.

Q. And what time would you lock up the house when you did the afternoon shift?

A. 9:00 or 10:00 in the evening.

Q. Did you sometimes see Janet Arvizo in the house in the evening?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you see Janet with her children in the house in the evening?

A. Yes, after supper.

Q. Did you see Janet and her children have dinner in the main house often?

A. Yes, but at that time she spent a lot of time in her room.

Q. And would you visit her in her room?

A. Only the times that I would go and clean when she could request it.

Q. Did you ever see Janet watching television in the main house in the evening?

A. I cannot recall exactly, but it was normal to see them spend a lot of time in that area.

Q. And that’s in the main house, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, in Janet’s guest quarters, did you have a television also?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you see her children in the guest quarters ever?

A. Yes.

Q. How many times do you think you saw Janet’s children in the guest quarters at Neverland?

A. I would not be able to say how many times. But when we would go and clean, they would be there for a short while and then they would go out and then come back in.

Q. Now, during the first three months of 2003, how many guest units do you remember the Arvizos having at Neverland?

A. Three.

Q. And whose rooms -- excuse me, let me rephrase that. Who was staying in those three units?

A. The lady in No. 4. Gavin in No. 3. And Star and Davellin in No. 2.

Q. And did you often clean those three units?

A. Sometimes I would do one or sometimes another. But not very often, not every day would I clean all three.

Q. Okay. Do you recall seeing the children in their units from time to time?

A. As I said, they came and went.

Q. Okay. Do you recall cleaning the children’s units?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you do that often?

A. Sometimes.

Q. And did those units need cleaning?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. And what do you mean by that?

A. Those children were tremendous. They usually would bring a lot of things from the theater, lots of candy. And they would make a big mess. Something -- it was almost as if they would want to waste whatever.

Q. Was it hard cleaning their rooms?

A. Yes.

Q. Why was that?

A. They would leave them -- well, I don’t think that guests staying for one night would make such a filthy mess in one day.

Q. Did they make a mess often?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there any question -- excuse me, let me rephrase that.

They clearly were using those rooms, weren’t they?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Calls for a conclusion; ambiguous.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you said you would clean Janet’s room, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Was her room a little easier to clean than the kids?

A. It was easier, yes, of course.

Q. Okay. She didn’t mess her room up the way those children did, right?

A. No.

Q. Did the children mess up their beds?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. And what do you mean by that?

A. Well, when one -- well, I don’t know if they -- if they were very wild when they slept, but the sheets and the blankets were -- they were all -- they had been taken out of the bed.

Q. Did that happen often?

A. Many times. They would always make a mess. And the beds --

Q. Did you see Janet at any other locations on the property from time to time?

A. Well, when she would spend a lot of time there in her room, I happened to mention to her why she didn’t go out and take a walk. Because to me, it seemed that she spent a lot of time there. And that would be when sometimes -- well, very few times.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll object as nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever see Michael Jackson with Janet Arvizo at Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. And what do you recall seeing Michael Jackson and Janet Arvizo doing?

A. Talking or eating dinner.

Q. Would Michael Jackson eat dinner with Janet Arvizo?

A. Not all the time, but sometimes.

Q. Would you see Michael Jackson and Janet having dinner without the children?

A. But you are asking about those -- that time, January?

Q. January, February, March 2003,

approximately.

A. Oh, no. She spent a lot of time in her room.

Q. And did you see her with Michael Jackson at all?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll object. Vague as to time.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. MR. MESEREAU: During the approximate period of January, February, March of 2003, do you recall seeing Michael Jackson with Janet Arvizo at Neverland?

A. I would not be able to say. I can’t recall.

Q. Do you recall seeing Janet Arvizo with her children at Neverland outside of the main house?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll object. Vague as to time.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: I’ll rephrase it, Your Honor.

Q. During the approximate period of January, February and March of 2003, do you recall seeing Janet Arvizo with her children at Neverland outside of the house?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did you see them?

A. Around the units area.

Q. What did you see them doing?

A. Just talking.

Q. Did you ever see the children playing at Neverland during that time period?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did you see them doing?

A. They used the motorcycles, the skateboards. There are bikes, bikes that they use around the house.

Q. Would you see Janet Arvizo with her children when they were playing?

A. No.

Q. And in your work, do you go all over the property?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see the children at other locations on the property?

A. At the theater.

Q. And what did you see them doing at the theater?

A. Well, when there are films, they would watch the films, or they would spend time at the counter eating ice cream.

Q. Now, is that the counter in the theater?

A. Yes.

Q. And is there a place to sit there?

A. There is no sitting area.

Q. Do you sort of lean against the counter and order what you want?

A. Yes, or they could serve themselves.

Q. Okay. And that’s where you get ice cream and popcorn, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you can get candy there as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And you would see them when you were cleaning the theater?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see the children, Star, Gavin, Davellin, interacting with other guests at the ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. And what do you mean by that?

A. Well, at that time I was trying to recall who was there at that particular time.

No.

Q. You don’t recall seeing the Arvizo children playing with other children at Neverland?

A. At that time, I cannot recall.

Q. Do you recall seeing the children in the area where the rides are, the amusement rides?

A. We don’t go -- usually don’t go out to that area.

Q. Okay. Now, you said that in the main house, you used to clean the wine cellar area, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did you used to do there as part of your work?

A. That is not in the area that is usually cleaned. It's cleaned once in a while. It is not a place that is frequented. It's a place that is always locked and we really don't say we usually cleaned it. Only when it needed it.

Q. And who would decide when the wine cellar area needed cleaning?

A. At that time I would, or Jesus.

Q. And when you say clean the wine cellar area, what are you talking about? Please describe the -- that part of Neverland.

A. That place is used to store meals or food that the cooks use, for example, if they buy big amounts. There are some refrigerators that they use. And there's a sink right next to that, and if they leave things out, sometimes they make a mess right there. And -- or maybe they have a drink there and then someone just leaves the glass behind. But really, it's not that much that's something that we would have to clean all the time.

Q. And where would the food be stored in the wine cellar area?

A. Where the refrigerators are.

Q. Would the food be actually in the area where you find wine?

A. Yes.

Q. And that's an area that's refrigerated, right?

A. Yes.

Q. So would the cooks go into the wine cellar to get food from time to time?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know how often they would do that?

A. Not very often.

Q. And what kind of food was stored in the wine cellar during the period of, say, January, February, March of 2003?

A. They used refrigerators when they buy meats, juices or extra milk. Those refrigerators are used as storage.

Q. So the wine cellar itself is refrigerated, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And it gets very cold in there, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, when you would go in there to clean, how would you get in?

A. There is a key that we had to go in there.

Q. And where would you get the key?

A. The key -- Jesus had the key, or Joe.

Q. And who would decide when you needed to go clean the wine cellar area?

A. Well, if someone that had gone in there became aware. But we did not go.

Q. Would you clean that area if it needed cleaning?

A. Yes.

Q. And typically would you decide when to go there or would someone tell you it needed cleaning?

A. Usually -- well, since the key was held by only two people, we had to request the key.

Q. Okay. Do you recall the key hanging anywhere in that area?

A. They had it on a key chain.

Q. Okay. But when you needed the key, did you get the key yourself or did someone give it to you?

A. Someone would give it to me.

Q. Okay. Did you need permission to go into that area or would you just go there when you thought it was necessary?

A. I would have to ask.

Q. Now, when food was being prepared for a large number of guests at Neverland, would there be a lot of activity in and out of the wine cellar area?

A. Yes.

Q. And would you see cooks, for example, going in and out of the wine cellar area?

A. Yes. Usually they were the ones who would have the key. If there was an event, they would have the key with them during the day in order to go in and out.

Q. Was it only the cooks you would see going in and out, or would you see other people?

A. Just the cooks.

Q. And was it your understanding that anytime the cooks needed to go into the wine cellar, they could get in?

A. Yes, but they would also have to request the key.

Q. In the kitchen area, you also have refrigerated areas, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And they're not locked, right?

A. No.

Q. And there is alcohol -- excuse me. Alcoholic beverages are contained in those areas as well, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And anybody can open the refrigerator and get those alcoholic beverages, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And those refrigerated areas have see-through glass, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You can see what's in that refrigerated area before you open it to get something?

A. Yes.

Q. And you can see things like beer and wine in that area, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Do you recall a key chain to the wine cellar hanging on a wall in the maids' room?

A. Well, before, a long time before, that key was used.

Q. Okay. Now, after a large number of guests would be served dinner, would it be normal for you to have to clean in the wine cellar area?

A. No.

Q. So you just did it when somebody requested it pretty much?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you clean -- excuse me, let me rephrase that.

When you would clean in the wine cellar area, would you also clean the area that’s next to the wine cellar?

A. What area?

Q. The area that’s right up to the wine cellar door.

A. The arcade?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. Did you clean that area as well?

A. We would clean the counter. And the bath rooms.

Q. Okay. Do you remember ever seeing any of the Arvizo children in the wine cellar area?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember ever seeing Janet Arvizo in the wine cellar area?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember ever seeing Gavin Arvizo drinking any alcoholic beverage?

A. I never saw.

Q. Do you remember ever seeing Gavin Arvizo look like he was intoxicated?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember ever seeing Star Arvizo drinking any alcoholic beverage?

A. I never saw.

Q. Do you remember ever seeing Star Arvizo look like he was intoxicated?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember ever seeing Davellin Arvizo drinking an alcoholic beverage?

A. No.

Q. And do you remember ever seeing Davellin Arvizo look like she was intoxicated?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever see Michael Jackson with any of the Arvizo children drinking alcohol?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall Janet Arvizo ever complaining about Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall Janet Arvizo ever saying nice things about Michael Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did she say?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Object. Hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: Not for the truth.

THE COURT: The objection's overruled.

THE WITNESS: That he was like a father.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And when did you -- excuse me, let me rephrase that.

When do you recall hearing Janet Arvizo say that?

A. At that time.

Q. And did she start the conversation with you?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did this conversation take place, if you remember?

A. I was in Gavin's room, Unit 3. I was doing the room, and she came in to either find him or get something from the room. And she began to speak to say that Michael Jackson was like a father to her children, and that she wanted them to call him "Dad."

Q. How long did that conversation last?

A. Oh, it was just a short while.

Q. Did Janet Arvizo ever talk to you about her son's illness?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did she say?

A. Well, even though she spoke Spanish, she mentioned her child, her son's illness. On that occasion, she mentioned the illness and how he was improving. But she was speaking in English, so I couldn't really understand her exactly, what she was saying about the illness that her son had.

Q. Did Janet Arvizo ever say that Michael Jackson had helped her son with his illness?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Janet Arvizo ever mention Michael Jackson when she was telling you about her son’s illness?

A. How is that?

Q. Well, did she ever say anything about

Michael Jackson helping her family with the son’s illness?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes. That he had been a blessing to them; and that he was the type of person -- he was like a father to her children.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever hear Janet Arvizo complain about Michael Jackson at any time?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet Arvizo ever tell you she was being held against her will at Neverland?

A. After that conversation, about a week later, she began to talk about being there against her will.

Q. And what did she say?

A. That we should help her leave.

Q. Did she ever mention someone named Dieter Weizner?

A. On that occasion she said that three persons, including that person Dieter, they were holding her there.

Q. And did she say anything about they’re interfering with her relationship with Michael Jackson?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: That they were interfering with her relationship with him, yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And approximately when did she say that Dieter Weizner and others were interfering with her relationship with Michael Jackson?

A. That happened almost at the time that they left.

Q. Did she ever mention someone named Frank Cascio?

A. Yes.

Q. And did she say he was interfering with Janet’s relationship with Michael Jackson?

A. Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer -- the answer’s “Yes.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did she ever mention a Vinnie Amen?

THE INTERPRETER: I’m sorry, what was that?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did she ever mention someone named Vinnie Amen?

A. Oh, Vinnie, yes.

Q. Did she complain about him as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she say anything about whether he was interfering with her friendship with Michael Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, you’ve mentioned Frank, Vinnie and Dieter. Did she say anyone else was interfering with her friendship with Michael Jackson that you recall?

A. No, just those three persons.

Q. Okay. At some point, do you recall Janet asking Jesus to take her home?

A. Yes.

Q. And were you with Janet and Jesus when you heard that?

A. Yes.

Q. And where were you?

A. In that -- on that occasion we were in Unit 4.

Q. Was Jesus there as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And did Janet say she wanted to leave Neverland?

A. Yes.
Q. And to your knowledge, did Jesus agree to arrange to let her leave?
A. Not at that moment when I was there.
Q. Did he do it at some point?
A. I believe so.
Q. And did he tell her he would arrange to have Frank or Vinnie take her home?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes. She wanted -- well, she did say that they were interfering.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And to your knowledge, was she taken home at some point?
A. I don’t know.
Q. Okay. Do you recall Janet telling you and Jesus that Frank and Vinnie were separating her from Michael Jackson?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; asked and answered.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: If I may take just one moment, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall -- excuse me.
Mrs. Gomez, do you recall seeing any adult magazines at Neverland?
A. Yes, on one occasion.
Q. And do you recall seeing any of those magazines with the Arvizo children?
A. Well, I’m pretty sure, yes, because in Unit 2 there was a backpack with those type of magazines.
Q. And who was staying in Unit 2?
A. Davellin and Star.

Q. And what did you do when you saw those magazines in Unit 2?
A. I left them there.
Q. Did you tell anyone about that?

A. No.
Q. Did you find them when you were cleaning?
A. Yes. But I just saw them.
Q. Okay. And you saw them in a backpack?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Do you know who owned the backpack?
A. Well, I would suppose it was Star’s.
Q. Okay. Do you remember seeing -- was the backpack open?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you recall seeing these magazines wrapped in a shirt?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When you saw the magazines in the backpack, were they in full view?
A. The backpack was slightly open, and I saw those magazines.
Q. Did they appear to be wrapped inside of something?
A. No. That was another occasion. That was in his office.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; nonresponsive.
THE COURT: How do you know?

(Laughter.)
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I took a guess.
THE COURT: I have to hear what she says. I don’t --
THE WITNESS: There were two magazines in the lower cabinet under the sink.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And this was in the office area?
A. Yes, in the office.
Q. Okay. Did you ever see adult magazines just laying around in the main house?
A. No.
MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.
THE COURT: Cross-examine?

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:
Q. Good morning, Ms. Gomez.

A. Good morning.
Q. You have never cleaned Mr. Jackson’s room, did you?
A. No.
Q. In fact, over your nine years, you were only allowed in Mr. Jackson’s room three times; isn’t that true?
A. Yes, sometimes.
Q. And is that because Mr. Jackson only allowed certain people in his room to clean it?

A. Yes.
Q. As far as adult magazines go, there would be no place for children to get adult magazines at Neverland unless some adult gave them to them; isn’t that true?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I don’t know.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, you said there’s no magazines lying around. So for those kids to get adult magazines, someone would have to give them to them, right?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; no foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: I don’t know.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: As far as -- and you did testify that you have seen adult magazines in Mr. Jackson’s office; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you’ve seen adult magazines in a bathroom? Is that another area?
A. No, no, no. In the office, underneath the sink, I saw two magazines. And then in the children’s room, Davellin and Star.
Q. Okay. And that would be Mr. Jackson’s office, the bathroom near Mr. Jackson’s office, is that correct, where you saw those magazines?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you've been an employee of Neverland for nine years straight; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you value your job there?
A. Of course.
Q. Did you sign a confidentiality agreement when you went to work at Neverland not to discuss things off of -- when you leave the property?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you know that your phone calls can be monitored at Neverland?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; misstates the evidence.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I had an idea that they were, that the calls would be checked, yes.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And do most employees of Mr. Jackson know that their phone calls can be monitored when they're at Neverland?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; calls for speculation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Now, when you were interviewed at Neverland on November 18th, the day of the search warrant, do you remember that day?

A. Yes.
Q. You told the officer that the Arvizo children were polite and normal, true?
A. I said that, but I felt intimidated that day.
Q. Okay. And you said that the Arvizo children would make quite a mess in their room; isn't that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And they'd eat a lot of candy?
A. Yes.
Q. Isn't it fair to say that most children who come and visit at Neverland eat a lot of candy?
A. But those children, they were even more special. They ate more than was normal.

Q. But most of the children at Neverland eat all the candy they want; isn't that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And do they act like children -- the children that eat candy, do they act differently? Do they act like they're full of sugar?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Maybe I'll ask the question a little differently. Ask for foundation.

Q. Have you ever noticed how children act when they've been eating a lot of sugar?

A. Yes. But those children would get a lot of candy.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Object as nonresponsive.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. He's cutting off the witness.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. I'll strike the second part of the answer. The answer is, "Yes."

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay.

Q. You said that their rooms would be messy, the Arvizo children's rooms would be messy?

A. Yes.

Q. The sheets would be off the bed, and the Arvizo children would play in those rooms during the daytime, wouldn't they?

A. They came and went, I would assume.

Q. Because you didn't stay there at night after, say, nine o'clock, did you?

A. Not in the rooms.

Q. Yes. And didn't you say you normally left Neverland around 9 p.m.?

A. Yes, 9:00 or 10:00.

Q. Okay. So you don't know where children would sleep at Neverland after that time, do you?

A. I would assume in their rooms. I don't know.

Q. But without assuming, you don't really know, do you?

A. No, I don’t know.

Q. Now, when you heard this remark about Frank and Dieter and Vinnie trying to interfere with Miss Arvizo’s family and Mr. Jackson, was that conversation in English or in Spanish?

A. In English.

Q. And Miss Arvizo told you she liked Michael Jackson, true?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever hear any of the children refer to Michael Jackson as “Daddy” or “Dad” when Michael Jackson was there, any of the Arvizo children?

A. I did not hear that.

Q. Who were Vinnie -- who was Vinnie? Let’s start with him. Do you know who Vinnie is?

A. Well, I only knew that he was Frank’s friend.

Q. And who is Frank?

A. A friend of Mr. -- Mr. Jackson.

Q. Now, when the Arvizo children were there in February and March, they were there for almost a month; isn’t that true?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know why they were taken out of school to stay at Neverland for that period of time?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE WITNESS: No.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is, “No.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And you also stated that Janet stayed in her room most of the time in February and March; is that correct?

A. Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. No further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

Let’s start our break early.

(Recess taken.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: I understand there's an issue that needs to be heard.

Mr. Zonen?

MR. ZONEN: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Who is your next witness?

MR. SANGER: We have Mr. Vivanco, Your Honor.

THE COURT: It's in regard to this witness?

MR. ZONEN: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Something you want to add?

MR. SNEDDON: Ron?

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, the brief that we filed dated May 11th --

THE BAILIFF: Can you turn your microphone on, please?

MR. ZONEN: The brief that we have filed dated May 11th, 2005, illustrates the points we believe are irrelevant to this proceeding. And we believe, under 352 and general rules of relevancy, that this witness ought not be allowed to engage in any of those questions or offer commentary on any of those facts.

MR. SANGER: We filed our brief showing the five areas of exceedingly relevant testimony that we believe this witness will testify to. And other than going on a question-by-question basis, if there's something that is -- there's no foundation for, or some other objection of that sort, I don't see any need for the Court to make a ruling in advance.

On the initial issue regarding the details of specific acts, we had conceded that long ago, so I don't think that is an issue before the Court. We had no intention of asking specifically about that after we filed a brief in response. And there was another brief listing a number of potential objections to what potentially might be done. And I believe there's a foundation for everything we intend to ask. I think it should be question by question.

THE COURT: I don’t know what you intend to ask. Do you mean you filed something in response to the one where there’s A through M?

MR. SANGER: No. We had filed --

THE COURT: I have seen the previous ones.

MR. SANGER: We filed the one with the five different categories.

THE COURT: Which date was that? I want to be sure I’m looking at the right one.

MR. SANGER: May 12th, I believe. Called “Response to Motion to Exclude,” and specifically in that response we indicated that we believed that the real issue -- the issue that was raised initially was resolved. And so based on colloquy, we set forth the five basic reasons why this testimony is relevant to these proceedings.

THE COURT: Well --

MR. SANGER: And the District Attorney filed something I think a day later. We did not file another response because we felt we had responded.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, I agree with the District Attorney’s brief that certain things are not relevant. And just on reading it, I believe that A through N are properly objected to.

MR. SANGER: A through M?

THE COURT: A through N.

MR. SANGER: N.

THE COURT: But I didn’t see any of your other materials that you intended to ask those questions, but I don’t think they exclude you from covering the areas that you indicated that you were going to cover. But these are areas that are properly objected to, so I’ll sustain their objections to those questions.

If you want to take a minute to go through them -- I assume you’ve already gone through them.

MR. SANGER: I have not only gone through them, but I left them back in my office, so I have everything but that.

THE COURT: Do you want to look at mine? I was afraid I had left something of yours in my office when you said there were five things, but now I see what they're referring to. They weren't numbered 1 to 5. They just happened to be five things. So if you want to look at those for just a minute so there's no confusion about what my ruling is.

MR. SANGER: From what Your Honor is saying, I take it Your Honor has ruled and you're not inviting any argument on this?

THE COURT: Well, you didn't have the paper in front of you. If there's something you want to address, I would certainly listen to you.

MR. SANGER: Well, in general, and that's --

I felt we had answered it, but maybe not. In general, all of these, as I'm looking at them here, with the exception of N and L -- and now I have the paper and you don't.

THE COURT: Right.

MR. SANGER: With the exception of L and N -- and I'll give it back to you.

So with the exception of "Lincoln" and "Nora," L and N, which we do not intend to ask L and N, the rest of them would be admissible, I think, for two reasons. One, for direct impeachment for both Davellin and Janet Arvizo, because they both testified absolutely to the contrary as to each one of those points.

And secondly, for the state of mind of both Davellin -- Davellin and Janet Arvizo, because they both testified that contrary to those points that were made, all the other points except L and N, that they were -- for instance, David was the bad guy. Much evidence was introduced by the prosecution on that. This flies in the face of it and it's an admission. But Davellin said she basically stayed in the room with her mother at all times, and yet she's out talking to people and talking to this particular witness and being very expressive about her upset with her mother.

Her mother portrays herself as being concerned about her children, and that her children are close to her. And instead, that the children are -- this particular daughter is calling the mother various names and making statements. I mean, that's a public record. I'm not repeating it unnecessarily. I mean, it's a totally different picture than the picture painted by the prosecution through the testimony of both Janet and Davellin.

It also shows --

THE COURT: You can't impeach Janet's testimony with this, and a lot of this you didn't ask Davellin. So the only purpose for impeachment -- you know, you can't impeach Janet with what Davellin says.

MR. SANGER: I understand, Your Honor. It impeaches Davellin to the extent that she was saying her mother was sincere and in her room and was afraid that her -- some of the direct statements to the effect that all of these children, including Davellin, have made about their biological father. And it turns out she misses her father. She blames her mother for that. Those are direct contradictions to her testimony that she's given so far.

THE COURT: Well, I guess one of the problems I'm having is recalling which question you asked which of the children.

MR. SANGER: Let me remind the Court for a moment. Maybe this will help.

Remember Mr. Mesereau did the questioning.

But Mr. Mesereau did the questioning of Davellin. And in the course of that, he had asked her about Carol Lamir, and Davellin immediately volunteered, "Carol Lamir is a terrible person. She made me clean her house." And then Janet testified to the same thing.

Whereas this witness will say she is saying she stayed with this friend. She wanted to get away from her mother. That Davellin was asked by Mr.

Mesereau, “Did you tell Carol Lamir that you didn’t want to be with your mother?” “No, I never said that. I didn’t stay there very long.”

THE COURT: The only way you can impeach that is to have Carol Lamir come and say that she said that.

MR. SANGER: We will.

THE COURT: So what she tells or didn’t tell this person doesn’t impeach that, because you didn’t ask her, “Did you tell this person that?” You’re trying to bootstrap yourself into something here.

MR. SANGER: Well, we’re not impeaching her statements about Carol Lamir. We’re impeaching the other statements that were made in the course of that questioning by Mr. Mesereau to the effect of, “Did you get along with your mother?” “Were you” -- “Did you try to get away from her?”

And this shows that those answers -- Carol Lamir was kind of the lead-in to that, but the direct questions I believe were asked of Davellin by Mr. Mesereau.

THE COURT: Well --

MR. SANGER: And she denied it.

THE COURT: See, if you’d responded to me in this brief with the cites where those questions had been asked, that would have been helpful.

MR. SANGER: All right.

THE COURT: It’s not helpful to give me a general statement that all of this rebuts something that was said.

MR. SANGER: I understand, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And I think, you know, absent you being able to show me those quotes that would justify these questions, I’ll stand by my ruling.

MR. SANGER: All right.

THE COURT: Let’s bring in the jury.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, if we may, we’ll call a different witness so we have a chance to look at this, if we might briefly.

THE COURT: Yes, that’s fine. Respond to the specific items.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor. The defense will call Mr. Shane Meridith.

THE COURT: All right. Remain standing, please. Face the clerk here, and raise your right hand.

SHANE MERIDITH

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Shane Meridith. It’s S-h-a-n-e. Last name is M-e-r-i-d-i-t-h.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Meridith.

A. How are you?

Q. Good, thanks.

Where is your home?

A. Santa Maria, California.

Q. And how long have you lived in Santa Maria?

A. About five years now.

Q. Are you familiar with the fellow seated at counsel table to my right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is that?

A. Mr. Jackson.

Q. How do you know that?

A. I used to work for him.

Q. When did you work for Mr. Jackson?

A. From 2002 till 2003.
Q. And did you work at Neverland?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And what was your job there?
A. I was a security officer.
Q. Were you a security officer for the whole time of your employment?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you have any training in security work before you worked at Neverland?
A. No, not really.
Q. What was your work history, just in summary?
A. Prior to that, I was mostly in sales.
Q. Did you have any training in firefighting?
A. No, sir.
Q. Okay. Did you have any training to do your job in security at the ranch?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. What was it?
A. The training that we received from the ranch, which was from individuals that worked there. Supervisors trained us on basic techniques, you know, as far as detaining people or interrogating people, things like that.

Q. Who did the training program for you?
A. Mine was a supervisor -- or two supervisors, Julio Magana and Curtis Gordon.
Q. And what did you do at Neverland as a security officer?
A. Basically view day-to-day activities, answer phones, maintained the security of the ranch itself. Make sure that, you know, everybody that was there was supposed to be there, and people that weren’t supposed to be there weren’t allowed to come on. Things like that.
Q. What kind of shift did you work typically?
A. Typically my shift was 6 p.m. to 6 a.m.
Q. And was that your shift during the entire period of employment at Neverland?
A. Roughly. Some of them would vary. I think Sundays I would work a day shift, which was 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Q. Did you ever meet someone named Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. When did you first meet her?

A. It must have been -- well, it was in 2002. It was probably February, maybe March of 2002.

Q. Would it be 2003, do you think?

A. Maybe around Christmastime of 2002.

Q. Okay. That’s when you first met her?

A. Yeah, I believe so.

Q. And where did you meet her?

A. On the property.

Q. Okay.

A. She was actually -- when they were coming onto the property, I met her at the front gate.

Q. Okay. Did you ever see her on the property while you were working there?

A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. And how many times do you think you saw Janet Arvizo at Neverland when you were working at Neverland?

Possibly five times. Five or six times.

Q. What did you see her doing?

A. Mostly just walking around the property. Either from the bungalow areas to the house itself or just, you know, hanging around by the front of the house where our security station was.

Q. Would you talk to her from time to time?

A. I think I had one conversation with her.

Q. Okay. Okay. And where did that conversation take place?

A. That took place in front of the security office close to the main house.

Q. All right. Did you see her in any other location other than near the main house, that you recall?

A. No.

Q. Okay.

A. Not that I recall.

Q. Did you ever meet her kids?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And when did you meet her children?

A. Roughly the same time.

Q. Okay. And they were Gavin, Star, and Davellin, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Where did you see them?

A. You'd see them all over the ranch. They used to come up to the front security office sometimes riding bicycles. I'd see them at the theater. I'd actually take them from the house, from the main house, up to the theater periodically, as I did, you know, many guests. But all throughout the ranch.

Q. Would you talk to them from time to time?

A. Yes, I would.

Q. And why would you talk to them?

A. Just speaking to -- like I said, to all guests. Just basic conversation, "How you doing?" Things of that nature. "Can I get anything for you?" You know, stuff like that. Stuff of that nature.

Q. Did you ever see Michael Jackson with Janet Arvizo?

A. No, I don't believe so.

Q. Did you ever see Michael Jackson with her children?

A. Yes.

Q. And what do you recall seeing?

A. Just them walking around the house area or going up to the theater to view a movie.

Q. Did you ever see Michael Jackson do anything you thought was inappropriate with those children?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, you say you saw Michael Jackson and the children walking up to the theater?

A. Yeah, they were -- once they were walking, and also I remember taking them up in a van, as well.

Q. And what was the purpose in going to the theater, if you knew?

A. To view a movie. They were watching a movie. I’m not sure -- it was a new release of some kind.

Q. Did the kids seem to do that very often?

A. They used to go up to the theater quite often. Not necessarily to view movies, but just to go up there. There was candy and various other things for them to go up there and have.

Q. Now, if Gavin, Star and Davellin went to the theater, how would they arrange to have a movie shown; do you know?

A. They would usually -- somebody from the house would usually contact one of us and we would either contact the projectionist, or they would either contact, you know, a security officer that was directly in their sight, and then we would contact a projectionist and have them come up to put the movie on.

Q. Would that happen any time of day?

A. Yes. If there was a projectionist on property, that could happen any time of day, night, whatever.

Q. Do you recall seeing the Arvizo children at the theater in the evening?

A. Yes.

Q. How many times do you think you saw the Arvizo children at the theater in the evening?

A. I think the two times that I recall them walking up, and the second time with me taking them in the van, they were both in the evening time.

Q. Did you, as part of your work, go into the main house ever?

A. Yes.

Q. And what would you do in the main house?

A. Either deliver messages, or there was a couple of occasions that I was sent in to wake up some individuals that were -- that were in the house.

Q. Okay. And who were they?

A. Those were the owner’s nephews that were upstairs.

Q. And do you remember their names?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Okay. And they were Michael Jackson’s nephews?

A. Correct.

Q. Where were they?

A. They were upstairs in the owner’s room.

Q. Okay. And describe, if you would, where they were.

A. They were -- when I woke them up, the -- I woke them up on two different occasions. And the first occasion I believe they were on the floor in sleeping bags. And the second time they were up and about, you know, already walking around the room, but they just didn’t want to get up, I guess, or something.

Q. This is in Michael Jackson’s bedroom area?

A. Correct.

Q. Would you please describe that room area?

A. I only saw it from the doorway, which was -- you open the door, I just remember seeing -- there’s a bed and then the floor area. There’s a lot of stuff that was in there. You know, a lot of tables and lamps and things like that.

Q. Did you walk through that area?

A. No, I didn’t go into the room.

Q. Would you knock on the door?

A. Yes. Yeah.

Q. And someone answered?

A. Yeah.

Q. Who was that?

A. That was one of the nephews at the door.

Q. At some point you saw them sleeping in the room area; is that right?

A. That’s correct. That was on the first occasion I saw them sleeping in the sleeping bags.

Q. Where were the sleeping bags?

A. On the floor. They were right near the door in the sleeping bags.

Q. Okay. And you said that was a couple of occasions that you saw that?

A. Them on the sleeping bags?

Q. Yes.

A. Only on the one. I woke them up on a couple of occasions, but most of the time they were already up. I saw the sleeping bags, but they were usually -- just on the two occasions. The first occasion, there was a couple -- the one nephew was actually in the bed -- I mean, in the sleeping bag. But the other occasion, they were already up. The bags were down.

Q. And please describe what Mr. Jackson's nephews look like.

A. Slender, fairly tall for their age, I would think. African-American. That's about --

Q. Boy? Girl?

A. Oh, they were both -- the two boys.

Q. Uh-huh. Okay. All right. Did you ever see the Arvizo children in Mr. Jackson's personal quarters?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Do you recall ever bringing any soda or popcorn to Mr. Jackson's personal quarters and seeing the Arvizo children in there?

A. Yeah, actually I did bring the popcorn. They requested some popcorn and they were in there, that's correct.

Q. Who made the request?

A. That was made by, I believe, Star. I believe Star was the one who made the phone call to the security office.

Q. And he asked for someone to bring popcorn to Mr. Jackson's quarters?

A. Yeah, if I could bring some popcorn, sodas, you know, Red Hots, snack items from the theater. They didn't want to have to come downstairs and go to the theater.

Q. Did you do that for them?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you talk to Star on the phone?

A. Yes, I did. Yeah, that was -- I took the phone call.

Q. And was it part of your responsibilities to respond to requests like that?

A. Sure. It wasn’t out of the norm for me to do that.

Q. If a guest asked for popcorn or food be delivered, would you be one of the people who would do that at Neverland?

A. Absolutely.

Q. This is during the night shift?

A. Night shift, day shift, yeah, whenever. Any request that was given by a guest, we were more than happy to help them out.

Q. And did you bring the food to Mr. Jackson’s personal quarters?

A. Yes, correct.

Q. In response to Star’s request?

A. Yes.

Q. And approximately what time of day do you think this was?

A. This was in the evening. It was probably eight o’clock, 8:30, maybe, p.m.

Q. And did you go into Mr. Jackson’s room?

A. No, I didn’t. I stood at the door.

Q. Did you have a chance to look into the room?

A. I don’t believe I did.

Q. Okay. Do you recall seeing any sleeping bags in Mr. Jackson’s room?

A. Not on that particular night, no. As a matter of fact, on that particular night, I saw the children later on in their -- their sleeping quarters down, you know, by the officers’ station, those bungalow areas. They were -- that night they were down there.

Q. These are the Arvizo children?

A. Those are the Arvizo children.

Q. And you’re referring to Gavin, Star and Davellin?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did you actually see them?

A. On that night?

Q. Yes.

A. They were -- later on, probably about an hour and a half after I brought the candy and popcorn to them, they were in their sleeping quarters, and that would be -- I'm not sure if it was the -- Room 1 or Room 2. It was one of the rooms. And they were -- you know, they were inside. They were in their pajamas, ready for bed, watching T.V.

Q. And why is it that you went into the guest quarters and saw the Arvizo children?

A. I was doing my rounds around that area, the light was on, and they were goofing around. They opened the door and they saw me, and we had a little conversation.

Q. What time of night do you think this was?

A. It had to be around 11:00. Yeah, it was later at night. I know that, because the lights were -- if they weren't already off, the lights on the property were getting ready to be shut off. I'm not sure, but it was probably 11:00, 11:30.

Q. Typically in your work, would you check out the guest quarters from time to time?

A. Absolutely. We would do that on 15- to 30-minute increments. We would check the guest quarters as well as the main house, the perimeter checks.

Q. And when you check guest quarters, what do you do?

A. Just walk around the guest quarters themselves, make sure that the doors are locked that are supposed to be locked, and, you know, make sure that the guests are either okay, or if they have anything that they need, or, you know, we would give them what they need, things like that.

Q. Do you know approximately when this was? And I'm talking about the time you first saw the Arvizo kids in Mr. Jackson's room and then later on saw them in the guest quarters.

A. The difference in time frame or the exact time of night?

Q. Let me state that better. I asked a poor question. I'm talking about the month and year.

A. Oh. Probably the beginning of 2003. I left employment in April, so it had to be prior to April. Maybe February.

Q. Do you remember seeing the Arvizos during a time when you thought it was their final visit?

A. Well, I didn't know if it was their final visit, but I recall them -- seeing them when they were packing out at a late hour.

Q. And do you recall seeing them leave?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you ever see them come back again?

A. After that, no, I did not.

Q. Okay. Now, when -- let me rephrase that. The time you saw them earlier in Mr. Jackson's room and then later on in the guest quarters, was that close to the time when you believe they were last at Neverland?

A. Yeah, that was probably the last visit they were there. If not, it was around the last visit they were there.

Q. Now, you checked the guest quarters, you think, around 11:30, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you check them again that evening?

A. Well, yeah, like I said, I would do my every 15- to 30-minute checks, and then after -- after midnight, one o'clock, I think one o'clock would have been my last check, right around that time frame, and then I was to relieve the officer at the front gate.

Q. Now, in the main house, when you would do your security checks, where would you go?

A. Around the house. We would check the arcade, the bathrooms, the pool area, and just around the main house in general.

Q. Do you know where the wine cellar is?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And as part of your security check, would you go into the wine cellar from time to time?

A. Periodically. It wasn't a complete destination, but we would -- we would check the -- to make sure that the lights were off down in that -- in that little corridor, as well as the jukebox was placed in front of it blocking the entrance.

Q. And how often would you check that area of the house during your shift?

A. If I was on the 12-hour shift, personally I would check that area -- I would go through the arcade every occasion that I would do a house check, which was every 30 -- you know, 30 minutes. So -- but I wouldn’t physically go down to check the door unless there was reason to believe that that area was -- you know, there was somebody down there or there was a reason to check that door physically.

Q. What kind of a reason would you need to do a security check of the wine cellar?

A. Either I saw lights, heard a noise, the jukebox was moved away from the area, or someone had requested that I go to check that area. Or if I knew that people were actually in the arcade, then I would go down and check that area.

Q. During any of your security checks in February of 2003, did you ever find Gavin and Star in the wine cellar?

A. I did find them in the wine cellar. And I’m not sure of the time frame when they were there, but there was a night that I did find them in the wine cellar, or an evening.

Q. Was it in the year 2003, to your knowledge?

A. I believe so.

Q. Were they with anybody else?

A. No, it was just the two of them.

Q. Why did you go into the wine cellar to check it on that particular day?

A. The jukebox was moved away from the stairwell, and I could see that there was a light on from under the door. Because the game room was dark, there was no light on in the game room, so I could see the light from under the door.

Q. You went down the stairs?

A. Correct.

Q. You went to see the wine cellar, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. What did you see?

A. When I walked in, I saw the two children laughing, giggling, whatever. They were -- they were obviously startled. I kind of snuck down on them, because I wasn’t sure who was down there. And they kind of looked at me, and, you know, were laughing, and I could see them with a bottle of alcohol that was in front of them.

Q. Was the bottle open?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Did you say anything to them?

A. Yeah, I told them that they needed to get out of that area right now and get upstairs, which they did.

Q. Did you see Michael Jackson anywhere near that wine cellar on that occasion?

A. No. No, he wasn’t there.

Q. Was there anybody else there besides Gavin and Star?

A. No, it was just the two boys.

Q. Did they seem to respond to your request?

A. Yeah. Yeah, they were pretty shaken.

Q. And what did you see next?

A. Then I just inspected the area to see exactly -- to see if I could figure out exactly what they were doing down there, and that’s when I took a closer look at the bottle and I noticed there was -- some of the contents were missing out of the bottle.

Q. Did you determine how much of the bottle was -- excuse me, how much of the contents of the bottle was missing?

A. It was about half full.

Q. Do you remember who was -- was anybody holding the bottle?

A. No, they were just standing. The bottle was on the table. There was a little kitchenette area that’s in the -- in that wine cellar area. And the bottle was in front of them, and the two boys were kind of around the bottle, but nobody was physically -- I didn’t see anybody physically holding it.

Q. And when you -- did you ask them to leave?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did they leave?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. Did they leave quickly?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. Did they actually run up the stairs?

A. Yes, they scurried.

Q. All right. Did they say anything to you in response to your request that they leave?

A. Nothing, other than they were -- they were kind of caught off guard, so they were, you know, a little surprised. And they just -- they just took off, you know, when I told them that they needed to be -- that they weren’t supposed to be down there and they needed to be upstairs, they -- you know, they turned and hightailed it out of there.

Q. Now, at some point, you saw the Arvizos leave for what you think was the last trip from Neverland, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you know approximately how close to that date the incident in the wine cellar was?

A. I think it was the visit prior to that. It was -- it was fairly close. I mean, all their visits were -- that I recall, were very close together towards the end of their -- that last visit, or that I assumed was the last visit, because I didn’t see them after that again.

Q. Do you recall the time you think they left for the final time?

A. Yes.

Q. Approximately when was that?

A. That was, I believe, in February, March.

Q. And did you see them actually in the process of leaving?

A. That’s correct. Yeah, I was doing a house check, and they were -- the -- they were being packed out -- they had -- one of the limos was in the back of the house, and Jesus Salas was helping them with their luggage, which there was a lot of luggage that was being packed up, so I helped them pack that luggage up.

Q. Did they ask you for your help or did you volunteer it?

A. I volunteered my help.

Q. Okay. And did they seem to want you to help them?

A. Oh, sure. The kids weren’t doing anything physically. They were just getting ready for the ride home. They were kind of watching us do the labor.

Q. Did you talk to Janet at all as you were helping them load the car?

A. No, I did not. No. I spoke to the children, but I didn’t speak to her.

Q. Did the children appear upset at all?

A. No, not at all.

Q. What was your impression of their demeanor?

A. They were in fairly good spirits. I mean, despite how -- you know, whatever. It was kind of a late hour. I know it was probably one o’clock, two o’clock in the morning. But they seemed in pretty good spirits. I mean, they said -- you know, they said goodbye and they’d see me again on the next visit.

Q. Did you ever hear Janet Arvizo ever complain about Michael Jackson?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever hear Gavin Arvizo ever complain about Michael Jackson?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever hear Star Arvizo ever complain about Michael Jackson?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever hear Davellin Arvizo complain about Michael Jackson?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did Janet Arvizo say anything to you at any time about being held against her will at Neverland?

A. Not to me.

Q. Now, when you were helping them load their luggage into the vehicle, what do you recall actually putting into the vehicle?

A. Duffel bags. They were, you know, like gym bags, sort of large duffel bags. That’s what I helped load in. You know, I got there at the tail end of the loading, so I just -- there was maybe three bags left, four bags. I know there was some toys and things, too. But most of them were duffel bags. And like I say, it was the tail end of the packing.

Q. Did you ever see a backpack?

A. I do not recall a backpack.

Q. Okay. Who owned the duffel bags, if you know?

A. I don’t know. I believe they were everyone’s. I mean, you know, they didn’t actually have names on them and nobody was standing next to them to claim either one of them. They just -- they were just there by the back of the car and I helped load them in the back of the car.

Q. And did you help Janet load her possessions into the vehicle?

A. I’m not sure if any of those possessions were Janet’s or not. Like I say, nobody laid claim to anything that I loaded in there. They were just standing, watching, and I helped load those bags in.

Q. Is that the last time you saw them?

A. That was the last time that I saw them, yeah.

Q. Did you ever speak to Janet on the phone at any time?

A. Merely to -- yeah, actually, I did. But it was merely to pass along messages to the -- to the owner.

Q. And how often did you do that?

A. I probably spoke to her on the phone maybe twice, three times.

Q. So she would call you to give a message to Michael Jackson?

A. She would call to see if she could be put through to Mr. Jackson. And we would try to ring him and get him on the phone that way, or we would just send her -- send the call directly to the house itself, and she could try her luck that way.

Q. As far as you know, was that the standard way she tried to reach Michael?

A. As far as I know, yeah. That’s how she pretty much tried to reach him.

Q. So she would try to go through you to get connected to Michael Jackson?

A. That’s correct. Now, if she called a private line or something like that, I would have no knowledge of that.

Q. Okay. Now, did you have any knowledge, during the time you worked at Neverland, about how one would get into the wine cellar?

A. Yes. Yeah.

Q. What was your knowledge about that?

A. You would -- the door was usually locked, but it wasn’t always locked, and you would have to -- you’d have to unlock that door to gain access to it. But the door was always shut.

Q. Did you ever determine how the two Arvizo boys got into that cellar?

A. No, I did not. And I didn’t take it any further than what it was. I told the house manager about the incident and I told my supervisor about - Violet Silva - the incident. But other than that, I didn’t do any further investigating as far as how they got into the cellar.

Q. Was that the only time you saw Gavin and Star Arvizo drinking in the wine cellar?

A. Well, that was the only time I saw them in the wine cellar, yeah.

Q. Did you know anything about where a key was kept to get into that cellar?

A. We had a key in the officers’ station, yeah.

Q. And where was that kept?

A. That key was kept in our filing cabinet, locked in the top of the filing cabinet.

Q. Do you know if there was a key in an employee break room?

A. That I do not know. Possibly. I mean, that's a good possibility. Somebody in the house might have had -- one of the house individuals might have had a key.

Q. Now, when you say "possibly," what do you mean?

A. Well, I mean, I don't recall them ever --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Object.

THE WITNESS: Go ahead.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Object. Foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may complete your answer.

THE WITNESS: Can you repeat it?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let me withdraw the question and ask it again.

You said possibly there was another place where a key was kept, in the employee break room?

A. Right. Yeah, I knew that there was keys that were located in the break room, but I didn't know what those keys were or what they were to.

Q. Did you ever see any of the Arvizo children in that area?

A. Personally, I did not see anybody in that area. It wasn't frequently that I would go into that area, though, since it was located in the house.

Q. To your knowledge, how many keys were there to the wine cellar at Neverland?

A. To my knowledge, I would assume it was just our key. We had the only key. I mean, I don't know for sure, but that's the only key that I was aware of.

Q. Do you know if Joe Marcus, for example, had access to a key?

A. Possibly. I mean, that could be possible.

Q. Do you know if the cooks had access to keys?

A. I don't believe the key -- the cooks did, because I recall them frequently asking us to unlock that door for them.

Q. Do you have any knowledge of cooks going up and down the stairs into the wine cellar to get food that was in the refrigerated wine cellar?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Okay. But do you have any idea how they would gain access when they did that?

A. When they did that, they would ask us for access into the cellar. It was pretty frequent that we would -- if they needed access to that cellar, that we would open it and just leave it open, since they would be going -- if they were going to be getting food or drinks or whatever from that cellar, they would need nonstop access, so we would just leave it open, and they would come and go as they pleased.

It wasn’t feasible for us to continually open and lock, open and lock, open and lock, every time they needed to get access to it.

Q. So are you saying that there were periods of time when it was open for quite a while?

A. Yes, that’s correct.

Q. And when it was open, how long would it be open?

A. Well, it depends on the -- on the checks. If there was nobody -- if there was visibly nobody that was entering the wine cellar, and we could see that they were done there, we were doing our 15- or 30-minute checks, then we’d go ahead and secure it. But if we could still see individuals coming and going, we would leave it open. So it just depended on visually what we saw on our rounds, on our checks.

Q. Now, if you had a large event at Neverland, where a lot of food was being prepared by the cooks, would it be accurate to say that probably the wine cellar might be open for hours so people could go back and forth with -- and get food or wine?

A. That would be -- that would be a fair assumption, yeah. It could be open for an entire shift.

Q. When you saw Gavin and Star Arvizo in the wine cellar alone, you had no idea how they got in there, right?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Okay. Did you ask them, “How did you get in?”

A. No, I did not.

Q. Would you see them all over Neverland while they were visiting?

A. Yes.

Q. What would you see them doing?

A. Usually playing. They were either, like I said, at the theater, riding the go-carts -- I mean, the golf carts. On the rides. Up at the train station. Back at the zoo. They’d be everywhere, just doing, you know, what -- basically just doing whatever they wanted to.

Q. In your opinion, were they well behaved?

A. Not -- not -- I mean, they weren’t completely out -- they were acting, you know, not like totally out of control, but they were pretty much -- you know, they were there to have fun, and they were -- there was occasions where they’d break things, let me put it that way. I mean, there’s occasions where they would, you know, destroy some property.

Q. What property are you talking about?

A. Golf cart. They crashed a golf cart and did some damage to it, which they -- which they denied doing. But later they admitted to doing it. And I believe that’s the only real damage, other than turning rocks over or just throwing trash around and, you know, things like that.

Q. Where would they throw trash around?

A. Pretty much anywhere they were at around the ranch. They’d throw, you know, wrappers of candy bars, and things like that, just kind of anywhere.

Q. Anything else they did that bothered you?

A. There wasn’t -- you know, there wasn’t -- like I said, they weren’t -- they weren’t too bad.

Q. Now, when they crashed the go-carts, did you make a report?

A. A report was made, but it wasn’t made by me. One of the other officers made that report.
Q. Did you actually see it happen?
A. I saw the golf cart. I didn’t witness them crashing. I saw them coming from the area where that golf cart was, but I didn’t actually -- I don’t think anyone actually witnessed the -- you know, the crashing of the golf cart. But they were the only people -- they were the only kids that were there at that time, the only people.

Q. Now, was your job at Neverland the first job you had had in the area of security?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And how are you currently employed?
A. I’m employed at the Lompoc prison.
Q. Okay. What do you do there?
A. I’m a correctional officer.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay. No further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:
Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Meridith.
A. Good afternoon sir. How are you doing?
Q. I’m doing very well, thank you.
Your job as a security officer at Neverland, part of that job was to prevent intruders from coming onto Neverland; is that fair?
A. That’s correct.
Q. Did you wear a uniform for that job?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. All the security guards wear uniforms?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Pretty visible presence there at Neverland?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that designed to give intruders some visible presence so that they know that they’re going to have to get through the security guard to get onto the property?

A. Yes, sir, that’s a fair assumption.
Q. All right. And the guests are aware of your presence?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And your job is to keep them safe as much as the owner; is that fair to say?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. Now, as far as the Arvizo boys at Neverland, you mentioned that they were a little rambunctious; is that a fair assessment?

A. That’s fair, yeah.

Q. And is it also fair to say that all the kids who come and stay at Neverland for extended periods eventually start to become pretty rambunctious?

A. Eventually. There’s no real supervision, and kids are going to be kids. So it’s not uncommon for -- children that, you know, are on the ranch kind of get the emperor feeling and kind of act up.

Q. Is it fair to say that the fact there really is no supervision, they get to kind of do whatever they please, one thing leads to another, and that’s probably when they start to get somewhat destructive or rambunctious?

A. I’m sure, yeah, that’s a fair assumption.

Q. Okay. What about Mr. Jackson’s cousins, would you characterize them in the same fashion?

A. They -- they pretty much came and went. You know, they were never there for an extended period of time. They would maybe be a night or two nights or a weekend, so they were -- they were -- they were pretty much okay. I don’t think they had a lot of idle time. They were there strictly to visit and then they would go. I don’t recall them ever doing anything other than playing basketball.

Q. Would they ever break things?

A. That I -- I don’t know. No, I don’t recall. I don’t recall that they ever broke anything.

Q. Now, at one time you were interviewed by, I believe, the defense investigator, and you indicated to him that you thought the wine incident was around Christmas of 2002; is that --

A. Yeah, it was roughly around the time of their -- you know, all in that area, the Christmas, February, March. I mean, it was all around that time. I’m not real sure on the exact time frame.

Q. As far as your patrol duties go, your patrol duties don’t really take you inside the main house unless there’s some specific reason; is that fair?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Okay. And this one incident where you went into the main house to -- actually, I believe you said there were two incidents where you went into the main house to wake up the nephews?

A. Correct.

Q. And you said you went upstairs to do that; is that right?

A. That’s correct. Yeah.

Q. So you went to a bedroom up the main staircase?

A. That’s correct.

Q. So as you enter Neverland, or I should say as you enter the main house through the main front doors, to the right is a stairway?

A. That’s correct. I would come in from the back door, though. We didn’t usually access the front door unless we were requested.

Q. So coming into the main hallway, you see a very large staircase there --

A. Correct.

Q. -- is that right? Is that the stairway you went up to go to the bedroom where you woke up these children?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And they were in a room with some sleeping bags?

A. On -- on one occasion, they had the sleeping bags with the children. When I woke up the nephews the first time, they were in the sleeping bags. On the second occasion that I recall, they were already up and, you know, around and about in there.

Q. Did you see Mr. Jackson at that time?

A. I did not, no.

Q. You said that there was an incident where you saw Gavin and Star in the wine cellar?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, your routine as a security officer is to go around and check doors and make sure they’re locked; is that right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. How often do you make your rounds in the evening?

A. Like I said, we usually do them 15-, 30-minute rounds.

Q. When you make those rounds, is one of your duties to check the wine cellar and make sure it’s locked?

A. That’s a fair assumption. I think it would be to go downstairs and actually physically check that door.

Q. So if that door is left unlocked, would it be reasonable to say that it’s not unlocked for very long. Eventually some security guard goes down there and locks it?

A. Correct. That’s correct. As long as there’s nobody visibly -- you know, house staff that’s visibly coming in and out of that.

Q. You mentioned that. If there’s some activity where people are moving in and out, you’ll just let it remain open?

A. Right. We’ll just kind of leave it open.

Q. When you went down there, Star and Gavin were laughing?

A. Yeah, they were having a good time. They were obviously playing, goofing off.

Q. Did they seem intoxicated at all?

A. You know, I didn’t even get to talk to them that long. All I did when I came downstairs was, you know, just tell them that they weren’t supposed to be in that area and they knew better than that, and they needed to get upstairs immediately.

Q. You said there was a half bottle of wine that had been opened?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Do you remember where that half bottle of wine was in relation to Gavin and Star when you went in the room?

A. They were behind the -- like I said, when you walk into that -- to the wine cellar, there’s a kitchen area that’s in there. There’s a table in that kitchen area. The wine was sitting there, and they were on either side of that bottle, just kind of standing, you know, standing, laughing, goofing off, pushing each other, doing things like that.

Q. Any glasses?

A. No, I didn’t see any glasses.

Q. Did you smell any alcohol on their breath?

A. No, I did not. I did not.

Q. So you really don’t know whether or not they had been drinking that alcohol?

A. No. I can’t guarantee that they were actually drinking the alcohol.

Q. Was Mr. Jackson on the property at the time?

A. Yes, sir, I believe he was.

Q. All right. Do you know if he’d been spending some time with Gavin and Star?

A. Not that evening, I don’t believe so.

Q. Would you know that? Were you spending time around Gavin and Star that evening?

A. I would see them. I mean, at that time, they were our only guests, so, you know, I would see -- if they were out and about, then I would -- you know, I would see them.

Q. Was their mother there at the time?

A. I believe Janet was there at the time.

Q. Are you sure about that or --

A. No, I’m not positive. I’m not positive.

Q. As far as these dates go, did you make any notations or notes or anything?

A. Nothing really stood out in my mind as far as -- you know, as far as the circumstances surrounding any of those instances, so I didn’t really -- you know, other than making reports if something was damaged, or the instance where they were drinking in the cellar where I told my supervisor. Or where I assumed they were drinking in the cellar.

Q. Did you make any reports about that?

A. Other than telling my supervisor, that’s all I did.

Q. When they left the wine cellar, did they appear to have a key with them?

A. No, they did not. Not that I could see.

Q. Did it ever come to your attention that they had a key?

A. I have no knowledge whether they had a key or not.

Q. Mr. Jackson, of course, has access to that wine cellar; is that true?

A. With -- usually Mr. Jackson would call and ask one of us to unlock that wine cellar if he wanted access to it. It wasn’t frequent that I ever saw him go down there, though. I mean, on my shift, you know.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. No further questions.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

Call your next witness.

MR. MESEREAU: Defense will call Mr. Brian Salce.

THE COURT: Please remain standing. Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

BRIAN SALCE

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Brian Salce. B-r-i-a-n; S-a-l-c-e.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Salce.

Mr. Salce, where are you currently employed?
A. Neverland Ranch.
Q. And how long have you worked at Neverland Ranch?
A. On and off for six years in October.
Q. And do you know the fellow seated at counsel table to my right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Who is he?
A. Mr. Jackson.
Q. Okay. He’s your employer?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. All right. What kind of jobs have you held at Neverland Ranch?

A. When I started there, I was in the fire academy. And I was hired as a safety officer doing security work. Then when I completed the fire academy, I was promoted to firefighter, and I did that for most of the time I was there. Became a supervisor, and then just recently was promoted to fire chief.
Q. And where is the fire academy?
A. Allan Hancock.
Q. And when did you attend the fire academy?
A. In ‘99, I believe.
Q. And how long a course was that?
A. That’s -- I took the nine-month. I took it at night. There’s a daytime and a night. I took the nighttime, Tuesday and Thursday nights, and Saturday days.
Q. So you are a trained firefighter?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And when you become a trained firefighter, do you get some type of a license?
A. Yes, it’s -- as far as I know, most of the fire academies are state-certified fire academies. At least that’s what I went to at Allan Hancock. When you’re done with that, then you hold a state certificate.
Q. Now, there is a portion of Neverland that’s involved in fighting fires if necessary, right?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. And please describe that.

A. That would be the fire department.

Q. Okay.

A. And -- where you have firefighting equipment. We have a fire engine. We train. We do everything we’re -- you know, we’re -- that you would do as a firefighter.

Q. Are you -- excuse me. When you were working with the fire department at Neverland, were you the only firefighter?

A. No, sir.

Q. How many, typically, did you have in the fire department at Neverland?

A. We -- over my course of employment, we would run anywhere from seven to fifteen firefighters, possibly more.

Q. And were most of these firefighters trained the way you were?

A. Absolutely. In order to be employed as a firefighter, you have to go through a fire academy, state certified.

Q. Now, would these individuals typically come to work at Neverland after attending the fire academy?

A. Yes. On some occasions, like with myself, they would start there. We had one employee that started there, was working as a safety officer, and then just from interacting with the firefighters realized that that’s something he may be interested in, and then he enrolled in the fire academy. And I --

Q. Now, would there be firefighters at Neverland 24 hours a day?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how many -- excuse me, let me rephrase that.

What would your typical shift be at Neverland as a firefighter?

A. Hourly?

Q. Yes, please.

A. Since I’ve been employed with Neverland, we’ve ran from either 6:00 in the morning to 6:30 p.m., or 6 p.m. until 6:30 in the morning. So you have a half hour of overlapping.

Q. On each shift, how many firefighters would there be?

A. It’s varied over the years. We used to always try to have two firefighters, with a minimum of one. But over different times when they’ve had different levels of employment, sometimes we have not had a firefighter there.

Q. And during the year of 2003, I’m talking particularly about the first three months of the year, January, February and March, did you typically have firefighters present at Neverland?

A. I was not employed during those dates.

Q. Okay. Do you know if any firefighters were there during that period of time?

A. I would not know that, sir.

Q. Okay. When did you last work as a firefighter at Neverland?

A. Yesterday.

Q. Okay. All right. You were at Neverland in 2003, were you not?

A. I was -- I left Neverland in -- I left in -- I’m drawing a blank -- in 2002 of November, I believe, and came back June of 2003.

Q. Do you remember ever meeting a family named Arvizo?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what do you remember about them?

A. I -- I -- nothing different than any other guests.

Q. Did you ever meet Janet Arvizo?

A. I did on one occasion.

Q. And describe that occasion, if you would.

A. Met her -- it was the day of an event. Met her in the theater. The three children were with her. They introduced her to me, and right away, she knew who I was, said that the kids spoke very highly of me; that they really liked me; that I was very nice to them. Gave me a hug. And asked me if I liked Mexican food and gave me their number and address and told me to write the kids. Said if I’m ever in L.A., I should stop by the house and eat Mexican food is what she said.

Q. Did you ever do that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Okay. You met her children?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And were they Gavin, Star and Davellin, to your knowledge?

A. Yes, sir, I believe so.

Q. Two boys and a girl?

A. I remember Gavin and Star. The girl’s name I wasn’t always clear on.

Q. Did you ever observe the children at Neverland?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you see them doing?

A. Playing with the golf carts. Just more outdoor stuff. Riding quads, things of that nature.

Q. Did you ever see Michael Jackson with the Arvizo children?

A. I saw him interact with them, but not in -- not in great lengths. It was --

Q. And where do you think you saw Mr. Jackson interact with the Arvizo children?

A. I believe I saw him talking to them one day near the main house.

Q. Now, where is the fire station in relation to the main house?

A. Well, what we actually call the fire station used to be up at the administration office. We called it the fire station. It housed the fire engine, but we didn’t actually -- we weren’t housed there. We were at an office down closer to the main house.

Q. When you say “closer to the main house,” what do you mean?

A. Connected by a breezeway, but not part of the same structure.

Q. When did the fire station become permanently located up top?

A. When I started there. That’s what they had always called the fire station.

Q. Now, if you’re at the fire station, do you have a view of Neverland?

A. Of --

Q. What do you see as you look out the windows at the fire station?

A. One window you see railroad tracks on a hillside. Excuse me. Another window you see the same. The other window you can see the parking lot for the administration office.

Q. As a firefighter, do you patrol around Neverland as part of your duties?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Please explain what you mean.

A. We -- the firefighters are trained as firefighters, but everybody in our safety department acts as a safety officer or a security officer as well, so we trade off with shifts at the gate or driving around and patrolling the property. Just to make sure nothing is out of place or anything of that nature.

Q. Now, as a security officer, what were your duties at Neverland?

A. Primarily it was to come in and get pass-on from the shift prior. We would spend a certain amount of time at the front gate, depending on staffing. Could be anywhere from four to six hours. And then we would spend -- if you spend four there, you would spend four patrolling. You could open buildings, certain buildings, in the morning to start the day, or at the end of the day you could lock buildings up. We would, depending on the hour, check on just animals, the zoo. You know, a lot of it’s making sure doors are locked, or unlocked. Just washing the vehicle, washing the fire engine. And then the other thing, we would do house checks. If we were stationed at the house, at that office, we would do a house check every hour or so. And we would walk around the house, check doors, make sure that they’re secure or unsecured, depending on what the, you know, directive was.

Q. And does that happen every shift?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Would you check the guest quarters as well?

A. The guest quarters we would check. We would check most of the time. If we didn’t have guests, we would make sure the doors are secured. If we had guests, we wouldn’t mess with the door that had a guest, so we didn’t interrupt them, but the other ones that were supposed to be empty we would check, yes, sir.

Q. And what are the locations at Neverland where you saw the Arvizo children?

A. I remember one time in particular at the theater, and I remember another time that we had to -- we had to go get them from down by the front gate. They had gone either horseback riding or quad riding, I don’t remember exactly which it was, and I believe the little girl needed to go back to her guest unit. I think she was asthmatic and she needed to get her inhaler or something. I think. I’m not sure.

Q. Did you ever see Mr. Jackson act inappropriately with the Arvizo children?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did the Arvizo children ever complain to you about Mr. Jackson?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did Mrs. -- Mrs. Arvizo ever complain to you about Michael Jackson?

A. No, sir. I met her on that one occasion and she was happy and laughing, and that was my only contact with her.

Q. Did you see her walking around the property?

A. No.

Q. Okay.

A. That was the only day that I know of her being there when I have been employed there.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. No further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Salce.

A. Good afternoon, sir.

Q. I just want to be clear on the period of time that you were not at Neverland.

A. Okay.

Q. You mentioned a period of several months when you were not employed there.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Can you mention that for me again, the exact dates?

A. I started in October of ‘99. I left in November, I believe it was end of November of 2002. And then I started again -- I then worked for another company. Came back in, I believe, June of 2003.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you very much. No further questions.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, sir.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

THE COURT: Thank you. May step down. Call your next witness.

MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor. The defense will call Commander Russ Birchim.

THE COURT: Come forward, please. When you get to the witness stand, remain standing. Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

RUSSELL ROBERT BIRCHIM

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Russell Robert Birchim. B, as in boy, i-r-c-h-i-m.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Commander Birchim; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. Commander Birchim, the first thing is you need to lean into that microphone on the right side. It's hard for everybody to get close in this courtroom for some reason.

How are you employed?

A. I'm employed by the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department.

Q. You're a commander in that department --

A. Yes.

Q. -- is that correct?

Were you employed by the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department in 1993 and 1994?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And in early 1994, what was your position at that time?

A. I was in the CID, the detective bureau, as a detective.

Q. CID stands for Criminal Investigations --

A. That's correct.

Q. -- Division?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. In any event, you were a detective, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have occasion to work with Detective Monk?

A. Yes.

Q. You recall, in 1993, do you not, contacting a Kassim Abdool and a Ralph Chacon?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Do you recall working on an investigation regarding Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall contacting two security guards for the purpose of serving them with a grand jury subpoena?

A. In 1994, yes. Not '93.

Q. Did I say ‘93?

A. Yes.

Q. I’m sorry. Okay. In 1994, did you contact Kassim and Ralph Chacon?

A. Yes.

Q. There you go. All right. And where did you first contact them?

A. At their homes in Lompoc, their respective homes.

Q. All right. And what was the purpose of contacting them?

A. Serve them with grand jury subpoenas, a sitting grand jury in Los Angeles, California, I think, for May 9th of ‘94.

Q. All right. Did you, by chance, review your report before you came to testify?

A. I reviewed a lot of reports, but yes.

Q. Okay. Well, that’s good. So based on your reviewing your report, you’ve refreshed your recollection as to these events; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. Now, did you -- let’s start with 10546 Kassim Abdool. He was at his house in Lompoc when you made contact?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And both you and Detective Monk went to his house; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you both -- excuse me. Did you both identify yourselves as sheriff’s detectives?

A. Yes, we did.

Q. Did you serve him with the subpoena? You accomplished that task?

A. Yes.

Q. And at that time, did he give you any information about criminal activity or alleged criminal activity with regard to anyone at Neverland Valley Ranch?

A. No.

Q. Did you leave him, then, with a subpoena and go about your business?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you also contact Ralph Chacon?
A. Yes.
Q. And similarly, did you and Detective Monk meet him at his house in Lompoc?
A. Yes, we did.
Q. Did you serve him with a grand jury subpoena for the L.A. County Grand Jury?
A. Yes.

Q. And I take it you also identified yourselves as detectives for the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department?
A. We did.
Q. Did Ralph Chacon give you any information about any alleged criminal activity at Neverland Ranch?
A. No.
Q. And I take it, after you served them, you went about your business; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Actually, before you left either of those people -- well, let's do it one at a time.
Before you left Mr. Abdool on that date, did you give him a business card?
A. Yes, we did.
Q. And did you tell him that if he wanted to discuss any observation or knowledge regarding any activity on the ranch, that he could call you?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you do the same thing with Mr. Chacon?
A. Yes.
Q. And as of the time you left them on that day, they did not give you any information whatsoever about anything pertaining to the investigation; is that correct?
A. That's correct.

Q. Did we establish that day was 4-29-94?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, when was the next time you had any contact with Mr. Abdool?

A. That would have been in -- on May 4th, I believe, of ‘94.

Q. May 4th, did Mr. Abdool phone and request a meeting?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Did he -- did he have any restrictions on what kind of a meeting he would have with you?

A. Yes.

Q. What were the restrictions?

A. He wanted to meet Detective Monk and I alone with Ralph Chacon, in a secluded area away from Santa Maria and Santa Barbara.

Q. All right. On the telephone, did he give any information about any alleged information that he might claim to have?

A. I’m not sure if he did on the phone at that point. I don’t believe so.

Q. You say you do not believe so?

A. I don’t believe so.

Q. And in fact, you set up a meeting at a isolated and relatively private place; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And what place did you select?

A. Gaviota rest stop on U.S. 101 halfway between here and Santa Barbara.

Q. Is that something that you have mutually agreed upon between yourselves and the sheriff’s department and Mr. Abdool on behalf of Mr. Chacon?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you meet them at the rest stop?

A. Yes, we did.

Q. And what day was that?

A. I believe that was either the same day or the following day. May 4th, 5th.

Q. All right. Did you bring that report with you?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. Would it help refresh your recollection to see a copy of that report --

A. Yes.

Q. -- for the date?

May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Commander, having reviewed the report, does that refresh your recollection as to the date that you met with Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon at the Gaviota rest stop?

A. Yes. It was May 5th, ‘94.

Q. And at that time, did -- who did the talking? Mr. Abdool or Mr. Chacon?

A. Mr. Abdool.

Q. Did Mr. Chacon speak with you at all?

A. Very briefly.

Q. All right. Did Mr. Abdool tell you that he had any specific information with regard to any criminal activity?

A. No, he didn’t.

Q. Did he request a meeting with Deputy District Attorney Tom Sneddon?

A. Yes.

Q. I’m sorry, with District Attorney Tom Sneddon?

A. Yes.

Q. Almost caught me on that one. All right. All right. And did you arrange for a meeting between Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon and Mr. Sneddon?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you attend the meeting that eventually occurred?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. Now, when did that meeting occur?

A. May 6th, ‘94.

Q. All right. And who was present besides Mr. Sneddon?

A. Ralph Chacon, Kassim Abdool and myself. I believe Detective Monk was also there.

Q. All right. At that time, did Mr. Abdool or Mr. Chacon state that they had eyewitness accounts as witnesses of illegal activity?

A. No, they did not.

Q. Did they ask hypothetical questions in the form, “Well, what if we had information?”

A. They did not specify “we.” They asked what if they had information.

Q. Did they ask if they could be placed into a government witness program?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. Did they ask what was involved in being placed in a government witness program?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they ask if they would receive compensation while in that program?

A. I don’t believe it was that general -- it was more general than that. It wasn’t that specific as to what they would receive.

Q. Did Mr. Chacon indicate that he owed child support?

A. Yes.

Q. At some point during this conversation, did both Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon say that they had information that the tabloids would probably purchase from them?

A. I don’t remember the specific words. It was akin to that statement, yes.

Q. And did they tell you that instead, they felt morally obligated to tell the truth in the grand jury proceedings?

A. Yes.

Q. And did they tell you that they felt morally obligated not to seek money for what they might know?

A. Possibly. I don’t recall.

Q. Would it help to look at your report?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

I’m referring to right there, but you can read whatever you want.

Thank you.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they say that they felt morally obligated not to seek money for what they knew?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. At the conclusion of the meeting, they still had not told either you, Detective Monk, or District Attorney Tom Sneddon what they knew; is that right?

A. That’s correct.

MR. SANGER: I have no further questions.

THE BAILIFF: Judge, it is the break time.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Commander, I’ve been waiting 30 years to do this.

MR. SANGER: Move to strike that remark. I’m not sure I know what it meant, but I would move to strike it.

MR. SNEDDON: To cross-examine him. That’s what I meant. I’m sorry.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: The first time you contacted Mr. Kassim Abdool was on the 29th of April of 1994 to serve a subpoena for the grand jury, correct?

A. Yes, that’s correct.

Q. And when you served that subpoena on Mr. Abdool, he did indicate to you at that time that he was afraid to appear before the grand jury, did he not?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. And he stated to you, in fact, that he was afraid to appear before the grand jury because it might jeopardize his job; isn’t that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that he was in fear if he had to tell the truth; isn’t that correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And when you got to Mr. Chacon’s house, you served a warrant -- “a warrant.” You served a subpoena on Mr. Chacon, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And when you served the subpoena on Mr. Chacon, he also indicated to you that he felt that if he honored that subpoena that it could jeopardize his job at the ranch?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And he also told you that if he had to tell the truth as to what he knew before the grand jury, that he was in fear for his family and his life?

A. That’s correct.

THE COURT: Counsel? Break time.

MR. SNEDDON: I was just getting going, Judge.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Commander Birchim, when you went out to serve Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon on the 29th of April of 1994, was it your purpose or intention to do an interview of them at that time?

A. No, it wasn’t.

Q. And you did not do an interview of them at that time, correct?

A. No, we didn’t.

Q. And you knew that they were going to be, pursuant to the subpoena, required to attend the Santa Barbara or Los Angeles County grand juries, correct?

A. That’s correct.

MR. SANGER: Objection. Compound and calls for speculation.

MR. SNEDDON: I’ll divide it up, Judge. No problem.

Q. The subpoena that you served Mr. Abdool with required him to appear in Los Angeles in front of the Los Angeles County Grand Jury on the 9th of May of ‘94, 1994, correct?

A. Yes, correct.

Q. And the subpoena that you served to Mr. Chacon also required him to be there on that particular day in Los Angeles before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And that was in connection with allegations that had been made by a young child by the name of Jordan Chandler; is that correct?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for hearsay; beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Were you aware of the nature of the proceedings that were then underway in Los Angeles that required Mr. Chacon and Mr. Abdool to be subpoenaed?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Was that the matter of which you were investigating?

A. Yes.

Q. And you had been assigned at that particular point as one of the lead investigators; correct?

A. That's correct, yes.

Q. Would that be true also if I asked you the same question with regard to Mr. Chacon's appearance before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury?

A. That would be also true, yes.

Q. And did the subject matter have to do with allegations against Mr. Jackson for child molestation?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. Now, the next time that you met with Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon was on May the 5th, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And that was at the Goleta area -- Goleta beach area?

A. No, it was at Gaviota rest stop.

Q. Gaviota. And that meeting had been set up the day before, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, it was in an area I think you described as a secluded area up there; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And the reason that you chose that particular area as being secluded is because they indicated to you that they were afraid; isn't that right?

A. That's right.

Q. And that they were afraid that they may be followed or that somebody from Mr. Jackson's representatives would see them meeting with law enforcement authorities, correct?

A. That is correct, sir.

Q. And at that meeting on the 5th, when you met with those -- with Mr. Kassim and Mr. -- I'm sorry, with Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon, they indicated to you that they had actually had a meeting on the 3rd of May with representatives of Mr. Jackson's attorney team, correct?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for hearsay; beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: That's correct, yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And they indicated to you at that time that they had been offered the services of a free lawyer to appear before the Santa Barbara County -- the Los Angeles County Grand Jury, correct?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for hearsay; beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Hearsay objection is sustained.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I indicated it was a prior consistent statement involved here in the whole conversation. There's been -- I don't want to say anything more, but there's --

THE COURT: When you say prior consistent statements have been offered, do you mean within this witness's testimony?

MR. SNEDDON: No, statements made by the other two individuals who, I believe, under 791, when there's been a --

THE COURT: What is this -- your witness. Isn't that true, though, that would be outside the scope of the direct testimony?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I think it bears on the sequence of the total testimony that Mr. Sanger elicited. He elicited the sequence of events, but I don't want to argue with the Court. I don’t want to say anything to get myself in trouble, but there’s more that happened in between that explains some of the conduct. That’s all I’m suggesting to the Court. And in fairness -- let me withdraw that question, Your Honor, and ask another question.

THE COURT: All right.
MR. SNEDDON: See if I can get there another way without --
THE COURT: All right. Go ahead.
MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Because this one goes directly to....
Q. During that conversation that Mr. Sanger asked you about when you met with him on the 5th, do you recall that?
A. Yes.

Q. And you recall Mr. Sanger asked you whether or not they disclosed any details to you on that particular occasion?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, did they, in fact, tell you on that particular occasion that they had been asked to have representatives of Mr. Jackson present at the grand jury hearing and that they declined those services and told them they were simply going to tell the truth and they didn’t need a lawyer for that?
MR. SANGER: Objection. That is grossly compound, a speech by the District Attorney. It should be stricken. And it also calls for hearsay and it’s beyond the scope of direct.
THE COURT: The objection is overruled. You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did they tell you whether or not, after that conversation with Mr. Jackson’s lawyers on May 3rd, whether or not they’d ever been contacted by an investigator representing Mr. Jackson?
A. Yes.
Q. And did they give you --
MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for hearsay and it’s beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer was, “Yes.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: When did they tell you that they received a contact from -- well, first let me get to the name.

Who was -- they identified the person as Mr. Mason, did they not?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for hearsay’, beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes, Eric Mason.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And when did they tell you that contact occurred?

A. I believe it was at Gaviota. It may have been at the meeting in your office. I don’t recall when.

Q. And that the meeting had occurred prior to the time that they had contacted you, correct?

A. That’s right.

Q. And at the meeting that Mr. Sanger asked you about at Gaviota on May 5th, 1994, both Mr. Abdool and Chacon indicated to you that they could be in danger from Mr. Jackson’s people if they told what they knew, correct?

A. Yes, that’s correct.

Q. And they were worried about that?

MR. SANGER: Objection; calls for speculation.

MR. SNEDDON: I’ll rephrase it.

Q. And they told you they were worried about that, did they not?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. And the reason that they didn’t want to say anything to you at that point in time is because they wanted to meet with the District Attorney’s Office to discuss the fact of getting protection before they went into the details of what they knew; isn’t that correct?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for speculation. It’s also compound.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes, that’s correct.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And in the same meeting at Gaviota, when you were talking to Mr. Chacon and to Mr. Abdool, they told you that -- they indicated to the attorneys representing Mr. Jackson in that meeting that they intended to tell the truth in front of the grand jury, correct?

A. Yes, that’s correct.

Q. And they told you that, in the call from Mr. Mason, that they indicated to Mr. Mason that they were going to tell the truth when they testified before the grand jury?

A. Yes, that’s correct.

Q. Now, moving to the conversation on the 6th of May that occurred in the District Attorney’s Office, both Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon expressed grave concerns about protection, correct?

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor, particularly the adjective. Calls for speculation and it’s vague.

MR. SNEDDON: I’ll withdraw that and just leave the word. It doesn’t make any difference. I’m sorry.

Q. During the meeting on the 6th, at the District Attorney’s Office, did Mr. Chacon express to you concerns about the safety of him and his family?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Did Mr. Abdool express to you concerns about his safety and that of his family during that conversation?

A. Yes, he also did.

Q. And did they actually ask for somebody connected with our offices, the Santa Barbara Sheriff’s Department and the District Attorney’s Office, to explore the possibility of a federal protection witness program if they went before the grand jury and told the truth?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. And were they told at that particular point in time that there were no assurances that that kind of protection could be given even if they testified?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Did they indicate -- did Mr. Chacon indicate to you at that time that he was -- that in speaking to law enforcement, he believed that he was placing himself at great risk?

MR. SANGER: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Now, you indicated to Mr. Sanger that in discussing the conversation that occurred on May 6th of 1994, that Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon -- let me take them separately. That Mr. Abdool was doing most of the talking; is that correct? Do I have the conversations mixed up?

A. On the 5th at Gaviota?

Q. Yes.

A. Yeah, he was doing most of the talking.

Q. How about at the 6th at the meeting?

A. They spoke at that.

Q. Okay. During that conversation on the 6th where you were present and representatives of the D.A.’s were present - office - did they relate to you -- or they did relate to you, did they not, that they had information about Michael Jackson fondling, passionately kissing on the mouth and sucking the penis of small boys?

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor. First of all, that misstates the evidence, unless counsel’s got another report he hasn’t turned over.

MR. SNEDDON: It’s right here.

MR. SANGER: No, it’s not right there. I know what it says.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: They indicated they may have that evidence, yes, they did.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: I couldn’t hear you.

A. They did indicate that they had that knowledge or had knowledge about who might have that knowledge, yes.

Q. And it was related in a hypothetical, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. But the words they used was that they said Michael Jackson fondling, correct?

MR. SANGER: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SANGER: And also misstates.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Now, when -- to your knowledge, did Mr. Abdool appear before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury on the day that he was supposed to?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Objection; beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Were you present during a conversation where Mr. Chacon was called in and appeared before -- his statement was taken under oath?

MR. SANGER: Objection; beyond the scope of direct.

MR. SNEDDON: I believe these qualify under 791.

THE COURT: I think the question is vague. I can’t tell exactly what you’re referring to.

MR. SNEDDON: I’ll clarify it.

Q. On May the 10th of 1994, Mr. Chacon appeared before an individual -- or appeared in a hearing and was placed under oath. Were you present then?

MR. SANGER: Objection. First of all, that’s a statement, not a question. And it’s compound, assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SANGER: And it’s beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Were you present on May 10th when Mr. Chacon was brought in and his statement was taken under oath?

MR. SANGER: Beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SNEDDON: Is that the basis, Your Honor? I don't want to quibble with the Court. If it is, I'll just move on.

THE COURT: It is, I think, beyond the scope.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Commander Birchim, were you, in fact, later assigned to investigate death threats that were received by both Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon?

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor, beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: To your knowledge, were official reports filed with law enforcement agencies concerning death threats against Mr. Chacon and Mr. Abdool?

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor. Counsel is just testifying. I ask he be admonished. It's beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Objection sustained.

MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: Excuse me just one second.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Okay. Now, the fact is that Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon said to you they might have to go to the tabloid, or the tabloids were interested in purchasing stories from them; is that right?

A. They said they had information that would be valuable to the tabloids.

Q. Okay. And they said they weren't going to do that, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you're aware that they, in fact, did that; isn't that right?

A. That's correct.

MR. SNEDDON: Object as argumentative.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is in. "That's correct," he said.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Do you know whether or not these two people joined with others and filed a lawsuit against Mr. Jackson for money?
A. Yes, they did.
Q. And by the end of the conversations that you had at the rest stop and the meeting with Mr. Sneddon, neither one of these people reported to you what they claimed to know; is that correct?
MR. SNEDDON: Object as argumentative, Your Honor. And leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: They indicated hypothetically what information they may have.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: They didn't say they had it. They said they might know that somebody might have that.
A. Information that would come from them.
Q. And they asked you if that would be valuable to you, didn't they?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: Okay. I have no further questions.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. With regard to the lawsuit that Mr. Sanger was talking to that Mr. Kassim or Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon were involved in against the defendant in this case, to your knowledge, did that lawsuit occur after they had made the statement to you that they felt morally obligated to reveal this information to a grand jury?
A. Yes.
Q. And did it occur before they were threatened?
MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor, calls for speculation.
MR. SNEDDON: I can lay the foundation, but -- seems to me he opened it up.

THE COURT: The objection is sustained on the question.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. No further questions.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. All right. Was there -- did at any time, during these meetings, Mr. Abdool and Mr. Chacon mention that James Van Norman was threatening them?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as beyond the scope of re -- whatever it was I did, cross.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: Specifically Jimmy Van Norman, I believe they did, yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And did you believe at the time that they were trying to use law enforcement for the purpose of helping them win a civil case?

A. No, I did not.

MR. SANGER: I have no further questions.

MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further.

THE COURT: You may step down.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, we'll -- I take it you intend to go to 2:30?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. I just knew there was something pending, so I just wanted to know. In any event, we'll call Mr. Vivanco. And what we propose to do is start with testimony that doesn't have to do with the areas that were under --

THE COURT: That's good. That would work.

MR. SANGER: I may run out. We'll see how long it takes.

THE COURT: You may run out.

MR. SANGER: I don't want to just prolong it unnecessarily to get to 2:30, but I do have some question areas and we'll go through those, if that's all right.

THE COURT: Okay. That works.

When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

ANGEL VIVANCO

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Angel Vivanco.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Take a seat and speak in here.

THE WITNESS: Oh.

Angel Vivanco. A-n-g-e-l; V-i-v-a-n-c-o.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Okay. Mr. Vivanco, you know the gentleman seated right there?

A. Yes.

Q. And is that Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. And how do you know him?

A. I worked for him for three years.

Q. All right. Do you still work for him?

A. No.

Q. Where do you work now?

A. At Radco Company.

Q. Okay. When you worked for Mr. Jackson for that three-year period, what were your job duties?

A. I was a chef assistant.

Q. And what was the time period that you worked for him? You started right around when?

A. ‘99 through 2003, I think.

Q. Okay. About when in 2003 did you cease working for -- or whenever you stopped. Do you remember when it was? Was it 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. When in 2003 was it that you stopped working for Mr. Jackson?

A. I don't remember what month it was. But it was -- I think it was six months ago. Or seven months ago.

Q. Okay. So if it was six or seven months ago -- if this is 2005, what year would that be? It's okay.

A. Sorry.

Q. Take your time.

A. I don't remember the month, actually. I don't remember the month.

Q. But it was 2005. Was it in 2004 that you stopped working?

A. 2003.

Q. 2003. Okay. And you think it was six or seven months ago from today?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. All right. Now, let's clear something up while we're at it here. Where do you live?

A. Santa Maria.

Q. And where did you live in February of 2003?

A. Guadalupe.

Q. Guadalupe.

Your Honor, with the Court's permission, I'd like to put up on the board Exhibit 451, and I'm going to go to Tab 5 and the page. I think the way we identified it is this was a phone bill, March 26th, of David Ventura, and it's 8-1 of 9, 8-2 of 9, and 5-4 of 5. And those pages are -- there's one page in between them, but that's what they are.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. ZONEN: These are exhibits already in evidence.

MR. SANGER: Who's doing this?

MR. ZONEN: I am.

MR. SANGER: Do you know which one this is?

MR. ZONEN: Yes. Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: May I? Thank you.

Q. I'm going to put up -- let's see if I can do it this way: I have to hold the book, so I'm going to try to hold it steady. Try to hold it steady and project my voice from here.

I want you to look up at the board. And after you get through looking at the board, you can turn back around and talk into the microphone. But do you see the two lines there that say, "Guadalupe, California"?

A. Yes.

Q. And then you see next to it, it says "(805)," right? Do you see that right next to it?

A. Yes.

Q. And it says, "343-5002." Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recognize that phone number?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Is that your phone number?

A. Yes.

Q. Is it still your phone number?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. I don't live in Guadalupe anymore.

Q. So you moved?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. In February of 2003, was that your phone number?

A. Yes.

Q. I'll just put that one page up, so I won't need the screen anymore at the moment.

All right. Let me ask you, when you were working for Mr. Jackson, I think you said, what, starting in 1999?

A. Yes.

Q. At some point, did you have occasion to meet the Arvizo family?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you remember the first time you met the Arvizo family?

A. No.

Q. Okay. I'm not asking you for a date, but do you remember first meeting them in general, first seeing them?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Do you remember who was with them the first time you saw them?

A. I saw them with their mother.

Q. Okay. And do you remember the mother’s name?

A. Yes.

Q. What’s her name?

A. Janet.

Q. All right. And who -- when you say “them,” who is the “them”? Who did you see with Janet?

A. Her children. Star, Gavin and Davellin.

Q. All right. And can you tell us what they were doing at the ranch when you first saw them there?

A. They were visiting the ranch.

Q. All right. Now, do you recall if this is a time when -- or do you recall roughly when this was?

A. No, I don’t.

Q. Was it closer to the beginning of your employment or the end of your employment?

A. The beginning.

Q. All right. Did you see them there with their father at any time?

A. No.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: I’m sorry, could you speak a little louder?

Q. BY MR. SANGER: It’s not just you. Everybody has trouble with that microphone. You really have to lean into it - okay? - and then speak up.

All right. Now, at some point, do you recall seeing the Arvizos, at least the children, at the ranch when Mr. Jackson was not there?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall who it was that had invited them to the ranch?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as speculative. Lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Do you recall who it was that they were with visiting the ranch?

A. They were with their mother.

Q. Was there anybody else that was there?

A. The brother and sisters, Star and --

Q. Is that the first time you saw them?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Let’s fast-forward a little bit and go on in time. Was there some point when they were there for a birthday party?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And whose birthday party was that; do you recall?

A. I don’t remember the occasion.

Q. Okay. Do you remember a movie star of some sort being there with them?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Okay. You recall a birthday party of some sort, though; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. You don’t know whose birthday party it was?

A. No.

Q. Did you have occasion to have interaction with Star Arvizo during that period of time?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you remember anything unusual?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as vague as to what period of time.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. During the period of time when they were visiting during this birthday party -- you recall it was a birthday party, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And they’re there visiting?

MR. ZONEN: Object as vague as to what period of time.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

MR. SANGER: Did we not get an answer to the last question?

THE COURT: The last question was, “And they were there visiting?” And I think you might have been interrupted.

MR. SANGER: All right. Let me restate that, then.

Q. When they were visiting during this birthday party, was Mr. Jackson there at the ranch?

A. No.

Q. All right. Now, that period of time - I’m talking about this birthday party period of time when they’re visiting, and Mr. Jackson’s not there - do you recall having any interaction with Star Arvizo?

A. No.

Q. Okay. What was your job during that period of time? Where did you work?

A. I was a chef assistant.

Q. Chef assistant?

A. Yes.

Q. So where did you do that job?

A. What did I do?

Q. Where did you do it? Where were you? Where did you stand?

A. I was at the theater.

Q. Okay.

A. And I would serve food for them.

Q. Okay. Where did you get the food to serve?

A. From the kitchen at the main house.

Q. Okay. Take a deep breath or two here. I know it’s hard sometimes.

Where were you working? In other words, when you showed up, where was the main place that you’d be working during the day?

A. At the main house.

Q. Okay. And where in the main house?

A. In the kitchen.

Q. There you go. And the kitchen has like a counter; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And people sit there?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, you said something about the theater. What was that about?

A. Oh, well, I would sometimes take food to the theater when they needed -- when they asked for it.
Q. So you would get a call. Somebody would call and ask you to bring food to the Arvizo kids at the theater?
A. Yes.
Q. All of the kids? Gavin, Star and Davellin?
A. Not all together. Just sometimes one at a time, or sometimes together, you know.
Q. All right. Do you recall any of the kids asking you to prepare something with alcohol in it?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that? Tell us about that incident.
A. It was a milkshake.
MR. ZONEN: Vague as to time.
THE COURT: I'll sustain the objection, but I'm assuming that this is all around the date of the birthday, right?
MR. SANGER: That's my understanding. Let's just ask to be sure.
Q. Was that the same trip as the birthday?
A. No.
Q. It was a different trip?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Was Mr. Jackson there at the premises when this occurred?
A. No.
MR. ZONEN: Objection; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.
MR. SANGER: The answer came in I think?
THE COURT: It's in. It was "No."
Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, on that occasion, what was the incident? What happened? You were asked to prepare a drink with alcohol?
THE COURT: Just a minute.
Michele, do you need a little break here?
THE REPORTER: I think I'm fine now. Thanks.
THE COURT: Go ahead.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Tell us about that occasion when one of the boys asked you to prepare an alcohol drink.

A. He was at the bar, in the kitchen.

Q. Do you remember which one it was? Star or Gavin?

A. It was Star.

Q. All right. And what did Star say to you?

A. He asked me to make him a milkshake.

Q. All right.

A. And just -- I made it for him, and he pointed at the cabinets full of liquor, and he pointed out one of the bottles and asked me to pour some in the milkshake.

Q. Okay. What was in the bottle?

A. Liquor.

Q. Okay. Do you remember which kind?

A. It was a Mexican kind. It was called Jimador.

Q. He was asking you to put that in the milkshake?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Did you do that?

A. Yes.

Q. You put the alcohol in the milkshake?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Before you put it in the milkshake, did Star say anything to you?

A. Yes.

Q. What did he say?

A. He told me if I didn’t do it, he would tell Michael, and I would get fired.

Q. So then you put the -- you put the alcohol in the milkshake?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall Gavin ever having any particular incident with you?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us about that?

A. Be more specific.

Q. Was there a time that Gavin asked you for some -- for some Cheetos?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as irrelevant.

THE WITNESS: No.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Do you recall him asking for some food of some sort?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Okay. Do you remember if Gavin ever swore at you?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. What did he do?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as irrelevant.

THE WITNESS: He just swore at me.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as irrelevant.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: He just swore at me and -- asking for some Cheetos or saying --

Q. BY MR. SANGER: You can say it. Tell us what he said.

A. “Give me the fucking Cheetos.” That’s what he said.

Q. Okay. Now, was there an incident that occurred with Star in the kitchen involving a knife?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you tell us about that?

A. I was serving some guests on the bar some food, and he was helping us that day to cook.

Q. Star was in there helping you in the kitchen area?

A. Yes, he asked to help. So we let him. I was serving a plate to one of the guests, and he had a knife like two -- one inch on my neck.

Q. Okay. What kind of a knife was it?

A. It was a kitchen knife.

Q. Do you recall about how big it was?

A. It was nine inches. Or -- a foot long. It was a foot.

Q. A foot?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the knife for? What kind of a knife was it?

A. It was to cut meat.

Q. Did you keep that pretty sharp in your kitchen?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said he had it about an inch from your neck. What was he doing with it when he put it an inch from your neck?

A. He just had it holding up onto my neck. And I didn’t realize it until one of the guests yelled at Star, saying, “What are you doing?”

Q. Who was the guest; do you recall?

A. It was Vinnie.

Q. All right. And do you recall what Vinnie said?

A. He said, “If” --

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: He said, “If that was my mother seeing me doing that, I would get a beating.”

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. He was saying that -- he was directing those remarks to Star?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, were you -- how did you react to that? How did you feel about that?

A. I didn’t really think nothing of it.

Q. Were you scared?

A. Sort of, yeah. Mostly -- well, it made me nervous.

Q. Okay. All right. Do you recall a time when Star showed you some magazines?

A. Yes.

Q. Was this a time when Mr. Jackson was on the property?

A. No. He was not on the property.

Q. Was this near the time of the birthday party or near the time -- the beginning of your employment, or towards the end?

A. Towards the end.

Q. Okay. Now, do you remember -- there was the Bashir documentary. Do you remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember -- that came out on television at some point, right?
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you remember if this family came to the ranch after the Bashir documentary?

A. No.
Q. Okay. Before the -- before the Bashir documentary, do you remember the family being there? When I say “family,” I mean the kids.
A. Yes.
Q. All right. When Star showed you the magazine, and Mr. Jackson wasn’t there, was that before the Bashir documentary or after it?
A. It was after.
Q. It was after the Bashir documentary?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. So do you then recall them being at the ranch after the Bashir documentary?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. All right. Now, you said you served food or you were responsible for being an assistant cook. Do you know whether or not Star and Gavin would take food to the guest unit?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And did they do that?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now, after the Bashir documentary, do you remember seeing Janet Arvizo at the ranch?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know somebody by the name of Dieter Weizner?

A. Yes.
Q. Was Dieter Weizner at the ranch in that same period of time?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, how long was the family at the ranch after the Bashir documentary, before they left for the last time?
A. Probably about two -- two to three weeks maybe.

Q. And during that period of time, did you see Janet Arvizo come out to the kitchen area or come into the kitchen area where you were working?
A. No.
Q. Okay. When I say “kitchen area,” I don’t mean going in the actual kitchen, but in the kitchen area, you have a counter, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever see Janet Arvizo come to that counter?
A. After the Martin Bashir --
Q. Yes.
A. No. After that, no.
Q. Okay. Did you see the Martin Bashir video when it came out?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. So your recollection is you saw her there before the Martin Bashir video?
A. Yes.

Q. Did you see her there with Dieter?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, let me ask you what you recall about her being there with Dieter.
Okay. I want you to get a mental picture of what was going on. As best you can, try to remember what happened. You see Janet Arvizo coming into the area. What do you call that area where the counter is?
A. The bar.
Q. The bar. Okay. You see her coming into the bar. And were you there when she arrived the first time, or do you recall?
A. Yes.
Q. Where was Dieter?
A. He was sitting at the bar.
Q. Okay. And were they sitting next to each other to begin with?
A. No.
Q. What do you recall happened after that?
A. They started talking.
Q. Okay.

A. And they got -- they asked for a bottle of champagne.

Q. Okay. Now, did -- was Dieter talking to Janet, or Janet to Dieter, or were they both talking to each other?

A. Well, I don't know who started the conversation. But it seemed Janet started talking to Dieter.

Q. Okay. Did they remain at their places at the bar?

A. No, they got closer together.

Q. Okay. How long did they sit at the bar together that first time?

A. For a couple hours.

Q. Okay. Do you recall Janet Arvizo's demeanor, how she was acting?

A. Flirtatious.

Q. Okay. After they sat at the bar for that period of time, did they go anyplace else?

A. They went to the living room.

Q. Okay. And where is the living room?

A. Couple steps to the right.

Q. Okay. There's like a formal living room and then there's a family room area; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they go to the family room or the living room?

A. The family room.

Q. And are there couches there in the --

A. Yes.

Q. Where did they sit?

A. They sat next to each other in front of the T.V.

Q. Okay. And what were they doing?

A. They kept on talking.

Q. All right. Were they drinking anything?

A. Yes.

Q. What were they drinking?

A. The champagne they ordered.

Q. All right. Do you recall how long they sat there in the family room area?

A. A couple more hours.

Q. And then during that period of time what was Janet Arvizo's attitude?

A. Flirtatious.

Q. So just continued on the entire time?

A. Yes.

Q. And did they seem to be having a good time?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they eventually leave?

A. Yes.

Q. And did they leave together or separately that first time?

A. The first time, together.

Q. And do you recall them saying anything on the way out?

A. No.

Q. All right. Do you know where they went?

A. No.

Q. All right. So they went out the door together?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you see them again that night?

A. No.

Q. Now, did you see them again the next day?

A. Yes.

Q. And what happened that day?

A. The same thing. They ordered champagne again, and they were talking together --

Q. Okay.

A. -- after dinner.

Q. And when they -- when they left the area, was -- how did Janet seem? What was her attitude?

A. Different. It was more, like, serious.

Q. Okay.

A. They just talked. They didn't really flirt as much as they did the other day.

Q. Did she seem to be happy or unhappy?

A. More --

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as speculative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Were you able to determine by observing her whether or not she seemed to be happy or unhappy?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; speculative.

MR. SANGER: That would be a “yes” or “no.”

THE COURT: I’ll overrule the objection.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Were you able to determine, by looking at her, whether she seemed to be happy or unhappy?

A. She seemed more serious.

MR. ZONEN: Object to anything beyond “yes” or “no.”

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Did you see whether or not Dieter Weizner and Janet Arvizo had any physical contact?

A. No.

Q. Did either one hug the other?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. That was the second night. Now, was there another night?

A. I don’t remember if there was a third night.

Q. Okay. All right. Now, during this period of time, did you have occasion to talk with Davellin?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was your first contact with Davellin Arvizo, social contact, as it were? What were the circumstances, in other words?

A. Well, if she asked for something, like a hamburger or something, I would make it for her. That’s the only way I could talk to her.

Q. Okay. And you’d make something for her. Would she come and get it or would she ask you to deliver it?

A. Well, at first she would sit at the bar and I would serve it to her.

Q. At some point did she have you deliver food to her?

A. Yes.

Q. And where would you deliver it?

A. To the theater.

Q. Was she at the theater alone?

A. No.

Q. Who was with her?

A. Well, actually she asked me to take her to the theater with the food.

Q. Oh, with the food. Okay.

A. Yes.

Q. Now, was she at the theater more than once?

A. Yes.

Q. Was she at the theater with anybody from time to time?

A. I don’t remember. Maybe her brothers were there with her.

Q. Okay. Did she -- after you drove her to the theater that one time, did she ask you to come back and bring her food there on other occasions?

A. No, not there.

Q. Other places?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. What was your shift? When did you usually work?

A. Seven o’clock in the morning till maybe 10:00 at night.

Q. All right. So you’d be there in case guests or anybody or Mr. Jackson needed food; is that right?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: All right. Now, I know it’s not quite 2:30, and I could probably drag some questions out, but I really think we’re at a point we need to address the other issues, Your Honor, if we could.

THE COURT: All right.

You’re asking to recess early so you can --

MR. SANGER: So we can address that, yes, sir.

THE COURT: Okay. We’ll recess early today.

I’ll see you tomorrow at 8:30.

You’re going to have that for me in the morning, are you?

MR. SANGER: Yes. I could have it this afternoon maybe, if that’s of any help.

THE COURT: The earlier the better.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:20 p.m.)

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued)
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. Simone, you talked about the incident where you saw Gavin and Star steel some wine, okay? And you said that was in March of 2003?
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you know approximately when in March that was?
A. No, I don’t.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay. No further questions.
THE COURT: Cross-examine?

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Miss Jackson, good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. During the month of February of 2003, how often did you go to Neverland?
A. It was once.
Q. You went once during February?
A. Yes.
Q. And for what period of time?
A. For one day.
Q. And then you left at the end of that day?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And did you see Gavin and Star on that day?

A. Yes.

Q. Had you ever met them prior to that day?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever see them on any of your other trips to Neverland, prior to February of 2003?

A. Excuse me, what does “prior” mean?

Q. Before. Before 2003.

A. No.

Q. Did you know who they were on the day that you arrived there in February?

A. No.

Q. You had not met them, and you didn’t know who they were?

A. No.

Q. They were just a couple kids who were staying there?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have an opportunity to talk to them when you were there in February?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Did you learn where they were from?

A. No.

Q. Did you learn how long they had been staying at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Did you learn where they had been prior to going to Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Did you know why they were at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Did you know that they were personal friends of your cousin Michael Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, Michael Jackson is your cousin, is that right, not your uncle?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you know how they met Michael Jackson, your cousin?

A. No.

Q. Did you know the extent of their friendship with Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Now, on that occasion, on the occasion of that birthday party, you were there just for one day; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And then you went home at the end of that day?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell your mother or anybody else anything about Gavin or Star?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. All right. And who was that who you talked to?

A. My mother.

Q. All right. Was that something that you told her that you were concerned about Gavin or Star?

A. No.

Q. What did you tell your mother about Gavin or Star.

A. I just told my mother that I met them.

Q. That you met the two of them. Did you meet their sister as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you meet their mother as well?

A. No.

Q. You didn’t know their mother; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. You didn’t known their parents; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you wonder why they were at Neverland without their parents?

A. No.

Q. Did you ask either one of them whether they were in school?

A. No.

Q. Did either one of them tell you whether or not they were in school?

A. No.

Q. When was the next time that you saw them?

A. In March.

Q. That was in March sometime?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember when in March?

A. No, I don’t.

Q. Did you have more than one visit to Neverland in March?

A. Yes.

Q. How many visits did you have to Neverland in March?

A. Two.

Q. Two? And on each of those occasions did you stay overnight?

A. Yes.

Q. For how long did you stay overnight in March?

A. A total of five days.

Q. You stayed five days in March?

A. Yes.

Q. In total? For both visits or --

A. Both visits.

Q. Both visits total? Does that mean five nights or four nights; do you recall?

A. Five nights.

Q. Five nights in total. Was that during the week?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Were you in school at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you miss any school while you were staying at Neverland?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you see Gavin and Star the entire time you were there?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see their mother during that time as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see Davellin during that time as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Did it occur to you that they were there the entire time; in other words, from the time that you had been there in February, to the time that you came back to Neverland in March?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And you understood that they were simply staying there for that entire time; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Did you wonder whether or not they were going to school?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. Did you ask any of them whether or not they were going to school?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. I just didn’t.

Q. Well, did it seem strange to you that they were staying at Neverland for such an extended period of time without going to school?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you talk to your cousin Michael Jackson about why they weren’t in school?

A. No.

Q. Did you talk to your cousin Michael Jackson at any time about Gavin or Star?

A. No.

Q. All right. Now, at some point in time, you saw these kids take wine from the kitchen; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And Mr. Mesereau called it stealing wine. Did you think they were stealing wine?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you think they were stealing wine because they’re kids?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. If your mom went to the kitchen, she could take a bottle of wine; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. It was there for the guests?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. But you felt it was improper for them to do it because they were 12 years old and 13 years old; is that right?

A. Yes.
Q. Is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. So you felt that that was stealing; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, did you tell somebody immediately when that happened?
A. No, I didn’t.
Q. Now, this was one o’clock in the morning; is that right?
A. Yes.

Q. And you were in the kitchen at one o’clock in the morning?
A. Yes.
Q. Was there a video game there?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that what you were doing?
A. Yes.
Q. Was it one of those games that rings and dings as you press the different buttons?
A. Yes.
Q. And was it doing that at the time that you were there?
A. No, it wasn’t.
Q. Why wasn’t it?
A. Because I wasn’t playing it. I was watching them.
Q. You were sitting there watching them?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Did you at any time tell them that you were there?
A. They saw me after. After they left they saw --
Q. And why didn’t you greet them as soon as they walked in the door?
A. I don’t know.
Q. Were you already angry at them?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Did you tell anybody afterward?

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Who did you tell?

A. My mother.
Q. All right. Did you tell Michael Jackson, your cousin?
A. No.
Q. All right. At any time while you were there at Neverland, did you go talk to Michael Jackson, your cousin?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever spend the night in Michael Jackson’s room?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. By yourself?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever spend a night in his room in his bed with him?
A. Yes.
Q. By yourself?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. How old were you when you did that?
A. I was about eight or nine.
Q. Eight or nine. Have you done it since age eight or nine?
A. No.
Q. Why not?
A. I don’t know.

Q. Were you invited to come back into his room?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you invited to come back into his bed?
A. Yes.
Q. By Michael Jackson?
A. Yes.
Q. So he offered you his bed to share with him?
A. Yes.
Q. When was the most recent time he did that?
A. When I was 14.
Q. When you were 14 years old. So he invited you to come sleep with him in his bed by yourself?
A. With my brother.
Q. Okay. The question that I had asked you is whether or not you had been invited to sleep in his bed by yourself.
A. Oh, no.

Q. Had you been?
A. No.
Q. At any time since age eight?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Was your brother sleeping in his bed with you?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And when he invited you and your brother to come back when you were 14 years old to sleep in his bed, did your brother go sleep in his bed?

A. Yes.
Q. Where did you sleep?
A. I slept with them.
Q. You slept in the bed?
A. Yes.
Q. So you were 14 years old?
A. Yes.
Q. And you and your brother and Michael Jackson --
A. Yes.
Q. -- in his bed?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, why did you do that? Why didn’t you sleep in the guest cottage?
A. I don’t know.
Q. You mentioned that when you went into the house or would go into the house that you would have to knock on the door to get in; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that just at night or was it during the day as well?
A. During the day.
Q. So that door was kept locked all the time; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. So all the time that Janet Arvizo was there, the doors to the main house were locked; is that right?

A. Yes.
Q. All right. And they were not opened at night and kept locked just during the day. They were locked all the time?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, when you would go to knock on the door, who was it who would come to the door to let you in?

A. One of the chefs.

Q. Were the chefs there 24 hours a day?

A. No.

Q. So the chefs would not be there at the nighttime; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Would there be somebody standing by the door to let you in if you wanted to knock and come in late at night?

A. No.

Q. So you would simply not be able to gain access to the main house at night if you were not already in there; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Unless you got a security guard to let you in?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Simone, did the Arvizo children ever tell you that they had gotten homework from school --

A. No.

Q. -- that they could do? Did Janet ever tell you?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; exceeds the scope of the -- withdrawn. Withdrawn.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Janet Arvizo ever tell you she had gone to the school and gotten homework sent to the kids?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; leading.

MR. MESEREAU: I think they opened it.

MR. ZONEN: Well, it’s still leading.

THE COURT: Sustained. “I think they opened it” is a good response. “They opened it, Your Honor.”

MR. MESEREAU: I’m at the door.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Oh, the door. Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: All right. Was it your impression that Janet Arvizo could enter the main house when she wanted to?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Speculative and leading.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is, “Yes.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever see Janet Arvizo enter the main house?

A. No.

Q. You did see Gavin and Star in the main house from time to time, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you know whether or not they seemed to have pass codes to get into the house?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you know either way?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Miss Jackson, did you have a pass code to get into the house?

A. No.

Q. Nobody ever told you what the pass code was?

A. No.

Q. Did you have a pass code to get into your cousin’s bed?

A. No.

Q. Nobody ever told you that code?

A. No.

MR. ZONEN: No further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

MR. MESEREAU: Defense will call Rijo

Jackson.
THE COURT: I just wanted to -- I’ve just been informed that the Police Department Honor Guard is going to be shooting some rounds today, so I don’t want anybody to panic. They didn’t want me to panic, so I’m going to share with you what they just told me.
MR. SANGER: Do we know where they’re going to be shooting? That might be --
THE COURT: I’ve given them some -- no.
(Laughter.)
THE COURT: Come forward to the witness stand here, please. Remain standing. Face the clerk here, and raise your right hand.

RIJO VALDES JACKSON
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.
THE WITNESS: Rijo Valdes Jackson. R-i-j-o; V-a-l-d-e-s; J-a-c-k-s-o-n.
THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. Mr. Jackson, do you know the fellow seated at counsel table to my right?
A. Yeah.
Q. Who is that?
A. Michael Jackson.
Q. And are you related to him?
A. (Nods head up and down.)
Q. How are you related to Michael Jackson?
A. Cous -- cousin.
Q. Okay. And where is your home?
A. At Lompoc.
Q. Okay. And is Simone your sister?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Have you ever been to Neverland?
A. Yes.

Q. You’ve been there a lot?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And what do you like to do at Neverland?

A. Play games and have fun.

Q. And what -- how do you have fun at Neverland?

A. Like, watch movies. Go to the rides, and go ride his motorcycles and --

Q. Have a good time?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. How do you get to Neverland when you go?

A. You go through Santa Ynez, I think.

Q. Does somebody pick you up?

A. Yes. My mom.

Q. Okay. And does she go there with you a lot?

A. Yes.

Q. Does your mom take you home?

A. Yes.

Q. And sometimes does your cousin Michael have somebody pick you up?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And, Rijo, have your met anyone named Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. And have you ever met someone named Star Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Where did you meet Gavin and Star?

A. At Neverland.

Q. Okay. And was that in the year 2003; do you know?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, where did you meet them?

A. Like right -- when we first walked in, we seen them in the kitchen.

Q. Okay. And what did you see them doing in the kitchen?

A. They were just playing games and having fun.

Q. Okay. And there were games in the kitchen area, right?

A. Yes.
Q. What kind of games?
A. Like, the one -- it’s like on a television that you touch, and, like, a touch-screen game.
Q. And you play that game, too?
A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. Did you spend time at Neverland with Gavin and Star?
A. Yes.
Q. And what did you used to do there with Gavin and Star?
A. We used to go on the rides, watch movies, go to the zoo, and play games, and that’s all.
Q. Okay. Now, do you remember staying at Neverland with Gavin and Star?
A. Yeah.
Q. And where did you stay?
A. In the unit.
Q. Okay. Is that a guest unit?
A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. And were you staying in the same room with Gavin and Star?
A. Yes. For one night I was.

Q. Pardon me?
A. For one night.
Q. Okay. Did you spend that night with Gavin and Star?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Was that -- did they sleep in the guest unit?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Is that where you slept?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, what did you see Gavin and Star do in the guest unit, Rijo?
A. I saw them go to the T.V. and turn to a channel that had, like, naked girls on there, and doing other stuff, like nasty stuff.
Q. What nasty stuff?
A. They were, like, jacking off and everything.
Q. Okay. Did they do that in front of you?
A. (Nods head up and down.)
Q. Was Michael Jackson anywhere near that room?

A. No.

Q. Okay. What did you do when you saw Gavin and Star jacking off?

A. I told my sister and she told me to go to Michael’s room.

Q. And did you run to Michael’s room when you saw that?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. Did Gavin and Star stay in the guest unit?

A. Yeah.

Q. Did Gavin and Star say anything to you when they did the nasty stuff?

A. The other day they did. They said, “Why don’t you do that with me?”

Q. And what did you say to them?

A. I said I didn’t want to because it was nasty, and it’s wrong.

Q. Now, when you ran to Michael’s room, did you leave them in the guest unit?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Did you ever spend another night with Gavin and Star?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did you ever see Gavin and Star with any wine at Neverland?

A. No, I seen them take it, but --

Q. Where did you see them take it?

A. In Michael’s room.

Q. And what did you see them do?

A. I seen them take it upstairs and then that’s all. And then, like, a few moments later I seen them run out the door.

Q. With wine?

A. No. They were just running out the door.

Q. Okay.

A. Real quickly.

Q. So you saw them in Michael’s room, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you saw them grab some of Michael’s wine?

A. Yeah, because he ordered some, and then they -- then the chef brought it in, and Star and Gavin said, “We’ll take it upstairs for him.” And so I seen them do that for -- like, ten minutes later they came downstairs and ran out the door.

Q. Did Michael ever see them with the wine?

A. Huh-uh.

Q. Where was Michael at that time; do you know?

A. He was in his studio or the bathroom.

Q. Okay. So Michael never saw them steal the wine?

A. Huh-uh.

Q. Did you see them actually drink the wine?

A. No.

Q. You have to say “yes” or “no,” Rijo.

A. No.

Q. Okay. But you saw them run out with it?

A. Yes.

Q. Which way did they run with the wine?

A. I don’t know. I seen them go out the door. That’s all.

Q. And Michael wasn’t there?

A. He wasn’t there.

Q. So he didn’t see them take the wine?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever observe Gavin and Star in the house?

A. Can you repeat it?

Q. Yeah. Sure. I’m sorry. I’m probably not using the right word. Did you ever watch what Gavin and Star were doing in the main house?

A. They were just running around the house doing, like, what they do, like, playing.

Q. When you say like they do, what do you mean, Rijo?

A. Like, play with each other, like, tag and --

Q. Did you ever see them looking through drawers?

A. Yes.

Q. And what do you mean?

A. Like, in the kitchen, they had like -- like -- they took some money, and, like, that was the chef’s money and stuff.

Q. Now, what money are you referring to?
A. Like, in the kitchen there’s all kinds of drawers. And then we seen them go in the -- Jesus’ office after they went into the kitchen and seen them take some stuff.
Q. What stuff did you see them take?
A. They had, like, little crystals. We seen them take crystals and money, and that was all they took. We seen them.

Q. Now, where did you see Gavin and Star take money?
A. In Jesus’ office.
Q. Okay. And what did you see them do? Did they go into a drawer?
A. Yeah.
Q. Were you watching them?
A. No.
Q. Okay.
A. I was in the kitchen.
Q. How do you know they took money?
A. Because we seen them run out with it.
Q. Run out with money?
A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. Did they have money in their hands?
A. Yes.
Q. And were they running out of Jesus’ office?
A. Yes.
Q. You have to say “yes,” Rijo.
A. And they ran out the door.
Q. Okay. I don’t think you answered that other question. You have to say “yes” or “no,” okay? Because this court reporter is writing down what you say.
Now, you saw them run out with the money?
A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And what direction did they go?
A. They went to the outside.
Q. Okay. And was the money in their hands?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you see them take anything besides money?
A. No.

Q. Okay. Now, you mentioned crystals. Now, what were you talking about when you said crystals?
A. They’re like little plastic crystals. They look like little crystals. They took them.
Q. Gavin and Star took them?
A. Yeah.
Q. And where did they get the crystals?
A. From Jesus’ office.
Q. Okay. Now, you said they were looking through drawers in the kitchen; is that right?
A. Yeah.
Q. You have to say “yes” or “no.”
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now, when did you see them looking through drawers in the kitchen?
A. Like earlier before they went through Jesus’ office drawers.
Q. And did you see Gavin and Star take anything from the drawers in the kitchen?
A. Not really. I see them take, like, a deck of cards and that’s all.

Q. You said “cards”?
A. Yeah.
Q. What do you mean by “cards,” Rijo?
A. Like playing cards.
Q. You saw them take them out of the kitchen?
A. Yeah.
Q. Now, you said something about chef’s money. What did you mean?
A. Like, his money that he -- that he worked for and everything.
Q. This was the chef?
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you know what the chef’s name was?
A. I think it was Angel or Rudy.
Q. And where did you see them take Angel’s money?
A. Outside.
Q. Okay. They took it outside the house?
A. Yeah.
Q. Did you see them actually take it from the kitchen?
A. Yes.

Q. Explain what you saw when they took the money.

A. I seen them have some green paper in their hand, so -- you know, I seen them run outside, so --

Q. And, Rijo, how did you know it was Angel's money?

A. Because the -- the cook, he doesn't really, like, keep his stuff -- he keeps his stuff in there, but that's all where he puts it.

Q. That's in a drawer?

A. Yeah.

Q. Was Angel there at the time?

A. No.

Q. Okay.

A. Nobody was there at the time.

Q. Okay. Did you ever hear Gavin or Star talk about the money they'd taken?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Now, you say you saw Gavin and Star steal wine, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Did you ever actually watch them drink it?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Have you ever gone to the store Toys-R-Us?

A. Yes.

Q. And who did you go to the store Toys-R-Us with?

A. With Michael and Star and Gavin and his friend -- Michael's friends that he picked up.

Q. Okay. And are these people he met --

A. Yes.

Q. -- on the road? Michael just picked them up and took them with him?

A. No, he had met them before.

Q. Okay. Were they fans?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And what did you do at the store Toys-R-Us?

A. He took us to buy stuff, like just go around and play.

Q. And were Gavin and Star there the whole time with you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you play?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you do when you played?

A. Like, we got the balls and played with them, toss back and forth. Rode the bikes. And that was it.

Q. And then did Michael take you back to Neverland?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. And were these fans that Michael picked up and took with you to the store, were they girls?

A. Boys and girls.

Q. Boys and girls. Okay. How many were there, do you think?

A. I’m not sure.

Q. Okay. And if you remember, Rijo, what time of day was that when you went to Toys-R-Us?

A. It was at night.

Q. At night? Okay.

Have you ever spoken to Janet Arvizo, the mother of Gavin and Star?

A. Not really. I only seen -- I seen her once and that was it.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. No further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Rijo, good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. In February of 2003, how often did you go to Neverland?

A. A lot.

Q. A lot? Does that mean like every week?

A. No, not every week. Like once every two weeks, I think.

Q. And when you went to Neverland every two weeks, did you go with your sister?

A. Yes.

Q. And your sister was there the entire time?

A. Yes.

Q. How long did you stay each time you went to Neverland in February?

A. A day or we spent the night sometimes.

Q. A day or you spent the night?

A. Yeah.

Q. Could you have spent the night on both times you went?

A. No. Because we had school probably.

Q. So you weren’t missing school while you were going to Neverland?

A. Can you re -- what?

Q. In February of 2003. Do you remember that clearly, in February of 2003? It’s over two years ago. Do you remember it fairly clearly now?

A. A little bit. A little bit.

Q. A little bit? Do you remember going to Neverland on more than one occasion?

A. Yes.

Q. And when you went to Neverland, did you go simply with your sister?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you do that more than one time in February?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Did your mother ever go with you to Neverland?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. Did your father ever go with you to Neverland?

A. No.

Q. In March, did you go back to Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know how many times you went to Neverland in March?

A. No.

Q. Could you have gone to Neverland as much as five days in March?

A. Yeah.

Q. On all of the occasions that you went to Neverland in February and in March, were Gavin and Star there?

A. No.
Q. Was it always on the weekends when you went to Neverland?
A. No.
Q. Well, if you didn’t go to Neverland on the weekends, would that have meant that you missed school on some days?
A. Like once.
Q. Just one time?
A. I --
Q. Do you remember when that was that you missed school to go to Neverland?
A. No.
Q. Did you spend some time talking to Gavin and Star while you were at Neverland?
A. Yeah.
Q. Did you learn that Gavin and Star had been staying at Neverland the entire time that you were visiting?

A. No.
Q. That they were at Neverland for the entirety, just about, of February and for quite a bit of March as well?
A. No.
Q. Did you think that they were simply coming at the same time that you were coming and then going back?
A. What?
Q. Did you ask them how long they had been staying there?
A. No.
Q. Did you ask them if they were going to school?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever talk to your cousin Michael about Gavin and Star?
A. We didn’t bring -- we didn’t bring their name up in our conversations.
Q. Rijo, I’m sorry, I can’t hear you. You’re going to have to say that --
A. We didn’t bring their names up in conversations.
Q. You never brought their names up in conversations with your cousin Michael?

A. Not really.

Q. Did you have conversations with Michael during the time that Gavin and Star were there?

A. Yeah.

Q. Did you tell Michael that they were stealing?

A. No.

Q. Why didn’t you tell him?

A. Because he wasn’t around.

Q. All right. But you just said you had conversations with Michael.

A. Yeah, that was after.

Q. All right. You didn’t have any conversations with Michael at any time during February or March?

A. No.

Q. No conversations with him at all?

A. Because we didn’t see him.

Q. You did not see your cousin Michael at any time during all of February or March, not once?

A. Can you -- what? Can you repeat that?

Q. Did you see your cousin Michael at any time during the month of February of 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. During the time that you saw your cousin Michael, did you ever talk with him about Gavin and Star?

A. What? You’re talking too fast.

Q. I’m sorry. I’ll slow down.

(Laughter.)

MR. ZONEN: There’s a court reporter here who would agree with you.

Q. At some time during February, did you see your cousin Michael?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you talk with your cousin Michael during the month of February?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you talk with your cousin Michael about Gavin and Star during the month of February?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Because we didn’t -- because we didn’t have nothing to say about them.

Q. Does that mean that nothing happened in the month of February with Gavin and Star?

A. No, it did, but, like, we didn’t talk about them.

Q. Well, weren’t you concerned about their behavior?

A. Not really.

Q. You weren’t concerned about it?

A. I was, but I tried to tell -- I forgot about it.

Q. You forgot about it?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. He was stealing, and you forgot about that?

A. Yeah.

Q. So you didn’t tell Michael anything about Gavin or Star?

A. (Shakes head from side to side.)

Q. At any time of the month of February?

A. Because he had to go -- like someone -- during the day he had to go to, like, the studios, and then he had to go, like, L.A. and everything.

Q. So you never had a chance to talk with him at all?

A. We did, but, like, after our chance to talk to him, he went to L.A., and so he came back and then that was it.

Q. Did you tell your cousin Michael about what Gavin and Star were doing in the bedroom?

A. (Shakes head from side to side.)

Q. No?

A. I was scared, no, so --

Q. Did you tell your cousin Michael about the television and the fact that they were watching something bad on television?

A. No.

Q. Now, that television is in a guest room; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know if they were using a video or a DVD?

A. No, they weren’t.

Q. Do you think they were using regular television?

A. Yes.

Q. And then you said they were jerking off; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what that means?

A. Yeah, like putting your hand, like, on your private and then just moving it.

Q. And were they both standing at the time?

A. They were in bed.

Q. They were in bed. And they were covered with blankets?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. You could tell what they were doing?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. Were they in separate beds?

A. Yes.

Q. How many beds were in the room?

A. Three.

Q. Three beds in the room. So usually there’s two beds in that room; is that right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Did they bring another bed into the room for you?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And then after that happened, you left the room; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you went to your sister?

A. Yes.

Q. And your sister said, “Go to Michael’s room”?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. Did you go to Michael rooms?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. Was Michael there?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. And did you tell him what happened?

A. No.

Q. You didn’t tell him what happened.

All right. Do you remember being interviewed by an investigator for your cousin Michael?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember telling him that you went to your sister, and your sister said, “Go back to your room”?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. And is that true, that you went back to your room?

A. Yes, and then I went to Michael’s room to get my stuff.

Q. All right. So you went to your sister’s room and then you went to Michael’s room?

A. Yes.

Q. Afterward. Okay. But you told the investigator that you went back to your room and you never went to Michael’s room; is that true?

A. (Shakes head from side to side.)

Q. No?

A. (Shakes head from side to side.)

Q. So did you go to Michael’s room?

A. Yes -- no, first I went to my sister’s room and then I went back to my room, and then I went to Michael’s room.

Q. Now, when you went to Michael’s room, I think you said Michael was there at that time?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. Is that “yes”?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And you told Michael what had happened in the bedroom; is that right?

A. I told him a little bit. And then he left to the bathroom.

Q. And he left for the bathroom?

A. Yeah.

Q. When you told him a little bit, did you tell him -- among the little bit that you told him, did you tell him that they watched something bad on television?

A. Yes.

Q. And you told him that they watched something that had naked women --

A. Yes.
Q. -- on television?

A. And then -- yes.
Q. And did it also have naked men?
A. No.
Q. Just naked women?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. What did Michael say to you when you told him that they were watching something with naked women on television?
A. He didn’t believe it.
Q. He didn’t believe it?
A. Because, like, he thought -- he thought they were cool, and he didn’t think they would do that.
Q. I’m sorry, I can’t hear you. Say it again.
A. He thought they were good, and they wouldn’t do that.
Q. Did you tell him about what they were doing inside the bed?
A. No.
Q. You didn’t tell him that? How come you didn’t tell him that?
A. Because I didn’t want to, like, tell him, because I was scared.
Q. Did you spend that night in bed with your cousin Michael?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you do that often, share a bed with your cousin Michael?
A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell your cousin Michael about the fact that they were stealing money?
A. No.
Q. Why not?
A. Because he was gone.
Q. I’m sorry?
A. He was gone. We tried to tell a maid or something like that.
Q. Did you tell --
A. But they were gone. It was at night.
Q. Did -- did you see your cousin Michael again after the boys were stealing money?

A. No, I only seen him, like, once, like, a day. Because he was gone most of the time.
Q. You said he was stealing money from Jesus' office; is that right?
A. No, the kitchen.
Q. In the kitchen?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you also say that he was stealing something from Jesus?
A. Yes.
Q. And you said he was stealing money from Jesus?
A. Jesus' office.
Q. Jesus' office?
A. Yes.
Q. And were you there at the time? 10888

A. I was in the kitchen.
Q. Is Jesus' office in the kitchen?
A. It's near the kitchen.
Q. Okay. Were you in the office at the time you saw them steal?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Was Jesus there that day?
A. No.
Q. Was he there the next day?
A. No.
Q. All right. Did you tell anybody the next day?
A. No.
Q. Why not?
A. Because I don't -- I forgot.
Q. You forgot to tell somebody?
A. (Nods head up and down.)
Q. When did you remember it?
A. Like -- I don't know.
Q. You said that he stold some plastic crystals, little plastic crystals?
A. Yes.
Q. Explain what those are for me.
A. Like little -- you know how crystals look, they're little plastic things. They're, like, shiny, and that's all they are. They're, like, shiny balls, like crystals.

Q. And where were they from?

A. From Jesus' office in his drawer.
Q. And that was inside his office?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were inside his office at the time?
A. I was at the kitchen.
Q. Were you able to see inside his office at the time from where you were in the kitchen?
A. When they got out, I seen them with some stuff, like I can see them juggling, like, crystals and stuff.
Q. Did you know what they were, the crystals?
A. (Nods head up and down.)
Q. And you were able to get them; is that right? You were able to see them?
A. Yeah.
Q. And when did you seen them before?
A. Just then. And then Michael showed me what they were, and so --
Q. Michael showed you?
A. So I knew what they were.
Q. Because --
A. Because he had some in his room.
Q. Because your cousin Michael had showed them to you once before?
A. Yes.
Q. And then you saw the boys take them?
A. (Nods head up and down.)
Q. Do you know if they returned them?

A. No.
Q. How do you know? You don't know if they did or didn't?
A. I don't --
Q. So they might have returned them?
A. Yeah.
Q. Might have been just been playing with them?
A. (Nods head up and down.)
Q. Did you tell anybody about them taking the crystals?
A. (Shakes head from side to side.)
Q. Was that the same time they took the deck of cards?

A. Yes.

Q. Were the deck -- was the deck of cards there for people to play with?

A. Yes.

Q. So they took it, and were they then playing with the deck of cards?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you play with them with the deck of cards, too?

A. No.

Q. The time that you went to Toys-R-Us, was Gavin and Star with you?

A. Yes.

Q. And you say that Michael stopped and picked up some other kids?

A. Some other people.

Q. Some other people. How old were they?

A. Like around his age, like twenties, thirties.

Q. Like whose age?

A. Like twenties or thirties.

Q. Oh, they were older?

A. Yeah.

Q. So they weren’t kids?

A. No.

Q. They were adults?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And where were they?

A. They were like around his gate in the front entrance.

Q. And you said, “like his age.” Do you mean your cousin Michael?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. Do you know how old your cousin Michael is?

A. 40.

Q. 40?

A. I think.

Q. Do you remember when it happened that they were looking at the television show? Do you remember if that was in March or in February?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember if it was right before they left?

A. No, I don’t remember.
Q. Did you ever talk with Michael about any of these incidences, other than conversation you told us about, them looking at the show?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever tell your mother about it?
A. Yes. And then she called Chris Carter.
Q. You said that you saw them walk out with green paper?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. This was from the chef’s money?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you actually see that it was green paper or money?
A. It was green, it was like -- it looked like green money -- it looked like money, so --
Q. You didn’t see them take it; is that right?
A. Yeah, I seen them take it in their hand.
Q. Did you ever report any of this to anybody at Neverland?
A. No.
Q. Did you know Jesus Salas?
A. No.
Q. Did you know Chris Carter?
A. Oh, I knew Jesus, yeah. I knew Jesus and Chris Carter.
Q. You thought it was Jesus’ money that was stolen; is that right?

A. Yeah.
Q. Did you ever tell him?
A. And the chef’s money.
Q. You thought it was the chef’s money?
A. Yeah. Or -- I don’t know whose money it was.
Q. But didn’t you think there was something stolen from Jesus Salas as well?
A. Yeah.
Q. Did you tell Jesus Salas about that?
A. No, because I didn’t see him.
Q. Did you ever tell the chef about that?
A. No.
Q. Now, you said that he took some wine that had been ordered by Michael?

A. Yeah.

Q. Is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Were you up in his room when it was ordered by Michael?

A. I was downstairs in his room.

Q. You were downstairs in his room. And where was Michael at the time it was ordered?

A. He was upstairs, and then he ordered it, because I could hear him upstairs, and then he went to the bathroom, and he told the cook that -- to bring it upstairs, but Gavin and Star answered the door.

Q. Okay. So he brought it into the room while Gavin was there, and while Star was there, and while you were there; is that right?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. And he ordered it while you were there, and while Gavin was there, and while Star was there?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And you expected that he would bring -- that they would bring wine to the room while you were there; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And your cousin Michael knew that you were there, and Gavin was there, and Star was there; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. So you're telling us that as soon as they delivered it, Gavin and Star grabbed the wine and left?

A. They grabbed the wine from the door, and then they took it upstairs, and then like a few minutes later, I don't know how many, but they came downstairs and ran out the door.

Q. So they took the wine?

A. Yes.

Q. And they went upstairs?

A. Yes.

Q. And upstairs is where your cousin Michael's bed is; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So they were upstairs with your cousin Michael and with the wine?

A. No, Michael was downstairs.

Q. All right. Michael was downstairs when the wine was delivered?

A. Yes.

Q. So Michael saw that the wine was delivered?

A. No. He was in the bathroom.

Q. He was in the bathroom when the wine was delivered?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So they took the wine upstairs to the bedroom; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And your cousin Michael stayed in the bathroom?

A. No, because he ordered it, and then he said, “I’ll be right back, because I’m going to go to the bathroom.”

And so the cook brang -- he took it to the door, and then Gavin and Star took it upstairs while Michael was in the bathroom.

Q. Okay.

A. And then like a couple minutes later, they took it outside. Or they -- they -- they ran outside with no -- with no wine.

Q. They ran outside what?

A. With no wine.

Q. I didn’t hear that last word.

A. No wine.

Q. Oh. They did take the wine outside?

A. No, they didn’t.

Q. So the kids left the wine in the room?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So they didn’t take the wine?

A. Michael’s -- they took it upstairs.

Q. We’re going to start from the beginning a little bit, because this is my doing, not yours. This is not your problem, this is my problem, all right? I’m having a little hard time understanding this. So let’s see if we can just start at the beginning and make it clear. Michael ordered wine to be delivered to the room?

A. Yes.

Q. At the time he ordered the wine, you were there, Gavin was there, and Star was there?

A. Yes.

Q. Michael then said, “I’m going into the bathroom”?

A. Yes.

Q. He went into the bathroom knowing that wine was going to be delivered to the room?

A. Yes.

Q. He knew the three of you were in the room; is that right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. The wine was delivered while the three of you were in the room?

A. Yes.

Q. What time was it?

A. It was nighttime.

Q. How late at night?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. It’s -- I’m sorry, go ahead.

A. What?

Q. I asked you if you knew how late it was at night. Do you know?

A. No.

Q. It’s true, isn’t it, that when you stay with your cousin Michael, sometimes you stay up all night, don’t you?

A. Yes.

Q. Because he likes to stay up all night?

A. Yes.

Q. It’s fun to be with him all night long, isn’t it?

A. Yes.

Q. Because you do things all night long.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. So when that wine was delivered, it could have been very, very late at night, couldn’t it?

A. Yes.

Q. Well past the time you normally go to bed; no?
A. I think, yeah.
Q. Do you remember if it was well past the time you normally go to bed when this wine was delivered?
A. It was, yes, I think.
Q. Do you remember who it was who delivered the wine? Was it somebody you knew?
A. It was Angel.
Q. It was Angel who brought it. Angel Vivanco?
A. Yeah.
Q. Did he bring it with glasses?
A. Yeah, he brang it with one glass and a bottle.
Q. Just one glass? And when it came in, the wine and the glass, did Angel put it down in the room?
A. Yeah.
Q. And when he put it down, was Star and Gavin in the room?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were in the room?
A. I was downstairs, so --
Q. So Star and Gavin were upstairs?
A. Yes.
Q. But when Angel brought it in, he brought it in downstairs, didn't he?

A. (Nods head up and down.)
Q. “Yes”?
A. Yes.
Q. You have to answer out loud, if you would.
A. Yes.
Q. Did Angel then take the bottle of wine upstairs?
A. No, he set it downstairs and then Star and Gavin took it upstairs.
Q. Okay. And was Michael in the bathroom downstairs or the bathroom upstairs?
A. Downstairs.
Q. He was downstairs in the bathroom?
A. (Nods head up and down.)
Q. Did you tell Michael when he was in the bathroom that the wine had been delivered?

A. Yes.

Q. You told him it had been delivered, okay, and what did he say?

A. He said, “Okay. I’ll be right there.”

Q. Okay. And meanwhile, Gavin and Star were upstairs; is that right?

A. Yes, and then they left.

Q. With the bottle, with a bottle of wine?

A. Yes.

Q. Was the wine open or closed?

A. It was closed.

Q. Do you remember if it was a bottle of red wine or a bottle of white wine?

A. White wine.

Q. Do you know if there was a bottle opener with it?

A. I don’t -- I think so, but I don’t know.

Q. You’re not certain?

A. I’m not sure.

Q. But you remember it was definitely closed at the time?

A. Yes.

Q. So nobody had uncorked the bottle; is that right?

A. Right.

Q. Okay. Now, while you were there on the first floor, did Gavin and Star then come back downstairs?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And is it true that if you are upstairs in the bedroom in your cousin Michael’s suite, that you can’t leave from there without going downstairs; is that right?

A. Ri -- what do you mean?

Q. If you were upstairs in the bedroom, you have to come downstairs before you can leave the suite?

A. Yeah.

Q. So they would have had to have come back downstairs to have left the suite?

A. Yes.

Q. And did they come downstairs?

A. Yes.
Q. And did they come downstairs with the bottle of wine?
A. No.
Q. All right. Where was the bottle of wine?
A. It was upstairs for Michael.
Q. They left it upstairs?
A. Yes, because he was going back up to his room.
Q. So Gavin and Star came downstairs?
A. Yes.
Q. The bottle of wine stayed upstairs, and Gavin and Star then left?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Okay. Then Michael Jackson came out of the bathroom?
A. Yes.
Q. And Gavin and Star were gone?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you then go upstairs with your cousin Michael?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you spend the rest of the night with your cousin Michael --
A. Yes.
Q. -- upstairs? 10902

Was the wine still there?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Was it still corked, still closed?
A. I don’t know.
Q. Well, was it already open when you got upstairs?
A. Yes.
Q. I’m sorry?
A. Yes.
Q. So it was already opened. And was it finished?
A. No.
Q. So was there some missing?
A. Yes.
Q. So they were the only two who were upstairs; is that right?
A. Yes.

Q. So they took the bottle of wine, they opened it and they had a drink; is that right?
A. I -- I’m not sure if they drank it or not.
Q. Well, some was missing, right?
A. Yes.
Q. So they either drank it or they poured it out; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, did you talk with Michael about that?
A. No, because I wasn’t sure that they drank it or not. Because --

Q. You weren’t sure that they drank it?
A. Yes.
Q. Well, was anybody else up there?
A. No.
Q. Did Michael seem upset that there was some wine missing from the bottle?
A. No.
Q. Did he ask you about why wine was missing from the bottle?
A. No.
Q. Did he know that the only other two people who were there were Gavin and Star?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And did he say something to you about, “Boy, those rascals, they just get into the wine whenever they can”?
A. No.
Q. He didn’t say anything like that?
A. Huh-uh.
Q. Did you tell him that the boys had taken the bottle of wine upstairs?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you tell Michael that? And did you tell him that when they took it upstairs the bottle was sealed?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did your cousin Michael seem upset about that, that it was opened?

A. (Shakes head from side to side.)
Q. He thought it was okay?
A. Yeah.

Q. And --
A. Because he might have thought that the cook opened it for him.
Q. He might have thought that?
A. Yeah.
Q. But you told him that it was closed when it was delivered; no?
A. No.
Q. And even if the cook had opened it, would the cook drink some of that bottle of wine?
A. No.
Q. So it was probably the boys who drank the wine, right?
A. Yes.
Q. That’s probably what your cousin Michael thought, right?
A. Yes.
Q. But you didn’t have a discussion with him about that?
A. No.
Q. You didn’t -- now, when you were up there with that bottle of wine, was that before or after that incident that took place in the guest room with the television and the naked lady on the television?
A. It was after -- I don’t remember.

Q. You’re not sure?
A. No.
Q. Was it before or after you had seen the boys stealing money?
A. It was -- it was after, I think.
Q. You think it was after that?
Okay. So you were with Michael Jackson that entire night; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. And during that time, did you tell your cousin Michael that the boys had stolen money?
A. No.
Q. Was there a reason you didn’t?
A. No.
MR. ZONEN: I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Rijo, at the time that you saw the Arvizos run out of Michael’s room before he came out of the bathroom, you were nine years old; is that right? Were you ten?

A. No.
Q. Okay. Did you ever talk to Gavin about a trip to Brazil?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. And did Gavin say anything to you about a trip to Brazil?
A. I was introduced to the children by my granddaughter. She introduced me to Davellin first. Then Gavin came in the kitchen, and she introduced me to Gavin. And she told me they were waiting there for going on a trip. And I asked --
MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object to a commentary from her as hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Who told you about a trip?

A. Simone.

Q. Did you ever talk to Gavin about this trip?

A. Yes.

Q. What did Gavin say?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Gavin told me, “We don’t want to go to Brazil. This is my mother who wants to go.

We want to stay here.”

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as to multiple hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. ZONEN: Motion to strike.

THE COURT: I’ll strike the last sentence.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Gavin tell you why they were planning to go to Brazil?

A. He told me his mother wanted to go.

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Move to strike; hearsay.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever talk to Davellin about Brazil?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Now, your granddaughter is Simone; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And was Simone there when you spoke to Gavin about the Brazil trip?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And did you ask Gavin whether or not his mother wanted to go to Brazil?

MR. ZONEN: I’m -- objection.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Miss Jackson, good morning.

A. Hi.

Q. When was that that you were at Neverland and had that conversation with Gavin?

A. Around February, March. I’m not exactly the -- I don’t know -- I don’t remember exactly the dates.

Q. Did you go to Neverland on a number of occasions during February and March?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. On all the occasions that you went to Neverland during February and March, did you see either Gavin or Star?

A. This is the only time that I was talking about just before now that I saw the children when I was introduced to them.

Q. You have no recollection of ever seeing those children on any other occasion at Neverland?

A. No, sir.

Q. And you went to Neverland on how many occasions during February and March?

A. Maybe three, four times. Maybe more.

Q. Maybe more?

A. Yeah.

Q. When you went on those occasions, did you spend the night there?

A. No.

Q. You would only go during the day and then leave?

A. Yes, I would go and check on my grandchildren.

Q. You would accompany your grandchildren when they went?

A. No. I would go from work to the ranch, to check on my grandchildren to see if they had baseball practice.

Q. You would check on -- you would go to the ranch to see if your grandchildren were there?

A. Yes.

Q. Because sometimes they had baseball practice?

A. Right.

Q. And you would have to pick them up at the ranch to take them to --

A. And take them to Lompoc to practice.

Q. Did you know before going to ranch whether or not your grandchildren had baseball practice or not?

A. No. No, I can’t keep up with everything with my grandchildren, you know.
Q. So you would have to go to the ranch --
A. Right, from work.
Q. One of the problems is that my question has to finish before you start your answer, or we make the court reporter crazy.

A. Sorry.
Q. Okay? So if you can just wait till the question’s done and then you can answer.
Did you know in advance of going to the ranch whether or not the kids had practice?
A. Sometimes.
Q. Sometimes. Okay. And how did you know when they were at the ranch?
A. I knew everything that my grandchildren do.
Q. So somebody told you in advance; is that right?
A. No.
Q. Do they live with you, your grandchildren?
A. Sometime.
Q. Did you know that they were at the ranch because they were living with you at the time they went to the ranch?
A. No, it’s because I do a lot of driving. My daughter can’t do a lot of driving. I do all the driving for her and I drive the children a lot of place.
Q. Okay. She can’t drive because she works?
A. No, because she had injury in the neck.
Q. All right. So you do all the driving to get the kids around?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. All right. Now, on only one occasion did you meet Gavin?

A. Yes.
Q. And you never met his brother Star?
A. Yes, I did. The same day.
Q. The same day. Did you meet their sister Davellin?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you meet their mother Janet?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if she was there?

A. I didn’t know. I didn’t ask.

Q. Did you talk to any of them about why they were there?

A. No.

Q. Was it during the week?

A. Yeah.

Q. All right. So the kids were in school at the time; is that right?

A. I don’t know about them. I know my grandchildren was in school.

Q. Okay. Did you know at the time that you talked to Gavin how long he had been at Neverland?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever talk to Gavin about how long he was going to stay at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Okay. When Gavin talked about a trip to Brazil, did you understand that that was going to be your cousin Michael Jackson sending them to Brazil?

A. I didn’t even question. It didn’t even dawn on me to ask the question how they were going.

Q. Did you ever have a conversation with Michael Jackson about the family?

A. No.

Q. About Gavin and Star --

A. No.

Q. -- and Davellin.

I have no further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

MR. SANGER: We call Christian Robinson, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Come forward, please. When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing. Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

CHRISTIAN ROBINSON

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Christian Robinson. C-h-r-i-s-t-i-a-n, R-o-b-i-n-s-o-n.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Take your time. I'll let you get a drink of water there.

A. Thank you.

Q. And while you're getting it, I'll just tell you we have to tell all the witnesses to please use the microphone on the right side. And then you have to really lean into it to get very close to it; okay. There you go.

A. All right.

Q. Mr. Robinson, how are you employed?

A. I'm self-employed. I develop reality television shows. And work a camera. I do a lot of post-production.

Q. All right. So you said reality shows, work a camera and post-production; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. And do you know Mr. Jackson, who's seated here at counsel table?

A. I do.

Q. Do you know him well?

A. Not extremely well, no.

Q. Have you met him in the course of your work?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Do you know him socially? Do you hang out with him?

A. No.

Q. All right. Now, are you here pursuant to a subpoena?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Let me ask you to explain a little bit about your background. How long have you been working in the film industry?

A. I do a lot of things. I've only been doing reality shows for about a year now. In the past, we published film-related publications, and we sort of run a trade organization in Denver and Salt Lake, so it’s all related. And I’ve always done video work, so....

Q. All right.

A. How long, was that the question?

Q. Well, how long -- I said “film industry,” but, you know, the -- whatever you call it.

A. Television or videography, about eight years.

Q. All right. Good. Now, during that eight-year period of time, you indicated that you also worked a camera. Can you tell us what you mean by that?

A. Operate a camera, a video camera. All kinds.

Q. Is this something that you do professionally?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. So somebody would hire you to be the videographer or the person running the camera to do some sort of filming; is that right?

A. Yes. In the past, that’s correct.

Q. All right. And then you said you’re also involved in post-production. What do you mean by “post-production”?

A. I take a project and shoot it, and then I edit for the network or for the production company who’s presenting the piece.

Q. Okay. Very good. You were not involved in the reality television projects as of 2003; is that right? Is that something that happened after that?

A. I always had the dream of making films. Reality television is sort of like rock bottom. So I’m young, so that’s what I have to do.

Q. But the question is -- you said the last year. So I want to know what you were doing in 2003. By 2003, you hadn’t started the reality television?

A. Well, I was working for Mr. Jackson. That wasn’t exactly reality. That was more of a documentary type of position. I was in charge of like -- not “in charge,” but one of my responsibilities was sometimes booking crews and making sure that we were covering the right steps. Sort of like a producer.

Q. You say you were working for Mr. Jackson. Let’s go back. When is the first time you worked for Mr. Jackson or somebody associated with Mr. Jackson?

A. Wow. That would have been in September of 2001.

Q. Okay. And what project was it that you were working on?

A. It was the Michael Jackson charity single, “What More Can I Give?”

Q. And what was the production “What More Can I Give?”

A. What was the production?

Q. Yes. You said it was a charity single. Can you explain that, please?

A. It was a combination of different artists recording a song that Michael wrote. Really nice song.

And what I would do is -- my background was in radio. At the time I had still done a lot of video work, but mostly my job on that was to ask questions. I would interview all the different artists.

Q. So the artists participated in --

A. In recording --

Q. -- in recording the song?

A. In recording the song.

Q. You’ve got to let me finish first, and I’ll try to let you finish.

A. Gotcha.

Q. Because the court reporter tries to write down what we say here.

So we’ll just take it here so everybody understands. “What More Can I Give?” was a song, that was the title of a song, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And I think you said it was written by Mr. Jackson; is that correct?

A. I believe so.
Q. Okay. And there were a number of recording artists who participated in putting that song together; is that correct?
A. True.
Q. Can you recall some of the artists?
A. Celine Dion, Mariah Carey, Tom Petty, Billy Gilman, The Backstreet Boys. Well, Nick Carter, Nsync. Maya. Luther Vandross. We must have interviewed like 40 people.
Q. That was -- before we get to the interview part, as far as the singing part is concerned, and the performing --
A. Right.
Q. -- did these people actually perform in the song?
A. Correct.
Q. So they’d come to a studio; is that right?
A. We would usually travel to them, but in a studio, yes.

Q. All right. And then they would perform, they’d record whatever they were doing, right?
A. Right.
Q. Did they all record it at the same time or was --
A. No, no. Everybody recorded separately.
Q. All right. Now, you said something about interviewing the people.
A. Right.
Q. Your job was to do the interviews; is that right?
A. My job -- one of my responsibilities was to do the interviews.
Q. And did you, in fact, interview various people?
A. I interviewed all of the people, yes.
Q. So Celine Dion, for instance, you would be asking her questions and she would respond?
A. Right.
Q. And the idea was to use this footage to help put this together for charity; is that right?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; relevancy.
THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, did that project come to a conclusion? Was it finished and marketed?

A. It did come to a conclusion. But not the conclusion that we had hoped.

Q. All right. It got interrupted at some point; is that correct?

A. I believe so. I didn’t deal with the business side of it.

Q. All right. Now, who did you work with on that project?

A. I worked with Marc Schaffel and Hamid Moslehi.

Q. All right. Were there other people on the crew for that?

A. Yes.

Q. About how many people were involved in that project?

A. Let’s see. We had myself and Hamid, and we had two grips who helped us carry things and set up lights, and we had a sound guy, Marc. Marc.

Q. Now, what was Mr. Schaffel’s role in this, as far as you could tell?

A. He was like the per -- he was the person who was orchestrating the whole thing, you know, besides Michael. Michael wasn’t always on scene, so Marc was arranging the artists and the times and the places, and, you know, getting the most important things done, you know.

Q. Now, when you say “Michael,” we have to use last names in court so....

A. Oh. Mr. Jackson, yeah.

Q. Mr. Jackson, or Michael Jackson was the person who was there during some of the creative process; is that correct?

A. Right. Michael would come into the studio occasionally and produce, which is, you know, obviously one of his fortes, so --

Q. So he would, on occasion, be there when the artists were actually recording?

A. Not all the time, but, yes.

Q. Okay. And he’d sit at one those big things that has all those switches on it?

A. Right, it’s called a board.

Q. Okay, the board. And would he interact on an artistic level with people?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, what was Hamid Moslehi’s -- I know I’m mispronouncing that, but Hamid Moslehi’s job, what was that?

A. Hamid was what I would call a director of photography. He took -- he not only was in charge of the main video camera, but he would also do a session of still photographs every day.

Q. All right. Now, after -- after this occurred -- this, you said, was September of 2001, is your best recollection?

A. Well, it -- it began before 9-11 and we didn’t finish until November, so --

Q. All right. Now, after that, did you have occasion to work on any projects that involved Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was the next thing?

A. The next thing? Probably would have been a trip to Gary, Indiana.

Q. When was that?

A. No, it would have been a trip to Las Vegas, and I don’t know when it was.

Q. Okay. Now, were you doing this -- were you working under Marc Schaffel?

A. Yes.

Q. So --

A. Well, I was working with Marc.

Q. With Marc. Okay, sorry. Don’t want to misconstrue the hierarchy here. But you were working with Marc Schaffel on these various projects; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Now, did you have occasion at some point to work on a project involving Debbie Rowe?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was your role in the Debbie Rowe project?

A. Oh, I was prepared to ask her the questions, and I wrote questions, but I did not end up asking the questions, so I ran a camera on the shoot.

Q. Okay. Who asked the questions in that situation?

A. That was Ian Drew.

Q. Okay. And Ian Drew was a reporter of some sort?

A. Yeah, he was a freelance reporter, a tabloid reporter.

Q. Now, you -- actually what you did on that occasion, you were present in the room during the -- during the interview; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you had a camera?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you actually take some of the footage?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall how much footage was actually taken? When you say “footage,” I guess that hearkens back to film. But how long was the video that came out of that?

A. The raw tape was probably between one hour and an hour and a half, I would guess.

Q. Okay. That was the part you did?

A. Well, there was two cameras, but, yes. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, on that occasion, do you know whether or not there was a script? Was there a script?

A. No, sir.

Q. Okay. And you know what a script is; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Were there questions that were written out in advance?

A. Of course.

Q. And you wrote some of those questions; is that correct?

A. Right.

Q. Now, in your experience, you indicated you had experience doing interviews in “What More Can I Give?” and you also were prepared to do an interview here. Have you had occasion to do other interviews?

A. Other interviews?

Q. Yeah. Without going into who or what, but just have you done other interviews for film?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, as an interviewer for something like this, where you’re interviewing Celine Dion for “What More Can I Give?” or you’re interviewing Debbie Rowe, would it be customary for the person asking the questions to have a list of questions to ask?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. You smiled a bit. Would it be unusual for somebody to just walk in there and try to wing it without a list of questions?

A. Yeah, that would not be proper.

Q. Okay. And is it appropriate to have a list of questions that attempt to cover the subject matter, that is, the subject matter of the video? In other words, do you just put random questions together or do you give some thought to it?

A. Before you -- can I answer this?

Q. Yes.

A. Before you do a project, you have to have some sort of vision of what is going to come from that project. So of course you have questions that shape the outcome.

Q. All right. Now, when you watched the Debbie Rowe interview, you were there for it. You were running a camera. Were Miss Rowe’s -- I’m sorry. Let me try that again.

You were there for the interview. Were Miss Rowe’s responses scripted?

A. No.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is, “No.” We’ll take our break.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Go ahead.
MR. SANGER: Thank you, Your Honor.
Q. Okay. Mr. Robinson, we were talking about the Debbie Rowe interview. And by the way, can you tell us what the approximate date of that interview was?
A. I don't know the date.
Q. All right. What year was it; do you recall?
A. It would have been around January of 2003.
Q. All right. You say around January. Could it have been early February?

A. Yes. It probably was early February. But I just know a range.

Q. That's fine.

Do you recall the Bashir television show?

A. Of course. Yes.

Q. All right. And do you recall whether or not you saw it when it first aired in the United States?

A. I did see it when it first aired in the United States, but I had read the entire transcript before it aired here.

Q. All right. And at the time that -- so you read the transcript. And then did that have anything to do with Debbie Rowe?

A. As soon as we, as in Mr. Schaffel and Hamid and the other people that were working around Mr. Jackson at the time, heard about this documentary, we began working on creating other programs which we felt were more truthful.

Q. All right. And so was Debbie Rowe -- I guess what I'm asking is, was the Debbie Rowe interview part of this project that you were working on?

A. Yes.

Q. And did the interview of Debbie Rowe occur around the time that the Bashir television show aired in the United States?

A. Yes. Around the time.

Q. All right. Now, what was Miss Rowe's attitude during the time that this was being taped, to the extent you could observe it?

A. Yes, Miss Rowe was -- she was very eager to do the interview. She was very happy to be doing it, and she was almost like -- well, she was very irate. She was very angry about what she had heard or what she had seen as far as this program. That's why she agreed to do it.

Q. And what angered her? Did she express what angered her about the program?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, where did the filming of Debbie Rowe take place?

A. The filming of Debbie Rowe took place in Marc Schaffel’s living room in Calabasas.

Q. All right. And at the time of the interview, did you have occasion to talk with her in between the actual filming?

A. Yeah.

Q. And was there anything about your discussions with her, your interaction with her during the period of time of the filming, including when the camera was on, that indicated that her production was rehearsed in any way?

A. Absolutely not.

Q. Now, this particular interview was done on rather short notice, I take it; is that correct?

A. I don’t know if it was short notice. I don’t.

Q. All right. Let me put it this way: Were you in the process of trying to put something together for release to television? Let’s talk about that.

A. Oh, yeah, we were working on productions as quickly as we could. I don’t know how much time we had to prepare, though.

Q. Have you had occasion to work on productions like that, when you were trying to get something out for television on a short schedule?

A. Yes.

Q. All right.

A. Right now, actually.

Q. All right.

A. I’ve got to go home.

Q. Except you’ve been up here waiting to testify; is that right?

A. Yeah.

Q. Now, when you have a schedule for television, do you have -- let me withdraw that. You mentioned you did these interviews with the “What More Can I Give?” Did those interviews all take place on a real short schedule?

A. Yes.

Q. All right.

A. Yes.

Q. You were trying to get that project together quickly?

A. I don’t think it was as efficient as it could have been, but, yeah.

Q. Now, with regard to these television shows, was there -- was there a schedule; in other words, “We have to get these interviews done by a certain date”?

A. Marc Schaffel had made business deals for the Debbie Rowe interview to get them on the air and in publications immediately, so, yes, we were on a very tight deadline once everything was done businesswise.

Q. Now, when you’re doing -- shooting on a short schedule, do you observe bankers’ hours, you know, 9:00 to 5:00 kind of hours?

A. No.

Q. Is it typical, in your experience, to work late into the night?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, after you did the Debbie Rowe interview, did you have occasion to be involved in interviewing the Arvizo family?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was your general role in that project?

A. My general role. Well, I was told the day of that we were doing this interview, so I wrote questions, submitted them to Marc Schaffel. And about -- I don’t know, you know, later in the day, I went -- later that night I went to the Arvizo -- to Hamid Moslehi’s home and did the interview, conducted the interview.

Q. So your role was not to run a camera on that occasion?

A. I may have actually set up a B camera. But it wouldn’t have been manned. It would have been like a wide shot.

Q. And a B camera --

A. Is a secondary camera.

Q. I just felt we had to ask that question. So you have the main camera and the main camera operator?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And then you might have a second camera just running to pick things up?

A. Well, you always need a close or a medium and wide so that they can cut. You know, you can't show the entire interview, so you have to be able to cut. And you can't cut from the same frame to the same sized frame and make it look natural.

Q. And sometimes you'll do other shots, like two shots; is that right?

A. Exactly.

Q. Where you'll go and -- you'll go backwards and film, for instance, the interviewer.

A. In this case, I wasn't being filmed.

Q. All right. So you were not being filmed. So the B camera in this case -- just in case anybody's up on this, the B camera in this case was a stationary camera that was just doing the wide shot?

A. Yes.

Q. So there was no two shots of the interviewer?

A. No.

Q. All right. Now, your recollection is you were called the day of this to participate?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And when you wrote out the questions, did you write out answers?

A. No.

Q. Was there ever a script for the Arvizos to follow?

A. Absolutely not.

Q. Did you receive instructions on specifically what your questions should be?

A. I submitted a list, and some of them were crossed off.

Q. All right.

A. So, yes.

Q. So what -- your first list, then, you just wrote from what you knew by then about the situation; is that right?

A. Exactly.

Q. And then you submitted that to Mr. Schaffel?

A. Correct.
Q. And somehow by the time you got ready to ask the questions, some things were crossed off; is that right?
A. That is correct.
Q. All right. Okay. Now, you were told to report, as it were, you were asked to go to Mr. Moslehi’s home, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Had you been there before?
A. Yes.
Q. And did he have a professional set-up for filming an interview?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. He had a backdrop? A screen backdrop, right?

A. He had a backdrop. I mean, it wasn’t the best of locations to do this, but, you know.
Q. Did you -- were you aware of the deadline that you were on to submit this film to the television producer?
A. I know there was a deadline. I don’t know what that deadline was. I only knew it was urgent.
Q. So you were trying to get it done that evening; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. When did you get to Mr. Moslehi’s house?
A. Later in the evening. Probably 10:30 or 10:00. Maybe even later.
Q. And when you arrived, who was there?
A. Oh. I know Hamid and the crew was there, because I went in and helped them set up. So that would be Hamid, Mark, a guy named Ray, and one other crew member. I don’t remember his name.
Q. All right. So you had the -- when you say “Mark,” that’s Marc Schaffel?
A. No, Marc wasn’t there.
Mark is an audio guy, I’m sorry.
Q. I’m sorry, that’s right. All right.
So Mark is an audio guy. We don’t know his last name.
A. No.

Q. All right. In any event, let’s just do it this way: You had the crew, the audio guy and a couple of other people assisting?

A. Right. And I -- you know, you think about this series of events, and I don’t know if the family was there yet. I don’t think they were.

Q. Okay. That’s what I was going to ask you next. But you had Hamid Moslehi, who was basically the director of photography for this shoot; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And some staff, and then yourself, right?

A. Right.

Q. All right. Now, you just told us you’re not sure when the family got there. You thought they weren’t there yet. But as you sit there, do you have a better recollection?

A. All I know is that at one point there was more people there. There was also the family and another guy who was working with Marc, Vinnie Amen, and there was a man that I was told was a private investigator there.

Q. All right. Do you remember that person’s name?

A. No. I -- I know his name now, but I didn’t know who he was at the time.

Q. You didn’t know him. And did you even know he was a private investigator at the time?

A. I know I knew that by the end of the night. I don’t know at what point I asked a question and -- you know, because we weren’t talking a lot, you know. I was doing my job, so --

Q. Let me ask about the private investigator. Did -- did he do anything to interfere with the production?

A. No, he just -- he was an onlooker.

Q. Okay. Did he do anything to suggest questions or answers or --

A. No.

Q. -- anything whatsoever?

A. No. No intervention.

Q. Now, you mentioned Vinnie Amen. You said he worked for Marc Schaffel; is that correct?

A. Yeah.

Q. And was he there during the entire shooting?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he do anything to interfere with the production?

A. No.

Q. Did he suggest questions, change questions, do anything with regard to questions?

A. No.

Q. All right. Did he do anything to suggest answers or anything of that sort?

A. No.

Q. All right. Now, you said the family was there. Do you recall if they all arrived at the same time?

A. No, I don’t recall.

Q. When you say “the family,” can you tell us who they were?

A. They were Janet, Gavin, Star and Davellin. Davellin.

Q. Arvizo?

A. Arvizo, yes.

Q. And the mother and the three children; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever had occasion to see the raw footage that was shot that night?

A. No.

Q. Was it your intention to produce from this shooting a three-hour interview that would be shown in its entirety?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: It would not be shown in its entirety, no.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: What is your understanding of what you were doing? In other words, what the end result would be. You’re shooting raw footage. What do you expect is going to happen to it after that?

A. Well, first of all, obviously it has a television value. Anything we want to interject -- any Michael program that we would want to use to rebut the Martin Bashir documentary, that would obviously be a huge building block and foundation for that production.

Q. So I guess what I'm asking is more on a technical level. Did you expect somebody would edit and cut and take parts out of this and use it?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Do you know if it ever aired?

A. No, I don't think Hamid ever gave it to Marc, so, no.

Q. Okay. So nobody had a chance, then, to cut it or select scenes from it or questions from it to play on television, as far as you know?

A. No. Nobody ever had the footage.

Q. All right. When you are doing an interview of this sort, do you simply go through in a linear fashion and ask questions and stop, or do you sometimes reask the same questions?

A. Some -- especially when you're dealing with four people, sometimes I'll ask the same question four times. Or if I get an answer that is like cold, "yes" or "no," or, "Yeah, he's a really good guy," then I'm going to say, "Would you restate the question and your answer?" You know, "If you're trying to tell me that Michael is a really nice guy, say, you know, 'Michael is a really nice guy; for example...."

So, yeah, you definitely help them in the ways that -- they're not going to hear my voice in the television production, so they need to restate my question in their answer.

Q. So in other words, you're trying to get answers in the tape that would be usable to be cut into a television program; is that correct? On this particular occasion that's what you were trying to do?

A. Yeah, so that anybody could do, like, a voiceover or even another interviewer could be heard asking the questions. It's kind of a trick of the trade, I guess.

Q. In other words, you didn’t expect that your actual voice would be used on television; is that right?
A. Right. Right.
Q. And in fact, you were not miked in a way that your voice was being recorded appropriately?
A. Yeah, I wouldn’t have been miked.
Q. All right. Now, in the course of this interview -- and I’m going to go back to the set-up here in a second, but let me ask you a general question.
In the course of this interview, were any of the answers scripted?

A. No.
Q. Were any of the answers rehearsed?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll object. Foundation.
MR. SANGER: Let’s put it this way. Fair enough. Let me withdraw it.
Q. To your knowledge -- you’re sitting there. You’re doing the interview. Did you have any of the answers in advance?
A. Of course not.
Q. All right. Did it appear to you to be a spontaneous interview as far as the answers to your questions?
A. Oh, I think they were nervous. Can I --
Q. But --
A. It was spontaneous, yes. I would ask questions and they would give answers.
Q. All right. Now, let’s go back to the set-up for this for a second.
You say the family got there. Do you remember what the kids did before the filming actually took place?
A. Yeah. I remember meeting the kids. I shook their hands. We were introduced. And I wanted to make them feel comfortable with me, because I was going to be asking them sometimes questions that might not be, you know, comfortable to ask to a stranger.

So they were playing video games, and they showed me a production that Michael funded at the ranch called “Neverland T.V.,” and it was like a kids’ show.

Q. And did that star Star?

A. Yes, Star was the star. Star was really adamant he was going to be a comedian.

Q. All right. And so you talked with them. They showed you that video there?

A. Right. And, you know, they were just kind of lounging. You know, I would try to be nice to them and stuff, but they were -- they were kind of in their own world, in a way. They didn’t --

Q. Did they feel -- I’m sorry. Let me withdraw that.

Did they appear to be comfortable there in Mr. Moslehi’s house?

A. You would have thought it was their house.

Q. All right. Now, what about Janet Arvizo? Do you remember her demeanor?

A. Yeah, I probably talked with Janet. For some reason, it took a long time to get going, so I had about probably a half-an-hour conversation with Janet before the interview.

Q. All right. And what was she doing before the interview actually started, besides talking with you?

A. Talking with me, talking with Hamid. She was on her cell phone a lot. You know, eating food. Just being comfortable.

Q. Did she appear to be comfortable in Mr. Moslehi’s house?

A. Yes.

Q. You say “eating food.” How did she get food?

A. Oh, you know, there was probably drinks and stuff out. But I know that -- you know, we were in the kitchen, and she was just opening the fridge, and -- you know, it was a very comfortable setting. It wasn’t like a normal T.V. production. It wasn’t huge lights and 50 crew members. It was pretty intimate.

Q. She felt comfortable just going in his refrigerator and getting --

A. Yeah, she -- yeah.
Q. All right. Now, Janet Arvizo appeared to have makeup on in this film; is that correct?
A. I don't know.
Q. Okay. Did you have anybody there doing makeup?
A. No. No.
Q. Did you have anybody there to do her hair?
A. No.
Q. And when she arrived, did she look pretty much the way she looked when she was on the screen?
A. I think so, yes.

Q. So she didn't get there and then somebody made her up for the show?
A. Not -- not that I remember, no.
Q. Okay. Now, when you were talking with her before the shooting started, do you recall what she was saying?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection to any answer other than "yes" or "no."
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Start with that.
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. What was she saying?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; hearsay.
MR. SANGER: Both for impeachment and state of mind, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: She was saying a lot. She talked about Michael being a great father figure to the family. She talked about how horrible it was, how he was portrayed in the video.

She was very eager to do the interview. She wanted to make the situation right for Michael, because she felt like what had happened on television was, you know, like a really bad thing.

She had so much respect.

And -- you know, she -- and she's a very religious woman. She kept talking about God and Jesus, and, you know, how lucky that they were to have, you know, Jesus help them and brought Michael into their lives, and that he was a healer.

Like, she was saying things that I thought were a little nutty. You know, I -- I thought she was a warm person, but at the same time, I didn't want -- you know, she was -- she was warm, but I didn't feel --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Object to the narrative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Do you recall anything else that she talked about during the time she was talking to you?

Let me ask, did she talk about her ex-husband at all?

A. Oh, yeah, a lot.

Q. Could you explain what she talked about in that regard?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Hearsay; irrelevant.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Let me put it this way.

Did she have a name for her ex-husband?

A. Yes.

Q. What did she refer to him as?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Hearsay; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: The children's biological father.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Now, without going into detail as to what she said to you any further about the ex-husband or the biological father, what she was telling you in this half-hour conversation, was that consistent with what she said when the cameras were rolling?

A. Yes.

Q. And when she was talking to you, did she appear to be spontaneous? In other words --

A. Before or after?

Q. Well, let's take the half-hour conversation.

Was she just talking to you?

A. Oh, yeah. Yeah.

Q. And were you asking her questions to elicit all this that she was talking about?

A. No, she was -- I mean, I asked her some questions. I wanted her to feel comfortable with me, but that was like, you know, zero to -- that was in no time. She was talking a lot. And I was probably asking her questions to see -- you know, because I gave her the questions that -- I told her a lot of the questions that I was going to ask her, you know.

Q. When you say you gave her the questions, did you give a written list?

A. No, no, no. I did not give her the questions, but I let her read my questions, and I went over, you know, "If you don't feel comfortable with anything, that's fine, I don't have to ask it." You know, that kind of stuff.

Q. All right. And is that an unusual procedure when you're doing an interview with somebody, to go over the questions in advance?

A. If they've done a lot of interviews, then you would not want to give them -- you would not want to show them the question, because they're used to answering questions.

But I was pretty sure that this was the family's first time doing a televised interview, so I -- yeah, I went over certain kinds of things with all the kids to make them feel more comfortable. I didn't tell them what to say. I just told them, you know, "I just want you to tell the truth." I said that a lot. But I definitely, you know, made them feel as comfortable as possible.

Q. Now, do you recall Janet Arvizo talking to anybody about being compensated for doing the video?

A. I don't recall her talking to anybody about being compensated, but Hamid told me that she wanted to be compensated.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Hearsay; move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: So she had no discussion in your presence about being compensated; is that right?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. All right. Was there any discussion with Janet Arvizo about model releases?

A. Yes, that was the big issue of the night.

Q. Now, are model releases an unusual procedure in your profession?

A. Are they unusual?

Q. Yeah. Is it unusual --

A. No.

Q. -- to get somebody to sign a model release?

A. No, it's required.

Q. So before you do an interview or you're going to put somebody on tape to send to television, you have them do a model release; is that right?

A. Yeah, especially when you're dealing with kids. That's the -- yeah.

Q. Was there anything unusual, as far as you were concerned, about the model release in this particular case?

A. Yes. She wasn't signing the model releases and she was yet so eager to do this interview. And so I just -- I thought it was money, and I -- that was purely my thought, but -- you know, I thought she wanted money.

Q. All right. At some point, did she -- did she, meaning Janet Arvizo, talk with somebody on the telephone about the model releases?

A. Yes, she was talking about the model releases, but I don't know what else -- you know, she was answering "yes," "no."

Q. So during the time you were trying to get a model release signed, she was on the phone?

A. Right. Right.

Q. Was it more than once?

A. Yeah, it was ongoing. Like I was freaking out, because, you know, I was calling Mr. Schaffel and saying, "We're not going to be able to do this. She won't sign the model releases," because I was told not to do it without signed releases.

Q. Did she eventually agree to sign the model release?

A. I believe she signed, but I believe it was after the interview.

Q. All right. So at some point, the production went ahead?

A. Yes.

Q. And were you in charge of actually getting the model release in your hand, or was that somebody else?

A. No, I needed to see them signed. I know Vinnie was supposed to take the model releases up to Mr. Schaffel at the end of the night. It wasn't my responsibility.

Q. So your understanding is that they were signed sometime before the night was over; is that right?

A. No. I know they were signed, yes.

Q. Did anybody -- did you see anybody coerce Miss Arvizo into signing the model releases?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: No, I didn't see anybody coercing her.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And when she went to begin the interview, did it appear to you -- let's put it this way. Was there anything that you saw that indicated that she was not absolutely willing to give this interview? Was there anything that you saw that indicated to you that she was unwilling to give this interview?

A. No. Except for the model releases.

Q. All right. And I guess what I'm saying is, when it started --

A. No, she wanted to do the interview. She was adamant about wanting to do the interview. But that's why I was like in a very strange place, because, "If you're so eager to do this interview, then why won't you just sign the model release?" Like, I didn't know how to treat the situation.

Q. All right. Now, you finished that project that night?

A. Correct.

Q. And that was the end of your involvement in that part of it, is that correct; in other words, the filming of the Arvizos?

A. Yes.

Q. The filming was over. Okay.
And by the time -- did it appear to you that anybody had, in your presence, done anything to intimidate Mrs. Arvizo or the children?
A. Absolutely not.
Q. By the time you left that night, or they left, whoever left first, by the time you parted company with the Arvizos, did you ever see them again in person?
A. I don’t think I did.
Q. That was -- your contact with the Arvizos was that night; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. During the entire course of that time that you had contact with the Arvizos, did any of them indicate to you in any way that they were being held against their will?
A. Not at all.
Q. Did any of them indicate that they were being extorted?
A. That they were being extorted?
Q. Extorted.
A. No.
Q. All right. Did any of them indicate in any way that they had been mistreated by Michael Jackson in any way?

A. No, they indicated -- they indicated the opposite.
Q. And that was true of the statements off camera as well as on camera; is that right?
A. Right.
Q. Did they indicate in any way that they had been mistreated by anybody who was working for Mr. Jackson?
A. No.
Q. Was -- did there appear to be any animosity or tension or anything inappropriate in the relationship between Mr. Amen and any members of this family?
A. No.
Q. Did the private investigator appear in any way to do anything or exhibit any behavior that indicated there was anything inappropriate going on there?

A. No.

Q. Now, you did mention Gary, Indiana. Do you recall participating in another production -- or not a -- a production of another piece?

A. A lot of pieces, yeah.

Q. Was the Gary, Indiana, ultimately televised as “Michael Jackson’s Home Movies,” or was that part of what you did for that?

A. You know, that may have been part of the “Michael Jackson Home Movies,” but I -- I always viewed my purpose filming for Michael as more of an archival documentary. I don’t -- it will be on television some day. And, you know, Michael has seen a lot of the footage, but I don’t know how much of that has aired.

MR. SANGER: Okay. All right. I have no further questions. Thank you.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Robinson.

A. Good morning.

Q. Now, you’ve testified that you are a videographer?

A. Among other things, yes, sir.

Q. Among other things. And would it be fair to say that videography was the primary job that you did when you were working in -- on behalf of Michael Jackson?

A. No, I wouldn’t say it was primary.

Q. Okay. Give me a description of the types of tasks that you would undertake on behalf of Mr. Jackson.

A. Okay. It’s a lot. I started out on “What More Can I Give?” as mostly an interviewer who ran a

B camera, a secondary camera. It transitioned to the point where I would produce events. Like Michael had a birthday, so I booked crews, and I would locate -- you know, I would give crews positions and give them instruction on what we’re going to cover. I would take the footage from, like, Gary Indiana, for example, and edit like a ten-minute selects reel with music for Michael to watch, you know, so he could enjoy it. And also if we had a media person that was interested in the footage, we would -- we could show them that at some point. So it was -- it was pretty encompassing.

Q. You also said that you would sometimes prepare videos for archival purposes.

A. Yeah. I didn’t feel like what I was shooting was for any specific television show most of the time.

Q. Would you sometimes prepare videos just for Mr. Jackson’s personal use?

A. Yes. I prepared a few, yes.

Q. And would those mostly comprise videos of fans praising Mr. Jackson, that type of thing?

A. No. I mean, the fans are obviously praising Jackson, but it’s also, you know, you establish with the airport in Gary, you know, and then you just show the madness of the trip. And, you know, if Michael’s being awarded something, then you show that. You know, it’s just like a mini documentary about the event.

Q. But haven’t you stated before that Michael Jackson particularly enjoyed videos of his fans when they were praising him, King of Pop, King of the World?

A. He was the king of -- yeah. Absolutely.

Q. You used those words, “King of Pop,” “King of the World”?

A. “King of Pop,” “King of the World.” The people loved -- they loved to let him know how they felt.

Q. And Mr. Jackson liked to see those videos?

A. Absolutely.

Q. All right. Now, would it be fair to say that in your work for Mr. Jackson, some of this video work that you would do would be for public relations purposes?

A. Yeah, I’m not going to obviously film somebody saying, “Michael is a jerk.” I’m like,

"Oh, yeah, that's going to make the video."
Q. So you were primarily involved in public relations aspects of --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- Michael Jackson and his image, making his image appealing to the public?
A. Sure. You could say that that was part of my job description.

Q. Okay. Because you were working for Michael Jackson?
A. Exactly. I was working for an artist. I'm not going to -- I'm going to make him look as good as possible.
Q. All right. And you've had a business relationship with him?
A. Correct.
Q. How many times would you say you have personally talked business with Michael Jackson, if you can approximate?
A. You know, maybe -- maybe 100. You know, and if there's an eight-day trip, then a couple times a day, so that's how I am coming up with that number.
Q. All right. And your relationship with him was strictly business?
A. Well, I mean, I considered him a nice guy. We would talk a little bit. He was interested in what the camera was. And, you know, he was always very kind to me.
Q. And you're aware that Mr. Jackson has been in the entertainment industry for virtually his entire life?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Over 40 years?
A. 40, wow, that's -- that's a long time.
Q. It is.
So would you agree that Mr. Jackson is fairly accomplished in the area of public relations?

A. No.
Q. You wouldn't agree with that?
A. No. He's -- he's a public relations nightmare in a lot of ways, I think.
Q. Well, how did he become the king of pop without having some acumen in public relations?

A. Because he’s a genius musically, man. You know, that’s I believe how he became so famous. I think the PR thing is a whole different story.

Q. Well, as far as his work in the public relations part of his career --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- this -- let’s talk a little bit about the “Home Movies” thing.

A. Okay.

Q. Was that a public relations film?

A. Well, I believe they paid, like, eight million dollars for it, so I wouldn’t call it a public relations film.

Q. But it was designed to promote Michael Jackson’s career in some fashion?

A. Everything an artist does, yeah, I believe is.

Q. Do you think everything Michael Jackson does is somehow related to promoting his career?

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor. That’s vague. Beyond the -- no foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained as vague.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, let’s talk about the -- you’ve heard some of the stories about Mr. Jackson with sleeping in a hyperbaric chamber, that type of thing?

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor. Beyond the scope of direct and no foundation and calls for hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Have you heard of any PR stunts that Mr. Jackson has pulled on his behalf that are somewhat odd or unusual that get a lot of attention?

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor. Argumentative; no foundation; assumes facts not in evidence; and hearsay from tabloids.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It’s a “yes” or “no” question.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.

Q. Now, you’ve been personally involved on a number of projects with Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes, sir.
Q. The “What More Can I Give?” shoot, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. “Home Movies”?
A. Yes.
Q. That was -- part of that, I believe you said, was shot in Gary, Indiana?

A. You know, I believe they used some of that footage. I never saw the finished product.
Q. Did you also involve yourself in a shooting of a party that involved an artist by the name of Britto at Neverland?
A. Oh, yes. Yes.
Q. So you shot the film for that?
A. Yes.
Q. When was the “Home Movies” shot?
A. The “Home Movies” --
MR. SANGER: I’m going to object. I believe there’s a lack of foundation on that.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, I can maybe clean that up a little bit.
Q. When did you do the shoot that you’ve talked about in Gary, Indiana, that was used in “Home Movies”?
MR. SANGER: I’m going to object to that. There’s no foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Gary, Indiana. That would have been -- it was getting warm. I would say it was -- this is an estimation. I could be way off here. I think it was in the spring of 2003.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’m sorry?
A. I think it was in the spring of 2003.

Q. Okay. And when was the Britto party filmed?
A. Neverland party. I don’t know. I really don’t know the dates of the Neverland party.
Q. Could it have been in the fall of 2003?
A. Yes, likely.
Q. Does that ring a bell?
A. I mean, you guys know, you know. And I’m horrible with dates, but -- yeah.

Q. It was several months after the shooting of the Arvizos; is that accurate?

A. It was after the shooting of the Arvizos?

Q. Yes.

A. Okay.

Q. Well, do you know?

A. I don’t know. I don’t know. That was -- that was a stressful trip to me, and I think my mind flushed it away.

Q. So the -- but both of those projects were Neverland Valley Entertainment projects, correct?

A. Neverland Valley Entertainment, yes.

Q. They both involved Marc Schaffel?

A. Yes.

Q. Michael Jackson was employing Marc Schaffel for each of those projects, to help produce them?

A. Yes. You know, I don’t think Michael Jackson produced -- actually, I don’t think Michael -- I think the party was Marc’s idea. I don’t think that was something that Michael initiated. I think that was a Marc thing.

Q. And that was a promotional party, thousand-dollar-a-plate dinner type of a thing, right?

A. It was weird, yeah.

Q. Why do you say it was weird?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Your Honor, this is beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Now, did you get to know an individual named Brett Ratner during any of these shoots?

A. Yes.

Q. Which shoot was that?

A. That would have been the “Home Movies” shoot, and kind of -- there’s another shoot that Hamid had, you know, the second camera show, the FOX “The Interview You Weren’t Meant To See.” He may have had something to do with getting some footage for that as well, but I know those were close together, so --

Q. So did Mr. Ratner work with Mr. Schaffel in those two productions?

A. Did Mr. Ratner work with Marc?
Q. Yes.
MR. SANGER: I’m going to object. Lack of foundation. And also beyond the scope of direct, and relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I believe that Brett Ratner was paid by FOX.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. And --
A. That’s my --
Q. Do you know that?
A. That’s what I have assumed the entire time.
Q. Weren’t these productions produced, packaged, and then sold to FOX?
MR. SANGER: Objection; lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. How did you meet Mr. Marc Schaffel?
A. The first time I came to L.A., I met Mr. Schaffel on a pilot for a comedic sitcom that was produced by Joseph Medawar.
Q. You didn’t meet Mr. Schaffel at an Indy film festival?
A. No.
Q. And what year was it that you met Mr. Schaffel?
A. Hmm. When I first met Mr. Schaffel, it would have been sometime early 2001 or in 2000.
Q. Did you form a business relationship with Mr. Schaffel after that time?
A. I was back and forth from Utah a lot, so, yeah, I mean, it started then, you know, that I realized that, you know, he was a very smart person, and I would like to work with him, sure.

Q. Okay. And Fred Schaffel headed up Neverland Valley Entertainment, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And that was an enterprise that was formed with Mr. Jackson?
MR. SANGER: Objection; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Do you know if that was an enterprise that was formed with Mr. Jackson?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Lack of foundation beyond a “yes” or “no.”

THE COURT: You may answer “yes” or “no.”

THE WITNESS: Please repeat the question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Do you know if Neverland Valley Entertainment was an enterprise formed with Mr. Jackson -- by Mr. Schaffel with Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And was Neverland Valley Entertainment an enterprise that was formed by Mr. Schaffel with Mr. Jackson?

MR. SANGER: Objection; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: How do you know that this enterprise was formed with these two individuals?

A. How do I know?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, I never saw any paperwork.

Q. But did you see them work together in enterprises that involved Neverland Valley Entertainment?

MR. SANGER: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: How do you know that? Why do you say that you know that Neverland Valley Entertainment involved Mr. Jackson and Mr. Schaffel?

MR. SANGER: Well, I’m going to -- I’m going to object that that’s what he said. That was not the question, so misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Go ahead.

A. I assumed that because of “What More Can I Give?” And then everything I did with Marc was under the same company, so, yes.

Q. Marc Schaffel --

MR. SANGER: Excuse me, I’m going to then move to strike the answer as being without an adequate foundation and the answer to the prior questions on that subject.

THE COURT: I'll strike the answers that he gave relating to that relationship as a company.
Go ahead. Next question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Neverland Valley Entertainment -- everything that Neverland Valley Entertainment did involved Mr. Jackson in some fashion, as far as you know, true?
MR. SANGER: Objection; lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Michael Jackson and Marc Schaffel were friends, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And Mr. Schaffel admired Mr. Jackson?
A. A great deal.
Q. He respected him?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever spend the night at -- well, let me back up.
How many times did you work for Marc Schaffel?
A. How many times did I work for Marc Schaffel?
Q. Yeah.
A. Couldn't put a number on it. A lot of days.
Q. On how many different projects did you work for Marc Schaffel on behalf of Neverland Valley Entertainment?
A. How many different jobs or how many different days?
Q. Let's start with jobs.
A. Probably 10 or 12. Maybe 15.
Q. And -- go ahead.

A. A lot of them were more than one day, so --
Q. And how many different days, approximately?
A. Probably 140 days of work. Maybe between 100 and 140. I'm not positive.
Q. And --
A. Maybe less, actually. Maybe like 70, even.
Q. Did Mr. Schaffel see working with Mr. Jackson as a significant career opportunity?
MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. Lack of foundation; calls for speculation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you ever discuss with Mr. Schaffel his work with Michael Jackson?

A. While I was -- Marc didn’t --

MR. SANGER: It’s -- excuse me, Your Honor. I believe that would be a “yes” or “no.” Otherwise, I object as calls for hearsay.

THE COURT: All right. I’ll sustain the objection.

You can read back the question.

It’s a question that only requires you to answer “yes” or “no.”

THE WITNESS: It only requires me to answer “yes” or “no”?

THE COURT: Yeah. So wait. I’ll let you have the question back.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Thank you.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: Did I ever discuss with Schaffel his work with Jackson. I tried.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. And you, I believe, have testified that you engaged in work for Mr. Jackson that involved Mr. Schaffel?

A. Yes.

Q. On numerous occasions?

A. Yes.

Q. And you would agree that Marc Schaffel would never do anything to hurt Michael Jackson, would you not?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for speculation; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Based on everything you’ve heard and seen.

THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: Sustained. I can answer?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: No.

Q. Have you ever seen Marc Schaffel do anything to hurt Michael Jackson --

A. No.

Q. -- intentionally?

A. No.

Q. When you’ve worked with Schaffel, have you stayed at his house at times?

A. Yes.

Q. And when you worked for Mr. Schaffel on behalf of Neverland Valley Entertainment, were you paid by Neverland Valley Entertainment?

A. Most of the time. Once in a while I would get a check from Michael’s office, I believe.

Q. And do you consider yourself a friend of Marc Schaffel?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. A close friend?

A. No, no, not close, but, you know, he’s a good guy.

Q. When was the last time you talked to him?

A. I probably talk to him once a week. If -- sometimes a month will go by, especially lately. I’ve been very busy, so I don’t see him much.

Q. Do you respect Marc Schaffel?

A. In a few ways I respect Marc Schaffel a lot. In a few ways I would say that he’s not the kind of person that -- in a few ways I respect him a lot, like as a business mentor. He was very good to me, you know. I know his family, you know. But in a few career decisions that he made in the past, I wouldn’t model my career after.

Q. Such as his previous --

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I haven’t finished the question.

MR. SANGER: But I’d like to be heard, then.

THE COURT: Go ahead. Ask your question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Such as his previous experiences in the entertainment industry?

A. Such as his previous experiences in the entertainment industry.

Q. All right.

A. Yeah.

Q. Now, does -- do you know if Mr. Schaffel has connections in Brazil?

MR. SANGER: Objection.

THE WITNESS: Connections?

MR. SANGER: Beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Let’s talk a little bit about the Bashir film.

A. Okay.

Q. That film was indeed a public relations nightmare for Mr. Jackson, true?

A. Yes.

Q. And you saw the appearance of Gavin Arvizo in that film as a serious liability for Michael Jackson, correct?

MR. SANGER: Objection; vague.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. And that one of the problems in that film was that Michael Jackson was recorded holding hands, cuddling with Gavin Arvizo on a sofa, and talking about sleeping -- Gavin Arvizo was talking about sleeping in Michael Jackson’s bed?

A. There were --

MR. SANGER: Object. One second, please. Objection. That’s compound and it misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: Compound. Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: One of the problems in that film was that Gavin Arvizo was on a sofa with Michael Jackson being physically affectionate with him, true?

A. One of the problems, yes.

Q. Yes. And another problem was that Gavin talked about sleeping in Michael Jackson’s bed?

A. Did he? I think he did. Yes. If he did, then, yes, absolutely.

Q. All right. And later in that video, Mr. Jackson admitted that he slept with a number of small boys, or small children?

A. Okay.

Q. That was part of the --

MR. SANGER: I’m going to move to strike the answer as without foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You’ve seen the video, right?

A. I’ve seen it once and I read it once, but that was two years ago, so I can’t -- I don’t know the exact language in the film.

Q. Well, you were -- you saw yourself as an individual that was attempting to address the public relations disaster or nightmare of the Martin Bashir footage, correct?

I mean, isn’t that what you were trying to do in the month of February with Marc Schaffel?

A. That -- was I trying to address the public relations nightmare? Yes.

Q. And this film footage that you were putting together with people like Debbie Rowe and the Arvizos was designed to help rebut the Martin Bashir?

A. Yeah, in part. Beyond financial, probably.

Q. And there was a financial component to this --

A. I’m sure.

Q. -- rebuttal film, correct?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Because it was designed as a money-making enterprise, true?

A. Yes. Not designed as a money-making -- I think it was -- I think it had two purposes, and they were equal.

Q. Okay. And the two purposes were --

A. To --

Q. -- to help Michael Jackson --

MR. SANGER: Objection. The witness was trying to answer.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I hadn’t finished my question.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And the two purposes were to help Michael Jackson with his public relations nightmare and make some money doing it. Those are the two purposes?

A. I think the PR thing was more important, now that I -- now that you say it that way.

Q. Okay.

A. But really the first thing we did was “The Interview You Weren’t Meant To See,” which showed how poorly Michael was treated in the first.

Q. Okay. So one of the things that you mentioned is very early on, you read a complete script of the Martin Bashir video?

A. I don’t know if it was complete. I found it online. It was a transcript, supposedly.

Q. Okay. And -- but that was before you even saw the Martin Bashir video?

A. Yes.

Q. And was that before -- between -- let me strike that.

Was that after it had been aired in England?

A. Yes.

Q. And you worked with Debbie Rowe on the filming with Debbie Rowe?

A. Correct.

Q. Videography; is that a fair way to describe your job at that particular time?

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object. That’s ambiguous.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Like we’ve already talked about, I don’t classify my work as one thing. So that is part of what I do is videography, yes.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: But you weren’t the interviewer in that, right?

A. I was prepared to do the interview, but I did not do the interview.

Q. So you helped out with the cameras?

A. Right.

Q. Lighting?

A. I helped set up, get it done.

Q. And there were questions prepared for that interview?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And you don’t know for a fact whether or not Debbie Rowe was coached or screened beforehand concerning those questions?

A. She wasn’t coached or screened at Marc Schaffel’s house, if she was.

Q. Okay. But you don’t know, other than what happened at Marc Schaffel’s house?
A. Right.
Q. And how did it come about that Marc Schaffel contacted you to help with that?
A. If he had a video project and he needed to get it done, he would call me to help pull all the things together.
Q. You were in California at the time?
A. I may have been in Salt Lake at the time. I have a business in Salt Lake that I would travel back and forth whenever I had work here.
Q. Was there any discussion at the time about how you would be paid?
A. No. I always -- Marc always paid my invoices.
Q. Okay. Now, at this time, there was also -- let me strike that.
After the -- the Debbie Rowe interview was shot after the Martin Bashir had aired in the United States, true?
A. I don’t know.
Q. Okay. In any event, after the Bashir film aired in the United States, you were aware that it would be very valuable to get the Arvizos on videotape?
A. Yeah, I think we knew that that was a possibility.

Q. “We” being you and Marc and who else?
A. Anybody who, you know, has a logical brain, you know. You know, this kid that’s causing all this news, he’s worth money. And I don’t think that was our primary motivation. But if you can fix a bad problem and make money doing it, wow, you just -- you know, you just killed two birds with one stone.
Q. But certainly you knew that was going to be worth money? That’s really my question.
A. Sure. Of course.
Q. And you spent some time over at Mr.

Schaffel's house during that time period in February of 2003?

A. Yeah, we probably worked a lot.

Q. Were you spending the night over there at that time?

A. We had a whole camp set up there. A lot of people were spending the night up there.

Q. So you were one of them?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see the comings and goings of various people that were involved in this enterprise?

A. Like Stuart and Vinnie and Frank, yeah.

Q. Okay. And Stuart Backerman, that was -- he was Michael's PR man?

A. That's correct.

Q. Vinnie, he's a close personal friend of Frank's?

A. He's a friend of mine, yeah.

Q. Okay.

A. He's a good guy.

Q. Friend of yours as well.

And Frank, you're talking about Frank Cascio, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Frank Cascio's kind of like a brother to Michael Jackson; is that fair to say?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Objection.

THE WITNESS: I didn't see them together that much.

MR. SANGER: I'll withdraw it.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: I was going to say no foundation, but I think that's --

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You've seen Michael and Frank together?

A. I have.

Q. And in the past, you have described Michael and Frank as best friends, true?

A. That's how Frank --

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. I'm going to object that that calls for hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: In the past, you have described Michael and Frank Cascio as sort of like brothers?

MR. SANGER: Objection; calls for hearsay.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: True?
MR. SANGER: No foundation.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Offered as impeachment.
THE COURT: Yeah, just a moment. I need to check something here.
All right. I'm going to overrule the objection.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Didn't you say that in the grand jury when you testified?
A. Yes, that's how Frank would have described -- I would ask, probably, and that's --
Q. Well, that was your opinion when you described it, wasn't it?
A. Okay. Yes. If that's -- if those are my words. I don't have a transcript in front of me, so --
Q. Okay.
A. You can tell me. I'm not --
Q. Did you know a guy by the name of Dieter Weizner?
A. I know Dieter.
Q. How many times have you met Dieter?
A. Maybe 20. Maybe 15.
Q. And Dieter is an individual who's involved in business with Michael Jackson, correct?

A. Yes. Or he was.
Q. All right. And he was at that time?
A. Yes.
Q. Hamid Moslehi, he was Michael Jackson's personal videographer?
A. Yes. And photographer.
Q. I'm sorry?
A. And photograph.
Q. Director of photography?
A. Yeah, that's a good word for it.
Q. Okay. And the effort at this camp at Marc Schaffel's house was directed at helping Michael Jackson; is that true?

A. Yes.
Q. Everybody was working hard to help Michael Jackson during that entire period, correct?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: I’m going to object. It calls for speculation without a foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That’s what you were trying to do, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Is help Michael Jackson?
A. Yes.
Q. And from everything you saw, it looked like Marc Schaffel was helping -- trying to help Michael Jackson, true?

A. Yes. Yes.
Q. And Frank?
A. Frank’s lazy, but, yeah.
Q. Okay. He’s lazy, but he wanted to help Michael Jackson if he could?
A. Yeah.
MR. SANGER: I’m going to -- well, I’ll withdraw it.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. So one of your tasks during this time was to interview the Arvizo family?
A. That is correct.
Q. And Marc Schaffel is the one who assigned you to that task; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And on the day that that was to be shot, you said that you spent some time writing down questions to ask the Arvizos?
A. That is correct.
Q. Okay. Had you ever met the Arvizos at that point?
A. No, I had seen the mother once, but I had never -- I had never been introduced to her.
Q. And you saw the mother at one time when?
A. Vinnie was driving her around doing errands and he had to stop by Marc’s.
Q. And the mother was out in the car?
A. I think she came up to the doorstep and I opened the door, you know, but I didn’t have a conversation with her.

Q. And ultimately this film was to be filmed at Hamid’s house? That’s where it ultimately took place?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Do you know why it wasn’t filmed at Marc’s house, like Debbie Rowe?

A. Well, Hamid --

Q. That’s “yes” or “no.”

A. -- had all the stuff in his garage. It’s probably a pretty convenient location. I mean, we’re talking a thousand or more pounds of gear, so --

Q. Okay. Now, let’s talk a little bit about your day. What time of the day did you find out that you were going to be interviewing the family approximately, if you can?

A. Probably early afternoon.

Q. Okay. Did you ever tell a police officer that it was in the morning that you started work on this?

A. It might have been my morning. You know, I might -- if I woke up at -- late or something.

Q. And you started to prepare this script of questions, or this list of questions, and ultimately you were assisted in the final product, correct?

A. That is correct.

MR. SANGER: I’m going to -- well, I’m going to object to that question as being compound, misstating the evidence as phrased.

THE COURT: Compound, sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You were ultimately assisted in preparing this list of questions, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And one of the people who assisted you was Marc Schaffel, correct?

A. Can I answer -- I don’t know. I mean, he was talking to somebody, so I don’t know if it was actually his call.

Q. Okay.

A. I may have taken the papers and faxed them to somebody or sent them an e-mail.

Q. You can answer that question. Who was he talking to?

A. I don’t know.

Q. You believed he was talking to a lawyer based on everything you saw, though?

A. Well, yeah, it wouldn’t --

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for speculation; no foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Were there some legal questions asked when you watched -- well, let me back up first.

Does Mr. Schaffel have a speakerphone in his office?

A. Yes.

Q. Does he frequently talk on that speakerphone?

A. Yes.

Q. Does he frequently talk on that speakerphone when people are present and can overhear conversations?

A. If it has no -- you know, if it’s not a personal conversation, sure. I mean --

Q. And did you overhear him talking on the phone when these questions were being worked on by Mr. Schaffel and another person who was on the phone?

A. I think at one point.

Q. Okay.

A. I don’t think it was the entire conversation.

Q. And based on everything you heard, did you form an opinion as to what the other person’s occupation was?

A. Yes.

Q. And what is that?

A. I felt -- because of the nature of the interview, I felt that the advice they were giving implied that they had a lot of legal knowledge or that they were an attorney.

Q. Okay. And the script of questions was modified and returned to you?

A. Not modified as in they just -- he just crossed them out.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to move to strike the answer for the purpose of objecting. The question misstates the evidence as to the word "script."

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I said "script of questions."

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. The script of questions was modified and returned to you?

A. The list of questions was modified, yeah. Some of the questions were crossed out.

Q. Now, ultimately, this whole script or list of questions was formed by committee; is that accurate?

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor. The witness has now clarified it's not a script. I object to the question. It's also compound.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I need to clarify that. It was not a script. That's not --

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That's fine. Call it a list.

A. It's a list.

Q. A list of questions.

A. Okay.

Q. Ultimately this list of questions was formed by committee; is that true?

A. True. That is true.

Q. Okay. And what was produced in this list of questions was somewhat thematic; would you agree?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object -- well, all right. I'll withdraw it.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: In other words, there were certain themes that you were going for; is that fair?

A. Yes.

Q. And you basically have testified on direct that the questions shape the interview?

A. That is -- that is correct.

Q. And the attempt here was to shape this interview into something that would be usable for the rebuttal film?

A. Yes.

Q. And you saw that this rebuttal film would be worth -- and I should say this rebuttal film in particular, the filming of the Arvizo family, you believed that that film would be worth a fortune, correct?

A. That would have been my opinion, yes.

Q. You believed it was worth millions, true?

A. Probably.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. There's a lack of foundation.

THE COURT: He answered it. I'll overrule the objection. Next question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Let's talk about some of the themes that were developing in the script of questions.

One of the major themes was that Michael Jackson is a good person; fair to say?

A. Described his character, sure.

Q. Another major theme was that Michael Jackson was taking in the Arvizo family as part of his family?

A. I mean, do you want all the beats? I probably can explain it to you. That was part of --

Q. What do you mean by "beats"?

A. Beats. Points that you're going to hit on.

Q. Okay. That was one of the points you were going to hit on, right?

A. Sure.

Q. And one of the points was that Michael was like a father to these kids?

A. Caretaker.

Q. I mean --

A. Father.

Q. -- that word was used, "father," in your questions, right? Wasn't it?

A. I don't have my list of questions.

Q. Okay.

A. But probably.

Q. Another beat was that Michael is a good parent, correct?

A. Is he a good parent?

Q. Another beat was that Michael is misunderstood?

A. Is Michael misunder -- yeah, yeah.

Q. Yeah. And another beat was that Michael is somehow responsible for healing Gavin’s cancer. Helpful or responsible, something along those lines, true?

A. Not responsible.

Q. Well, helpful.

A. Helpful, yes.

Q. Something he did, he helped heal --

A. Absolutely. He definitely --

Q. -- helped heal Gavin’s cancer.

A. We wanted to get that story, because it’s a great story.

Q. How long did it take you to ultimately achieve a finished product with this list of questions?

A. It may have been two hours. It may have been three. I was definitely working on other things at the same time, so....

Q. Do you know the person’s name who Marc Schaffel was talking to on the phone?

A. I don’t.

Q. Were you directed not to use any inflammatory language in your questions?

A. “Inflammatory” as in like the word “sex” or --

Q. “Sex” or “molest”?

A. Yeah.

Q. Were you told not to use those words?

A. I think -- “sexual” I think I ended up using. But I definitely didn’t use “molest.” I don’t think I used “sex.”

Q. My question is, were you directed not to use such --

A. Yes.

Q. -- inflammatory language? By whom?

A. Marc.

Q. During the time that you were at Mr. Schaffel’s home during this period, were you privy to conversations about the Arvizos being sent to Brazil?

A. I had heard -- you know, I had heard them on the phone talking about tickets and stuff, yeah.

Q. Who would “they” be?

A. Marc. Maybe -- maybe Vinnie. I think Vinnie had to do -- like he was -- he was like the grunt. He had to go to get passport photos and all that kind of stuff and -- you know.

Q. So you completed the script, and then -- or the list of questions. Let me say that correctly. And you were to report somewhere to conduct this interview?

A. Yes.

Q. Who directed you to report to Hamid’s house?

A. Hamid probably gave me instructions to his house. I probably called him.

Q. Do you know who directed you to go to Hamid’s house?

A. Who directed me to go there?

Q. Yes.

A. It was Marc Schaffel.

Q. In fact, wasn’t this -- the plan for this video, wasn’t the original plan for this video to be shot at Neverland of the Arvizo family?

A. Probably. I’m not positive. I think, you know --

Q. Weren’t you planning on going to Neverland to do this interview?

A. I think the family was staying up there, so that probably -- that was probably my plan. I can’t speculate as to my plans as going to Neverland. That doesn’t --

Q. Were you ever directed that you were going to Neverland at any time to conduct an interview of the Arvizo family? Did anyone ever tell you that you were going to do an interview of the Arvizo family?

A. Nobody told me we were going to. I think they told me that we wanted to.

Q. Okay. So, when did that plan -- when was that plan aborted?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object to the -- misstates the testimony.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Was there a plan to go to Neverland to interview the Arvizo family?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Who told you that, "We wanted to go to Neverland to interview the Arvizos"?

A. It was probably my suggestion. Marc. I don't know if that was Marc's opinion.

Q. Did you ever intend to go to Neverland to interview the Arvizos?

A. I would have liked to, yes.

Q. Did you ever intend to go to Neverland to interview the Arvizos?

A. Did I ever intend -- intend.

MR. SANGER: I think it's been asked and answered, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

That's all right.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It has been asked and answered.

Q. When did your intent to go to Neverland to interview the Arvizos change?

MR. SANGER: Objection; misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: What he said was he would like to go there.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay.

THE COURT: I felt that was a sufficient answer to your question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: When did your desire to go to Neverland to interview the Arvizos change?

A. I don't know. I don't know when that changed.

Q. Did it change on the date that you interviewed the Arvizo family?

A. Probably, if that's where I'm doing the interview, yeah.

Q. Were you ever told by anybody that the film cannot be done at Neverland because there's a problem?

A. I don’t know.

Q. You don’t know?

A. No.

Q. Now, some of the questions that you asked, I’m going to ask you some specific questions about those questions.

Did you say in the interview, “But in reality, has he actually taken you on as his family? Did Michael take you all in as his family? And please explain it.” Was that one of the questions you asked the Arvizo family?

A. I haven’t seen that list for two years. So I -- it sounds like something I might have asked them, but I can’t tell you for sure. And I’m not -- unless it’s a short question, I might not be able to.

Q. Okay. If I show you your testimony from the grand jury, do you think that would refresh your recollection?

A. That would be great, because that was a year closer to the actual events, so --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: If I may approach, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: If I may inquire as to what page, please.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Page 530.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE WITNESS: This question?

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes.

A. That was my testimony, uh-huh.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection?

A. If I didn’t ask that exact question, then it was definitely close to that, then.

Q. Okay. So you asked them a question close to, “But in reality, has he actually taken you on as a family? Did Michael take you all in as a family? And please explain it.” That’s close?

A. Sure.

Q. Okay.

A. Yes.

Q. Was that one of the --

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object, Your Honor, and ask to approach on that.

THE COURT: I don’t think he finished his question. I think you interrupted him.

What was the question?

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: My question was -- the question I was starting --

THE COURT: Finish the question, yeah.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Where did you get the notion that Michael had treated the Arvizo -- the Arvizo family as a family if you’d never met them?

A. Because I had been told by people like Vinnie, probably, who had spent a lot of time with them and knew everything about them, so --

Q. Vinnie told you about the Arvizo family being treated as a family by Michael?

A. Probably told me a little bit, yeah, or Frank.

Q. Did you have any other sources of information about the Arvizo family other than Vinnie and Frank?

A. Well, what Marc knew, you know; what Stuart knew. I don’t -- anybody who was around knew the family better than I did, if they had met them.

Q. Did you ask the question, “How about personally for Davellin and Star? Maybe give me an example of how Michael has treated you like a family.”

Does that sound about -- sound like an approximation, at least, of a question you asked?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Well, that’s vague.

THE WITNESS: Oops.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer was, “Yes.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: “So you truly believe that your attitude about life has something to do with your health; is that right?” Is that a question you asked Gavin Arvizo?

A. Is that a question that I asked him?

Q. Yes.

A. How do I answer that if I don’t know if I asked the question when I was in his --
Q. Well, I don’t know, unless -- I mean, unless you tell us that --
THE COURT: Wait. Wait. Wait. Wait. If you don’t know the answer to a question, it’s all right to say “I don’t know” or “I don’t remember.”
THE WITNESS: I’m not sure if I asked him that exact question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: What about, “And so do you feel that Michael’s love and Michael example and everything he did, do you think that had something to do with helping you get better? And explain it, please”? Is that one of the questions you asked?
MR. SANGER: I’m going to object that there’s a lack of foundation for this witness to answer about those questions.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I believe he testified he wrote it.
MR. SANGER: And, Your Honor, I object to that remark. These are questions that were asked, not the questions that were written.
THE COURT: Well, the objection is overruled. You may answer the question.
THE WITNESS: Please ask the question again.
THE COURT: I’ll have the court reporter read it back to you.
THE WITNESS: Oh, thank you.
(Record read.)
THE WITNESS: It was close, if it wasn’t the question.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. So where did you get the idea that Michael’s love and Michael’s example had something to do with Gavin getting better? Who told you that?
A. That probably would have been my assumption after spending time with Hamid and seeing the video of the child, Gavin, when he was very sick and Michael was, you know, like pushing him around in the wheelchair and -- you know.

So with that, me knowing what I’ve seen in videos before, and talking to people who have spent a lot of time with them.

Q. Okay. And you also asked a question, did you not, that “What was the biggest misconception that other people have, things that they don’t understand about Michael?” Was that one of your questions?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you know the Arvizos believed that there were misconceptions about Michael?

A. How did I know?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, if they’re going to come to a rebuttal video, then they probably feel like I do, and know that -- what everybody who knows Michael knew, which was that what was in that video, the Martin Bashir piece, wasn’t accurate, so that creates misconceptions.

Q. You said, asked Janet Arvizo, “Mom, do you think Michael is a good parent, a fit parent? And please explain.” Was that one of your questions?

A. Yes.

Q. And, “First of all, very briefly, just by -- just state -- by now I already know, but state for me how close a relationship you have with your children and then answer for me if you think Michael’s a good parent, if he is a fit parent.

“The first part of the question is, how close are you to your children? And then the second part is, knowing your children as well as you do, do you think Michael is a good parent? Do you think Michael is a fit parent?”

Is that one of your questions?

A. Pretty close.

Q. Was that one of the bullets that you were trying to --

A. Yeah, that would be a beat.

Q. A beat. A beat, yes.

A. That would be a talking point for sure.

Q. “And let’s just ask one more question. Let’s go. I think a lot of the time when people look at Michael as a parent, they see an extremely successful person who spoils his kids.” “I mean, even with you, Gavin, does Michael -- you know, does he give you instruction for -- you know, say things that you shouldn’t do, things that are wrong, I mean give you advice?” Is that one of your questions?

A. “Does Michael counsel you?” That was probably a talking point.

Q. That was a beat?

A. That’s like acting like a father, okay.

Q. And you expected to get positive responses to those questions, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And when you went into this video shoot, you showed Janet the entire list of questions?

A. Probably, yes.

Q. Well, you said you did on direct.

A. Yeah, I showed her.

Q. So she saw you had a list --

A. I don’t know if she read all the questions, but I showed her the list.

Q. You showed her a piece of paper and there were a lot of questions written down on it?

A. Right. You know --

Q. Or papers, I should say. How many pages was this?

A. Probably two. Maybe three.

Q. Was it word-processed or handwritten?

A. It was probably mostly word-processed. I may have written some notes on those papers.

Q. Did you talk to the kids about these questions you were going to ask?

A. I gave them an order of the kinds of questions I would be asking them.

Q. Did you show them the piece of paper that you showed Janet?

A. I don’t think so.

Q. Do you know?

A. No.

Q. And you said -- I believe you talked with them for some time before the video shoot took place. Was that about an hour that you spent with the Arvizos before the shoot took place?

MR. SANGER: That’s really compound, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Was this about an hour of time that you spent with the Arvizos before the shoot took place?

MR. SANGER: Same question. Objection. Compound.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I wanted to start the interview as soon as possible. And we were held up because of the releases issue. So, yes, I did, in fact, spend more time with them before than I would have liked.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And at this shoot, there was Vinnie Amen?

A. Yes.

Q. The Arvizo children?

A. Yes.

Q. Janet?

A. Yes.

Q. Was a man named Paul Hugo there?

A. Wow. If Paul was there, he was keeping a low profile. But it’s possible.

Q. Who’s Paul Hugo?

A. I don’t know. Well, he was -- he’s somebody who works -- knows Marc. Beyond that, I really don’t know who he is.

Q. Was Paul Hugo at Marc Schaffel’s house during that period of time?

A. He may have been. He may have been brought in to help.

Q. And you did the video shoot with the Arvizos and asked the questions?

A. Yes.

Q. There were breaks in the film?

A. We probably took either one or two breaks. And we probably had to interview two at a time and then four at a time is what I recall. So there would have been multiple breaks to move things around.

Q. There was a private eye present?
A. Yes.
Q. And he was just watching and monitoring?
A. That was my understanding.
Q. Did that seem odd to you?
A. Yeah, of course.
Q. Have you ever been to a video shoot where a private investigator was monitoring the shoot?

A. Not that I know of. That’s why they call them P.I.s.
Q. Okay. And during this shoot, there was -- or prior to the shoot, there was a problem with Janet and the releases?
A. That’s correct.
Q. It’s common in the industry to sign these model releases before you do a shoot, correct?
A. It’s common if you’re used to it.
Q. Okay. But Michael Jackson would know that you have to sign releases before a shoot takes place?
MR. SANGER: Objection. Relevance and calls for speculation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: Michael would be aware?
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yeah. I mean, isn’t that fundamental?
MR. SANGER: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.
Q. So back to my other question. So Michael would be aware of something known as a model release and that it needs to be signed to obtain the rights to shoot an individual on a video?
MR. SANGER: Objection; compound.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Would Michael be aware of the issue of signing model releases before videos are shot?

A. I would hope so.
Q. Okay. Now, you worked --
MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I’m sorry, I’m going to move to strike the answer for lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: There was some testimony about Janet being on a cell phone.

A. That’s correct.

Q. Do you know whose cell phone it was?

A. I don’t remember whose cell phone it was.

Q. Who was she standing next to when she was talking on the cell phone?

MR. SANGER: Objection; assumes facts.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll strike it.

Q. Was there someone standing near Janet when she was talking on the cell phone?

A. It’s not a big house. I’m sure. I mean, I could hear her. I was probably standing close to her.

Q. So you were standing near her. What room was she talking on the cell phone in?

A. The front living room. She may have been -- she may have walked around the house, but --

Q. Did you hear her discuss on the phone anything concerning the Department of Child & Family Services?

A. No.

THE COURT: All right. Let’s take our break.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Mr. Robinson, this whole evening with the Arvizos where you asked them questions and assisted in the filming of their various statements seemed very weird to you; isn’t that fair to say?

MR. SANGER: Objection; vague.

THE COURT: Is that a quote you have from him from an earlier --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: (Nods head up and down.)

THE COURT: All right. Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, it was different. It was weird.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: One of the things that was weird about it was the fact that there was a P.I. there? You already talked about that.

MR. SANGER: Asked and answered. Asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And -- well, another thing that was weird about this was the fact that it was being shot at some time around one o'clock in the morning with this family of young teenagers, kids, right?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Compound and assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: When we finished, it was late.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And that was odd, wasn't it, to have this family --

A. Well, it's not odd in -- I mean, I work 18-hour days a lot. But when you have kids, you want to wrap it up a little bit early, but....

Q. Okay. Now, you spoke to a sheriff's deputy by the name of Detective Bonner in this case; is that correct?

A. There was a bunch of them. That rings a bell.

Q. And you spoke to a detective at the time when your home was searched pursuant to a warrant?

A. Right. There was two guys.

Q. And you also spoke to Mr. Bonner the following day on the telephone?

A. Yes. No, I saw him the following day.

Q. Oh, you saw him the following day?

A. Yeah.

Q. And are you aware that that interview was recorded?

A. No.

Q. Okay. And were you honest in your responses to Detective Bonner's questions?

A. What were they?

I'm sure I was. I'm not a dishonest person, but if you want to ask me the question first.

Q. Well, you told Detective Bonner that during this interview Janet Arvizo seemed to be rehearsed; isn't that true?

A. Well, how you interpret -- interpret that, I think, is objective. I think if I'm going to be interviewed by the news cameras for the first time in my life, I want to know what I'm going to say. So in that case, I think a few things that she said she said a lot, and those things seemed a little bit rehearsed.

Q. Okay. She said things over and over again?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you stated, "I felt like she had rehearsed some of the things she was going to say," true?

A. Just like I just explained.

Q. Okay. And as far as Gavin's responses to your questions, you believed that he knew the questions were coming up; it was like he had heard those questions before?

A. Like when I told him about them before the interview.

Q. Well, you thought Gavin had been --

A. Well, I'm sure they said, "We're going to do this interview. We're going to ask you about," you know, "your relationship with Michael" and stuff. I'm sure they asked, "What are you going to interview me about?" You know, I'm sure they were told.

Q. You felt somebody talked to them before you did?

A. They're briefed. If you want to do an interview, they want to make sure they're not going to be asked things they don't want to answer.

Q. And it seemed to you like they'd been briefed?

A. I couldn't answer --

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. That calls for speculation.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer. Do you want the question read back?

THE WITNESS: No. No. I'm sure they knew where they were going, yes.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. And you stated someone must have at least told him what the interview was going to be about?

A. In general terms. There’s no way that he was told questions before.

Q. And didn’t you also -- wouldn’t you also agree that the kids were parroting one another?

A. The kids were doing what?

Q. Parroting one another? Saying the same thing that their mother said?

A. Um --

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object. That’s compound and unintelligible

THE COURT: Sustained. Compound.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you say that the kids parroted the mother?

A. I probably did say that.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: If I could have just a moment, Your Honor.

Q. As far as any money that was given to Janet Arvizo by Hamid, were you present when that money was given?

A. No, I think I knew that it happened, but I just --

Q. It’s just a “yes” or “no.”

A. Ask it again, please.

Q. I’m sorry?

A. Did I --

Q. Were you present when that money was given?

A. I was probably in the home, yes.

Q. Did you see it --

A. No.

Q. -- being handed over to her?

Do you know when it was given to her?

A. I don’t know if it was.

Q. Okay. When this telephone call with the cell phone call was going on, you said you were standing right there?

A. For part of it I was, that’s true.

Q. Was Brad Miller standing right there as well?

A. I don’t know.

Q. Was Vinnie Amen standing right there?

A. When I was -- the only reason I remember standing close to her is because I could hear the gender of the person on the other line.

A. I don’t know who else was there.

Q. But it was clear to you that Janet Arvizo had a serious problem with signing these releases?

MR. SANGER: Objection to the characterization. Misstates the evidence. Argumentative.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I was aware that she had a problem signing the releases. Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Okay. Let’s just start with something here. You were interviewed by the Santa Barbara Sheriff’s Department, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you submitted voluntarily to that interview; is that correct?

A. Yeah, a lengthy, long interview.

Q. All right. And that was -- that interview was given roughly when?

A. Man. Wow.

Q. Put it this way: Was it well over a year ago?

A. Oh, yeah.

Q. All right.

MR. SANGER: I just thought I’d watch the bailiff do that before I ask the next question.

BAILIFF NARRON: You were hoping I was going to spill it.

MR. SANGER: Okay. I didn’t -- okay. There we go. Okay. I wasn’t quite sure what the bailiff was doing, so I wanted to wait. I think we’re okay. I hope we’re okay.

Q. All right. So basically you told -- you told the Santa Barbara Sheriff’s Department pretty much what you had to say, what you observed, right?

A. Everything, I think.

Q. At least everything in response to what they asked you, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And was there any other reason why the Santa Barbara District Attorney would be aware of what you had to say in this case?

A. Would there be any other reason --
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; ambiguous.
MR. SANGER: Yeah.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Assumes facts.
MR. SANGER: That's fine. Let me withdraw it, and I'll ask directly.
Q. Were you called by the Santa Barbara District Attorney's Office to testify before the grand jury in this case?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. And did a Deputy District Attorney ask you questions at those proceedings?
A. Did a deputy ask me questions?
Q. Yeah, one of the district attorneys.
A. Oh, yeah. Mr. "Auchinelos" or something.
(Laughter.)
Q. So you've disclosed his true name now for the first time.
A. That was good, yeah. Quote that one.
Q. Okay. I think it's Auchincloss.
But in any event, it was this gentleman right there?
A. That's the dude.
(Laughter.)
Q. Okay. Now, and you answered -- you answered all of their questions at the grand jury, right?
A. Yeah.

Q. And that grand jury took place long before the beginning of this trial, right?
A. It did.
Q. Now, let's take up some of these questions right at the end, and then I'll go back, while this is fresh in our minds.
You were asked some questions about rehearsed and parroting and that sort of thing.
First of all, let me ask you about the parroting issue.

When you asked a question in that tape and you were trying to get an answer from one of the kids, did the kids always get a chance to answer it?

A. Sometimes I had to address the kids separately. The mom was really -- she had something to say about everything, so the kids wouldn’t always get something in, and I would reask the questions for the kids.

Q. So quite often you would ask the question of the group or of the children and the mother would just answer; is that right?

A. A lot. Gavin was a pretty good talker, too.

Q. Okay. So when -- when you -- let me withdraw that.

Would you reask the questions sometimes in order to get the kids to answer the questions?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And on occasion -- the District Attorney actually, a little bit ago in his questioning, was asking you about some questions that were asked. Were -- all the questions that were asked, were they written out in advance the way you asked them?

A. No. No. You always come up with different things while you’re doing the interview.

Q. All right. So he was asking you about questions that actually appeared on the tape or appeared --

A. Oh, okay.

Q. All right. And in that context, were those questions sometimes based on what had happened previously?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; leading.

MR. SANGER: It probably was, Your Honor. Why don’t I withdraw it.

Q. How would you -- after the interview got started, how would you formulate your questions? In other words, would you read them from the list of questions, or what would you do?

A. Sometimes you read from the list. Sometimes you say, “Oh, they’re talking really well about this, so I’m going to take it in this direction.”

You know, sometimes you want to get a lot of emotion out of this. Just -- you ask them whatever you feel they’re going to answer best.

Q. All right. And would you incorporate in your questions information you had learned during the course of the interview?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Now, did -- when you were talking to Janet for the half-hour-or-so period that you actually talked with her before you went on camera, did she use some of the same language that she used in answering the questions on tape, or not?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Do you know whether or not there had been a tape-recorded interview of this family three or four days before you did this interview?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any information what had been said by this family specifically in any kind of a formal interview prior to that?

A. No. I didn’t know there was.

Q. All right. Were you made aware specifically of cards and letters that this family had sent to Mr. Jackson in the year 2001?

A. No.

Q. All right. Do you know if this family used the same sort of language to describe Mr. Jackson before the Bashir tape came out?

A. Do I know --

Q. Do you know?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. I’ll object. Foundation.

MR. SANGER: The question truly is, do you know whether or not, so I’m asking for a “yes” or “no.”

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Let me rephrase it. Do you have knowledge as to whether or not this family used the same sort of language they used in your interview in response to questions at any time in the past?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Same objection.

THE COURT: Do you mean any time before that interview?

MR. SANGER: Any time before that interview. Any time before he talked to them there that evening.

THE COURT: All right. Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: It was implied to me, but I didn’t know of any way that they were going to talk.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. So when you say “implied” to you, what was implied to you?

A. That they really loved Micahel and they were, like, really mad about this video. That’s what was implied to me.

Q. Okay. So was any specific language given to you in advance that you were trying to elicit?

A. Was any language given to me by the family or by --

Q. By anybody before that evening. Was any specific language given to you? You just told us -- you just told us a conclusion, that you understood how they felt. Were you given any specific language that you were supposed to get out with your questions?

A. Well, that was the plan. I mean, we want to get emotional, powerful sound bites. You know, it makes good television. That’s always the plan.

Q. What I’m saying is specific language. Did anybody tell you specific words that you were supposed to elicit?

A. No.

Q. All right. Now, this was designed to get some footage - keep calling it that - get some clips, I guess, is what you call it.

A. Right.

Q. Get some clips for a television production; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you understand -- do you understand television values, the value -- values not as far as moral values. Values as far as what you’re looking for technically in getting a piece that is acceptable for television?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Does content for television -- can you go on for a long period of time, have rambling pieces for television?

A. No.

Q. Okay. What do you try to look for for television clips?

A. As far as news and documentary clips, you want concise, powerful, short clips, if possible. You want tears. You want -- you want things that captivate an audience. If I'm here bawling and putting my hands in my face, it's going to be more interesting to watch, right? So that's what you look for. It's news.

Q. I'll try not to elicit that from you, all right?

And is there something -- when you're trying to get content, is there something about the kinds of statements that you try to get? In other words, do you want to have a lot of question-answer, question-answer, or do you want to get self-contained statements? What are you looking for?

A. You want self-contained statements that restate a question, that pack in points, you know. And that's the kind of stuff we were getting. It was plentiful.

Q. And when you say you were getting, did you get this only after reasking the questions several times, or did you feel you got some of it right off the bat?

A. A lot of it I got right off the bat.

Sometimes I would rephrase a question and have them include different answers in one -- I would have them paraphrase different answers, you know --

Q. All right.

A. -- that they had already given.

Q. Okay. Going back over some of the testimony you gave in response to questions by Mr. Auchincloss --

A. Auchincloss.

Q. Auchincloss, yes. You said that you had worked on something to deal with the “Home Movies”?

A. Right.

Q. Okay. And I understand you didn’t see the actual television show called “Home Movies”; is that right?

A. I probably saw part of it, yeah.

Q. All right. In any event, do you know whether or not your footage was included in that television show?

A. My footage of Michael?

Q. Your footage of anything.

A. Mostly -- I mean, mostly what I pulled for that was all of Michael’s home videos. Like, it was older stuff, so I don’t know what current was used, no.

Q. All right.

A. When you went to Gary, Indiana -- you were asked by Mr. Auchincloss about going to Gary, Indiana.

A. Correct.

Q. Did you go back there for a shoot?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you shoot any footage of Mr. Jackson’s old family home?

A. Yes.

Q. What did it look like?

A. Small.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; relevancy.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: It was -- it was dirty and small. It was like, you know, a very poor neighborhood. Well, not poor, but -- yeah, poor. Poor neighborhood.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, you say it was dirty. Mr. Jackson’s family didn’t own that home anymore by the time you went back there; is that right?

A. I think the guy was his cousin, maybe.

Q. Okay.

A. I think it was his cousin or his uncle. His uncle or cousin or something.

Q. Somebody in the family may have still owned it?

A. Yeah.

Q. Did you shoot inside or just outside?

A. Yes, inside.

Q. How many rooms was that home?

A. If it was -- if it was more than one, then it was two. Had a main room and a bedroom.

Q. And do you know how many people lived in that home when Mr. Jackson was growing up?

A. Yeah, we talked about that. It was a lot. I don't know how many siblings Michael has exactly. It was like 11 people that lived there. A lot.

Q. Okay. A few more questions.

You said that you were familiar with what was, in general terms, what was going on in Mr. Schaffel's house. You described some things for Mr. Auchincloss, and I want to go to that subject matter.

Was there a business operation being conducted out of Mr. Schaffel's house following the Bashir video?

A. Yes.

Q. And how many people were doing business out of that house?

A. Anywhere from four at a time to, like, eight or nine. I mean, it was a big operation.

Q. Did -- were there work spaces set up?

A. Yes, there were work spaces, but they were makeshift.

Q. All right. So various rooms in the house were made into makeshift --

A. Right.

Q. -- offices?

A. Exactly.

Q. Were there file cabinets?

A. Lots of them.

Q. Was there paperwork floating around?

A. Oh, yeah.

Q. Now, you mentioned Vinnie Amen.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And I think in response to what the prosecutor said, you said Vinnie Amen was a friend of Frank's and he was also a friend of yours, right?

A. Uh-huh. Yes. Sorry.

Q. Can you describe Vinnie Amen?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; vague.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Give us a physical description of him.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: A physical description?

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Yeah.

A. He's like a couple inches shorter than I am. He has -- very clean cut. Very, very, very proper. Very -- not a big stature guy.

Q. And what his demeanor? Was he impolite? Rude? Rough?

A. No, he's very, very polite. He acted like he went to an Ivy League school. And that he did. He went to some, like, big business college. And he was just a very nice, well-mannered kid. And him and Frank were like opposites. I couldn't believe they were best friends.

I liked Frank, too. I'm not -- I'm not bashing him, but -- Vinnie was just one of a kind. I didn't know why he was --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Objection; narrative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: Sorry.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. And as far as Frank was concerned, was he an aggressive -- what was his demeanor? Was he an aggressive, mean person?

A. Frank was very gentle as well. He was just different. Frank is very different. He's also polite and very nice, but there's just -- he's just different.

Q. All right. There was some questioning about Marc Schaffel's speakerphone. Did Marc Schaffel show off in your presence by talking on the speakerphone?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Did Marc

Schaffel -- in using the speakerphone, did he use it in an unusual fashion?
A. No.
Q. Did -- if he had private conversations, what would he do?
A. He would ask --
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: He would ask me to leave the room or he would pick up the phone. I didn’t try to listen to a lot of his conversations.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Were you able to hear him talking on the phone on a private conversation if you left the room?
A. Maybe if you were in one of the rooms next door, sure.
Q. Now, there was a question about the -- your opinion as to whether or not the film would be worth millions, and I wrote down “film.” That may not have been the word used, but I think it was.
Do you have an opinion as to the value of just the raw footage? You can say “yes” or “no.”
A. Of the interview?
Q. Yes.
A. Do I have an opinion?
Q. Yes.
A. Yeah. Yes.

Q. Okay. Do you have an opinion as to the value of the raw footage if it were cut and put into a production that was played on television?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll object as vague as to time.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. And I’m asking you about at that time. Not whether or not because of this trial it would be worth something. But back at that time in February of 2003.
A. Did I have an estimation as to what it was worth?
Q. What it was worth if it was picked up and cut.

A. That’s objective. You could cut it to make it worth a lot less if you did the wrong thing, so....
Q. Or you could cut it to make it be --
A. It could be worth more, sure.
Q. Make it be worth more. All right.
And basically the film at that time, in February of 2003, the value would be the value of that film being used in a television production, right?
A. That would have been the value at the time.
Q. All right. And you did not have anything to do with the business transactions regarding this footage of the Arvizos; is that correct?

A. Unfortunately not.
(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)
MR. SANGER: Excuse me just one second.
(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)
Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Let me just ask you on that before we leave that subject.
You said that the film would be worth millions, and I think you might have said eight million at some point. But millions, anyway, as to this.
Was the -- was that -- is that your opinion, that the film was worth millions at that time?
A. Yeah. Absolutely. I mean, it’s a worldwide story. It’s worth millions of dollars.
Q. Okay. And it would have been worth millions of dollars if it had been marketed at that time; is that correct?
A. Yeah. Yes.
Q. So you’re talking about the value of that film as produced in a television show, correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Nobody offered you any money for that footage; is that correct?
A. No, I charged them a day rate, as I would.
That’s all I asked.
MR. SANGER: Yeah. Excuse me one second.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. So -- all right. So you felt if this -- so we can get off this, if that was marketed properly, that somebody might have been able to get millions to sell that to somebody who would include it in a show, right?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; asked and answered.

MR. SANGER: It’s foundational, just to ask the next question, if I may.

THE COURT: All right. Go ahead. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, you offered an opinion that -- about eight million. What was the eight-million-dollar opinion?

A. No, he -- I know they got somewhere around eight million for the -- like, this is a ballpark. You know, this is what -- someone might have been showing off to me or something, but it was for “The Interview You Were Never Meant To See,” which is the camera that Hamid had in the room while Martin Bashir was interviewing with Michael.

Q. So that was not talking about this footage of the Arvizos?

A. No.

Q. All right. And what was your opinion based on, that that was worth eight million?

A. Man, I --

Q. In other words, did somebody just tell you that, or did you see some documentation?

A. I must have read something or remember it from a conversation. But, you know, eight million, that sounds like too much. I mean, it is Michael Jackson, but it’s an hour- or two-hour program. It’s probably like four or five. But internationally it probably made more than eight million. I don’t know.

Q. Okay. All right. So in other words, you may have read about it? You may have read about it in the press?

A. Right.

Q. All right. Then you were asked about overhearing some conversations about the Arvizo trip to Brazil. Do you remember those questions?

A. Do I remember the questions or --

Q. You were just asked about it. Do you remember being asked?

A. Yeah, I remember being asked.

Q. During the time that you heard those conversations, did you ever hear anybody saying that they were forcing the Arvizos to go to Brazil, or coercing them or doing anything inappropriate?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: No. I didn't hear -- I didn't hear people talk about that stuff.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And you understood Vinnie was going to help the Arvizos get their passports?

A. Right. That's really the stuff that I had heard about, because Vinnie was really agitated by having to go do these runt things.

Q. And Vinnie's -- Vinnie felt he was more qualified to do other things; is that correct?

A. Vinnie could run --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Relevancy; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: You said Vinnie was agitated by having to do something.

And actually, I couldn't hear the word, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Do you want it read back?

MR. SANGER: Well, I think it was "grunt things" or "grunt work." My colleague tells me it was "grunt work," but I don't know.

THE COURT: Interesting. Were you talking about what he just said or what he said half an hour ago?

MR. SANGER: What he just said.

THE COURT: He didn't say "grunt" this time.

MR. SANGER: Okay. That's what I thought I heard.

Q. He was irritated by doing what, by having to do what?

A. Pointless chores that had no -- you know, you have a business degree. Do you want to go down to -- and get passport photos? No, you don’t.

Q. All right. Now, with regard to the taping that you did of the Arvizos, you were asked about a number of questions.

Based on your conversations with Janet, your brief conversations with the kids, and then the interview that you did that night with them, did you believe that their responses were sincere that Michael Jackson helped Gavin?

A. As far as Michael --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; calls for a conclusion.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. The District Attorney asked you about various questions you asked about Michael Jackson helping Gavin.

Did you believe that you were coaching these people to say something that was not true about Michael Jackson helping Gavin?

A. No. It was -- I felt very much so that it was very sincere and very truthful.

Q. And when you asked questions about parenting, you asked Mrs. Arvizo about her relationship with her own children, right?

A. That is correct.

Q. And did you ask her children, or at least Gavin about his relationship with his mother?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Do you remember his response to that?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; hearsay.

MR. SANGER: That would be a “yes” or “no,” first of all. And I take it he’s going to say “no.”

THE COURT: I’ll sustain the objection.

MR. SANGER: All right.

Q. Now, when you asked questions about Michael Jackson, Michael Jackson’s parenting, first of all, had you seen Michael Jackson with his own children?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you have an opinion of his abilities as a parent, his relationship with his kids?

A. Yes, I did.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Relevancy; calls for a conclusion; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: When you asked the question whether or not Michael Jackson was a good parent, did you ask that question based on any information that you had about his -- whether or not he was a good parent?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Same objection.

THE COURT: Overruled.

But I do want you to just answer that “yes” or “no,” whether you had information. “Yes” or “no.”

THE WITNESS: Yes, I had information.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And what was the source of that information? Without telling us what the information was, what was the source of that information?

A. The source of my opinion based on Michael’s parenting was based on my own interpretation of things that I had witnessed with him and his children. Events when they were together, that kind of stuff.

Q. Did Janet Arvizo or the Arvizo children at any time, prior to the taped interview, indicate in any way that they thought Michael Jackson was not a good parent?

A. Did they indicate that he was not?

Q. Yeah.

A. No. No, they did not.

Q. Okay. And then you said that -- something to the effect that it took a while to get the model release sorted out, and you would not have wanted to spend that much time. I believe you said something to that effect. Do you recall that?

A. That is true.

Q. Can you explain why that is?

A. Because it was getting late. And I don’t want to have -- we’ve set up our equipment. I don’t want to send people home because of something so strange to me.

That was part of the strangeness of the night. She's wanting to do this interview so badly, but she won't sign the model release. And I was just like, "This was a joke." And I don't know, it was stressing me out, because, you know, that was -- one of my jobs is -- I wasn't supposed to start until we had them done, and that never happened until after. They just had to get out of the way. If we couldn't use it, we couldn't use it.

Q. All right. And as to all of the questions that you asked, did you have any reason to believe that the answers were not the answers of the Arvizos themselves?

A. Not at all.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll object as vague.

THE COURT: Overruled. He said "Not at all," so....

MR. SANGER: Okay. And then I have no further questions. Thank you.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Mr. Robinson, you were assigned to leave that video shoot with the videotape; was that one of your assignments?

A. That was one of the assignments.

Q. And you were assigned to get those model releases signed by the Arvizo family?

A. That is correct.

Q. Okay. And when you left --

A. Well, Vinnie might have -- Vinnie might have been taking care of the model releases, actually.

Q. Okay.

A. But I knew it had to be done.

Q. And Brad Miller, too?

A. I didn't -- I didn't talk to Brad much at all. If anything, it was like a hello, you know.

Q. But was he around when those model releases were signed, if they were?

A. Oh, man. Like I said, you know, he was staying very quiet and staying in the background. He may have been there. But I don't know if he was in the room at all.

Q. And Hamid would not turn over that videotape at the end of the evening, would he?
A. That’s correct.
Q. So you left without that videotape?
A. That’s right. I wasn’t going to go to jail over it. He wasn’t going to give it to me no matter what I did. It wasn’t something that I had any power over.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you. No further questions.
THE WITNESS: Sure.

MR. SANGER: No further questions, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.
THE WITNESS: Thank you very much.
MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, can counsel and I approach the sidebar before the next witness is called?
THE COURT: All right.
(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)
THE COURT: All right. You may call your next witness.
MR. MESEREAU: Yes. Thank you very much, Your Honor. The defense will call Mrs. Vernee Watson Johnson.
THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.
Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

VERNEE WATSON JOHNSON
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.
THE WITNESS: My name is Vernee Watson Johnson. Vernee is spelled V-e-r-n-e-e, with an accent. And then Watson Johnson, it doesn’t have to be hyphenated, W-a-t-s-o-n, J-o-h-n-s-o-n.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

THE WITNESS: Uh-huh.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good afternoon, Miss Watson Johnson.

A. Hi.

Q. Would you please give us a brief history of your career?

A. Okay. I started out with an acting group in New York. And I did quite a few commercials in New York. And I moved out to Los Angeles, and I was -- I appeared on Welcome Back Kotter for a while as a sweathog. And then I did a couple of stuff on That's My Mama, the Love Boats, and did another series called Carter Country. And Foley Square. And then I did Fresh Prince. And a lot of episodics, guest-starring on episodics. A few films. And more commercials. And -- Is that enough?

Q. That's enough.

A. Okay.

Q. Yes. Thank you very much. Do you live in Los Angeles?

A. Yes. I live in Los Angeles, the city of -- I don't live in the City of Los Angeles, but I live in the valley, San Fernando Valley.

Q. Okay. Have you ever met someone named Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And when did you meet Janet Arvizo?

A. I was teaching acting at a place called The Los Angeles Academy of Fine Arts. And her children were in my acting class.

Q. And approximately what year was this?

A. Back in about 1997.

Q. And did Mrs. Arvizo come to your school at some point?

A. Yes. Her and David, her husband. Her ex-husband, I guess.

Q. And did they approach you about her children going to your school?

A. Well, they -- you know, the director of the school just lets me know who's coming into my acting class. So, you know, I met them, and their kids attended my classes.

Q. And how long did the Arvizo children attend your acting classes?
A. I think they were there for maybe a session, a session and a half, “a session” being six months to a year. And they --
Q. And are those children Gavin, Star and Davellin?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know all three children?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you see Janet Arvizo from time to time when you were teaching her children?
A. Yes.
Q. And would she come to your class?
A. Come in my class? I don’t allow the parents in my class.
Q. Where would you see her?
A. Out in the waiting area or in her car.
Q. And would she, as far as you knew, typically bring her children to the class?
MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object. No, I’ll withdraw the objection.
THE WITNESS: Her and her husband brought the kids to class. Yes.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was it your understanding that Janet and her husband would pick up the kids and take them home from your class?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you ever learn at some point that Gavin was ill?
A. Yes.
Q. How did you learn that?
A. They had not been in my class for a while. Actually, I had actually stopped teaching at LAAFA. That’s the L.A. Academy of Fine Arts. And the director called me and said that, “Vernee, do you remember Gavin?”

I was like, “Hmm, okay. Yeah, I think so.”
And she said, “Well, his mother called me and said that, “You know, you used to be very” --

"you were very nice to him, and he's very sick right now, and she wants you to come and visit him in the hospital."

Q. Did you speak to Janet about any fund-raisers for Gavin?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did she say to you about a fund-raiser for Gavin?

A. We -- you know, we -- you know, I had -- there were -- I had seen David a lot at the hospital. And we knew that they -- David -- you know, sometimes they didn't eat and stuff, so we were trying to get some money together to -- you know, a fund-raiser for them.

And I had -- but I was a little suspicious of, because of some other things that had happened, where the money was going.

So anyway, we -- I asked Janet to open an account. I said, "We're going to do a fund-raiser but we need Gavin to have his own account, a trust account."

MR. ZONEN: I'll object as --

THE WITNESS: What? I'm sorry.

(Laughter.)

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to withdraw the objection.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You can continue to answer.

A. Okay. And --

MR. ZONEN: Now I will object --

THE WITNESS: There's so much back story here --

MR. ZONEN: I will object now to continuing the answer as a narrative.

THE COURT: All right. Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Who first mentioned the word "fund-raiser" to you regarding Gavin?

A. Myself and Carol Lamir and -- me and Carol were going to put a fund-raiser together for her.

Q. Okay. Was it your idea to do that?

A. I guess. I mean, we were all in -- we were all in agreement that we would try to raise money for them, yes.

Q. And did you discuss the idea of a fund-raiser for Gavin with Janet?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And what did you say to Janet about a fund-raiser?
A. I told her that we were going to try to do a fund-raiser for her, but we needed a separate account opened up for Gavin.
Q. Why did you say that to Janet?
A. Because I --

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as irrelevant, the explanation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You may answer.
A. Because I had found out from talking to Carol that the moneys --
MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as hearsay, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: What was your state of mind?
A. I didn’t trust her.
Q. Why not?
MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as hearsay and lack of foundation. And opinion, improper opinion.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: What did you say to Janet about an account for Gavin?
A. I told her I needed a separate account for Gavin. I wanted her to open an account in his name so that the money could be deposited in that account.
Q. And with respect to that particular issue, what was her response?
A. She said, “Don’t worry about it. You can put it in my account.”
Q. What was your reaction to that?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as irrelevant, her reaction to it.
THE WITNESS: Is that objection sustained?
THE COURT: I’m thinking.

THE WITNESS: I’m sorry, sir.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Are you asking her to tell you something she said? If so -- if not, I’ll sustain the objection. If so, rephrase the question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. You’ve indicated that Janet did not want to set up a separate account for Gavin, correct?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. You wanted her to, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And I believe you said Janet said she would take the money, right?

A. Right.

Q. Did you then continue efforts to put together a fund-raiser?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; irrelevant.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I didn’t hear you, sir. Your Honor, I didn’t hear you.

THE COURT: You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

What was the question again? I’m sorry.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Why didn’t you continue to set up the fund-raiser when Janet said she would put the money in her account?

A. Because I had a strong feeling that the money would not be used for the purposes --

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as speculative, lack of foundation, and improper opinion.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You may answer.

A. Because I didn’t trust her.

Q. Why not?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as irrelevant, improper opinion, immaterial.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is in.

Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You said you didn’t trust

Janet, right?
A. Correct.
Q. Why?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; improper opinion.
BAILIFF CORTEZ: Your microphone's off.
THE COURT: Excuse me. I couldn't hear you.
MR. ZONEN: I'm sorry.
Objection. Irrelevant and improper opinion.
THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer. Do you remember the question at this point?
THE WITNESS: Yes. Why didn't I --
THE COURT: Trust her.
THE WITNESS: -- trust her.
Because I feel -- and I don't know if this is just my opinion, but I feel like if you want to raise money for someone, and the person that's doing the fund-raiser feels that it should be in an account for your child, and you tell me to put it in your account, then something is wrong.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. At the time you had this discussion with Janet --
A. Yes.
Q. -- about a possible fund-raiser, had you done anything to put the fund-raiser together?
A. Myself personally? I had called some people, yes.
Q. Okay. And had you spoken to Janet about who you were going to call?
A. No, I don't -- we didn't get that far in our conversation. I mean, she knew Carol. And she knew Miss Kennedy, who was also involved in --
MR. ZONEN: Object to what she knew as nonresponsive.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Who did you call about getting people to a fund-raiser for Gavin?

A. Carol Lamir. Arlene Kennedy. That was about it.
Q. And after Janet made that comment to you, did you stop all efforts to put together a fund-raiser?

A. Yes, we did.
Q. Okay. Now, had you been visiting Gavin at the hospital?
A. Had I been?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. And how many times do you think you visited Gavin at the hospital?
A. Many times. I went there two, three times a week for his -- the extent of his hospitalization, yes.
Q. Was there a particular time of day that you often went to see Gavin at the hospital?
A. During the day, you know, anytime I had an audition or -- I would just go down there. I would go there quite often.
Q. And did you see Janet at the hospital with Gavin?
A. I saw her the first time I went down there. And I saw her maybe once again.
Q. Did you see Gavin's father David at the hospital?
A. Yes. All the time.

Q. Okay. Did you stay in contact with Janet during the time that Gavin was in the hospital?
A. She would call me, and actually she would have Star call me.
MR. ZONEN: I'll object as speculative, lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Janet herself continue to call you while Gavin was in the hospital?
A. She called me. I mean, I'm going to say the same thing I said the last time, so I don't know --
Q. Let me just ask you about Janet only.
A. Okay.
Q. I'll get to the others.
A. All right.
Q. Was Janet calling you while Gavin was in the hospital?
A. She may have called me several times, yes.
Q. And did you talk to her about efforts to raise money?

A. Yes. When the fund-raiser -- the fund-raiser effort came up, yes.
Q. Do you know whether or not Janet herself ever asked you for money?
A. Um, I gave them money.
MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.
THE WITNESS: But I’m not sure --
MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: She’s answering.
Go ahead, finish your answer.
THE WITNESS: -- if it was, you know, because she directly asked me for it or because I just felt that they needed some help, and she didn’t refuse it when I gave it to her.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let me just go one step at a time, okay?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Did Janet ever directly ask you for money, that you recall?
A. I don’t recall.
Q. Did Janet ever indirectly suggest she’d like money?
MR. ZONEN: I’ll object to that as vague.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Janet ever say anything to you that suggested that she wanted money from you?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; vague.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: That means I can answer?
THE COURT: Yes.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
Say that again, please. I’m sorry.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Janet ever suggest anything to you in your conversations that made you think she wanted money?

A. She would -- I mean, whenever I would talk to her, it would be a lot of what they needed and how they didn’t have anything, and how they were struggling, and didn’t have a place to live really, and, you know, all that kind of stuff. So it was heavy-handing there going on.

Q. And how often did you give the Arvizos money?

A. I gave David money a couple of times. I didn't have much money, so it wasn't like I was -- you know, so -- I just gave him money a couple of times, yes.

Q. Do you recall whether or not David himself ever asked you for money?

A. David -- no, I offered it to him. I mean, I just -- I wrote a check to them a few times and I gave him some cash and that's it, yeah.

Q. Did you give him this money at the hospital?

A. Yeah. I also gave him food.

Q. Okay. Who did you give the food to?

A. David, because he was always there. He never went home to shower. He didn't go -- he was hungry. And I would say, you know, "You should get up out of here sometimes." I never saw Janet there after that, but I saw him there all the time. And I would -- and he wouldn't eat, so I would prepare food for him and bring it to him.

Q. Okay. Now, did Gavin ever call you on the phone?

A. When he was in the hospital, do you mean?

Q. Yes.

A. I mean, David would call me and say that Gavin would want to see me. I don't remember hearing Gavin's voice on the phone. I don't know. I know I did -- they would call me and say, "Well, when are you coming over again?" And, "When are you coming to visit us again?" You know, that kind of stuff.

Q. Do you recall whether or not Star ever telephoned you?

A. Uh-huh. Yes, I do.

Q. And was this around the time Gavin was ill?

A. Yes. He had -- yes. Gavin would get out of the hospital sometimes and then he'd have to go back, you know.

And when he got out, they would want to come over to my house. And I would -- you know, Star would call me and I could hear Janet in the background prompting him, you know.

Q. Did the family ever come to your house?

A. Yes.

Q. And on how many occasions?

A. I didn’t allow it after the first time -- well, they came there once, and it was just ridiculous. You know, they were just all over my house. And I couldn’t stand the energy that they had. And I wouldn’t allow all of them to come at one time. It was just, “Okay. If you want to come visit me, just David and Gavin.”

Q. Now, you say you didn’t like the energy. What do you mean?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; vague.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Why didn’t you want the family to return to your house after that first visit?

MR. ZONEN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: Because they were not --

MR. ZONEN: Objection; irrelevant.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: They were not ruly kids. They were very unruly. And they were all into my stuff. They would walk around my house, they would be all in the other rooms. They were jumping on my son’s bed. Just very disruptive.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did the family ever spend the evening at your house?

A. Do you mean like spend the night?

Q. Yes.

A. No.

Q. Were you ever asked if they could?

A. Yes.

Q. By who?

A. By them.

Q. Who is “them”?

A. Well, I -- Star would call me. I could hear Janet in the background, “Tell her you love her, Star. Tell her you love her.” And I was like, “O-kay.”

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as nonresponsive and irrelevant.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Who in the family asked you if the family could spend the night? Just give the name.

A. The children would ask me.

Q. All right. So this happened more than once?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you ever hear Janet directly ask you if the family could spend the night at your house?

A. I heard her telling Star to ask me.

Q. Okay. Did Janet herself ever ask you, if you remember?

A. No, I don’t remember that.

Q. Okay. Do you recall whether or not David ever asked you if the family could spend the night at your home?

A. No.

Q. You have -- I didn’t --

A. I mean -- no, he didn’t. That I recall. I don’t remember that.

Q. Now, you’ve indicated that Star called you on some occasions and you heard Janet in the background; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. How many times did that happen?

A. Several times.

Q. Okay. Do you recall whether or not Davellin ever called you on the phone during this time period?

A. Oh, excuse me. One second. Let me think about this. Davellin.

No. Davellin didn’t call me. It was usually Star. And -- I’m sorry, I think Gavin did call me a couple of times when he was out of the hospital. Yeah.

Q. Okay. And did you ever visit the Arvizos at their home?

A. No.

Q. How long were the Arvizo children enrolled in your class?

A. Like I said before, maybe a session or so.

Q. And how long would a session be?

A. We kind of went from September to June, you know, during that time. So, six, nine months or something.

Q. Okay.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Now, this was a school that you taught at, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And who owned the school?

A. Her name was Belinda Johnson. Her name is Belinda Johnson. It was a nonprofit performing arts center. And she had after-school tutoring, and actually had some -- she had some academics going on there, too. And we did performances with the young children for Christmas and stuff.

Q. Okay. Do you know whether or not the children paid for their schooling?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Irrelevant; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained. Foundation.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was your role at the school strictly to teach or were you involved in the business affairs as well?

A. Well, I mean, if someone came in and wasn’t going to pay, I would, you know, be asked, or, you know, “Is it okay that they take class?” And that kind of stuff. So, yeah. That way I was. And -- but I got a check -- well, not much, but I got paid a little bit for teaching.

Q. All right. Now, at some point in time, did you learn that the Arvizos were visiting Neverland?

A. Yeah, I helped set that up.

Q. What did you do?

A. Well, when I was visiting Gavin in the hospital, I had been to Neverland, and I knew, you know, what a nice -- what a wonderful place it was and that Michael would have kids come out there, especially children who were sick.

And I asked my friend Carol if she could possibly set it up for Gavin to go out there. And she -- do you want to hear any more?

Q. I’ll just go a little bit at a time, if I may.

A. Okay.

Q. And did you ever learn whether or not Carol Lamir had helped arrange for the Arvizos to go to Neverland?

A. Oh, yeah, she did. She did that -- with a little reluctancy, but she did it.

Q. Now, is Carol Lamir a friend of yours?

A. Yes.

Q. And is she still a friend of yours?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. At some point in time, did you ever learn whether Davellin was living with Carol Lamir?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Lack of foundation; irrelevant.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And what did you learn about that?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: I saw her there.

I’m sorry.

THE COURT: Next question.

MR. MESEREAU: Let me rephrase the question.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Davellin whether or not she was staying with Carol Lamir?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Hearsay; relevancy.

MR. MESEREAU: Impeachment.

MR. ZONEN: Collateral impeachment.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever visit Carol Lamir at her home?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you do that on a regular basis?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; irrelevant.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever see Davellin at Carol’s house?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; irrelevant.

MR. MESEREAU: Impeachment, Your Honor.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes, I did.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How many times did you see Davellin at Carol Lamir’s home?

A. When I was there?

Q. Yes.

A. She was there all the time when I -- during a time period of a couple of months.

Q. Did you actually see her there during those couple of months?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Davellin herself ever tell you she was staying at Carol Lamir’s?

A. Did she tell me? Do you mean like call me up and say, “Vernee, I’m at Carol’s,” or --

Q. Did Davellin ever tell you, “I’m living at Carol Lamir’s house”?

A. Well, I -- no, I mean, I just knew it. She was there.

Q. Did she ever discuss with you the fact that she was living with Carol Lamir?

A. No. Not really, no.

Q. Okay. When did you first learn that Davellin was staying at Carol Lamir’s home?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Lack of foundation; irrelevant.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: When she first got there. I mean, I don’t know the date. But I -- I know she was having some problems and that she needed --

MR. ZONEN: Objection.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

MR. ZONEN: Lack of foundation; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: I’m simply asking you --

A. Oh, I’m sorry.

Q. -- if you know that Davellin --

A. Carol called me as soon -- when she --

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as to hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
THE WITNESS: Oh, boy.
MR. MESEREAU: I’m sorry. Let me try and rephrase it.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Davellin ever say anything to you that indicated she was living at Carol Lamir’s house?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When did you first learn, through observation, that Davellin was staying at Carol Lamir’s home, if you know?
A. Do you mean when did I first look in her face in the house?
Q. Sure.
A. When I visited Carol after she moved in there.

Q. Okay. And do you know approximately when that was?
A. Well, the only thing I can say is that it was during a time when Carol’s son was in school, because it was -- yeah, because Davellin wasn’t and he was. So that’s during that time. I don’t remember exactly.
Q. And if you can estimate, how many times do you think you saw Davellin at Carol Lamir’s house?
A. 10, 15 times. I don’t know.
Q. Did you ever speak to Davellin inside Carol Lamir’s home?
A. Oh, yeah.
Q. Did you do that many times?
A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. Did she ever tell you why she was living at Carol Lamir’s house?
A. Not me, no.
Q. Okay. Did you ever talk to Gavin about his experiences at Neverland?
A. Yes.
Q. Approximately when was this?
A. The first time he went.

Q. What did he say?

MR. ZONEN: Objectionl; irrelevant.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?

MR. ZONEN: I have no questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

MR. MESEREAU: We have no further witnesses for today, Your Honor.

THE COURT: (To the jury) All right. We’ll excuse you until tomorrow morning. The Court will use the time. We’ll take up some motions that are pending.

Remember the admonition. I’ll see you at 8:30 tomorrow morning.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: All right. We have some motions pending that we can take up.

All right. The first issue I’ll take up is the plaintiff’s brief re admissible evidence of defendant’s character.

Do you wish to be heard?

MR. SNEDDON: Not unless you’re willing to change your mind. Let me just say this, because you already indicated --

MR. SANGER: Excuse me, I’m sorry.

MR. SNEDDON: -- you’ve already made a tentative indication.

THE COURT: I gave you both a tentative indication. That’s correct.

MR. SNEDDON: And so I would just say that we put everything in our brief, and nothing’s changed. I would just ask the Court, if you’re going to continue to make that ruling, that you give us the option, if at some point some witness comes in and opens the door, that we have the ability to renew the motion.

THE COURT: That would be the case. The Court -- the issue that's raised here is whether or not the defense has put Mr. Jackson's character at issue with some of the testimony concerning witnesses testifying that they have never seen Mr. Jackson do anything untoward towards children.

And under certain circumstances, that could raise character testimony. But I think that in this case, where the Court's allowed testimony under 1108, which was the testimony of alleged prior similar acts of sexual activity or that type of activity towards children, that that creates a situation where they're not raising character. They're just dealing with the 1108 material and rebutting the 1108 material.

So I'm not going to put them in a position where they're -- they can't try to rebut the 1108 material without being -- without being accused of raising character. So that's really why I'm ruling the way I am.

And so in a different context, they could raise character, and of course this ruling wouldn't have anything to do with what happens in the future, but I don't believe that they have at this time. So that's my ruling. Character's not at issue.

The next item that I'll take up is the testimony regarding -- the District Attorney's motion regarding testimony of David Conn.

Again, I gave a tentative ruling on that. The tentative ruling was that I would allow the cross-examination suggested by the District Attorney.

And do you wish to be heard on that?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

As I mentioned at sidebar, based upon the tentative ruling, we have withdrawn him as a witness.

THE COURT: All right. Then that moots that. If you change your mind, then I would reconsider their motion.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Thank you.

THE COURT: The next issue I want to take up is an issue that we keep going back to, the 400 series of exhibits, but every time I think we've put them to rest, I find out we have not.

The defense has notified me that they -- that even though the prosecution withdrew Exhibit 414 and 416, that they had asked that they be admitted into evidence. And I do remember -- when you reminded me of that, I now remember that you did make that request.

So it seems to me that 416 was -- there was a lot of testimony about 416.

Do you want to respond? Who's going to respond to this?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll respond to that, Your Honor.

If I could have the exhibit, please. Thank you.

THE COURT: Was there a foundation laid for 416?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I can't recall if the detective indicated whether or not he located these documents in Mr. Schaffel's home. If memory serves, I believe counsel did ask a couple of questions about that on cross-examination.

The problem with these exhibits is that it appears to be a writing or an accounting in someone's personal handwriting. No one has been identified, and it purports to be literally dozens, if not 100 receipts and additional accountings for items, with no testimony concerning the authenticity of the individual receipts, which probably is not of any great moment. They appear to be what they look like, receipts from various businesses, restaurants, stores.

But the purpose of this evidence, ostensible purpose for the defense is to attempt to prove that these purchases were made for the Arvizo family.

And if that's the case, there's absolutely no connection. There's no authentication or foundation for that position, given that we don't know who was present when these receipts were created. We don't know who the purchases were made for. We don't know who created the receipt, and therein lies the problem.

I'll also address the second question. Can you direct me to the exhibit that you were inquiring about, Your Honor?

THE COURT: 414 and 416 are the two exhibits. They really, I think, are the same.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: They're pretty much the same thing.

THE COURT: Let me hear what -- who's speaking for the defense?

MR. SANGER: I'm sorry, that was with regard to a witness issue, and I couldn't hear what you said. Did you ask to respond?

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: That was my guess, but I don't want to guess before talking.

THE COURT: Yes, thanks. Right. Thank you.

MR. SANGER: Can I inquire of the clerk, was 415 received?

THE CLERK: Yes.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Was the answer to that "Yes," Your Honor?

THE COURT: The answer was "Yes."

MR. SANGER: Okay. 415 was offered -- and I just want to make sure that was one of them. There were several exhibits, including 415, that were offered by the prosecution based on the fact that these documents were found in Mr. Schaffel's house, and therefore indicated that they were business records that were kept for some purpose.

THE COURT: Well, and you know that on most of those, I made them put in an additional foundation. Although there were some -- I can't remember how many now, but a few that I felt that that was sufficient. Do you think this comes within that clarification?

MR. SANGER: Well, I think if you look at 414, for instance, where there's just accountings, and I believe there was a couple of other exhibits in this book that come in that same category, that they're just general accountings or accounting documents that were found in Mr. Schaffel's file cabinets. And I think where the Court made a particular delineation was where you had documents that purported to be, for instance, contracts that may or may not have been signed, may or may not have been seen. There was a fax cover that didn't match the fax, you know.

THE COURT: And there were e-mail addresses that hadn't been verified and that kind of thing.

MR. SANGER: That's correct.

But I believe this would be consistent, allowing 414 -- I mean, 414 and 416 in would be consistent with the Court's other rulings where you had documents which appeared to be an accounting or financial documents that were kept in the business records at the Schaffel residence, that they would be admissible.

The fact is that 415 is a business record -- I'm sorry, I'm looking at the tab. 414 is a business record. It comes off the computer, just as 415 did, and includes a list of expenses that says, "Janet cash account. Vinnie, Frank."

And then when you go to 416, you have a "Summary of petty cash expenditures, Vinnie, for Janet and children." They're itemized, and then you have a whole bunch of receipts, some of which the subject matter has been covered by testimony of even Janet Arvizo, where she admitted that certain of these expenditures were made on her behalf.

So it would seem to me that it comes within the same category of items that were admitted, as I understood the Court's ruling, as business records that appeared to have been kept in the ordinary course of business at the Schaffel residence relating to what we've now heard from other testimony apparently was part of what he was involved in. And Vinnie and -- Vinnie was involved in purchasing things for Janet and the children.

Based on that, I think there's an adequate showing that this is not only a business record, but it's reliable. It's been testified to by the police officer. As I stand here, I think we asked somebody else about this too, but I can't be sure.

THE COURT: I think so, too. Let's take our break. I've got the argument.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: All right. On the issue of where we left, I'll admit 414 and 416.

Let's see, an issue came up during the break about Larry King. And counsel had asked me to allow him not to appear tomorrow because his attorney's father was ill. And now I understand that his -- her father has passed away.

MR. MESEREAU: That's what I've just learned, Your Honor.

THE COURT: But what I told you, just so it's clear, is that you fill up the space. He can come whenever you want him. I'm not telling him when he can come, when he can't come. But I want this court operating, not shut down, and I want that clear. We've shut down twice, now, for you. So you have your witnesses lined up, just like I made the D.A. have their witnesses lined up.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MESEREAU: If I may, Your Honor --

THE COURT: The next item --

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, if I may.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: Some issues have come up with regard to motions in limine filed recently, and as often as today or as current as today, involving certain witnesses we propose to call. And we have tried to work out some understandings in that regard, Your Honor, as we discussed in chambers briefly.

We were planning to call an expert named Mrs. Minnow, and she would take a considerable amount of time. The prosecution has filed a motion to preclude her testimony and have said that if she is allowed to testify, they will be calling an expert in the rebuttal case. And we're trying to work things out like that. And it appears there may be a mutual agreement not to call either one, for example.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MESEREAU: So as Mr. Sanger did mention to the Court earlier, we're trying to make sure the witnesses we call have a valid and clear and definite purpose. We're not just trying to call witnesses to make sure we have witnesses.
THE COURT: I understand.
MR. MESEREAU: And I want the Court to know that. We're trying to pare things down.
THE COURT: Both sides do that. And both sides, you know, have to have their witnesses lined up. I said this from day one. And that means if I exclude a witness's testimony, right then you still have to have a witness available to testify. So it's -- the burden on you is no greater than the burden was on the District Attorney. If anything, it's less. You've had a lot more time since the trial started to have your witnesses lined up.
I understand the fact that situations change, and I appreciate you're trying to do a good job with that, but we have to think about the fact that we've had a jury. We've taken them out of their lives. We've still got several weeks to go, and not using the times available, we've got law enforcement standing around in the outer areas. We've got all sorts of funds committed to this trial that, when we shut down, costs us, and that's why I encourage you to -- strongly encourage you to keep the witnesses coming.

MR. MESEREAU: I understand, Your Honor, and we'll try to do that.
THE COURT: Okay.
MR. MESEREAU: Appreciate it.
THE COURT: And any of the matters that we're deciding that you don't want me to decide because you think you're trying to work something out, tell me. They're not really formal in limine motions. They're really motions that are just being made as quickly as either side can make them, just -- and I appreciate it. What you're doing is giving me a heads-up on an issue that's going to come up on an issue that I'm going to need to rule on, and that really helps me because we can spend the time to do that.

MR. SANGER: I was waiting for the opportunity to tell you that one of them is taken off the table with an agreement, and I'd just like to refer to that. It's the motion that was -- one of them I believe was filed this morning by the District Attorney to exclude the testimony of Mary Minnow, and Mr. Mesereau referred to that. I believe Mr. Sneddon would agree.

Part of their response was, if we called Miss Minnow, they would call their expert, and we would mutually agree to withdraw our expert on the agreement that they withdraw their expert. Obviously subject to some other change in circumstances, but basically --

THE COURT: That would be --

MR. SANGER: If we called another expert, for instance, that would change the ballgame.

THE COURT: Okay. Do you agree with that?

MR. SNEDDON: I do.

THE COURT: All right. Then I'll accept the stipulation, and I will not make a ruling on those issues.

MR. SANGER: And I think that's what Mr. Mesereau was respectfully referring to was that was a big hole for tomorrow, so we're doing our best to fill it.

THE COURT: Part of the problem here, too, is that I'm going to try to end early Friday. You know, we had Friday set aside as not going so you could go to your appointment, and now, because of the issue that has arisen involving the testimony of Geragos, I've had to use that time.

To the extent that we can finish Mr. Geragos on Friday, then I won't expect you to call any more witnesses on Friday so that Mr. Sanger can go to the event that he had made a commitment to go to.

But --

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: -- that means it's all the more important that we use today and tomorrow and Monday, okay?

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

One other thing that might factor in. You said “quite a number of weeks” or “a number of weeks,” something like that. We have pared down our witness list even more since yesterday, so things are going even more quickly, and I think it’s safe to say that “a number of weeks” is probably an overstatement on the amount of time that we’re going to be taking up, here.

THE COURT: Well --

MR. SANGER: Just to point that out. I’m not criticizing the Court.

THE COURT: That’s one place I would really like to be wrong.

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: There’s -- to overestimate when the trial will be completed, that would be great to be wrong.

MR. SANGER: We had talked generally where we were, and we have eliminated a number of witnesses since we had that discussion with the Court.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you. I know you’re working hard. I’m not accusing you of not working hard to get this done. I’m just saying get it done.

The James -- let me see. Let me take up the next thing. What was I going to take up? We’re not going to take up the Geragos issue until Friday, because I believe he should be here and has standing to be involved in that.

Take up the plaintiff’s motion to exclude hearsay testimony of defense witness Michael Viner. I’ll give you a tentative. Do you want a tentative, or --

MR. ZONEN: I believe you already had, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I gave a sidebar tentative; is that right?

MR. ZONEN: You gave an open court tentative.

THE COURT: Open court tentative.

MR. ZONEN: Yes.

THE COURT: All right. Does either side wish to say anything before I make a ruling on that issue?

MR. SANGER: I'm not sure what the Court's tentative was on this one. You had given a tentative on two others.

MR. MESEREAU: To grant the motion to exclude.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Yes, it was before we had filed the brief.

THE COURT: That's correct.

MR. SANGER: It was the same day that they filed --

THE COURT: That's correct.

MR. SANGER: So you have not given a tentative since you've had a chance to look at the transcript cites that we --

THE COURT: Correct.

MR. SANGER: Does that change the Court's tentative?

THE COURT: Well, a little bit.

You know, to the extent that this may apply to Larry King also, since he was -- if I remember the testimony correctly, he was at a table with Viner or next to Viner, and they may have overheard the same thing. So to the extent that we're talking about the same conversation, then this ruling would be the same, you know; apply to both of these people.

And I think that the testimony would be -- the part that I would allow would be that Mr. Feldman was heard to express opinions contrary to his assertion that anyone that said that he expressed opinions about his clients would be a liar.

But I'm not going to allow the specific statements that are opinions of the credibility of the witnesses, accepting the D.A.'s argument that it's improper to give opinions about the credibility of other people. And this is -- I'm not going to let it in through the side door which I wouldn't -- what I wouldn't let in through the front door, in spite of your “They opened the door.” You know what I’m talking about?

MR. MESEREAU: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: So may I respond?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Sounds like there’s quite a breeze going through this house here.

I understand the Court’s ruling. I’ll just try to go right to the exact point that I think is the sticking point, and we’ll see if it is or it isn’t.

I think the impeachment of Mr. Feldman is not just that he said that and just to show that he then said something different, that he did express opinions about a client’s case in public when he said he didn’t, but also to show, to the contrary of what the prosecution was trying to show on the merits of this, that Mr. Feldman’s testimony was being offered to show that he -- that Janet Arvizo abandoned the case and that they were no longer seeking money, something to that effect.

And that’s certainly what was argued in the opening statement, and it was a fair interpretation of Mr. Feldman’s testimony under direct examination by the prosecution; that he was saying, “Gee,” you know, “This case was given up because the Arvizos just didn’t really want to pursue it.” It is contrary to what we believe to be the case and we have some other evidence on that. But in this particular instance, you have Mr. Feldman expressing an opinion indicating that he’s not taking a case because he doesn’t think they’re credible.

Now, for that purpose, it would be offered for, in that regard, not for the truth of the matter that they’re not credible, so it doesn’t go to the issue of credibility per se, which the prosecution is objecting to, but it does go directly to the contention of the prosecution that they, for some reason, had this contingent fee arrangement for a lawyer and they were not seeking money. I mean, it makes no sense, but that’s their contention.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, in the Simmons California Evidence Manual, it reads as follows:

"Counsel often mistakenly believe that if they allow the other party to admit objectionable evidence by refraining from making the objection, they will then be entitled to admit relevant evidence that is otherwise inadmissible. The so-called 'open the door' or 'open the gates' argument is a popular fallacy." And it quotes a number of different cases including People vs. Gambos and People vs. Williams.

The questions were asked by Mr. Mesereau on cross-examination. It was done for purposes of soliciting information that is not relevant to this proceeding, that is not material, and that is inadmissible for purposes simply because it's opinion, improper opinion, to then be able to set up an opportunity to be able to engage in impeachment. That's improper impeachment. You can't do that.

In that regard we're going to be asking that the matter be kept out in total. In total. We do not feel that any of that is admissible.

One other issue we have to deal with is that I don't know if Mr. King actually is going to come, Larry King. But my conversation with his attorney, Kelli Sager, who is the attorney who represented Ian Drew in this proceeding, and I think the Court remembers her contribution to this proceeding, unless they can show in advance that any of that statement actually was aired and published, published in the journalist sense, in other words, it appeared on the television or in radio or newsprint coming directly from Mr. King, I don't believe Mr. King is going to say one word in this proceeding without Miss Sager standing up and yelling, and I suspect that the result will be exactly the same as what happened with Mr. Drew. And he is the witness to this encounter. And in the absence of that witness, I think it's one more factor for the Court to put into this equation in terms of whether or not this material should come before the jury, because one of the witnesses, I suspect, will simply not be testifying based on the shield law.

MR. SANGER: May I respond to that?

THE COURT: Yeah. Yeah.

MR. SANGER: And Miss Sager unfortunately is the person who lost her father just now. But I did talk to her day before yesterday specifically about this, and she said that this is not covered by the shield law. She agrees, because it was a conversation being had in a restaurant, and she is not objecting to Larry King's testimony as to this. She would object to anything we attempted to elicit with regard to any reporting that he was doing, but she agrees that this is not -- this is not reporting.

So I -- I pass that along as being what she did tell me, and I believe she will show up or her partner will show up at the appropriate time and say exactly that.

The other thing is that Larry King -- we've got both Larry King and Michael Viner lumped together here. I believe Larry King is going to say that -- something to the effect -- I don't have the exact quote, but something to the effect that he -- that he was discussing the case, saying, "She's crazy and all she wants is money."

So it goes directly to the money issue as to whether or not Janet Arvizo is involved in wanting money. She says all she wants is zero. And Major Jay Jackson says, "All we want is zero," using the same terms. That is not evidently what they told Mr. Feldman, and it would run contrary to any lawyer's observation that Mr. Feldman is not going to take a case like this on a contingent fee if somebody doesn't want money. This, however, for the jury's purpose, is evidence showing that what he said is, in fact, contradicted by his own statements.

And so we'd ask to admit it.

THE COURT: That's a little different than the problem I was having with the opinions as to his opinion that they were only in the case for money, as opposed to her saying -- someone reporting -- I guess he's reporting. That's double hearsay, right? He's reporting that Feldman said that she said? Is that what you're -- how you're putting it now?

MR. SANGER: Well, I suppose that -- that wasn't how I was putting it, but I understand the Court's construction of that. However, the important thing is that Feldman said it, because Feldman on the stand said that wasn't the case. So whether -- let's assume for the moment --

THE COURT: Well, the question is, are you offering an opinion by Feldman that -- are you offering a statement that he gave an opinion that all she wanted was money, or are you offering a statement that she said all she wanted was money?

MR. SANGER: I believe he will say she said that.

THE COURT: That's not what you have in your brief.

MR. SANGER: Well, the brief -- of course the brief was very brief.

THE COURT: Right.

MR. SNEDDON: It was done very quickly.

THE COURT: The quote --

MR. SANGER: That's true.

THE COURT: You didn't leave any ellipsis in there.

MR. SANGER: The door was opened and it could have gotten away.

Quite frankly, the brief was with regard to Viner, and now we have King. But anyway, that's what we believe that Mr. King will say. However, either way, I understand what is the distinction.

THE COURT: The safest way to handle this is to have a little 402 hearing before you -- before either of those people testify, so there's nothing -- so that I know exactly what they say they heard.

MR. SANGER: That's fair enough, because we have been dealing through lawyers with them, and so I think that's a fair enough way to --

THE COURT: So you haven't had a one-on-one conversation? Okay.

MR. MESEREAU: That's not --

THE COURT: And I will instruct them, and I would like you to let them know, if I rule certain things cannot come in, they cannot blurt that out.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, that statement is not completely true. I was at -- having lunch at The Grill one day in Los Angeles, and Larry King was there, and he told me that.

THE COURT: You were having lunch at --

MR. MESEREAU: I was. Larry King was there.

THE COURT: They can’t hear you back there. You’re --

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. All right.

MR. ZONEN: We have not been furnished a report of counsel’s conversation with this witness. And before it’s broadcast to the press, I think we ought to be given a written comment of this.

THE BAILIFF: They didn’t hear you either.

MR. MESEREAU: I happened to be having lunch one day --

MR. ZONEN: I have a request, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I deny your request. Go ahead.

MR. MESEREAU: -- at The Grill restaurant in Beverly Hills. And Mr. King, I believe, came over and introduced himself and blurted out this statement. I then asked my investigator to follow up on it. And I have had no further discussions. The investigator has talked to Mr. King’s attorney, I believe, and got from him what he’s going to say and that was a statement turned over. But I want to make sure the Court knows what happened.

THE COURT: Thank you. So it would behoove all of us to start having lunch at The Grill.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: All right. We’ll do that with 402 hearings.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, if I may, just for the record, I didn’t interview him.

THE BAILIFF: Please use the microphone.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. All right. I did not interview Mr. King.

THE COURT: I understand. He came over and voluntarily told you.

MR. MESEREAU: And I asked an investigator to follow up on it. Thank you.

THE COURT: Okay. The next item I’ll take up is the James Newton. That was on -- handed to me just a little while ago.

MR. SANGER: It’s the People’s motion, but if I could be heard, because I think I can focus the issue much more.

THE COURT: Yes. Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: It was just handed and so therefore I don’t have the document in front of me.

And we obviously have not had a chance to file anything in writing, but the motion talks about a number of conclusions in the article that relate to the wrapping up of the Michael Jackson case and there are quotes from Gil Garcetti and other people in there that the People object to. None of that is what we intend to introduce.

There is a statement by Larry Feldman, a quote in the article. And I don’t know if the Court has a copy of the article there. I don’t think it was attached to their moving papers.

THE COURT: It’s not attached, no.

MR. SANGER: We can provide that. But there’s a quote in the article, basically two different quotes by Mr. Feldman, where he was quoted verbatim saying that he was, in 1993 -- this is an article written in 1994. He said in the 1993-1994 case, that he had -- he was disappointed that the prosecution did not go ahead and prosecute, and that he would much rather have had the District Attorney prosecute so that it would help him in his civil case.

And Your Honor may recall that on the stand here, he said something to the effect, “You’d have to be nuts to do that. You don’t want to have the prosecution go first.” So it’s an absolute contradiction. That’s the only thing from that article that we want to bring in.

I’m paraphrasing this off the top of my head, but I think it’s pretty close. There are two different quotes. They’re in two different paragraphs, I think. But they essentially add up to what I just said. And that’s the only thing we want to offer, and I think it’s admissible for the reasons stated.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SNEDDON: First of all, Judge, there’s been no verification with regard to what context that statement was made and when that statement was made. But if you look at the history of that case, as everybody knows it, the fact of the matter is, that Mr. Feldman’s case was completed and the money was already in the bank before we had ever finished our investigation.

So the statement makes no sense at all. He had already obtained a civil settlement from the defendant prior to the time we had finished our investigation. The time of that press conference is not until seven months later, after Mr. Feldman had already completed his case. So it has nothing to do with that statement. Nothing whatsoever. He couldn’t be disappointed about anything. He’s already got his money and he’s already got his settlement.

THE COURT: Do you have the article? Have you seen it.

MR. SNEDDON: I had it. We got it last night at -- we just saw it. Maybe it was this morning, I don’t know. We just got it. And we immediately -- it may have been last night we got it. But I might -- I don’t have it here. I actually thought it was attached, but it’s not.

MR. MESEREAU: Miss Yu has it on her system. She can print it out for you.

MR. SANGER: Or perhaps she’s got to go upstairs.

MR. SNEDDON: The timing of this makes no sense in light -- it’s attributed to him, and of course he was never asked about this particular statement at any point in time, so it wouldn’t be impeaching.

MR. MESEREAU: Would you like to just see the screen, Your Honor?

THE COURT: That would be fine, if I can just see the quote.

MS. YU: Which quote do you want?

MR. SANGER: May I approach, or to deliver the laptop?

THE COURT: Yes. Do you want to look at this, Mr. Sneddon?

MR. SANGER: I'm just going to scroll down a little bit and then I'll turn it around for you.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Let me just make sure. Yes, okay. I believe that's the quote we're talking about. Do you want me to take it?

THE COURT: That's fine.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you.

THE COURT: Okay. I think what I'll do on that is, if you would give me a printed out copy, I'll look at Mr. Feldman's testimony, which I have in my office, and see how it fits, how the two things fit.

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: If you want to help me with that, Mr. Sneddon, if you'd find the -- either of you.

MR. MESEREAU: Miss Yu is getting you a copy.

THE COURT: I was just saying, I remember -- at this point I remember the essence of Mr. Feldman's statement. I don't remember his exact statement, and I want to see -- compare the two and see if they are truly inconsistent, which I need to do.

MR. SNEDDON: Yeah, it would have been easier to pinpoint the exact statement, but when I asked Mr. Sanger if that was the subject of the person's testimony, he didn't pinpoint that for me, so we just had to file the motion the way we did, otherwise I would have done that beforehand.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: And I apologize. If Mr. Sneddon asked me that, I didn't get the call of his question. I certainly would have told him that that was it. So I apologize to Mr. Sneddon for not making that clear.

THE COURT: Okay. The next one is -- I just received, too, is another -- Dexter Mason and Paul Kruegman.

MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor. That was just filed by the prosecution. We can respond to it orally.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: All right. Understanding I've been working here instead of reading this over carefully, but it's a short motion and the thrust of it is the Court has already made a ruling that the evidence with regard to J.C. Penney's is limited, and we have, in fact, tried to limit our testimony about that.

However, these two witnesses, of the 20 or so that could be called with regard to that, these two witnesses go right to the heart of the J.C. Penney's testimony by Janet Arvizo and why it was fraudulent.

And Dexter Mason was one of the security guards who was accused by Janet Arvizo of beating her and sexually molesting her on the ground and while she was up against a wall, and there was all that detail that we believe ties into a pattern that on at least three occasions has been demonstrated by Miss Arvizo. Allegations are made, false imprisonment, and then months later you come up with some kind of sexual thing. She did that to her husband, she did it to the J.C. Penney's people, and she did it to Mr. Jackson.

Paul Kruegman is a civilian. He's an individual who was -- just happened to be in the parking garage, and he saw the woman, which would be Janet Arvizo, striking the security guards, and saw them simply restrain her. There was no sexual molesting. There was no kicking, pounding or bruising or anything else.

We feel that in light of the credibility issues involved and the significance of this family litigating in unison and being deposed in a choreographed fashion to make out a case against

J.C. Penney's, that it is relevant that we be allowed to at least bring in these two witnesses.

Now, we had a bunch of other ones and we made the cut. And I'm assuming the Court wouldn't punish us for doing that. We could have come in with 20 people and said, "Can we just call two?" But we picked the two that we think are appropriate on those issues. They will not cause a great deal of consumption of time, but I think it will be of significance to the jury in seeing this same pattern and understanding the significance of that pattern in this case.

THE COURT: What about -- I mean, you were talking about Paul Kruegman, right?

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: What about Dexter Mason?

MR. SANGER: Dexter Mason was one of the security guards who was accused of punching, kicking and molesting her. And he will not only tell you that --

Oh, thank you.

Appreciate the Court asking that question, because he will not only tell you that he didn't do it, but he will also say that the very next day, Janet Arvizo came to J.C. Penney's and -- while she was facing criminal charges, she came to J.C. Penney's and hugged him and apologized.

I think that's just critical testimony that confirms the same modus operandi to try to ingratiate yourself, as well as the modus operandi of proceeding seriatum to make increasing charges and claims resulting in sexual charges and claims when it comes down to trying to get something resolved in her favor.

THE COURT: Seems to me, though, that these two witnesses are just witnesses that end up doing exactly what I've been trying to prevent, which is to litigate all of the facts of the J.C. Penney case, you know, and we've -- we had -- I think you went beyond what I had ordered, and then the response by the District Attorney was to bring in the pictures, the photographs, and now we're back on that.

I'm not in favor of extending the J.C. Penney litigation here.

MR. SANGER: I understand the Court's not in favor of it, and I'm trying to persuade Your Honor that we should do it anyway. I think it's very limited, and I think, you know, the People did bring in the pictures. They widened it a little bit. I'm not saying the whole thing should be relitigated, but I think this is pretty critical testimony, particularly coming back the next day and offering an apology and a hug, and then once their criminal case is resolved, then they sue them and then -- and then escalate their claims.

So I think it is particularly relevant. I don't think that it is going to open yet another door to some large relitigation, but it's -- it's a fair response to their showing pictures. It's a fair, I think, comment or fair evidence as to the hugging and the apologies and then the escalation of claims.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, we didn't ask anything about the J.C. Penney's lawsuit in our direct examination. That was entirely brought up on cross-examination, and we dealt with it in a very limited and perfunctory fashion on redirect examination in a manner that we felt addressed the specific issues, and we did so in as limited a way as we could.

The Court indicated at the time that this motion was litigated, back, I think, in January, that we were not going to be litigating the J.C. Penney's lawsuit. If these two witnesses are called to testify, we're going to be exploring our options in terms of dealing with rebuttal witnesses and in terms of addressing exactly those issues. And this was exactly what we advised the Court that we felt was going to be the problem with this type of thing; that we are effectively, once again, litigating a case that took place six or seven years ago. We would ask that these witnesses not be allowed to testify.

THE COURT: All right. I'm going to rule that they cannot testify.

All right. Okay. The only other issue I think I have left was a memo about leading questions filed by the District Attorney asking me to -- basically I guess the position is that I have allowed leading questions on redirect by the defense. And you want me to quit doing that and chastise the defense for asking leading questions on redirect. Is that the essence?

MR. ZONEN: I don’t need the chastisement, but quit doing that, yes.

THE COURT: Let’s talk about it a minute, you know.

MR. ZONEN: Okay.

THE COURT: There’s a lot of evidence in this case that’s in, it’s been in through umpteen witnesses, you know. Two witness, five witnesses, whatever. And during direct it’s brought out without leading questions. You do your cross, and then they come back and do some leading. And leading questions are allowed where it expedites the proceedings. They aren’t required to lay a foundation, go back through every step. Neither are you. I’m sure they’re as chagrined as you are sometimes when what is obviously a leading question I overrule.

The law is not that you have to prohibit all leading questions. You know, you have to -- the Judge has to measure whether or not there’s any loss of evidentiary value by a leading question. And if the evidence is in -- in fact, I think the waste of time here is people objecting to leading questions all the time. It’s -- you know, it’s a useless objection. Very seldom does it get you anywhere.

Here’s an example: “Are the buttons on your sweater blue?” And I get from both sides, “Objection, leading question.”

Well, what is the suggestion there? You know, answer “yes” or “no.”

It’s a little different than, “You are wearing a sweater with blue buttons, aren’t you?” It’s a little different, and if you can’t perceive that difference, then we got a problem.

So putting words in a witness's mouth is a leading question. Asking questions that can be answered "yes" or "no" that are inconsequential anyway, the waste of time comes from the objection, not from the question or the answer.

So I don't find your suggestion to be productive. I would still weigh each objection that you make on each of you, but, you know, I've tried whole cases where I haven't had as many objections as you all are giving me in a day. I mean, it's literally -- you know, not to pick on anybody, but we had someone object to an answer that was in Spanish. No one knew what she'd said, and we had an objection.

I mean, what -- you know what I mean.

Mr. Zonen? Do you wish to say anything?

MR. ZONEN: No, thank you.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: You're all doing a good job. I appreciate the hard work you're doing.

Is there anything else to come before the Court today?

All right. Court's in recess.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, shall I use the term "open the floodgates"?

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Oh, I'm sorry. Counsel, I forgot. My secretary just pointed out I didn't cover the Vinnie Amen issue.

MR. SANGER: That is true. That's on the list.

THE COURT: I can't tell from your points and authorities -- I guess what I'm saying, does this require a 402 hearing? Does -- no? Who's going speak to it?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, I will for the People, Your Honor.

Have you received our response?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It's our position that's dispositive of the issue. We are not going to -- I think the question that was presented to the Court and to counsel was that whether or not Mr. Amen had been granted use immunity. Two things are pointed out in our response.

One, the District Attorney has no power to grant use immunity. It's something that the Court can petition -- or the District Attorney can petition the Court for a grant of use immunity.

THE COURT: Can you grant use immunity without petitioning the Court?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I don't believe so.

THE COURT: Can you just grant it in your office?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I do not believe so.

THE COURT: Did you --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I know of no authority for that, and I don't know of any time that it's ever been done in our office.

Every time that, in my experience as a prosecutor, we have sought use immunity for a witness, it has been through a petition.

But secondarily, the fact remains that we have never given or agreed to give Vinnie Amen use immunity.

THE COURT: This --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It's predicated on his taking the stand as a witness for the People, and that discussion fell through.

THE COURT: It says he was offered -- in the sheriff's report, it says he was offered use immunity.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, the lieutenant in that case is paraphrasing a conversation. And I'm not sure he's privy to the legalities of use immunity or exactly the discussion that took place.

I can represent to the Court that I talked to John Fahey, Mr. Amen's attorney, about this, to confirm that our understanding was identical. And he did agree with me, and that is what I placed in my affidavit.

THE COURT: Who's going to speak for the defense?

MR. SANGER: I am, Your Honor.

I must admit, in the rush to do all these things, I can't find my moving papers. I've got their response, but the --

THE COURT: Do you want -- I think these are your moving -- is the one with the sheriff's report attached to it?

MR. SANGER: Yes, yes. Thank you. I don't want to take it from the Court if you need it. Thank you.

First of all, Mr. Auchincloss was there. There is a tape of this, of this interview, and Mr. Auchincloss was right there while this immunity was discussed on the tape. So it may be necessary to have a 402 hearing where we either play the tape or have Mr. Amen here. It would be nice to resolve this before flying him out from the East Coast.

THE COURT: When does --

MR. SANGER: We had hoped to call him next week, but we're waiting for a ruling on this so that we can, you know, schedule him for a particular day. We could lodge the tape with the Court so the Court could listen to it. I don't know how -- you don't have to listen to the whole thing. It's several hours. You could just listen to the beginning where they talk about it.

The fact of the matter is, number one, Mr. Auchincloss was there, so so much for saying that the lieutenant doesn't know what he's talking about.

Number two, they very clearly gave Mr. Amen immunity. They told him that. His lawyer was present. And there is no discussion about, "This is subject to us going to court and getting court approval." That's number two.

Number three, use immunity can be conferred de facto by a prosecutor. It is true that the statute says that the Court is ultimately the one to determine whether or not immunity should be granted. In other words, the order. The prosecutor can't give an order of immunity, because the prosecutor is not a judicial officer. That requires a judicial officer to have the order of immunity.

However, effectively, a person can be granted and is granted routinely immunity, and in my experience, as opposed to Mr. Auchincloss's evidently, the immunity is granted routinely by police officers and district attorneys. Usually the District Attorney's Office is involved, is granted routinely to people. They're told, "You have immunity. Come on, let's talk."

That's what happened here. They have a lawyer, you have immunity and talk.

What happened was Mr. Amen went through very patiently, very politely, as I think we heard he was, for I want to say two and a half hours or maybe more and answered all of their questions. They said they didn't finish the interview. They asked him to get some documents and bring them back. And he said, "Yeah, I'll go find the documents and bring them back."

We have no follow-up report, so I don't know if he ever did that, but they asked him virtually every question. Mr. Auchincloss asked him questions himself. Mr. Auchincloss participated in the interview at great length, all under a purported grant of immunity.

And were they to prosecute Mr. Amen and say, "We're now going to use these statements against you," you can bet that his lawyer would be in here and say, "Your Honor, he was granted immunity." And the Court would say, "Yeah, Mr. Auchincloss, you sat there with the sheriff saying, 'You have immunity. Talk to us.' You cannot use those statements."

So de facto immunity was granted.

What has happened is, Mr. Amen very specifically answered their questions about his interaction with Janet Arvizo and contradicted -- not only contradicted, but explained exactly what happened, and explained things that, now we see from other evidence, were in fact true.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object to counsel's paraphrasing the interview in a way that he perceives to be beneficial to his client.

MR. SANGER: Well, I don't know how else I would be speaking if I didn't deal with --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It's irrelevant to the discussion.

MR. SANGER: It is relevant.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: There's an objection.

MR. SANGER: I'm sorry. There's an objection, so I'll stop.

THE COURT: Well, I'll give you an opportunity. I'm not going to sustain the objection. I'm trying to -- I'd like to back up, though, to the point.

Mr. Auchincloss, how would you like to proceed? There is a tape-recording. Do you want to -- it sounds to me like a 402 hearing is necessary.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: We can do that if you wish, Your Honor.

The issue is, though, that the agreement was reached before we went on tape. We went -- as I recall. And I talked to Mr. Fahey about this, and his recollection is identical to mine.

So the issue as to whether or not immunity was to be granted was conditional upon being called by the People as a witness. That was clearly the understanding. It was not just, "We're going to grant you immunity, and whatever happens happens."

So, you know, he's -- of course, Mr. Fahey's on the East Coast, and I suppose we could, for the sake of convenience, conference him in in some fashion into this inquiry.

But I'll listen to the tape again. Perhaps that will -- I mean, I haven't listened to it recently.

THE COURT: Okay. Just a moment.

(Discussion off the record at counsel table.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And that's -- Mr. Sneddon makes a good point. We'd be happy to provide a declaration under penalty of perjury from Mr. Amen's attorney, Mr. Fahey. That may be handling the issue right there.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, that's my point.

It's not up to Mr. Fahey right now to make some judgment call. The People didn't evidently like the testimony. They offered immunity. That's our position. It’s -- I believe it’s sufficiently called out on the actual audiotape, because I got the audiotape before I got the report and I listened to the tape. And I heard that, and we’ll get the tape so the Court can hear it.

I’m always subject -- I always say these things subject to, you know, actually having the evidence, but I’m certain that it’s on the tape to start with. So if that --

THE COURT: Why don’t we start with that. Let me hear the tape, and then maybe I can see what’s the best way to proceed from there.

MR. SANGER: All right. We will get a copy of that for you as soon as possible. No later than tomorrow morning.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: And I think, unless you want us to try to redact it, we’ll give you Disk 1. If I’m not mistaken, I think there’s three disks. Three or four disks, right?

THE COURT: I just want --

MR. SANGER: It’s just -- in other words, we’ll give you Disk 1, but -- the whole thing. You don’t have listen to the whole thing. You just have to listen to the beginning.

THE COURT: Just the beginning. It’s -- you could leave a note if I need to -- you know, if there’s several conversations, you leave a note and say, “Don’t stop at the end of the first conversation,” or something, that would help me.

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: If it’s all in -- once you get into that subject matter, it’s all completed, I’d appreciate a note to that effect so I know not to keep going.

MR. SANGER: We’ll give you the counter numbers, which should be the same.

THE COURT: Is it on a DVD?

MR. SANGER: It’s on a DVD or a CD, a disk.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Since what’s on the tape is only a portion of the discussion that we had, which was somewhat lengthy before the tape started, I would like to go ahead and submit a declaration from Mr. Fahey, with the Court's permission.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: I'm not -- I mean, we have a problem here with Mr. Auchincloss also, you know, sort of testifying before this Court as to what happened. You know, we don't --

THE COURT: I'm not -- I understand the difference between attorneys talking and testimony. And when he submits a declaration, then I'll decide whether or not that's sufficient and whether or not I would allow you to cross-examine if there's some issue there. I'm not going to just accept -- we're trying to see what's the least bothersome to everybody that we have to do, whether we have to call him out here to testify, you know, when maybe he's not going to testify. I don't know. So if you give me the tape and you give me a declaration, give it to the other side, and then we can make a decision as to where we go from there.

MR. SANGER: Very well, Your Honor. And we're hoping to call him. He's not under subpoena, but his lawyer has agreed to produce him as long as the Court clarifies the immunity issue.

Pardon me for sitting down. If I stand up, I'll be too far from that.

And his lawyer's agreed to produce him, so we would like to know as soon as possible so we could get him on a plane to get him out here, within reason.

THE COURT: With me, I'm saying we've got to move along. I understand we need to know the answer to this as soon as possible.

MR. SANGER: I will return the Court's copy.

THE COURT: Thank you. All right.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I have the CD on the other issue, but I listened to it this morning. Did you deliver that, Mr. Sanger?

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir, we delivered it with a pleading.

THE COURT: And the transcript, I have that.

MR. SANGER: The same way we were doing that. Okay.

THE COURT: So what do you want to do with this? I listened to it. Should we put it in evidence or --

MR. SANGER: I think -- as we suggest in writing, I think we should mark it as an exhibit.

THE COURT: Next in order.

MR. SANGER: Next in order, yes.

THE CLERK: That would be 5088.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. Now, I understand you're ready to call your next witness.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor. The defense will call Mr. Larry King.

THE COURT: All right.

Mr. King, come forward, please.

MR. BLUM: Good morning, Your Honor.

My name is Jeff Blum at Davis Wright Tremaine representing nonparty journalist Mr. King this morning. I'm here with Mr. Fields and Mr. Barondess, Mr. King's private attorneys.

MR. FIELDS: Good morning, Your Honor.

MR. BLUM: Your Honor, we have submitted a short memorandum outlining the shield law along the lines of Mr. Drew's testimony several weeks ago for the US Weekly.

And what Mr. King requests is that you conduct a brief 402 hearing to determine the scope of the direct and cross-examination to protect Mr. King's rights under California shield law and the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

THE COURT: All right. I've reviewed your points and authorities. Thank you.

Mr. King, would you stand, and I'll have you sworn. Please raise your right hand, face the clerk.

//

LARRY KING

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Larry King. L-a-r-r-y.

K-i-n-g.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

MR. MESEREAU: Shall I conduct the hearing, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Before you start, let me complete a note I’m making.

THE BAILIFF: Make sure you guys either talk at the microphone --

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, Mr. King’s counsel would like to reserve the right to object.

Where would you like him to be?

THE COURT: Right there is fine.

MR. BLUM: All right. Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: With your permission, I will not go into Mr. King’s background, I’ll simply get to the heart of the matter, the questions that I think are of importance to the Court.

THE COURT: I appreciate that.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning, Mr. King.

A. Good morning.

Q. Mr. King, do you know an attorney named Larry Feldman?

A. I do.

Q. And how long have you known Attorney Larry Feldman?

A. Probably ten years.

Q. And do you have -- do you meet with Mr. Feldman from time to time?

A. Occasionally.

Q. And have you interviewed Mr. Feldman?

A. Yes.

Q. My questions are not going to concern any of those interviews.

Have you ever discussed this case with Attorney Larry Feldman?

A. Yes.

Q. When did that happen?

A. Last year sometime, I think. I don’t know the date.

Q. And approximately what month do you think it was?

A. Gee, I, you know -- I’d be -- it would be a wild guess. It was sometime before this trial started.

Q. Okay.

A. Quite some time.

Q. And where did this meeting take place?

A. Took place at Nate ‘n Al’s Restaurant in Beverly Hills.

Q. Who else was present?

A. One of my producers, Nancy Baker, and three friends, Sid Young, Asher Dan and Michael Viner.

Q. And who arranged the meeting?

A. We contacted him -- I contacted Larry Feldman in order to try to convince him to come on our show.

Q. And did Mr. Feldman show up at Nate ‘n Al’s?

A. He did.

Q. Did he show up with anyone else?

A. No.

Q. Did he sit down with you?

A. We were in adjoining booths. He sat here. The booths only hold four. So -- I have breakfast there every morning. So I was sitting here, and Asher was sitting there, and Sid was sitting there, and Michael over here, and Nancy over there, and Larry Feldman was sitting right next to me.

Q. Did Mr. Feldman express any interest in working with your show?

A. Very much.

Q. How long did the meeting last?

A. About 45 minutes.

Q. Okay. Did Mr. Feldman say anything to you about the Michael Jackson case?

A. He did.

Q. What did he say?

A. He said that -- that the case of ten years ago, when he represented the other person when there was a settlement, that was a definite good case. But he thought the woman in this case, the mother, was a whacko, was the term he used, and he thought she was in it for just the money. He had met with her. He didn’t want to represent her. He advised her to see someone else and he informed the authorities. He didn’t tell me which authorities.

Q. Did he say that this woman told him she wanted money?

A. No, I think he said he thinks she wants money.

Q. Did he say what he based that opinion on?

A. No.

Q. Did you ask him?

A. No. He just said she was a whacko. That -- he said “whacko” a couple of times, and he said, “She’s in this for the money.”

Q. When he said she was a whacko, did you ask Mr. Feldman what he meant?

A. No, I think that’s self-explanatory.

Q. Okay. Did he say anything else about Janet Arvizo?

A. Other than he refused to take her case.

Q. Okay. Did he give any other reasons why he refused to take her case?

A. He thought that it was -- she was just in it for the money, and she was a little erratic, or whacko, as he said, and he didn’t want to represent her.

Q. Did he say he had met Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he tell you how many times he had met her?

A. No.

Q. Did he tell you where he met her?

A. I gathered it was his office, but he didn’t say that.

Q. Now, you said he, Mr. Feldman, mentioned that he had given the authorities his opinion?

A. Yeah. I don’t remember what authorities. He said that he gave his opinion to the authorities.

What authorities, I don’t remember.

Q. And did he say when he had given this opinion to the authorities?

A. I guess it was subsequent to meeting with her.

Q. Okay. Did he tell you who he was speaking to with the so-called authorities?

A. No.

Q. Did he tell you whether he had gone to authorities in Los Angeles?

A. Could have been Los Angeles. Could have been Los Angeles, could have been Santa Barbara. I don’t remember.

Q. Did he say anything else about the Michael Jackson case that you remember?

A. Other than that he would like to be a regular on our show.

Q. Okay. And after that meeting, did he pursue any further discussions with you about being a regular on your show?

A. Well, we left the meeting and we would call him to pick a date for him to come on and he would be a regular panelist during the course of the trial.

And then we called him a week later. He didn’t respond. And then a couple weeks later, I saw him at another restaurant at lunch, and I said, “What’s going on?” And he said, “Well, there’s -- something came up.” And that’s the last -- last we heard of it. He never came on.

Q. And at some point you learned he had decided to represent Janet Arvizo, correct?

A. I learned that just through reading it in the paper.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as lack of foundation. Hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever learn that Mr. Feldman decided to represent Janet Arvizo after your discussion with him?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; lack of foundation.
MR. BLUM: Objection, Your Honor, to the extent it calls for the unpublished information. Mr. King got that information publicly. I'll permit him to testify to it.
THE BAILIFF: You've got to talk louder.
MR. BLUM: All right. I'll --
THE COURT: I'll sustain both of your objections.
MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.
THE COURT: Just a minute, Mr. Zonen. You may sit down, Mr. Mesereau. I'm not going to cut off examination, but at this point I don't find any reason to allow Mr. King to testify.
MR. ZONEN: I have no questions.
THE COURT: All right. Based on the offer of proof, I don't find that Mr. King's testimony would impeach Mr. Feldman, based on the record that you presented in your points and authorities. So I'll disallow his testimony.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. King. You may step down.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.

MR. BLUM: Thank you, Your Honor.
MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. MESEREAU: We would be calling Mr. Michael Viner next. And perhaps the Court would like to find out what he has to say outside the presence of the jury.
THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Mesereau.
THE BAILIFF: Who's next?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Can I just address the Court real quick? While we're waiting, I just wanted to let you know, I'm still trying to get ahold of Mr. Fahey. I did listen to the tape last night. It's not in conformity with my recollection, so I did learn a few things listening to it. But we will be filing some paperwork on the issue, and I hope to have Mr. Fahey's declaration when we do.

So I just wanted to let you know that should be coming in hopefully today.

THE COURT: All right.

When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing. Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

MICHAEL VINER

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, ma’am.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Michael Viner. V-i-n-e-r.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Viner.

A. Good morning.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, again, for purposes of the hearing, I think I’ll dispense with background information and just get to the heart of the matter.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. MESEREAU: With your permission. Thank you.

Q. Mr. Viner, do you know someone named Attorney Larry Feldman?

A. I have met him.

Q. And where have you met him?

A. At Nate ‘n Al’s Restaurant.

Q. And when was this?

A. About six months ago.

Q. That was before this trial began?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was the purpose of the meeting?

A. I was just a bystander. It was really a meeting with Larry King and some people from CNN.

Q. And what was the purpose of the meeting, if you know?

A. They -- I -- they were discussing Larry Feldman becoming a guest or an expert or rendering opinions on Larry's show regarding this upcoming trial.

Q. And where were you sitting at the meeting?

A. I was sitting on -- in the corner of one of two booths, side-by-side booths.

Q. Could you hear Mr. Feldman speak?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you hear him speak?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you ever hear Mr. Feldman say anything about this particular case?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you --

A. About the subject matter of the case.

Q. What did you hear him say?

A. He expressed opinions about the accuser and his family.

Q. And what were his opinions?

A. To paraphrase, that he had met with them and felt that their statements, their case didn't hold up to scrutiny, and he didn't believe them.

Q. Did he say anything about the mother?

A. Yes.

Q. What did he say about the mother?

A. That -- again, paraphrasing, not remembering verbatim, that she was out for money.

Q. Did he quote her as being out for money?

A. Yes. Well, no, he -- I'm sorry. I'm quoting him. I'm not implying that she said those words exactly.

Q. Did he tell you she said anything?

A. There was some discussion, but I couldn't and wouldn't want to say exact words, because I don't recall them.

Q. Did he ever say words to the effect, "She told me she wants money from Mr. Jackson"?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall Mr. Feldman saying anything about what Mrs. Janet Arvizo told him?

A. That her motives were financial.

Q. And did Mr. Feldman say anything about Janet Arvizo's children?

A. Again, only referring, to my recollection, to the accuser, that -- that he had talked and I believe had someone else talk to the accuser, and he didn't believe the story.

Q. Did you say anything to Mr. Feldman about his comments?

A. I'm sure I -- you know, I chimed in a little bit on the conversation, but I don't remember what I said. Nothing significant in any way, I'm quite sure.

Q. Do you recall anyone else responding to his comments that the mother said she was out for money?

A. Again, I know there --

MR. ZONEN: That's a misstatement of the evidence, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall anyone else commenting on Mr. Feldman's statement about money?

A. There was general conversation, but I couldn't quote it.

Q. Okay. Did Mr. Feldman tell you when he had met with the mother?

A. I only knew it was sometime in the past, before that breakfast.

Q. Did he tell you where he met with her?

A. My impression, and I don't remember why this was my impression, but that it was his office.

Q. Did Mr. Feldman say anything to you about his belief that the allegations against Mr. Jackson are false?

A. Again, I want to be clear. I was a -- more a wallflower at this. He wasn't talking directly to me. But -- but I went away believing that -- definitively that he did not believe the allegations.

Q. Okay. Do you know what your belief was based on?

A. Yes.
MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as a speculative belief. So I’ll move to strike the last answer.
THE COURT: Stricken.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was your belief about what you heard Mr. Feldman say?
MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, that belief was stricken from the record.
THE COURT: I think it needs to be termed in something other than his beliefs.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
THE COURT: I’ll sustain the objection.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Mr. Feldman say anything about what the mother had told him?
A. He said that he didn’t believe the mother’s story.
Q. Okay.
MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as nonresponsive to the question.
THE BAILIFF: Is your microphone on, Mr. Zonen?
MR. ZONEN: I’ll withdraw the objection, Your Honor.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: What did he say the mother’s story to him was?
A. Again, not being able to quote him exactly, and not wanting to misquote, it was that her son was sexually abused by Michael Jackson.

Q. And he said that he thought it was false?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he say she ever said anything to him about wanting money from Mr. Jackson?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer. Do you want the question read back?
THE WITNESS: No, Your Honor.
I cannot specifically recall whether he said it was his opinion or she stated it, but -- but he did state that -- that that was -- or left me with the -- believing that that was her purpose in seeing him.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And I’m trying to find out what your belief stemmed from.

A. The conversation.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as to his belief being irrelevant and lacking in foundation.

THE COURT: I’ll overrule the objection. He’s not calling for the belief, he’s calling for the underlying statement.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you hear him say anything to the effect that, “My opinion is based upon her statement to me that she wants money”?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as leading.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall anything in that discussion that suggested that Janet Arvizo, the mother, told Mr. Feldman she wants money from Mr. Jackson?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as leading and calling for a conclusion, an opinion, and asked and answered.

THE COURT: I’ll sustain the objection on “suggested.” Calls for his opinion.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

THE COURT: Mr. Zonen? I have -- there’s one area I’m still concerned about. Let me find it. Both attorneys, do you have a transcript in front of you?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Look at page 13, lines 9 through 12.

MR. ZONEN: The Livenote you’re talking about?

MS. YU: Of yesterday?

THE COURT: Today.

MR. SANGER: We don’t have it.

THE COURT: Would you look at it? Do you have it in front of you?

MR. ZONEN: Did you say 30 or 13?

THE COURT: 13, 12. Actually 13, 9, I’m sorry.

MR. ZONEN: This is Mr. King's testimony?

THE COURT: No. Come up here, please. I've got it here.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Mr. Viner, good morning.

A. Good morning, sir.

Q. Am I pronouncing your name correctly?

A. Viner.

Q. Mr. Viner.

Is it true that Mr. Feldman did not say anything to you during the course of that conversation?

A. No, I don't think so. I'm sure, you know, there was some -- some back and forth.

Q. I'm sorry, there may have been some back and forth between you and Mr. Feldman?

A. There was back and forth. Yes, sir.

Q. Was it a discussion at all about this case?

A. Yes.

Q. Is it true that Mr. Feldman did not tell you anything that Janet Arvizo told him?

A. I don't recall exact quotes.

Q. All right. You cannot stand here today with any degree of certainty and tell us what exactly it was that Janet Arvizo told Larry Feldman?

A. I certainly wasn't there. No, I don't know exactly what he told her.

Q. And you don't have a specific recollection of any specific quote that Mr. Feldman told you that was directly related to Janet Arvizo?

A. I can tell you only in a general term what he said, not specifically.

Q. All right. And you have difficulty at this time being able to distinguish between Mr. Feldman giving a personal opinion as opposed to Mr. Feldman telling you what his client had said?

A. Um, in terms of exact quotes, that would be correct, sir.

MR. ZONEN: I have no further questions.
THE COURT: Mr. Mesereau?

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Mr. Viner, excluding any requirement that you give an exact quote, is it correct that Mr. Feldman said words to the effect --
MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as leading.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: -- that, "Janet Arvizo wants money"?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Just a moment.
I'll overrule the objection.
You may answer that.
THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was it your understanding, based upon what you heard Mr. Feldman say, that Janet Arvizo had told him in a meeting that her motives against Mr. Jackson were financial?
MR. ZONEN: Objection to his understanding as being opinion and irrelevant. The question is what was said.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Mr. Feldman say words to the effect, "I met with Janet Arvizo and I learned from her that her motives against Mr. Jackson are financial"?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know whether or not Mr. Feldman said words to the effect that he met with Janet Arvizo and her motives are financial, based on what she told him?
MR. ZONEN: Objection. Leading; calls for an opinion.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Mr. Feldman say that Janet Arvizo, the mother, had told him anything?
A. Yes.
Q. What did Larry Feldman say Janet Arvizo had told him?

A. I do not have the ability to quote exactly. But the upshot of what he said was that he believed that she was out for the money.

Q. And did he say his belief --
MR. ZONEN: I'll object as nonresponsive, "that he believed."
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did he say --
MR. ZONEN: There's an objection pending.
THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Mr. Feldman say his belief was based upon what Janet Arvizo had told him about money?
A. Yes.
Q. In effect, without remembering the exact quotation, did Mr. Feldman say, "Janet Arvizo is out for money, based on what she told me"?
MR. ZONEN: I'll object as leading and calling for a conclusion.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Mr. Feldman ever say words to the effect Janet Arvizo told him she wants money from Mr. Jackson?
A. That is my belief, yes.
MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I'd like the record to reflect there was a 15-second pause between the conclusion of the question and the answer. And I'll move to strike the answer as an opinion.
MR. MESEREAU: His belief is based on what he heard, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Just a moment. Let me read this.

The objection is overruled.
MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.
MR. ZONEN: No further questions.
THE COURT: All right. I do not believe that this witness's statements are sufficient to impeach Mr. Feldman, so I will not allow him to testify.
You may step down.
THE WITNESS: Thank you, sir.
THE COURT: Who is the next witness you're going to call?

MR. MESEREAU: It's Azja Pryor, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And we don't need to have another hearing on this?

MR. MESEREAU: Not that I know of.

THE COURT: Okay. I'll recess so that you can bring in the jury.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, just for a heads-up, we do have a witness after this who I believe the District Attorney is going to interpose an objection to part of what the witness after this is going to be presenting. So just as a heads-up, we may need to address that.

THE COURT: Is that something we should address now or should it wait?

MR. SANGER: We could address it now. That's why I was bringing it up so the Court can decide. It's not inviting their objection, I just want to make sure we're --

THE COURT: No, it's just to help the flow of evidence. Thank you.

THE BAILIFF: Are you leaving the bench or do you just want them brought in?

THE COURT: We're not doing anything right at the moment, but I will leave the bench before you bring in the jury.

MR. SANGER: Can I tell you what it's about and that will help?

THE COURT: Yes, but let's make sure we have their attention.

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Do you know what he's talking about?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Are you prepared to deal with that right now?

MR. SNEDDON: I am.

MR. SANGER: We have a witness by the name of Larry Nimmer and he is a videographer in Carpinteria. His office is there. He's experienced in doing day-in-the-life videos and other documentation for court cases. He's testified all over the place, we’ll lay the foundation.

He is going to come in and present, if -- or it would be our request that he come in to present two different videos. The first one I believe we do not have an objection, or we’ve worked it out. It has to do with the ringing of the bell at the entrance to Mr. Jackson’s suite. And we have an agreement that he can testify to that, and put that on.

We will call back Maria Gomez, who was the person who is setting the bell off by walking through the door, at the request of Mr. Sneddon for whatever purpose, for whatever questions he wants to ask about that video. So that’s worked out.

The second is a video of Neverland that we are offering in lieu of the visit to the scene that we requested. And it goes from the front gate to -- through Neverland, to the end. I believe it is 19 and a half minutes. That’s my recollection.

THE COURT: So it’s not unduly long.

MR. SANGER: Not unduly long.

We tried to capture -- most of it’s during the day, showing the guesthouse, showing clocks, showing the trains, showing the out -- you know, the overall property. And then the part at the end is during the night, showing it lit up, and then that’s it.

So that’s our offer. We do have the video. We could show the Court. But that’s our offer. I think it should be acceptable.

THE COURT: Mr. Sneddon?

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, first of all, about the short video, the shorter of the two, Mr. Sanger is correct. We’ll agree to go ahead and let it be played this morning subject to the maid. And I’m assuming in Mr. Sanger’s offer that Mr. Nimmer is going to testify about the manner and method of the preparation of it as opposed to just -- we’re not agreeing to -- we want that foundation part to come in and we want to hear testimony, because we have some questions we want to ask him. So with that caveat, then the answer is yes.

MR. SANGER: Just to clarify that, the answer to that is yes, we will have him testify how he did it.

MR. SNEDDON: And with regard to the second video, I really think the Court should see the entire video, because there is a lot of things in there, including notes from Mr. Jackson's children to him, and a lot of focusing on photographs showing him with children, and I'm not -- in my recollection, some of the stuff that's in there wasn't even at the ranch at the time these events occurred, and I believe -- we object to it. We object to -- if they'd just simply shown the grounds and done a straightforward presentation, that's one thing. But this is clearly a puff piece that has a lot of stuff that is really not relevant to this -- to this -- to this case. And I think if you see it, that you will see it in that manner and not for simply being an illustration of where the guest cottages are or the bedroom is or where this is. It really doesn't reflect that.

And I would ask the Court to please view it ahead of time before you allow the jury to see it. It's about 19 minutes, I think. It's not unduly long, but I do believe it's unduly -- I don't want to use the word "prejudicial," but it's really -- it's a self-serving documentary that goes far beyond just simply showing what the ranch is like. So that is our objection.

THE COURT: Well, if you -- I would have to review it first, if that's your request, before I determine its admissibility.

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: I have a copy. I have the original, actually. I don't know. It's a CD. So I have whatever it is. I'd be happy to have it marked and then the Court can take a look at it.

THE COURT: Why don't you do that.

MR. SANGER: Should I do that? Let me do it on the record.

All right. I have a DVD that's entitled "Neverland Ranch 2005" and it says, "Length, 19 minutes and eight seconds. Duplication date, 5-17-05. Nimmer Legal Graphics." And I'd ask that this be marked as defense next in order.

And then I take it the Court's going to watch it off the bench, or do you want to watch it here?

MR. SNEDDON: I would request that the Court view it off the bench.

THE COURT: I think I should view it on the bench, because it's not an evidentiary hearing that requires any secrecy. It's just -- but I don't want to do it now. The jury's been waiting.

I'm trying to think. How long is the next witness going to take?

MR. SANGER: I believe she'll probably be a little while. That's as close as I can get to an estimate.

THE COURT: You don't really know.

I should watch that before you call the next witness after her.

MR. SANGER: Right now, this -- Mr. Nimmer would be the next witness after her. If there's a problem, we may be able to put another witness in first. Just depends. This witness, the next witness, could go for a half an hour or three hours. I just don't know.

THE COURT: Why don't we handle the next witness.

MR. SANGER: Very well.

THE COURT: And then we'll see where we are and how we'll deal with me viewing that.

Have you given that CD to the clerk?

THE CLERK: Yes.

THE COURT: You have it.

THE CLERK: Judge, that's Exhibit 5089.

THE COURT: You know what I would like to do if -- well, that's okay. Let's get the jury in.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Call your next witness, please.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, the defense will call Ms. Azja Pryor.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Face that way.

THE COURT: Raise your right hand and face the clerk here.

AZJA PRYOR

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My full name is Azja Pryor. A-z-j-a, P-r-y-o-r.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning, Miss Pryor.

A. Good morning.

THE BAILIFF: Mr. Mesereau, you’re going to have to have her move way forward.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Move closer.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Miss Pryor, you live in Los Angeles County, correct?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And what is your line of work?

A. I’m a casting assistant in television.

Q. And where do you do that?

A. At Paramount Studios.

Q. Okay. Do you know someone named Chris Tucker?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And how do you know Chris Tucker?
A. Chris is the father of my son.
Q. Okay. And how long have you known Chris Tucker?
A. For about eight years now.
Q. How old is your son?
A. My son is six.
Q. Okay. Do you know the fellow seated at counsel table to my right?

A. No, I do not.
Q. Okay. Have you ever been to his home?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. And when did you do that?
A. About three to four times.
Q. Okay. When did you first visit Neverland?
A. I first visited Neverland in 1999.
Q. Okay. And Mr. Jackson was not there?
A. No, he was not.
Q. Okay. Did you ever meet a family by the name of Arvizo?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And when did you meet them for the first time?
A. I first met the Arvizos in October of 2000.
Q. And where did you meet them?
A. At my home.
Q. Okay. What caused them to be at your home?
A. My son's father, Chris, brought them over and we were going to take them to an amusement park.
Q. Okay. And do you recall their names?
A. Yes.
Q. And what are their names?
A. Star, Gavin and Davellin.
Q. Okay.
A. And also David, the father.
Q. Okay. Did you ever meet the mother, Janet?
A. Yes, I have.

Q. When did you first meet Janet?
A. I first met Janet in July or August of 2001.
Q. And where was that? Where did you meet her?

A. I believe it was The Four Seasons Hotel in Beverly Hills.

Q. Okay. Now, so when you first met the Arvizos at Chris Tucker's home --

A. At my home.

Q. At your home, excuse me. -- (Continuing) was Janet there?

A. No, she was not.

Q. Was David, the father, there?

A. Yes, he was.

Q. And who else was present?

A. The three children, their father, Chris and myself.

Q. Okay. And that was to go on a trip?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you do that?

A. Yes.

Q. And how long a trip was it?

A. I'll say we left my house around 8:30 and didn't return back to my house till about 1:30 in the morning.

Q. Okay. And that was the first time you had ever actually met them, right?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Did you have an understanding as to how long Chris Tucker had known them?

A. Not for long. I can't give you a period of time. I would say no more than a month, a couple of weeks.

Q. And did you have an understanding as to where Chris Tucker met the Arvizo family?

A. Yes, he met them at The Laugh Factory.

Q. Okay. Now, after that first trip that you just described, did you stay in touch with the Arvizo family?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And what do you mean by that?

A. More so Chris stayed in touch with them, talking to them on the phone at this period of time, but I would see them from time to time. Chris would bring them over to his house. And along with myself and my son, we would all take them different places, various places.

Q. And where did you take them?
A. We took them -- well, Chris took them to a Raiders game in Oakland. We took them to -- out to eat. I took them horseback riding once, even though we didn't end up horseback riding, but I did take them with the intention of going. And I can't remember anything else.
Q. You were not on the trip to the Raiders game, right?
A. No, I was not.

Q. That was in Oakland, right?
A. That was in Oakland.
Q. Do you know how the Arvizo family and Chris got to that game?
A. By plane.
Q. Who arranged that trip, if you know?
A. Chris did.
Q. And after the trip to the Raiders game in Oakland, you said that you went out to eat with them?
A. Well, I didn't go to the Raiders game.
Q. Okay.
A. But I had taken them out to eat before.
Q. Okay. Is this before the Raiders game?
A. Not on the actual day, but before that time when they went to the game. You know, maybe a month before, or maybe a month afterward.
Q. Now, when you say you would take them out to eat, who are you referring to?
A. The three kids.
Q. Okay. What about the parents?
A. Well, David was always there. When David was around, David was always with the children.
Q. Okay. Did you ever see Janet with the children when you were with them?
A. Not until after I met her in July 2001. I never saw her until that point.
Q. Okay. Would you talk to the children on the phone from time to time?

A. From time to time, yes.

Q. And normally would you call them or would they call you?

A. They would call me.

Q. Okay. Would they call you at your home?

A. Yes, they would. They did not have a phone a lot of the time. So if I did call them, it would be over to their grandmother’s house, who did have a phone, or they would call me, definitely.

Q. Now, what year did the phone calls start?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Okay. Did you start talking to the Arvizo children on the phone shortly after you first met them?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Was there a reason that you know of why you didn’t talk to them right after you first met them?

A. No. You know, I just -- I thought they were more Chris’s friends. Chris had met them. You know, he had taken a liking to the children, and I didn’t -- I had a lot going on in my own life so I didn’t -- I just didn’t call them right away. It wasn’t until later, until we actually developed a relationship, that I would call them.

Q. And when do you think you actually developed a relationship with the Arvizo family?

A. I’ll say in late 2001.

Q. And is there any particular reason why you suddenly began to talk to them on your own as opposed to when you were with Chris?

A. Yes. The reason being is the kids, especially Davellin, really took to me. We really bonded. And she was in an Explorer program or a cadet program, some kind of police academy something, I don’t know exactly the name of it, and she invited me to the graduation. I went, and after that, that’s when we really started talking on the phone.

Q. And that’s approximately 2001?

A. Yes, late -- sometime before Christmas 2001. Sometime in December.

Q. Would Davellin call you on the phone?

A. Yes, she would.

Q. Would Gavin call you on the phone?

A. Sometimes, yes.

Q. How about Star?

A. He wouldn't call me. But I would talk to the three children. If I was on the phone with either one of them, they would put the other ones on the phone.

Q. So when you spoke to any of the children on the phone, the other two were usually there?

A. Yes. Definitely.

Q. Did you speak to the father, David, from time to time?

A. Only when I saw him. I never talked to him on the phone.

Q. Okay. And how many times do you think you've ever seen David Arvizo?

A. If I would have to estimate, I would say probably about four or five times in all.

Q. And where did you see David Arvizo?

A. At my home.

Q. Okay.

A. At Chris's home. At a premier for Rush Hour 2. Those are the only times I can recall seeing him.

Q. Okay. Would you say that you spoke to Davellin more than Gavin?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you say you spoke to Davellin more than Star?

A. Yes.

Q. And would it be accurate to say you spoke to Gavin more than Star?

A. No.

Q. Okay. You spoke to Gavin and Star about the equal amount of times?

A. About the same, yes.

Q. Okay. Did you ever learn anything about a fund-raiser at The Laugh Factory for Gavin?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And what did you learn about that?

A. I learned that there had been a fund-raiser held at The Laugh Factory to raise money for Gavin’s sickness.
Q. Okay. And where did you learn that from? Or who did you learn that from? Excuse me.
A. First from Chris. Chris told me. That’s how he met Gavin.
Q. Okay. He met him at the fund-raiser?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Now, at that point in time, did Chris Tucker go to The Laugh Factory on a regular basis?
A. I don’t know.
Q. Do you know how often he would show up there?
A. Not that often.
Q. Okay.
A. I don’t know.
Q. Do you know how he found out about the fund-raiser?
A. From what Chris told me, he had been at The Laugh Factory --
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object to hearsay statements. Move that the answer be stricken.
THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know whether or not Chris Tucker attended the fund-raiser at The Laugh Factory that you just talked about?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you know approximately when that was? If you recall.
A. I would say maybe in the month of October, but that would be a guess. Again, I think it was shortly before we went to the Knott’s Berry Farm, before we took the children to Knott’s Berry Farm. He had just met them.
Q. And do you recall whether or not there was more than one fund-raiser for Gavin’s sickness?
A. Through later conversations with his mother, I do believe that there was more than one.
MR. SNEDDON: Move to strike, based on hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: State of mind. Not offered for the truth.
THE COURT: The motion to strike is denied.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: What year do you think you first met Janet?
A. 2001.
Q. Okay. And did you develop a relationship with Janet?
A. Yes.
Q. And could you please describe that relationship?
A. The relationship that I had with Janet was based on the love that I shared for her children. It's hard for me because I really do love the kids a lot.

Q. Would you like some water? Do you want a little water? Are you okay?
A. Okay. Because of the love I have for her children and because of Gavin's sickness, and I'm a mother myself, I -- that's how we became, I wouldn't say friends, but it was -- there was a mutual feeling there that she could talk to me about a lot of things --
Q. Okay.
A. -- regarding her children. And I really did love her kids.
Q. Okay. And did she talk to you from time to time about her children?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Would Janet typically call you on the phone?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you know where she would typically call you from?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as vague as to time.
THE COURT: All right. Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: I'll rephrase it, Your Honor.
Q. Miss Pryor, during the year 2001 --
A. Uh-huh.
Q. -- do you recall Janet Arvizo telephoning

you?

A. Yes.
Q. And approximately when did these calls start?
A. I would say that the calls started towards the later part of the year. I believe it was after Davellin’s Explorer graduation or the cadet graduation. That’s when they started.
Q. Did you used to talk to Janet about Gavin’s illness?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you visit Gavin at the hospital?
A. Once, yes.
Q. And when was that?
A. That was New Year’s. It was after midnight so it would have been New Year’s of 2001. And Janet was not there.
Q. Okay. Who was there?
A. The three kids and David.
Q. Okay. And what time of day was this, if you remember?
A. It was after midnight.
Q. And that’s Kaiser?
A. Yes.
Q. In Los Angeles, right?
A. In Hollywood, yes.
Q. Now, how many times do you think you spoke to Janet Arvizo on the phone?
A. I have no way of telling you that answer. I don’t know.

Q. Was it quite often?
A. There would be times when I would talk to her two or three times a week and there would be times when I wouldn’t talk to her for three to four months at a time.
Q. Okay. Did you and Janet ever meet at any locations during the year 2001?
A. Only at Davellin’s cadet graduation.
Q. Okay. How about during the year 2002, did you stay in touch with Janet?

A. I stayed in touch with her. I talked to her mostly during the beginning part of the year of 2002. And then I saw her in September of 2002.

Q. And where did you see Janet in September of 2002?

A. She was on a bus with us. My son was having a birthday party at Neverland, and she rode up on the bus with myself and our family.

Q. Okay. Now, when she accompanied you on that bus trip, were her children with her?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And would that be Star, Gavin and Davellin?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And did you meet at the bus for that trip?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Okay.

A. I believe so. We didn’t pick her up. I think she met us. We all met at The Beverly Hills Hotel.

Q. And did you talk to Janet in advance about her family joining you on that trip?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you invite Janet and the children to join you on that trip?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. So you met at The Beverly Hills Hotel?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Was day was this, if you remember?

A. It was September 14th, 2002.

Q. And was that during the week or was that a weekend?

A. It was a Saturday.

Q. Okay. And what time did you meet the Arvizo family for purposes of the bus trip?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Okay.

A. It would have been in the morning time, maybe around 11:00.

Q. Okay. So they came with you to Neverland for the birthday party, right?

A. And her friend Jay came.

Q. Is that Jay Jackson?

A. I guess. I don’t know. I remember his name was Jay. I don’t know his last name.

Q. What did he look like?

A. White. Not too tall. Probably about five-seven. Maybe in his late 30’s, early 40’s. Blond hair.

Q. Was it your understanding that he was in the United States Army?

A. No, it was not. No one told me that.

Q. But you think his name was Jay?

A. I know his name was Jay.

Q. And he had blond hair?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it long?

A. No. It was like this.

Q. Okay.

A. I don’t know.

Q. Okay. So you went to Neverland for the party?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. All of you. You spent the day at Neverland, right?

A. We spent the whole day at Neverland, yes.

Q. And did you talk to Janet during that day?

A. I don’t remember having any conversations. I would see her around on the rides and things like that. But I -- we had over 50 people there, so I was entertaining, and, you know, I don’t remember having any in-depth conversations with Janet at that time.

Q. Was Chris Tucker there?

A. Yes, he was.

Q. Okay. How did he get there, if you know?

A. We all rode together.

Q. He was on the bus, too?

A. Yes.

Q. How many people were on that bus ride?

A. We actually had two buses. And there were a lot of people. We have a very big family.

Q. Now, Michael Jackson wasn’t there that day, right?

A. No, he was not.

Q. And was it your understanding that the -- Michael had allowed the party to take place at Neverland?

A. I know he allowed it.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Because I actually talked to him on the phone briefly when he and Chris were in Vegas.

Q. Okay. Did you ask Michael if you could have the party at Neverland?

A. I believe Chris did, and Michael said it was okay.

Q. Okay. And if you know, who made the arrangements for the party at Neverland?

A. A woman by the name of Evvy.

Q. Okay. Is that Michael Jackson’s assistant?

A. I guess so.

Q. Did you speak to her?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. And so she made the arrangements for the party. Did she arrange the buses also?

A. No. That was our own arrangement.

Q. Okay. Now, did you spend much time with the Arvizo children that day during the birthday party at Neverland?

A. Davellin was by my side the entire day.

Q. Okay. And how about Gavin and Star, did you see much of them?

A. No. They were with Chris or they were -- you know, they knew their way around so -- it wasn’t like it was their first time there, so they were all over the place.

Q. Okay. But that was your first trip there, right?

A. No, that was --

Q. That was your second trip?

A. My second or third. I can’t remember.

Q. Okay. All right. And when the party ended, was it nighttime?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you all come back on the bus?

A. Some of us did. Chris and the kids stayed overnight at Neverland.

Q. So that would be Chris and the Arvizo children?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Do you know if Janet stayed there?

A. I don’t remember. I know she was not on the bus that I was on.

Q. Was David Arvizo there for the party?

A. No. David hadn’t been in the picture at this time for about a year.

Q. So you know that Chris stayed with the children at Neverland but you’re not sure if Janet was there, right?

A. Right.

Q. Do you know whether or not Janet came home that day?

A. I don’t know.

Q. Okay. Excuse me. Did you ever return to Neverland again?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And when was that?

A. In February of 2003.

Q. Why did you go to Neverland in February of 2003?

A. The children asked me to take them.

Q. Okay. Now, before you went back in February of 2003, did you have regular contact with the Arvizo family?

A. No. I don’t -- during that period, from September of ‘02 to February, I don’t remember talking to them. Maybe I had one phone conversation. I know I definitely did not see them during that time.

Q. Now, at some point in time, did any of the Arvizo children spend the night at your house?

A. Yes.

Q. And approximately when was that?

A. I don’t know.

Q. Who spent the night at your house?

A. Davellin did.

Q. Okay. Did either Star or Gavin ever spend the night at your house?

A. Huh-uh.

Q. Did they ever request to?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Tell us about that.

A. They would ask. When I went to their apartment to pick up Davellin, they tried to jump in the car, but I kind of wanted it just to be a girls day out, but they -- I think Gavin even jumped in the trunk of my car.

Q. All right.

A. Trying to come along.

Q. And what did you do when Gavin jumped in your car trunk?

A. I told him to get out; he couldn’t come. It was just for his sister.

Q. Did he get out?

A. Yeah, he got out.

Q. Now, where was this?

A. That was at their apartment.

Q. So you had driven to their apartment?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And where was the apartment located?

A. Kind of near downtown. I think Soto Street.

Q. Okay. At this point in time, did you observe the behavior of the Arvizo children?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object as vague as to time.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Well, during the time that Davellin came to your house to spend the night --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- the same time where Gavin jumped in your trunk and you had to get him out, did you have an occasion to observe the behavior of the children?

A. On that day?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. And what was your observation?

A. Same observation I've always had when watching the children, is that the boys were a little rough. My son at the time was only four, and Gavin and Star were older, and they were a little rough. And it would concern me sometimes, because my son would want to play, but they really roughhoused a lot, so I would be extra -- I would have to be extra careful around them.

Q. Okay. When you say they roughhoused a lot, what do you mean?

A. Wrestling, you know, doing the things that boys do that just -- play-fighting and things like that.

Q. And I gather the boys never did spend the night at your house, right?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if the Arvizo children ever spent the night at Chris Tucker's home?

A. Yes, I believe Gavin and his dad did.

Q. Do you know approximately when that was?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Okay. Do you know how many times they spent the night at Chris Tucker's home?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Did Janet ever ask you for any help for the children?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever ask you for any kind of assistance for her family?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever give the family any assistance?

A. Do you mean monetarily?

Q. Sure.

A. Yes.

Q. When was this?

A. I gave them a Christmas gift of $600.

Q. And what led up to that gift?

A. I knew that it was a really hard time for them. This would have been after Davellin's graduation. And I found out that Janet had been being abused by her husband, and that he had left and taken the car and left them with no money.

Q. Did Janet tell you she was left with no money?

A. Yes.

Q. And did she tell you she didn’t have a car?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did any of the children tell you they didn’t have money?

A. I don’t really remember them saying that they did not have money. I don’t remember those words coming out of their mouth, but I do know that references were made to them not having certain pieces of clothing that they needed, equipment. I think Gavin played baseball or something, and I know he broke his arm one time. His mom said he caught a ball with a torn up glove. You know, it wasn’t adequate equipment, I guess, for the sport that he was playing.

So while they never said that they needed money, you know, I knew of the hardships that they were going through.

Q. Was that because they would periodically tell you that?

A. Uh-huh. More so Janet than the kids, though.

Q. What are the kind of things that Janet would tell you about their hardship?

MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object. Hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: I think it’s --

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Can you repeat the question?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Sure. What kinds of things would Janet say to you about the family’s hardship?

A. Janet told me how much of a horrible, awful husband and father David Arvizo was, and from that, she told me about the abuse. She told me that he told the children he did not love them. She told me that money that had been raised from the benefit -- the fund-raiser at The Laugh Factory, or I’m not sure if it was The Laugh Factory or somewhere else. She just said “the fund-raiser”; that he had spent it all taking his family out to show them a good time, things of that nature.

Q. Did she ever tell you she had taken any of the money from any of these fund-raisers?
A. No.
Q. Did she ever tell you that there was an account set up for Gavin that she would take money from?

A. No. We never talked about that.
Q. Did she ever mention to you there was a bank account set up for Gavin?
A. No. Or if she did, I don’t remember her saying that.
Q. Okay. Now, you say she told you that Gavin had a broken arm?
A. Yes.
Q. And she said it was from baseball?
A. Yes. He was playing -- he was playing in a game.
Q. Did she ever tell you he broke his arm because a security guard at J.C. Penney broke it?
A. No.
Q. Did Janet ever tell you about any incident at J.C. Penney?
A. No.
Q. Ever tell you she’d gotten any money from J.C. Penney?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object as hearsay.
MR. MESEREAU: It’s impeachment, Your Honor.
MR. SNEDDON: It’s not impeachment.
THE COURT: The objection is sustained. Is this a good time to break?
MR. MESEREAU: Oh.

THE COURT: We’ll take our morning break.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Miss Pryor, before the break, you said that you were told that Gavin had broken his arm at a baseball game, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Who told you that?

A. Janet did.

Q. Did Gavin ever tell you that?

A. No.

Q. Was Gavin there when Janet told that to you?

A. I don't know. It was over the phone.

Q. Okay. And did she tell you exactly how he had broken his arm in the baseball game?

A. She told me he was running to catch the ball, and his -- his glove was worn through. Something about a worn-out glove.

Q. Okay. And did she tell you in that conversation that the family needed money for baseball equipment?

A. No, she didn't. When she told me, I told her, "Janet, if you need anything, you can ask me." I said, "Anything for the kids." I said, "If Gavin needs a glove, then let me know."

Q. Did Janet tell you Gavin needed a glove?

A. No.

Q. Did she ever tell you he needed anything related to baseball?

A. No.

Q. Okay. What about any equipment or uniforms or anything of that sort?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did she tell you why she was telling you he had broken his arm in a baseball game?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object. Calls for a conclusion. Speculation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Can you repeat that?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yes.

Did Janet give you any indication why she was telling you that Gavin had broken his arm in a baseball game?

A. I would think she told me just because we would talk about the kids. And, you know, with a child breaking a bone, that’s pretty serious.

Q. Did she ever tell you he had broken a bone anywhere else?

A. Not that I can remember, no.

Q. Did she ever tell you he had broken a bone in a parking lot?

A. I don’t remember if she said Gavin or Star did, but one of them did break a bone, she told me, when they were younger.

Q. Okay. Did she ever mention any altercation with security guards anywhere?

A. No.

Q. Did she ever tell you she had filed any lawsuit of any kind?

A. No.

Q. Now, you did give a Christmas gift, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you indicated this was after Janet had discussed some financial problems they were having, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And approximately what year did you give a gift to them?

A. The gift of $600?

Q. Yes.

A. That was in December of 2001.

Q. Okay. Did you give $600 in cash or did you give a check?

A. It was a cashier’s check.

Q. Who did you give it to?

A. Janet.

Q. Okay.

A. I mailed it to her.

Q. Okay. And did she ever thank you for it?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, did you give Janet this check before or after you knew there were fund-raisers for Gavin’s illness?

A. Well, I knew there had been a fund-raiser when I first met Gavin, so therefore I gave her the $600 after I knew about it. Now, if I gave it to her before or after she told me about them, I don’t remember.

Q. Okay. Now, you knew that Chris Tucker had gone to the fund-raiser, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you learn whether or not he had given them any financial assistance?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. Okay. Do you recall whether or not Davellin ever asked you for a car?

A. If she asked me for a car?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. This was in February of 2003.

Q. Okay. And explain what she asked you.

A. She didn’t ask me to give her the car out of the blue. There had been a discussion about them receiving a car of mine from Chris.

Q. And who did you have that discussion with?

A. Janet.

Q. What did Janet say about that?

A. She thanked me profusely for -- for giving them the car. I knew nothing about it until they actually told me. Chris had not even told me. They told me.

Q. So Janet thanked you for giving her a car?

A. For giving her the car, yes.

Q. Had you given her a car?

A. I had not given it to her yet.

Q. Were you surprised when she thanked you for giving her a car that you never gave her?

A. Obviously I was a little surprised.

However, I felt like -- I kind of knew it was coming, because Chris had spoken about it before, that he wanted to help them out. He knew that Janet was taking Gavin to his weekly doctor appointments on the bus.

Q. Is that what Janet told him?

A. Yes.

Q. So it’s in approximately February of 2003 that she thanks you for the car?

A. Yes. She told me that Chris said he would give them the car. And she called me to thank me, and I guess I assumed to ask when it was going to be handed over to her.

Q. And what did you say to her?

A. The car was not in my name, so I told her it needed to be changed. She needed to wait till Chris got back in town to switch the registration and everything.

Q. Was it your intention to give them the car?

A. No, not necessarily.

Q. Did you ever give them a car?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever ask you for a car on another occasion?

A. No.

Q. How many phone conversations did you have with Janet when she asked you for a car?

A. Too many to remember. I don’t know.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. A lot of times. If Janet wouldn’t call me, Davellin would call me.

Q. Asking you for a car?

A. For the car.

Q. And did Davellin act as if they owned the car?

A. No, I think it was more so they just wanted to know when they were going to get it, to gain possession of the car.

Q. And during these many conversations, what would you tell them about the car?

A. It was out of my hands. There was nothing I could do about it.

Q. Is that what you said to them?

A. Uh-huh. I told them they had to wait on Chris.

Q. At some point, did they stop calling you and asking for a car?

A. Well, yes.
Q. Approximately what was that?
A. The last conversation I had with Davellin, which was in April of 2003, I believe.

Q. Okay.
A. That was the last time I talked to her.
Q. Was it your choice not to talk to her anymore?
A. No, not at all.
Q. Why did you stop talking to her?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Did they stop calling you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you stop calling them?
A. I didn’t have a number to reach them.
Q. Okay. If you can guess, how many times do you think Janet asked you for a car?
A. If it was my guess, I would say anywhere from seven to ten times.
Q. And did this all happen in the year 2003?
A. Yes.
Q. If you can estimate, how many times did Davellin ask you for a car?
A. I don’t remember. I know Davellin would leave me messages, because I wouldn’t always answer the phone. So there were numerous messages.
Q. Okay. And in those numerous messages, was Davellin requesting the car?
A. Yes.
Q. And all this was in the year 2003?
A. This was all in February.

Q. February of 2003?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Okay. Now, did Janet tell you in February of 2003 that they had no car?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Davellin tell you in February of 2003 that they had no car?
A. Yes.

Q. All right. In any of these phone conversations, were Janet and Davellin on the phone together?

A. No, there was no kind of three-way or two different phones where they were. You know, I would maybe start on the phone with Davellin and she would hand the phone to her mom, or vice versa.

Q. Do you recall whether or not Gavin was ever on the phone when you were asked to give them a car?

A. I don’t remember Gavin ever even mentioning the car to me.

Q. How about Star?

A. I don’t remember Star either.

Q. Okay. Okay. Now, you saw the Arvizo children at Chris Tucker’s home, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And could you describe their behavior?

A. I don’t like to call people’s kids bad, but Gavin and Star really needed attention, I felt like.

Q. In what --

A. They really needed attention.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. You know, they would do little things, very mischievous. One time I remember us sitting down in front of Chris’s big-screen television and there was a drink on the floor. I don’t remember what it was. But Gavin, I saw him look at the glass and I saw him just kind of do his foot and kick it over and then act like it was an accident, you know, just to get that reaction out of us. Like, “Gavin,” you know, “what happened?”

You know, they would do little things like that.

Or, you know, like I said, roughhousing, just playing around. I mean, they were kids. You know, I think at the time they were maybe 11 or 12. I don’t remember.

Q. Would you describe them as well behaved?

A. At times. But I think that they lacked discipline.

Q. And what do you mean by that?

A. I think that anytime I saw David Arvizo with his kids, I never saw him discipline them, even when they got out of hand. And I think -- because Gavin was sick, I think that he did not discipline them when I think -- I felt like they needed it at times.

Q. Now, at any time did Janet tell you that Star had a cyst in his brain?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: Impeachment, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: There's -- no.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever learn whether or not Star had a cyst on his brain?

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Lack of foundation; immaterial; irrelevant.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Did I learn Star had a cyst?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yes.

A. Not that I can recall.

Q. Did Janet ever say anything like that?

MR. SNEDDON: I object. Hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

Q. Do you recall when the -- or what has become known as the Bashir documentary was aired?

A. I'm sorry, I didn't hear you.

Q. Did you ever hear of something called the Bashir documentary?

A. Yes.

Q. And when did you learn about that?

A. I learned about it when I watched it on television.

Q. And do you know approximately when that was?

A. In early February.

Q. After the Bashir documentary aired, did you speak to any of the Arvizos?

A. Yes.

Q. Who did you speak to?

A. Davellin.

Q. Okay. Did she call you?
A. Yes.
Q. And did she talk about the documentary?
A. Yes, she did.
Q. What did she say?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever talk to Janet about the Bashir documentary?
A. Yes.
Q. When was this?
A. After it aired. Maybe the same conversation when Davellin first called me.
Q. Now, who called you?
A. Davellin did.
Q. Okay. And did she discuss the Bashir documentary?
A. Yes, she did.
Q. Okay. And do you know where Davellin was living at the time?
A. No, I don’t.
Q. Was she living at her grandmother’s, to your knowledge?

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Leading.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know where Janet and the boys were living?
A. At the time when they called me?
Q. Yes.
A. After the documentary?
Q. Yes.
A. No, I don’t know.
Q. After the Bashir documentary aired, did Janet ever tell you they were spending a lot of time with Major Jay Jackson?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Calls for hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know whether or not, after the Bashir documentary aired, if the Arvizos were spending time with Major Jackson?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You mentioned that you met Major Jackson on a bus, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was the bus --

MR. SNEDDON: Excuse me. I'm going to object as a misstatement of the testimony with regard to the rank and the last name.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you meet Major Jackson on a bus?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was to go to the birthday party at Neverland, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see him again after that?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever speak to him on the phone?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever meet Janet Arvizo at an address where Mr. Jackson lived?

A. I don't know. It would be my guess that the apartment on St. Andrews that I met them at for an interview would be Jay's apartment, but no one told me that. Or if they did, I don't remember.

Q. Okay. So the only time you ever saw Jay was at the birthday party?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Now, did you talk to Janet about the Bashir documentary?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did she say to you?

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: It's impeachment, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I can't tell really. The question is too general. I'll sustain the objection.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

Q. Did Janet ever complain to you about the Bashir documentary?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Hearsay.

THE COURT: You're offering this for impeachment?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor. Yes.

THE COURT: All right. I'll overrule the objection.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You can answer.

A. Can you repeat that?

MR. MESEREAU: Sure. I'll withdraw the question and repeat it.

Q. Did Janet Arvizo ever complain to you about the Bashir documentary?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. Approximately when did she complain about that documentary?

A. In the first conversation I had with her after the documentary.

Q. Okay. Would that be in 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did she say to you?

A. She said that there had been a documentary aired showing Gavin and her children which she had not given her permission for. She had not given permission for her children to be taped.

Q. And did she say she was going to do anything about it?

A. No, not that I can remember.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you that David was on drugs?

A. Yes.

Q. When was this?

A. After Davellin's graduation.

Q. Did she ever tell you that David was spending all the money they raised on drugs?

A. She did tell me that he was spending -- I wouldn't say "all." She didn't use the word "all," but she said that he was spending some of the money on drugs and to take his family out and show them a good time.

Q. Did she ever tell you that she had spent any of that money?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Let’s go to 2003, after the Bashir documentary airs, okay?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. You have this conversation with Janet about the documentary, right? And when do you talk to her again after she complains about the documentary?

A. There’s no way for me to say. There were many conversations after that initial conversation.

Q. Well, did you talk to her on a regular basis in the year 2003?

A. In February I did.

Q. Okay. And is there any particular reason why you were talking to her so often in February of 2003?

A. I think Janet was in over her head, and I don’t think she really knew what to do. So I believe that she knew I was always there, at least to listen, you know. And if I could help in any kind of way, she knew I was there. She knew I was good for that.

Q. Did she ever tell you she was looking for an attorney?

A. No. I don’t remember.

Q. Did she ever tell you she was going to do anything about the Bashir documentary?

A. No. Again, like I said, I believe she was in over her head, and I don’t think she really knew what to do at that moment. I believe I suggested to her that she should get an attorney.

Q. Okay. Did she ever tell you she got one?

A. No, she never told me she did.

Q. Did she ever tell you she had joined in any complaint in England against the Bashir documentary?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever mention a trip to Brazil to you?

A. Yes.

Q. What did she say?

A. She said that they --

MR. SNEDDON: I’ll object as hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: Impeachment, Your Honor.

THE COURT: The objection’s overruled.

THE WITNESS: She said that they were going to Brazil for Carnivale.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And what is Carnivale, to your knowledge?

A. Beautiful costumes, beads. I guess it’s kind of like Mardi Gras.

Q. Kind of a holiday celebration, right?

A. A holiday celebration.

Q. Did she ever ask you to go with her?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. And when did Janet ask you to go to Brazil with her to attend Carnivale?

A. During a phone conversation. It was sometime in February.

Q. Okay. And did you say anything in response to her invitation?

A. I said, “Sure, I’d love to go.”

Q. And did you ever talk to her about Brazil again?

A. Yeah, we talked a couple of times about Brazil.

Q. And did you talk about your going with her?

A. I’m sure -- I’m sure I did. I told her I couldn’t go for too long. I was in school at the time, so I would only be able to be there for, like, three or four days.

Q. Did she say that was okay?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did she seem excited about you going to Brazil with her?

A. I don’t know. I don’t know if she was excited. Janet’s always excited. She’s excited -- either she’s excited or she’s sad. So it was kind of hard to gauge whether she was excited about me going or this is just during one of the times that she was really happy.

Q. But you had a number of discussions about you and she going to Brazil?

A. No more than two, maybe three. On occasion.

Q. And were all these conversations on the phone?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she call you or did you call her, if you remember?

A. I would guess she called me during this time. I didn’t really know where they were staying, so my guess is that she called me.

Q. Okay. And do you think this is February of 2003?

A. I know it was February of 2003.

Q. And did you have any discussions with her about going to Brazil in March of 2003, if you know?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Okay. Did she tell you what she wanted to do in Brazil other than attend Carnivale?

A. No, she didn’t say.

Q. Did she seem excited about going to Carnivale?

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Janet tell you when Carnivale is in Brazil?

A. No.

Q. But there’s no question she mentioned Carnivale, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she tell you whether or not her family were going to be at Carnivale in Brazil?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did she say about that?

A. Well, she said that Michael and I guess his family and their family, they were all going to go to Carnivale. That’s all she said.

Q. Do you mean Michael Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. So she said Michael Jackson and his family are going to Carnivale with her?

A. Yes.

Q. And this is in February of 2003?

A. This is in February.
Q. Okay. Did she ever tell you that she had learned that Michael Jackson was not going to Brazil?
A. Yes, I believe she did.
Q. Do you know approximately when that was?
A. It would have been in early March.
Q. Okay. Was she upset about that?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Did she still, as far as you know, plan to go to Brazil?
A. By this time I don’t think she wanted to go.
Q. Okay. Was that -- did she tell you she didn’t want to go because she found out Michael wasn’t going?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. That’s a leading question, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Janet tell you why she no longer wanted to go to Brazil?
A. Because there were a lot of unknowns. Her children had been out of school for one month. She didn’t know when they were going back to school. She didn’t know exactly where she was staying in Brazil.
Q. Did she ever tell you she had cancelled the trip?
A. No. I don’t even remember when we stopped talking about Brazil.

Q. Okay.
A. It just kind of went away. We didn’t talk about it anymore.
Q. Did you learn at some point she never went to Brazil?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Did she tell you that tickets had never been purchased to go to Brazil?
A. Had never been purchased?
Q. Yes.
A. No, she didn’t tell me that.
Q. Okay. Now, do you think the last time you talked to Janet was in March of 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. And where were you when you talked to her in March of 2003?

A. At my house.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you that Michael Jackson had falsely imprisoned her?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you that Michael Jackson had kept her family against their will?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you that Michael Jackson had extorted her family?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you that Michael Jackson was in a conspiracy to commit crimes against her family?

A. Absolutely not.

Q. And you were talking to her on a regular basis in February 2003, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And would that be daily?

A. I don’t remember if it was daily. And again, if I got calls, sometimes they were from Davellin and sometimes they were from Janet.

Q. Okay. Did Davellin ever tell you that the family was being held against their will?

A. No.

MR. SNEDDON: Object as hearsay, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer was “No.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Davellin ever tell you that the family was being falsely imprisoned by Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Did Davellin ever tell you that her family were the victims of extortion by Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Did Davellin ever tell you that there was some conspiracy to injure her family?

A. No.

Q. Did you have any discussions with Gavin during February of 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. And would he call you or would you call him?

A. If his sister would call me, he would get on the phone. Normally if Davellin would call, they would all get on the phone.

Q. Okay.

A. One by one.

Q. And that would include Janet?

A. Sometimes -- no, not all the time. A lot of times during this period Janet had a headache, she would say.

Q. Okay.

A. They would tell me their mom was lying down.

Q. Okay. Now, when Janet invited you to go to Carnivale in Brazil, were the kids around, to your knowledge?

A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know if the children were on the phone at the same time?

A. Not the same time, meaning there was more than one phone, no.

Q. Okay. But you think you had two or three conversations with her about Brazil?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she ever tell you she was being forced to go to Brazil?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet say anything about whether or not

Jay Jackson was going to go to Brazil with her?

A. No, she didn't mention it to me.

Q. Okay. And did she express disappointment that Michael Jackson wasn't going to go to Brazil with her?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I object. Asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Janet Arvizo ever complain to you about Michael Jackson in February of 2003?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet Arvizo ever complain to you about Michael Jackson in March of 2003?
A. No.
Q. Now, there was a point in time where you attended an interview between the Arvizo family and some social workers in Los Angeles, right?
A. Correct.
Q. And did you attend that interview?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Why did you do that?
A. Janet asked me to.
Q. Do you know approximately when she asked you to?
A. I would say approximately about a week before the interview.
Q. Okay. Do you remember whether she called you or you called her?

A. Again, I'm sure she called me during that time. They were from place to place, so I had no way of reaching them.
Q. Okay. And was she calling you often during this particular part of February?
A. Yes.
Q. Would it be correct to say she was calling you on almost a daily basis?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Could it have been a couple of times a week?
A. Yeah. Several times a week.
Q. Okay. Is there any particular time of day when Janet would call you?
A. No. All hours of the day.
Q. Okay. And did you consider Janet to be your friend at the time?
A. Yeah, she was a friend.
Q. You seem to hesitate. Is there a reason?
A. I mean, she's not someone who I ever hung out with on a one-on-one basis. If the children were around. She's not one of my girlfriends who I would call up and talk about a new CD or a new movie or -- you know, most of the conversations we had, about 95 percent I was listening to her or it would be about her children.

Q. Now, when Janet called you in February of 2003, did she ever tell you she was being forced to go to any location?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you she was being forced to get into anyone’s car and go anywhere?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you in February of 2003 that her children were being forced to travel to various locations --

A. No.

Q. -- by anybody?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you that she was forced to do any interview about Michael Jackson?

A. Never.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you that her family was forced to rehearse lines that they were then to articulate in an interview about Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you that she or her family were given scripts to memorize --

A. No.

Q. -- for an interview?

A. No.

Q. Did she ever complain about having to do any interview for a rebuttal documentary?

A. No. As a matter of fact, she was happy to do the rebuttal video.

Q. Please explain what you mean.

A. She was very upset about the uproar that had been caused by this documentary. Not only that her children had been taped without permission, but that the relationship, the friendship that her son had with Michael was taken completely out of context and made -- and made into something that was bad. She was upset about that.

Q. And she told you that?

A. She told me that.

Q. Okay. Now, when did she tell you she was happy to do an interview for the rebuttal documentary?

A. Her exact words were not, “I’m happy to do this,” but she was very excited about doing it. She was very anxious to do it, to tell the world that this friendship was nothing more than what they saw, a beautiful friendship, and that’s it.

Q. She used those words to you?

A. She’s used the word “beautiful friendship” before in regards to Michael, yes. I don’t know in this specific conversation if she used it.

Q. Is there anything else she told you about Michael and her family, that you remember?

A. Janet told me the same thing about Michael as she said about Chris and I. She praised Chris and I to the point where it made me uncomfortable, saying that we were sent -- we were angels and how we just have done so much for her family.

And while I believe that we did provide the children with happiness and maybe love that they were not receiving from the other parent, David, you know, me, as a woman, I feel uncomfortable because I’m only a human being, you know.

And I would tell her all the time, “Janet, stop. Stop. I’m only doing what anyone else would do with a heart,” you know.

She praised Chris. She praised myself. She praised Michael.

Q. When she praised Michael, what did she say?

A. I don’t remember exact words, but she -- it was something to the effect of, “What a great man he is,” “He’s an angel,” “His love is great.”

Q. Did she ever refer to you and Chris Tucker as part of her family?

A. All the time.

Q. What would she say about that?

A. “You are our family.” She said it over and over and over. The children said it. I said it. I would call them my Mexican brothers and sisters, because they were like my little brothers and sisters.

Q. Would Gavin say you were part of his family?

A. Yes.

Q. Would Star?

A. They called me --

Q. I’m sorry.

A. They called me “big sister.”

Q. Okay. Did Star say you were part of the Arvizo family?

A. Yes.

Q. Would Davellin say you were part of the Arvizo family?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall whether or not Janet said Michael Jackson was part of the Arvizo family?

A. I’m sure over the three-year relationship we’ve had she’s mentioned that at some point in time. I don’t remember any specific conversation, but I’m sure she has.

Q. Now, during February of 2003, do you recall whether or not Janet ever referred to Michael Jackson as a father figure to the Arvizo family?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, around the same time, did she refer to Chris Tucker as a father figure to the Arvizo family?

A. No.

Q. Did she ever refer to Chris as a father figure, to your knowledge?

A. No.

MR. SNEDDON: It was asked and answered, Your Honor

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, in 2003, was it your understanding that Gavin was still ill?

A. No.

Q. Did you learn at some point that he had recovered from his illness?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And what did you learn?

A. After undergoing all of his chemo, I believe his dad told me his cancer had gone into remission.

David was still in the picture at this time.

Q. Okay. Did Janet ever tell you words to the effect that Michael Jackson had helped her son overcome his illness?

A. She mentioned that after the Bashir documentary.

Q. And what did she say about that?

A. Exactly what you just said; that Michael had helped cure her son, and this is what a beautiful friendship they have.

Q. Now, do you recall -- excuse me, let me rephrase that.

Did you learn at some point that Janet and the children were going to be interviewed for a rebuttal documentary to the Bashir program?

A. That’s -- excuse me, yes.

Q. And you just said that she praised Michael for helping her son overcome his illness, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Now, to your knowledge, was that praise that she gave to Michael Jackson before the family was interviewed for a rebuttal program?

A. Yes.

Q. And did she say that many times before that interview?

A. I don’t know about “many times,” but she said it.

Q. More than once?

A. One time is clear in my head. Once.

Q. Okay.

A. During the initial conversation that we had after the documentary aired.

Q. Okay. Do you recall when Janet and the children were interviewed for the rebuttal documentary?

A. Yes.

Q. And what do you remember about that?

A. I remember it was the night before the interview with the social workers.

Q. Now, Janet asked you to come to the interview with the social workers, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she tell you why?
A. Why --
Q. She wanted you to be there.
A. For support. Janet has asked me -- well, first of all, I -- Janet had been interviewed, or the children had been interviewed by social workers before, so Janet was very scared that her children were going to be taken away from her. So I believe that's why she asked me to come, for support.

Q. And did you agree to come?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you go to that interview?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Was your child with you?
A. Yes, he was.
Q. Okay. Did you drive to Major Jackson's home for the interview?
A. I don't know if it was Major Jackson's home, but I drove to an apartment.
Q. And what street was that on?
A. St. Andrews.
Q. That's in Los Angeles, right?
A. Yes. Near Western.
Q. Okay. And do you know about what time of day you and your child drove there?
A. It was in the morning. I think about nine o'clock. 9 a.m. Maybe earlier.
Q. Did you park on the street?
A. Yes. And I got a parking ticket.
Q. Okay. And you then went into the apartment, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have to go up the stairs to do that?
A. I took an elevator up.

Q. Okay. And when you first got into the apartment, what did you see?
A. First of all, I rode up in the elevator with the three social workers. I didn't know they were the social workers until I got in the apartment, till we went to the same place.

When I got in, I saw the -- I saw Janet and three children.

Q. And so you walked in at the same time the social workers did, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And what's the next thing you remember seeing?

A. Oh, and there was another guy there. I don't know his name.

The first thing that I saw, Janet was talking to the social workers.

Q. Okay. Did you hear what she said?

A. I don't remember.

Q. And you met the social workers, obviously.

A. Yes.

Q. And did you talk to the social workers at all?

A. Briefly, yes.

Q. And what did you say to them, if you remember?

A. We were introduced.

Q. By who? I'm sorry.

MR. SNEDDON: Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: We were introduced, and they were commenting about how cute my son is. Because he really is cute.

MR. SNEDDON: That's why I let you say it.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And do you remember anybody showing a video?

A. Yes.

Q. What do you remember about that?

A. I remember -- I don't know who put it in, if the kids put it in or Janet, but the video was of Michael Jackson and Gavin when Gavin was very ill. He was undergoing chemo at the time. You could tell he was very weak, very pale, little to no hair. At times I don't think he was walking. I think Michael was maybe pushing him around in a wheelchair.

And there was a part of them where Gavin kind of just plops on a blanket. You could tell he was just so weak he can't really just sit down. He kind of just falls. His knees buckle. And they're by a lake. And that’s it.

Q. And you watched that with the social workers and Janet and the Arvizo children?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did it -- do you know whose idea it was to watch that video?

A. I believe -- yeah, I think it was Janet’s.

Q. Okay. After the -- after you -- excuse me.

Let me rephrase the question. After you all watched the video, what happened next?

A. After the video, I believe that’s when the interview started and I was asked to leave. My son and I were asked to leave.

Q. And who asked you to leave?

A. One of the social workers.

Q. And did you leave?

A. I did, but Janet put up a fight. She wanted me to stay.

Q. Okay. When you say she put up a fight, now, what do you mean?

A. She said, “Absolutely not. Azja is our family and I want her here.”

Q. And did you see Janet have a discussion like that for a while?

A. For about a minute.

Q. And what was the result of that discussion?

A. The social workers told her she understood that, but, you know, I guess by law, that no one else outside of the family could be present.

Q. Okay. And then what did you do?

A. I told Janet it was okay, and I would go wait outside. And as soon as she was done, “Come get me.”

Q. Did you go wait outside?

A. Yes.

Q. How long do you think you waited outside?

A. Well, I went and got something to eat. And I came back, and it was still another hour, hour and a half, so it was altogether maybe two hours.

Q. And then did you go back in?
A. Yes.
Q. And what did you see when you went back in?
A. A completely different scene from the beginning. Everyone was hugging each other. And it was like the tension had left the room. You could tell that everyone was happy.
Q. And when you say “everyone,” who are you referring to?
A. The kids and Janet, and the social workers.
Q. Okay.
A. It was very tense at first when the social workers first arrived. It was very tense. And by the end of the interview, it was a completely different scene.
Q. And at the end of the interview, what did you do?
A. I stayed around for a while.
Q. Okay. Did you stay with Janet and the children?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. All right. Now, you made a comment about Janet having a prior experience with the Department of Children & Family Services, right?

A. Yes.
Q. And what were you referring to?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object. Lack of foundation and calls for hearsay. No personal --
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Were you ever with Janet before this particular time when she had an experience with the Department of Children & Family Services?
A. No, I was not with Janet. I was with the children.
Q. And when was this?
A. It’s unclear to me if it was in December of 2001 or early 2002. It was somewhere around that time, though.
Q. And you say you were with the children?
A. Yes, I went to visit them at the apartment.

Q. Okay. Which apartment now?
A. The one near downtown.
Q. Okay. Was that on Soto Street?
A. I believe so.
Q. Was that in East Los Angeles?
A. Yeah. I think East L.A.
Q. And why were you at the apartment that day?
A. I went to visit, to check on them. This was during a time that Janet and I were talking a lot on the phone, and she had told me about the abuse from her husband, and I was worried about them. And I’m a very spiritual person, as well as Janet is, so I went over to pray with her.

Q. Did you do that?
A. She wasn’t there.
Q. Were the children there?
A. Yes.
Q. Were they alone?
A. They were alone. And they told me that the --
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object. It’s nonresponsive and it’s hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained. I’ll strike after she said, “They were alone.”
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you stay at the home that day?
A. I stayed for a couple of hours.
Q. Okay. Did you ever see Janet that day?
A. No.
Q. Why did you go to the home that day?
A. For support.
MR. SNEDDON: That’s asked and answered.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: For support, did you say?
A. For support and to pray with her.
Q. And you mentioned that this had some relationship with the Department of Children & Family Services?

A. Yes. Prior to me getting there, the children told me that a social worker or two, I don’t know, had come to their apartment.

Q. On that day?

A. On that day.

Q. And was the mother not home that day?

A. She was not home, and she had given the children instructions not to answer the door, but Star had let them in.

Q. Okay. And you never saw Janet that day at all?

A. Nope.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object as asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled. Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Now, to your knowledge, was Chris Tucker visiting the Arvizo family at their home?

A. No.

Q. Do you know if he ever has done that?

A. Not to my knowledge, no.

Q. Okay. The day that you attended the interview with three social workers at St. Andrews Place, did you speak to Janet or the children before the interview?

A. Meaning that day did I speak to them?

Q. Yes.

A. No.

Q. Do you know if you spoke to Janet or the children the day before that interview?

A. Yes, I spoke to them the night before.

Q. Okay.

A. When they were doing the rebuttal video.

Q. And did you talk to Janet?

A. Yes. She called me.

Q. Do you know where she called you from?

A. From wherever they were doing the video.

Q. And did she ever tell you she didn’t want to do the video?

A. No.

Q. Did she tell you she wanted to do it?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, object. Asked and answered.

MR. MESEREAU: Not this particular time.

THE COURT: Overruled. Connect the time.

MR. MESEREAU: Sure.

Q. We're talking about the night that Janet and the children did the rebuttal interview, okay?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. This is the night before your meeting with the Department of Children & Family Services, all right?

A. Yes.

Q. You say Janet called you?

A. Yes.

Q. And did Janet ever complain about anything in that call?

A. No. She was -- she seemed happy. Whoever's house they were at, she put them on the phone and introduced us.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object to anything beyond "No." Move to strike.

THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In that phone call, did Janet put anyone else on the phone?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know who it was?

A. I'm trying to think of the name. It was an interesting name. I don't remember. It was like -- I want to say like an Arabic name or something. I don't know.

Q. Did you talk to this person?

A. Yes.

Q. How long did you talk to Janet in that call, if you remember?

A. I don't remember. It wasn't a long conversation, though.

Q. But she called you and seemed happy?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Did she ever ask you to call the police because they were being held against their will?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you they were being falsely imprisoned; “Please help”?

A. No.
Q. Did she sound like she was in any kind of trouble in that call?
A. No.
Q. Did you talk about the social workers’ interview the next day?
A. I believe that’s when she gave me the address of where it was going to take place.
Q. And did you agree on a time that you would be at the St. Andrews address for the next day?
A. Yes, she told me what time the interview started.
Q. Okay. Okay. Now, you said that when the interview was completed, you went back into the apartment, and you hung around for a while?
A. Yes.
Q. Did the children seem happy?
A. Not happy. Just -- you know, just like their normal selves. I don’t know. They might have been even watching T.V.
Q. Did Janet seem happy?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you talk to Janet?
A. Not -- not much.
Q. At some point, did you leave that apartment on St. Andrews Place after the interview with the social workers?

A. Yes.
Q. And where did you go?
A. I went to Neverland.
Q. Why did you go to Neverland?
A. The children asked me -- the children and their mother asked me to take them.
Q. And you agreed to do that?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you drive the three children to Neverland?
A. Yes. And my son.
Q. Okay. Now, did Janet ask you to take them to Neverland after the interview?
A. Yes.

Q. Did she ask you to take them to Neverland while she was in the apartment on St. Andrews Place?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she tell you why she wanted you to take the children to Neverland?

A. I assumed that's where they were staying.

Q. At this point, had Janet ever told you that she was forced to escape imprisonment at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. At this point in time, had Janet ever told you she ever escaped from Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet tell you how she was going to get to Neverland on that day?

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Calls for speculation, conclusion.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Can you repeat that?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Sure.

You agreed to take the Arvizo children and your son to Neverland, right?

A. Correct.

Q. This is after the interview with the social workers?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have an understanding where Janet was going to be?

A. Yes. A young man came to the house, and Janet told me that they were going to retrieve some birth certificates to get their passports.

Q. Was that for the Brazil trip?

A. I assumed it was.

Q. Did she ever complain to you about the Brazil trip?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SNEDDON: Vague as to time.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: After the interview with the three social workers --

A. Yes.

Q. -- when you were in the apartment on St. Andrews Place, did Janet ever complain about the Brazil trip?

A. Yes.

Q. What did she say?

A. This was in a conversation about two or three weeks later --

Q. I’m talking about this particular day now.

A. Oh. No. No, no, not that day.

Q. Did she say anything negative about the Brazil trip on that day?

A. No. She seemed eager to go to get the birth certificates to take care of the passport situation. And she told me she’d come to Neverland after that.

Q. Okay. Now, you drove to Neverland after that?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Took the children to Neverland?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And about what time do you think you arrived at Neverland?

A. About three o’clock.

Q. And what did you do when you arrived at Neverland around three o’clock?

A. What do you do when you go to Neverland? You do everything. I mean, I probably got on the bumper cars. I don’t know. I turn into, like, a child. I turn into a child when I go to Neverland. I maybe got on the Ferris wheel. I don’t know. I was all over the place.

Q. On that particular day?

A. Yes.

Q. So you were -- so you were essentially playing with the children at Neverland, right?

A. Yes.

Q. At some point, did you see Janet at Neverland that day?

A. No.

Q. Okay. When did you next see Janet Arvizo?

A. I never saw her again.

Q. Did you ever talk to her again?

A. Yes, I did. On the phone.

Q. When was that?

A. The only time I remember -- the only time that's clear in my head is a phone conversation we had two to three weeks after this interview with the social workers.

Q. Okay. We'll get to that.

Did you leave the Arvizo children at Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And where did you leave them, if you remember?

A. What do you mean where did I leave them?

Q. Did you leave them in the main house? Did you leave them in the guest units? What went on?

A. I believe we were in the main house.

Q. Okay. Did you talk to Janet while you were at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. What time do you think you left that day?

A. I spent the night that day, and that was a Thursday. I did not leave until about ten or eleven o'clock Friday night.

Q. Okay. So Thursday night you stayed at Neverland, right?

A. I stayed overnight, yes.

Q. Did you see Michael Jackson there?

A. No.

Q. Did you see Michael Jackson the next day?

A. No.

Q. Do you know where the Arvizo children stayed that night?

A. No.

Q. Where did you stay?

A. In a guest unit.

Q. Okay. Did someone bring you to the guest unit at Neverland?

A. I think I walked over there.

Q. Okay. And the next day you got up in the morning?

A. Yes.
Q. And what did you do?

A. Ate breakfast.
Q. Okay. Was that in the main house?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you just walk into the main house?
A. I don’t remember. I can’t remember someone letting me in. I think the door is locked or something. I think someone let me in.
Q. And did you go to the kitchen area?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you sit at the counter?
A. Yes.
Q. And were there some cooks on the other side of the counter?
A. Yes.
Q. And you just ordered breakfast and had breakfast right there, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And your son was with you?
A. Yes.
Q. What did you do after breakfast?
A. I don’t remember.
Q. Okay.
A. Oh, I do remember. We fed -- we fed elephants --
Q. Okay.
A. -- and the birds and things like that.
Q. Were the Arvizo children with you?
A. Yes, they were.

Q. Did they meet you in the main house?
A. I believe they called me. And they were the ones to tell me, kind of, “Hurry and get up and come over here.”
Q. Do you think you met them at the main house?
A. Yes.
Q. Did they have breakfast with you?
A. Yes, they did.
Q. Okay. And that’s -- after breakfast, you all fed the elephants?

A. Uh-huh.
Q. Okay. How long were you at Neverland that day?
A. Until I left, which was about 10:00 or 11:00 that night.
Q. Okay. And did you ever see Janet that day?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Were you with the Arvizo children during the entire day?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you with them that evening before you left?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you have lunch and dinner with them?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And did you ever see Michael Jackson there?
A. No. He wasn't there.

Q. Okay. How did you find that out?
A. There were other children there. There were other guests there who said that he wasn't there.
Q. Did you know what the other guests' names were?
A. Marie Nicole, Baby Rubba, and I don't remember the older brother's name. And Marlon Brando's son and his three kids.
Q. Okay. Now, if you know, where were Marlon Brando's son and his three kids staying?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know where the other children were staying?
A. I don't know.
Q. Was their name Cascio, if you know?
A. I don't know.
Q. Okay. When you went around Neverland, were you with the other children as well?
A. Yes.
Q. So you were with Marie Nicole?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. And Baby Rubba?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. And the third person?

A. No, the older one, who was probably about 15 or 16, I don’t know, maybe even older, he was kind of just doing his own thing.

Q. Okay.

A. He wasn’t with us at that time.

Q. Were the Brando children with you?

A. No. They were on the quads.

Q. Okay. They were on the quads driving around?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Okay. So you leave about eleven o’clock at night, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. You went home?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Janet ever complain to you about the way the media was treating her?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Did she ever say words to the effect that her family was being hassled by the media?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object as leading and suggestive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: After the Bashir documentary aired, did you ever discuss the media with Janet?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object. It’s hearsay and it’s asked and answered on the prior question.

MR. MESEREAU: I don’t think so.

MR. SNEDDON: The word was “ever.”

THE COURT: It’s a time difference.

Go ahead. You may answer. If you’d like it read back, we can do that.

THE WITNESS: Please.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And did you say anything to Janet about the media?

A. Not that I can remember.

Q. Did she say anything to you about the media?
A. She did. But I don’t remember what she said.
Q. Okay. Did Janet ever tell you anything to the effect that the media was following her?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object as leading.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. SNEDDON: Suggestive.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Did Janet ever say anything to you about getting a body wax?
A. No.
Q. Did she say anything to you about Michael Jackson paying for her children’s dental work?
A. No.
May I go back to one of those questions to follow up?
Janet never mentioned anything that I can remember about the media following her, but Davellin did.

Q. And what did Davellin say?
A. Davellin --
MR. SNEDDON: Excuse me. Object as hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How many times have you discussed the media with Davellin?
A. I don’t remember how many times.
Q. Was it more than once?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Was this during your phone conversations with Davellin?
A. During the initial conversation with Davellin.
Q. Was this about the same time that Davellin was asking for a car?
A. No, this was before.
Q. Okay. I think you said this, but I don’t remember. I apologize. Do you remember when the last conversation you had with Davellin was when she asked for a car?
A. I don’t remember.

Q. Was -- it was in 2003, right?
A. It was in 2003, yes.
Q. Okay. Okay. So you -- you leave Neverland at about eleven o’clock, right?
A. 10:00 or 11:00.
Q. The Arvizo children remain at Neverland,

right?
A. Yes.
Q. And to your knowledge, Michael Jackson is not at Neverland, right?
A. Right.
Q. When do you next talk to any member of the Arvizo family, if you recall?
A. The next day or so. Maybe Saturday or Sunday.
Q. Who did you talk to?
A. Davellin.
Q. Did Davellin call you?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know where Davellin was when she called you?
A. At Neverland.
Q. How long did you talk to Davellin on that occasion?
A. I don’t remember.
Q. Okay. When did you next talk to Janet?
A. I can’t remember.
Q. Did Janet ever talk to you about some German people?
A. Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object. Vague as to time.
MR. MESEREAU: I’ll ask when.
THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When did Janet first talk to you about some German people?
A. I don’t remember the first conversation when she first talked to me about them.
Q. Was it in the year 2003?
A. Yes.

Q. And did she call you the first time she mentioned some German people?

A. I’m sure she did.

Q. Okay. And do you remember what she said about them?

A. She didn’t like them.

Q. Did she tell you why?

A. They were rude. They said mean things to her. She didn’t elaborate what mean things they said, but she just did not care for them at all. And it was obvious that they didn’t care for her.

Q. Did she ever complain that these German people were keeping her away from Michael Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. What did she say?

A. It was in an answer following a question that I asked her. I asked her -- with all the mean things they were saying, I said, “Does Michael know anything about this? And she said, “No, they won’t let us around him, because they know that the children tug at his heart strings.”

Q. Tug at whose heart strings?

A. Michael’s.

Q. Okay. Now, was this conversation about the German people after the interview with the three social workers?

A. Yes, this conversation in particular I’m talking about was two to three weeks after the social workers’ interview.

Q. Was that the first time you had spoken to Janet since the social workers’ interview?

A. I don’t know if it’s the first time, but it’s the only time that’s clear in my head right now.

Q. Did Janet tell you where she was during that discussion?

A. She was at Neverland.

Q. Okay. And do you know whether or not her children were at Neverland when you had that conversation?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever learn whether or not Janet went back to Neverland to be with her children after the interview with the social workers?

A. Can you repeat that?

Q. Sure. After the interview with the social workers, you took the children to Neverland?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And did you ever learn that Janet went to Neverland to be with the children?

A. After I took them there?

Q. Yes.

A. In the phone conversation I had with Davellin following my time at Neverland, I don’t remember her mentioning her mother being there. I don’t remember her mentioning her mother not being there. I just -- I can’t remember that.

Q. So you don’t really know if Janet went back to Neverland after the interview with the social workers?

A. I know she went back at some point. I just don’t know when.

Q. Okay. And I think you said the next time you spoke to Janet, it was your understanding she was at Neverland, right?

A. I know she was at Neverland.

Q. How do you know?

A. Because she told me.

Q. Okay.

A. And because whenever I have Privacy Manager or something like that, Neverland Valley Ranch shows up on my caller I.D.

Q. Okay. Approximately when do you think you had the conversation with Janet at Neverland that you just described?

A. I’ll say it was anywhere from two to three weeks after that interview with the social workers.

Q. Okay. Did Janet talk about the German people in that discussion?

A. Yes.

Q. What did she say?

A. She didn’t like them.

Q. Did she elaborate?

A. I'm sure she did. But I don't remember exactly what she said about them. It was a very long conversation, so I don't remember exactly what she said about the German people.

Q. Okay. And she mentioned Brazil in that conversation?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she say she wasn't going?

A. She said she didn't want to go.

Q. Okay. And did she mention in that conversation that she learned Michael Jackson wasn't going to Brazil?

A. Not that I can remember, no.

Q. Okay. Did she complain about Michael Jackson in that conversation?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet ever complain to you about Michael Jackson?

A. Never.

Q. Did she say nice things about Michael in that conversation?

A. No.

Q. Did she really talk about him?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. Did she talk about Michael in that conversation, if you remember?

A. The only instance that I remember her mentioning Michael's name is when she said that they would not allow the children around -- her and the children around Michael.

Q. Okay. And that was in February of 2003 or March of 2003?

A. I believe it was March of 2003.

Q. Okay. And that conversation -- excuse me. In that conversation, was it your understanding that Janet was at Neverland?

A. I know she was at Neverland.

Q. Okay. Okay. Now, did you ever talk to Davellin about whether or not she had any friends she used to be with at Neverland?

A. Davellin talked about Marie Nicole a lot.

Q. And what did she say about her?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was it your understanding, based upon your discussions with Davellin, that Marie Nicole was her friend?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see Davellin at Neverland with Marie Nicole?

A. Yes.

Q. On how many occasions do you think?

A. When I drove to Neverland after the interview, she told me about Marie Nicole on the way there, and that we would meet her once we got there. And once we arrived, Marie Nicole was there.

Q. Okay. And did you see Davellin hang out with Marie Nicole at Neverland?

A. Yeah, we all kind of hung together.

Q. Okay. In the conversation with Janet in March that you have just described, did she ever tell you that her family had been held against their will at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. In that conversation with Janet in March, did she ever say that her family had been falsely imprisoned?

A. No.

Q. In that conversation with Janet in March, did she ever say that her family were the victims of extortion?

A. No.

Q. And in that conversation with Janet in March of 2003, did she ever say that she or her family were forced to escape from Neverland?

A. No. I'm sorry.

Q. Why are you smiling?

A. I mean, it's Neverland. I don't really know who would want to escape Neverland. It's just a fun place.

Q. Okay.

A. But, no, she never said that.

Q. Okay. Now, you’ve indicated that Janet would speak to you for long periods of time, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And what -- when you say a long period of time, what do you mean?

A. Sometimes an hour or two.

Q. And is this in the year 2003?

A. This is pretty much from the start of us talking on the phone until the last conversation we had.

Q. Did Janet ever complain to you that Michael Jackson had molested her children?

A. No.

Q. And when do you think the last conversation you had with Janet was?

A. In March of 2003.

Q. Do you have any idea what part of March that was?

A. I’ll say early March.

Q. So in early March, she told you that the German people wouldn’t let her children see Michael Jackson?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object. Asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: With the Court’s permission, I’d like to approach the witness, if I may, Your Honor, to show some exhibits.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MESEREAU: They would be Defense Exhibits 5090, 5091, 5092, 5093 and 5094. They are photographs with writings on the back, and I have showed them to the prosecution.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you.

MR. SNEDDON: Just let me see them a minute.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Miss Pryor, I’m showing you the exhibits I just described, and I’d like you to first look at Defense Exhibit 5090, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. Have you seen that photograph before?

A. Yes.

Q. And where have you seen that photograph?

A. At my house.

Q. And how did you ever see that photograph?

A. It was mailed to me, along with other photographs.

Q. Okay. And do you know who mailed it to you?

A. The children did.

Q. Okay. Would you please read what's on the back of that photograph?

A. Sure.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, Your Honor, it's not in evidence yet, so I'd object. But to save some time, I'll just indicate to the Court, I'll stipulate to the admissibility of all these, just to make the record clear.

THE COURT: You're offering all of them?

MR. MESEREAU: We are. We are.

THE COURT: They're admitted.

MR. MESEREAU: If I can approach, I'll just put them all in front of the witness, then.

Q. Will you please read what's on the back of the first exhibit?

A. "Hi, Azja. I am sending you a picture of us so when we are not with you, you can see us. I love you, Azja. Your little guy, Gavin Arvizo."

Q. Do you know if Gavin sent that to you?

A. I'm assuming he did.

Q. And when did you receive it?

A. I don't know.

Q. Okay. Do you know which year?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Okay. Could you read the back of each exhibit in front of you?

A. Sure.

THE COURT: Tell us the number you're reading.

THE WITNESS: Oh. Sorry. 5091. This one is for Chris. It says, "Chris, this is a picture for you to remember us always and when you are far away from us you can see us. I love you, Chris. See you soon, big bro. Your little bro, Gavin Arvizo."

Q. Okay.

A. 5092. "Hi, Boo-Boo." That's my son's nickname. "Hi, Boo-Boo. This is your big brother. Now you can see us all the time. I love you, Boo-Boo, and I miss you. Your big brother, Gavin Arvizo." 5093. "Dear, Azja. I give this to you with love. I love you. Love, your little brother, forever, Star." 5094: "Dear, Chris. I love you and miss you with all my heart. Love, Star David Arvizo."

Q. Now, these are all photographs of the Arvizo children, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And were they mailed to you at once or did you get them periodically?

A. No, they all were mailed at one time.

Q. And do you know approximately when that was?

A. No.

Q. Okay.

A. Sometime during our friendship.

Q. Okay. Now, in March of 2003, did you speak to any of the Arvizo children?

A. Yes.

Q. Who did you speak to in March of 2003?

A. I spoke to the three children.

Q. And when you spoke to them, did you know where they were?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did any of the children ever complain about Michael Jackson to you?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet Arvizo ever mention someone named Jamie Masada to you?

A. Yes.

Q. And when did she mention Jamie Masada to you?

A. I've been hearing Jamie's name since I believe the first day I met the children. And subsequently, after that, when I would speak on the phone to their mother.

Q. Did Janet ever mention to you that Jamie Masada was a close friend?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she ever mention to you in February of 2003 that Jamie Masada had taken her to an attorney?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet mention to you at any time in February of 2003 that she had seen an attorney named Bill Dickerman?

A. I believe so.

Q. Okay. And do you know when she told you that?

A. I don't remember. It's not so clear in my head, but I do remember her mentioning the name Bill Dickerman.

Q. Do you know when she mentioned Dickerman?

A. No, I don't know.

Q. Okay. Did she ever tell you that Jamie Masada had taken her -- excuse me. Let me rephrase that.

Did she ever tell you that Jamie Masada introduced her to Attorney Bill Dickerman?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Okay. Did Janet ever tell you that Jamie Masada and Attorney Bill Dickerman had introduced her to Attorney Larry Feldman?

A. No.

Q. Now, when you were at Neverland, right after the interview with the social workers, --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- this is the day you drove the children there when Michael wasn't there, do you recall whether or not the Arvizo children ever asked to stay in Michael Jackson's room?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you hear them make that request?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where were they when they made that request?

A. Maybe in the kitchen. I can’t remember.

Q. Do you know who they asked if they could stay in Michael Jackson’s room when Michael wasn’t there?

A. I believe his name is Joe. He’s the guy who’s always there.

Q. And do you recall what he said?

A. He said no.

Q. And do you know where the kids stayed -- excuse me, the Arvizo children stayed that night?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, that’s been asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever learn that a rebuttal documentary with Maury Povich appeared on television?

A. Yes, we watched it that night.

Q. And who is “we”?

A. It was myself and my son, the three children, Marie Nicole, Marlon Brando’s son, and I don’t know if some of his children were there or not.

Q. Did you watch the rebuttal show with Maury Povich at Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And did you notice that the Arvizos were not in that show?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you say Janet was there?

A. No, she was not.

Q. Okay. Okay. Just a few more questions. May I just take a minute, Your Honor, just to --

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall Janet ever discussing whether or not Michael Jackson was going to set up a college fund for her children?

A. Can you repeat that?

Q. Sure. Do you recall whether or not Janet ever discussed words to the effect that Michael was going to set up a college fund for her children?

A. Yes.
Q. When did this discussion take place?
A. I believe it was in the conversation that I had with her two or three weeks after the interview. We covered many grounds during that phone conversation.
Q. This is after the interview --
A. With the social workers.
Q. Okay. Did she tell you that she thought a college fund was being set up for her son?
A. No. She didn’t tell me that there was a college fund being set up. She said there was mention of a college fund.
Q. And did she want one?
A. No.

Q. What did she say?
A. Her exact words were she doesn’t even know if her son is going to be alive in ten years; “What is a college fund going to do for him?”
Q. Did she say she wanted anything?
A. She didn’t say she wanted anything.
Q. Okay. Did you think she was suggesting she wanted money?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object. Calls for opinion, speculation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever have a discussion with Janet about her hiring a lawyer to sue the people who did the Bashir documentary?
A. Yes. I asked her -- I’m sorry. Just one moment.
I don’t know if I asked her if she has an attorney and whether she should look into legal action against Martin Bashir, but I asked her, “Has anyone spoke on compensating you for this?” And that’s when she mentioned the college fund to me.
Q. But did she indicate she wanted compensation of any kind, to you?
A. She indicated that a college fund wasn’t going to do her son any good when he might not even be alive in ten years.

Q. Okay. Did you suggest to her that she get an attorney to try to get compensation?

A. I may have. I don’t remember clearly, but I probably did.

Q. Did Janet ever talk to you about whether she should sign a release form?

A. I asked her did she sign a release form.

Q. And when was this?

A. During the same conversation.

Q. Okay. And again, when did this conversation take place?

A. Two to three weeks after the interview.

Q. Okay. And did she say she had signed a release?

A. No.

Q. Did she say she hadn’t?

A. Yes, she said she had not signed one.

Q. Okay. Did you have any further discussion with Janet about the fact that her family had been interviewed?

A. I’m sorry, can you repeat that?

Q. Yes. Did you have --

MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object to the question as assuming facts not in evidence with regard to -- can’t do any more than that, but it’s unclear, vague as to time, and also as to which conversation.

MR. MESEREAU: I think it is vague. I’ll rephrase it.

Q. After the interview with the three social workers, and after the Arvizo family had been interviewed for the rebuttal show, did you have any further discussion with Janet about that rebuttal show?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever talk to Janet about the fact that you watched the Maury Povich rebuttal show with her children?

A. No, not that I can remember.

Q. So do you recall Janet ever commenting on that show at any time?

A. No.
Q. Did Janet ever mention anything to you about phone calls being monitored at Neverland?
A. No.
Q. Ever tell you she thought she couldn’t talk because her phone calls were being listened in to?
A. No.
Q. Did Janet ever talk to you about going shopping?
A. No.
Q. Did Davellin ever mention the names of any young women who went to Neverland with her?
A. No.
Q. Ever mention the name of a woman named Adrianna or --
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object as leading and suggestive.

THE COURT: I didn’t hear the end of the question.
MR. MESEREAU: I’ll restate it.
Q. To your knowledge, did Gavin ever invite a female to Neverland?
A. Yes.
Q. And when was this?
A. This was before the interview with the social workers.
Q. Okay. And how did you learn about that?
A. They told me about it.
Q. Who is “they”?
A. Gavin and Davellin and Star.
Q. And --
MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to move to strike based on hearsay.
THE COURT: Stricken.
Let’s take a break.
(Recess taken.)
THE COURT: Counsel?
MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.
Q. Miss Pryor, you said that when you were at Neverland with the Arvizo children, you walked around the property, right?

A. Yes.
Q. And do you recall ever going into the theater?
A. Yes.

Q. And did you go into the theater with the Arvizo children?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall ever going into a dance studio?
A. I didn’t go in, but I looked in it.
Q. Okay. Now, when you looked in it, was it locked?
A. Yes.
Q. And did somebody unlock the door?
A. No. No one had a key. There was, like, a keypad on the door.
Q. Okay. And did someone know the combination?
A. Yes, Star opened it.
Q. Okay. Did you ever see Star open any other combinations at Neverland?
A. Just the dance studio and the main house.
Q. Did you ever see Gavin open any combination locks at Neverland?
A. Just the main house.
Q. Okay. Did Star and Gavin tell you they knew the combinations?
A. Star didn’t. He opened the dance studio door. He said no one should be in there.
Q. And did he tell you how he learned the combination?
A. No.
Q. Did Janet ever complain to you about her children drinking alcohol at Neverland?

A. No.
Q. Did she ever mention anything about her children drinking alcohol at Neverland?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall Janet ever commenting about people making millions of dollars off of her son?
A. Yes.

Q. What did she say about that?
A. She said everyone around them was making millions of dollars off of the video. They didn’t -- she didn’t specifically say her sons, but off of this documentary.
Q. Did she complain that she wasn’t making millions?
A. No.
Q. Was that the implication you got from her comment?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object to the question. It’s asked and answered; leading; speculation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Janet ever complain that she and her children were beaten up by a group of white boys?
A. Yes.
Q. What did she say about that?
A. This was during one of the times when she was telling me what a horrible husband David was, and she told me that David had stood there and watched while some white boys beat up her and her children, her and her two sons.

Q. Did she ever mention any lawsuit?
A. No.
MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, I’d like to show the witness a document that’s been marked as Exhibit No. 5095, if I may.
THE COURT: All right.
MR. MESEREAU: May I approach?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. MESEREAU: Thank you.
Q. Miss Pryor, have you seen that --
A. Yes, I have.
Q. -- document before?
And what is that?
A. It’s a letter to me from Davellin.
Q. And if you look at the bottom, you see some driver’s license information. Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that all part of the same document?

A. Yes, it is.
Q. Did you receive that document?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And did Davellin send it to you?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know why?

A. From the looks of it, to give me her mother's license information.
Q. And do you know approximately when she sent you that driver's license information?
A. It's hard to see here, but I can remember from seeing the letter. It was dated February 13th.
Q. Do you know what year that probably was?
A. 2003.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay. I move this document into evidence, Your Honor.
MR. SNEDDON: No objection.
THE COURT: It's admitted.
MR. MESEREAU: May I approach and retrieve it?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SANGER: Your Honor, could we have the screen to the Elmo?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, may we approach on the display of this exhibit?
THE COURT: Because of address information?
MR. SNEDDON: The DMV information on it, yes. I don't believe that should be public.
MR. MESEREAU: We will not display that information.
Q. Davellin -- "Davellin." Miss Pryor, Davellin sent you her mother's driver's license information, right?
A. Yes.

Q. She sent you her mother's address, right?
A. I believe it was her grandmother's address.
Q. And she sent her mother's birthday information, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And she sent her driver's license information, right?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. And was that in relation to the conversations you had -- excuse me. Was that in relation to the many conversations you had about their wanting a car?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Did you ask for Janet Ventura’s driver’s license information?

A. No.

Q. Did you know Davellin was going to send you Janet Ventura’s driver’s license information?

A. No.

Q. What was your reaction when you received it?

A. I guess it was -- I knew that they wanted the car, so it didn’t really surprise me, even though she didn’t tell me she was sending it, but it didn’t really surprise me.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

MR. SNEDDON: Would you leave that exhibit there for a second?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Good afternoon.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. Miss Pryor, I just want to ask you a few questions. I won’t be long.

A. All right.

Q. With regard to your relationship with the Arvizo family - okay? - I believe you’ve indicated in the past that you found the family to be a very affectionate family, correct?

A. Yes, very much so.

Q. And in fact, Davellin used, as you’ve indicated, the term “sister” in relationship to describe her relationship with you.

A. Yes.

Q. And they were a family that would like to hug people even the first time they met them, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And some people, who aren’t familiar with the family or the way they behaved, sometimes took that the wrong way?

A. I don’t know.

Q. Okay. But you didn’t take -- it didn’t bother you that they hugged you?

A. Not at all.

Q. Okay. And you knew that they were a religious family, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. They would use the term “God bless” a lot to express thanksgiving for things?

A. Yes.

Q. And you, in fact, went over to pray one time with Janet, correct?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Now, when you went to the Soto Street apartment, that was a -- to call it an apartment may even be misleading. It was a one-room apartment, correct?

A. Correct. It was a studio apartment.

Q. There was no bedroom in it. Everybody was in one room, correct?

A. Right.

Q. Did you observe mattresses on the floor?

A. Yes.

Q. And the room was divided off with sheets hanging up just to partition it into certain areas?

A. I never saw any sheets.

Q. So you just saw mattresses on the floor?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was your understanding that everybody was sleeping in that one room, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, you’ve described how you met Janet Arvizo for the first time, and you’ve described some of your relationships with the children. I’d like to just review some of this, if we can.

You indicated that you and Chris Tucker and your son visited Gavin in the hospital on New Year’s Eve, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Actually, it was -- it was the next year, right?

A. New Year’s day, yes.

Q. New Year’s day. But it was early in the morning?

A. Right.

Q. So you got there just in time to be there for the year 2001, correct?

A. Right. We got there on January 1st, 2001.

Q. Yes, ma’am. When you got there, you actually -- Janet was not there?

A. No, she was not.

Q. But you did talk to her on the phone, correct?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And when you talked to her on the phone, she thanked you for everything you had done for Gavin, right?

A. Yes, for her family.

Q. For her family. And she said that -- even in that conversation, though she had never met you, she said she loved you for what you had done for them?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, you talked about Knott’s Berry Farm and you talked about the premier and the Oakland game, but let me ask you another thing about this. Was there an occasion when Chris Tucker’s brother got married?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you go to that wedding?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you invite the Arvizo children to go with you?

A. I don’t remember if I did or Chris did, but one of us did.

Q. But the Arvizo children went with you to Chris Tucker’s brother’s wedding, correct?

A. No, they came in their mother’s car.

Q. Okay. I’m sorry. But they were there because you invited them?

A. Yes.
Q. Either you or Chris?
A. Yes.
Q. And they were there as your guests?
A. Yes.
Q. You were with Chris?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. And was -- were there a lot of people at this wedding? Was it a big wedding?

A. There were about 60 people altogether.
Q. Okay. And where was it held?
A. In Pasadena.
Q. At a private club?
A. It was at a residence.
Q. At a residence?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. A nice residence?
A. Yes.
Q. And then you invited them to your son’s birthday party at the ranch?
A. Yes.
Q. And was there an occasion where you actually stayed at the ranch with the children for about a week after the birthday party?
A. No.
Q. So to your knowledge, was Chris Tucker there with them for about a week during the summer?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Okay. You weren’t there if they were?
A. I wasn’t there.
Q. Okay, fine. Now, Davellin -- Davellin --
A. Davellin.
Q. -- called you her big sister, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you call her your little sister?
A. Yes.
Q. And it’s clear you have a very strong affection for Davellin and the boys. And she did stay at your house on occasion?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you find her helpful when she stayed at the house in playing with your son and helping take care of your son?
A. Yes. She’s very nurturing. Very sweet girl.
Q. Very loving girl?
A. Very loving.
Q. Somebody you really cared for a lot?
A. Yes.
Q. And still do?
A. Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: Hand me that pen.
Q. Now, you told us about attending Davellin’s graduation from the academy.
A. Yes.
Q. The Explorer academy. And when you attended that graduation, did you sit with Janet Arvizo?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And it’s true, is it not, that on that particular occasion, you actually observed bruises and injuries on Mrs. Arvizo’s person, correct?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Now, Mr. Mesereau asked you about this conversation about Gavin hurting his arm and the conversation about the glove. Do you remember that?

A. Yes.
Q. And do you remember you saying to Janet if she needed some equipment, you’d give her the equipment; you’d give her the money to get the equipment, correct?
A. I said if she needed anything, just to ask, and if I could do it, I would help her.
Q. Did she ever ask you to buy any equipment for the family?
A. No.
Q. Now, let’s talk a little bit about the DSS meeting that you went to with Miss Arvizo. You had had at least, as I recall your testimony, at least two conversations with her prior to the time that you went to the St. Andrews Street address on the 20th, correct?

A. I'm sure I had more than two conversations.

Q. I said at least two.

A. Yes.

Q. And one was the night before where she gave you directions on how to get there?

A. Correct.

Q. And one was before that in which she expressed to you that there was going to be some kind of a meeting with DSS?

A. Yes.

Q. And when she talked to you about that, she told you that she was really scared about the meeting, correct?

A. She didn't say she was really scared about the meeting. She was afraid that her children may be taken from her. I don't know if she was afraid it was going to happen at that meeting, but just the whole surroundings of this documentary and actually someone calling and reporting her to Social Services was scary for her.

Q. Okay. So she was very concerned about whether or not they might take her children from her?

A. Yes.

Q. And you knew that that was her mindset before she went into that interview?

A. Yes.

Q. And the concern was directly related to, as you understand, directly related to the fact that Gavin had appeared with the defendant, Michael Jackson, in the Bashir video, correct?

A. Can you repeat that? I'm sorry.

Q. Yes, ma'am. The concern of Mrs. Arvizo was that the DSS folks had focused on the fact that Gavin had appeared in the Bashir video, correct?

A. I don't know if that was her main concern. I'm sure that had something to do with it since it seems like this investigation had arisen since the documentary aired. But I don't know if that was her main concern, just because her son had appeared in a video with Michael Jackson.

Q. Had you seen the video before you went to the DSS meeting?

A. Which video?

Q. The documentary.

A. Yes, I had.

Q. Okay. And you had seen Gavin in the documentary?

A. Yes, I had.

Q. You recognized him?

A. Yes.

Q. And you recognized that it was Gavin sitting on the couch with the defendant in this case with his head on his shoulder?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And holding hands with him?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And you knew also that during the same documentary -- let's call it a "documentary" so we don't confuse it with the other video that you mentioned. That in that documentary also, that Mr. Jackson had stated publicly that he slept with little boys, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Now, it was the media attention that had been generated by those scenes and those statements that was causing the DSS people to investigate Janet, correct?

A. I believe so. I'm not sure if there was something else involved, but I believe it was stemming from that documentary.

Q. So this was the nature of the relationship between Gavin and the defendant, Michael Jackson, that was -- that was the reason that she was concerned about being declared an unfit mother, or, let me change that, in your words, that they would take the children away at some point?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you mentioned that -- when you were at the DSS meeting, that Janet -- at some point you were asked or told that you would have to leave by the Department of Social Services ladies. The social workers, let's just call them that.

A. Yes.
Q. And you said that Janet objected to that?
A. Yes, she did.
Q. And you used the word "absolutely objected"?
A. She was adamant.
Q. Okay. And do you remember that?
A. Yes.
Q. So do you know that that conversation was tape-recorded?
A. What conversation?
Q. The conversation with the Department of -- the social ladies, the social workers.
A. No, I wasn't aware of that.

Q. Have you heard a tape of it?
A. Not at all.
Q. Did Mr. Mesereau provide you a tape to listen to before you testified?
A. No.
Q. So you at no time, up to me just telling you this, did you know that there was actually tape-recording of that part of the conversation?
A. No. Actually, I heard that there was a tape-recording, but I wasn't aware of it at the time. It was up until recently.
Q. Do you recall during that conversation that when the social workers asked you to leave, that Mrs. Arvizo actually apologized to the social workers for having invited you and said it was her fault for having you come?
A. I don't remember that.
Q. Now, let's just talk a little bit about a couple of things dealing with some of the conversations that you had with Mrs. Arvizo. Just so we don't -- so we can make it easier for both of us and for everybody, let's talk about -- let's give these things different names, okay?
A. Okay.
Q. I want to ask you some questions about the Martin Bashir documentary, okay?
A. Okay.

Q. And then there is what has variously been called the rebuttal video that occurred the night before you went over to the house for the Department of Social Services meeting, okay?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Now, with regard to the Bashir documentary, it’s true, is it not, that Mrs. Arvizo’s conversations with you about the fact that no release had been signed dealt with the Martin Bashir documentary, correct?

A. Prior to the Martin Bashir documentary, I don’t recall us having any conversation about any release being signed. It wasn’t until two to three weeks after she was interviewed by the social workers.

Q. Right. But the conversation about -- that she was complaining about the lack of a release being signed had to do with the Bashir documentary, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. It wasn’t anything to do with the rebuttal film that had occurred the night before the Department of Social Services?

A. No, it was not.

Q. All right. Let’s talk just a little bit about the car.

A. Okay.

Q. Mr. Mesereau asked you a number of times about them asking about a car, asking for a car, okay? In this particular situation, actually Chris Tucker had given them the car, right, your car, to your knowledge?

A. He had not given them the car. The car has never left my -- my parking space.

Q. It eventually never went to them, but your understanding was that he had indicated to them that he was giving them your car, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. As a gift?

A. Yes.

Q. Out of the kindness of his heart?
A. Yes.
Q. So it wasn’t a car. It was the car. It was your car.
A. Right. It was my car.
Q. Yeah. And part of the problem here was that during the month of February, Mr. Tucker had flown to Florida and then was gone the entire month of February, correct?
A. I don’t remember. I don’t think he was gone the entire month of February.
Q. He was gone for an extended period of time?
A. He may have been.
Q. But in any case, the car that they were talking about was your car that you had -- let me go back. You got a new car, right?

A. Yes.
Q. You got a Mercedes?
A. Yes.
Q. An SUV Mercedes?
A. Yes.
Q. Did the children go with you when that car was picked out?
A. I wasn’t there when the car was picked out. The children went with Chris to pick out the car.
Q. And to your knowledge, did Chris let them pick out the color for the car?
A. I don’t know. I think they may have mentioned that before, but I don’t know. The children told me that they actually went with Chris.
Q. When he bought the car for you?
A. Right.
Q. You mentioned giving the Arvizo family a cashier’s check for Christmas as a present, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And that was in the year 2001, for the Christmas 2001?
A. Yes.
Q. And you sent that to them with a nice Christmas card and a note, right?
A. I’m sure I did, yes.
Q. And as a matter of fact, they also gave you some Christmas presents and gift certificates for your son, correct? Do you recall that?

A. I remember them giving me gift certificates. I don’t know when it was, if it was that Christmas or Mother’s Day. They would send me gifts from time to time, different holidays.
Q. So the feeling between you and the kids was that it was one of -- that close, that you would actually exchange gifts and pleasantries with each other, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. I actually just have one more question.
A. Great.
Q. I know that’s a great relief to you. When -- actually, I have two, I’m sorry. That’s a lawyer’s problem. They can never ask just one. But the exhibit that Mr. Mesereau handed you, which is the 5095, which is the one with the information on it --
A. Okay.
Q. -- that I’m showing you now, actually the document itself contains an affectionate note from Davellin to you before all the information about the driver’s license and all that, does it not?
A. Yes.
Q. And in fact, there’s like a heart at the top of it with “February,” and then there’s a nice note to you about how much she loves you and cares for you?
A. Yes.

Q. And then the information is below that?
A. And then the driver’s license information.
Q. Okay. She signs it, “Love, your little sister”?
A. Right.
Q. Okay. Now we can get to the last question.
A. Okay.
Q. At the time you were with the Department of Social Services workers and just before you were asked to leave, do you recall that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall telling the Department of Social Services that you would like to stay because you considered these people your family?

A. I didn’t say that. Janet said that. She said she would like for me to stay because I am her family.

Q. Do you recall making this statement? “I mean, I was -- I’m here to support my family. That’s -- you know, but I understand your policies about it. If she wants, you know, she needs me with them.”

Did you make that statement?

A. Maybe I did. I don’t know. I don’t really remember saying that. I may have said that, yes.

Q. But you used the term “family” --

A. Right.

Q. -- there, “to support my family”?

A. I don’t know if I said there “to support my family,” but I have used “my family,” that term before when talking about them. So I may have said it that day.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Thank you. No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Ms. Pryor, nowhere in the Bashir documentary does Mr. Jackson ever say, “I sleep with little boys,” does he?

A. No, that was an issue that Janet and I talked about. My understanding of watching the documentary was that Mr. Jackson said that children have slept in his bed and he slept on the floor. And that was another issue why we didn’t understand there was being such a big uproar about this when he clearly said that he slept on the floor.

Q. And Mr. Jackson makes a point to say that he never has any sexual contact with children, right?

A. I believe he did.

Q. The words “I sleep with little boys” are just made up by the government, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object. That is argumentative, and I'd ask counsel to be admonished for this.

THE COURT: Sustained. It's argumentative.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Mr. Jackson also in that documentary talks about children needing more love and attention, doesn't he?

A. Yes.

Q. He talks about kids bringing guns into schools, doesn't he?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as leading, suggestive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, the prosecutor, Mr. Sneddon, talked about Mr. Jackson holding hands with Gavin, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Isn't it correct that Gavin often wanted to hold hands with people around him?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object. Calls for a conclusion, speculation, and it's leading.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever see the rebuttal footage of the Arvizo family interview when Janet says to Gavin, "Let's hold hands"?

A. I haven't seen any rebuttal footage of the Arvizos, no.

Q. Do you remember Janet often saying, "Let's hold hands"?

A. Yes.

Q. She said that to you, didn't she?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Didn't Janet tell you that her family all held hands and prayed to God that they would meet Michael Jackson and Chris Tucker?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. And when the prosecutor, Mr. Sneddon, asked about the Arvizos being affectionate, you agreed with him, right?

A. Very much so.

Q. When he said they were very unduly and very quickly affectionate with people, you agree with that, right?

A. Very much so, yes.

Q. And they used to immediately hug people, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. People they hardly knew, right?

A. I don’t know, but -- I don’t know. I haven’t really been around them when they just met strangers, but anyone who I ever brought around them, yes, they --

Q. I’m sorry.

A. -- they were very affectionate towards them.

Q. Part of their being affectionate was also holding hands at times, right? Ever see them hold hands?

MR. SNEDDON: Well, Your Honor, let -- she was waiting for the answer to the first question.

THE WITNESS: I’ve seen them hold hands.

THE COURT: All right. That’s okay. Go to your next question.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

Q. Now, the prosecutor, Mr. Sneddon, asked you if you’d been to the Soto Street address, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you been to the grandparents’ address?

A. No.

Q. But you’ve been to what you now know is Jay Jackson’s address, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. When Janet -- excuse me. When Davellin and Janet were asking you for a car, did you know whether or not Jay Jackson was supporting them?

A. I was not aware that Jay Jackson was even in the picture during this time.

Q. Okay. Was -- Janet and Davellin, were they telling you they were too poor to get a car?

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Calls for hearsay and leading.

THE COURT: Compound, sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: At the time they were asking you for a car, did you know whether or not Janet was collecting welfare checks?

MR. SNEDDON: Object, Your Honor. This is compound and leading.

THE COURT: It's sustained. Compound.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Well, when they consistently called you, call after call, and asked for an automobile, did they tell you in any of those conversations that they were too poor to buy a car?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object to that as argumentative in the use of the word "consistently."

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: No questions, Your Honor. Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, our next witness would be -- our next witness would be Mr. Nimmer.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Mr. Sanger?

THE BAILIFF: I'll come get it.

THE COURT: Are you prepared to show me that? (To the jury) All right. I have to review a piece of evidence here that's going to take, according to counsel, 19 minutes and 8 seconds.

MR. SANGER: Three seconds.

THE COURT: Three seconds. So I'm going to let you go outside and have some more soup.

A JUROR: There's none left.

THE COURT: Ahh.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, are you ready to proceed?

THE COURT: Yes. Is it “1” or “4”?

MR. SANGER: All right. Before I start it, let me just state for the record that we have Exhibit 5089, which I think I already identified for the record. I’ve put that in the machine, and then we’ll keep a good thought.

It might be helpful if we could have the lights. Thank you. I know there’s somebody usually on the other side there.

THE BAILIFF: Is there sound?

MR. SANGER: No, there is no sound with this, Your Honor.

(Whereupon, a DVD, Defendant’s Exhibit 5089, was played for the Court.)

MR. SANGER: That’s the end of the video, and we would propose to have Mr. Nimmer narrate basically where he was when he was shooting, and he would say, “This is the front gate,” “This is Figueroa,” “This is the guest unit,” that sort of thing.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, as I indicated earlier, I believe that this -- a good deal of what’s in this video is inadmissible. And particularly objectionable is those parts that deal with having staff out there doing things, basically scripted or -- “scripted” is probably not a good word to use in light of everything that’s happened in this courtroom, but certainly the way they’re performing on the video and performing for the camera specifically.

Secondly, there are some parts about this that there is no way to establish that this is the way that the premises looked at the time of the events in February and March of 2003. And I believe this video, portions of it were filmed earlier this year and maybe portions of it recently, and we know for a fact that certain portions of it are different from when we went out there, when members of the sheriff’s department went out there in December of 2004.

So it’s misleading to the jury in the sense that it portrays certain locations and places different than they were and certain facilities. If this were simply a video of somebody showing the zoo or showing the giraffes or showing the amusement park -- and you can see it's unduly suggestive in the fact that they have notes on the board that are obviously propaganda in the sense they're notes with, "We love you, Daddy," and in the mail room where they took them, there was actually a sign of protest dealing with this case.

Those things don't belong in front of the jury, and it's highly inappropriate focusing on one particular picture and one particular room. And so I just think that this video should not be admitted. It's -- it's 352. It's of little or no value to the jury, and that it would tend to mislead the jury as to the factual issues they have to make.

And I think it's particularly misleading with regard to the fact of the clocks. There's some testimony about where the clocks were. It's not inconsistent with what's portrayed here, but the way they portrayed it here is the way the clocks were operating when this video was taken, and it misleads the jury that they may have been operating differently at another time.

And so I think in all respects that this video should not, in its current condition, be submitted to this jury for observation and review, and we object to that, Your Honor.

Thank you.

THE COURT: Well, I think the -- I did deny the request to go to the Neverland Ranch, but I had in mind, when I denied that, that the parties would be capable of showing the property with a video such as this. And there's some truth to the fact they're showing -- I guess it's probably the typical welcome that the guests get at Neverland when they go there, but I don't think it's a prejudicial issue, and I'll allow the film.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I can't convince the Court that they should edit out some of the parts that are really inappropriate for the jury to see? It's a simple editing job. It seems to me if you're going to let some of it in, that's fine, but it also seems to me that some of those things are really not appropriate, particularly the writings on the chalkboard and --

THE COURT: Well, I don't know. It moves pretty rapidly. I mean, I didn't get the feeling that I could read any of that material. It moves right along. I tried to -- I started to look at it, and about the time I was understanding what might be there, it was gone. So I don't really see any problem with it.

I would not want you dwelling on those items with your narrator, if you had that in mind. You haven't said that you do.

MR. SANGER: No. In fact, we will make it clear the narrator did this in 2005. It says it right on the -- on the video. And the thing on the board was just there when he was out there. It was Mr. Jackson's kids had written something, evidently. But that's clear he did it in 2005, and the jury will know it wasn't in 2003.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: What I'd propose to do is to play the other tape first, the one we have an agreement on, and we can probably do that before we have the break.

THE COURT: All right. Let's have the jury come in, and we'll play the other part first.

Did you call them in?

THE BAILIFF: I did.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing. Face the clerk over here. Raise your right hand.

LAURENCE NIMMER

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record

THE WITNESS: Hello. Laurence, or Larry, Nimmer. Laurence is L-a-u-r-e-n-c-e. Nimmer is N-i-m-m-e-r.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: Okay. May I proceed, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Mr. Nimmer, how are you presently employed?

A. I have a legal graphics, demonstrative evidence company.

Q. All right. And you did just the right thing. We have to tell every witness to sit right up into that right microphone.

A. Okay.

Q. All right. And how long have you had a legal graphics company?

A. I’ve had my company for 13 years, and I’ve worked in the field another two years.

Q. All right. Can you give us your background, training, and experience that leads up to your being employed in the legal graphics field?

A. Well, I have an undergraduate degree in architecture, and then I studied broadcasting at San Francisco State University. I worked in T.V. news for the CBS affiliate in San Francisco. And I’ve been involved in graphics and multi-media for the last 30 years.

Q. Now, as far as the legal graphics aspect and legal documentation aspect is concerned, I think you’ve said you’ve been doing this for about 15 years?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And during that 15 years, have you had occasion to prepare exhibits for presentation in court cases?
A. Yes, quite a few.
Q. Is that one of the main things that you do?
A. That is correct.
Q. All right. Can you tell us whether or not you have been called to testify in any of the courts in this general area?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. And what courts do you recall testifying in?
A. Santa Barbara. Ventura. Los Angeles.
Q. Have you testified in Santa Maria courts?
A. I don't believe I've testified here. I've had trial exhibits in these courts.
Q. Have you testified in San Luis Obispo?
A. I have not testified there. I've had trial exhibits there.
Q. Your exhibits have been received in court without your testimony?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. Now, over the course of your work in the last 13 years in your own company, about how many cases have you prepared exhibits for?
A. Between 900 and a thousand.
Q. And about how many exhibits do you believe have been, to your knowledge, admitted into evidence in court?

A. I would guess around a thousand exhibits --
Q. So you prepared --
A. -- I'd estimate.
Q. So you've prepared more than one exhibit --
A. Per trial.
Q. -- per case?
A. Yes.
Q. So a percentage of the cases you work on go to trial, and of those, there's a number of exhibits per case that might go before a jury or before a judge; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. All right. Now, you have -- have you worked primarily in the criminal area or the civil area?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, in order to expedite this, I'll stipulate to his qualifications. We can just move on to the --

MR. SANGER: I'll accept the stipulation. I need to ask a couple more foundational questions for the first tape, but --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Now, as far as the work that you do, does part of it involve preparing diagrams and charts for court?

A. Yes.

Q. Does part of it involve preparing video documentation?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you explain what the purpose is to video documentation, in general? What are you doing when you're doing that?

A. Generally it's to give an objective view of a scene, or an object, or whatever the subject matter.

Q. And have you worked for both sides in cases, both the plaintiff's side and the defense side?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. When you say -- I think you said "an objective view." Were those your words?

A. Yes.

Q. Is it possible to manipulate video or visual media to give a distorted view of something?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you attempt to avoid that when you're preparing a video documentation?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Can you explain what kind of video documentation you often prepare for court cases?

A. I've done day-in-the-life videos that document, if someone's been injured, what their quality of life is now or when they were involved in a certain job.

I've documented accident scenes, different environments, buildings, that type of thing.

Q. All right. And you mentioned day in the life. Can you just explain just briefly what that means?

A. Well, if someone in a personal injury case has been injured, sometimes I will follow them around and show what their quality of life now is for the jury to be able to evaluate what their problems are or what their lifestyle is like, basically.

Q. All right. In this particular case, did you prepare two different videos?

In fact, what I'll do, Your Honor, let me back up for a second. During the break, I asked that a DVD, which I'm calling a video, be marked as Exhibit 5096, and it's entitled, "Neverland alarm test."

And then prior to this, I believe out of the presence of the jury, we marked -- we had already identified a video entitled "Neverland Ranch 2005," and that was marked for identification as 5089.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you.

May I approach the witness with these exhibits?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. You have before you Exhibit 5096?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Do you see the little yellow tab on there?

A. I do.

Q. Okay. And what is that?

A. The Neverland alarm test.

Q. And is that a video that you created?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. All right. Now, with regard to that video, did you have a particular assignment that you were asked to carry out?

A. Yes, I did. Should I describe it?

Q. Yes, please.

A. I was asked to document the sound of the alarm in the private suite of Mr. Jackson, both downstairs in the private suite and upstairs in the bedroom area.

Q. Okay. When we say “alarm,” I suppose that’s what it says on the video. Can you describe what this is? You say “alarm.” What is it?

A. Yes, it’s kind of a chime sound that is triggered when someone walks in the outer area of the private suite.

Q. All right. And did you have occasion to go to Mr. Jackson’s home?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did Mr. Jackson give you permission to go in there and spend the time you needed to do this video?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Did you have any assistance in doing this video?

A. I used the assistance of a maid on the property to walk out and walk in to trigger the alarm. I had an assistant with me for some other purposes, but during the alarm test, I didn’t have any other really assistance on that.

Q. So basically for the alarm test, you pretty much commandeered somebody who was working that day; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you asked her to walk through the hallway area to set off the chimes, or the bell, or whatever it was, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And then what did you do to record the sound of that bell?

A. I used my professional video camera, it’s a Sony VX2100, and I used the internal stereo microphone on the camera to record the sound.

Q. Did you make any modifications to that camera in order to do this test?

A. No.

Q. How long have you had that camera?

A. Approximately a year, year and a half.

Q. And have you used that camera during the last year, year and a half routinely in other cases?
A. Yes. About every day, every other day.
Q. All right. So that’s your regular everyday camera is what you’re saying?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. Now, in the course of doing this -- we’re going to show it, but before we do -- or we’re going to ask to show it. Before we do, though, I want you to set it up a little more.
In the course of this, do you recall where you were standing during the first part of the test?
A. During the first part of the test I was inside the private suite area downstairs, perhaps about 15 feet from the front door, opposite the front door.
Q. And did you have -- do you remember the name of the particular employee who you asked to help you?
A. I believe her name was Maria.
Q. Do you remember her last name?
A. No.
Q. Does Maria Gomez sound right? Or you don’t know?
A. I’m afraid I don’t know her last name.
MR. SANGER: I’d like to refer to her by her last name.
Is there any objection to my doing that?

Miss Gomez? I can represent to the Court, as you’ll see, that’s who it is.
THE COURT: Is there any problem with that, Mr. Sneddon?
MR. SNEDDON: I’m assuming that’s who it is.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: So I’ll refer to Miss Gomez.
A. Okay.
Q. Just so we’re proper and polite here.
What did you instruct Miss Gomez to do?
A. I instructed her, once the camera was recording, to walk out and then walk back in.
Q. Now, did you have her go down the hallway a certain point?

A. Correct. There’s an outer hallway where the alarms or the chimes are triggered. I had her walk through there so she was on the other side of it, and then walk in.

Q. You say the other side of the hallway. Would that be the door that’s adjacent to the foyer and the front door?

A. That’s correct.

Q. So you had her walk down that little hallway and turn around and walk back into the room; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And did you have her close the door behind her as she went out?

A. Yes. And possibly it automatically closed.

Q. Okay. Now, so -- and the first test was you standing on the first floor of Mr. Jackson’s suite, private suite area, and doing just what you said. What was the second test?

A. The second test was upstairs in the private bedroom area. My camera was positioned two or three feet kind of behind the bed. So we see the bed in the foreground pointing towards the stairway where people walk up to get upstairs to the private bedroom. And your question was what was the test?

Q. Well, that was -- I think you answered my question. I think. But let’s try another question. All right. And that’s where you were located. So then what did you instruct Miss Gomez to do?

A. I instructed her, similar to the first test, to walk downstairs, walk through the room downstairs, through the hallway downstairs where the alarm is triggered, to walk all the way out into the foyer area, and then to turn around and walk back in through the hallway, through the downstairs area, up the stairway into the private bedroom.

Q. All right.

A. And I should mention we had the door open at the bottom of the steps.

Q. So we're going to get to that. The second test we're going to see, the door at the bottom of the steps --

A. Of the stairway.

Q. -- it's an internal door in between the first-floor room and the hallway and stairway leading up to the second-floor room. There's a door there; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. So the second test, in the sequence of three tests here, you had the door open, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And then what was the third test?

A. The third test was just the same as the second test; however, we had the door closed at the bottom of the stairway which leads up to the upstairs bedroom.

Q. All right. Now, have you had a chance to listen to the -- or listen to and watch the video that you prepared?

A. Yes.

Q. You were there, of course, during the time this was being filmed? You were the one filming it, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you have an opportunity to compare what you heard on the video to what you heard with your own ears as you were standing there?

A. Yes.

Q. Does the video fairly and accurately depict what you heard?

A. I'd say fairly and accurately. Perhaps the last test, with the door closed downstairs, I believe the alarm actually sounded somewhat louder in person than you'll hear it on the tape. But otherwise, I believe it's more or less like the experience of being there.

MR. SANGER: All right. And with that, Your Honor, I'd like to play 5096, if we may. I think I need to move it into evidence first, which I do.

MR. SNEDDON: No objection.

THE COURT: All right. It's admitted.

MR. SANGER: And -- all right. And now I've got to retrieve it.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

(Whereupon, a DVD, Defendant's Exhibit 5096, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. SANGER: Okay. May I proceed with questioning?

Q. Now, with regard to Exhibit 5096, you just heard it?

A. Correct.

Q. Does that appear, as you listen to it, to be a fairly accurate depiction of what you were able to hear of the bell?

A. Well, as I said, the last test with the door closed, I remember hearing it very clearly. Here, you hear it, but not that loudly. So other than that, I'd say it's fairly accurate.

Q. Now, there was a -- there seems to be a faint bell that seemed to be triggered when Miss Gomez was going out, but not every time. Did you -- did you hear that?

A. I noticed that, and I don't know why it's inconsistent that way.

Q. In other words, sometimes it seemed there was a faint bell set off when she went out the door, and other times there was no bell at all that you could hear; is that correct?

A. Correct. And sometimes the bell seemed louder when she went out. Sometimes it didn't seem to trigger at all when she went out, but it always seemed to trigger when she came in.

Q. Okay. Now, you have in front of you 5089?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. And is that the DVD that you compiled as a result of visiting and going around the Neverland Ranch itself?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And is that video cut from longer -- I want to say film, but it's not film, it's all on video, so whatever you call it. Is that cut from a longer series of shots?

A. Yes, it is.
Q. And did you try to -- what did you try to do in compiling that video?

A. I tried to give an objective view of the experience of a visitor to Neverland.
Q. All right. There is some people who are seen in the video at various places. People, for instance, driving a tractor or golf cart or something like that. Were they planted there by you or were they actually doing that?
A. They were actually doing that.
Q. Now, there are some scenes where -- a scene, for instance, where you have some people lined up -- there are people lined up as you’re going into the main house. Did you ask them to do that for a particular reason?
A. Yes. I was told that often, when visitors come, the staff stand out in front and greet the visitor. So I asked if I could experience that as well with my camera.
Q. So that is something you requested as opposed to somebody just driving a tractor on the property?
A. Correct. And I think there’s also a repeat of the scene of Miss Gomez walking in the downstairs private suite and I arranged for that shot, too.
Q. All right. And there are a couple of others where there’s -- at the train station or the theater where people are offering -- offering you something or holding out something; is that correct?
A. That’s correct.

Q. And was that arranged?
A. That was arranged. I asked if they could have it as it would normally be for a visitor and what the experience was like.
MR. SANGER: All right. Very well.
THE COURT: We’ll take our break now.
(Recess taken.)
THE COURT: I scared the bailiff. She stepped right out, and I was standing right there.

We were like that, for a second.

All right. Are we prepared to go forward?

MR. SANGER: Yes. I wanted to ask a few more preliminary questions, before we start, to set the scene.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: You have up there -- you have 5089. That's what we're talking about. And that's your -- what a visitor might see if they came to Neverland?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, the ranch itself is -- and I think we had testimony, is 2700 acres, something like that.

Did your video cover the 2700 acres?

A. Well, not every acre, but we went throughout the property.

Q. And on the video that you've come up with here, can you tell us, just in general terms, where it starts, where it goes? In general terms. Not every frame, but where it starts, where it goes, and how it ends.

A. Sure. We start on the front gate, on Figueroa Mountain Road. We come in. We go into the inner gate, the golden gate.

And then we come to the main house area, the guest cottage area, which is opposite the main house.

We see some of the grounds.

Then we go out to the arcade, next to the main house.

Then we go to the amusement park, north of the main house.

And then the zoo north of that.

And then we see a few other areas on the property, such as video library, administrative offices.

Q. All right. There's -- in this video that we're going to see, there is -- seems to be a number of clocks.

Did you have a particular -- were you given some particular instruction with regard to clocks?

A. I did have an instruction to video clocks that one would see particularly around the main house, the guest cottage area. Other exterior --

Q. Could you do me a favor and talk in the other microphone?

A. Sure.

Q. That's the one.

A. Should I repeat that answer?

Q. I think I stepped on it. So if you would, go ahead.

A. So, yeah, I did have a direction to document clocks around the main house area, the guest cottage area and other clocks outside that one would see.

Q. All right. And then I believe you said you photographed this in part during the day; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Was this all done on one day?

A. No, I was there on three or so occasions.

Q. And what year was that that you did that?

A. This year. 2005.

Q. All right. And then did you also video some of the footage at night?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. All right. And when -- when you were taking these videos, do you personally know whether or not all of this is exactly the same as it was in 2003?

A. No, I don't know.

Q. Did you ask anybody to change anything in any way that would cause it to be different than the way you were finding it as you went there?

A. No. In some cases, there was an effort to make it look like it was in 2003, I believe. But I didn't ask for any particular direction.

Q. Okay. Can you explain what you just told us about making it look like it was in 2003?

A. The only example I can think of for that is in the private suite area, the first time I came there, it was kind of in a state of disarray. And then I was told, when I came back, that the furniture was more or less arranged like it was in 2003.

Q. Okay. And was -- do you know if the people that did that had a reference, any kind of a video reference that they could use to try to make it look as much as they could like 2003?

A. My understanding is that they did have some reference.

Q. All right. Is that the search video that --

A. I don’t know what they used. It was the ranch manager.

Q. That’s fine. All right.

Okay. Your Honor, with the Court’s permission, we will play the tape, if we can.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: Oh. I have to retrieve it first. Let me do that.

May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes. Did you offer that into evidence?

MR. SANGER: I was just going to do that now, Your Honor. I would offer Exhibit 5089 into evidence, please.

THE COURT: Subject to your previous objection, I’ll admit it.

THE WITNESS: And should I give some narration?

MR. SANGER: Before I start it, let me -- as I indicated to the Court earlier, I’m going to ask the witness to give brief narrative statements while the tape is playing, which will be primarily statements as to what we are looking at, where we are at various points, if that’s acceptable.

THE COURT: That’s -- Mr. Sneddon, is that acceptable?

MR. SNEDDON: I’ll --

THE COURT: You’ll object if something --

MR. SNEDDON: If I see something untoward, I’ll say something.

MR. SANGER: There you go.

THE COURT: Subject to his objection, then you can proceed that way.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Excuse me just one second. Just one second, Your Honor.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: Thank you. We have a little technical matter that we were going to -- second time.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

(Whereupon, a DVD, Defendant’s Exhibit 5089 was played for the Court and jury.)

THE WITNESS: This is Figueroa Mountain Road, the main entrance to the Neverland Ranch.

This is just inside the main entrance.

These are the perimeter fences on Figueroa Mountain Road.

Straight ahead here is the bus parking and turn-around area for groups that visit.

This is the golden gate to enter near to the main house area.

This is the small train depot opposite the main house and the guest cottages.

This is the guest cottage and the lake and the main house area.

This is the main house on the southwest side.

This is entering by the front door.

Here we are in the front foyer area by the front door.

This is still the front foyer area.

This is right upstairs from the foyer area.

This is the downstairs dining room.

This is a view out of the dining room window of the guest cottages. Panning into the dining room area.

This is still the dining room area.

This is the entrance to the library, the downstairs library.

This is the living room area. And from the living room we see into the family room/den/kitchen area.

This is the private suite area, as we saw earlier.
This is back downstairs in the main foyer area.
And we pan out the front door and see the relationship of the guest cottages across the way from the main house. There’s a cluster of guest cottages together. Facing us is Unit No. 4.
This is another view of that same unit.
There’s the main house across the way.
This is in front of the guest cottage.
And now we’re inside this unit of the guest cottage. This is Unit No. 4.
Out the window you see a view of the front door of the main house. You’re still in the guest cottage.
That’s the bathroom of the guest cottage.
This is right -- the front porch of the guest cottage. And this is a view from the front porch.
This is the other side of that guest cottage, and we pan over and you see the oversized flower/plant clock. Another angle of it, and it’s 11291 in front of the main train station.

There’s another angle of the main train station, which I said is opposite the main house and the guest cottages.
This is inside the train station.
This is the back side of the train station.
This is the back side of the main house.
And this is a pan of that side of the house, which is on the north side of the home.
This is the west end of it, the garage, and just outside the garage area.
This is the pool on the north side of the home.
Just north of the home, this is the arcade building.
And here we’re going inside the arcade building.
Upstairs from the arcade building is this book storage area.

By the way, they have three trains on the property.
And now we’re heading -- we’re going to see -- the next scene will be north of the main house at the amusement park.
Opposite the amusement park, this is the theater.
This is in the entryway to the foyer of the theater.

Now, about a quarter of a mile further north, is the zoo area.
These are the grounds around the main house and the guest cottages.
This is the small train depot.
This is the front of the train station.
This is the security office at the west end of the main house.
Just east of the security office is the video library. This is upstairs.
These are the administrative offices in the administrative building, southwest of the main house.
This is fan mail in the administrative offices.
This is outside the main house and grounds around the main house area.
The guest cottage.
Again, around the main house area.
This is towards the end of the day, the guest cottage.
That completes the day scene.
And then here we are at night. This is the amusement park.
This is the theater across from the amusement park.
This is one of the clocks by the main train station, which is opposite the main house and the guest cottages.

This is the lake opposite the guest cottages and the main house.

This is the guest cottage, Unit No. 4. You see it's across the way from the small train depot.

These are some wide-shot views of the small train depot.

This is the guest cottage again.

And this is as one leaves, one goes through the golden gate area.

And then further down the hill, by the main exit, is the "Goodbye" sign.

MR. SANGER: I have a few more questions, if I may.

Q. Okay. About how many times did you have occasion to go to Neverland Ranch?

A. I think it was four or five times.

Q. And those were all this year?

A. Yes.

Q. During those times -- we saw on the film that there was some pictures of some children's toys and tricycles and other things.

During those times, did you see those toys or toys like that around the main house?

A. Right. Just the way I found them.

Q. Did it appear that this was a family's home?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, there was some shots of the Guest Unit

No. 4, several shots of Guest Unit No. 4 and the guest units in general.

As a part of your directions or assignment, as it were, were you asked in part to determine whether or not you could see clocks from the vicinity of Guest Unit No. 4?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. I think I noticed that in the video there were two clocks inside the unit; is that correct?

A. That's right.

Q. Can you describe where they were?

A. One was on the bedside table, and the other was in the bathroom.

Q. And that's the way you found that to exist in 2005 when you visited there; is that correct?

A. Correct. And I believe the ranch manager told me it was set the way it was --

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object to anything the ranch manager told him as hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Now, as far as the view from Guest Unit No. 4, were you able to see any clocks from the general vicinity of Guest Unit No. 4?

A. Yes.

Q. What clocks were you able to see?

A. Well, the general vicinity of Guest Unit No. 4, you saw three clocks in the main train station area, and two clocks -- or a two-sided clock at the small train depot area, and then there were two clocks inside the guest unit.

Q. So if -- when you were standing at Guest Unit No. 4, if you just opened the door, you could see the small train station clock; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And if you stepped outside and looked around the corner, you could see the flower clock; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And then there was also the clock up on the top of the train station; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. And then there was that -- what looked like a big pocket watch clock by the main tracks of the train, the big train, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Was there also a clock right behind the house?

A. Correct. There was a two-sided clock right behind the house.

Q. And was that on -- can you describe what that clock looked like?

A. It was on a stand, and somewhat antique looking.

And to correct one answer, or to add to one answer, when you're in the vicinity of the guest house, if the front door to the main house was open, you'd also see a large clock in the foyer area.

Q. The clock you just described as being on a large stand, was that a permanent stand, or was it a lamppost kind of a thing, or --

A. Yes, it was permanent. It appeared to be permanent.

Q. And then I believe you indicated that -- or let me withdraw that.

I believe the film indicated there was some other clocks on the property on the outside, for instance, at the amusement park; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And there were other clocks that were shown inside by the kitchen; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. How many clocks could you see if you were seated in that kitchen area where the seats are at the bar?

A. Well, if you were a couple feet just to the side of that, you'd be able to see three clocks.

Q. All right. And if you -- so if you're in the kitchen area or the family room area, you could see three clocks; is that correct?

A. Right.

Q. Let me go back to the Guest Cottage No. 4.

And I asked you about the clocks that were in there.

But let me ask you about the decor in there.

You could see it on the film, but from your personal observation, how would you describe that unit?

A. Deluxe. Very comfortable. Nicely decorated.

Q. I noticed in the film that there were no children depicted in the film. Was that by design?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. In other words, you were asked not to film children; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you were asked to not film a day when children were coming up for an event or anything like that?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, on the other hand, we had Ferris wheels turned on and a lot of things. Did you ask that that be done?

A. Yes, I did ask if the equipment could be, you know, in operation.

Q. So that was done for you so you could film it?

A. Yes, I asked them to simulate what it would be like when kids are visiting.

Q. All right. And then we had the film at night. Did you ask that the lights at the amusement park be turned on?

A. I don't recall if I asked for them to be turned on or if they were already turned on.

Q. When you were there at night, were the lights that you showed for the rest of the property around the house and the guest units, were those lights on?

A. As I recall, yes, they all were on.

Q. Now, you mentioned that there were three trains on the property. We actually saw one. That was from the small -- what you called the small train station. And then we saw a larger train station, and we didn't see the train. We'll come back to that. Where was the third train?

A. You know, I believe the third train is at the amusement park, but I'm not sure about that.

Q. Is it a very small train?

A. I believe so.

Q. So you have a very small train. You have the one you saw. And then there's a larger track up by the train station; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And at the time you were filming, you were not able to get a film of that train in operation; is that correct?

A. Right. I was told there was a mechanical problem with the train.

Q. Did you have occasion to see the train yourself?

A. No, I didn't see it.

Q. There was -- all right. Very well.

Excuse me just one second.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: All right. Sorry, Your Honor.

All right. Now, what I'd like to do, with the Court's permission, about 20 seconds into this video, you see that -- the fence. And I'd like to just -- I've got it ready to start again. I'd like to just start it again and stop on the fence for a moment and ask about the extent of that fence. I won't play the whole video, just the first 15, 20 seconds, whatever it is.

Would that be acceptable?

THE COURT: The fence along Figueroa?

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: Actually, right at the very beginning there, I've -- this is easier said than done, so just a moment, please. Maybe I can back up.

Okay. That's a still shot.

Q. Mr. Nimmer, there is -- just out of the frame to the left is the big gate with the big doors that open, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And just to the right of it here, you have a split-rail fence that seems to go for quite some ways; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. Let me now just go forward.

I think there's one other shot of this and then I'll turn it off, Your Honor.

See the fence there in the background?

A. I think there's two more shots of the fence coming up.

Q. I'll put a still on that.

So that's the other side of the fence.

That's Figueroa Mountain Road right there on the other side; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And that's a close-up of the actual fencing material there; is that right?

A. Correct. This is also on Figueroa Mountain Road.

Q. This is on the other side of the gate; is that correct?

A. Correct. Just south of the gate.

Q. The first ones that we saw were on the right side of the gate as you face the ranch, and this is on the left side?

A. That's correct.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Your Honor, that was, in fact, 27 seconds into the tape. I'll stop it there, if that's all right. Thank you.

Q. The mail that we saw, there was -- you indicated there was fan mail that was accumulated up in the administration building; is that correct?

A. Right.

Q. And is that what you saw when you walked in the room?

A. Yes.

Q. That was not staged in any way?

A. Correct. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Do you personally know how long that mail had accumulated; in other words, whether it was a day's worth or a week's worth or whatever?

A. I don't really know.

Q. You just took a picture of what you saw when you got up there; is that correct?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: All right. Very well. I have no further questions on direct.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Sneddon?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Nimmer.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. I want to talk about the short one first, with the chimes, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. With regard to the chimes, is the footage we saw in the courtroom on that exhibit all of the footage that you shot with regard to that documentation of the chimes going off?

A. I believe so. Possibly I had a few more seconds at the beginning or end of the test, but that was basically all the footage of that test.

Q. In other words, you did not try it more than once for each one of the three sequences --

A. That’s correct.

Q. -- and then select one?

A. Correct. I don’t believe we did.

Q. You say you “don’t believe we did.” Are you sure of that?

A. Possibly the first test we did in the downstairs private area, when the door opened, there was some -- I’m not sure. The door opened -- I think maybe the maid walked in, she opened the door, and she paused for a moment and she didn’t continue in, and so I said, “Can we do that over again?”

As I recall, that’s the only -- and that’s the only other footage that may have been shot of that test.

Q. Okay. So we can assume that with regard to the -- for purposes of our discussion, let’s just call it the three scenes: The first scene, the door opening; the second scene, the door open and you’re upstairs; and the third scene being the door closed and you’re upstairs.

A. That’s correct.

Q. I think that will help our discussion.

A. Okay.

Q. So for purposes of your testimony, we’re to assume, then, that we have the entire footage of everything that was shot in Scene 2?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And we can assume that we’ve seen all of the footage that was shot with regard to Scene 3?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And then all of it with Scene 1, except for the small part that you just told us about?

A. Right.

Q. Okay. Now, you said you had an assistant there. Was the assistant present during the entire time that each one of those three scenes was photographed?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. And what was the role of the assistant?

A. Well, the assistant was there to help me in some other regards, not -- the assistant didn’t help me in that scene. The assistant helped me some with my tripod and driving the car at some point and helping with some still photography. That was the purpose of the assistant.

Q. Okay. Now, in connection with the video that we just saw, did you do any still photography to document any of the important aspects of this video?

A. No.

Q. And in other words, you didn’t document -- you didn’t take still photographs of the location of the sensors that set off the chimes?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And you didn’t take any photographs of the speakers in the rooms that amplified the chimes when they went off?

A. That’s correct, I did not.

Q. Now, with regard to the equipment that you have, you have a video camera, I take it, a VCR?

A. Correct, a -- well, it’s not a VCR.

Q. A CD?

A. It’s a mini DV camera.

Q. The latest equipment, let’s put it that way.

A. Correct.

Q. And does the microphone that you have on there have a setting on it that you can turn it up or down if you choose?

A. There is a setting. I wasn’t using it.

Q. So you were using just what the normal setting is that comes with the equipment?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And does the normal setting for the equipment have a sensitivity level associated with it?

Usually when you go to the store and you buy it, it will say on the -- where I shop anyhow, it's Circuit City, it will tell you, you know, the mike has this degree of sensitivity, or you can get the lower model with this degree of sensitivity.

Can you tell us what the degree was on the normal in your sensitivity, your equipment?

A. Frankly, I can't tell you any specifications as to the sensitivity of it.

Q. And what was the brand of the camera that you were using?

A. Sony VX2100.

Q. Okay. Now, have you ever used, in your professional capacity, a decibel calibrator?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. Have you ever been asked before to try to document and reproduce the sound of something that's made for purposes of courtroom preparation?

A. No, I have not.

Q. So this is your first sort of an experiment into the area of sound reproduction for courtroom purposes?

A. I've used sound for other purposes in videos.

Q. I'm sure of that. But I meant for purposes of documenting and reproducing, as accurately as you can, a sound of something that is important to the case itself. You haven't done that?

A. That's correct.

Q. You are aware that there are some instruments that are called decibel calibrators, correct?

A. I would think so, yes.

Q. And decibel calibrators are used in order to measure the sound that comes out of a particular speaker or the noise that's made by a particular person, or a band, or whatever it is, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you attempt to get ahold of a decibel calibrator to calibrate the sound made by the chimes with the sound that you hear coming out of your video equipment?

A. I did not. However, my camera has a VU meter in it which does measure the level, but I did not note any levels when I was recording.

Q. Now, with regard to the experiment you did, as I understand it, you told the maid -- let’s go to the first scene, and this is probably the easiest way to amplify it. In the first scene we see -- Gomez?

MR. SANGER: Miss Gomez, yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: -- Maria Gomez walk out the door and the door closes. And she walks -- the last time we see her, she’s headed away from the camera, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, you’re familiar with the hallway that leads from the front --

A. Foyer area.

Q. -- foyer area, thank you, down to the actual entrance to Mr. Jackson’s private room, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And was her instructions to go all the way outside of that door that leads into the hallway, out into the foyer area?

A. Correct. Her instructions were to go all the way out into the foyer area, turn around and then come back inside.

Q. All right. Now, with regard to that particular part of your instructions to her, before you actually started filming, I’m assuming that you walked down the hallway yourself, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And when you did, the sensors set off the chimes?

A. Correct.

Q. And did you do that more than once to get a sense of what the sound was like and where the sensors were that were operative?

A. I don’t believe I walked through more than once. Perhaps I heard it again with my assistant walking through and others who were there walking through.

Q. And was it your understanding that in that hallway, that there are two sensors? One as you walk through the first door from the foyer, and another when you approached the door to the entrance of Mr. Jackson’s master suite?

A. Frankly, I don’t know where the sensors are.

Q. From the way that the sounds were presented, did you get any sense that the sensors -- that there was more than one sensor involved here?

A. Frankly, I wouldn’t know.

Q. So you never looked up into the ceiling to determine where the sensors were located?

A. That’s correct.

MR. SANGER: I’d object. That assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SNEDDON: Actually, Judge, there are photographs.

Never mind, I’ll take care of it. I apologize.

Q. With regard to the sensors, were you aware of whether or not there was more than one sensor in that hallway?

A. I didn’t know one way or the other.

Q. Were you aware of whether or not all of the sensors in that hallway were operative on the day you did your test?

A. I don’t know one way or the other.

Q. Were you aware of whether or not all the sensors in that hallway were operating back in February and March of 2003?

A. I don’t know one way or the other.

Q. Were you aware of whether or not the sensors to that hallway were operating on November 18th, 2003?

A. Same answer.

Q. And if I were to ask you the same thing as to December of 2004, it would be the same, correct?

A. Correct. Same answer.
Q. Now, when you go into the room, and you go through the door to Mr. Jackson's master suite, did you determine that there was more than one speaker that amplified the sounds of the chimes in that room?
A. No.
Q. When you heard the sound with your own ear, did you -- did it appear to you that there was more than one speaker in that room?
A. I couldn't say.
Q. Do you know whether or not, in March and February -- February and March of 2003, whether or not there were more than two -- more than one speaker in that room?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know whether or not all the speakers were operating at that time?
A. I don't know.
Q. Do you know what speakers were operating on the day you did your test?
A. I don't know.

Q. Do you know what the situation was with the speaker or speakers on November 18th of 2003?
A. Same answer.
Q. And if I'd asked you about December, you'd say the same thing, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. So in doing this test, you made no attempt to try to document exactly where the sound of the chime was coming from; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And whether or not there was more than one speaker in this video that was producing the sound that was heard by the jury in this case, correct?
A. More than one speaker, that's correct.
Q. Before you went out there, did you ask anybody about how many speakers there were to the chime in order to determine whether or not your video could reproduce the sound of one or more speakers, if they existed?
A. No.

Q. Did somebody from the ranch talk to you about the chime system itself before you did your video?
A. No.
Q. Did you know that there could be some significance attached to the fact that there may be more than one speaker in the downstairs area?
A. No.

MR. SANGER: Objection. Argumentative and assumes facts not in evidence.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
MR. SNEDDON: I think you said “No.”
THE WITNESS: Correct. I didn’t know whether it had.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Now, it is -- how many times have you actually viewed the video? Let me see if I can get the number here so we --
A. Maybe six or seven times.
MR. SNEDDON: Is this the chimes one?
MR. SANGER: No, I think that’s the one that’s in the machine.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: So the video 5096, Defense Exhibit 5096, you viewed how many times?
A. Six or seven times.
Q. So let’s start with Scene 1.
In Scene 1, when you videoed that, on the time that it shows up on the exhibit, the maid closes the door and she disappears out of our sight and then you hear two series of chimes, the chime rings three times and then three times, correct, back to back?
A. Something like that.
Q. Okay. Yet, when you look at Series 2, or you listen to Series 2 and you listen to Series 3, you don’t hear the chime three times back to back, do you?

A. They were inconsistent.
Q. So do you have any idea of why they would be inconsistent?

A. No.

Q. So we -- are we to assume, then, that perhaps the maid wasn’t doing the same thing consistently when she walked out of the room?

A. You may if you want. I don’t know if it had something to do with the maid walking in and out or how the equipment’s set up.

Q. How the equipment’s set up?

A. Correct.

Q. Your equipment?

A. No, the sensor equipment.

Q. Oh. And it is true, as you indicated on direct examination with Mr. Sanger, that clearly in both Scene 2 and Scene 3, there are times in the beginning where you barely can hear the chime, and then the second series, when it rings and there’s a space of time in between, you hear it much louder, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you have no idea what accounts for that?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And you have no idea where you were whether the very, very, very faint one that you could hear might be the more accurate of the two, do you?

A. Well, it felt like the faint one --

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object to that question as being argumentative and vague. It’s ambiguous.

THE COURT: It’s vague.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: With regard to the Scene 2 film where you can hear -- just barely hear the chimes go off and then there’s a sequence that’s silent and then you hear the chimes in a somewhat louder fashion, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. You don’t know -- I believe you conceded to us that you have no idea how to account for the difference between the two sounds?

A. Well, one way I account for it is the first chimes are her going out and the second set are her coming in.

Q. So you think that the first set is somebody going out?

A. I think that's what I assume. But I don't know that for sure.

Q. Do you know whether those chimes go off when you go out?

A. Well, it appeared they did on the first test, Test 1, when we were in the downstairs area.

Q. It's your recollection what when the maid closed the door and she walked out of the door, that the chime went off?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, with regard to the equipment, we heard this CD played with a courtroom-amplified stereo situation, correct?

A. Correct. It's actually a DVD.

Q. DVD. And there, of course, is a volume control on what happens in the courtroom in terms of how loud one plays this particular exhibit, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And it would not be your testimony, would it, that the sound of your voice that we heard on that video we would call the normal sound of your voice if somebody were simply standing there without the amplifying equipment in this courtroom?

A. I think it was more or less the normal sound.

Q. You think that was the normal sound of your voice?

A. Well, your own voice --

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object, Your Honor. I think the question is ambiguous as phrased, or vague.

THE COURT: I'll overrule the objection. He was in the middle of an answer when he was interrupted.

Do you remember where you were?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

I was saying when you hear your own voice played back, it often doesn't sound normal to you. However, as normal as my voice is when I hear it played back, that sounded normal.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: In terms of the level of the voice, however, that was louder than what you’re talking right now in the courtroom, isn’t it?

A. I don’t believe it was louder than one can hear me amplified. But I’m not sitting where you are, so I don’t really know.

Q. It’s clear, is it not, that the effect of the ability of the person inside the room to hear would also affect the sound perceived from the system, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And it’s true that the ability -- or the degree of concentration of someone in the room could affect whether they hear the chime or not as we heard it on the video, correct?

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object as beyond the scope of direct and beyond the scope of the expertise of the witness.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Can you repeat the question?

THE COURT: I’ll have it read back to you.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: Frankly, that isn’t my expertise. Maybe. I don’t know, if someone is not concentrating, whether they hear it any less or more.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: How about if they were intoxicated?

MR. SANGER: Objection.

THE WITNESS: I also --

MR. SANGER: Lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: How about if there were other noises in the room at the time?

A. That could affect things.

Q. So there’s a number of variables in -- let me just put it this way: Is this a fair statement: That the video that the jury saw in this case was a video done in the most ideal situation for hearing those chimes?

A. I don't know that it was the most ideal situation. As I said before, the third test with the door closed I remember hearing the chimes louder than they appear in playing back the tape.

Q. There were no inside noises --

A. Correct.

Q. -- to interfere?

And there were no outside noises to interfere?

A. Correct, not that I recall.

Q. All right. Let's talk about the video.

A. Okay.

THE COURT: How much time are you planning on going beyond the --

MR. SNEDDON: I wasn't planning on going beyond, because I know you don't let people go beyond.

THE COURT: I meant --

MR. SNEDDON: I've learned that lesson in three months.

I don't see any way I'm going to finish. I was actually trying, but I can't get it done in four minutes, in fairness.

THE COURT: Okay. Then what I'd like to do is have you stop questioning the witness right now, but I would like you and Mr. Mesereau to approach for a moment so I can ask you about a scheduling problem.

You may step down, sir. Thank you.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

THE COURT: I think you want him back Monday, right?

MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: Could we talk about that?

THE COURT: Yes. Come forward.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: All right. The reason I wanted to have a conference with counsel is what we're going to do is to --

Is he available?

MR. SANGER: He said that Monday would be much better. But if you prefer, he will be here tomorrow morning.

THE COURT: Okay. I prefer.

MR. SANGER: Okay. He'll be here.

THE COURT: (To the jury) Here's what the plan for tomorrow is. The reason we had to cancel your day off tomorrow is that Mr. Geragos is coming back to complete his examination tomorrow. We have about 20 minutes or 30 minutes, at the most, left with the present witness and then we're going to have Mr. Geragos on. And how much time he is going to take is not -- I can't predict that for you.

There's some issues that I haven't resolved. And then there's the attorneys, whatever time they take.

But what I wanted you to know was that whatever time he takes, then we will quit at the end of his testimony. So that, you know, if you keep staring at the attorneys when they ask questions....

All right. With that, I'll see you tomorrow.

And I think there's nothing else for me to do.

MR. MESEREAU: I don't think so, Your Honor, no.

THE COURT: All right. Court's in recess.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:30 p.m.)

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Where's the witness? You may be seated. You're still under oath.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: Good morning, Mr. Sneddon.

LAURENCE NIMMER

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

CROSS-EXAMINATION (Continued)

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Nimmer. How are you this morning?

A. Good, thank you.

Q. I just have a few more questions.

A. Okay, sure.

Q. I want to go back to what we talked about yesterday just to try to get a point of clarification.

Between yesterday and this morning, did you get a chance to review the video again?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Okay. Do you recall yesterday we were talking about how, in Scene 2, the chimes went off and was very faint at one point and then louder at another point and -- in the scene?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall me asking you yesterday -- I think -- I believe -- and if I'm not saying this correctly, you correct me. I believe your explanation was you thought one was when they went out the door and the other was when they came back in?

A. I think -- yes, that was my guess.

Q. And then I asked you yesterday, in the Scene 1, when the maid goes out the door, whether the chimes went off or not. Do you recall that?

A. I believe so.

Q. And you said you believed the chimes did go off?

A. That’s correct.

Q. When this video was made, was Joe Marcus present?

A. Yes, he was.

Q. Was a defense investigator by the name of Scott Ross present?

A. No.

Q. Or Mr. Castillo?

A. No.

Q. So the representative there was Mr. Marcus?

A. And one other person from Neverland Ranch was a woman whose first name was Grace.

Q. Okay. And where was Mr. Marcus during the time that you were doing the filming?

A. Standing behind me.

Q. So he was in your presence the entire time?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Now, one of the other questions I’m going to ask you and then I’m going to show you the video again, just a part of it.

A. Sure.

Q. In the first scene, when you’re downstairs and you ask the maid, Maria Gomez, to walk out, and then you hear the chimes go off, okay?

A. Yes.

Q. When you’re standing there, where are you standing? Next to the throne chair?

A. No, I’m standing kind of right in the middle of the room, more or less. Probably 10 or 15 feet from the doorway into the center of the room.

And when you say “the throne chair,” do you mean the large chair that leads into the next room where the stairway is to the upstairs bedroom?

Q. Yes, sir.

A. Yeah. So it wasn’t that far away from me.

The room is not that large, but I was about in the center of the room.

Q. Okay. And when you filmed the Scene 1 material, Scene 1, could you tell where the sound was coming from? From your right or from your left?

A. I couldn’t say.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. I want to -- if we could have -- I think it’s already on the right one, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SNEDDON: If we could just have the lights for just a second. And we’re going to play Exhibit 5096 and just the Scene 1.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Defendant’s Exhibit 5096, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Let’s stop it right there.

Q. Now, would it be a fair statement to say that that chime did not go off when she went out the door, did it?

A. Possibly it was triggered from her going out the door and didn’t ring immediately. But frankly, I don’t know one way or the other if it was triggered by her going out or coming in.

Q. Do you know where the sensor is that’s closest to the door?

A. No, I don’t.

MR. SANGER: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled. It’s answered. Next question.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: In the segment on Scene 2 where there is a faint sound and then a louder sound - okay? - there is probably a five- or ten-second delay between the two sounds, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that’s what led you to believe that the first sound was when she exited the door and the second sound was when she came back in, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And that did not occur on Scene 1, did it?

A. Well, you didn’t let it continue playing. Is there another set of rings after that one?

Q. I don’t think so. But we can play it. Go ahead.

THE COURT: Do you want to play it again?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Let’s start over.

MR. SNEDDON: Yeah, let’s go back again.

THE WITNESS: You may need to hit “stop” twice to reset it to the top.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Defendant’s Exhibit 5096, was played for the Court and jury.)

THE WITNESS: That’s the second set.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Right. And they were almost back to back, were they not?

A. Correct. And on this take, I asked her to go out and come back in, which she did. When I was upstairs, I asked her to wait about ten seconds after she went out before she came back in, so -- so that it was more clear when she’s coming in and when she’s going out.

Q. All right. So your explanation is that in Scene 1, you didn’t give her the instruction -- a similar instruction to the one you gave her in Scene 2 and Scene 3?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. The individual you identified as Grace, where was Grace during the filming?

A. Standing behind me as well.

Q. All right. Let’s move on to the second video.

A. Okay. Sure.

Q. I just have a few questions on that. I believe you said you went out there on multiple occasions?

A. That’s correct.

Q. About four or five?

A. Correct.

Q. And on those occasions that you went out there, the folks knew you were coming. I’m assuming you made previous arrangements?

A. Right.

Q. And prior to going out there, you told us before that you had been advised by somebody to make sure you take pictures of the clocks, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Was that somebody connected with the defense?

A. Yes.

Q. Were there any other things that they told you that you should focus on in that film?

A. Well, let’s see. Basically all of what I saw while I was out there. I was asked to get shots of the guesthouse, the guest rooms. I was asked to get some shots of the -- some of the paintings by the artist Nordahl, and -- as well as various other places, including the arcade, the amusement park, the zoo, et cetera.

Q. Okay. Now, when I was looking at the film, it appeared to me - and you would be the best person who would know this - that some of the library shots about the books on the shelves were taken in a small library located on the top floor of the arcade; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Okay. Now, part of this video was to show -- the objective view of it was to show a day in the life of somebody who may be visiting the ranch, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you have an understanding that that was a room up there that was open to the public?

A. I didn’t really know one way or the other. Anything that’s personal of Mr. Jackson’s I think would be of interest to the public, so it was interesting to see what his books -- a cross-section of his books are.

Q. But you didn’t know when you went up there whether or not that room is actually locked most of the time or not?

A. I don’t know one way or the other.

Q. And whether the public was invited to use that room?

A. I don’t know one way or the other.

Q. Now, just a couple of more questions. Let me ask you this: Were you asked to film the employee break room?

A. Not that I recall.
Q. Were you asked to film the cellar?
A. No.
Q. Were you asked to film Mr. Jackson’s office?
A. Yes, I was, actually.
Q. Did you do that?
A. No.
Q. Were you asked to film the bathroom area in -- the bathroom that’s adjacent to the arcade?
A. No.
Q. Were you asked to film -- I guess I asked you that. And you did film the kitchen, correct?

A. Correct.
Q. Were you asked to film the location of the refrigerator in the kitchen?
A. No.
Q. And you say that you were attempting to portray this as an objective view of what somebody would see at the ranch. But in reality, some of the decisions that were made were subjective on your part, correct?
A. Correct.
MR. SANGER: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Overruled.
MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Mr. Sanger?

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. All right. Mr. Nimmer, first of all, why were Grace and Joe Marcus there?
A. Frankly, I’m not sure why. Perhaps so that they could make sure I didn’t tamper with anything in the room. They led me to where the different rooms are. They know their way around better than I do.
Q. So when you make arrangements -- when you made arrangements to go to the ranch, did somebody accompany you so you could go in the different locations?

A. Yes, at most all times somebody always accompanied me.

Q. Did anybody prevent you from taking pictures of anything in particular?
A. No.
Q. All right. Now, with regard to the last questions about the tape of Neverland itself, you were asked about filming certain areas like the cellar and the break room and all that. Were there other interior areas of buildings on that ranch that you did not film?
A. Yes.
Q. And was this an effort to film every part of every building on that ranch?
A. No.
Q. If you were to do that, even in the abbreviated format you have here, how long would your video end up being?
A. Well, possibly hours. Much longer.
Q. Okay. Let's talk about the doorbell test. Were you asked to do any technical evaluation of the alarm system?
A. No.
Q. Is that within your particular expertise?
A. That isn't my expertise.
Q. Do you have reason to believe that there are other people who have such expertise?

A. Yes, I do.
Q. All right. Secondly, with regard to the decibel level that was asked about last time, did you have any decibel level, any known decibel level, to compare decibel levels to had you determined the decibel level? Do you know what I'm saying?
A. I did not.
Q. So if you -- if you do a decibel level test, you generally need to have something else, some other known level to compare it to, right?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. Were you asked to do decibel levels at all?
A. No, I was not.
Q. What were you asked to do with regard to the doorbell test?
A. To do a video- and audio-recording in those two environments to get a general sound of what it sounded like with the alarm going off.

Q. And were you asked also to listen to it while you were doing it?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you compare what you heard to what was seen on the tape?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What was heard on the tape, more accurately.

A. Correct. What was heard.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you very much.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Mr. Nimmer, you were trying to produce something that would be useful to the jury in reproducing the sound created by those chimes, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And to that extent, wouldn’t the first thing that you would want to do is to ask Mr. Marcus or Grace whether or not the sound system that was in there was the same -- the chime system that was in there was the same one that was in there back at the time of these events?

A. I did ask them if the room was set as close as possible to how it was back in 2003, and they said it was.

Q. Okay. But you didn’t ask them about the actual chime system itself, did you?

A. I didn’t ask about anything specifically.

Q. And you were talking about -- I think you told us yesterday you were talking about the furniture, were you not?

A. I was talking about everything in general.

Q. In specific with regard to the chime system, which was why you were really there, you never asked them that question, did you?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Argumentative; compound.

THE COURT: Asked and answered. Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: With regard to the integrity of the product that the jury has just seen, you would agree with me, would you not, if there was differences with the way the actual chime system was hooked up, or the equipment that was there, if it was different from February or March of 1990 -- of 2003, that it would not be an accurate reproduction of what you displayed to the jury, would it?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Asked and answered; beyond the scope. Sorry. Asked and answered and beyond the scope of redirect.

THE COURT: It’s argumentative. Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Had you asked the specific question of whether the system that you reproduced on this video was the same as the one that was there, let’s say, on November 18th of 2003, then we would know for certain that what you reproduced was the same, correct?

MR. SANGER: Argumentative -- I thought the question was over, I apologize.

MR. SNEDDON: It was.

MR. SANGER: Okay. I object. Argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SNEDDON: I have no further questions.

MR. SANGER: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: (To the jury) All right. We only have one other witness, and before we can have him come in, I have to make some rulings. So I’m going to ask you to step out, and we’ll do this as quickly as we can.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: You may be seated.

Do you want the witness in for this?

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: Come forward to the witness stand. You may be seated.

MR. GERAGOS: Thank you.

THE COURT: You're still under oath.

MR. GERAGOS: Thank you.

MARK GERAGOS

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

THE COURT: All right. I've received the points and authorities that I requested. Thank you, everybody. And reviewed them.

I've also received a revised or amended waiver of attorney-client privilege/work product that changes the written date -- or the date of the written waiver to commence in November as opposed to December, which the original one stated, so I accept the new date for purposes of our discussions. I don't think it's an issue that I'm going to -- I accept that there was just a mistake on the dates, so that's not an issue.

I have a sense of what I want to do, but before I do that, Mr. Sneddon, does your side wish to add anything or make any further arguments?

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I think the -- the defense would be the moving party, I believe, to the extent that they're asking that the Court observe a conditional waiver at this point. Perhaps I'll respond to what they have to say rather than give a statement at this time.

THE COURT: All right. Is there anything that you wish to add? Are you speaking?

MR. SANGER: Yes, I am, with the Court's permission. Even though this is Mr. Mesereau's witness, I started arguing the motions, and I'll finish, if that's all right with the Court in this one instance.

There's nothing else that we didn't say, but there is at least a sentence or two in here that might bear a little amplification. As I think is pretty clear, our position should be that there is a limited waiver; that that satisfies all the requirements of this proceeding.

And the sentence, I think, needs a little amplification. The sentence or two, is that if the door were opened -- since we talked about opening doors. If the door were opened and there was a general waiver, it would lead to irrelevant material. It would lead to material that’s not going to come into this case anyway. But it would also be quite a disaster, I think, from the standpoint of the attorney-client privilege for Mr. Jackson, beyond the point of the adversarial proceedings starting, which would include communications that Mr. Geragos had with co-counsel and investigators and even counsel, perhaps, after he was no longer involved in the -- or he’s no longer attorney of record in the case.

And based on that, I think -- that alone, I think, is the kind of prejudice that would be -- the Court would want to avoid. And so I’d ask the Court to just consider that in the context of the rest of what we filed, including the need for a knowing and intelligent waiver on the part of the defendant himself and the relevance issues.

Thank you.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, here’s our concern:

When we began direct examination of Mr. Geragos, we were under the understanding, given the waiver that was executed in open court in the defendant’s presence by Mr. Mesereau, that this was an unconditional, unqualified waiver as to all aspects of the attorney-client relationship.

All of cross -- all of direct examination was concluded, and cross-examination commenced until we discovered that, after a break, there had been a qualified waiver executed in writing. There were three attorneys in the room who knew that that happened. Mr. Geragos knew it because he had been furnished a copy of it. Mr. Mesereau knew it because the signature on it by Miss Yu indicated that he had reviewed the document for content and approved it. And Miss Yu knew it because she drafted the document.

None of the three attorneys, when they came into court, either furnished the Court a copy of that waiver or furnished the prosecution a copy of that waiver. And none of those three lawyers told either the Court or the prosecution that the waiver had changed, unilaterally had changed from an unconditional, unqualified waiver to a very conditional, qualified waiver that would end at the time of the defendant's arrest.

Now, we went through all of direct examination and a good portion of cross-examination with an understanding, at least from our standpoint, and I believe from the Court's standpoint, that it was an unqualified, unconditional waiver, and that that's how we were going to conduct cross-examination.

As the Court pointed out, you can't give and then take away at the same time without telling us.

And I believe the fact that we weren't told, either the Court or the prosecution -- during the course of that break, neither one of us were furnished copies of the waiver and instructed that the terms and conditions of the waiver had taken place.

And I believe that we should proceed with cross-examination as if it were an unconditional, unqualified waiver, and proceed with appropriate objections for relevancy and appropriate objections for any other evidentiary issues, but that the waiver should be unqualified.

MR. SANGER: Just a factual issue, Your Honor. I don't want to reargue what we've already argued in writing. But on a factual issue, I believe that Miss Yu did give the clerk -- give your clerk a copy of the waiver before the break -- during the break at the same time it was given to Mr. Geragos, and I believe that a copy was given to the District Attorney at the same time.

MR. ZONEN: No, it wasn't.

MS. YU: Yes, it was. Yes, it was.

THE COURT: Wait, wait, wait. That's okay.

MR. SANGER: I'm reporting -- I did personally see Miss Yu go up to Miss Frey, your clerk, to give a copy. So I --

THE COURT: It’s really insignificant, you know, whether you revealed this at the break or ten minutes after the break. I mean, the fact is that there was a complete change in what the purported waiver was.

MR. SANGER: There --

THE COURT: You can sit down. That’s okay.

MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I did review the entire testimony of Mr. Geragos last night before considering my rulings in this matter, and there are two issues that we’re dealing with. One is questions beyond the scope of the direct examination and the other is the scope of the attorney-client privilege waiver. And we do have Mr. Geragos’s assertion that I assume hasn’t changed.

But you will claim the privilege based on the waiver; is that -- regardless of my ruling?

THE WITNESS: Regardless of your ruling, I’m going to claim the privilege. I’ve been furnished, as I think -- I don’t know if it was furnished to the Court. I think you said it was.

THE COURT: It was, yeah.

THE WITNESS: The other. And regardless of the ruling, I’m still going --

THE COURT: You will make --

THE WITNESS: I will stand on that.

THE COURT: -- make that claim?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: That was my understanding from what you said last week, but I think I should -- thank you for affirming that.

That puts us in a difficult situation. You know, there’s things that I could do, and that would be to strike his testimony. In looking at the examination, I’m not sure who that would punish in the end. I mean, there was some direct examination, there was more lengthy cross-examination. Nobody’s moved that I strike his testimony, and if you do, the jury has heard it.

We can -- we strike things all the time, but we all know you can’t -- you know, we don’t really know what the effect of trying to unring a bell is. You give people instructions not to consider things, but hope that they're capable of doing that. But it doesn't appear to be a really good remedy at this time, although I could consider it.

I feel deceived by Mr. Mesereau, and I am considering -- although I've reached no conclusion at this point, and I don't want to divert the process of the trial with this type of thing, but I'm considering sanctions of some sort against Mr. Mesereau. Again, that doesn't really help or hurt in the factual presentation.

So at this point I think what I'm going to do is to recognize, according to the law, that there is a qualified privilege and accept the waiver as it stands only up until November 2003. But I am going to -- and then I'm going to allow the prosecution to continue their examination and I'm going to require that any claim of privilege between attorney-client be made in front of the jury so that the jury understands what is actually happening in the courtroom.

You know, we've had several other situations. Some, I've said, privileges had to be claimed in front of the jury. Some I've said they are not to be claimed in front of the jury. And it's a factual situation. You know, you get to that conclusion based on all of the surrounding facts. And in this case, I think it would be productive for the jury to know that the privilege is being claimed.

Mr. Geragos before, which is really the proper thing, kind of what I wanted him to do, was not -- you just said, "I can't answer that," which clued me in it was a claim of privilege, but nobody else really.

So that will change now. You'll have to say, "I'm claiming the attorney-client privilege and cannot answer that question."

THE WITNESS: I did not assert that before because I didn't have the Court's ruling or guidance.

THE COURT: I'm saying that you did the right -- you did it the way I wanted you to then, but now we're changing the rules.

THE WITNESS: That's fine.

THE COURT: Okay. So that's my ruling on the issue.

And you can bring the jury back in.

MR. SANGER: Before you do that, just one further point of clarification, if I could.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: I know this is Mr. Mesereau's witness, but this will be my last remark with regard to the motion.

THE COURT: I think it's --

MR. SANGER: Would the Court still entertain objections that it's beyond the scope and relevance with regard --

THE COURT: Yes. I said there's two issues.

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: I haven't abrogated the rule that you called this witness for a specific purpose. And in reviewing the rulings that I made last week, which it's a luxury, you know, to be able to go back and review, I think I was making the correct rulings because of his assertion.

So where you thought that the District Attorney was exceeding the scope and I ruled that he was not, I still feel that way. You know, he's made some assertions about what he knew at the time that he was advising, and that area I had allowed them to open up, so I would continue to allow that area to be opened up. But there's -- of course, there's the -- I don't want to say too much, but that, I think, addresses something that should have been addressed.

MR. SANGER: I appreciate that. Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Do you have any questions, Mr. Zonen?

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, we -- we did, in fact, request of the Court that the Court consider the option of striking the testimony of this witness in its entirety. I'm not going to renew that at this time. But I'd like to see what happens in terms of cross-examination at this point vis-a-vis his assertion of that privilege. And I wouldn't bring that up in front of the jury.

THE COURT: A better way for me to have said what I was trying to say was that I won't grant a motion to strike at this time, but I would reconsider one at some other time if --

MR. ZONEN: And that's what I was asking.
THE COURT: -- if it's made.
And I'm not inviting it. I'm just saying at this time, when I weighed the testimony that had been given, I didn't think that was the way to go.
MR. ZONEN: That's fine.
THE COURT: All right. Let me --
MR. SANGER: Oh, before -- a different matter, just real quick, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Yeah.
MR. SANGER: You still have the Amen testimony issue.
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SANGER: Amen. Joining in the bailiff's spirit of coming together here.
THE COURT: They can't hear you.
MR. SANGER: Okay. We're hoping to have a ruling on that in time that we could -- if we're able to call him, we would be able to get that in motion, so --
THE COURT: I'm prepared to make a ruling on that. My suggestion is we have the jury in, we finish this, and then we deal with that when we can let them go, instead of taking more time now.
MR. SANGER: Perfect. Thank you.
THE COURT: I'm just going to step off the bench so that you can bring the jury in. I'll be right there, ready to come right back. Okay.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: You may proceed.
MR. ZONEN: Thank you, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION (Continued)

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Mr. Geragos, good morning.

A. Good morning, Mr. Zonen.

Q. Mr. Geragos, you were aware in advance of the meeting with the Department of Social Services, Child & Family Services, that there was going to be a meeting involving Janet Arvizo; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was it who notified you or advised you of that fact?

A. Probably would have been Brad.

Q. Did you know at the time that there was going to be somebody working for Brad Miller who would be attending that meeting?

A. I don’t think so.

Q. Did you instruct Brad Miller to be there?

A. No. No.

Q. Did you have a conversation with Brad Miller before that meeting?

A. I think that would have been the conversation where he told me about the meeting.

Q. All right. Did you express concern to Brad Miller about comments that Janet Arvizo might make to the workers, social workers?

A. I don’t think so. I don’t think I expressed concern about comments she might make. I think I -- as I testified to last week, I think the question was she wants somebody -- or wants to talk to a lawyer or something, something to that effect, and that’s when I gave Mr. Nasatir’s name.

Q. All right. Now, you did not know at the time that there was going to be a representative of Mr. Miller who would be there?

A. Like I say, as I sit here today, I don’t think that I knew that either he or Asaf were going to be there. I don’t know when I learned that.

Q. And Mr. Miller never consulted with you in advance about the propriety of tape-recording that conversation?

A. I had no idea up until the time that the search warrant was issued or executed that there was any kind of a tape that was done.

Q. Were you aware as of that day of Brad Miller ever having tape-recorded illegally conversations prior to that time?

A. Well, I don't know that that was -- if you're suggesting that that was an illegal taping, I don't believe that was an illegal taping. And the previous taping that I was aware of, he told her, Janet Arvizo, that he was working for me, that he had a tape-recorder, and that he was taping it, and something to the effect, if memory serves, that was that okay?

Q. Mr. Geragos, do you believe that it's legal to surreptitiously tape a Department of Child & Family Services interview?

A. I don't believe that you can surreptitiously tape their interview, no. I don't think that that would be legal.

Q. Is it your opinion, as an attorney specializing in criminal law, that the interviews with the Department of Child & Family Services are confidential?

A. Yes.

Q. And therefore, somebody tape-recording it for purposes of being able to listen to that conversation, that would be in violation of the confidentiality laws; is that true?

A. I don't know if it would be in violation of the confidentiality laws. I think it would probably be a violation of a Penal Code section.

Q. In any event, it would be illegal?

A. I -- in my opinion, it probably would be.

Q. You are not aware of Mr. Miller ever having done that in the past; is that correct?

A. Well, I'm aware --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I'm aware of many private investigators, and I would probably say Brad included, who understand that the Penal Code has exceptions. And one of the exceptions is if you believe that there are certain enumerated crimes that are going to be committed, you are allowed to, under the code section, tape surreptitiously.

So I don't know. Your definition of whether or not it's illegal or not and mine probably differ, but I think that the Penal Code clearly states that there are exceptions when you can tape.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you believe that there was going to be a crime committed at the Department of Child & Family Services interview with Janet Arvizo?

A. As I told you, I don't know what was going to happen there. But I think what you're asking me is in reference to the other tape that was made.

Q. No, sir, I'm asking --

A. Which was with Mr. --

Q. -- about the Department of Child & Family Services interview. Did you believe there was going to be a crime committed during that interview?

A. No, I didn't believe that a crime was going to be committed because I don't think that I had a discussion as to what was going to take place, other than to say, "Look, I can't represent her. Talk to Nasatir."

Q. And you did not tell Brad Miller that you thought there would be some kind of crime committed during the course of the Department of Child & Family Services interview?

A. Well, if she would lie to them, that would be potentially a crime, I suppose. But I don't know if I had --

Q. And did you tell Brad Miller that?

A. I don't know that I had that discussion with Brad. In retrospect, who knows what she was going to say.

Q. And Brad Miller did not tell you that he planned on tape-recording that interview?

A. Did not.

Q. And if he had, you would have told him not to?

A. Well, if he had told --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; calls for speculation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When did you first get possession of that tape?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE WITNESS: After the -- well --

MR. MESEREAU: Relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: And I'd have to -- Your Honor, as the Court instructed, I'd have to assert attorney-client privilege at this point.

THE COURT: You refuse to answer based on the attorney-client privilege?

THE WITNESS: Could I?

THE COURT: Is that right?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: Next question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: From whom did you first learn that that conversation had, in fact, been tape-recorded?

A. I believe, as I sit here today, the only conversation that was tape-recorded was something between Asaf and Janet Arvizo. I don't -- I don't know -- as I sit here today, I haven't listened to that tape in quite a while. I don't know how lengthy that tape was. I thought it was just between Janet and Asaf.

Q. From whom did you first learn that there had been a tape-recording that took place at Jay Jackson's apartment while the Department of Child & Family Services workers were there?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Beyond the scope; relevance; assumes facts.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer. Do you want the question read back?

THE WITNESS: No, I remember the question. I'm just trying to -- I couldn't tell you if I learned it from -- it was either from Brad or when I got copies of the documents that were seized, when I had asked Mr. Sneddon for that. So I might have gotten the items from Mr. Sneddon. And he had represented to me that he had not listened to them yet, so --

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And Brad Miller, did he brief you on the content of the interview with -- the Department of Child & Family Services interview?

A. At what point?

Q. After it occurred.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Beyond the scope; relevance.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When was the first time you had a conversation with Brad Miller following the Department of Child & Family Services interview?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I couldn't tell you as I sit here. I'm sure it was sometime shortly thereafter, but I just don't know.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ask him about how he knew about the content of that interview?

A. I'm sure he would have -- well, I would just be speculating.

Q. Did he tell you that he had somebody there at the time?

A. No. It was -- I can't -- if you're asking me for, in February, what I knew then, I would only be speculating. I think what he told me was that he had Asaf there because Janet wanted somebody there, and then Asaf left, is I think what I was told in February.

Q. All right. Between the time that -- of this interview with the Department of Child & Family Services and the time your client was arrested in November, did Brad Miller ever tell you that that conversation was tape-recorded?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you receive a copy of the tape-recording at any time between the interview on the 20th of February, '03, and the time that your client was arrested in November?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. ZONEN: I’m sorry?

THE COURT: Sustained. I think the relevant period is through April. That’s why I’m sustaining the objections.

MR. ZONEN: Okay.

Q. If I were to ask those questions again through the end of April, would your answer be different? Let me change that question.

Between the time of the interview on the 20th of February through the end of April, did you receive a copy of the tape of that interview?

A. I don’t know. I couldn’t tell you.

Q. You might have?

A. I don’t think so. But I couldn’t tell you. I don’t think that I did. I don’t think that I was aware of that or the other tape until after the search warrant, but I’d just be guessing.

Q. Now, you commenced surveillance of the Arvizo family; is that right?

A. Not me personally, but I asked Brad to find out who they were meeting with, what they were doing. So if he surveilled in response to that, that would be what I would have expected.

Q. You didn’t personally want to sit in a car in East L.A. and watch them?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you have a conversation with Mr. Miller as to who was going to participate in the surveillance?

A. No.

Q. Did you give Mr. Miller any direction as to what they were supposed to do?

A. I think the same thing I testified to before: “Find out where they are, who they’re meeting with, and what they’re doing.”

Q. Did you tell them to surveil the children?

A. Well, I assumed that the children would be in the company of adults, and that one of the adults would be Janet Arvizo.

Q. Did you --

A. That would be the assumption.

Q. Did you tell them to conduct surveillance of the children when they're not in the presence of the adults?

A. I don't think we had that discussion, no.

Q. Did you tell Brad Miller to have people conducting surveillance of the children while they were coming and going from their junior high school?

A. No, I didn't give him specific instructions as to what to do. I think I just gave a broad directive that said, "I want to know who they're meeting with, what they're doing."

Q. Did you tell Brad Miller that the surveillance operatives should be obvious so that the children know they're being followed and taped?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Argumentative; assumes facts.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: No. As I indicated before, I told -- I gave the same directive. I didn't tell him, "This is what I want you to do on this day. This is what I want you to do on that day." I said, "I just want to know who they're meeting with and what they're doing."

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you get a report from Brad Miller as to the scope and extent of the surveillance that he conducted?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope; and vague as to time.

MR. ZONEN: There were questions about surveillance by the defense.

THE COURT: That's true. Vague as to time is sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Well, the period of time that the surveillance was conducted was what, 60 days?

A. No, I think it was less than that. I think it was about 30 or 35 days, something like that.

Q. And it commenced when?

A. Sometime after February 7th.

Q. Sometime after February 7th?

A. Yeah.

Q. Were they actually being --

A. Yes.

Q. -- surveilled while they were at Neverland?

A. I don’t know that they -- I don’t think Brad was ever at Neverland, if I had -- if I had to -- if that’s what you’re asking me.

Q. Well, if you’ve directed Brad Miller to conduct a surveillance of the Arvizo family as early as the 7th of February, then you would have been informed as to exactly when they were at Neverland; no?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Argumentative; assumes facts.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Mr. Zonen, what I directed him to do was find out who they were meeting with, what they were doing, and then give me a report back.

And he would have given me a report back saying, “They’re either here or they’re there. We either found this out; we didn’t find this out.”

I did not ask him to tell me exactly who he was using. I didn’t get into that. It didn’t occur to me at that point.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did Brad Miller tell you that the children were meeting with Michael Jackson during that period of time?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Hearsay; relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. ZONEN: That was overruled.

THE WITNESS: That means I can answer?

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: I think it does, yes.

A. Thank you.

I don’t believe so. I didn’t have the impression, at least, that when he was finding out what they were up to, that that included any time that they may or may not have been at Neverland.

Q. Did you have an opportunity to review the surveillance tapes?

A. Not prior to November.

Q. You directed a surveillance be done as early as the 7th of February?

A. I directed that they find out who they were meeting with and what they were doing.

Q. All right.

A. I know you keep saying “surveillance.” I didn’t tell them to go sit in a car outside. I didn’t give them directives as to how to do it. All I said is, “Find out who they’re meeting with and what they’re up to.”

As I explained last week when you asked me this, the concern was, is that they were either going to go meet with a lawyer of some kind to make some accusation, or they were going to sell the story to the tabloids.

I -- the extent of what he did I learned sometime later, but did not know at the time. And what I knew at the time was that they were either here or there at particular points.

Q. Do you know where those surveillance tapes are today?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I assume in Steve -- the sheriff’s possession.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Are you saying that all the surveillance tapes were kept at Brad Miller’s office?

A. I -- the surveillance tapes, as you call them, all I’m aware of in terms of surveillance tapes were the things that were seized during the search warrant.

Q. You never asked Mr. Miller if, in fact, there were additional tapes other than the ones seized during the course of the search of his office?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I would have to assert the attorney-client privilege, because I think built into the question is asking me what my discussion --

THE COURT: All you have to say is you refuse to answer because you're claiming the privilege, that's all.
Next question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Up until the time of your client's arrest, did you ever view any surveillance tapes?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope.
MR. ZONEN: I'm trying to establish if the ones in evidence are accurate.
THE COURT: The objection is overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: No, I don't believe that I did.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Were you ever briefed as to the content of those surveillances?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance; beyond the scope.
THE COURT: Sustained as to time.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were you ever briefed before the conclusion of the month of April 2003 as to the content of the surveillance tapes?
A. I think I was, yes.
Q. All right. Did they tell you that they -- who was it who briefed you?
A. It would have been Brad.
Q. Did Brad tell you that they conducted a surveillance of Janet Arvizo's parents at their home in El Monte?
A. I think that he did.

Q. Did you direct that they do a surveillance of her parents?
A. No. As I explained before, I told him, "Find out who they're meeting with and what they're doing." I didn't -- I didn't --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Objection. He cut off the witness.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: Could the witness please answer, Your Honor?
THE COURT: If you haven't completed your answer, you may do so.

THE WITNESS: Thank you. I said I didn’t specify the exact locations or what they should do.

MR. ZONEN: Just one second, Your Honor.

Q. Are you aware of any other surveillance tapes other than the ones that we seized from Brad Miller’s office?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: No.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Are you aware if the Brad Miller tapes seized from Brad Miller’s office have been altered in any way by Brad Miller?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: No.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were are you aware of whether or not there’s additional footage to those tapes that have been excised or deleted from the tapes?

MR. MESEREAU: Same objection.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Now, at some point in time you became aware of the fact that there was a tape-recording of the telephone call between Janet Arvizo and Frank Cascio; is that correct?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I can’t answer that because of attorney-client privilege.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ever listen to the tape-recording of the conversation between Janet Arvizo and Frank Cascio?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; vague as to time; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Vague as to time.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ever listen to that conversation up until the time that your client was arrested?

A. No.
Q. Did you know that it existed, that tape-recording?
A. Up until the time of the arrest?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. Did you have a conversation with Brad Miller about conducting or monitoring conversations between Janet Arvizo and any of the other employees or people who work for Michael Jackson?
A. No.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; vague as to time; beyond the scope.
THE COURT: Vague as to time.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: That last question that I asked, if I were to say up until the time of your client's arrest, what would your answer be?
MR. MESEREAU: Same objection.
THE COURT: Counsel, I'm going to tell you again. The area that I think is relevant on some of these questions is the time period that he testified to on direct where he was doing certain things. And your questions are relevant -- you know, it's not the cutoff date that's relevant. So I'm just trying to give you some guidance.
MR. ZONEN: Thank you. Perhaps that question could be modified, then, through the end of April.

Q. Do you remember the question?
A. I do. And the answer is no.
Q. Pursuant to the surveillance investigation that you had directed Mr. Miller to conduct, were you kept advised as to the movement of Janet Arvizo between Neverland and her home or Major Jackson's home?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: During the period of time of the surveillance, which is roughly 30 days from the 7th.

A. When you say kept apprised, I'm sure that I would have had conversations with Brad, and he would have told me in general terms what was happening.

Q. Did Brad Miller then tell you the number of times that Janet Arvizo left Neverland and then returned?

A. You know, as I sit here, I don't remember him telling me. I know your focus on the question is Neverland and returning, and I don't think that was really the focus of what he was doing. As I indicated before --

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I'll object as nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: I do not believe that he was -- if he did, I wasn't paying attention to it. I was concerned with other things.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did he tell you that Janet Arvizo left Neverland on the 12th of February at about one o'clock in the morning?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance; beyond the scope.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: At the time, concurrent with those events. In other words, within a few days of the 12th, did he tell you that?

THE COURT: All right. He's changed the -- I'll accept that change.

THE WITNESS: Probably did.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did he tell you within a few days of the event, in other words, contemporaneous of the event, that the family returned to Neverland within a few days thereafter?

A. As I sit here, I don't remember. I do have a memory of being told that she had left, but I don't know about her returning.

Q. All right. Would you have been concerned about the prospect of the Arvizo family returning to Neverland --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; calls for speculation.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: -- as not being in your client's best interest?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; calls for speculation.

THE COURT: Just a moment. I don’t want you to add to your question after there’s an objection. It’s okay on that timing, but it causes me difficulty when you’re --

MR. ZONEN: I actually intended that to be one question.

THE COURT: All right. Why don’t you just rephrase the question.

MR. ZONEN: Give me a moment.

Q. All right. Did you have concerns about the Arvizo family returning to Neverland after they left on the 12th?

A. I had concerns about the Arvizo family.

Q. But particularly in the context of them being in the presence of Michael Jackson?

A. Yes. I always had concerns about the Arvizo family from early February, meaning sometime after the 7th or the 9th, something like that.

Q. Did your concerns include a concern that Gavin Arvizo would end up back in Michael Jackson’s room?

A. Well, when you say back in his room, no, that wasn’t my concern. My concern was that there was going to be some kind of an accusation made; that there was going to be some kind of a false story concocted. That was my concern.

Q. Did you at any time contact Michael Jackson after the 12th, after the 12th --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague as to time.

MR. ZONEN: It’s in the midst of the question. I’m just putting the time parameters on it.

MR. MESEREAU: My apology. I withdraw the objection.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: After the 12th of February, at any time after the 12th of February, within the next week or so, did you have a conversation with Michael Jackson about not allowing the Arvizos back on the property?

A. No, I don’t think that I had a conversation about anything to do with them coming back and forth to the property. I wanted to know what they were up to. I didn't -- I don't think I had a conversation as to them coming onto the property.

Q. All right. Mr. Geragos, you knew that there was going to be an interview that would take place in the late evening hours of the 19th into the early morning hours of the 20th that was going to be part of "Take 2"; in other words, a filming of the Arvizo family that was designed or intended to be a part of this commercial production; is that right?

A. I knew that they were filming what they called -- it wasn't -- as I remember it, they kept referring to it as the rebuttal.

Q. Were you aware that there was a substantial amount of money that had been paid to Michael Jackson by FOX Studios in advance of the filming of that production, an advance towards that production?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; no foundation; beyond the scope.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, it is in evidence, and the exhibit specifically is 898.

THE COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were you paid out of an account that was funded by FOX Studios?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. Did you know from what source came your income?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. ZONEN: Could I be heard, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Could we do it at sidebar?

THE COURT: All right.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Based on your briefing with either Brad Miller or any employee of Brad Miller, did you learn that Janet Arvizo had been entirely complimentary of the defendant during the course of the interview that was tape-recorded in person at Major Jackson's home on the 16th?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: She had nothing bad to say about Michael Jackson at all?

A. That was my understanding.

Q. Based on your briefing with Brad Miller about the content of her interview with the Department of Child & Family Services, is it your understanding that Janet Arvizo had nothing bad to say about Michael Jackson in that interview as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you understand that she was going into that interview concerned that her children would be removed from her custody?

A. I don’t know that I knew that prior, but that would not surprise me. I mean, it’s a Department of Children’s Services interview. I think anybody would be concerned.

Q. Would it be your expectation that the more complimentary she was of Michael Jackson the greater the likelihood that they would not take her children?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; calls for speculation; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don’t know that that was the thought process. I believe I was told that she had previously had close encounters with the DCFS and that was her concern.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you direct Brad Miller to work with anybody from Michael Jackson -- anyone among Michael Jackson’s employees in terms of conducting his investigation?

A. I don’t know that I directed him to talk to anybody in particular. I told him to go -- I told him to contact people and investigate, do what an investigator does.

Q. Do you know who paid the balance of Janet Arvizo’s rent at her Soto Street apartment?

A. I think at the time -- are you talking about in April of 2003, roughly that time period?

Q. Try March.

A. In March -- I think I knew in April that Brad had paid it.

Q. All right. Did Brad Miller have money to be able to pay that?

A. Probably not.

Q. All right. So do you know how he paid that?

A. I would have told him to get reimbursed from the accountant.

Q. Did you advance any money?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you advance any money toward emptying out the apartment?

A. I did not.

Q. Did you tell Brad Miller that he should go ahead and pay off the balance of the rent on that apartment?

A. I don’t know that I told him. I know that he told me he was going to do it. I don’t know that I told him to do it. I mean, I know that he told me he was going to do it or he had done it. I just don’t remember the context of the conversation.

Q. Did you ask Brad Miller where the Arvizo family would be moving once that apartment was moved out?

A. He had told me that they were moving in with her boyfriend.

Q. Did you tell Brad Miller, “This is not a problem for Michael Jackson to be paying for cleaning her out of her apartment”?

A. What do you mean, “cleaning her out of her apartment”?

Q. Moving them from the apartment and putting their things in storage. “This is something that Michael Jackson ought not be involved in.” Did you tell him that?

A. He was talking to Janet. Janet wanted that done. Janet was trying, according to him at least, to get these things done. And I told him if he was going to do that, that he better videotape the contents so that there later is not an accusation that something was tampered with.

Q. Why did you tell Brad Miller that he should move Janet Arvizo out of her apartment on Soto Street?

A. Did I? I didn’t say I told him that.

Q. Why did you approve it? He works for you, right?

A. He works for me.

He said that she wanted that done. He was going to assist her. He was trying to be on her good side, I guess is -- for lack of a better term.

Q. Did you know at the time that she was moved out of that apartment where her possessions went?

A. I don’t think at the time, no. I’ve learned later on.

Q. All right. Now, did you instruct Brad Miller that he should place them in a locker someplace under his name?

A. No, I don’t think that I did.

Q. Do you know under whose name her possessions were, in fact, deposited?

A. I learned that later, yes, that it was under his name.

Q. All right. Now, did you -- as soon as you learned that, did you immediately instruct him to change that?

A. Well, no. When I learned that was when I got those letters from Mr. Dickerman. And he and I went back and forth as to where he wanted the stuff. And I think at one point I told him that he could take over the lockers. I offered to have him switch it to whatever name he wanted, and I think we went back and forth on that.

MR. ZONEN: May I approach the witness?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Mr. Geragos, I’m going to show you exhibit number -- Exhibit No. 630. I’d like you to take a moment and strum through those collection of documents in that exhibit, if you would.

A. I’ve strummed through it.

Q. Strumming through documents is something lawyers do well, right?

A. I don’t know if we do it well. We do it a lot.

Q. Mr. Geragos, do you recognize those documents as being a compilation of letters sent to you by Mr. Dickerman and a few letters sent by you back to Mr. Dickerman in response?

A. No, I do not.

Q. You don't recognize any of those letters at all?

A. I think you have probably given me the wrong exhibit.

(Laughter.)

You haven't been strumming documents enough.

This is the --

MR. ZONEN: It's the wrong exhibit.

(Laughter.)

MR. ZONEN: Could we have 629?

MR. SNEDDON: My fault. Not his.

MR. ZONEN: You could have told us at the early stages of the strumming.

THE WITNESS: I couldn't figure out why you were having me look at it. You were close. It was the right lawyer. Just the wrong series of correspondence.

THE COURT: Maybe we ought to just start our break early, huh? Okay.

(Recess taken.)

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, may we approach, please?

THE COURT: All right. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, could we approach the bench again?

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: (To the jury) Do you want in on any of this? No, you don't. Oh, I'm sorry, this is just a complicated area. I'm trying to make it work. In my other courtroom where -- you know, this is not my normal courtroom. I'm really across the hall there. And when attorneys approach, the jury sits right there, sort of like if Mr. Geragos is sort of like me and you’re the jury. And when the attorneys want a sidebar, I make them come over and kneel there, so -- so we have a lot less sidebars over in that court.

(Laughter.)

MR. ZONEN: I’m prepared to proceed.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Mr. Geragos, I think you now have Exhibit 625. That was the exhibit we intended to hand you before the break.

Did you have an opportunity to look at 625?

A. Yes.

Q. Is 625 a compilation of letters and communications between you and Attorney Bill Dickerman?

A. Well, there’s -- some of these letters are mine. I don’t believe -- for instance, this top letter, which doesn’t have a letterhead and which is not signed, I don’t believe that’s the letter that was sent to me.

Q. You don’t believe you’ve ever received that letter?

A. I don’t believe that this is the letter he sent to me. And I don’t believe that this letter -- it has no letterhead and no signature on it. I don’t think he sent that to me either.

Q. All right. Now, I’m not asking you if he sent you an unsigned --

A. No.

Q. -- unletterheaded letter.

A. Right. I’m telling you I don’t believe that this is the letter that he sent me, April 11th. And I’m almost positive that the March 26th letter that’s on here is not the letter he sent me.

Q. All right. You’ve never seen that letter before?

A. I have never seen --

Q. Let me clarify my question.

A. Right.

Q. Not that -- hold on.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. He’s cutting off the witness.

MR. ZONEN: Let me --

THE COURT: All right. Ask another question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Let me clarify my question. The front letter on there that's dated in March -- what is that, March 24th?

A. March 26th.

Q. March 26th. All right. The content of that letter you're not familiar with?

A. Well, let me just tell you what -- why I don't -- there's several things that --

Q. Mr. Geragos, are you familiar with the content of that letter?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; cutting off the witness.

MR. ZONEN: Well, I'm going to object to nonresponsive answers.

THE WITNESS: I hadn't answered.

THE COURT: The question is, are you familiar with the content of the letter?

THE WITNESS: I don't know how to answer that. I don't --

THE COURT: All right. Ask another question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Did you receive a communication from Mr. Dickerman at any time during the latter part of March of 2003 where he asked for Janet Arvizo's passport and the passports of her children?

A. I received and responded to -- and my response is here, and this is my letter where I respond to his April 3rd letter where he wanted things retrieved from storage is what my memory is. So this letter that I sent on April 6th is in response to some earlier letter, and I reference an April 3rd letter.

Q. Did you receive a letter at any time in the month of March from Mr. Dickerman asking specifically that passports belonging to the Arvizo family be returned to him?

A. Well, I see where he's -- as I sit here, I don't remember a letter in March. I remember a letter that I responded to in April.

Q. All right. And that letter that you're responding to, did that, in part, inquire about the existence of passports belonging to the Arvizo family?

A. No. His April 3rd letter says, “I wrote you and asked you to locate certain items.” And that’s what I did. I think I testified to Mr. Mesereau, I faxed that letter to Brad and told him, “Let’s deal with it.”

Q. Mr. Geragos, at any time during the month of March of 2003, did you have a conversation with Mr. Dickerman wherein Mr. Dickerman asked you to return his clients’ passports?

A. I don’t believe that I had a conversation with Mr. Dickerman in March.

Q. At any time in the early part of April, say up till April 15th, did you have a conversation with Mr. Dickerman wherein the subject of the Arvizos’ passports was raised?

A. No, I believe the conversation we had was in reference to the contents of the storage unit.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Dickerman about passports at any time in the month of April?

A. He might have mentioned it.

Q. He might have mentioned it?

A. He might have mentioned it --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE WITNESS: -- in April, but I’d just be guessing.

MR. MESEREAU: Cutting off the witness.

THE COURT: Next question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you have a recollection of any specific conversation at any time from the 24th of March through the end of April where the subject matter of that conversation was passports belonging to the Arvizos?

A. As I sit here, my memory is contents of the storage unit is what we kept talking about, he and I.

Q. Did you ask anybody in your office to locate passports belonging to the Arvizos at any time in April?

A. Absolutely not.

Q. At any time in May, did you ask anybody in your office to locate passports?

A. No.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Dickerman about passports at any time in April or May of 2003?

A. I just don’t remember. I remember -- all I remember about the conversations was the contents of the storage units.

Q. Did you know from Brad Miller that the Arvizo family was going to go to Brazil?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: In what time period?

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: In 2003.

A. I don’t believe that I did.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague as to time.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: At the time you began communications with Attorney Dickerman, did you know that the Arvizo family had intended to take a trip to Brazil, a trip that would have been sponsored by the -- Michael Jackson?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; assumes facts not in evidence; vague.

THE COURT: Compound question. Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you know at any time during the month of March or April of 2003 that the Arvizo family was going to go to Brazil?

A. I just don’t remember. I can’t tell you.

Q. You have no recollection whatsoever of the subject of a Brazil vacation for the Arvizo family coming up?

A. Well, with anybody?

Q. Yes. Anybody.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague as to time.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: During the month of March or April, did you have a conversation with anybody wherein the subject matter of that conversation was whether or not the Arvizo family would be going to Brazil?

A. I would just be guessing. I can’t answer that as I sit here. If you want me to guess, I would say that the one person who would have -- if I had had that discussion, it might have been Dickerman or it might have been Brad.

Q. Were you aware at any time during March or April of 2003 that employees of Michael Jackson were assisting the Arvizos in getting visas, birth certificates and passports?

A. I think I -- I think I became aware of that. I just don’t know if it was from Brad or from -- Dickerman made the accusation. I just don’t remember at the time. And what I subsequently learned is other material.

Q. During the period of time that you instructed your employee, Brad Miller, to learn about who the Arvizos were associating with and talking to, did you learn that they were being escorted to places like federal buildings to get visas and passports?

A. I don’t believe he ever told me that he followed them to a visa application office or a passport office or the federal building.

Q. Did Brad Miller ever tell you that he was aware of that there had been an application to get visas from the Brazilian embassy on behalf of the Arvizos?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance; and beyond the scope.

MR. ZONEN: During the month of March and April.

THE WITNESS: I don’t think so.

THE COURT: Just a minute.

THE WITNESS: Sorry.

THE COURT: Overruled. The objection is overruled. The answer is in.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: At any time between the time you became involved with Mr. Jackson on the 7th of February until the end of April of 2003, did anybody tell you that the Jackson -- that Jackson’s employees were assisting the Arvizos in getting visas to go to Brazil?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Hearsay; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I think I -- it would be the same answer I gave you before. If it happened, it would have been either Dickerman or Brad.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you associate the request by Mr. Dickerman for passports belonging to the Arvizos, did you associate that with a trip to Brazil?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague as to time.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: During the time you were receiving communications from Mr. Dickerman.

MR. MESEREAU: Still vague as to time.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Are you telling us to the best of your recollection right now, in all of the telephone conversations you had with Mr. Dickerman, you do not recall him ever asking you specifically to have the Arvizos' passports returned to him; that that simply didn't come up?

A. No, I think what I testified to is that if passports came up, it would have been either through a conversation with Mr. Dickerman or with Mr. Miller, Brad.

Q. All right. Do you have a specific recollection of a conversation with Mr. Dickerman wherein he asked you to return his clients' passports?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague as to time.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you have a recollection today of any conversation that you had with Mr. Dickerman in March or April or May or June of 2003 wherein the subject matter of that conversation was his clients' passports?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague as to time.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I think if you take it into June, yes, I think we talked about that.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. You think that the first time that the conversation about passports came up in June?
A. No. But I think, as I indicated before, if I had the conversation -- the first question was March or April, and I do have a vague recollection of either Dickerman or Brad bringing that subject up. In my mind, the two are associated because I would fax his letters over to Brad and tell Brad to get the item.
Q. Between March and the end of June of 2003, did you tell Bill Dickerman that you would locate the passports that belonged to their clients?
A. The conversations with Dickerman were always not specific to items, at least when I was talking to him. It was as to the storage locker and the -- or the storage units.
Q. Did you have a conversation with Bill Dickerman at any time before the end of June 2003 about the return of passports?
A. Once again, the return of “items” in the 11386 storage locker.
Q. Mr. Geragos, passports. Did you talk about passports?
A. I do not believe -- yes, as I testified, I think in March or April we talked about passports, and it was either Dickerman or with Brad. And I think sometime before June, we had at least two phone calls where I talked about getting his items, or the items for his client, over to his office.
Q. Let’s focus on passports right now, okay? We don’t need to talk about anything beyond passports at this moment, all right? Did you ever tell Mr. Dickerman that you would try to locate his clients’ passports?
A. No, I told Mr. Dickerman I would try to locate “the items.”
Q. Did you ever tell Mr. Dickerman that you have located the passports?
A. I said, “We’ve got” -- “I know where the items are.”

Q. Did you ever have a conversation about where the passports were?

A. I do not believe I ever had a conversation as to where the passports were.

Q. Did he specifically ask you to return passports?

A. When?

Q. At any time during your phone conversations with him.

A. During the phone conversations I believe that he mentioned passports, that’s what I said, in March or April.

Q. When he mentioned passports to you, did you immediately understand those to be passports to get the Arvizo family to Brazil?

A. No. I did not understand that that was -- there was any connection.

Q. Did you understand that passports were in reference to the Arvizo family leaving this country, the United States?

A. I know what a passport is. I don’t know what -- I wasn’t trying to read his mind.

Q. Did you understand the passports to be in reference to the Arvizo family leaving this country?

A. That they wanted to leave? No, I didn’t have that understanding.

Q. Did you understand the passports to have something to do with Michael Jackson or his employees?

A. I understood that the items he wanted he felt were, or I felt, based on my conversations with Brad, were in storage.

Q. How many telephone conversations did you have with Mr. Dickerman between the 24th of March and the end of June of 2003?

A. I couldn’t tell you.

Q. Ten?

A. No.

Q. More?

A. Less.

Q. Five?

A. Maybe.

Q. And you’re telling us now that you have no recollection of a specific conversation where he specifically asked you to get the passports?

A. I’m telling you that when I talked to Mr. Dickerman, we always talked about getting the items from storage or him taking over the storage units. That’s what the subject of the conversations were.

And I’m telling you that he -- because you seem to be concentrating on the passports, that I think sometime in March or April, he either wrote it in the letter or he mentioned the passports as being among the items.

Q. All right. Now, when he said “passports,” did you make an effort to determine if your client or any of his representatives were in possession of Mrs. Arvizo’s passports?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I took the letter and I faxed it to Brad and asked Brad to follow up on it.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Now, did Brad Miller then contact you and tell you, yes, he knew where the passports were?

A. No.

Q. Did he tell you that the passports were in their storage locker?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don’t believe that he did.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you learn whether or not the passports were in the storage locker?

A. Firsthand knowledge or through hearsay?

Q. Any source.

A. Well, I was told later that the passports were in the possession of Vinnie; that Asaf had picked them up and Asaf had delivered them to my office.

Q. All right. Now, the passports were in the possession of Vinnie?

A. I’m told that Asaf picked them up from Vinnie.
Q. And took them to your office?
A. And delivered them to my office.
Q. Now, Asaf is Brad Miller’s employee?
A. Yes.
Q. All right.

A. That was my understanding.
Q. All right. He’s not your employee?
A. Well, I hired Brad. Asaf, my understanding, was working for Brad at the time.
Q. All right. Now, Asaf was working for Brad on behalf of Michael Jackson at that time?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; misstates the testimony.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Asaf was working for Brad, and I assumed that Brad was working for me.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. When exactly was it that Asaf picked up the passports from Vinnie?
A. I don’t have any idea.
Q. When did Asaf deliver the passports to Geragos & Geragos?
A. I don’t have any idea.
Q. Did he give them to you?
A. No.
Q. Did he book them into some safe in your office?
A. They were put into an evidence locker style that has a locking device on it.
Q. Does Asaf have a key to that evidence locker?
A. No.
Q. So it had to go through somebody in your office?

A. Yes.
Q. Was that you?
A. No.
Q. All right. Who was it?
A. I don’t know.
Q. Did you make an effort to determine who that was?

A. I did.

Q. And who was it?

A. I still don’t know. It was either the receptionist or one of the assistants.

Q. The receptionist has a key to your evidence locker?

A. The receptionist has access to that locker to put items into it, yes.

Q. When did you find out that Mrs. Arvizo’s passports were in your evidence locker?

A. When I got a substitution of attorney from Mr. Mesereau, and I itemized all of the items that were in there, I located the passports.

I determined at that point that -- did a little legal research, realized that they would possibly be evidence in this case, did not want to give them to Mr. Mesereau because I thought that would make him a witness, and I filed them with the court.

Q. Mr. Geragos, you represented Michael Jackson for what, 16 months?

A. Yes.

Q. And you didn’t know during that entire time that you had possession of Mrs. Arvizo’s passports?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And you made no effort to determine whether you had those passports during the time of your conversations with Mr. Dickerman?

A. Mr. Zonen, I don’t believe that I had them at the time of my conversations with Mr. Dickerman, because Mr. Dickerman would write me letters, I would fax the letters over, and I was relying on the items getting from the storage unit over to Mr. Dickerman’s office.

MR. ZONEN: May I take possession of Exhibit 625?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Now, at the time that you discovered the passports in your storage facility, were you surprised to see them?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you have a system in your law office where you’re supposed to be told what exhibits are being booked into your exhibit room?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; argumentative.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: There’s a log that is supposed to be kept.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you check with the log to find out when the passports came in?
A. I did, and there was no notation for them. They apparently were in a manila envelope, and it may be the same manila envelope that I filed with the Court.
Q. Did you make an inquiry of the employees of your law office to find out who it was who received it?
A. I did. I couldn’t find anybody who had checked it in, and I made an inquiry with Brad, who told me about Asaf having picked them up and then delivered them.
Q. Did Brad Miller find out who Asaf gave the passports to?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Calls for speculation; relevance.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Based on any conversation you had with Brad Miller about the movement of those passports, did you then consult with anybody in your office about whether or not they had, in fact, received those passports?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Asked and answered; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, I asked virtually everybody who was there, if not everybody who was there, who had received them. Nobody had knowledge of them. And I couldn’t get to the bottom of how they got in there. I assumed that because they were in the manila envelope, somebody had placed them in there because they were told that it related to Mr. Jackson’s case.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When you found those passports, did you look at them?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you recognized those passports as being passports that did not belong to you; is that right?

A. I recognized them as passports that were not mine, absolutely.

Q. And your understanding is that passports are the possession of the person to whom they’re issued?

A. Well, rather than give them to --

Q. Was that a “yes” or “no”?

A. I don’t know how to answer that. I recognized that the court would want them, or that they should be in possession of the court, and I delivered them to the court.

Q. It did not occur to you that those passports belonged to Janet Arvizo and her children?

A. I was not in this case, as the lawyer for this case, going to take items which I thought had evidentiary value and send them back to the Arvizos. My ethical obligation was to file them with the court.

Q. Did you immediately file them with the court, that day?

A. No. I believe I researched it, and I consulted with several other lawyers, and did it within a relatively short period of time.

Q. How long is “a relatively short period of time”?

A. I couldn’t tell you. I know that I did it -- it was a -- it was a concern.

Q. Did you have Attorney Benjamin Brafman write a letter to the Court?

A. I talked to Benjamin Brafman about it. He’s one of the lawyers I consulted with.

Q. Did you ask him to write a letter to the Court?

A. I don’t know. I know that I had a lawyer -- what I did do is I directed a lawyer from my office to file them with the court.

Q. Did you contact Bill Dickerman and tell him you've located the passports?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Well, Bill Dickerman, as I understand it, was on the witness list at that point, and I didn't feel that that was appropriate.

Q. So you gave consideration to contacting Bill Dickerman?

A. I had given consideration to a number of alternatives, in discussions with lawyers about it.

Q. Do you know where all of the communications are between you and Bill Dickerman?

A. No.

MR. ZONEN: If I could approach, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Showing you again Exhibit No. 625, and this time a letter on April 8th of 2003, do you recognize this letter?

A. This may be one of the letters that he sent me.

Q. If you could go to Paragraph 3, please. Read that out loud, if you would, please.

A. "Regardless of when the apartment items are returned, please deliver to my office the passports, visas, birth certificates and all other documents belonging to my clients immediately. They were last, to my client's knowledge, in Vinnie's possession."

Q. "Immediately" is underlined; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Do you understand underlining to mean --

A. Emphasis.

Q. Emphasis. All right. Now, when you received this presumably on or about the 8th of April, did you then make an effort to look for those passports?

A. I don't believe that the passports were in my possession on the 8th of April.

Q. Did you contact Vinnie to find out if, in fact, Vinnie had those passports?

A. No. I -- what I said before is, I took the letter, I faxed it to Mr. Miller, and I asked Mr. Miller to take action.

Q. All right. Did you follow up with Mr. Miller soon after the 8th of April to find out if, in fact, he had located the passports?

A. I just asked him about the items. I wanted all items delivered to Mr. Dickerman’s office.

Q. You acknowledge now receipt of the April 8 letter; is that correct?

A. I -- when you say “acknowledge receipt,” it looks like one of the letters he sent me. I don’t -- frankly, as I sit here, I don’t know if all of those letters are the same letters that Mr. Dickerman sent me, because there’s a number of them that don’t have letterhead, nor are they signed.

Q. Now, this particular letter does actually have a letterhead, “Law Offices of Dickerman & Associates,” April 8th, the one you acknowledge receiving?

A. No, I didn’t acknowledge receiving it. I said it looks like a letter he would have sent me. But I can tell you as I sit here, the more I think about it, that I don’t believe he sent me this March 26th letter. I think he may have sent me a letter in March, but it wasn’t this letter. And I think that’s why there’s no letterhead on it, and I think that’s why there’s no signature on it. I wouldn’t trust anything Mr. Dickerman tells me.

Q. Let’s move on to the letter that you’ve said looks more familiar, all right? The April 8th one. And I believe you said that it does look familiar. You think you’ve read that; is that correct?

A. No. I’m telling you it looks familiar because it’s got a letterhead, it’s addressed to me, it’s purportedly signed by him. I am not going to sit here, unless you want me to go back and review it, but I wouldn’t -- I wouldn’t -- I wouldn’t attest to anything that Bill Dickerman has produced is the accurate item.

Q. April 9th, take a look at this letter, please. That has a letterhead and a signature; is that correct?

A. It does.

Q. All right. The content of that letter refers to passports, doesn't it?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. Visas and birth certificates?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you have a recollection of reading this letter?
A. I don't have a recollection of reading that letter.
Q. Do you know where your communications are between you and Mr. Dickerman?
A. I do not as I sit here. I don't know if I still have them in the office or not.
Q. You could very well have these in your office?
A. I don't know if I do.
Q. Did you turn over your file to the current defense team, Mr. Mesereau and Mr. Sanger and Miss Yu?
A. I believe that I've turned over my entire file.
Q. Would that have included the letters from Mr. Dickerman?
A. Should have.
Q. You acknowledge that the one dated April 9th also contains a reference to birth certificates, visas and passports?
A. The one that he's provided you does. I would also tell you that the April 11th letter, which has no letterhead, no signature on it, I don't believe I ever received, the following one. I will tell you that if I have a letter, that I generally referenced in my letter the one that he would send me. And I would do it there. I would say, "Thank you for your letter dated May 12th." Or I would say, "Thank you for your letter --

Q. Let's turn to the --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. He's cutting off the witness.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: Could I ask the Court to allow the witness to complete his answer?

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You do have a letter here --

THE COURT: Just a moment, Counsel. We're having a conversation over here.

MR. ZONEN: Did you want me to be part of that?

THE COURT: It would help.

Mr. Mesereau requested the witness be allowed to finish the answer. I agree. He probably doesn't remember where he was at this point.

Do you have anything to add to your answer?

THE WITNESS: All I was going to say is that if I reference a letter, I would assume that I got -- that would normally be how I would start it. I would start my letter back to him referencing or thanking him for his letter of that particular date.

That does not, however, mean that the letter that he's produced that I necessarily think is the one that I got. And I would just show you the -- here's the March 26th letter. This is the one that has no letterhead and is not signed.

The first letter that he apparently has put in this package, I say, "Thank you for your letter of April 3rd. Please give me a call."

I don't mention the March letter, which leads me to believe I didn't get it. I do the same thing with the others. And I don't believe he sent this letter to me.

Q. MR. ZONEN: A letter from you to Mr. Dickerman, a one-sentence letter.

A. Yes.

Q. It says, "We have retrieved various items from storage and would appreciate your advising us as to where they should be delivered."

A. Yes.

Q. The date is the 15th of April.

A. Right.

Q. Does that reference any letters from Mr. Dickerman?

A. I believe that was when we started to talk about, in the phone conversations with him, of having them delivered to a location. And at some subsequent point we actually tried to deliver the items to his office directly.

Q. Did you arrange to have all of the possessions that were placed in storage that belonged to the Arvizo family delivered to Mr. Dickerman’s office?

A. I told Brad to deliver them to the office and give him everything that they had.

Q. Did you tell him to do that knowing that he had no way of accommodating an apartment full of possessions at his office?

A. Did I do it knowing that he couldn’t accommodate them?

Q. Yes.

A. I thought he could accommodate it, and I thought it was a law office, and I thought if he wanted them immediately, I was going to give him them immediately, because he would not go and take the storage locker or deal with the storage locker.

Q. Did you get Mr. Dickerman’s position -- Mr. Dickerman’s permission to deliver the entire content of the Arvizo familys apartment to his office in advance of your doing so?

A. No. What happened was, is when they took --

Q. That’s a “yes” or “no,” Mr. Geragos. Did you or did you not get his permission?

A. No.

Q. All right. Did you arrange to have it delivered to his office on a day that you knew he would not be there because it was a religious holiday for him?

A. No, I have no idea what religion he is.

Q. Did you know that there was a message on his voice mail indicating that he would not be in his office because of a religious holiday on the date that those possessions were delivered to him?

A. No. I did not know that there was a message on his voice mail. And in any event, the landlord apparently would not accept the items, so they didn’t get delivered.

Q. Did you instruct Mr. Miller to deliver all of the items to Mr. Dickerman?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Dickerman where the items were being stored, the location?

A. Either I did or Brad would have.

Q. When?

A. I don’t know.

Q. Do you know why that they were stored under Brad Miller’s name?

A. As opposed to whose?

Q. Janet Arvizo. They’re her possessions, weren’t they?

A. She would have had to have paid for it, and she claimed she had no money, is what my understanding was from Brad.

Q. And why exactly was Brad Miller willing to assume the cost of paying for the storage of her possessions for months? Why was he willing to do that?

A. I don’t know. You’d have to ask him that. I don’t think he wanted to.

Q. Why were you willing to do that? You were paying that bill, weren’t you?

A. I don’t believe I was paying that bill, and I don’t believe that he wanted to do that. I think he wanted them -- and I told Mr. Dickerman that I wanted him to take that over so Brad did not have to continue doing that.

Q. Mr. Geragos, were you responsible for vouchers being submitted to you by Brad Miller for expenses that he incurred in this investigation?

A. Vouchers?

Q. How did you bill -- how did he bill you? How did you pay him?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: He would send me a bill and I would pay it.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you keep copies of those bills?

A. Probably not.

Q. Did you review them to see what he was doing?

A. Well, I would have looked at it for the amount, and then would have authorized payment, if we paid it directly. I don’t know, as I sit here, whether I paid all of his bills or whether he submitted them to Mr. Jackson’s accountant. I couldn’t tell you as I sit here.

Q. When did Mr. Jackson stop being responsible for the storage of Miss Arvizo’s property?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When did you stop being responsible for the storage fees of Mrs. Arvizo’s property?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: All right. I don’t know that I -- I guess ultimately I’m responsible because Brad was working for me, but I don’t think that I was trying to keep those items. In fact, I was trying to get those items to Dickerman.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: During the four or five months that Miss Arvizo’s possessions were in a locker under the name of Brad Miller, who was paying that bill, the storage fees?

A. I assume Brad was.

Q. Would he then bill you?

A. He would either bill me or he would have billed Mr. Jackson’s accountant.

Q. Would there be a specific designation for that bill as “Arvizo family storage”?

A. I don’t know if there would or not, or whether it would have just been some kind of a listing of expenses.

Q. Do you know where those bills are today?

A. I do not.

Q. Did you order a surveillance be conducted upon Hamid Moslehi?

A. I think that I did tell Brad to find out what he was doing with the videotape when he wouldn’t return it.

Q. Did you specifically tell Brad Miller to follow Hamid Moslehi?

A. I wanted to know what he was doing with the videotape.
Q. Did you ask him to film Hamid Moslehi?
A. Probably not.
Q. Did you believe that Hamid Moslehi was also going to shake down Michael Jackson?
A. I wanted to know why -- when I was promised that we were going to get a copy of the videotape, why we didn’t get it.
Q. Did you know a man by the name of Johnny?
MR. SNEDDON: It’s not there.
MR. ZONEN: I’ve got it up here? Where is it? The one that’s in evidence.
MR. SNEDDON: It’s in there.
MR. ZONEN: I’m like that on Fridays.

THE WITNESS: I understand.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you know a person named Johnny Mejietich?
A. When?
Q. Easy for me to say, huh? M-e-j-i-e-t-i-c-h, Mejietich.
A. Not in 2003.
Q. All right. You later learned who that was; is that right?
A. That’s right.
Q. And when you learned who that was, you learned that he was some kind of an investigator working for Brad Miller?
A. I learned that later.
Q. You learned that he was not a licensed investigator; is that right?
A. I will accept your representation, but, no, I didn’t know that.
Q. Did you ever meet Johnny personally?
A. I don’t believe I have.
Q. Did you know at the time that he was working for Brad Miller? And when I say “at the time,” I mean on the assignment to follow and investigate the Arvizo family.
A. No. Not him specifically.
Q. Did you know that he contacted the Arvizo family at the home of Janet Arvizo’s parents in El Monte?

A. No.

Q. Did you know that he was throwing stones at their house?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Misstates the evidence; assumes facts not in evidence; foundation.

MR. ZONEN: That’s Maria Ventura’s testimony, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: That’s not what she said.

MR. ZONEN: And Davellin Arvizo’s testimony.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: No. I don’t know, and I would find that hard to believe.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You would not have approved of such behavior on behalf of an agent working on your behalf; is that right?

A. Right. I don’t send people out to throw stones at people’s houses.

Q. Did you ever meet Mr. Mejietich personally?

A. I think I said I don’t believe that I have.

Q. Did you ever see him?

A. I don’t believe that I’ve ever met him, so I don’t believe I’ve ever seen him.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Can’t hear you, sir.

THE WITNESS: I don’t believe I’ve either met or seen him.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When the hands go flying out there, it means they can’t hear.

A. I thought it was bathroom break.

(Laughter.)

Q. Exhibit No. 277, would you take a look at that note, both front and back?

THE COURT: Mr. Zonen, you’ve been taking a lot of liberty at the witness stand.

MR. ZONEN: “Liberty” what, sir?

THE COURT: At the witness stand.

MR. ZONEN: I will move away immediately.

Q. Do you recognize that exhibit?

A. No.

Q. Is that, in fact, what appears to be a note?

A. Yes. It’s a -- it looks like a piece of paper that's torn out of a spiral notebook of some kind.

MR. MESEREAU: Excuse me. Can I see what the exhibit looks like?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you.

MR. ZONEN: We learn never to open those binders. They go everywhere once we do that.

Q. You said you don't recognize that note; is that right?

A. I do not.

Q. During the course of your representation of Mr. Jackson you never saw that exhibit?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague as to time.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: At any time.

MR. MESEREAU: Beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did anybody tell you that Mr. Mejietich, on behalf of Brad Miller, went to the home of Janet Arvizo's parents in El Monte?

A. I think I read a report, one of the sheriff's reports that mentioned that.

Q. If you were to learn that that note was left by Mr. Mejietich at the Ventura family residence in El Monte, would that be consistent with your instructions to Brad Miller?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Calls for speculation; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don't know what -- I don't know how to answer that, because I don't know why it would have been left.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you know why an employee of yours was requesting Gavin or Star contact Vinnie or Frank?

A. I don't know. It doesn't say Gavin or Star on it.

Q. Turn it over.

A. Is that what it says? It looks like "To Stat" or -- I guess that could be "Gavin." I don't know.

Q. Do you know why an employee of yours would be directing a 13-year-old boy and a 12-year-old boy to call Vinnie or Frank?

A. I don’t know why the note was left. Like I said, I’ve never seen the note.

Q. All right. Now, after the 13th of March, would you have --

A. Of 2003?

Q. -- would you have any reason --

A. Of 2003?

Q. Of 2003. Would you have any reason to direct an employee of yours to have these children contact employees of Michael Jackson?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Calls for speculation; foundation; relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don’t know why the note was left.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you know if Brad Miller was working with Frank or Vinnie during the early to middle part of March?

A. When you say “working with,” I believe he was talking to them.

Q. All right. Was he receiving instructions from them?

A. I don’t think he was receiving instruction from them.

Q. Did you give any direction to Brad Miller to take instruction from either Frank or Vinnie?

A. No. I don’t think that he was taking -- I don’t know, but I don’t think he was taking instruction from them.

Q. Did you know that in the early part of March of 2003, there was an effort by some employees of Michael Jackson to have the Arvizo family go to Brazil?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: In March or February of 2003, I don’t believe so. I think that was -- is that a different question than what you had asked me before?

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: No.

A. Before the break?

I don’t believe so. I think, as I indicated before, if I had that conversation, it would have been with either Dickerman or Brad.

Q. During February or March of 2003, did you have a conversation with Marc Schaffel about the Arvizo family going to Brazil?

A. I don’t believe so.

Q. Were you aware, during the month of March of 2003, whether or not employees of Michael Jackson checked the Arvizos’ sons out of John Burroughs Middle School?

A. No, I’m not aware that that happened.

Q. When did you learn that happened?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; assumes facts not in evidence; relevance; beyond the scope; vague as to time.

MR. ZONEN: Leading, too?

MR. MESEREAU: Leading, too.

THE COURT: The objections are overruled.

MR. ZONEN: Mine too?

THE WITNESS: I don’t know that I’ve ever learned that.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Was there ever a conversation with Brad Miller about the children going to John Burroughs Middle School?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don’t remember. I mean, they may have attended there. Maybe. I don’t know.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were you aware that Johnny Mejietich was seen filming the Arvizo children at John Burroughs Middle School?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague as to time.
THE COURT: Overruled. The answer was “No.” Next question.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did Brad Miller ever talk to you about conducting a surveillance of the children at John Burroughs Middle School?
A. No, not that I’m aware of. I don’t know that I talked specific locations. Like I said, I told him to find out where they were, what they were doing, who they were meeting with.
And the middle school doesn’t ring a bell. It’s not to say he might not have said they’re attending school or might not have told me at some point that they were attending school or he saw them attending school. I just don’t remember John Burroughs Middle School.
Q. Do you know why the children were checked out of John Burroughs Middle School by Vinnie?
A. I don’t know that that happened.
Q. Well, let’s assume, hypothetically, in early March 2003, Vinnie Amen, then an employee of Michael Jackson, checked out these two boys from John Burroughs Middle School.
A. I don’t know why he would have done that.
Q. Did anybody have any conversation with you about Michael Jackson’s employees being involved with these two boys being taken out of that school?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; assumes facts not in evidence; relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Discussions with Vinnie? Is that what you’re asking? Or with anybody?
MR. ZONEN: Could the question be read back?
THE COURT: Yes.
(Record read.)
THE WITNESS: I don’t believe so, no.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Now, during this period of time, of February and March of 2003, you were representing Michael Jackson?
A. Yes.
Q. And your concern, of course, dealt with the Arvizo family?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague; argumentative; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that correct?

A. That was one of my concerns, yes.

Q. All right. I assume one of the other concerns you had is whether or not the statements Michael Jackson made in the “Living with Michael Jackson” documentary were true?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Which statements?

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: About sleeping with boys.

A. Whether they were true?

Q. Yes.

A. We went through this before. I told you before. The suggestion that the sleeping with boys was sexual, if that’s what you’re suggesting, no, I did not believe that that was true.

Q. Mr. Geragos, the question was whether or not any boys occupied the same bed with Michael Jackson at the same time.

A. That wasn’t the question.

Q. All right.

A. You asked me about sleeping with them and now you’re asking me whether they’re sleeping in the same bed.

Q. All right.

A. Okay. So I don’t know what statements you’re talking about. Be specific.

Q. Did you make any inquiry with Michael Jackson during the months of February and March about whether or not he shared a bed with a child other than his own?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Michael Jackson, in the discussion I had with him and my observation of him with the kids, I did not --

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as exceeding the scope of the question.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; he’s cutting off the witness.

MR. ZONEN: We’re going to have to resolve that, too.

THE COURT: The objection is sustained. He’s not cutting off the witness. He’s not answering the question.

Read the question back.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ask him if it was true that he shared a bed with a child other than his own?

A. No, I did not ask that question.

Q. During February and March of 2003, during the period of time that you had directed Brad Miller to take account of who the Arvizo family were associating with, did you consult with any employees of Michael Jackson to determine what they were doing with the Arvizo family?

A. Yes, I think that I talked to a number of people.

Q. Did you talk with Marc Schaffel?

A. I believe that I talked a number of times with Marc Schaffel. I talked with, I believe, Joe Marcus. And I had other lawyers in the office talk with people at the ranch as well.

Q. Did you have conversations with Marc Schaffel specifically about the Arvizo family?

A. I think that I’ve talked with Schaffel about the Arvizo family.

Q. Did Marc Schaffel tell you that they were making arrangements to move the Arvizo family to Brazil?

A. I just don’t remember if he told me -- if he ever told me that. I think that normally when I talked to Schaffel about the Arvizos, my memory of it is in regards to the video and this rebuttal tape, as they called it.

Q. Mr. Geragos, with regards to conversations with Marc Schaffel, are you telling us it’s possible you had a conversation with him about moving the Arvizo family to Brazil?
A. That if -- no. I don’t think that he ever told me that he was moving the Arvizo family to Brazil. I just don’t have any recollection of that.
Q. Do you have a recollection of any conversation with Marc Schaffel wherein the subject of Brazil came up?
A. You know, I think that Schaffel, during that period of time, told me that he had gone to Brazil.

Q. All right. Did you have a conversation with Marc Schaffel at any time in February, March of 2003, where Marc Schaffel mentioned Brazil in the context of the Arvizo family?
A. I don’t believe so. I believe that when he talked about Brazil, it was because he had gone to Brazil or was going to Brazil or something to that effect.
Q. Did you have any conversations with Frank Cascio during the month of February and March?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have numerous conversations with Frank Cascio during the months of February and March of 2003?
A. I would say more than five.
Q. Could it have been more than 25?
A. It could -- well, I wouldn’t say 25. But I would say more than five.
Q. Do you have a recollection as to whether any of those conversations included a discussion of Brazil?
A. I don’t know if the conversations took place after I would have talked to Brad or Dickerman. I just don’t know. I can’t put it in context. But I don’t -- as I sit here, I don’t remember, but that doesn’t mean I didn’t.
Q. Do you have a recollection of any specific conversation you had with Frank Cascio regarding the Arvizos and Brazil?

A. I don’t have any specific recollection as I sit here.

Q. Do you have a recollection of anything Frank Cascio may have said to you about the Arvizo family going to Brazil?

A. No, I still think that probably would have been with Brad or with Dickerman.

Q. Did you have any conversations with either Dieter Weizner or Ronald Konitzer during March or February of 2003?

A. I think, as I testified last week, that in February and March of 2003, I had very limited contact with Dieter.

And I talked with Ronald. And I don’t think I talked to Ronald about any of -- any of those things. Ronald’s discussions with me generally wouldn’t have been about things like that.

Q. Do you have a recollection at all during the months of February and March of 2003 of thinking to yourself that Michael Jackson or his employees ought not be involved in moving the Arvizo family to Brazil?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Argumentative; foundation.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: Of thinking to myself?

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Yes.

A. I don’t know.

Q. Did you have a conversation with anybody at all during the months of February or March of 2003 where the subject of that conversation was the fact that Michael Jackson’s employees ought not be involved in moving Janet Arvizo and her children to Brazil?

A. If I would have had that conversation, like I said, it would have been with Dickerman and/or Brad.

Q. All right. And you’re saying you would have, but you have no independent recollection of it?

A. I don’t remember what the conversation was or who brought up Brazil. I know that there was discussions, and I just don’t remember if it was Dickerman or Brad.

Q. Were any bills paid for passports or visas, passports or visas or birth certificates that were paid for by you?

A. No.

Q. Were there any bills paid for by you that involved moving the Arvizo family from their apartment or their rents?

A. Not that I’m aware of.

Q. Only the storage unit, then, was paid by your office?

A. If he submitted it with an expense bill, but I don’t believe that he did. I would have to take a look at the bills.

Q. Mr. Geragos, I asked you a question early on about the DCFS taped interview, the tape of that interview. And you answered that you thought it may have come from Mr. Sneddon.

A. The tape would have been turned over as a copy after the search warrant was executed.

Q. All right. Mr. Geragos, you know that that tape was not in our possession until just prior to the trial?

A. I didn’t --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Argumentative; assumes facts not in evidence

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Mr. Geragos, when you say the tape was received, do you mean in discovery?

A. I believe that, yes, in discovery, the tape was received.

Q. All right. You think that that tape was then seized from Michael Jackson’s residence?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE WITNESS: I think --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

MR. ZONEN: Well, then we need to resume this at sidebar, based on the earlier conversation as to how to resolve this.

THE COURT: Do you have any other questions you want to ask?

MR. ZONEN: Perhaps, if I could have just a moment, yeah.

May I have just a moment, please?

(Discussion held off the record at counsel table.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Mr. Geragos, did you at any time have a conversation with your client, Michael Jackson, during the months of February or March where the subject of Brazil came up?

A. No.

Q. He never told you he was going to go to Brazil?

A. No.

Q. Did he ever talk to you about the Arvizo family?

A. Going to Brazil? Absolutely not.

Q. Were you aware that employees of yours were standing guard outside the Country Suites in Calabasas?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Argumentative; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don’t believe any employees of mine were standing guard outside of the Country Suites. I don’t buy that for a second.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Are you aware that Johnny was there at the Country Suites at the time that the Arvizo family was staying there?

A. If he was there, I don’t believe he was standing guard.

Q. Do you know what he was doing there?

A. I don’t. But I don’t believe that he would be standing guard.

Q. Did Brad Miller ever talk to you about his involvement with the Arvizo family at the Calabasas -- at The Country Suites & Inn in Calabasas?

A. At the time in February or March, no.

Q. All right. Did he tell you that he was surveilling them while they were at The Country Inn & Suites in Calabasas?

A. I don’t believe that he was.

Q. Did he tell you that he was doing that?

A. I don’t believe that he did, no.

Q. Did he tell you that he was conducting any kind of surveillance of the family between the days of the 25th of February and the 2nd of March?

A. I think that he was, yes.

Q. All right. Now, that, of course, was during the period of time that you had directed him to do an investigation of the Arvizo family; is that right?

A. I wanted to know where they were and what they were doing.

Q. And that direction included finding out where they were and what they were doing, right?

A. Exactly.

Q. Did word get back to you from Mr. Miller that for that five-day period they were at a hotel in Calabasas?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague as to relevance.

MR. ZONEN: The 28th of February -- I’m sorry, the 25th of February to the 2nd of March, 19 -- 2003.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: I don’t remember if he did. It wouldn’t surprise me if he did, but I don’t remember.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did he tell you what they were doing there?

A. Like I say, I don’t remember if he did.

Q. Did you learn from him if they were there with Vinnie and/or Frank?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: As I indicated, I don’t have an independent memory of what he would have told me back then as to the Country Suites.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Was Brad Miller working directly with Vinnie and Frank to determine the whereabouts and location and movement of the Arvizo family?

A. I don’t believe that he was, no.

Q. Did you instruct employees of Michael Jackson to cooperate with Brad Miller so that he could do his investigation of the Arvizo family?

A. I instructed Brad Miller to talk to people.

Q. Did you tell him to specifically talk to Vinnie and Frank about where the Arvizos were going and from where they were coming?

A. I would tell him to talk to Vinnie and Frank, absolutely.

Q. So it would be reasonable to assume that Brad Miller knew where they were during this period of time if they were in the company of either Frank or Vinnie?

A. I think that’s reasonable.

Q. All right. Did you ever learn that they were at The Country Inn & Suites in Calabasas during that period of time?

A. Did I learn it in February or March?

Q. Yes.

A. I don’t think that I did. But like I say, he may have told me.

Q. If, in fact, Johnny was there at that time, he would have been there at Brad Miller’s direction; is that true?

A. As I sit here today, yes.

Q. Did you know something back then different from that?

A. I didn’t -- as I explained to you, I didn’t know Johnny was working for him at the time. I know --

Q. When did you first learn the expression --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. He cut off the witness.

THE COURT: Sustained.

You may complete your answer.

THE WITNESS: It’s okay.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When did you first hear the statement “crack whore” in connection with Janet Arvizo?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; foundation; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained. Foundation.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ever have a conversation with Marc Schaffel about Janet Arvizo where the term “crack whore” came into the conversation?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; argumentative.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I don’t believe so.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you have a conversation with Brad Miller about the content of the telephone calls that he had been monitoring between Frank and Janet Arvizo?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; assumes facts not in evidence.

MR. ZONEN: I’m sorry?

THE COURT: Foundation, sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you learn from Brad Miller that Janet Arvizo and Frank Cascio had been having telephone calls during the month of February while she was away from Neverland Ranch?

A. In -- did I learn that in February or March -- in March of 2003?

Q. Yes.

A. I believe that I knew that they had called -- that they had talked to each other on the phone, yes.

Q. All right. Did Brad Miller tell you about the content of those telephone conversations?

A. He might have. I don’t have any memory of it.

Q. Did he tell you specifically that Janet Arvizo told Frank Cascio that she could not be bought and that she would not sell a story to any of the media or the tabloids?

A. No.

Q. He never said that to you?

A. No.

Q. Did he tell you about the content of any of those telephone calls that she had with Frank?

A. Yeah, and that -- one of the things that sticks out in my mind is that she was complaining about what she called “the Germans.”

Q. All right. She was scared of the Germans?

A. She wasn’t scared. She didn’t indicate she was scared. But she was complaining about them, that they were limiting her.

Q. Now, you never listened to those phone conversations, right?

A. Which phone conversations? The ones between Frank and Janet?

Q. Janet, yes.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ever listen to those?

A. In February or March of 2003, no.

Q. All right. When did you finally listen to that telephone conversation or conversations?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Sometime after February or March of 2003.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. And in fact, she said that she was scared and upset about the Germans, right?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Hearsay; assumes facts; foundation.

THE COURT: It’s vague. The question is vague.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When did you listen to the tape-recording of the phone conversation between Janet and Frank?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope; vague as to time.

MR. ZONEN: That’s what I asked, was when.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. He did answer that. He said, “Sometime after,” and he gave a period of time.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: I would like to know when that was, please.

A. I don’t know the exact date. It would have been sometime well after.

Q. All right. Prior to --

A. It would have been after the time of the search warrant on Mr. Miller’s office.

Q. All right. And when you listened to it, you heard what she had said; is that correct?
A. That's right.
Q. All right. And did you listen to that tape in the company of Brad Miller?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Beyond the scope; relevance; vague as to time.
THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you listen to it in the company of Brad Miller?
A. I don't think so.
Q. After you listened to it, did you call Brad Miller?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; relevance.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: Overruled?
THE COURT: You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yeah. Probably did, yes.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You probably listened to it in the company of Brad Miller?
A. No, I listened to it and then probably called him afterwards, yes.
Q. Did you ask him why it was that he had a tape-recording of a conversation that was clearly a telephone conversation?
A. Yes, I --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; foundation; vague as to time; and argumentative.
THE COURT: Overruled. The objection is --
THE WITNESS: Yes, I did.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What did he tell you?
A. He told me --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.
MR. ZONEN: A declaration against penal interest.

THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead. What did he tell you?
A. He told me that Frank had expected that there was going to be some kind of a -- an admission or crime that Janet was going to propose on the telephone call and that's why he taped it.

Q. Now, you understand that that should be monitored by law enforcement, right?

A. That's one of the exceptions, yes.

Q. Can you tell us what Penal Code section says that a private citizen can decide on their own to tape-record a conversation because they think there's going to be a crime?

A. If you give me the Penal Code at the break, I'll be happy to point it out to you, and I'll give you the case as well.

Q. Did you give Brad Miller instruction to do that, to tape-record telephone conversations between Frank and Janet?

A. No, I did not.

Q. In fact, what you listened to didn't evidence any crime whatsoever, did it?

A. I did not hear any crime on that phone -- on that phone call.

Q. She did not ask Frank for money at all, did she?

A. That's correct.

Q. She did not tell Frank that she was going to take her story to the press, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And that wouldn't have been a crime either, would it have?

A. It would not have been.

Q. The only crime that you anticipated would be her telling Frank, "I would like some money or I'm going to make a false claim against your client, Michael Jackson"?

A. When you say I "anticipated," I told you I didn't listen to it until after it was seized out of Mr. Miller's office.

Q. Did Mr. Miller make the decision on his own to tape-record that conversation?

A. That's what he told me.

Q. So he didn't consult with you in advance?

A. He did not.

Q. Did he tell you that that was a compilation of a number of different phone calls?

A. He did not.

Q. Did you hear breaks in that recording?

A. I didn’t notice any breaks in that recording. The only breaks that I noticed were in the ones that we talked about last week, the one that I think was on February 16th.

Q. Did you ask Brad Miller if he made multiple tape-recordings of conversations?

A. I asked if there were any others.

Q. What did he tell you?

A. That there were not.

Q. Did you ask him if he altered that tape in any way?

A. I didn’t ask him that. I asked him specifically as to the February 16th tape.

Q. Did he tell you that that tape was an accurate recording of a single conversation?

A. He said that they had sat down in the location of the apartment and had recorded it all at one sitting.

Q. Did he tell you who was present at the time of that recording?

A. I believe that he did. I believe he told me that it was the family, and I think at one point the boyfriend was there as well.

Q. Did he tell you that there was nothing said in the course of that conversation that would cause you concern about Janet Arvizo?

A. I’m sorry, what?

Q. Did he tell you that there was nothing said in the course of that conversation that would cause you concern about Janet Arvizo?

A. No, on the contrary. He told me that he thought that they were telling the truth and that Michael Jackson hadn’t done anything --

Q. I’m sorry?

A. -- to the kids.

Q. Did Brad Miller tell you that, in the course of the telephone conversation he monitored, that there was nothing Janet Arvizo said that would cause him concern about her taking any kind of legal action against Michael Jackson?

A. We're talking about the Frank and Janet, not the other --

Q. The telephone conversation.

A. Okay. There's two tapes. One tape is February 16th with the family. The other tape that you found in the office was a tape-recording of Frank's call to Janet.

Q. Mr. Geragos, I'm asking about the telephone conversations that were surreptitiously taped.

A. Frank's call to Janet.

Q. Yeah. Because Brad Miller thought she was going to shake him down for money, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. That phone call was placed to Janet Arvizo, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, why exactly was Brad Miller placing a telephone call to Janet Arvizo wherein he anticipated she would then hit him up for money?

A. I don't know why he was -- why -- I don't think Brad placed the phone call. I think that Frank placed the phone call. It sounds like it's his voice.

Q. Well, but they're in the same room, right?

A. I don't believe that they were. I think that was a three-way call.

Q. Well, all right. But somebody set that up, right?

A. I don't know. You'd have to ask him. I believe that the -- that Frank said he was going to call her. Brad told me that he was going to tape it. I don't think that they did it in the same room.

Q. And Brad and Frank, Brad Miller and Frank Cascio, then coordinated with each other to be able to have this conference call tape-recorded without Janet Arvizo's knowledge; is that right?

A. I would just be assuming that. I don't know. I didn't ask that question.

Q. All right. Now, did you ask Brad Miller if he had a conversation with Frank Cascio in advance of that, of that call, as to what Frank Cascio should say to Janet?

A. No.
Q. Did he offer to you the fact that there was a conversation between he and Mr. Cascio about what would be said to Janet Arvizo?
A. Not that I remember, no.
Q. Did he tell you?

A. I just assumed it, because it was recorded.
Q. Did he tell you in advance that they were going to set up that telephone call, “he” being Mr. Miller? Did Mr. Miller tell you in advance?
A. Mr. Miller didn’t tell me about it until you seized -- or “you” being the progression -- seized it from the office, and that’s when I asked. That would have been sometime after November of 2003.
Q. Did Brad Miller write any reports to you about his surveillance or investigation of the Arvizo family?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague as to time; relevance; beyond the scope.
MR. ZONEN: I didn’t hear the ruling, I’m sorry.
THE COURT: It hasn’t come yet.
MR. ZONEN: Ahh. Maybe that’s why.
THE COURT: The objection is overruled.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did he write those reports to you during the months of February and March of 2003?
A. No.
Q. Did he write them after March of 2003?
A. Yes.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope.
THE COURT: I’ll leave the answer in. Next question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When did you receive a report from Brad Miller that specifically dealt with that telephone conversation between Janet and Frank?
A. I don’t think that I did.
Q. Did he never -- did he never write a report about that conversation?
A. I don’t believe that he did.
Q. Did you ask him to write a report about that conversation?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Why?

Q. Did you think it was illegal?

A. At the time I felt, when I talked to him, that he articulated to me at least a reasonable expectation that a crime was going to be committed, so, no, I did not think this was illegal.

Q. How many reports did Brad Miller write to you about his investigation of the Arvizo family prior to the end of April 2003?

A. I couldn’t tell you.

Q. Where are those reports today?

A. If they exist, I would have turned them over.

Q. You don’t have them in your possession anymore?

A. I don’t believe so.

Q. What do you mean by “if they exist”? Is it possible you destroyed those reports?

A. No, I’m saying if he made them.

Q. You don’t --

A. I wouldn’t have destroyed them. But if he had made a report, I would have turned them over.

Q. You believe that during a three-month investigation, he might not have written any reports at all?

A. No, the -- the period of time for the investigation would have been sometime after February 7th through March, which would have, as I indicated before, been about 35 to 40 days. I believe that what he was doing would orally update me on what was happening.

Q. At any time -- at any time, Mr. Geragos, at any time up through the end of June of 2003, did Bradley Miller write any reports of his activities involving the Arvizo family?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And submit those reports to you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; foundation; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I couldn’t tell you as I sit here. I know that I talked to him about it, and I don’t know if he wrote up a formal report.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You don’t have a clear recollection at this time of receiving any reports from Brad Miller prior to the conclusion of 2003?

A. Not as I sit here. If you’ve got one, you can show it to me.

Q. Did you ever take possession of any of the surveillance tapes from Frank -- excuse me, from Brad Miller? Did he ever give you any of the surveillance tapes?

A. No. Are we talking the same tapes you were asking me about?

Q. The surveillance tapes from the Arvizo family.

A. I was told those were seized through the search warrant, and I got those through discovery.

Q. Did Brad Miller ever give you copies of those surveillance tapes?

A. No.

Q. Did Brad Miller ever furnish you written reports of the surveillance activities that he was conducting?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; foundation; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: I think it’s been asked and answered. I think he said he doesn’t know.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did Brad Miller ever send you e-mails that detailed his activities, specifically with regards to the surveillances?

A. He might have.

Q. All right. Now, where are those e-mails?

A. If they -- as I indicated last week, if I saved them, I probably would have saved them into the -- at the risk of being mocked, into my Word Perfect file.

Q. I promise I won’t do that today.

A. Thank you.

Q. Do you still have that in your office?

A. My Word Perfect file?

Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you check that file over the last week since you were here last Friday?
A. I checked on the date of the retainer after you had asked me.
Q. Did you check to see if you still have notes in any capacity, either by way of e-mail or handwritten notes or typed notes, from Brad Miller still in your file?
A. I didn’t check on notes. I checked on -- because you were asking me about whether it was late January or early February. I checked on when the retainer agreement was, and it looked to me to be February 4th. And that’s the thing that I was focused on checking on.
Q. Did you check in your Word Perfect, Series 11 --
A. 11. 11442

Q. -- file --
A. Yes.
Q. -- on Mr. Jackson, the Jackson file, on whether or not there were e-mails from Brad Miller?
A. I did not.
Q. Did you check -- over this last week, did you check to see if there were e-mails from any of the people we’ve previously discussed, Mr. Schaffel, Mr. Weizner, Mr. Konitzer, Amen or Cascio?
A. No. Like you, I’ve been in trial for the last week.
THE COURT: All right. Let’s take a break.
(Recess taken.)
THE COURT: Counsel?
MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I have concluded my cross-examination.
BAILIFF CORTEZ: Microphone’s off, sir.
MR. ZONEN: You’d think after three months I would have learned this.
I’ve concluded my cross-examination. I had indicated before that we needed a conference prior to that, and I think we may have resolved that issue.
THE COURT: Okay.

MR. ZONEN: Don’t need to do that. I will require an additional conference, but it does not have to be until the conclusion of redirect examination.

And before the witness is excused, I would like to have a conference. It doesn’t need to be in the presence of the jury.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Mr. Geragos, during February and March of 2003, did you know whether or not Janet Arvizo ever told anyone she wanted to go to Brazil with Michael Jackson?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Lack of foundation; lack of personal knowledge.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Geragos, during February or March of 2003, did you have any personal knowledge of whether or not Janet Arvizo ever told anyone she wanted to go to Brazil with Michael Jackson?

MR. ZONEN: Personal knowledge being limited to conversations with Janet Arvizo?

THE COURT: Just a moment.

Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: During February or March of 2003, did you have any personal knowledge of whether or not Janet Arvizo wanted Michael Jackson to get her a new home?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object to “personal knowledge,” and vague.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Your microphone’s off.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Geragos, during February and March of 2003, was it your understanding that Janet Arvizo wanted possessions moved out of her apartment in East L.A., wanted those possessions stored, and wanted someone else to pay for it?

MR. ZONEN: I'll object as to lack of foundation and speculation.
THE COURT: And compound.
MR. ZONEN: And compound.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Geragos, during February and March of 2003, did you have any personal knowledge of whether Janet Arvizo wanted to move out of her apartment on Soto Street in East Los Angeles?
MR. ZONEN: "Yes" or "no." I'll object beyond "yes" or "no."
THE COURT: You may answer that "yes" or "no."
THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And what was your knowledge based upon?
A. Based on my conversation with Brad Miller.

Q. During February and March of 2003, did you have any personal knowledge of whether or not Janet Arvizo wanted someone to retrieve her possessions from the apartment on Soto Street?
A. From Brad Miller, I --
MR. ZONEN: I'll object, Your Honor, as a lack of foundation.
THE COURT: I'll strike the answer. But you are to answer that question "yes" or "no." It's a question about -- do you want it read back?
THE WITNESS: "Yes" was the answer to the question.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And what was your personal knowledge based upon?
A. Conversations with Brad Miller.
Q. And what was your personal knowledge?
MR. ZONEN: I'll object as hearsay.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: That she wanted the -- she wanted to move in with her boyfriend, she wanted those items stored, and that she arranged with Brad to do that.
MR. ZONEN: I'm going to move to strike as hearsay.
MR. MESEREAU: It was his personal knowledge, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Well --
MR. ZONEN: If it's for the truth of the matter --

THE COURT: Just a moment. Just a moment. This is another one of those situations where that is what he testified to under your cross-examination. The objection is overruled. Next question.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Geragos, during February and March of 2003, did you have any personal knowledge of whether Janet Arvizo wanted the storage costs for storing her possessions paid for by someone else?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was your personal knowledge based upon?
A. Conversations with Brad Miller.
Q. And what was your personal knowledge about that subject?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; hearsay.
THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Precisely that. That she wanted the items stored there and she wanted somebody else to pay for them.
Q. BY MR MESEREAU: During February and March of 2003, did you have any personal knowledge about whether or not Janet Arvizo was planning to go to Brazil with Michael Jackson?
A. If I did, it would be the same answer I gave to Mr. Zonen, that the conversations would have been either through Brad or through Dickerman's conversations, which would have stretched into April and May.

Q. During February and March of 2003, did you have any personal knowledge of whether or not Janet Arvizo changed her mind about Brazil when she decided Michael Jackson was not going with her?
A. I don't think that that was in February or March of 2003 that I heard that.
Q. During February and March of 2003, did you know whether or not Janet Arvizo was using the Soto Street address in East Los Angeles to defraud welfare authorities?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Exceeds the scope of the cross-examination. Lack of foundation. Also legally speculative.

THE COURT: The objection is sustained. It’s argumentative.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: During February and March of 2003, Mr. Geragos, did you have any personal knowledge of what purpose Janet Arvizo had in keeping that Soto Street address?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Speculative; lack of foundation; and irrelevant.

THE COURT: All right. You may answer that “yes” or “no.” I’ll overrule the objection.

THE WITNESS: Can I answer it “I don’t know”?

THE COURT: Yes. That’s an option.

THE WITNESS: Okay. I don’t know.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: During February and March of 2003, Mr. Geragos, did you have any personal knowledge of whether or not Janet Arvizo arranged to have someone else pay the rent at Soto Street?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was your personal knowledge based upon?

A. Conversations with Brad.

Q. And what was your knowledge about that?

A. Brad said that she wanted the rent paid and I believe at some point produced some document from the landlord, or something like that, that I saw later on after February or March.

Q. And was it your personal knowledge in February and March of 2003 that someone else actually paid Janet Arvizo’s rent for the Soto Street address?

A. I was told that.

Q. By who?

A. Brad.

Q. And what were you told?

A. That he had paid it.

Q. Did you learn how many months he had paid Janet Arvizo’s rent at Soto Street?

A. I think he told me two.

Q. Did you ever learn for how many months Brad Miller paid Janet Arvizo's storage costs?

A. Only through Mr. Zonen's questioning.

Q. Okay. You didn't know --

A. I didn't know at the time. I think I had assumed it was from the time that the storage -- or the items had gone into storage to the time that I was dealing with Dickerman, which would have been, I don't know, 45 or 60 days, something like that.

Q. Now, during February and March of 2003, was it your understanding that Janet was spending most of her time living at Jay Jackson's apartment?

MR. ZONEN: I'll object. Lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I knew she was -- I believe she was there on February 16th, because that was when that tape-recording was made with her and the family and I believe with her then boyfriend. And I know that Brad told me that they were spending time there; that they had moved in there.

So I don't know that I can tell you back in February or March exactly which days they were there off the top of my head, but I know that I was aware of the fact that they were there.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, in cross-examination, you stated words to the effect that you wanted a videotape of the movement of Janet Arvizo's possessions from the Soto Street address, right?

A. I specifically have a memory of telling Brad, "If you're going to do that, you better videotape it, so that nobody's later going to accuse you of taking some of the possessions."

Q. And was it your understanding in February and March of 2003 that, in fact, the move was videotaped by Mr. Miller?

A. He told me that was -- something to the effect that that was a good idea. And I assumed he did it.

Q. Okay. Now, in February and March of 2003, were you aware of any effort by Mr. Miller to hide from anybody where those possessions were stored?

A. On the contrary. I think he wanted to turn it over and get off the hook for paying for them.

Q. And to your knowledge, in February, March of 2003, was the storage locker in the name of “Brad Miller, Licensed Private Investigator”?

A. I believe that it was.

Q. Did you know, in February and March of 2003, whether anyone else’s possessions, separate and apart from Janet Arvizo, were in that locker?

A. No, not back in February, March of 2003.

Q. Okay. Now, the prosecutor asked you questions about whether or not a private citizen has a right to record a telephone conversation if they think a crime is going to be committed, right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And in February and March of 2003, what was your knowledge about the right of a private citizen to record a conversation if they think a crime is going to be committed?

A. My knowledge of the Penal Code has always been that there is a code section in the Penal Code that allows a private citizen to do that if there are certain enumerated crimes that you expect to occur, and that you’re gathering evidence.

Q. And one of those crimes is extortion, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. If a private citizen reasonably believes someone might be attempting to commit extortion, they can, in fact, lawfully record a phone conversation without the other party’s consent, right?

A. That’s my understanding of the law. And I believe that there’s an addition to the code section that there is a specific case, although I don’t have access to Lexis right now - I do use Lexis, not West Law - and I would assume that I could find that case that also has interpreted that code section the same way.

Q. Now, you indicated that when you first were retained by Mr. Jackson, you did a quick search and learned about the J.C. Penney case filed by Janet Arvizo and her children, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you know at that point in time that Janet Arvizo was arrested that day?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I believe if it wasn’t that day, it was very shortly thereafter.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: During February and March of 2003, Mr. Geragos, did you think or reasonably suspect that the Arvizos might attempt to extort Michael Jackson?

A. That was exactly what my concern was.

Q. Did your knowledge of the J.C. Penney case cause you concern in that regard?

A. Combined with the fact that there had been an arrest, I thought that the fact that the civil lawsuit was being used to blunt the criminal case is what gave me great pause.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. The civil case appeared, at least, to be an outgrowth of a criminal incident, and I just had grave concerns about that.

Q. Are you suggesting that Miss Arvizo used a civil case to nullify her arrest?

A. That thought had crossed my mind.

Q. Have you seen that happen before?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever, in February and March of 2003, represent Marc Schaffel?

A. Not that I’m aware of. I don’t think I ever represented Marc Schaffel.

Q. In February and March of 2003, did you represent Dieter Weizner?

A. No.

Q. In February and March --

A. No.

Q. In February and March of 2003, did you represent Ron Konitzer?

A. No.

Q. In February and March of 2003, did you represent Frank Tyson?
A. No.
Q. In February and March of 2003, did you represent Vinnie Amen?
A. No.
Q. Now, in February and March of 2003, Mr. Geragos, did you ever give legal advice to Marc Schaffel?
A. No.
Q. In February and March of 2003, did you ever give legal advice to Dieter Weizner?
A. No.
Q. In February and March of 2003, did you ever give legal advice to Ron Konitzer?

A. To the extent that they would ask questions and I would -- Ronald would ask questions about specific things and whether they should do things, and I would say I want it run by me if it was -- for instance, they’re going to make a statement, or they’re going to issue some kind of a press release or something, I would say, “Please let me have some input into that.”
Q. Now, in February and March of 2003, did you ever give legal advice to Frank Tyson?
A. No.
Q. In February and March of 2003, did you ever give legal advice to Vinnie Amen?
A. No.
Q. Now, is the statute you’re referring to that allows a private citizen in California to secretly record a conversation if they think there’s a reasonable belief that extortion might happen, is that Penal Code 633.5?
A. I believe that it is, because I think the section that prohibits it is 632. So it would be my guess, at least, that it’s the 630 section or 633.
Q. And prior to February and March 2003, were you aware of instances where, in fact, private citizens have secretly recorded others who they thought were going to try to commit a crime?
A. Yes. In numerous instances.

Q. And in fact, private investigators sometimes do that if they think they’re going to get evidence of a crime, correct?

A. That’s as a private citizen. A private investigator has no more and no less rights than a private citizen. So I am aware of various private investigators doing that, only with the caveat that they have that expectation that a crime is going to be committed.

Q. Now, was there anything else about Janet Arvizo that made you suspicious that she might try to shake down Mr. Jackson other than what you’ve described?

A. Not other than what I’ve described to you and to Mr. Zonen.

Q. In February and March of 2003, did you have any personal knowledge that Janet Arvizo had told anyone that her husband came from a family of drug dealers?

A. No, not -- not that I remember.

Q. In February and March of 2003, did you have any knowledge of Janet Arvizo claiming that her husband was using all of their money on a drug habit?

A. No, I don’t believe so.

Q. In February and March of 2003, were you aware of any bank accounts Janet Arvizo had set up allegedly for the benefit of her son?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object unless counsel has a good-faith offer of proof that the answer is “yes.” Because otherwise it’s simply inadmissible questions.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I may answer?

THE COURT: Yeah.

THE WITNESS: I -- I believe that I had received information, but I don’t think that I was able to verify it in February or March. I had just, what I would call, suggestions that was the case. But I did not have anything to substantiate it.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, in February and March of 2003, Mr. Geragos, did you have any personal knowledge of Janet Arvizo trying to get money from various celebrities?

A. I -- not from celebrities. I had knowledge of her trying to get money from other people, but not from various celebrities.

Q. When you retained Brad Miller in February of 2003, was that your first effort to have an investigator investigate the Arvizos?

A. Do you mean had I used any other investigator prior to Brad?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I had not. I don’t believe I have used any other investigator in February.

Q. Okay. So Brad Miller was the first licensed investigator you ever retained to investigate the activities of the Arvizos?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you said that the period of surveillance and investigation by Mr. Miller was approximately 35 days; is that right?

A. Give or take. It was -- it started in February and it ended sometime in March.

Q. And to your knowledge, was Mr. Miller doing an investigation into public records involving Ms. Arvizo other than the J.C. Penney case?

A. Yes.

Q. What other public records do you believe he was examining as part of his investigation into the Arvizos in February and March of 2003?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Irrelevant; exceeds the scope of the cross.

MR. MESEREAU: I don’t think it does, Your Honor.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I believe that he had checked -- I mentioned before that he had checked what are called the civil indexes, which are a list of cases that people file in civil court. I believe he also checked the criminal indexes, and I believe he came up with various cases that she was listed as either a complaining witness or involved in one way or another or as a witness.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And did the information you were aware of in February and March of 2003 about the Arvizos and their record of civil litigation and noncivil litigation concern you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you believe that what you knew about the Arvizos in February of 2003 almost required you to put them under surveillance?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as speculative and argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In your experience, prior to February of 2003, when a lawyer like yourself is concerned about a client being extorted or shaken down, typically what does the lawyer do?

A. I know what I do in that situation, is I want to find out everything I can about the person who I’ve got concerns about. And if I think that I can -- that I’m going to get somewhere with having somebody check them out, I’ll have an investigator check them out. And I believe that any lawyer who gets hired by a client has an ethical obligation to do that.

Q. And in February and March of 2003, was it your understanding that putting someone under surveillance by a licensed private investigator was lawful?

A. To my understanding.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: The answer is in. The objection is overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In February and March of 2003, when you put the Arvizo family under surveillance through a licensed private investigator, was this the first time you had done such a thing?

A. That I had had somebody investigated and --

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Mr. Geragos, the prosecutor asked you questions about what you did with these passports when you located them, okay?

A. Yes.

Q. And what you did was, you had them lodged with this particular court, correct?

A. I told one of the lawyers in my office to take them to Judge Melville's court. I believe we prepared some kind of notice of lodging, and we notified the court of what we were doing, and it was lodged, I believe, with the clerk of the court.

Q. And that would be Judge Melville's court?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there any reason why you preferred giving those passports to Judge Melville rather than Janet Arvizo?

A. I believed that they were something that both -- either Mr. Sneddon or yourself would want for various reasons. I believed that based upon that, that they had evidentiary value. I believed that I had no business holding on to them myself, and I didn't want to put you in a position where you would have to be a witness and be conflicted out of the case.

So I made the decision, after consulting with numerous lawyers, that the best thing to do was to file them directly with the court, which I thought was my ethical -- also my ethical obligation.

Q. And when you did that, were the passports addressed to Judge Melville?

A. I believe -- I assume that the document is here. I believe a document was prepared by my office in connection with the lodging when it was filed. Either a notice of lodging or a notice of filing. I believe I saw something to that effect.

Q. Now, you knew when you lodged those passports with Judge Melville's court that Janet Arvizo wanted them, right?

A. Well, I would assume that those were things that would go to Janet Arvizo, Gavin, Star, and the daughter, yes.

Q. And my question is, were you concerned about what Ms. Arvizo or her attorney, Mr. Dickerman, might do with those passports?

A. Well, I knew that it was -- that it was not going to be a great situation when I filed it with the court. I wasn't happy that I was in that situation. I gave consideration, or at least thought about the idea of turning them over to Mr. Dickerman, but thought that it made more sense to do it with the Court so that there was at least a record that -- in the chain of custody, so to speak, so you could document where they were and what had happened.

I wasn't comfortable with the fact of giving them back to Mr. Dickerman. I thought that the thing to do, and several other lawyers that I talked to, that the thing to do was to lodge them with the court.

Q. Now, you indicated on cross-examination that you did not trust Mr. Dickerman, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Why?

A. Because I would get --

MR. ZONEN: I'll object as irrelevant.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: At the time you lodged those passports with this court, did you know whether or not Janet Arvizo was represented by Attorney Larry Feldman?

A. Yes, I did know that.

Q. Did you ever consider giving those passports to Attorney Larry Feldman?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; irrelevant.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: I have no further questions.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Did Mr. Miller tell you in advance that he was going to go ahead and pay a couple months' rent of Ms. Arvizo's?

A. I don't know. I can't tell you. I know that he paid the rent. I don't know if he told me after he did it or before.

Q. Would Mr. Miller be willing to pay my next month's mortgage?

A. I don't know. How big is your house?

Q. I live in Santa Barbara. It's small.

A. But I'm sure expensive.

Q. Mr. Geragos, did he talk with you at all in advance about the propriety of Michael Jackson's employees paying Miss Arvizo's rent?

A. Did who?

Q. Did Brad Miller speak with you in advance of paying that month's rent or two months' rent?

A. Mr. Zonen, my experience with Mr. Jackson is that this is a man with great --

Q. The question is, did Mr. Brad Miller speak with you in advance?

A. You asked me about the propriety of Mr. Jackson's employees.

Q. No, the question --

A. I was trying to answer that.

Q. -- is, did Mr. Brad Miller speak with you in advance of doing that?

A. The answer is the same one I gave you when you asked me the first time, which was I don't remember as I sit here if he told me before or after, but I know at some point I knew.

Q. When did you first learn about it?

A. I don't know. Sometime in February or March.

Q. What was Mr. Miller's explanation to you as to why he felt it was a good thing to do?

A. I don't know that I quizzed him on it.

Q. Now, you said that you wanted that videotape to be done in advance of the move-out of the apartment; is that right?

A. I wanted -- if he was going to move, I wanted him to videotape the move. I didn't feel comfortable having him handle her possessions because I thought she would come back later and make some accusation that something was taken out of there, or that she had some -- who knows? That there was going to be five refrigerators and a $10,000 stove.

Q. So you knew about this in advance of them moving her out of the apartment?

A. I knew that he was going to move her, because as I said before, I told him, “If you’re going to do that, you better videotape it.”

Q. And that means, yes, you knew in advance of them moving her out of the apartment, that she was going to do -- that they were going to do so in advance; is that right?

A. I knew that he was going to help her move, and I told him to videotape it.

Q. All right. And you knew that they had not yet commenced the move?

A. Well, I would assume that. Yes, I would assume that.

Q. So you still had the opportunity to tell Brad Miller, “What? Are you nuts? Don’t do anything for Janet Arvizo”?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll leave out the “Are you nuts?”

THE COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you tell Brad Miller, “Don’t do it. Don’t move her stuff. Don’t have anything to do with her”?

A. No.

Q. Did you tell him that you believed that she was ready to engage in a shakedown of Michael Jackson and you ought not be conducting any business with her or association with her?

A. No. On the contrary. I wanted to know what she was up to.

Q. Did Brad Miller tell you, up to that point, that she had ever said that she wanted money from Michael Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. For what?

A. She felt that she deserved money. She wanted -- you know, he was wealthy and she wanted money.

Q. How much?

A. I didn’t how much she wanted. I wasn’t going to -- I wasn’t going to recommend that my client pay the money.

Q. When did that conversation take place?

A. It would have been sometime shortly after we discovered that she had filed suit against J.C. Penney.

Q. Then why did you tell him to go ahead and proceed and move her stuff out of the apartment?

A. I did not want him to lose track of her. I didn't want her to go into the ether, because I was afraid that she would do exactly what she ended up doing in this case, which is get into the hands of a lawyer who would refer her to a psychiatrist, and all of a sudden we'd get a false accusation.

Q. Now, you've looked at that videotape, haven't you, the videotape of the move?

A. I know it exists. I don't know that I -- no, I don't think I've sat down and documented the videotape.

Q. Mr. Geragos, would you be surprised to learn that that videotape does not show the items being removed from the house?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I would be surprised that he took a videotape of not moving after I told him to take a videotape of moving the items or documenting what the items were.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did he ever tell you what the videotape was of?

A. Yes, the items that were placed into storage.

Q. All right. Did he tell you that, in fact, that videotape was of them cleaning an empty apartment; that that's what it was of?

A. I think that he -- I don't know that it was cleaning. I think he wanted to show what the condition of the apartment was after the move.

Q. Did you ask -- so there's another videotape?

A. I think it's all one -- one videotape. The videotape is of documenting of the items is what I was told, and what the place looked like after the items were out.

Q. Do you believe that there exists today a videotape of them documenting the items from Janet Arvizo’s apartment?

A. I believe that the video -- that there is a videotape and that the videotape is of the items.

Q. Did they do a written inventory of the items that they moved from her apartment?

A. I don’t know if they did or if the moving place did. I couldn’t tell you.

Q. Did you ask them to get on videotape Janet Arvizo specifically making that request to have her things moved from that apartment?

A. No, I don’t think I told him that.

Q. You now believe that Brad Miller is a liar, don’t you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Argumentative; no foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ever ask Brad Miller why he arranged to have the DCFS interview tape-recorded?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Misstates the evidence; foundation; personal knowledge; and beyond the scope; vague as to time.

THE COURT: I’m thinking. There’s a lot of material.

The objection’s overruled.

THE WITNESS: I don’t believe he was the one who did it. I think that Asaf did it, if I’m not mistaken. I don’t think Mr. Miller was there at the DCFS.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ever ask Brad Miller if he was aware of the fact that Asaf was going to do it?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague as to time.

MR. ZONEN: At the time it was done.

MR. MESEREAU: Beyond the scope; relevance.

THE COURT: Sustained. It really is beyond the scope.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ever direct Brad Miller to have Janet Arvizo sign a letter that said she wanted her things moved out of that apartment?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Beyond the scope; relevance; foundation.

MR. ZONEN: I’m sorry?

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. Do you want the question read back?

THE WITNESS: No, I remember it. I don’t know. I don’t know if I did or not.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You knew during February and March of 2003 that Janet Arvizo had a prior lawsuit, true?

A. I knew that she had filed a lawsuit, yes.

Q. You knew during February and March of 2003 that she had been arrested?

A. I knew that there was a criminal index with some hits involving her.

Q. You were very concerned about her involvement with Michael Jackson, true?

A. I had concerns, yes.

Q. You contacted Michael Jackson’s employees, the ones that were closest to him, and told them of your concerns about Janet Arvizo; is that true?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Beyond the scope; foundation; vague as to time.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that true?

A. No, that isn’t true the way you phrased it.

Q. Did you contact Marc Schaffel and express to him your concern about Janet Arvizo?

A. Actually, I was concerned about Schaffel.

Q. Did you contact Ronald Konitzer and tell him your concerns about Janet Arvizo?

A. I probably would have told Ronald about my concerns on one of the -- on one of our phone calls, yes.

Q. During any of those phone calls, did he then tell you that they’re sending Janet Arvizo to Brazil?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Beyond the scope; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don’t believe he told me that, no.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ask Ronald Konitzer to tell you if Gavin Arvizo moved back into Michael Jackson’s bedroom?

A. No, I did not tell him to tell me that.

Q. Did you have a conversation with Michael Jackson about the Brazil trip?

A. No.

MR. ZONEN: I have no further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

THE COURT: You may step down.

Oh. I think there was an issue you wanted me to take up.

MR. ZONEN: I’m sorry?

THE COURT: Mr. Zonen, you want the witness to remain?

MR. ZONEN: If he could, yes.

THE COURT: (To the jury) I’ll excuse you for today. And we’ll see you Monday at 8:30.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE WITNESS: Do you want me to remain here?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I know the Court’s preference is to have these matters done in writing in advance, but we’re approaching the end of this trial rapidly. I believe the defense has indicated they might be resting as early as next Tuesday.

Given the waiver of both work product and attorney-client privilege, as to Mr. Geragos’s file and the comments as to representation of the defendant and the testimony today, we would make a demand at this time orally, if the Court will entertain that, for the production of all e-mails between Brad Miller and Mr. Geragos, as well as any notes in his file for that period of time dealing with communications between this witness, Mr. Geragos, and Mr. Jackson, Mr. Konitzer, Mr. Weizner, Mr. Amen and Mr. Schaffel and Mr. Cascio, as well as the computer files that have been previously the subject of litigation from Brad Miller's office that were previously determined to be inaccessible because of the existence of that privilege.

We believe now that those files should be turned over to us, at least for that period of time, subject to this waiver.

THE COURT: And I think the -- now that you have the waiver, all that work we did on those computer hard drives, based on the privilege which he subsequently waived, should be turned over.

MR. SANGER: The -- let me use the mike for just a second.

I just want the Court's ruling to -- I want to clarify the Court's ruling. On Mr. Miller's hard drive, there were communications with Mr. Geragos --

THE COURT: On another case, other cases.

No, I'm not ordering you to turn that over. Just on this case.

MR. SANGER: Okay. And you are asking that we turn it over?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: Turn it over, say, by 5 p.m. tomorrow, Saturday.

MR. SANGER: Yeah, for the -- for the period of time of the waiver. I don't think there are any outside of the period.

THE COURT: For the period of the waiver, right.

MR. ZONEN: If we could have that by 5 p.m. tomorrow.

THE COURT: Yes, that's the order.

I don't think -- I think that takes care of it. I don't think I order --

MR. ZONEN: Does that include the e-mail communications as well?

THE COURT: The e-mails, that's primarily what was on that material.

I'm not going to limit it to the e-mails, but obviously on a hard drive between -- that was primarily what was there was e-mails. And I don't know what other material was there. But any other material that you held back because of the privilege between Mr. Geragos, Brad Miller and Mr. Jackson, you should release.

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir. I think there was a Word Perfect document, not to get back into that.

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. ZONEN: I wonder how we'll ever access it. No, we'll figure it out.

THE COURT: I'm not going to order Mr. Geragos to do that.

THE WITNESS: Could I interject that my only concern is that there's -- if there is any e-mail that contains any information related to this case and if it's related to any other case --

THE COURT: Well, we know that.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

THE COURT: We are very familiar. You know, you don't know this, but we've had -- well, maybe you do, but we had a couple -- we had an expert go through the computer hard drives with some software that doesn't disturb anything in the drive. It's really unique. And then we had a special master review all of the files and segregate out privileged documents. And then we had Mr. Jackson's team review that before what remained was turned over. So there's -- every effort to protect your clients has been followed.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I think what he's referring to -- I'll just remain seated here and talk into this if that's all right.

I think what he's referring to are there are some e-mails that refer to more than one case, so we would redact the part that refers to other cases.

THE COURT: Exactly.

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: Okay. Then to the extent that that's what you're asking, I grant that. And we have that straight. To the extent that you're asking me to order Mr. Geragos to turn over something, I'm not going to do that.

MR. ZONEN: As long the representation is that they're in possession of what Mr. Geragos has, then I’m happy with it coming from the defense.

THE COURT: Well, I’m not -- what we know that they have is what you seized under search warrants of --

MR. ZONEN: That’s fine. That’s fine.

THE COURT: All right. Then you may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you. May I be excused?

MR. ZONEN: Then, like the other witnesses, this witness is not excused?

THE COURT: You’re not excused. You’ll remain on call until the case is complete.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. The next issue you wanted to take up was the -- which witness was it?

MR. SANGER: Mr. Amen. I didn’t know if you were looking at us, but the Vinnie Amen --

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: -- issue.

THE COURT: Here’s my thoughts on this one: It appears that the -- Mr. Amen did get a use immunity to talk to the District Attorney as it relates to just what happens in their office. They couldn’t use that to prosecute him, or any of the fruit of that interview could not be used to prosecute him if they later decided to prosecute him.

It’s not an immunity that extends to anything that he says in the courtroom, and it’s not an immunity that protects him except for what he said to them in their office.

Absent an application by the District Attorney to the Court to grant him immunity, I am without power to grant him immunity on my own. Under the code, it’s a procedure that the District Attorney has the sole right to institute. If he institutes it, then I have some discretion. But absent that, I can’t institute it, so he is not protected.

I’ll reiterate, he is not protected if called for anything he says here. So if -- if you call him and he claims the privilege, then he would not be compelled to answer questions under the Fifth Amendment. If you called him and asked him questions, and he didn’t claim the privilege, but then the District Attorney called him -- or cross-examined him, excuse me, and he claimed the privilege, then we’d be somewhat back in the position we were with some of the other witnesses. And so somewhere I would have to -- that leaves us with the remedies we had before. You know, either strike his testimony or make him claim the privilege in front of the jury, or, you know, there’s -- all the same things. Now we’ve had three or four witnesses that present this issue from, it seems like, a different angle every time.

MR. SANGER: I think there’s a little different angle here and I’d like to discuss that.

THE COURT: I’m sure there is a little different angle, and I’ll let you speak to that. Just let me make sure I’ve finished saying what I was going to say.

Anyway, so the bottom line, I guess, is, we would have to have some indication from him before I let him testify in front of the jury as to what his position on his testimony was going to be.

Now, what do you want to say about that special angle?

MR. SANGER: Well, I think this is a little bit of a different angle, and therefore I’d -- I don’t know if that was the Court’s ruling or a tentative.

THE COURT: No, no, I said that’s where I’m going, you know.

MR. SANGER: All right. Fine.

THE COURT: You’re not prevented from trying to show -- persuade me otherwise.

MR. SANGER: I think the different angle is this, Your Honor: That basically the California Supreme Court has left the door open, because we like that reference, to the possibility that there might be a case in which immunity could be granted by the Court where the prosecution has not stepped forward and requested it.

And I know that the weight of the authority, or the number of cases that are floating around in various jurisdictions and a couple of DCA cases, tend to indicate that there is no such thing as defense immunity. But -- or defense-requested immunity for a witness. But the reason I think this might be the case that the Supreme Court had in mind or would have left the door open for is that here we have an actual grant of immunity.

Now, you recall that Mr. Auchincloss represented to this Court that absolutely nothing ever happened, and that whatever happened happened before the tape was turned on, and the officer got it wrong, and the officer didn’t understand things. And lo and behold, we got the tape, and he very clearly says, “That’s the agreement.” And his words include, “In California, we call it use immunity. So nothing you say in this interview can be used against you, and we can’t use the fruits,” et cetera, et cetera.

Now, I understand the Court’s distinction, that that doesn’t say that, “When you testify or if you testify, we will ask the Court for immunity at that time.” That is generally what happens. A witness gives a statement to the prosecution under immunity. They like it; they come in and they ask for immunity, put the person on the stand and get the benefit of it.

What happened in this case invokes this small exception that I think the Supreme Court would acknowledge is appropriate. What happened in this case is you have a witness who’s debriefed for -- I believe it’s like four hours, maybe over four hours, on tape. He is asked every imaginable question about this case. He is the witness who was with Janet Arvizo more than anybody else, according to the testimony we have here.

And he answers the questions about what happened. “What happened when you went to get the passports? What happened? Did she want to go Brazil?” All those questions are answered and they are answered in a way that is consistent with the defense position and inconsistent with Janet Arvizo’s position.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Your Honor, I’m going to object to the description of the facts. That’s a matter that is of some contention between the parties.

THE COURT: I understand. But I don’t know what -- I haven’t heard the tape, so I can’t rule on your objection.

Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: And the point is, and the Court has -- I don’t know if the Court wants to spend four hours listening to it. The Court has the tape.

THE COURT: Oh, thank you.

MR. SANGER: I evidently have something to do before Saturday at five o’clock myself, so I thought the Court should as well.

The point of the story is that you have a key witness in a case, who not only -- let us assume -- so I don’t get in an argument with Mr. Auchincloss, let us assume that his version of events is consistent -- it’s Brady material, in essence. It’s consistent with the weight of the witnesses who have testified, with the exception of Janet Arvizo and her children. And primarily Janet Arvizo, who testifies to all sorts of things that are not consistent with anybody else.

They take that witness and they say, “Well, it was Brady material. We got to turn it over to you, but ha-ha, we are now going to revoke our agreement to grant immunity. We’re not going to give this person immunity.”

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Object to this characterization. May I make an objection?

THE COURT: What?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Just that that characterization is completely inaccurate. We are not revoking the informal immunity for this witness for that day’s interview.

THE COURT: I understand that. That’s correct.

MR. SANGER: So they say, “Okay. We are not going to take the next step and call you as a witness in court and give you immunity. We now know that your testimony is exculpatory, so we are going to make it impossible for the defense to present exculpatory evidence to the jury.”

Now, this is different than the cases that are cited. Because most of the cases that are cited are cases in which, for instance, the defense is trying to call a witness who has not been interviewed by the prosecution, or it’s a witness who is a witness on a collateral matter. It’s not a witness who has been given immunity to talk to the prosecution first.

That’s why this is different. He was talked to. He was debriefed for four hours. And he gives exculpatory evidence. And now they say, “You can’t use it.”

It was the prosecution who decided to call Mr. Amen an unindicted co-conspirator. It’s the prosecution that decided to present him as a criminal wrongdoer, unindicted though he may be, in the eyes of the jury. It’s the prosecution that interviewed him. It’s the prosecution that chose to give him immunity. And then it’s the prosecution that says, “King’s X, we’re not going to let the jury find out what he really has to say.”

THE COURT: Let me ask you a question. I don’t know what the tape says, and I understand just from listening to the two of you that there’s, surprisingly, a disagreement over the content.

But let me assume for a moment that you’re correct, that he tells the series of events exactly what happened from his standpoint, and it in fact supports your position that no crime’s been committed in the conspiracy, which is the crime we’re talking about on all of the elements, all of the various variations. And that the reason the District Attorney doesn’t want to call him is because, in fact, he doesn’t verify the criminal activities of your client or anyone else.

So why would that person just not take the witness stand, testify, and not claim the Fifth Amendment since he’s not admitting to any crime? He’s only telling the truth and, in fact, verifying, as you point out, what everybody else except Janet Arvizo says.

MR. SANGER: We would very much like him to do that. I think that in the real world -- as the Court knows, in the real world, a lawyer is going to advise him, and the lawyer has advised him. Everybody’s dealing with his lawyer here. The lawyer’s advised him that he cannot testify. He is being accused of being an unindicted co-conspirator in a very serious case.

THE COURT: But they can’t prosecute him for anything they learned. And if he says the same thing here, they can’t prosecute him, can they? Because they have given him use immunity.

MR. SANGER: Well, if the Court takes that position, I think he would come and testify.

THE COURT: If --

MR. SANGER: But I think --

THE COURT: If he says -- your position would be if he says the same thing that he told them, that they gave him use immunity for, only he says it in a different room, the use immunity fails. Is that what your position is?

MR. SANGER: No. Quite to the contrary. My position is they’ve given him immunity, and he should be allowed to testify.

THE COURT: No, no, no.

MR. SANGER: I understand what Your Honor said. They just got through saying -- Mr. Auchincloss just got through saying it was only for the conversation in the room.

THE COURT: Okay. Let me talk to him, then. If he testifies and says the same thing that he told you, let’s say he doesn’t deviate from what he told you under the use immunity --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: In this courtroom?

THE COURT: If he says it in this courtroom, you could prosecute him?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes. And here’s the reason: The use immunity statute provides the prosecution with discretion as to when and where and how it’s going to ask for immunity. In virtually every criminal case, the process -- and, you know, virtually every, most criminal cases, the process involves a proffer, involves coming into the office, talking to that witness, assessing the credibility, checking the facts against what they say, having the District Attorney determine whether this witness is going to be accurate, is going to be telling the truth, is going to be a fit witness in the case to present the facts to the jury.

And when the District Attorney makes that determination, then it’s appropriate for the District Attorney to come into court and petition the Court for immunity, testimonial immunity, which is a completely different creature. Both sides going at it, objections. It’s just a different thing than an informal interview. And a proffer is made to the District Attorney as far as what he’s going to be saying or what he might have to say about the facts of that case.

And we provided authority that immunity agreements can be fashioned in a variety of ways, and limitations can be presented, provided for, in those immunity agreements. And it’s clear, even from the tape, and while I did tell you there was another discussion that occurred prior to us going onto the tape, but even that little brief colloquy that refers to the discussion that we obviously had just had talks about “today,” “what’s said here today,” specifically.

So, no, the immunity does not extend to trial immunity, immunity in the court, testimonial immunity and a formal grant of immunity.

THE COURT: What about the --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Just a moment. I’m sorry.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, Mr. Sneddon wanted me to just make sure that I told -- that I communicated to you that we believe that if Mr. Amen takes the stand and incriminates himself, he will not be protected. That the immunity -- he does not have immunity from what he says on the stand in this case.

THE COURT: I understood that.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I thought you did. Thank you. Is there another question you had?

THE COURT: Yes. Counsel suggested that the Supreme Court has hinted that there's a unique case where the Court could grant immunity without you asking me for it. What do you think of that?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I think that this Court in this case should not go where any court has gone before.

THE COURT: Where any court has not gone before.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yeah.

THE COURT: I've been doing that for --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Don't go where any court has gone before.

THE COURT: I thought that's what I've been doing here for the last few months.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That may be. That may be. I don't think this is the case where the Court should attempt to make new law.

THE COURT: Do you believe that's possible, though, that they --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: No, I don't. It's dicta, and the overwhelming weight of authority is that this is a statutory discretion that the prosecutor has.

THE COURT: All right. Well, I am not going to strike out on that trail. So....

MR. SANGER: Then I have another question in that regard.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: The Court may sense I have a deep belief that this anomaly in the law or what's unresolved in the law results in a true injustice in a criminal case. That bothers me.

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: It would seem to me that another remedy the Court could fashion, the Court having turned down our request that this be clarified, that this man has immunity if he comes in and testifies to the same things he testified or he talked about in the D.A.'s Office, if the Court's turned that down, then --

THE COURT: I turn that down.

MR. SANGER: -- I would suggest that he is now unavailable as a witness. He has been made unavailable by the acts of the District Attorney, and that we should be allowed to -- assuming he comes in here and says he's taking the Fifth, that makes him unavailable. Not in front of the jury necessarily, but that we then be allowed to play his tape as the statement of a witness who's unavailable. It is a tape that was not created in an adversary situation, but it is a tape that was created based on the questioning of one of the prosecutors seated at this very table and two police officers, a lieutenant and a sergeant. And they had adequate opportunity to confront and cross-examine him and they conducted an extensive interview. There is no harm to the prosecution in allowing that. He's unavailable. I think we should be allowed to do it.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I can address that if you need to hear from me.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, that doesn't satisfy the former testimony exception to the hearsay rule. It's not former testimony. And there is no exception. Moreover, this particular type of testimony, I don't want to probably even have to go there, but Crawford deals with the issue of a police interview coming in as testimony. So --

THE COURT: It does when the District Attorney introduces it, but does Crawford -- Crawford's about the right of the defendant to have cross-examination, not the People.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I agree. I agree. But really the main point is, I mean, I think that an argument could be made that Crawford has applicability. We don't even need to get there. The point is, this is not -- there is no exception to the hearsay rule.

THE COURT: This is not prior --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It’s not former testimony under cross-examination from both sides. Thank you.

MR. SANGER: And the Court is correct, Crawford is a confrontation clause case, which is a defendant’s right. Has nothing to do with this.

THE COURT: Well, it does have something to do with it if he -- if the District Attorney attempted to --

MR. SANGER: Yeah.

THE COURT: -- introduce his -- instead of you being the person who suggested that, they had suggested it, Crawford would apply. Because if you had called him and he answered some questions, and then they asked him some questions and he claims the Fifth, and then they said, “Well, Judge, we’ve got this statement,” then you would be screaming Crawford, right?

MR. SANGER: Well, confrontation clause, which is the defendant’s right, but not a People’s right.

THE COURT: Yeah, it’s --

MR. SANGER: But I would suggest, though, since we’re musing as the day goes on here --

THE COURT: Yeah, we’re wasting --

MR. SANGER: And it was my day. But that’s all right. This is important.

THE COURT: You’re right, this was your day.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It was all of our day.

MR. SANGER: I think it is important. The true hypothetical would be that the defendant makes a long, detailed statement, and then deliberately makes the person unavailable.

THE COURT: Or even doesn’t deliberately. Just -- they become unavailable.

MR. SANGER: Well, I think --

THE COURT: You want to say they’re deliberately making him --

MR. SANGER: They’re deliberately making him unavailable.

THE COURT: Go ahead. I see the scenario.

MR. SANGER: Without going into all the details, but, I mean, he explained what was happening at Schaffel's house, who he was working for, he was working for Schaffel, why he rented a car, what he was told to do.

THE COURT: I know.

MR. SANGER: Everything is there. It's everything the jury wants to know about this case that they haven't heard, and fills in all the spaces between the other legitimate witnesses in this case.

THE COURT: Yeah. But truthfully or not truthfully, we don't know the answer to that.

All right. That's my ruling on that issue.

It is a -- it's really a pleasure for a judge to be dealing with both sides who are dealing with very difficult issues and sometimes not resolved. In this case, we've had several situations where we're just dealing with things that there's no law on, and it's a pleasure to see the quality of work that you turn out. It really helps me.

Thank you. See you Monday.

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.
THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.
COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Call your next witness, please.
MR. SANGER: We would call Maria Gomez back to the stand, please.

THE COURT: All right. Come forward to the witness stand. You're still under oath, so when you get to the witness stand, you may be seated.

MR. SANGER: May I proceed, Your Honor?

THE COURT: You may.

MARIA GOMEZ

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Okay. Miss Gomez, we've called you back to the stand to ask you more questions. First of all, did you participate in a test of the bells at Neverland outside Mr. Jackson's private suite?

A. Yes.

Q. And first of all, remind us how long you've worked out there at Neverland.

A. I have worked there nearly 11 years.

Q. And when was the first time you went down that hallway and heard the bells go off?

A. When the first time was?

Q. Sure. About how many months or years ago was that when you first heard those bells go off?

A. Oh, many years ago.

Q. Okay. And it would have been before February of 2003; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And has the -- excuse me one second. At the time you did this alarm test, or this -- let me withdraw that, I'm sorry. At the time you did this test with Mr. Nimmer where you walked in and out, do you remember that?

A. Yes, that was about, I don't know exactly, but just a few days ago.

Q. Okay. Sometime this year, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. When you heard the bells at that time, is that what the bells have always sounded like over the last few years?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I'd like to have permission to play the -- Exhibit 5096. It's the short one, if that's all right.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: I can't find the remote control. Do you see it? Oh, here it is. Thank you.

Q. Miss Gomez, we're going to play 5096 and I'm just going to ask you to watch it and see if you recognize yourself in there and recognize what was going on, and then I'm going to ask you some questions about it after it's over, okay?

A. Fine.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Defendant's Exhibit 5096, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. SANGER: With the Court's permission, I'm going to stop it after the first test to ask some questions.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Miss Gomez, you recognize yourself in that film?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And you remember Mr. Nimmer, the man who was shooting this?

A. Yes.

Q. What were you asked to do in that particular test?

A. I was supposed to walk outside to a -- like a hallway that's right in front of the house, and that I should walk all the way in to the room, passing by the doors. I had to punch in the code and then I could open the door.

Q. Okay. So when you -- when you went out, you went all the way down the hallway to the end of the hallway that's near the front door; is that right?

A. Yes. Outside of the house, yes.

Q. All right. So did you actually go out of the hallway into the front door area?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you know anything about the technology of how this alarm system is set up?

A. No. No, I don't know anything about that.

Q. Is there some point when you're walking down the hall that it makes the bell ring?

A. Yes, when you reach about halfway down the hallway, it begins to ring.

Q. All right. And then it continues to ring for a number of rings; is that right?

A. It will stop for a few moments and then when you arrive at the door, I don't know if it's stepping into the lift or -- it begins again.

Q. All right. Now, the sound that you heard on that tape, is that the sound of the alarm that you have heard for the last few years?

A. Yes.

Q. Are there any changes to it that you know of?

A. No.

MR. SANGER: All right. I'm going to resume playing this, if it's all right, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Defendant's Exhibit 5096, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. SANGER: Let me just pause it right there.

Q. There's a door down at the bottom of the stairway there.

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And the door appears to be open right now; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you do a test where you left that door open?

A. Once.

Q. Okay. And then the second time you closed the door; is that right?

A. When I went out, I closed it.

MR. SANGER: All right. And I'm going to resume playing.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Defendant's Exhibit 5096, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. I'm going to pause it right there on the blank screen.
And for that test, you went down the stairs, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You went out the door, we could see, at the bottom of the stairs?

A. Yes.
Q. And then you went out the main door to Mr. Jackson's suite?
A. Yes, it's all in the same process. I went all the way out.
Q. So then you went all the way down the hall, out the end of the hall, turned around and walked back; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And you could hear the bell in that tape, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And that's the same bell that you've heard for years; is that right?
A. It's the same -- it's the same bell.
MR. SANGER: All right. Okay. And then we'll resume, if we may.
(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Defendant's Exhibit 5096, was played for the Court and jury.)
MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you.
Q. On that last test, you did the very same thing that you did the time before except you closed the door at the bottom; is that right?
A. Yes, that's the only different thing.
Q. All right. And let me ask you, did you do this a whole bunch of times or did you just do it these three times?

A. I did it, not very many times, but....
Q. So when -- I'm talking about when they filmed it. Did Mr. Nimmer film it more than three times or he just had you do the three tests and he filmed what you did?
A. He filmed it -- well, the first one he did it once, the first time. And then the other times, like when I went up to the room, since he did two different tests, perhaps he taped more than one.

Q. Okay. So he did the first one, the second one and the third one?

A. Yes. Yes.

MR. SANGER: All right. Okay. I have no further questions. Thank you.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. How many times did you go up and down the stairs?

A. I cannot recall, but at that I did do more. Three or four times.

Q. So we saw two times on the film, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. But there were other times that did not appear on the film?

A. Maybe one or two times, I believe.

Q. In each time you walked out of the doors of the room, you walked all the way to the end of the hallway, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then you turned around -- you went through the doors, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you turned around and came right back, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So in each of the occasions that we saw on the film, you did exactly the same thing?

A. In the first -- the first test, I just got to the point and then returned. And then when I went up the stairs to the room, I waited -- I counted to about 15 and then I repeated the process. I came back.

Q. And where was it that you counted to 15?

A. In front of the main doorway.

Q. So you go all the way out, count to 15, and then come back?

A. Yes.
Q. The chimes that go off, you can hear them when you go through the first door to begin your route down the hallway, correct?
A. What do you mean, when you’re just about to go in?
Q. Okay. You’re outside of the hallway to Mr. Jackson’s room, near the entrance of the front door of the house, correct?

A. I am inside the house by the doorway to the main residence.
Q. Correct. And you’re going to go through the first set of doors heading towards Mr. Jackson’s bedroom?
A. Yes.
Q. And when you go through those doors the bells, the chimes, go off, correct?
A. When you reach about halfway down the hall.
Q. And then they stop -- well, and then the second set of chimes goes off right before you get to Mr. Jackson’s door to his bedroom?
A. When you go in the doorway, the door to his room, then they begin to sound.
Q. For the second time?
A. Yes. I don’t know if it’s because you’re standing by the lift or when you press the code or what it is.
Q. Now, during the year -- during the time of February and March of 2003, were you responsible for cleaning Mr. Jackson’s room?
A. No.
Q. During February and March of 2003, did you go into Mr. Jackson’s room for any reason?
A. No.
Q. In -- were you at work the day that the sheriff’s deputies came to the ranch and executed the search warrant?

A. Yes.
Q. And that was November of 2003, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And at that time were you responsible for cleaning Mr. Jackson’s room?

A. No.

Q. Had you gone into Mr. Jackson’s room during 2003 at all?

A. No.

Q. In 2004, the next year - okay? --

A. Yes.

Q. -- were you responsible for cleaning Mr. Jackson’s room at that time?

A. I have never been in that position.

Q. And during 2004, did you ever go into Mr. Jackson’s bedroom?

A. Perhaps.

Q. Do you remember -- let’s go back to 2003. Do you remember during 2003 whether both of those chimes were working?

A. Yes.

Q. And if you didn’t go into Mr. Jackson’s bedroom during that time, what were you doing going down the hallway?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Argumentative as phrased.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Could you repeat that again?

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Yes. You told the jury that during 2003, you did not go into Mr. Jackson’s bedroom.

A. Yes.

Q. And I’m asking you, if you did not go into his bedroom, why would you be in the hallway leading to his bedroom?

A. There is a bathroom in that hallway.

Q. Okay.

A. And that hallway is our responsibility to clean. And then -- and then when one is walking in that hallway, you will hear the chimes.

Q. Okay. That’s what I wanted to get to.

Now, during 2003 you did clean that bathroom, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And when you do that, the alarm only goes off once, correct, when you go through the first set of doors?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Misstates the evidence and compound.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: It -- it rings -- I don’t know. It will ring and then it stops.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: During 2003, in November, when the sheriff’s deputies came to Mr. Jackson’s ranch, is it your testimony that the alarm through the first set of doors was working?

A. Yes.

Q. And in December of 2004, do you recall sheriff’s deputies coming back to Mr. Jackson’s main residence on another occasion?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were there?

A. Yes.

Q. And is it your testimony that the chimes at the first set of doors were working during December of 2004?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. Nothing further.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. I believe you said that the alarm goes off the first time when you’re just about the middle of the hallway; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And this is a hallway that has a lot of stuff in it; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And you need to dust and clean in there; is that correct?

A. Yes, we are responsible for that place.

Q. All right. So aside from the bathroom that’s off that hallway, you need to go down the hallway to Mr. Jackson's door and dust and do things, right?

A. Yes.

Q. So the alarm that we heard is the same alarm that you've heard for years in that hallway; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And you were just asked by Mr. Nimmer to help him by walking, right?

A. Yes.

Q. This was not your idea to be in this, was it?

A. Oh, no. No, no.

MR. SANGER: All right. Your Honor, what I'd like to do is play Exhibit 345, which is already in evidence, and this was the People's version of the alarm that they taped on November 18, 2003.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: If I may play that.

I'm going to play that in one second, and when I do, I'm simply going to ask that you watch this and then -- I'll play this one all the way through. It's very short. And when we get through playing it, then I'll ask you a few questions about it, okay? And I don't believe you were there at the time, so I'm just going to ask you to watch it.

(Whereupon, a DVD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 345, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Now, that's a very short film there, and we don't know exactly where the cameraman was on that picture. Did you hear a bell in that?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that the first bell or the second bell; do you know?

A. The second bell.

Q. All right. So the first bell would have already gone off from somebody going through the middle of the hallway?

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Calls for a conclusion and speculation as to that point in time.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Did you hear the bell that goes off when you go through the middle of the hallway in that tape?

A. I wasn’t present at that time.

MR. SANGER: Okay. All right. Okay. I have no further questions.

MR. SNEDDON: No questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

Call your next witness.

MR. SANGER: Can I just have one second, Your Honor?

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: May we approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

MR. SANGER: All right. My apologies, Your Honor. As the Court knows, we’re all getting down to the end here, so we’ve got a few details to work out.

We would call Mr. Radakovich, whose name I probably mispronounced. I apologize in advance.

THE COURT: Come forward, please. When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing. Face the clerk over here, raise your right hand.

MIKE RADAKOVICH

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Mike Radakovich. R-a-d-a-k-o-v-i-c-h.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

//

//

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Okay. I did mispronounce your name, but you weren’t in the room so you didn’t hear it.

Mr. Radakovich, what do you do for a living?

A. I’m a certified public accountant.

Q. How long have you done that?

A. Around 30 years.

Q. All right. And where do you have your office?

A. In San Luis Obispo, California.

Q. And do you work in this area, in the Santa Maria area as well?

A. Yes, I’ve testified both in Santa Maria and San Luis Obispo County.

Q. In addition to doing forensic work, which is testifying in court, do you do ordinary CPA-type duties?

A. Yes, I do.

MR. SANGER: All right. I’m going to -- maybe I should have this marked first, Your Honor, as defense next in order. I’m going to ask that a chart, an analysis chart, be marked, and my guess is that would be 5105.

May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I’m going to -- I’m going to show you 5105 for identification and ask you if you prepared that chart?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you prepare that chart after reviewing certain documents?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. All right. Now, I’m going to show you what’s been marked for identification as 5097, which appears to be a Washington Mutual Bank statement, and also 5098, which appears to be a Washington Mutual Bank copy of a cashier’s check.

May I approach for that purpose?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Can I see that?

MR. SANGER: Yeah.

Q. Okay. Now I’m showing you those two documents.

And for the record, Your Honor, those have been retrieved from subpoenaed documents from Washington National Bank. I believe counsel's indicated they have no objection to the foundation as being subpoenaed business records.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That's correct.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Were those two of the documents that you looked at in the course of preparing your analysis sheet?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Now, on your analysis sheet, there are two entries at the very beginning that indicate "Date" and "Source," and the "Source" on those first two entries are "Louise Palanker" and the amounts on those two entries are $10,000 apiece. Do you see those?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you reviewed copies of those checks; is that correct?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And you put those on your analysis sheet, correct?

A. Correct. Those are two checks. One was written to Ms. Janet Arvizo and one was to Mr. David Arvizo.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Your Honor, I'm going to object to statements being read from this report and --

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Can't hear you, sir.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object to statements being read into the record from this report, as well as referencing this document as an analysis before there is some foundation laid as to its admissibility on the basis of hearsay, authentication and relevance.

MR. SANGER: I don't think I asked him, Your Honor, to read from the report. I just asked him if he made an entry as to two checks.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I believe counsel has already read the first two entries to the witness.

THE COURT: So I think what -- your objection is that the items are not in evidence yet?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: They're not in evidence and no foundation has been laid.
MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I believe they are in evidence. I believe these were admitted in evidence by the prosecution some time ago.
THE COURT: What number?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm not referring to the items. I'm referring to this document that counsel is reading from. My foundation and hearsay --
THE COURT: That's the question. What I need to know is are they in evidence.
MR. SANGER: The two Palanker checks are in evidence, Your Honor. And I know you're going to ask me the number and I don't have the number off the top of my head.
THE COURT: That's all right. Do both sides agree they're in evidence?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes, I believe those two documents are in evidence, those two checks.
THE COURT: Your objection is overruled.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: So now we go down to -- so, before we go down there, as to those two checks, did you simply record, from the information on the checks, the date, the source, the amount, and a brief description?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. All right. Now we're going to go down to 11515 the next lines and we'll try to take these all at once. They would be the next five lines. And those appear to be references to deposits in the Washington Mutual account.
A. Yes, those are the same deposits that appear on this bank statement that you handed me, Exhibit No. 5097, as being deposits into that Washington Mutual account.
Q. So 5097 appears to be a bank statement; is that correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And that bank statement is from what bank?

A. Washington Mutual Bank.

Q. And who is the account holder?

A. The name at the top of the statement is Janet Arvizo, FBO Gavin Anton Arvizo.

Q. What does FBO mean?

A. My understanding, that's "for the benefit of."

Q. That's an account that Janet Arvizo -- under ordinary banking practices, Janet Arvizo would have the ability to sign on and she is putting it in the form that it's for the benefit of somebody else; is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. Now, from that exhibit, 50 -- which exhibit was that? 5097?

A. The bank statement is 5097, yes.

Q. Yeah. From 5097, did you record the date of the various deposits?

A. Yes, sir. Those appear in the column headed "Date."

Q. And then we'll skip "Source" for a second. Under "amount," you indicated the amounts that were deposited into the account; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And then you have, under "Description," "Deposit into" that particular bank account number, "Janet Arvizo, FBO Gavin Anton Arvizo," correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. Now, the source says, "Fund-raiser." Were you asked to assume that there had been testimony in this case that moneys were deposited in that account from fund-raisers?

A. Yes, that was my assumption.

Q. Okay. So between that assumption and what you saw on Exhibit 5097, the next five entries would be correct; is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object to foundation as to the source and assumptions made by the witness regarding specifics -- specific sources for these five deposits. I don't think there's been any testimony concerning those specific deposits and the sources.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: There was testimony that this account was set up by Janet Arvizo; that she had set up an account and she admitted on cross-examination that the money had gone in and she had withdrawn it all.

So this is an expert witness -- although his expertise for the purposes of this is very limited, but he's an expert witness who's being asked to simply organize these facts. And I asked him to assume hypothetically that there had been proof that this money came from a fund-raiser, which is consistent with prior testimony.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And that is a matter of contention.

THE COURT: As to whether it came from the prior testimony or not?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes, and the specific source for these deposits on these individual dates.

THE COURT: Well, I'll allow the witness to make that assumption.

(To the jury) It goes back to an instruction I gave you a long time ago, it seems now, about hypothetical questions. Remember that? It was a short instruction, but basically it tells you that when a hypothetical question is proposed to a witness or propounded to a witness, the jury, the fact finder, still has to determine whether or not the underlying hypotheticals are proven or not, when you consider this witness's testimony.

So I'll just remind you of that instruction, and allow the attorney to proceed with this line, making it clear that you're --

Use the word "hypothetical," if you would, so that the jury understands that, and then I'll -- based on that, I'll overrule the prosecution's objection.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. So other than the characterization of “Fund-raiser” on those next five lines, the rest you simply recorded from the documents, from the Washington Mutual records, correct?

A. That is correct.
Q. All right. Now, I’m going to show you 5099 for identification.
If I may approach, Your Honor.
THE COURT: You may.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: 5099 is a copy of a check; is that correct?
A. Yes, sir.
MR. SANGER: And, Your Honor, that also comes from the materials that were business records that were subpoenaed, and there’s a stipulation as to the foundation.
Q. As to 5099, did you record on the next line of your analysis the date that that check was written?

A. I recorded the date it was deposited. It was actually written on November 2nd.
Q. All right. And it was deposited November 5?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And that was 2001; is that correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. The source is Michael Adler?
A. Yes, Michael Adler.
Q. And it looks like it says “Alder” here.
A. It is -- it’s hard to read a copy of the copy, but I think it is Alder. A-l-d-e-r.
Q. And then the amount is $32,308; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And that amount was deposited in that same account; is that correct?
A. That’s correct.
Q. All right. Now, there’s a notation, “J.C. Penney lawsuit.” Do you see that under “Description”?
A. Yes, that’s under the “Description,” “J.C. Penney lawsuit.” On the check itself it says, under “Memo,” “Arvizo settlement.”

Q. All right. And were you asked to assume that there had been testimony -- for the purpose of a hypothetical for the entry of this material on your analysis, that there had been testimony that the settlement source was a J.C. Penney lawsuit?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. Now, I'm going to ask you to look at 5098, which is a document dated November 9, 2001; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And what does that appear to represent?

A. About four days after the $32,000 is deposited, Ms. Arvizo withdraws $29,000 from the same account, and it's made into a money order payable to Hollywood Ford.

Q. All right. Now, could you determine that on November 9, 2001, Janet Arvizo withdrew $29,000, approximately, from her Washington Mutual Bank account?

A. I see that same amount clearing the bank after this check is drawn.

Q. All right. So you determined that from the Washington Mutual Bank account records; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. And then the actual document that you have in front of you is a -- what appears to be a cashier's -- a copy of a cashier's check; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you know if that cashier's check actually was cashed by Hollywood Ford?

A. I do not know where it was cashed. I do know that there's a withdrawal from the bank around that time for $29,000.

Q. All right. And is there any indication that $29,000 went back into the account?

A. I never saw it go back into the account.

Q. All right. Now, the next line under the analysis is December 2001 --

A. Yes, sir.

Q. -- is that correct?

Were you asked for the purpose of preparing this analysis to assume that Azja Pryor had testified in this court that she had given $600 to Janet Arvizo in December of 2001?

A. That's the assumption that I've made, yes.

Q. And -- okay. And I'm sorry, I couldn't help overhearing Mr. Sneddon, so I apologize, but it was a stage whisper.

Whether it's cash or a cashier's check, were you asked to assume that money was given to Azja Pryor?

A. I assumed money was given to Azja Pryor.

Q. You assume that because you were asked to assume that, for the purpose of preparing this, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. Now, if -- we're going to skip -- no, we aren't. We're going to go from January 2 through March 17, and I'm going to show you a series of checks and these checks are Nos. 5100 through 5104.

May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Q. I'm showing you 5100 through 5104. Those are documents that came from the bank records that have been subpoenaed of Jay Jackson, and I'm going to ask you if you reviewed those for the purpose of preparing this analysis?

A. Yes, I did. They are listed on my schedule.

Q. And is the information listed on the schedule the information that comes directly off of all of those checks?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Could we have the actual exhibit numbers traced to the individual exhibits?

MR. SANGER: Sure. So 5100 would be the January 2 welfare check of $769; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And that was deposited into Jay Jackson's

Bank of America account; is that correct?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And then 5101 was the same date, January 2, 2003, and that’s a check from Jay Jackson to Raymond Trujillo, rent for Soto Street apartment.

A. That is correct.

Q. And then 5102 is a February 24 welfare check for $769, and that was deposited in Jay Jackson’s Bank of America account?

A. Actually, the check is February 15th. I think it was deposited February 24th.

Q. Okay. So the date of the check is the 15th, deposited February 24th?

A. That is correct.

Q. All right. And there’s a notation that apparently somebody switched the numbers around at the bank, and they had to correct that error?

A. Yeah. Being an accountant, it’s not unusual to transpose numbers. And when it was first deposited, it was deposited as $796, and the bank caught that. And so when it first -- it shows up as a deposit on his bank deposit as $796, and Bank of America catches it and takes $27 back out of the account.

Q. All right. So the bottom line -- aside from all that accounting business within the bank, the bottom line is the welfare check of $769 was deposited into Jay Jackson’s Bank of America account, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And the next one is 5103, and that’s a check from Jay Jackson of $425, a rent payment to Raymond Trujillo for the Soto Street apartment; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And the last one, 5104, appears to be a welfare check; is that correct?

A. Yes, dated March 17th, 2003.

Q. And that’s for $769?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And that appears to have been cashed by Janet Arvizo?

A. It’s hard to read, but I -- it looks like it’s her signature.

MR. SANGER: All right. Okay. Your Honor, we would move into evidence 5097 through 5104, which are those documents as exhibit records from the various accounts.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: No objection.

THE COURT: They’re admitted.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Now, looking at your analysis for the moment, or back to that, the last five entries are entries for which you did not have specific documentation; is that correct?

A. Correct. Except for the February 6th through March 12th, I did review what I referred to as Exhibits 414 and 416.

Q. All right. Well, let’s start with that. Did you have an occasion to look at court exhibits 414 and 416?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what did those appear to be?

A. They appeared to be expense -- I guess you’d call them expense reports that showed various expenses being made and the notation on those was for Janet Arvizo.

Q. All right. And who -- whose bank account -- what was the name -- I’m sorry, let me withdraw that.

What was the name of the entity for which this expense report was prepared?

A. It was my understanding it was Neverland Valley Entertainment.

Q. All right. Now, were you able to come up with a precise number as to how much money had been expended on behalf of Janet Arvizo or her children as opposed to expended indirectly on her behalf in some other fashion?

A. No, I was not, but it appeared to be several thousand dollars.

Q. All right. And were you asked to assume for the purpose of preparing this chart that there was testimony in this court indicating that several thousand dollars had been spent on behalf of Janet Arvizo and her children during this period of time?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So under the “Amount,” rather than putting an exact dollar amount, you just put “Several Thousand Dollars”; right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Was your purpose to come up with a bottom line that was going to be computed?

A. No.

Q. It was just to record these various transactions so we’d have them all in one place; is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. And then February -- the next line is February 5th to February 24th, 2003. And this says, “Source,” “Michael Jackson.” Were you asked to assume, for the purpose of preparing this, that there had been testimony that money had been expended on behalf of Janet Arvizo and her children for a trip to Miami, body wax, children’s braces, lodging, travel, food expenses and so on?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You indicated in the “Amount” column “Several Thousand Dollars,” correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Once again, did you have any ability to do an accounting as to what Mr. Jackson expended on behalf of these particular individuals?

A. No, sir.

Q. Okay. All right. And then I see there’s actually maybe a typo here. The next line is February 7 to March 12th, 2003. There’s an indication, “Several Thousand Dollars,” “Living Expenses at Neverland Ranch”?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. And it says, for some reason, “MJ Sounds” and I have no idea why it says “Sounds” there. Why don’t we just strike that word out.

A. That’s fine.

Q. Was it -- were you asked to assume there had been testimony that this family had been living at the Neverland Ranch, the previous one was living elsewhere and other expenses for them, but this line being living expenses while they’re at Neverland Ranch?

A. That is correct.

Q. All right. And again, you didn’t know how much so you put “Several Thousand Dollars”; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, the next line is February 20, 2003, and you indicated “Hamid Moslehi,” and the total amount of $2,000, and “Description,” “Cash.”

Were you asked to assume that there was testimony in this trial that Hamid Moslehi had given Janet Arvizo $2,000 in cash on February 20th?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And were you asked to assume whether that was a loan or a gift or anything else or just that it was $2,000?

A. I assumed that he received $2,000 -- or the Arvizo family received $2,000 from that gentleman.

Q. All right. And then the last entry is November 2 to present. It says “Source” is Jay Jackson. “Amount” is “Unknown.”

Were you asked to assume that there had been testimony from Gavin and from Jay Jackson that Janet Arvizo had been living with Jay Jackson off and on from November 2002 to the present?

A. That is correct.

Q. And so you’ve indicated there would be some sort of lodging and use of an automobile based on the assumptions that we asked you to make; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. Based on all of that, is this chart now a fair and accurate depiction of what you have just testified to, that is, the documents you received and looked at, and also the assumptions you were asked to make from the prior testimony?

A. That is correct.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I would move into evidence Exhibit 5105.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’d object to the admission of that evidence, Your Honor. I’d like to take the witness on voir dire.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Microphone’s off again, sir.

THE COURT: I’ll -- I won’t rule on the admissibility until after your cross-examination.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.

MR. SANGER: I was going to request to publish it so I could just show it to the jury, but I’ll hold off, if that’s all right, if I would be allowed to do that after Mr. Auchincloss concludes his cross, assuming it’s admitted.

THE COURT: I’m going to hold off on the ruling until he examines. We could do it by voir dire or cross, but I think it’s better just to do it by cross.

MR. SANGER: With that exception, I would like to put this up if it’s admitted later. I’ll defer to Mr. Auchincloss.

THE COURT: All right.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Radakovich.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did I pronounce that correctly?

A. Perfectly.

Q. All right. I’m looking at Exhibit 5105 and I’m going to go through that with you somewhat quickly, but I want to focus on the items for which you do not have any evidence before you. There’s several things you were asked to assume in this document and I want to talk about those, first of all.

Beginning at the top of this document, you have a June 15th, 2000, entry from Louise Palanker, $10,000, check to Janet Arvizo. Have you seen that check, first of all?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Do you know if Janet Arvizo actually received, personally received, that $10,000?

A. I saw a signature that appeared to be her signature on the back of it, cashing it. I don't know what happened to the funds.

Q. Okay. How about the check to David Arvizo, the next entry, July 10th? Can you tell us whether or not Janet Arvizo actually received that $10,000?

A. The check was made out to David Arvizo.

Q. Okay.

A. And it looked -- I've never seen his signature before to compare, because that was the only document that his signature was on, but it looked like he cashed it.

Q. Okay. But you have no evidence to lead you to believe or conclude that Janet Arvizo received that $10,000?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, what were you specifically asked to do in preparing this document, Exhibit 5105?

A. Well, to look at particular transactions, and to basically list the pieces of information from those documents in the order that shows up on the schedule.

Q. Was the idea here to create a list of income that Janet Arvizo received between the dates of, let's say, June 15th, 2000, and I guess March 12th, 2003, over those three years?

A. Not to list any income. Just to show the transactions.

Q. Okay. Just to show a list of transactions?

A. That is correct.

Q. Was there any guidance as far as what transactions you were going to put in this list?

A. I was provided, I'm going to call it a book of evidence, an evidence book, that had various checks. Some of which are in evidence here, additional ones that I don't know if they're in evidence or not in evidence as those checks from Louise Palanker. I was given those documents.

Q. You were given a book of documents?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who gave you the book of documents?

A. Actually it was delivered to my office, but it's my understanding it came from Mr. -- either Mr. Sanger's or Mr. Mesereau's office.

Q. Do you have that book with you today?

A. Yes, I do.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: May I approach and take a look at that item, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you.

Q. So when you received this book -- I noticed that -- well, is it fair to say that the book has some additional documents in it apart from what you've included in your report on Exhibit 5105?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you receive some guidance from Mr. Sanger or anybody else as to which documents were going to be selected out of that book to be included in this exhibit?

A. Yes, we met and discussed the documents in the book and which ones Mr. Sanger wanted to have on the schedule and which ones had the actual documentation behind them.

Q. Okay.

A. There were a lot of documents in the book.

Q. So Mr. Sanger told you what he wanted on this list?

A. We had a meeting and we discussed various transactions. And I suppose, yes, he told me which transactions to put on the book, but it was a discussion that him and I had back and forth. We discussed various transactions.

Q. But many of these transactions you don't even have in that book; is that fair to say? You don't have any evidence of the transaction in the book that was delivered to you?

A. Just the ones that Mr. Sanger brought up at the end from February 6th on. There aren't any indications of those in this book.

Q. And you also don't have any indication of the transaction involving Azja Pryor in December of 2001?

A. I'm sorry. That one also. There's no indication for that.

Q. And some of this information in this report you don't have any knowledge of except based upon what Mr. Sanger told you; is that fair to say?

A. I don't quite understand what you're asking.

Q. Well, for instance, the source of the deposits to Janet Arvizo's account at Washington Mutual, you have no idea what the source of those deposits was?

A. No, and I don't think I'm trying to -- all -- under "Description" I just say, "Deposit into the Washington Mutual account." I'm not making any kind of opinion as to where I think those sources are coming from.

Q. But the "Source" you wrote in this document is "fund-raiser," "fund-raiser," "fund-raiser," "fund-raiser," "fund-raiser," for those five documents. And you don't know that the source of those funds on those entries was, in fact, a fund-raiser except for what Mr. Sanger told you; is that fair to say?

A. Yes, as he indicated, that was an assumption that was made.

Q. Okay. So moving down the list, you assumed that each of those deposits came from a fund-raiser, but you don't have any knowledge of that?

A. That is correct.

Q. Moving to the next entry, November 5th, 2001, there's a check from Michael Alder. It says, "J.C. Penney lawsuit." Did Mr. Sanger ask you to assume that as well?

A. Yes, and there was -- also I reviewed a J.C. Penney lawsuit settlement statement.

Q. And then moving down to the next one, that's a cashier's check from Hollywood Ford. Do you have any information as to whether or not that check to Hollywood check was cashed?

A. Actually, it’s a check to Hollywood Ford, not from --
Q. I misspoke. A check to Hollywood Ford. Do you have any idea whether that check was ever cashed?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Do you have any idea where those funds went?
A. The check is made out to Hollywood Ford. I assume it went to Hollywood Ford.
Q. But that’s all you have had. Does that check cashed -- does it indicate it’s been cashed based upon the markings on the check?

A. Well, what we have is a copy of a cashier’s check. So we don’t have the actual check itself. The check would have not been returned to Miss Arvizo. It would have been returned to the bank. When you get a cashier’s check, it doesn’t come back in the mail with your bank statement. It’s returned to the bank.
Q. Okay. Did you call Hollywood Ford?
A. No, sir.
Q. So you really don’t know if Hollywood Ford received that check, true?
A. All I can say is it was made out to Hollywood Ford.
Q. Do you have any idea whether the $32,000, $32,308, do you have any idea whether those funds went to Janet Arvizo or if she shared those with her husband or if they went to somebody else? Do you have any idea where those funds went ultimately?
A. Yes, I do. They went to the Washington Mutual account and they were deposited into the Washington Mutual account, the $32,000.
Q. Yes.
A. And about seven or eight days later, the funds were basically cleared out when she wrote a check to Hollywood Ford. Basically, money comes into the bank and the money goes out to Hollywood Ford.
Q. So with the exception of the $3,000, approximately, $3,000?

A. That is correct.

Q. Okay. But we're back to my previous question. You don't know what happened to that $29,000, exactly where those funds went?

A. Well, it went to Hollywood Ford. I guess I'm --

Q. You have a cashier's check, but you said you didn't have an indication whether or not that check was cashed, true?

A. No, I -- the funds were withdrawn from the bank. I know that.

Q. Yes.

A. The funds were withdrawn from the bank. There is a check on that same day for the same amount to Hollywood Ford. It's not unreasonable to think that that check went to Hollywood Ford.

Q. Gotcha. But that's an assumption that you're making, correct? You don't have any direct evidence that that check was cashed at Hollywood Ford, true?

A. Well, the check was made out to Hollywood Ford, the funds left the bank. I guess I'm assuming that, but I guess I assumed the sun came up this morning, too.

Q. Well, let me throw another assumption at you.

THE COURT: Let's take a -- let's assume we're going to take a break.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Where we left off, Mr. Radakovich, we were talking about whether the sun was going to come up tomorrow, and I wanted to just ask you about another assumption, okay?

Assume that you take a -- you go into your bank, your bank is Washington Mutual, let's say, and you have a $30,000 balance in your account. And you go in and you get a cashier's check for $30,000 for, let's say, an automobile dealer. You walk out of the bank intending to buy a car, and you turn around and you say, "You know, I don't really want that car," and you walk back into the bank and you say, "I've changed my mind. Here's my receipt. Here's my cashier's check. I don't want the car. I just want cash." The bank will negotiate that check for you, won't they?

A. I would assume so, yes.

Q. So there's an example where that check would not have gone to Hollywood Ford, a conceivable possibility?

A. That would be a possibility, yes.

Q. And you can't testify whether or not Hollywood Ford actually received that check, true?

A. No, sir.

Q. So the sun will come up tomorrow; is that fair to say?

A. I certainly hope so.

Q. Okay. Let's go back down to the next entry involving Azja Pryor. You had absolutely no information as to that particular transaction except for what Mr. Sanger told you?

A. He told me that that was admitted as -- I don't know the legal term. Was admitted as evidence or there was testimony as to that.

Q. Okay. But in terms of him supplying you with any hard documentation, any accounting records of any kind, you have nothing to justify that except for what Mr. Sanger told you, true?

A. That is correct.

Q. All right. Now --

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. Really I asked him to assume that for purposes of a hypothetical --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to --

MR. SANGER: -- as opposed to just --

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. Next question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Moving down, let's see, let's go to the four -- five final transactions. Now, each of these transactions were based completely on assumptions or hypotheticals that Mr. Sanger gave you; is that correct?

MR. SANGER: Objection; misstates the evidence.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll ask a different question.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Strike that.

Q. With the exception of Exhibits 414 and 416 -- same question. With the exception of those two exhibits, which I believe you were supplied, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did the rest of this information come from Mr. Sanger?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. And as far as the amounts that are itemized, we don't have specific amounts for any of these transactions, with the exception of the one involving Hamid Moslehi, $2,000, true?

A. That is correct.

Q. Okay. So we don't really know what kind of dollar figure we're talking about with each of those transactions?

A. No, sir.

Q. All right. And have you ever prepared a document like this before?

A. I've prepared many documents. Yes, I prepared many documents. I'm not sure when you say "like this" --

Q. Well, a document that included many assumptions and unknown amounts and hypotheticals.

A. I've prepared documents for different cases, and it seems like almost every single case is different. I'm not sure exactly how to answer that question. I mean, I have never prepared a document just like this one, because this case is different than the next case.

Q. Let me ask you another question. You said that this was a fair and accurate document. But in fact, it’s not accurate at all because we don’t know the figures that we’re talking about; isn’t that fair to say?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Argumentative, and misstates the evidence as a matter of fact.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: It’s fair and accurate based on the assumptions that underlie the schedule.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Assuming that all of Mr. Sanger’s hypotheticals are accurate, then it’s fair and accurate?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. With the exception of the fact that it’s not accurate in the amounts that you provided for these various transactions for which you have no specific amount, known amount; is that fair to say?

A. It’s accurate based on the assumptions that were used to prepare it. I don’t know how else to say that.

Q. What does “several thousand dollars” mean in terms of accuracy?

A. Well, it was explained to me, as an example; that they flew to Miami and that they stayed at a hotel. And it would be my experience that that would be several thousand dollars to get there, to stay at the hotel, and the assumption that the goods and services provided them would probably be several thousand dollars.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you, Mr. Radakovich. Thank you. No further questions.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I would ask to admit 5105, which is the summary chart.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And we would object to the admission of that document based upon improper foundation and -- or lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Right now I’ll sustain the objection to the chart. I think, basically, it would be helpful in your final argument as an exhibit of -- you know, to explain to the jury that, but I don’t think that it has an evidentiary value independently of argument, so --

MR. SANGER: It is foundational to the next witness. That’s the purpose of doing it this way. Could we approach for a moment, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

MR. SANGER: May I approach the witness to retrieve the exhibits that have been admitted?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. And I’m holding out 5105. That was not. The others have been received and I’d like permission, then, to publish them.

THE COURT: You may.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Q. I’m putting up these documents that have been received. They’ve been received into evidence and -- do we have our laser thing there?

MS. YU: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: Sorry. Technical moment here. There we go. Thank you. There we go.

Q. Okay. What I want to do is go through these quickly. You’ve already testified to them before they were received, but just to publish them so the jury can see what we’re talking about.

This is Exhibit 5097, and you referred to this exhibit. You indicated it showed an account, “Janet Arvizo, FBO Gavin Anton Arvizo,” correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. All right. And the address for the statement was in El Monte on Ramer Street; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And this particular exhibit -- I want to be careful not to shine this in the court reporter’s eyes here.

This particular exhibit shows deposits and withdrawals from this particular FBO account; correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you had indicated that -- there we go. I think our laser is getting faint here for some reason. It may be running out of battery or something.

Okay. These are the deposits, and you listed those -- well, never mind what you listed. But the deposits show how much money went into this account?

A. Looks like $7,000 in that one month, yes.

Q. Okay. All right. And that month would have been December, and actually into January. December of 2000 and January of 2001; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Thank you. Let's see if we can get a -- whoa, that's a lot better. Okay.

Let's take 5098. Now, in looking at this particular document, this is the copy of the Hollywood Ford cashier's check, correct?

A. Yes, that's the infamous Hollywood Ford check.

Q. And basically you don't have a copy of that thing that's endorsed by Hollywood Ford to show that 11550 it actually went into one of their accounts; is that correct?

A. Again, as I said, because it's not returned to the person writing the check. It goes back to the bank.

Q. All right. However, did it appear, from your review of the records, that this money ever went back into Janet Arvizo's account?

A. I never saw it going back into any account I looked at, no.

Q. So in other words, whether Hollywood Ford got it or somebody else got it, it did not go back into Janet Arvizo's account?

A. That I could see, that is correct.

Q. All right. Now, I'll put up 5099, and that is very hard to read. But it appears to be Mr. Alder's check; is that correct?

A. Yes. That was a check from Mr. Alder's office to Janet Arvizo. And the bottom, where the "Memo" says "Arvizo settlement," it's $32,307.88.

Q. Now, you said you also reviewed the J.C. Penney's settlement documents, or lawsuit documents; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did it appear that other Arvizo family members received additional sums in their name in addition to the amount that Janet Arvizo received?

A. Yeah, the total settlement was $152,000.

Q. All right. Some of that went to attorney's fees and costs?

A. Attorney fees and costs, and I think some went to the kids, and I think Mr. Arvizo received a check. And I think this was the check that went to Janet, or obviously this is a check that went to Janet.

Q. This is just Janet Arvizo's portion of that, right?

A. That is my understanding.

Q. And I think you're doing okay, but you got to really speak --

A. I'm scared I'm in their way over here. I feel like I'm at the movies and I want to --

Q. I think they can see over your head. The concern is make sure you talk into the microphone. Okay. And that amount of money went into this FBO account for Gavin and then was taken out shortly thereafter by virtue of whatever this transaction was with the Hollywood Ford cashier's check?

A. That's correct. 32,000 goes in, 29,700 goes out, and then later that month the remaining 3,000 goes out.

Q. All right. And then the -- oh, I won't put all of these up, but we had the series of 5100 through 5104. This is 5100 that I'm putting up there. And that's basically a copy of a check that shows that it was deposited into Jay Jackson's account; is that correct?

A. That is correct.
Q. And you had a couple of those; is that right?
A. Right. And I also looked at the Bank of America account of Mr. Jackson and actually saw that same amount on that same day being deposited into his account.
Q. All right. So the actual check record corresponded with the statement from the bank; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. And similarly, looking at 5101, which I indicated was the rent payment for Soto Street, that’s noted on there; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. And that appeared to have been paid out of the Jay Jackson account to Raymond Trujillo; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. And you had a couple of those.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, there were -- in the documents you looked at, there were a number of other payments made by Jay Jackson; is that correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. All right. And were you asked to take a liberal approach to this? A conservative approach? Can you explain what you were asked to do?

A. I looked at all the documents submitted to me, and there were a lot of documents I looked at. And I didn’t see, in my opinion, the relevancy of those documents. There was just a check from Jay Jackson’s account to American Express, but it didn’t -- I mean, that’s all I had. To me, that’s a meaningless check. The --
Q. Let me stop you there, if I could, just so we can pick up on that point. In other words, you saw a number of expenditures, but you couldn’t tie them directly with the information you had to Janet Arvizo; is that correct?
A. That is correct.

Q. So you took the representative ones here that are clearly for something that has been identified as a residence of Janet Arvizo; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. All right. Now, I want to ask you --

Switching gears here for a second, I'd like to first approach the witness and I'm going to come back and put this up on the board, if I can. I'd like to approach the witness with the book that includes Exhibit 414 and 416 that have already been received into evidence. And while I'm at the microphone here, I'll just say it here so we don't have a colloquy up there.

I'm just going to ask you to look at 414 and 416. And these have been placed in these glassine protectors, or whatever they are, and unfortunately the book is broken on the top, and it tends to come apart, so we've got to be careful flipping through.

I'm going to ask you to look through 414 and then look through 416, and tell me if those appear to be the same documents that you looked at earlier, okay?

Did I ask if I may approach? I think I did, yes.

In fact, what we'll do is just start with 414.

A. Yes. This is the document I previously saw.

Q. Okay. Now, on 414, that appears to be a report of some sort that was generated on behalf of a company called Neverland Valley Entertainment, correct?

A. I don't know who it was generated on. It's a Quicken report generated by the Quicken software, and it appears to be disbursements with different categories, such as Panda Express, Anchor Blue Clothing, Johnny Rocket's, with various dollar amounts and then a running balance going forward.

Q. All right. And at the end -- so the running balance going forward at the end should show you the total amount of the expenditures for the particular items included in that Quicken report; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Take your time.

A. And what happens, the way the account reads, it starts at zero. Somebody puts in $2500, and that $2500 is eaten up, so your balance actually goes down, if that makes any kind of sense.

Q. Can you tell -- and I’m sorry to put you on the spot here, but can you tell quickly about how much money was expended through that account? I see you brought a calculator. I’m not really encouraging you to use it, if you can give us an approximation.

A. I’m going to give it about $7,000.

Q. So earlier when you said several thousand dollars, you see about 7,000 there; is that correct?

A. Yes, 7,000 or so.

Q. All right. Now, I’m going to ask you to turn to 416. And I’m going to come and help you, because the book is going to fall apart. If I may, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Let me just help you with this. All right?

Q. Now, I’ll ask you to go through 416. Just kind of flip through it and see if that appears to be the same documents that we showed you as being a copy of 416.

A. Yes. And the title of it is “Summary of Petty Cash Expenditures,” and it lists dates and various payees such as Banana Republic, Pacific Sunwear, Levi’s. And then it has dollar amounts, $160, $450, and has a running total that adds up to $4,800 for about a one-month period. 4,800 for a month period.

MR. SANGER: All right. May I retrieve the book? I’d like to publish selected pages.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you. And with the Court’s permission -- oops, that's probably why the book is broken. It's because I did it wrong. No? Okay.

With the Court's permission, I would like to take Exhibit 414, which has been received, and publish some representative pages here of the eight-page register, if I may.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you.

Q. Now I'm taking them out of the book. And the first page of Exhibit 414, for the record, the little glassine envelope has a "1" on the bottom and it has a couple of computer disks inside. So I'm going to go to 2, page two of Exhibit 414, and just ask you if -- can you read that? Is it clear enough or --

A. Yes.

Q. You can? Okay. Let's just start at the top. And all of these pages are set up the same way; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. All right. So they've got a date, which appears to be obliterated by a hole punch. And then it's got "Number," it says "N-U-M," "Transaction," "Spend," "C," "Received" and "Balance." Do you know what those columns relate to in this Quicken register?

A. Yes. The date is obviously the date. The number is probably a transaction number. Either a check number or a credit card number. The "Transaction" is somebody putting a description as to who the payee is and the reason for it. The "Spend" is the amount of the transaction. And the "Received," as I was saying, was where somebody's putting money into that account.

So the first transaction is an $80 deposit, so we have a balance of $80. The second transaction is Five Star Parking for $6. And so our balance now is only $74. And it goes into a running total.

Q. Okay. I'm sure everybody's up to date with us here, but the opening balance, somebody put -- the opening balance is zero, and then on 2-20 they record an $80 deposit, showing a balance of a deposit of $80, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And then you have the next transaction, $6 is spent, so that leaves you $74 --

A. Yes, sir.

Q. -- right?

And you can follow this through. I'm going to move this particular page up a little bit. You had mentioned there was a $2500 deposit at some point, and that appears to have occurred on 2-25-03, 2500, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And looks like there was a negative balance here after an expenditure at Robinson's-May -- actually, there's been a negative balance for a while here. And now the total is 2272.70, which means that the $2500 then replenished that account; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And in the various -- in the columns here for the period of time covered by this register, you have certain indications such as "Hair products for Janet," "Outback Restaurant, Janet," and looks like it says "Vinnie"?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right? And it also -- apparently "Gas for rental car." That's also included in this account; is that correct?

A. That is correct. I think the -- I think the account title is "Janet."

Q. All right. All right. So if we take this through to the end, there's the same -- same accounting procedure through the entire seven pages.

A. That's correct. And when I came up with that $7,000, I ran a mental total of all the deposits, that 80, the 2500, and I came up with around 7,000.

Q. Okay. And that's why you're an accountant because you can do that fairly quickly.

All right. Now, let me turn to -- I'm going to turn to the next exhibit, Your Honor. I just need to do it carefully. To Exhibit 416. And may I put that up on the board?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: It’s been previously received.

Q. Okay. You talked about 416 and you told us that this appears to be what you reviewed. This is a handwritten, obviously, expenditure sheet of some sort; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. And this appears to go from 2-26-03 to, looks like, 2-28-03?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. In any event, this has -- the bottom line for this period of time, it shows, you thought, about $4,000 in expenses?

A. $4,817.

Q. Now, they said “Cash left” of 180. So, to be technically correct, I suppose you’d subtract the 180 from that 4800?

A. I believe that 180 is the amount of the expenditure --

Q. Oh, okay.

A. -- to the left. So --

Q. Okay.

A. I don’t know what “cash left” means.

Q. But the rest of the things seem to be expenditures of some sort for McDonald’s, Mobil and so on, Baskin Robbins, I see, right?

A. That is correct.

Q. All right. Now, in the rest of Exhibit 416, there are -- the first two pages, there were a series -- there was a series of receipts; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, you did not go through and attempt to match all the receipts to expenditures; is that right?

A. No, sir.

Q. I’m going to take page three and put this up here. There’s a note, “Luggage for trip.” Do you see this up there?

A. Yes, it appears to be to Wilson’s down at the Camarillo Outlet.

Q. Wilson’s is a leather or luggage store?

A. I believe it is.

Q. And then there’s a note, “Food,” and it shows a Denny’s receipt?

A. Denny’s in Thousand Oaks.

Q. And I’ll take the next page here quickly. I’ll put that back there. It appears to be a Banana Republic receipt; is that correct?

A. Correct. It looks like they’re all from the Camarillo outlets.

Q. Pacific Sunwear. So all of these seem to be from the same general place?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. And basically, if you go through here, based on your understanding of accounts and documenting accounts, it appears that somebody at least attempted to put together all the receipts, or put together receipts that would back up the kind of accounting document that you saw either in 414 or the beginning of 416; is that correct?

A. Correct. Assuming that those match up. Now, I didn’t match them up, no.

Q. And you weren’t asked to assume that every single one of these receipts pertained to Janet Arvizo.

A. No, sir.

Q. So if we look at Outback Steakhouse here, it looks like there’s a number of different dinners that were purchased on a particular evening; is that correct. Five guests?

A. That’s correct. It appears that the total was $111, with a $10 tip.

Q. All right. And we’ve just gone through the tip of the iceberg here to save time, but I think there are -- if I’m not mistaken, in the exhibit there are about 60 pages. The last number is numbered 63. But assuming a couple of the pages are for the handwritten accounting in this exhibit, there are about 60 pages of documentation for this; is that correct?

A. I would assume so, yes. Excuse me.

MR. SANGER: All right. I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Just a couple of final questions. As far as the Exhibits 414 and 416, 414 has a number of entries indicating for Janet; is that true?

A. That is my recollection, yes.

Q. Do any of the entries likewise indicate a recipient of those services or goods for someone else other than Janet?

A. I just remember seeing “Janet,” but I couldn’t tell you every transaction, no.

Q. Okay. And do you know who prepared that document?

A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know where it came from?

A. Mr. Sanger gave it to me out of an evidence book.

Q. Okay. But other than that, you don’t know who prepared it or under what circumstances it was prepared?

A. No. For some reason in the back of my mind, I remember I was told it was Neverland Ranch or -- but I don’t really --

Q. Neverland Valley Entertainment?

A. But I don’t even know who that is.

Q. And as far as Exhibit 416, which has the handwriting entries, those handwritten entries, by and large, don’t associate those goods with any individual; is that fair to say?

A. I’d have to look at the document. I thought there was some indication, but I don’t remember.

Q. Do you remember seeing any entries that indicated goods or services for Frank and Vinnie?

A. Those names I remember.

Q. Okay. So some of those entries were things that Frank or Vinnie arguably received. At least that's what it indicates?

A. I would agree with that, yes.

Q. Were there entries for The Country Inn & Suites?

A. I don't remember that particular entry.

Q. Were there entries for gasoline?

A. I remember seeing gasoline.

Q. Okay. And there were a number of entries for fast food places; is that fair to say?

A. That is correct.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you. No further questions.

MR. SANGER: No further questions.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down. Call your next witness.

MR. SANGER: We'll call Mercy Manrriquez. And -- and, Your Honor, while the witness is coming in here, maybe we could approach quickly on a procedural matter.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Try to handle this with the clerk.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: Would you remain standing, please, and face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

MERCY DEE MANRRIQUEZ

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Mercy Dee Manrriquez. M-e-r-c-y, D-e-e, M-a-n-r-r-i-q-u-e-z.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Your Honor, before we start -- well, let me start with this so everybody knows where we are.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Miss Manrriquez, how are you employed?

A. I’m employed by the County of Los Angeles, the Department of Public Social Services.

Q. What does the Department of Public Social Services do?

A. The program I’m involved in -- we determine eligibility for people that are requesting public assistance.

Q. Okay. And you’re doing pretty much okay, but maybe you can pull the right microphone up just a little bit. It’s kind of a hard one to talk into.

A. Okay. Is that better?

Q. That’s a little better. You’re doing okay, actually. All witnesses tend to fall off a bit if we’re not careful.

Okay. So you determine welfare eligibility, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you personally know an individual by the name of Janet Ventura Arvizo?

A. No, I don’t.

MR. SANGER: We have subpoenaed the records from the Department of Public Social Services and I believe the clerk has them. And pursuant to prior orders, they have not been opened by anybody. So I would ask that --

THE COURT: Do you have those?

MR. SANGER: And, Your Honor, I’m going to ask that the witness and counsel be allowed to inspect those documents. I believe the Department of Public Social Services required a court order that the witness be allowed to testify as to this particular individual, if I’m not mistaken.

Is that correct?

THE WITNESS: That’s correct.

MR. SANGER: So we would request an order; the Court order the witness to testify regarding Janet Arvizo.

THE COURT: In anticipation of this this morning, I reviewed these records.

Sorry. In anticipation of this this morning, I reviewed these records, and I will make a determination that the Court has waived the privacy privileges involved and finds that the probative value and the nature of these proceedings are such that I will order the records revealed and order the Department of Social Services to answer the questions propounded by both sides here today.

MR. SANGER: Thank you, Your Honor.

Procedurally, may both counsel take a quick look at it, since we haven't seen it yet?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Can we approach and do that?

THE COURT: Why don't you just take them.

There were several envelopes. The mailing envelope I'm discarding. There was an envelope that also was opened to ensure that the subpoena had been complied with, and then I reviewed the records.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Could --

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Could Mr. Auchincloss and I just have a moment so we can see where we're going?

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, there are a few pages in here that are upside down. And with the permission of counsel, I'm going to turn them right side up, if that's all right.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: Otherwise, I'll try to leave it in the same condition.

Your Honor, both counsel and I have had an opportunity to review the documents that were subpoenaed to the court. And I believe they were delivered in January, if I'm not mistaken. And we've just now taken a look at them.

What I propose to do, if it's all right with the Court, I'd like to question the witness on these documents, so I would ask that we mark them all as one exhibit. There is the Court's order endorsing the subpoena duces tecum from November 5, 2004. I would remove that, unless somebody wants to keep it in there.

THE COURT: That's fine to remove it.

MR. SANGER: I'll remove that and we'll just give that back and lodge it with the Court. And then I suppose the envelope and the -- all the documents could be marked as one exhibit next in order.

THE COURT: That will be fine.

THE CLERK: That would be 5106.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. We're back to you. Sorry to make you sit there so long.

All right. What I -- we have these documents marked as Exhibit 5106 for identification, and I would actually move to admit them at this time as based on -- based on the Evidence Code section 1560 verification.

THE COURT: As official records?

MR. SANGER: As official records.

THE COURT: They're admitted.

MR. SANGER: Thank you. May I approach the witness?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Now I'm going to ask you just to flip through that, if you would, just so you feel comfortable with what's in there. And I am going to go through and ask you questions on some of the documents as we go along.

Okay. Miss Manrriquez, have you had a chance to flip through those and get a feel for what's in there?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. All right. Now, I want to ask you some questions in general, and then I'm going to come down and retrieve those from you after a little while. Not right now, so you can look at them. And I'm going to ask permission to put some of them up on the screen as we go along. But let's start.

So you're free to answer the questions, if you know, directly. If you need to refer to the file, indicate that you want to do that, and then we can do that as well, okay?

A. Okay.
Q. So first of all, let me ask you some general questions about welfare eligibility.
What is the function of the welfare eligibility worker?
A. To determine eligibility for the participants that are receive -- there’s the three programs that I work, Cal-Works, which is cash assistance, food stamps, and Medi-Cal.

Q. Okay. And are these benefits distributed by the State of California, the County of Los Angeles, the federal government, or what?
A. The County of Los Angeles. The County of Los Angeles.
Q. Okay. And wherever the funds come from initially, it’s the County of Los Angeles that is given the job of deciding who should get the funds?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, you said there are three categories.
The first one was Cal-Works; is that correct?
A. Cal-Works.
Q. Can you spell that so we can hear what you’re saying?
A. C-a-l-W-o-r-k-s.
Q. It’s Cal-Works?
A. Correct.
Q. And Cal-Works is what kind of a program?
A. That’s the cash assistance.
Q. If somebody comes in and has an emergency need for cash, can they -- I’m sorry. If somebody comes in and they can make a showing that they have a need for emergency cash, would it be distributed under that program?
A. Yes. They need to meet the qualifications.
Q. Okay. Now, as to all of the programs, is there -- I mean, this is an obvious question, but is there a bottomless pit of money that’s out there to be distributed to people in California?

A. No.

Q. All right. Is it important to determine who really needs the assistance?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Why is that? It may be an obvious question, but why is that?

A. In my opinion, I would think it would be to cut down on the fraud.

Q. And if people come in and do not accurately represent to you their assets or the availability of funds or people to assist them in their living expenses, does that keep you from doing your job properly?

A. Yes, it would.

Q. And if they willfully exclude any of those items I just mentioned, would that amount to fraud?

A. Yes, it would.

Q. It's your job to try to eliminate fraud the best you can or avoid fraud the best you can so you give money to people who really deserve it and need it; is that correct?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Argumentative; leading.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SANGER: All right.

Q. Now, do you have an opportunity to verify everything that people put in the written applications to you?

A. No, not everything.

Q. Do you have an opportunity to verify everything that people tell you orally in interviews or over the phone?

A. No, not always.

Q. Do you have to depend on people telling the truth when they fill out the various forms?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, one of the forms that you had there I think was an eligibility form, and I think it's -- well, it's called Statement of Facts. So I don't really know what it is. But I think you've got something there called a Statement of Facts; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us what the purpose of that document is?
A. This is their application to determine their eligibility.
Q. Do you depend on people to be honest when they fill out a form like that, or fill out that particular form?
A. Yes, we do.
Q. And do you make decisions as to who should receive benefits based on the information in that form?

A. Yes.
Q. Is that form signed under penalty of perjury?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Now, were you the actual eligibility worker who worked with Janet Arvizo to determine her eligibility?
A. I was her intake worker.
Q. All right. And so as the intake worker, you went over this form with her?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have that form as part of the exhibit?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. I’ve now forgotten what the exhibit number is. I apologize.
MR. MESEREAU: 5106.
MR. SANGER: 5106.
Q. So you have 5106, which is the big packet of information there?
A. Yes.
Q. And right towards the top is the actual Statement of Facts application part of that?
A. You have two Statement of Facts in this exhibit here.
Q. Okay. Is there a reason for that? Because I have no idea. We just opened it.
A. The first one that’s dated 11-15-01, that’s her intake. The second one, which is dated

10-23-02, is her yearly affirmation.

Q. All right. Now, how many -- you’ve got one application for November 15th of ‘01?

A. Correct.

MR. SANGER: Could I have the Post-its there? Just the little ones. The little ones.

Q. You have the initial application and then you have one for 2002; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you have one for 2003?

A. No.

Q. All right. The first date was November 2001. The second one was November 2002; is that right?

A. No. The first one is 11-15-01, and the next one is 10-23-02.

Q. Okay. So 11-15, November 15 of 2001, and then October-something of 2002, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So if Janet Arvizo had continued, wanted to continue to collect money through your office in October or November of 2003, she would have had to fill out an annual form at that time; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there also a monthly form that you have to fill out when you’re receiving welfare?

A. Yes, there is.

Q. And what monthly form is there?

A. It’s called a CEW7. CW7.

Q. CW7, okay. We have to learn a new vocabulary every time we get into a new area.

So the CW7 is a monthly form. In order for somebody to receive a check, do they have to file that monthly form?

A. Yes. There are exceptions, but the norm is, yes, you do file one every month.

Q. Now, I interrupted. We are going to come back to the CW7 in a second, and the other one as well. I interrupted you.

Cal-Works is a cash payment program. And you have food stamps; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And food stamps are certificates that can be redeemed at a retail market, for instance, for food products; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the idea is that these are given to families so that they can buy food products or use those to buy food products.

Is it a complete dollar-for-dollar sort of thing, or is it a percentage off, or how does it work?

A. No, it’s a dollar for dollar.

Q. You get so many dollars’ worth of food stamps. You can go to a food store and buy food, and those count just like dollar bills?

A. Correct.

Q. The third category you told us about?

A. Medi-Cal.

Q. And that’s for medical care?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. If somebody is not covered by a medical insurance program?

A. Correct.

Q. So if somebody is covered by a medical insurance program, the medical insurance would pick up the tab first; is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. And then Medi-Cal will kick in if there is anything left over?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And with regard to Janet Arvizo and her family, can you tell us if she received any Cal-Works benefits?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll object as vague as to time.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

Q. Let’s do this. Can you tell us when Janet Arvizo started receiving benefits of any sort through your program and when she ceased receiving benefits?

A. Okay. According to what I have here, she started receiving assistance, Cal-Works, in November of ‘01 and stopped in January of ‘03.

Q. That was the Cal-Works?

A. Correct.

Q. Did she receive any other sorts of benefits, food stamps or Medi-Cal?

A. Medi-Cal goes hand in hand with Cal-Works, so she did receive that.

Q. I’m going to show you exhibits that have already been admitted into evidence, these three exhibits. They’re Exhibits 5100, 5102 and 5104.

May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: I’d put them up on the board, but they’d be hard to see. So let me -- let’s put this over here so we don’t get mixed up, and let’s just take a look at those exhibits.

Q. 5100, does that appear to be a benefit that’s distributed through your agency?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And what does that appear to be a check for?

A. A check for the amount of $769 for Cal-Works.

Q. That’s Cal-Works?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And then the 5102?

A. Also is a check made out to Janet Arvizo for 11578

$769 for Cal-Works.

Q. Now, that’s dated February 24, 2003, I believe; is that correct?

A. February 15, 2003.

Q. I’m sorry. We have a deposit date here, but the actual date of the check is February 15, 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. And, now, you indicated that your records -- the records that were brought to the court and we all looked at here just now seem to indicate she received Cal-Works through January of ‘03.

A. Correct.

Q. Is that consistent with her receiving a check dated February 15, ‘03?

A. February 15th, yes.
Q. In other words, the other records seem to end January ‘03, and here we have a February 15, ‘03, check.
A. Can I go back and make sure that I have seen --
Q. You’re welcome to do that. But so we don’t waste time, if you look at the next one, 5104, it appears to be a welfare check dated in March of 2003; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. That does look like one of your Cal-Works checks?
A. Yes, it does.

Q. With that in mind, so I didn’t have you do it twice, can you tell from your records if it appears that Miss Arvizo was, in fact, receiving welfare checks through March of 2003?
A. Yes, through March of 2003.
Q. Okay. Now, that’s Cal-Works. The food stamps, do you have any ability to determine when she received food stamp assistance?
A. She started receiving food stamps 11-15-2001.
Q. And when do those records show that she continued to receive the food stamps through?
A. There’s no --
Q. Go ahead, sorry.
A. There’s not a printout of that.
Q. So you can see it started, but you can’t see from the records that were delivered here to court when it ended?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. The Medi-Cal would have just followed with the Cal-Works?
A. Correct.
Q. And so it would be your opinion that she would have had Medi-Cal for uninsured medical expenses at least through March of 2003; is that correct?
A. At least through March 2003.

MR. SANGER: All right. Now, let me -- if I may approach and retrieve Exhibit 5106, and I'll try to put that up on the board, if that's all right.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

I'll take the envelope and the documents and everything. There we go.

Your Honor, this part will be easy. This is starting with the third page of this exhibit. I suspect it will get a little more difficult as we go along, but I'll refer to this as the Statement of Facts. It is the third page in the stack as I have it here, if that's all right.

And may I publish that?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: All right.

Q. All right. Well, we'll start with this for a second first. But I see the way this is organized, for some reason, this is the -- the current print date says 10-23-02; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So this is the second one of those that you were talking about; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So let me, now that I've figured that out, take that off and we'll come back to this in one second, and I'm going to mark that and come back to it.

Now, more precisely, somewhere about a third of the way through this exhibit is something else entitled "Statement of Facts."

Is that close enough to identify it?

THE COURT: I think so.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: There's just two Statements of Facts in the file?

MR. SANGER: That's correct, Your Honor.

And I'm going to put the first page up.

Q. All right. Miss Manrriquez, it's a little hard to -- a little fuzzy there, but this apparently is -- current print date is 11-15-01, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. It says, “Worker name, Mercy Manrriquez”?

A. Correct.

Q. That would be you?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Is this Statement of Facts the statement that you printed out after interviewing Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. Was she asked to review it carefully and sign it if it was correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And at the end of this document, there is a certification; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And down at the bottom -- let’s see if we can -- I’ll leave it there. It says, in bold print, “I declare, under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America and the State of California, that the information in this Statement of Facts is true, correct and complete.” Is that right?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And then you see what appears to be a signature there. And that would be the signature of the applicant in this case, Janet Arvizo; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And the date 11-15-01, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, I note that the declaration statement says, “the State of California,” because we’re in the State of California, and it also says, “under the laws of the United States of America.” Are any of the funds, in part, federal funds that are used for funding these programs?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. So somebody is being asked to not only swear under the laws of California, but also the laws -- the federal laws that what they say is true and correct, correct?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Relevancy; argumentative.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Is that correct, ma’am?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Thank you. All right. Now, Question No. 47 -- I don’t want to mix the pages up here, so this is a page from the middle of this Statement of Facts from 11-15. It says “11-15-2001” there.

Question 47 says, “Does anyone, including children, have any personal or business-related resources?” Do you see that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Is that one of the standard questions?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And Miss Arvizo answered, “No”; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Miss Arvizo did not disclose to you on November 15, 2001, that on November 5, 2001, she personally had received $32,308, did she?

A. No, she did not.

Q. If she had disclosed that, would that have resulted in a different answer to that question?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, it says, “Children.” Did Miss Arvizo advise you at that time that her children had also received -- one of them had received $25,000 on that same date?

A. No.

Q. The other child had received, I believe it was, in excess of 10,000, off the top of my head. I don’t remember. But did she disclose anything like that?

A. No, she did not.

Q. Did she disclose that her ex-husband had received money from a court settlement as well?

A. No, she did not.

Q. If she had disclosed that, would that have been a material fact that you would have wanted to know in evaluating whether or not she was eligible for welfare?

A. That would have been something we needed to know.

Q. Now, how long back does this relate? In other words, what I just asked you about was within ten days of signing this, November 5th. How far back does this relate? Does it go back a year, two years, three years? What’s the -- when a question like this is asked?

A. As long as the participant has the resource they need to put it in no matter what the date is as to when they received it.

Q. All right. And is it the obligation of the applicant on the monthly eligibility reports to report any change in any of these circumstances?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Question No. 48, “Does anyone get or expect to get money from any of the above resources, such as interest, dividends, et cetera?” If somebody had -- let’s take the children. If one of the children, say, had $25,000 in a bank account that was earning interest, would it be necessary to disclose that under Question 48?

A. Yes, it would be necessary.

Q. And again, the answer there is “No”; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And you relied on Mrs. Arvizo telling you that that was the answer?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. I’m going to put up the next page, with the Court’s permission. The next page is -- I’m going to direct your attention to Question No. 53. Now, that one says, if I may read it, “Has anyone received money from insurance or court settlements, inheritance, lottery or back pay in the last three years (36 months)?” Do you see that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And the “anyone” would be the applicant or the children of the applicant; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Did Mrs. Arvizo disclose to you that she had just received a settlement, a court settlement, of $152,000, less attorney’s fees and costs?

A. No.

Q. Would that have been a material consideration on your part in determining her eligibility?

A. Yes.

Q. And if she, in fact, had received such a settlement, would that be fraud, to fail to disclose it on this form?

A. Yes, it would be.

Q. I’m going to put up the next page, with the Court’s permission. I did it before asking, I suppose, but....

THE COURT: That’s all right.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Q. Look at No. 62. “Does anyone have health, dental, vision, hospitalization or long-term care insurance or health plans, such as Kaiser, Blue Cross, CHAMPUS, et cetera?”

Do you see that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did Miss Arvizo tell you she did not have such?

A. Correct. It says, “No.”

Q. So if she, in fact, had health insurance, comprehensive health insurance for her children under Kaiser, would that be a false answer?

A. Yes, that would be false.

Q. And that would also be fraud, would it not?

A. Correct.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’m going to object to the characterization as calling for a legal conclusion.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Whatever we want to call it here, you are trying to -- I think you told us you’re trying to avoid fraud?

A. Correct.

Q. And if we -- let’s put it this way: In layman’s terms, rather than describing it in legal terms, so we don’t get into a legal definition of fraud, if somebody tells you something that is materially false with regard to their assets or income, and you grant them welfare based on those false statements, is that what you’re referring to as fraud?

A. Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Same objection.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer’s in. Next question.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, in this packet, there were monthly -- I didn’t see a monthly eligibility report for every month. Did you?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Does that mean they don’t exist, or they just didn’t end up being produced here?

A. It could mean either/or.

Q. Okay. If somebody continues to receive welfare of the type you described through March of 2003, you would expect them to have to fill out monthly eligibility reports, correct?

A. Yes, monthly, until I believe it was in July of 2002 we went into a quarterly reporting system.

Q. Okay. So monthly up to July of 2002 and then it was quarterly?

A. I believe it was July.

Q. All right. I’m going to turn to some of the other pages. By the way, these pages don’t seem to be in chronological order, do they?

A. I don’t know.

Q. Okay.

A. They should be.

Q. Okay. Well, that’s all right. I didn’t -- let’s -- I’m going to try to keep the pages together here.

I’m going to go a few more pages into the materials. And these two pages are next to each other, so I’m going to ask to put these up one after the other and see if they have anything to do with anything.

All right. The first page is something entitled, “Application for Cash Aid, Food Stamps, and/or Medi-Cal, State CMSP (CW1).” Now, I heard about a CW7 earlier. The “7” is the monthly report?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Okay. So this is a CW1. What is the purpose of this?

A. The CW1 is taken when the participant first comes in, into our office. This is the first page of their application.

Q. Oh, okay. So this -- in this packet, it follows that Statement of Facts, but actually this would have been part of the application?

A. The original.

Q. Okay. And if we look down here, it says, “I need” -- I think everybody can see it there. Here we go. Right here, it says, “I need,” and it says, “Cal-Works, immediate need payment; yes.” “Food stamp, expedited service; yes.” “Medi-Cal or are pregnant and have an immediate medical need; yes,” correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that would have been Janet Arvizo’s request?

A. Yes.

Q. And this would be the signature of Janet Arvizo, the applicant?

A. Correct.

Q. The date, 11-15-01?

A. Correct.

Q. And what’s that? Looks like the signature of a witness?

A. That’s the signature of our -- one of our clerks that takes the application at the window.

Q. So the clerk is certifying that Janet Arvizo is signing this on that date; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And this particular form says that the person certifies that they got a cover sheet, and it says, “I understand and agree that I have to comply with eligibility rules, some of which I may be asked to do before any aid can be given. I understand the statements I have made on this form may be checked and verified,” correct?

A. Correct.
Q. And there’s another entry there. The last part before the signature says, “I declare, under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America and the State of California, that information I have given on this form is true and correct and complete” -- “true, correct and complete,” right?
A. Correct.
Q. So this is signed under penalty of perjury as well.
The next page in the file, and I’m quite frankly not sure if this goes directly with it or not, can you tell us what that page is?
A. Those are the notices that have been issued to the participant, and, no, it does not go with that first page.

Q. Okay. It’s also dated 11-15-2001, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. So this is basically a receipt that the person who is applying for welfare payments acknowledges that the following items were reviewed with her and issued to her today, on 11-15-2001, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And included in those are the cover sheet of the application for cash aid, food stamps and/or Medi-Cal, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And it says, “Cover Sheet.” Does that mean that’s the whole Statement of facts?
A. No. That’s the cover sheet. There is a cover sheet that goes on it.
Q. And is this issued before they sign the Statement of Facts?
A. It’s issued after.

Q. After. Is there reference to the Statement of Facts here in all these code numbers?
A. The reference would be both on the SAWS 1 and SAWS 2A. They would give them all their responsibilities.
Q. All right. So the idea that you’re signing under penalty of perjury and telling the Department of Public Social Services that what you’re saying is the truth is covered by one or more of these forms; is that correct?

A. Yes.
THE COURT: All right. We’ll take our break.
(Recess taken.)
THE COURT: Counsel?
MR. SANGER: May I proceed?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SANGER: Your Honor, we had on the board a page that we’ve been talking about, which, for the purpose of the record, is the best way to put it.
And I want to put it back up on the board.
THE COURT: All right.
MR. SANGER: Thank you.
Q. Now, this was the page that -- you were just telling us about this page, and down at the bottom there, it has “Client’s Signature.” Would that be Janet Arvizo’s signature?
A. Yes, it would.
Q. And that’s dated 11-15-2001. That would have been the date that she signed that?
A. Correct.
Q. And it says, “Copy to client.” So the client, that being Janet Arvizo, would have gotten a copy of this as well; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Now I’m going to put up the next page in order in the exhibit, 5106.
Looking at the top part, did this have something to do with the application of Janet Arvizo on 11-15-01?

A. That’s what they use to clear her name, and if she had a previous record, case, with the county.

Q. All right. So when you're -- it's like running a records check; is that correct?

A. Yes. That's our Medi-Cal system that that form is from.

Q. And the date is 11-15-01, so that would have been when that was done?

A. Correct.

Q. I see some handwriting on the bottom. Is that your handwriting?

A. No, it's not.

Q. Okay. What would be the purpose of this type of a note in the file?

A. That -- you know, we don't have a screener. The intake worker that was interviewing her before me would have taken notes down. And once it became aware to that intake worker that it was a domestic violence, and then she referred her to me.

Q. Okay. That's interesting. You can turn around a bit, it will make it easier, and I'll ask you about that in a minute. Turn around this way, and that will make it easier to talk into the microphone.

You said the case was referred to you because it was domestic violence?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you have some particular role there with regard to domestic violence cases?

A. I was the intake domestic violence worker.

Q. So when Janet Arvizo first came in, she talked to another intake worker; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that intake worker would have gone over the same questions; is that correct?

A. Not on the application.

Q. Okay.

A. Which does a screening first to see what the participant needs.

Q. Okay. So a preliminary kind of screening?

A. Correct.

Q. And then when it was determined who should get the final screening, it was sent to you to do the final screening?

A. The final intake.

Q. All right. Now, the intake worker -- and now you can turn around, if you like, and take a look.

The intake worker made a note here, and this says, looks like, “Mother and three children, all U.S. born,” and then it indicates, “Gavin has cancer. Advised mother to apply for SSI.”

Would that be an ordinary kind of a note?

A. Yes.

Q. And that would be the course of action that an intake worker might pursue; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. So in addition to the benefits that are being sought through your office, Janet Arvizo was advised that she could apply for benefits through the federal government through SSI; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that’s a program under Social Security, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. It also indicates - and I’m going to lengthen the abbreviations, unless I’m wrong, so tell me - “Month last worked was 10-31-01 due to surgery on her foot”; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then it says, “On DIB.” I guess disability?

A. Correct.

Q. $104 a week for disability that she was getting?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, it says, “No bank accounts. No cars.”

A. Correct.

Q. Does that reflect, in the ordinary course of business in your department, that somebody would have asked her, “Do you have any bank accounts?”

A. Yes, we did.

Q. And any cars?

A. Yes.

Q. And you not only ask for cars, but you ask for access or use of a vehicle; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. And according to this, there was no bank accounts and no use of a vehicle?

A. Well, the “no cars” would be that she was -- does not own a vehicle.

Q. Fair enough. And “no bank accounts” would be no bank accounts, right?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And then it says -- what’s the abbreviation down there?

A. It says, “Part.” Participant.

Q. Participant, okay. “Participant also applying for divorce due to domestic violence,” “DV”?

A. Correct.

Q. So this would have been information coming from Janet Arvizo to that first worker; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And when you got the file, then, you would have looked at that note in the file?

A. Right.

Q. And in fact, that’s the reason it was sent to you particularly, because it was a DV case, domestic violence case?

A. Right.

Q. All right. The next -- ask leave to put up the next piece of paper in order, if I may.

THE COURT: You may.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And this is another piece of paper. It says “Emergency” on the side there. Whose handwriting is that; do you know?

A. No, I don’t.

Q. Would that be the applicant’s handwriting?

A. No, I believe it would be one of our clerks.

Q. So it would probably be an intake worker of some sort?

A. No, one of our clerks, the receptionist.

Q. So this would be the very first page, the very first piece of paper in the process?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And it shows the applicant as applying for various benefits, and it says, “Are you in need of emergency?” I think that’s what it says. “Are you in need of emergency”?

A. Correct.

Q. Right?

A. Correct.

Q. By that we mean emergency benefits, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then down here it says, “Domestic abuse, child and spousal,” correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And this is based on information that would have been obtained from Janet Arvizo herself?

A. Correct.

Q. An emergency -- an emergency request, as noted up here on the end, is that noted for some reason in your department?

A. Yes, in order to expedite services to that participant.

Q. And why do you -- I mean, it may be obvious, but explain why you have a process to expedite services.

A. One might be the family’s in danger. We don’t want to put the children in -- and, you know, the woman back in there.

Q. All right. And so they need to have money right away so they can go someplace to be safe?

A. Well, not always cash, but we can locate a shelter.

Q. Okay. And so when you say “emergency,” it means, “We need” -- “We’re just not going to put this in the system and go through the normal process; we’re going to pay special attention to your case”?

A. Correct.

MR. SANGER: All right. I’m going to put up 5099, if I may. That’s been received.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: If you were aware -- you haven't seen this before, but this is admitted into evidence.

If you were aware that Janet Arvizo personally, in addition to what her children got, had received a check for $32,000, $32,308, and that she had -- it's dated on November 2nd -- that she had actually deposited it in her bank on November 5th, 2001, would that have affected your decision as to whether or not this was an emergency case?

A. Yes, it would.

Q. Okay. Now, you mentioned that there was a need to fill out a monthly application form, or a monthly -- I'm sorry, what do we call it? It was a monthly form to show that there were no changes; is that correct?

A. Correct.

MR. SANGER: All right. Sorry, Your Honor, excuse me just one second.

Q. I may be wrong, but I'm not sure that I find all the monthly eligibility reports in here. Did you see a set for monthly and then quarterly?

A. I didn't see a set. I believe I saw one.

MR. SANGER: Yeah. With the Court's permission, I'll put this up.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And this, for the record, is from 5106 and it's a page somewhere in the middle.

I'll put it back in the same order.

Now, this particular form -- this is the monthly eligibility report that you would expect to be filled out by applicants each month to be entitled to welfare assistance the next month; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Skipping down to the bottom, this one is dated 1-10-03, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. It appears, it says here, "Received January 9, '03." And then it says, upside down, "SCU scanned." What does that mean?

A. We have clerks that scan the reports as they come in.
Q. Is it possible that these other reports are scanned in the system somewhere and they just didn’t make it to the court documents?
A. Yes.
Q. In fact, you would expect that, if somebody received --
A. Correct.
Q. If somebody received assistance the entire time, you would expect to have these every month?
A. Yes. If not, their case would be terminated.
Q. This is really hard to read, so -- I’m going to try to make it harder. I’ll make it a little easier there.
This question, No. 3, is that a standard question on all of these monthly eligibility reports?
A. Yes.
Q. And what’s the purpose of Question No. 3?
A. It’s to determine eligibility.
Q. And in essence, you want to find out if, during the last month or since the last report, there has been any change, people have come up with some money from some source; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. And it says, “Did anyone receive money or benefits from any other source?” All right?
A. Correct.
Q. And it says, “Include child, spousal support, interest or dividends.”
Now, that would pertain to interest or dividends on accounts that were held in the name of children; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. I’ll skip over here. “Legal settlements, strike benefits.” Cash is included; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. And it wouldn’t matter whether it was cash in greenbacks, as they say, or if it was a cashier’s check; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. Or a regular check, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Gifts? So a gift would count, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Loans? If somebody said, “Well, I’m going to loan it to the person. If they can pay it back, fine, and if they can’t, it’s okay,” it would still go in there, right?

A. It would still go in the record.

Q. There’s a number of other things here. Basically that’s intended to describe what you mean by “Anyone receive money or benefits from any other source,” right?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Now, on 1-10-03, it appears that this applicant said, “No change,” and checked the box “No” there; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. There is a second page to this form, is there not?

A. The reverse side.

Q. Should be on the other side? Ahh. Yes, there is. How about that?

And on this form Question 7, it says, “Did anyone move in or out of your home, or did you move in with someone else?” Correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And if somebody had moved in with their boyfriend and were living there, you would want to know about it?

A. Yes.

Q. What if somebody was just living there about half the time. Would you still want to know about it?

A. Yes.

Q. And this person said, “No.” Is that correct?

A. Yes. That’s correct.

Q. And then, just in case, it’s hard to make it fit yet be able to read it. But in this particular case, it says, “Does anyone have anything else to report, including expected changes, et cetera?” Right?

A. Correct.

Q. So you’re really telling them, “Look, be honest with us. Tell us what’s going on in your life,” right?

A. Yes.

Q. And then this form was signed by Janet Arvizo on 1-1-03; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And was that form relied upon by your office for the purpose of disseminating welfare benefits?

A. Yes.

Q. And you saw some of these checks that I showed you, I think three checks there, from January, February and March of 2003, the last one being March 17, 2003. Were those checks, based on, in at least one case, this particular form, and in all cases on filing a similar form?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Now, if somebody received $600 in cash at Christmas because they said they really needed money and a nice person said, “Here, I’m going to give you $600,” is that something that should have been reported on such a form?

A. Yes.

Q. Would that affect eligibility?

A. It could affect eligibility.

Q. Okay. In February of 2003. Now we have a March 17, 2003, check showing welfare was still being received.

If a person received a check in the amount of -- I’m sorry, either check or cash in the amount of $2,000 on February 20th, is that something they should have reported to welfare?

A. Yes.

Q. If a person were receiving several thousand dollars for their living expenses from various sources, from a corporation and from an individual, during a period of time from February to early March, is that something that should have been reported by the person before accepting a March 17 welfare check?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: With the Court’s permission, I’ll put up the next page in order.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Oh, before I do that, let’s assume somebody receives a windfall. They get a lot of money and they got their February check and they know they got all this money. They don’t report it for some reason, and they get their March 17 check. Is it proper for them to keep that check?

A. It all depends when they received this amount of money.

Q. If they received the -- let’s say they received the amount of money between -- during the month of February and then they go ahead and get a check March 17, and deposit it or cash it sometime later in the month. Is that appropriate or should they refuse to cash it?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’m going to object as vague as to the term “appropriate” or “proper.”

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: They should report it. And if they received it in January, it would affect their March.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Would February affect their March?

A. We would consider it as a resource and we would have to do a work sheet on it. Yes, it would.

Q. So before they are really entitled to a March 17 check, you’d theoretically want to know about what money they received in February?

A. Yes.

Q. And welfare -- recipients of -- people who are receiving these benefits from the government are advised, are they not, that they have to report any significant changes in their situation?

A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: I'm going to now, if I may, put up the next page.
Q. First of all, who is Pamela Adkins?
A. I believe she's another worker at the Lincoln Heights office.
Q. So we have, "Attention: Pamela Adkins" with a little heart over the "i" there. So this is a note to somebody in your office; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And the fax number, is that a fax number you're familiar with?
A. That's a fax number to Lincoln Heights.
Q. All right. I'm not sure -- let me just see, here. Don't -- just -- if I may, let me put it up and see if you can read it there. Otherwise I'll bring it up to you.
Can you tell what the fax date on this is?
A. No.

MR. SANGER: Okay. May I approach the witness?
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Of course now you're sitting in the dark, which is apparently my fault here. But can you see that?
A. I can see partially.
MR. SANGER: If I may just ask the question up here, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Can you tell me what date that was faxed?
A. It appears to be March 3rd, 2003.
Q. Okay. Very well. Now I'm going to put this up again. And it says, "I, Janet Arvizo, chooses to discontinue and be off of the welfare system aid effective today, 3-3. Thank you so much, Janet Arvizo." Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Do you often receive letters like this?
A. We do receive.
Q. So people tell you that circumstances have changed and they're no longer going to be on welfare?

A. Yes.

Q. After this was sent, apparently this check of March 17 was cut and eventually sent to Janet Arvizo. Why would that be?

A. Because we have a cut-off date. If they wanted their aid terminated the beginning of March, that would be for the end of February they would give us notice. But this seems that she did this in March, and everything was already mailed out to be batched out.

Q. So the check was in the pipeline one way or another?

A. Right.

Q. All right. Now, if this person who wrote this, Janet Arvizo, had, in fact, during the month of March, between -- I'm sorry, let me withdraw that.

During the month of February of 2003, if Janet Arvizo had received several thousand dollars in gifts, spa treatments, trips to Miami, private jet flights, lodging, food, if she had received that sort of thing during the month of February, should she have reported that to the welfare department?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, if Janet Arvizo had, in fact, been living with her boyfriend, a major in the United States Army, who was paying her expenses and depositing her welfare checks in his bank account, should she have reported that?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object as compound and assumes facts not in evidence, improper hypothetical.

MR. SANGER: I'll break it down, if you like.

THE COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Let's take it one at a time.

If a person were -- I think I asked you this part already, but let me just be sure. If a person were residing -- a welfare applicant or participant were residing with her boyfriend in his apartment, is that something that should have been reported to the welfare department before accepting checks?

A. Yes.

Q. If that person, in this case Janet Arvizo, were in fact depositing her welfare checks into her boyfriend's bank account, is that something that should have been reported?

A. Yes.

Q. If the boyfriend were a major in the United States Army, with a base pay, exclusive of allowances, a base pay of over $5,000, is that something that should have been reported to the welfare department?

A. Yes.

Q. If the boyfriend, the major in the United States Army, were, in fact, paying expenses for Janet Arvizo, is that something that should be reported?

A. Yes.

Q. Would each of those factors have an impact on the eligibility of that person to receive welfare?

A. Yes.

Q. And I'll ask you to assume, for the moment, that those facts are true that I just recited with regard to the boyfriend. Janet Arvizo was living there. He was a major in the United States Army. He was depositing her checks and he was paying some of the expenses, and his income was $5,000 -- more than $5,000 per month base pay. Would that cause her to be ineligible for the type of welfare that you see in this file?

A. No.

Q. So she would still be able to get all this welfare?

A. Not "all."

Q. Okay. How would it affect her welfare?

A. We would determine what the cost -- what he's paying, and we would include it as in-kind, and we would deduct that from the amount of her grant.

If he’s purchasing -- and they’re purchasing and preparing their food together, their whole income has to be counted as one.
Q. All right. So you would have to do a calculation to see if she’d still be entitled to welfare?
A. Correct.

Q. Now, if he had an automobile and she had the use of the automobile, is that something that you would want to have reported?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’m going to object. Assumes facts not in evidence.
MR. SANGER: The testimony of Mrs. Arvizo.
THE COURT: The objection is overruled.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Is that something you would want to know?
A. If the vehicle’s not in her name, it would not be counted towards her grant.
Q. So there’s a question on the original form about having the use of a vehicle. Is that something you do not have to disclose in the monthly updates?
A. Not on a monthly update.
Q. Okay. Now, if somebody is receiving more welfare than they’re entitled to, is that a concern that you have?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. And you had mentioned in your lay version of fraud -- I’m not asking for a legal opinion, but you said you were trying to avoid fraud. Is that fraud that you’re trying to avoid?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: Now I’m going to refer -- if I may, Your Honor, this is the one I put up first, the Statement of Facts, which turns out to be chronologically second.

I wanted to make sure everything was in the same order.
Q. Taking a look at this, this says -- this is a Statement of Facts, and it says, “Current print date 10-23-02," correct?

A. Correct.
Q. And I think we covered before that it says, "For application dated 11-15-01"; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. So the next year, this is the one where Miss Arvizo came back and talked to Pamela Adkins in your office; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. And we go through the same questions here as of 10-23-02 that we covered in the other form. The form remains the same. It didn't change; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. And there remains the question, for instance, No. 53, which I'll now put up with the Court's permission: "Has anyone received money from insurance or court settlements, inheritance, lottery or back pay in the last three years?" Correct?
A. Correct.
Q. So once again, that same settlement -- if a settlement were received for $152,000 November 5th, 2001, that should have been disclosed in response to that question even a year later, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And if the children of the applicant still had bank accounts that had money in them, is that something that should have been disclosed in this form?
A. Yes.
Q. And it appears that it was not disclosed in this form; is that correct?
A. Correct.
MR. SANGER: And I'm going to put the last page on, if I may, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: And this is the signature page, once again showing under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America and the State of California; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And it appears that Janet Arvizo signed this form on 10-23-02?

A. Correct.

Q. And the -- besides the monthly and later quarterly updates -- I always forget the name of that. Whatever they’re called, the monthly eligibility reports. In addition to that, the department, your department, relies on these Statement of Facts, these annual Statement of Facts in order to award welfare?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. I’m going to put -- actually, this part of it being a little bit out of order here, there are a number of documents that you use -- or let me withdraw that.

There are a number of documents generated when there’s a claim of domestic violence; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Do the applicants always bring in their police reports and divorce papers?

A. No, not always.

Q. In this case, do you know if Mrs. Arvizo brought in papers?

A. I believe she did.

Q. Okay. And back in 2001 -- I apologize for the lack of sequence here, but I just discovered these. Back in 2001, did Janet Arvizo indicate that she did not want to go to a shelter?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you gave her a form that gave information about domestic violence information -- I’m sorry, that’s redundant. You gave her a form entitled, “Confidential Domestic Violence Information”; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that told her about her -- the sorts of things that she could avail herself of in addition to the actual money that you were dispensing; is that right?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. I think I’m almost through here, Your Honor. Just one more moment.

Q. Did it appear at some point that you realized -- I’m sorry.

Did it appear at some point from this file that your department became aware that Janet Arvizo was receiving other assistance? Do you want to look at the file so --

A. Yes.

Q. You don’t know without looking?

A. No, I would not.

Q. All right. I’m going to approach with these three pages of the exhibit.

I’ve just handed you three pages that appear to apply to other benefits other than the DPSS benefits; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And what does that show?

A. That she was entitled to receive -- that she did receive disability benefits.

Q. Okay. So is that something that -- a check that you run through your computer somehow?

A. Yes. There’s a match.

MR. SANGER: May I approach and exchange documents? This one for that one.

Q. This is a document I’ve located in your file. It appears to be a rent receipt, and it’s in the Janet Arvizo file from your department. Why would that be in there?

A. It’s to -- we use a rent amount in order to calculate her food stamp allotment.

Q. Okay. And that shows that Raymond Trujillo was getting 400-and-some dollars a month; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So in the course of calculating her food stamp allowance, you were assuming that she was actually paying rent in October of 2002 of 400-and-some dollars a month; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. If you were aware that the landlord had allowed her to stay in that apartment rent free for a period of time, would that have been something that should have been reported to you?

Let me withdraw that, because that question made no sense, if you’re aware of it.

Let me put it this way: If a person presenting a rent receipt like that in fact had been given free rent for a period of time by her landlord, is that something that should have been reported to you?

A. Yes.

Q. And if, in fact, in 2003, in January and February, somebody else was paying that rent, that $425 a month, is that something that should have been reported to the department?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. If I may retrieve that so I can put it back in the same place here.

Okay. I have no further questions of this witness at this time.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good afternoon, Miss Manrriquez.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. Tell me, why is there a domestic violence unit in the welfare department?

A. We have a domestic violence worker, and the reason is that we want to make sure that we take care of those people. We don’t want to put them in any danger. We want to take them out of that.

Q. Do they have special needs that need to be addressed in the welfare system that are different from your average recipient of welfare?

A. Their safety.

Q. Okay. And when you spoke to Janet Arvizo back in 2001, did she express concern for her safety in regards to her domestic violence situation?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. In what way did she express her concern for her safety?

A. That she was afraid to go back home.

Q. All right. In fact, did she ask for an escort from the welfare department to accompany her to her home to make sure she was safe?

A. We don’t escort our participants.

Q. But isn’t there a request in the file from her to obtain an escort --

A. Yes, there is.

Q. -- to transfer her home, to help her get home safely?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, in your reports, your official reports indicate that she was receiving welfare, food stamps and Medi-Cal; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the Medi-Cal covers insurance, health insurance, over and above an individual’s needs that are covered by their own insurance; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So if a person has their own insurance, that doesn’t exclude them from Medi-Cal?

A. Does not exclude them.

Q. So if Janet Arvizo had insurance coverage, that wouldn’t prevent her from getting these benefits?

A. No, it would not.

Q. Do you know if she received any Medi-Cal benefits?

A. Medi-Cal goes hand in hand with Cal-Works.

Q. But if she actually received any insurance proceeds from Medi-Cal, do you know if any --

A. I don’t know.

Q. Okay. And as far as her -- as far as her receiving disability, counsel asked you a few questions about that, that she received some disability benefits; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And were those disability benefits for a time when she was unable to work because she had to have surgery?

A. Yes, it is.

MR. SANGER: Objection. Well, calls for speculation.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, is that reflected -- I'll let the Court rule.

THE COURT: What you're asking her is if that's on the application?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes.

THE COURT: Rephrase your question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: The question, really, I have is based upon your records. Is it reflected that Janet Arvizo had to have some surgery, and that's why she went on disability for a period of time?

A. It's noted at the intake.

Q. Okay. And that was for a limited period of time while she was going through her medical procedures?

A. I believe so.

Q. Okay. In your experience, how diligent are welfare recipients, if you can characterize, about these details concerning reporting gifts, reporting if someone lets them use their car, that kind of thing? How --

MR. SANGER: Objection. Compound; vague; and not relevant.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Do you often find that at Christmastime people come rushing down to the welfare office to report their Christmas gifts?

MR. SANGER: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: When did the quarterly notices go into effect?

A. Quarterly notices, I believe -- I want to say July of 2004. I thought it was '3, but it may be 2004. We just went in -- Cal-Works --

Q. Okay.

A. -- just went into quarterly reports.

Q. Did you say before it was 2003?

A. I did. But I believe it's 2004.

Q. Are you sure?

A. I'm not positive.

Q. Is it possible that it was in effect in 2003, based on your recollections?

A. It may have been. But like I say, I'm not positive.

Q. If a mother sets up a trust account for their child, based upon proceeds from a personal injury case, and this trust account cannot be touched by the mother or by the child until that time -- the time that the child reaches maturity, 18 years old, would that affect a person's right to receive welfare?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Improper hypothetical. It assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Can you tell me if funds placed in trust for a child, let's say by a lawyer, that the child cannot receive, would that affect -- would those funds placed in trust that the child cannot touch, would that affect their eligibility for welfare?

MR. SANGER: Objection; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes, it would.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. And if the funds cannot be used for current needs, why would that limit eligibility for welfare?

A. They would have to actually bring in a 11622 statement saying that they cannot touch it, but even if they were to be penalized for withdrawing that money.

Q. I'm saying they can't withdraw the money even with penalty. It cannot be withdrawn. It's untouchable.

MR. SANGER: I object. This calls for speculation; it's an improper hypothetical; assumes facts not in evidence.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I believe counsel's asked numerous questions about interest on these accounts.

THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: I believe it still would have --

THE COURT: Just a minute. He has to ask another question.

THE WITNESS: Oh, I'm sorry, sir.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: If a child is going to receive benefits at 18 that he cannot receive before that time, regardless of the benefit, okay? It's an item that the child cannot receive. The child is, let's say, a teenager. Would that affect eligibility for welfare?

MR. SANGER: Well, again, improper hypothetical; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. If a welfare recipient does not have a bank account of their own, and they allow a friend to cash that check for them, and then they obtain those welfare benefits from that friend, is that a violation of the rules of receiving welfare?

A. No.

Q. Okay. So if an individual has a boyfriend and she uses his account to simply cash the check, and then she receives those funds, that's not a violation?

A. That's not.

Q. What about if she uses those funds to be deposited into his account and then he, in turn, writes a check, for instance, to her landlord. In other words, using the funds for the benefit intended, but it's just run through the paperwork in that fashion. Is that a violation? Do you understand the question?

A. I believe I do understand, and he's the one -- we, in our department, would say he is the one paying the bills.

Q. Okay. But if -- let's say the boyfriend simply writes the check to the landlord. She gives him $450 from her welfare. He writes a check to the landlord -- for $450 to the landlord. Is that a problem?

A. Yes, it would be.

Q. And why would that be?

A. We are now looking that he's making out the check. He's paying it.

Q. Okay.

A. He's the one that's paying the rent.

Q. Even though the benefit to the welfare recipient is the same?

A. Correct.

Q. Would that term be something more technical in nature?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And as far as receiving, let's say, a trip to Miami, suppose someone takes you to Miami, pays for your plane fare to Miami, allows you to stay, at their expense, at a hotel for a couple of days, and then you fly back, all at the expense of this friend. Is that something that's going to affect your eligibility for welfare?

A. No.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you. I have no further questions.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Let's just pick up where we left off.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. If during the month of February, let us say, somebody not only takes the trip to Miami, has all expenses paid, including food, but during this same period of time they then return and stay, all expenses paid, somewhere during the entire month, including another luxury hotel for a period of time, including a beautiful home that belongs to a major celebrity. The whole month, in essence, they're taken care of. Is that something that needs to be reported?

A. If it's over 30 days that they're out of their home, they need to report that.

Q. Okay. So if it was from February 6th to March the 12th, where either the children or the parent, or both of them, were out of the home, living all expenses paid on somebody else's nickel, is that something that should have been reported?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Compound; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: You’re basically looking to find out if this is somebody who, month to month, has a need for welfare, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, I posed several hypotheticals to you. And I want to avoid doing them all again, but we had a number of expenses that were paid that we talked about being paid that include not only lodging, but food, purchase of gifts, spa treatments, full body waxes, cosmetics.

If somebody was receiving that kind of a treatment for a month, is that the sort of person who should also be receiving a check from the government for welfare?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Vague, compound and assumes facts not in evidence. I’ll throw in argumentative, too.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Do you want to have accurate information on your monthly reports so that you can evaluate who’s really entitled to welfare in this state when you’re doing the job as an eligibility worker?

A. Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Asked and answered; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. SANGER: I’m sorry, did you rule, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. SANGER: Thank you. And the answer came in?

THE COURT: I believe so.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Now, I’d like to put up 5098. 5099 first, if I may.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’m going to object as beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled. Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. I think I showed you this check for $32,307.88, something like that, and asked you about this previously. The District Attorney asked you about some kind of trust account.

If Janet Arvizo, in fact, had access to this money, no matter whose name the account was in, is that something that should have been reported on her initial form on 11-15-01?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And I'll put up 5098, if I may. This has been received into evidence that there was, in fact, a cashier's check to Hollywood Ford, but there's no indication as to who actually got the proceeds from this check. However, it was withdrawn shortly after the money was deposited in Miss Arvizo's account and it was withdrawn by Miss Arvizo herself.

Is that the kind of financial transaction that you would want to know about days before deciding whether or not she's entitled to welfare?

A. Yes.

Q. I believe -- it's hard to see, and I apologize. I believe that's November 9th. I think that's what it says up there.

Now, those -- if somebody has access to funds and uses the funds, it doesn't matter what the name of the account is, does it?

A. As long as they're a household member.

Q. Okay. So now we'll move on to -- there's one question to which there was not an objection sustained that had to do with a trust account.

If the children of Miss Arvizo, Star and Gavin, received between them in excess of $40,000 at this same time that you just saw these transactions for Janet Arvizo herself, if they received an additional $40,000, whether --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll object to the amount. Misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: Go ahead. Complete your question.

MR. SANGER: Well, let’s do it -- just so -- I believe that’s correct, but let me just put it this way.

Q. If one child received in excess of 25,000 and the other child received in excess of $10,000 at the same time that this transaction occurred when Mrs. Arvizo received her $32,000, and that money was put in any kind of a bank account for their benefit, is that something that was required to be disclosed to your department on these forms?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, the District Attorney in that question about a trust account -- does it matter whether it’s a trust account or not a trust account, if they received the money for their benefit?

A. No, it should be reported.

Q. And if it’s reported and there’s some argument about it, you would want to see all the documentation about that account; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. But the form clearly says you have to report any money in bank accounts for any of the people in the family; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. There were questions about the boyfriend paying the rent, and I got lost on some of that, but basically one of the concerns that you have in your department is that participants will receive benefits, let us say, and at some point their circumstances change and they start living with someone else who starts providing for their basic needs, and you need to know about that; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And it’s not uncommon that people will move in with a boyfriend or a girlfriend, and that boyfriend or girlfriend will start paying for things that the participant previously had to pay for out of his or her own pocket, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And part of your screening process for each month's eligibility is to determine whether or not that has occurred, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And if you aren't told about it, you don't have an ability to evaluate it; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. And you believe that it's -- that it's part of the reporting requirement that a person who moves in with a boyfriend, and the boyfriend is not only cashing the welfare checks, but also paying rent and paying other expenses on behalf of the participant, that that participant has an obligation to report that so you can evaluate it, correct?

A. Correct.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Compound. Sustained.

MR. SANGER: It wasn't asked and answered? If it wasn't, I won't ask any more questions.

THE COURT: Okay. Asked and answered.

MR. SANGER: There you go. Okay. I have no further questions.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Just real quickly, clearly if Mrs. Arvizo received a $30,000 settlement, that should have been reported and mentioned to welfare; isn't that fair to say?

A. Correct.

Q. The only question that I have remaining is not whether or not the reporting of funds placed in a trust account for children should have taken place. My question is, provided that children -- the children in the family received those funds, they were placed in trust, and they cannot be touched until the children became adults, that wouldn't affect the eligibility for welfare, would it, just as far as eligibility goes?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Improper hypothetical; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I believe there are a couple of exhibits that are in evidence, 820 and 824, dealing with the trust.

THE COURT: Let's see. I don't have those up here.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I can tell you my foundation based on -- at sidebar if you want.

THE COURT: I'll look at your exhibit.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: 821 and 820.

THE COURT: The problem that I'm having with your hypothetical is that the....

See, the problem in the exhibits is that under these compromises for minors, the Court can always authorize the release of funds. So, every question you've asked, with the exception of one, presupposed that the minor couldn't get to the funds. And it's just not the law. The law is that the Court can give access to the funds. That's what the document says. So let's go to our next question.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. I have no further questions then. Thank you.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: Nor do I.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: You're welcome.

THE COURT: Call your next witness, please.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor. The defense will call Miss Marian Arvizo.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

MARIAN ARVIZO

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Marian Arvizo.

Spelled M-a-r-i-a-n; Arvizo, A-r-v-i-z-o.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good afternoon, Miss Arvizo.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. Miss Arvizo, are you related to David Arvizo?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. How are you related to him?

A. I'm his sister.

Q. Okay. And do you live in the Los Angeles area?

A. I do.

Q. Okay. Do you know Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And how do you know her?

A. She was married to my brother David Arvizo.

Q. Approximately when did you first meet Janet Arvizo, just approximately?

A. About 19 -- about 18, 19 years ago.

Q. Okay. And did you stay in contact with her through the years?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did you at some point learn that Gavin Arvizo was ill?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And how did you learn that?

A. Through fellow neighbors in the neighborhood that I live in, that my family lived in, in South El Monte.

Q. This is El Monte?

A. In South El Monte.

Q. Okay. Now, at this point in time, when you learned that Gavin was ill, were Janet and David still together?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. Okay. And did you visit Gavin at the hospital?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. Did you get involved in any efforts to do any drives for Gavin?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did you do?

A. I organized a blood drive that was held at the Von’s warehouse in El Monte.

Q. Now, approximately when did you start organizing the blood drive for Gavin?

A. I don’t remember the dates and times. It was probably maybe -- it was at the time where he was needing -- he was needing blood transfusions pretty frequently. And what happened was, is that the news had put out that they needed blood for him --

Q. Okay.

A. -- because --

Q. Let me just ask one question at a time, if I can. Thank you.

You say that the news had put out information that there was a need for blood for Gavin?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you hear that on the news?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. So you were not talking to Janet when you learned that?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. And did you learn there was a particular type of blood that he needed?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did you learn that?

A. On the news.

Q. Okay. What did you do after you learned that information on the news?

A. I -- I started to see if I can organize a blood drive to get more of the blood type that he needed, because it was a rare blood type.

Q. What did you do to organize the drive?

A. I had a -- I knew of a woman that worked at Kaiser, who was in charge, by the name of Marie Triggs. And I talked to her and asked her how would

I go about organizing a blood drive to help them out to make sure he had enough blood.
Q. And did you learn from her what to do?
A. Yes. She did help me to organize the blood drives.
Q. And Kaiser was the hospital that Gavin was -- the hospital that Gavin was being treated at?
A. Yes, she was -- he was.
Q. And what did you do to put a blood drive together?

A. We talked to one of the supervisors at the Von's warehouse, and he opened up the warehouse for us to come in and have the guys donate blood. And Marie Triggs and I met there, and we went into the warehouse and set up in the break room and did a small blood drive there with all -- I don't remember how many units of blood she got that day, but there was quite a few people that donated.
Q. Now, why did you choose Von's to do the drive?
A. I'm also an employee for Von's, and I had heard through several people that there was a lot of guys at the warehouse that were interested in donating blood.
Q. You say you're also an employee of Von's. What did you mean by that? Who else are you referring to that was employed there?
A. My brother, David.
Q. That's David?
A. Yes.
Q. And so you both were working at Von's at the same time?
A. He works in the warehouse now and I work in the stores.
Q. Okay. And was David working at this point in time at Von's; do you know?
A. No, I believe he was out.

Q. Okay. Was he out to visit David (sic) at the hospital?
A. I believe he was still with Gavin and going through his -- the chemo and all the --

Q. Right.

A. -- at the hospital.

Q. So you had a blood drive, right?

A. Yes.

Q. At Von’s?

A. Yes.

Q. And approximately how many people do you think came to the blood drive?

A. I would say maybe 25 or 30.

Q. Were they mostly people from Von’s?

A. They were all the guys in the warehouse.

Q. Okay. And did you actually obtain blood for Gavin?

A. Yes, we did.

Q. Okay. And did you do more than one blood drive?

A. Yes. We did -- also did a second blood drive. One of my sisters, her sister-in-law’s church donated the church recreational room. And Marie Triggs, my sister Karen and myself, we all met down at the church and we had a small blood drive there. It was just announced at the church, so we mostly had -- mostly had church members that came in to donate.

Q. Now, did you communicate with Janet Arvizo about the blood drives you were organizing?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. Did you ever talk to her at all about it?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. Okay. Did she ever contact you about a blood drive?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. And approximately when was this, do you think?

A. I don’t remember a certain day and time.

Q. And do you remember whether or not she wanted to participate in the drive?

A. She didn’t seem to want to participate. She -- I didn’t talk to her before the blood drives. I talked to her -- I talked to her before the blood drives, not while I was doing the blood drives.

Q. And did you offer her the opportunity to get involved?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. Did you offer the opportunity to give her views about whether this was a good idea?

A. Well, there was a letter that went in the City of South El Monte that had information on our family, because we had been in the city for so many years, and that letter actually just said if you are willing to donate blood for Gavin, and gave a specific blood type, that to donate it at the Kaiser on Sunset, and just thanking -- you know, “On behalf of the entire Arvizo family, we thank you.”

And Janet did call me on that.

Q. Did Janet ever complain to you about the blood drive?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. What did she say?

A. She told me that she didn’t need my fucking blood. That she needed money.

Q. And did she call you on the phone when she said that?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. Are you okay?

A. Yes.

Q. What was your response, if any?

A. I think I just hung up on her.

Q. Did you ever talk to her again about the blood drive?

A. No, I don’t believe so.

Q. How many drives do you think you organized for Gavin?

A. There was two blood drives.

Q. The second one was at the church?

A. The second one was at the church.

Q. Okay. Now, after David and Janet separated, do you recall an incident where Gavin, Star and Davellin were swimming?

A. Yes, they came over to my house and went swimming.

Q. Okay. Now, was this long after the separation; do you know?

A. No. It was just in the beginning of the separation.

Q. Okay. And they went swimming at your house?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. And this was in El Monte?

A. This is in Covina.

Q. Covina, okay. All right. And do you recall Star -- whether or not Star ever made a comment about a house they were going to move to?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever learn from Star that the family might move to the Hollywood Hills?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever say anything to Star Arvizo about the family's moving to the Hollywood Hills?

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, the third objection. Hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. ZONEN: Ask for an admonition.

THE COURT: Next question.

MR. MESEREAU: I'll move on. I'll move on, Your Honor.

Q. Have you had any contact with Janet since the conversation you just described?

A. No, I haven't.

Q. Okay. Have had you had any contact with any of the Arvizo children since the drives?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Ms. Arvizo, good afternoon.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. Do you know a Connie Keenan?

A. Do I know Connie Keenan? No, I don’t.
Q. You never met her?
A. I believe I met her today.
Q. That’s the first time you’ve ever met her?
A. Yes.
Q. Had no prior association with her at all?
A. No.
Q. Did you have a prior association with anybody who works at Mid Valley News?
A. No, I don’t.
Q. Had you ever talked with anybody at Mid Valley News?
A. No, I didn’t.

Q. Now, you testified that the manner in which you became familiar with the fact that your nephew needed this blood was from the news account; is that correct?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Was that a news account on the radio or news account on television?
A. On television.
Q. On television?
And had you seen that throughout El Monte on a number of occasions or just on one occasion?
A. Actually, I was viewing the television set at my house in Covina.
Q. You and your brother both work at Von’s; is that right?
A. Yes, we do.
Q. Did you both work at the same Von’s?
A. No. He works in the warehouse and I work in the actual grocery stores.
Q. And do you work in more than one store?
A. No, I work in one store.
Q. Is there a reason your brother didn’t tell you about the need for blood?
A. I didn’t have contact with my brother.
Q. During that period of time?
A. No, I didn’t.
Q. During the time that you were raising money on behalf of Gavin -- excuse me, raising -- not "raising," but recruiting volunteers to donate blood on behalf of Gavin, had you had any contact with your brother at all during that time?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did he tell you about the need for blood that Gavin was experiencing at that time?

A. I explained to him that I was having -- organizing blood drives and doing the best I can to get the information out. As far as him being involved, no.

Q. And was that during the time that you were organizing the blood drives?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And prior to that, how long had it been since you had spoken with your brother David?

A. About 15 years.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. No further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down. Call your next witness.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, shall we call a witness or have a break? Whatever you like.

THE COURT: Do you want to break early?

MR. MESEREAU: Sure.

THE COURT: All right.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: I'm sorry. We took a few minutes longer. We're trying -- as you know, we're getting to the end of the trial. We're --

Is that a sigh I heard?

What Mr. Sneddon and Mr. Mesereau and I were trying to do was just get a feel for where we are and schedule it out in our own minds. We didn't reach any conclusion. We're going to talk again tomorrow, but when we get our --

I think I left my cell phone on. I'm out of here.

THE BAILIFF: I have the "Sorry" card.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: How can I follow that? As soon as we figure out a plan here so that you'll -- we'll tell you, so you know what the schedule for arguments and jury instruction will be, but I don't think we can do that right at this point. We didn't get that final conclusion.
All right. Mr. Mesereau, would you call your next witness?
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, thank you, Your Honor. Defense will call Ms. Connie Keenan.
THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing. Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Good afternoon, Miss Keenan.
A. Good afternoon.
Q. Miss Keenan, how are you employed?
A. I'm sorry, I didn't hear --
Q. How are you employed?
A. I am an editor for a community newspaper.
Q. Which newspaper is that?
A. That's the Mid Valley News.
Q. Where is that newspaper circulated?
A. In El -- well, we circulate in seven cities. The City of El Monte, South El Monte, Rosemead, Monrovia, Arcadia and Temple City.
Q. And how long have you been doing that?
A. Since 1999, June.
Q. Okay. And have you been in the newspaper business before that day?

A. Yes.

Q. And please just summarize what work you’ve done in the newspaper business.

A. I was a reporter, a political reporter, for The Independent Voice in San Diego Valley. Before that, I was fashion editor for Teen Magazine.

Q. Now, where is your office located?

A. Our -- my office is 11401 Valley Boulevard, Suite 100, El Monte.

Q. Okay. At some point in time, did you meet someone named Janet Arvizo?

A. I have never met Mrs. Arvizo.

Q. Have you spoken to her?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. And do you recall the circumstances under which you spoke to her?

A. Mrs. -- I had assigned a story about her son to a college intern I had at the time by the name of Christie Causer. And I had some bad feelings about the whole incident and the whole story, and the mother wanted an additional story because she didn’t make money enough money from the first story. And that’s her words, not mine.

Q. Which story did you authorize the paper to publish?

A. I authorized “Gavin Still Smiles,” which was the story about Mrs. Arvizo’s son, who was suffering from cancer at the time. And the general thrust of the story is with the family was very, very bad off. They were losing their car. They were losing their home. And it’s not a story we normally do. It was one I did not want to do. However, Mrs. Arvizo did play on some sympathies in the office, and it kind of -- I assigned it to Christie to do, because I didn’t want to deal with it.

Q. Now, how did you begin to even think about doing such a story?

A. Mrs. Arvizo called the office.

Q. Okay.

A. And she con -- she continually called the office, and I had told my secretary to tell her --

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor? Excuse me. I’m going to object on the basis of hearsay unless it’s a personal conversation that she had with Mrs. Arvizo. Move to strike.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let me ask you --

THE COURT: Stricken.

MR. MESEREAU: I’m sorry.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. You at the time -- let’s set a time. What year was this, if you know?

A. This would be year 2000.

Q. Okay. And you were editor at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. And does your newspaper have a particular thrust, a particular --

A. Our --

Q. -- theme to it?

A. We do nothing but positive community news. We are not an investigative-type newspaper at all.

Q. And what is positive community news?

A. My goal, when I took over the paper and I purchased the paper, was to -- there’s enough negative media out there. I wanted -- my goal is to make sure every kid in our cities have their face or photo in the publication sometime before I retire.

Q. And how old is the publication?

A. Actually, the publication in itself was adjudicated in 1966.

Q. And has it always had the same sort of thrust to it?

A. No.

Q. Okay. What changes has it gone through?

A. It came -- it’s evolved from a purely political piece, making commentary within the communities it circulated, to, others would say, a purely fluff piece, and that’s where it is now.

Q. Now, at some point you assigned, as you said, the writing of this particular article about Gavin Arvizo to an intern, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you said her name was Christie Causer; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Why did you do that?

A. It is not -- there are many people within the cities I serve that need money and are facing hard times, and my -- I felt that if I did one, I would have to do many, many more. I did not want to deal with it. I thought it was a human interest story, that's something Christie could learn from doing, which was part of her being an intern, but it was something that I didn't want personally to deal with myself.

Q. And when you assigned it to Christie Causer, had you made the decision to have this article about Gavin Arvizo published?

A. No, not until her article was finished.

Q. Was it your idea that you would first see what Christie Causer wrote and then decide whether or not it's publishable?

A. Indeed. That is my job.

Q. And just directing your thoughts to just what you were thinking at the time, what made you decide to have this article written?

A. I read all copy that goes into the newspaper.

Q. Let me rephrase it. I'm not being clear. At some point, you got some information about Gavin Arvizo, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. You thought about whether or not you wanted to assign this project to an intern, right?

A. I don't know where you're going, Counsel.

Q. I'm trying to figure out why you wanted this article written.

A. We kept getting telephone calls from Mrs. Arvizo. Mrs. Arvizo talked to my secretary.

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object. Excuse me. I'm going to object, unless it's based on personal knowledge, as being hearsay.

THE WITNESS: I received messages.

MR. MESEREAU: It’s not offered for the truth.

MR. SNEDDON: Then it has no relevance.

THE COURT: Just a moment. I’ll sustain her objection to her repeating what the secretary said.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Don’t repeat what your secretary said.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. But at some point, you made a decision you wanted this article created, right?

A. Indeed.

Q. And without saying what the secretary said, was it based on the fact that these calls had come in?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Same objection. Move to strike. No personal knowledge; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer was, “Yes.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Without saying what was said, did you have a discussion with someone about this subject matter before --

A. I just --

Q. -- before you decided that you wanted to try and do an article about Gavin?

A. I discussed it with my secretary, and my secretary told me --

Q. You’re not allowed to say what she told you.

A. Okay.

Q. So let me just try -- we have some technical rules we have to follow, okay?

A. All right.

Q. The calls came in, and you discussed it with your secretary, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And after the discussion, you made the independent decision to assign to Christie Causer the responsibility of writing an article about the subject, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And was a draft article written?

A. Yes. A draft article was written. I read through the article. I questioned the amount of money that was supposedly paid for an injection. I questioned the fact that the money had been requested to be sent to Mrs. Arvizo at her home address. And I told Christie that was not ethical, we could not do that, and we would not have that information in the paper unless there was a trust fund that was set up or if -- and that was the only way it would be in the paper.

Q. Now, eventually did you authorize the publishing of that article?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. What was your concern about the costs of an injection?

A. My concern was that $12,000 for an injection was a little over the top. And I said, “Are you sure, Christie, that this was the amount that she said?”

She said she tape-recorded it, and she went through it again, and yes, indeed, she said $12,000 for a chemotherapy injection.

Q. Now, was the intent of the article to raise money to pay for Gavin’s medical expenses?

A. It wasn’t the intent. It was, “If you wish to do so, you may” --

Q. Okay.

A. -- type of thing.

Q. Was it your intent to provide information to readers who wanted to contribute money regarding where to send the money?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you do that?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. As far as what the money was to be raised for, was it your intention that this article was to raise money purely for medical expenses?

A. The thrust -- the whole slant of the article was how expensive it was for his medical care, which is what we assumed that money was going to go toward.

Q. And did you know at the time you authorized the publishing of this article whether or not insurance was paying for Gavin’s medical expenses?
A. I -- I will answer that yes, in a -- in an after-the-fact case.
Q. Let me rephrase it. I’m sorry. I’ll withdraw the question.
Before you published an article that talked about raising money for Gavin, did you know whether or not insurance was paying for his medical expenses?
A. Before that? No, I did not know that.
Q. Now, did you authorize the publishing of an article which talked about $12,000 per injection for Gavin?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And where did that information come from?
A. From Mrs. Arvizo.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object to that as lack of foundation and hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. SNEDDON: Move to strike.
THE COURT: Stricken.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Were there any other purposes to the publishing of this article as far as you were concerned?
A. No other, than --
Q. Did you think this was an issue of community interest like you’ve described?
A. Of course.
Q. Okay. And how often -- or let me rephrase that.
How many times did this article appear?
A. One time.
Q. Okay. Was there any reason why it only appeared one time?
A. Um --
MR. SNEDDON: Object as immaterial and irrelevant.
THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I found out that the child was indeed covered by insurance.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: To your knowledge, was any money raised through your newspaper’s article?

A. Mrs. Arvizo told me that she wanted a second article because she didn’t raise enough money from the first article, and that is why there were no other articles written.

Q. Did you ever learn how much money was, in fact, raised?

A. No, sir.

Q. Now, to your knowledge, did the intern that you’ve mentioned, Christie Causer, actually write the article?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. And did you then edit the article?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And after you edited the article, did you authorize the publication?

A. I did.

Q. Now, how often -- let me get to the year 2000.

How often was your newspaper appearing in the year 2000?

A. Once a week.

Q. Does it still appear once a week?

A. Still once a week.

Q. Okay. Did you ever mention in any of your -- excuse me.

Did you ever mention in your article about Gavin any information about a bank account where people could contribute to?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did the information on that bank account come from?

A. I instructed Mrs. Causer that she could not use the name of Mrs. Arvizo, nor her home address to send money or funds because we would have no idea where the funds went; that we would have to have a trust account.

Approximately four days later, Christie came back to me and said that indeed the family had a trust fund.
Q. Okay. And did you mention that trust fund in the article?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Okay. Did you ever confirm whether or not it was, in fact, a trust fund?
A. No, sir.
Q. Who told you that it was, in fact, a trust fund?
A. It was listed in the article as a trust fund and an employee of that particular bank to refer all matters to.
Q. Do you know who was a signatory on that account?
A. No, sir.
Q. Do you know if any withdrawals were ever made from that account?
A. No, sir.
Q. Do you recall ever communicating with a former attorney for Mr. Michael Jackson named Mark Geragos?

A. I wrote Mr. Geragos a letter.
Q. And was that approximately November 24th, 2003?
A. Approximately, yes.
Q. Okay. Why did you write the letter to him?
A. I had seen the --
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as immaterial, and irrelevant, and calls for hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: No further questions at this time.
THE COURT: Cross-examine?

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SNEDDON:
Q. Good afternoon.
A. Good afternoon.

Q. Did you have a chance to review -- is it Ms. Causer? It's Ms.?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Missus?

(Continuing) -- Ms. Causer's article before you came to court here today?

A. Not yet, but I did bring it.

Q. You didn't review it before you came to court?

A. No.

Q. Did you have a chance to review the article that you wrote in your newspaper about the experience?

A. I did not write an article. I simply --

Q. Well, you wrote an editorial?

A. Oh, I did read an editorial. No, I didn't reread my editorial, no.

Q. Are you acquainted with anybody in the Arvizo family personally?

A. No.

Q. David Arvizo, Marian Arvizo, nobody from that family?

A. No.

Q. And with regard to the article that was published in your newspaper that was initially done by the intern, Christie Causer, did you make substantial changes in the editorial process or was it basically pretty much what she wrote?

A. It's basically pretty much what she wrote, the context.

Q. And your goal as a newspaper was to attempt to put -- to emphasize the medical aspects of what was going on with Gavin at this particular point in time, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And did you have a picture of Gavin that accompanied the article?

A. Yes, we did.

Q. And it's correct, is it not, that the article, in essence, the way it -- not "in essence," the article that was eventually published after you had edited it basically dealt with Gavin’s medical experiences on the whole, did it not?

A. Yes.

Q. In other words, they talked about what had happened to him in terms of the cancer and the size of the tumor and the -- what had happened to him internally, correct?

A. And how expensive it was.

Q. Well, I’m getting there. I just want to talk about, first of all, the process of the article itself.

A. Okay.

Q. Okay? And then they talked about this need for blood, correct?

A. I believe so.

Q. And they talked about the fact that the tumor weighed 16 pounds that they took out of him, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then they talked about his fragile condition and how high risk he was, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And they talked about the fact that they had actually sent the tumor to research at Johns Hopkins and Cedars-Sinai to try to determine what kind of cancer it was. Do you recall that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And then they talked a little bit about Gavin. They talked about how -- what a great sense of humor he had, and what a great spiritual outlook he had on the whole process, correct?

A. I believe so.

Q. And then they talked about the fact that there were comedians and people in the entertainment industry who were supporting the family during this time of need, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And they mentioned, in fact, Chris Tucker, did they not?

A. Yes.

Q. And they talked about the fact that Fritz

Coleman had actually advertised on T.V. to try to raise blood for Gavin, correct?

A. I don’t recall that, but --

Q. You don’t recall that?

A. I just truly don’t recall.

Q. Do you have the article in front of you?

A. Yes, I have it.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if you looked at the article?

A. Okay.

Q. And I just direct you down to probably five-sixths of the way down to the bottom of the article.

A. Okay. Yes, sir. I see it.

Q. Okay. And then after that, Gavin is quoted as saying, “There are more friends than reporters,” correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then they go on to talk about the expressions of gratitude and the fact that the family prays for helping Gavin in this particular situation, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, we’re almost at the end of the article, are we not?

A. Yes.

Q. We’re basically down to the last paragraph, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it’s only in that paragraph is there anything mentioned about the financial situation of the family; isn’t that correct?

A. True.

Q. So would it be a fair statement to say that the vast -- vast majority of this article dealt with the personal plight of Gavin and the family rather than any financial aspects of the family, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, in the article it says that their car was repossessed, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And it says that there's one chemotherapy injection that cost $12,000, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And that's the only things mentioned about the finances for the family?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Now, there's no mention in this article at all about the fact that they're going to lose their home, is there?
A. No.
Q. You told the jury in your direct examination that you were told that they were going to lose their home, that Miss Causer told you that?
A. No, but the secretary that doesn't exist did.
Q. Ma'am --
A. I'm sorry, I don't mean to be rude. It's just --
Q. Well, you are being, so --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection, Your Honor. Move to strike counsel's comments.
THE COURT: I'll strike --
THE WITNESS: That was the only reason --
THE COURT: Just a moment. I'm going to instruct you that you must follow the rules of evidence here --

THE WITNESS: Okay.
THE COURT: -- and not comment to the jury on your opinion of them. Do you understand?
THE WITNESS: I --
THE COURT: Just a moment. Just tell me whether you understand that or not. You are not allowed to do anything except answer the questions.
THE WITNESS: I understand that.
THE COURT: Okay. Mr. Sneddon, ask the next question.
MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir.
Q. Did you not say on direct examination in front of this jury that you received the information with regard to the possible repossession of the house from Miss Causer?

A. Among other people, yes.
Q. That information is not in the article, is it?
A. No.
Q. Now, are you certain that Miss Causer tape-recorded this conversation?
A. I asked -- yes, I am certain.
Q. And did you review the tape of that conversation?
A. No, sir.
Q. So you never -- you did not independently review the tape before you edit -- before you applied your editorial license to the article?

A. That's correct.
Q. Now, did you write an article? You said you did write an editorial later, correct?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. In the editorial you were very critical of Mrs. Arvizo, correct?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall being --
THE COURT: Just a moment.
THE WITNESS: -- critical.
THE COURT: Just a moment, ma'am. You have to wait till I rule.
THE WITNESS: Oh. Oh.
THE COURT: The objection is overruled. All right. You may answer.
THE WITNESS: The question once again.
THE COURT: I'll have the question read back.
(Record read.)
THE WITNESS: I don't -- I -- I'm sort of stuck on the word "very." I was critical, but I don't know about the rest.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: I'll settle for that. That helps.
A. Okay.
Q. Did you say in that article that Miss Causer had taken a cooked turkey over to the Arvizo family?
A. That was my understanding, yes.
Q. Okay. You put that in the article?

A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you determine later that that was incorrect?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you put in that article that Mrs. Arvizo said that she would rather have money than the turkey?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you determine that was incorrect?
A. No.
Q. Did you talk to Miss Causer about that?
A. Yes.
Q. And you know that she denies that Mrs. Arvizo ever made that statement?
A. Then it’s after the fact. I don’t know that.
Q. Did she tell you that when you asked her?
A. She told me that the reason she was upset was the mother said she would rather have the money instead of the food.
Q. And that’s what she told you?
A. That’s what she’s told me. And she’s not retracted it since then.
Q. She hasn’t?
A. No, sir.
Q. She denies that statement today, though. You know that?
A. No, I do not.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; improper question.
MR. SNEDDON: No, I’m asking if she’s aware of that.
THE COURT: Objection sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Are you aware of the fact that she has denied ever making such a statement to you about that?
A. No.
Q. You said in your article that she was crushed, correct?
A. Who?
Q. Cindy Causer (sic).
A. Yes.

Q. And that she was furious; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Are those the words that she used in describing that event to you?

A. Those were the words I used when she relayed them to me.

Q. I think the question was, were those the words that she used to you to describe the situation?

A. No. That was my observation.

Q. Now, you at some point contacted Kaiser, correct?

A. I did.

Q. It was at that point that you determined that there was medical coverage for the Arvizo family, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that event, in contacting Kaiser, did not occur until the allegations in this case became public; isn't that correct?

A. No, sir.

Q. They were not?

A. No. If you're speaking of still my editorial? The -- the original story and the editorial.

Q. I'm talking about when you contacted Kaiser to determine whether or not the Arvizo family had medical coverage. When did that occur? Before or after the allegations in this case became public?

A. Before.

Q. How much before?

A. Three months before -- after the original article was written, so I would say January of 2001.

Q. Now, did you -- did you ever determine whether or not the Arvizo car, the Arvizo family car, was in fact repossessed?

A. No, sir.

Q. And did you do any research into the financial background of the family in general?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you determine whether or not the husband was employed?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you determine whether or not the husband was on disability at the time that Miss Causer did the article?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you determine whether or not the fact that he was on disability at the time may affect whether or not the medical insurance would continue to cover the child's expenses during the time of the cancer treatment?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you determine -- did you assume that Miss -- Mrs. Arvizo was the one who was totally in control of the trust account that was set up in the name of the child?

A. I didn't know who was in charge of the trust account.

Q. Okay. So you didn't know whether it was Mrs. Arvizo or David Arvizo, the husband?

A. Right.

Q. But when you wrote your article, you didn't mention David Arvizo, did you?

A. Not to my recollection, no.

Q. You pointed your article at Mrs. Arvizo?

A. That is who I had the dealings with.

Q. I know. But you didn't mention the husband that she was married to?

A. No.

Q. And you knew -- you knew no role what he played in the family.

A. None whatsoever.

Q. Were you aware that Mrs. Arvizo was the victim of domestic violence for 16 years in relationship with the husband?

A. No, sir.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance.

MR. SNEDDON: I think it --

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, can I just be heard briefly?

THE COURT: All right.
MR. SNEDDON: It goes to the credibility of the bias in the article.
THE COURT: The objection is sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did you determine whether or not any other members of the children of the family had been the victims of domestic violence?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Beyond the scope; relevance.
THE WITNESS: No.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did you contact any of the celebrities who were mentioned in the original article by Miss Causer to get more information on the background of the family?
A. No.
Q. You didn't contact, for instance, Fritz

Coleman?
A. No.
Q. You didn't contact Chris Tucker?
A. No.
Q. Were you aware of the fact that George Lopez, the comedian, and Ann Lopez, his wife, were helping the family at the same time to raise money?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever contact them?
A. No.
Q. Were you aware that Louise Palanker had provided funds to the family at the same time?
A. No.
Q. To see whether or not -- what she knew about the family and the family's needs?
A. No.
Q. Are you familiar with a person by the name of Jamie Masada who owns The Laugh Factory?
A. I know the name.
Q. Did you contact Mr. Masada to determine what his efforts were on behalf of this family to help their plight while their son was going through cancer?
A. No.
Q. And you made no attempt to determine the husband’s role in the expenditures of those funds from the trust account, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, the trust account information was placed in the newspaper by you?
A. I authorized its placement, yes.
Q. And it’s your testimony that Miss Causer was the one who got that information?
A. Yes.
Q. And provided it to you to be printed in the paper?
A. Yes.
Q. And when Miss Causer went out to the house, she also gave the family some money, did she not, of her own?
A. She did not mention that to me.
Q. You didn’t reprimand her for giving them money and saying it was against your policy?
A. No.
Q. Now, were you aware of the fact that at the time that Miss Causer was writing this article -- let me go back.
Was it your understanding that you were putting an article in the paper to enlist the community’s support to assist this family during Gavin Arvizo’s fight against cancer?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And was it your -- was it your particular understanding or at least the goal of the paper only to help raise money to offset the medical expenses?

A. That’s true.
Q. In other words, you didn’t care whether their car was repossessed or what the other financial implications were to the family?
A. Well, I definitely care. But if money was raised for his medical expenses, then whatever moneys they were paying for medical could go to their everyday care.
Q. But your article implied to the community, did it not, that this family was suffering not only because of medical expenses but also personal hardships that resulted from Gavin’s cancer, correct?

A. No.
Q. Isn’t that why you put the part in there about their car being repossessed?
A. You’re referring to the editorial piece.
Q. No, ma’am. I’m referring to the original article.
A. The original article says his car has been repossessed?
Q. Yes, ma’am.
A. I don’t recall that either.
Q. Go ahead and look at the article. It’s right down at the bottom.
A. Oh, yes.
Q. It does, does it not?
A. Yes, it does.

Q. So it’s informing the community of El Monte and all the surrounding cities, the six other cities, that this family not only had medical expenses associated with Gavin’s illness, but they had some personal hardships, personal financial hardships, correct?
A. As a result of medical problems.
Q. Well --
A. Yeah.
Q. You assume it was a result of the medical problems?
A. Sure.
Q. Did you not assume that it could have been as a result of some of the other related problems created by the medical problem?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; compound.
MR. SNEDDON: Let me rephrase, Your Honor.
Q. Has it been your experience that people who go through a severe medical hardship like this incur other substantial hardship expenses that are not directly related to the medical aspects of it, correct?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Beyond the scope; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I -- having been in that situation, yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And were you aware at the time that Miss Causer wrote her letter, for instance, that Gavin Arvizo, when he would come out of the hospital from his chemotherapy treatments, would have to be in a special room? Did you know that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Okay. And did you know that in that special room they had to buy a special air purifier in order to protect against infection? Did you know that?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did you know when this article was prepared that there were special hardship -- financial hardships associated with his medical treatment outside the course of the hospital?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; relevance; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: No.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: So you -- you’ve told us that you do believe or understand the fact that there are financial hardships not associated with the direct paying of medical costs. Did you envision that this fund could be used to offset some of those financial hardships on the family?

A. No.

Q. That was what was in your mind?

A. That was in my mind. I thought it was purely for medical reasons.

Q. Would you concede to me that a public reading this article, you having mentioned the repossession of their car, might want to give money to help for other aspects of the hardships created by Gavin’s medical situation, could you not?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; calls for speculation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. SNEDDON: No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Did you ever determine that the figure $12,000 for chemotherapy treatment given to your paper by Janet Arvizo was false?
A. No. Um -- no.
Q. Did she ever call up and say, “You made a typo, it’s really $1200”?
A. No.
Q. Now, how many messages did she leave with your paper, if you know, about these articles?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Calls for hearsay.
THE COURT: Foundation. Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know how many phone calls Janet Arvizo made to your paper around the time you published the article?
MR. SNEDDON: Same objection, Your Honor.
THE COURT: You may answer that “yes” or “no.”
THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How many?
A. Five.
MR. SNEDDON: Same objection.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Just a moment. I’m going to change my ruling on that. I’ll leave the answer in, “Five.”
Next question.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: The prosecutor asked you questions about what you were thinking when you published the article and what your intent was.
Was it your belief that the Arvizos had to spend $12,000 per chemotherapy injection for Gavin?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was your belief based upon?

A. Based upon the interview by Christie, and she had it on tape.

Q. And was it your understanding that insurance would not pay for the $12,000 cost per injection?

A. At that time, yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object to that. Calls for her conclusion; speculation.

THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was the intent of the article -- excuse me. Was one of the purposes of the article to raise money to pay for the $12,000 per chemo injection cost?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, the prosecutor asked you questions if you knew about Miss Arvizo's marriage. Did you think it was your obligation to dig into that?

A. No.

Q. Was there any purpose in your article to talk about Ms. Arvizo's marriage?

A. Never -- no.

Q. Was one of the purposes of the article to raise money to pay for a repossessed car?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as to which article he's talking about here now. It's vague as to which article. There's --

MR. MESEREAU: I'll rephrase it.

Q. Let's talk about the first article. Was one of the purposes of your newspaper publishing that article to help Janet Arvizo raise money for a repossessed car?

A. No.

Q. Let's talk about the second article. Was one of the purposes for having your newspaper publish that article the raising of money to pay for a repossessed car?

A. No.

Q. The prosecutor asked you questions about financial hardship that comes to a family that has some medical expenses, okay? Was one of the purposes of your first article to raise any money to pay for ancillary financial expenses of the family?

A. No.
Q. Was one of the purposes of the second article you published to raise money for nonmedical family expenses?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever try to ask the public to pay for any nonmedical expenses of the Arvizos in any of your articles?
A. No.
Q. Now, was it your understanding that the original article was based upon an interview with Janet?
A. Yes.
Q. Was it based upon one interview with Janet, if you know?
A. I don’t know that.
Q. Okay. Was it your understanding that Janet had called the paper about an article?
A. Yes.
Q. And who did you learn that from?
A. My secretary.

Q. To your knowledge, did Janet ever call the paper and want other articles published to raise money?
A. Yes.
Q. How many times did she do that, if you know?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Asked and answered.
MR. MESEREAU: I think I limited it to raising money, Your Honor.
THE COURT: I think the last question was how many times she’d called totally, so I’ll sustain the objection.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
Q. To your knowledge, how many times did Janet Arvizo call your newspaper for the purpose of raising money?
A. I have no way of gauging that, Counsel.
Q. Okay. And other than Christie Causer and your secretary, do you know if anyone else associated with your newspaper ever spoke to Janet?

A. No.

Q. Okay. How large a staff did your newspaper have at the time?

A. At the time, three.

Q. Okay. And when you published your newspaper in 2003, approximately how many articles would you devote to this topic?

A. Very, very, very, very -- almost none to a family-in-need article.

Q. Okay. And if you know, which page was the article published on?

A. It was on front page.

Q. Was there any reason for that?

A. I think the story tugged at your heart strings. The child’s face, beautiful.

Q. Now, you said that Janet complained that not enough money was raised from the first article, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she complain to you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she call you at the paper?

A. Yes.

Q. How long was that conversation?

A. The conversation was approximately one minute and 20 seconds.

Q. Why?

A. Because I didn’t want to talk to her.

Q. How come?

A. Because I had already established the fact that I had been duped.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Are you telling us that the conversation you had with Miss Arvizo was three months after the publication of the first article?

A. She wanted what --

Q. No, I’m asking you a very specific question.

A. Okay. I'll listen again.
MR. SNEDDON: Maybe the court reporter could read it back, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right.
(Record read.)
THE WITNESS: Approximately, yes.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Was three months later?
A. Yes.
Q. After you'd already called Kaiser?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you have a conversation with Miss Causer and ask her whether or not she could have made a mistake about the $12,000 and it really could have been $1200?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you go back and verify that?
A. I asked Mrs. Causer to verify it on her tape.
Q. No, I think --
A. Oh, okay.
Q. Let me make it clearer for you.
After you determined from calling Kaiser -- well, first of all, you drew the conclusion you'd been duped because you determined that full medical coverage was being taken care of by Kaiser, correct?

A. Correct.
Q. But you made none of the inquiries I asked about before. You didn't check to see whether or not the insurance may have been jeopardy. Did you do that?
A. No, sir.
Q. Okay. And the reason that you feel that you were duped is because you felt, in your mind, that the money only should have been used to pay for the direct medical costs, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And yet, the article itself says nothing about where the money -- how the money is going to be expended, does it?
A. No.
Q. Okay. So the article, to somebody reading it in the public who didn't know your mindset, would not be able to determine from that that the money had to go directly into the direct medical expenses for Gavin Arvizo, would it?

A. No. You’re right.

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you. I’ll quit while I’m ahead.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike his comments.

THE COURT: Stricken.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

All right. We’ll recess until tomorrow. 8:30.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:30 p.m.)

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Leno.

A. How are you?

Q. Fine, thank you.

Mr. Leno, in your work, do you deal with children’s organizations?

A. Yes, quite a bit.

Q. And what do you do?

A. There are groups like Phone Friends, Make-A-Wish. You’ll get phone calls, children in the hospital. “Could you give them a call?”

And they’ll ask you questions about, you know, “Oh, did you meet Britney Spears?” Whatever it might be. But usually that type of thing.

It’s usually kids that are maybe lonely or sick or something, and they watch T.V. or they watch it late at night, and you try to cheer them up. And it usually goes through, as I said, organizations like Phone Friends and Make-A-Wish.

Q. Do you have a specific procedure that you typically follow to learn about a child’s desire in this regard?

A. Well, when it comes from a legitimate organization, there’s no procedure. We deal with them on -- I would say maybe 15 a week sometimes, 20 a week.

So, “Oh, could you call” -- you’ll get a list of children, “These are some kids that would like to hear from you today.”

“Okay.”

Sometimes they’re in Minneapolis or -- they’re all over the country. And you have a five- or ten-minute phone call. And then sometimes you do a follow-up, and you send a picture and hats, you know, things like that.

Q. Now, do you have someone who screens these calls for you?

A. Well, my assistant, who screens them. Not necessarily those calls, but, you know, all calls, yeah.

Q. And is there a particular number that people get ahold of if they want to reach you or talk to you about something like this?

A. I’m pretty accessible, either through the main Tonight Show number or my number at the show.

Q. How many years have you been dealing with children’s organizations like the ones you’ve described?

A. Well, I’ve been doing The Tonight Show about 13 years and -- certainly that long. And before that, more informally.

Q. And does your work with children involve simply talking to them on the phone, or do you make visits and things of that sort?

A. Any of those things. Sometimes with Make-A-Wish, you’ll have a situation where -- those are especially sad, because sometimes they’re terminally ill children. They’ll say, “Oh, this kid’s 15, and he always wanted to go for a ride in a Lamborghini,” or something like that.

And sometimes kids will come over to the garage and we’ll take them for a ride. And maybe they want a back-stage tour of The Tonight Show. Maybe they want to sit at the desk and talk in the microphone. So it varies. Sometimes it’s just a phone call, and sometimes it’s a little more than that.

Q. And if you decide to do something for a child, or an organization of children, what are the kinds of things you will do? What benefits will you provide them?

A. Sometimes it’s an auction-type deal to raise money. Sometimes they’ll say, “We’re having” -- you know, “This child was in a car accident,” or whatever it might be.

“The family is having an auction. Would you sign some items or have celebrities sign items?”

Sometimes you’ll make a donation. Sometimes it’s tickets to the show. It really varies on a case-by-case basis.

Q. And if people want to raise money through you, how do they go about it?

A. Well, you just sort of call and tell us what the situation is, and if we can do something to help, that’s what we do. I mean, we try to do a little something for everybody that calls.

Sometimes it's more; sometimes it's less.

Q. Do you sometimes reject requests from parents or children?

A. I don't know if "reject" is quite the word. I mean, sometimes -- you try to make -- if it goes through a legitimate organization, no, you don't reject them.

Sometimes you get the odd, you know, "I'm a farmer. Our crops are" -- "our tractor's broken. Our fields are not doing well," and the return address is Brooklyn, New York.

So you go, "Hmm, that seems a little suspicious." You know. So that one you kind of go, "I don't really know how legitimate that one is."

So, you know, you take them on a case-by-case basis.

Q. At times do people who want to reach you get ahold of you directly?

A. Yes.

Q. And how does that happen?

A. They just call me. I'm pretty accessible. I pick up the phone. I go, "Hi, this is Jay."

And they go, "No, it's not."

And I go, "Yes, it is."

And then I spend ten minutes convincing them it is me, so -- but, yeah.

Q. Will they call the studio to reach you directly?

A. Yes, and I'll probably get a lot more calls after this.

(Laughter.)

My phone will be ringing tomorrow.

Thank you for that.

(Laughter.)

Q. If they call the studio, can they get right to you or do they go right --

A. Sometimes they can get right to me, actually. Yes, they can. Up until today they could get right to me.

(Laughter.)

Until just a few moments ago, you could reach me quite easily.

(Laughter.)

Q. The numbers that might get right to you, where do they get access to that?

A. Well, other performers, comedians, car guys. I mean, my number is pretty much out there. I mean, I wasn't even unlisted until a couple of years ago. I was in the phone book.

Q. Do you know someone named Jamie Masada?

A. Yes, Jamie owns The Laugh Factory, a comedy club in Hollywood.

Q. Have you known him for a long time?

A. Yes. I'm not -- I don't -- I tend to work some of the other clubs. I don't work his club very often. I've been doing this a long time, so I had some clubs that I worked. And then he opened up, and he was sort of the new club. And I kind of stuck with the clubs that I worked all the time. But, yes, I know him. Yeah.

Q. And would it be accurate to say he's a friend of yours?

A. Well, an acquaintance, yeah. A "friend" is all right. He's asked me for favors and things, yeah. "Friend" is okay.

Q. Is he a close friend?

A. No, I wouldn't say close friend.

Q. Do you go to The Laugh Factory often?

A. No, not very often.

Q. When were you last there, if you remember?

A. Oh, maybe a year ago. Not quite a year ago. A comedian, George Miller, had passed away, and there was -- they had a little service for him with a bunch of comics, and we all went down and told some jokes. I think that was about a year or so ago. Maybe a little bit longer.

And occasionally -- Jamie does a lot of benefits, and he'll say, "Oh, could you come down and do 15 minutes or something?"

And that's usually what it was. I don't work there but I'll go down and do benefits and things.

Q. Do you know someone named Louise Palanker?

A. Yeah, Louise is a comedian. Yeah.

Q. Is she a friend of yours?

A. Yes, I’ve known Louise for a long time.

Q. And would you describe her as a close friend?

A. No, not a close friend, but an acquaintance. She dated a friend of mine, and I got to know her through him.

Q. Do you remember a couple of years ago receiving a call from a child named Gavin?

A. Yes.

Q. And approximately when did that happen?

A. Well, let’s see. It’s quite a few years ago. I guess 2000 maybe.

Q. And was it your understanding that Gavin had cancer?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay.

A. That’s what I was told.

Q. Did you ever talk to Gavin’s mother?

A. I believe I did. The circumstance -- I had gotten a number of calls, and I had -- you know, there are ways to sort of legitimize this. I had gotten these calls. And I called the hospital. I was put through to a room. I believe if I -- I believe I spoke to Gavin. And I think I spoke to possibly his brother, and I think I spoke to his mother.

It’s a little confusing, because these kind of conversations do tend to run together. When you make three or four of them a day, and you’re calling hospitals, especially when it’s five years ago, it’s a little tricky.

But I’m told -- I was told by Louise that they were really happy to hear from me, that I had called the room. So that verified yes, I did call.

Because whenever I hear from a child, I always try to follow up on it. So I’m sure I called.

Q. Now, how did you learn about Gavin?

A. I had gotten a number of voice mails from him. That’s how I was made aware.

Q. Okay. And did the voice mails give you a number to call the hospital?

A. I'm not sure if the voice mails gave me the number or if I got the number from Louise, but somehow I obtained the number. I can't be sure on that point.

Q. And you've indicated, Mr. Leno, you think you talked to Gavin's mother, right?

A. I think so. Yes.

Q. Okay. And do you recall whether she called you or you called her?

A. No, I called. I called the hospital room. I had gotten a number of voice mails from the child, and I called the hospital room.

Q. And they put you through at Kaiser to Gavin?

A. I guess it was Kaiser. I can't remember what hospital it was, but they put me through to the room. Now, I'm not sure whether he was maybe a little groggy. I spoke to someone. It might have been the brother. And I believe I spoke to the mother but I can't be 100 percent sure, but I think I did.

Q. Do you recall what Gavin said to you?

A. The conversation in the hospital? Or any of the voice mails?

Q. Well, let's start with the voice mails.

A. Okay. The voice mails I got were, "Oh, I'm a big fan. You're the greatest." Overly effusive for a 12-year-old.

Most of the times when you talk to children, they talk like, "Hi, how are you doing. Uh, good to see you."

Yeah, I mean, it's -- you kind of have to pull it out of them: "Hi, how you feeling?"

"Good. Hi." I mean, you're talking to a kid.

And this was -- sounded -- very adult-like conversation. I thought -- it just, you know, perked my interest at the time.

Q. When you say "overly effusive," what do you mean?

A. "Jay Leno, you're the greatest." You know,

"I think you're wonderful. You're my hero," this type of thing, which seemed a little odd to me at the time, for someone so young. Why a comedian in his mid-50s would be -- you know, I’m not Batman. You know what I mean? It just seemed a little unusual, but okay.

And then I got two or three more.

Q. Okay. Were the two or three more messages from Gavin, as far as you know?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever get any messages from anyone who claimed to be Gavin’s mother?

A. No. I didn’t get any from the mother. Just from the child.

Q. Okay. And based on those messages you then called the hospital?

A. Called the hospital. And I believe I sent, you know, hat, T-shirts, that type of thing.

Q. Okay. And you spoke to Gavin at the hospital, right?

A. Again, to the best of my knowledge, I did. Whether he was groggy, or in bed, or “Hi, uh, uh.” And then I spoke to someone else. And then I believe I spoke to the mother, who seemed very pleased that I called.

Q. Do you recall what the mother said to you?

A. No. Very general. “Thank you so much.” And, you know, my conversation was along the line, you know, “Our prayers are with you,” that type of thing. And, “If he gets out, and he’d like to tour the Tonight Show studios…,” you know, that type of thing.

Q. Was that the only time you recall speaking to Gavin?

A. Yes, I believe that is.

Q. And was that the only time you recall speaking to the mother?

A. Yes, I believe so.

Q. Do you recall ever getting any messages after that from Gavin or the mother?

A. No, I don’t think I did. I don’t think I got any more after that.

Q. Okay. At some point, did you complain to Louise Palanker about messages you were getting from Gavin?

A. It wasn’t so much a complaint. I just said to her, “What’s the story here? This” -- “This doesn’t sound like a 12-year-old. This sounds like an adult person.”

It seemed -- I -- I think the words I used was, “It seemed a little scripted in his speech.”

And then she said to me, you know, “That’s just the way he is. He wants to be a comic, so he writes everything out before he says it, and then he kind of reads it.”

And I said, “Oh, okay.” Well, that sort of made sense at the time.

Q. Now, the child at the time was approximately 13, right?

A. No, I think he was younger than that.

Q. He was younger than that? Okay.

A. This is about, what, --

Q. 2000?

A. 2000, yeah.

This was just another typical day at the office up to this point. I didn’t think anything unusual. So I guess he was younger than that, wasn’t he?

Q. What, about 10?

A. 10 or 11 possibly.

Q. Did you ever ask Louise Palanker who was writing these questions out for Gavin?

A. No, I don’t think I said that. I think I just said, you know, it sounded real scripted. It sounded like -- it didn’t sound like....

And she said, “Well, he’s very mature and he wants to be a comic, and so he’s very careful in what he says.”

And I said, “Oh, okay.”

Q. Did that seem unusual to you?

A. Well, once I got that explanation, it didn’t seem unusual. It was just unusual for a child to contact me directly, because usually, as I said, at the very least, a parent, a doctor, a nurse, a teacher, Phone Friends, Make-A-Wish, those people call and say, “You’ll be getting a call from this young boy or this young girl.”

“Oh, okay.”

“Expect it at this time.”

“Okay.”

To just get a call out of the blue was a little unusual.

Q. When you say it seemed scripted, do you mean coached?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as speculative.

THE WITNESS: No, it just --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

THE WITNESS: Oh.

THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Sorry.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Louise tell you someone had written out what Gavin was supposed to say?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as hearsay, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: At some point did you ask that Gavin stop calling?

A. I asked Louise, I said, you know, “I’ve been getting a lot” -- I don’t think I said, “Stop calling.” But I said, you know, “I’ve been getting a lot of these calls.”

And she said, “Oh, I’ll take care of it. Don’t worry about it.”

And I said, “Okay.”

Q. When you said that to Louise, was it your desire that those calls stop?

A. Yes.

Q. And why was that?

A. Um, because it was kind of the same call, sort of over and over again.

Q. Did the child seem to call more than most do?

A. Well, most children don’t call. You call them, and you do follow-ups, and things like that. Every now and then I will give a child a private number if it seems especially -- I didn’t do that in this case. But I’m not saying I never get calls directly from children, but this was a little unusual.

Q. Do you recall the mother being in the background of your call to Gavin?

A. I remember someone in the background, but again, I couldn’t say it was the mother. It could have been a nurse. I just remember hearing someone talking as he was talking.

Q. And after your last conversation with Gavin, did you ever do anything for Gavin?

A. No. I never sent any money. Or -- I mean,

I sent, I think, Tonight Show paraphernalia, hats, T-shirts, pictures. I wasn’t asked for any money, nor did I send any.

Q. In your conversation with Gavin, did you decide at some point to terminate the call?

A. No, it wasn’t -- whatever conversation we had, the best of my recollection, it was very brief. Because he was ill and I think he was, you know, maybe in the hospital bed or something. And that seemed more, “Hi, how are you?”

“Okay.”

“Okay. Hey, listen, keep your hopes up,” and this type of thing.

Q. And do you recall whether or not you ever met Gavin?

A. No, I don’t think I ever met him.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you ever met the mother?

A. No, never met the mother.

Q. Okay. Did you tell any of your assistants to try and stop the calls?

A. I don’t believe so. I think I just spoke to Louise about it. And I think Louise said, “Oh, I’ll take care of it. I’ll speak to him.”

Q. Did the calls stop?

A. Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Mr. Leno, good morning.

A. How are you?

Q. Very well, thank you. How are you today?

A. Fine.

Q. Welcome to Santa Maria.

A. Why, thank you. It’s a lovely town.

Q. Mr. Leno, is it fair to say that you probably get calls, maybe 100 calls a year or even more from children who are in distress?

A. A lot more than that. Yeah. Easily a couple of hundred. Maybe three or four, maybe five, six, seven a week. You know, one a day probably.

Q. Would you say that your recollection of your conversation with Gavin was as clear as your conversation with any of the other children you may have spoken to over that same year?

A. Not much clearer, because, again, the conversation was in 2000. I thought nothing unusual until, what, three or four years later. So then I was thinking back, you know.

Q. Three or four years later you did get a call from law enforcement; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And at that time they asked you about any conversations you may have had with a young child named Gavin?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. At the time of that conversation, were you familiar with the content of a documentary that had screened entitled, “Living with Michael Jackson”?

A. Yes, I had seen that.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; beyond the scope.

MR. ZONEN: It deals with recollection and familiarity with the name.

THE COURT: All right. Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: That’s the Bashir documentary, Martin Bashir?

A. Yes. I saw that, yes.

Q. And the part that you actually saw of that documentary, did it feature a child named Gavin?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. At the time that the police contacted you, did you make an association between the name “Gavin” and that feature with Michael Jackson?

A. Well, I had made it before that. The feature was on, and I had heard from a friend of mine --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: Oh.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: At that point in time, you heard -- excuse me, let me try that one more time.

A. Okay.

Q. At some point in time you drew a correlation between the Gavin who was in the documentary “Living with Michael Jackson” and the Gavin who had called you; is that correct?

A. Yes. Because the name “Gavin” is very unusual. And I saw, “Gavin, cancer.... Hey, wait a minute. I spoke to a Gavin that had cancer. I wonder if it’s the same one.”

Q. All right. Did that cause you to believe at the time law enforcement contacted you that that was the same child?

A. Well, they didn’t contact me until two years later.

Q. Okay. All right. Now, in the course of the conversations -- excuse me. In the course of the phone calls that were made by Gavin to you --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- that went to your voice mail --

A. Right.

Q. -- do you have a sense of how many calls those were?

A. Well, I think there were at least three or four. I think it was some -- there were three or four. And then I think we had gone on hiatus, vacation. And when we had come back, there were a few more.

And that’s when I spoke to Louise and said, “Um, what’s going on? I keep getting a lot of these calls.”

And she said, “I’ll take care of it. He gets overanxious,” whatever it might be.

I said, “Okay. It’s not a big deal.” And then I didn’t hear any more.

Q. Did she explain to you that Gavin was in and out of the hospital dealing with chemotherapy?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. And had a fair amount of time on his hands?

A. Oh, yeah. Yeah.

Q. Did she tell you that he, in fact, did watch your show every night?

A. She did. She went on to explain that he was a big fan. You know, you just tend to be -- in my position, as I said, there’s a lot of odd -- you don’t know whether it’s a radio station playing a trick on you. So your first contacts sometimes are very, Uh-huh, okay. How are you doing? Where are you from? You know.

And then it wasn’t until I called the hospital, “Oh, this really a child who really is sick. Okay.” Then it got more real, you know.

Q. Were you aware -- did you become aware at any time that Gavin Arvizo was a graduate of the comedy camp at The Laugh Factory?

A. I found that out later, yeah.

Q. And you’re familiar with the comedy camp, are you not?

A. I know of it. I don’t have -- I have never been to it, but I know of it, yeah.

Q. You understand that’s a Jamie Masada creation?

A. Right, right, right, right.

Q. And that’s for disadvantaged children?

A. Right.

Q. Were you aware that he had had kind of a long association with comedians like Chris Tucker and George Lopez and had even met Adam Sandler?

A. Yeah, I found that out later.

Q. Would that tend to suggest to you that he really did have a sincere appreciation of comedians?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. Does that clarify, at least in your mind, to some extent the motivation for the multiple voice messages that he left?

A. Yes, it became clear.

Q. Did he ask you for money in any of these calls?

A. No, no one ever asked me for anything. And I'm sure of that, because if they had, I would have sent something.

Q. Did Gavin ask you to do anything in these calls other than speak with him?

A. I know I sent a picture and a hat and some other things. I was told by Louise he had the picture over his bed and he was thrilled to get it. So other than that, no, I was never asked for any, you know, financial things or anything like that.

Q. All right. And so you never had occasion to send them money; is that correct?

A. No.

Q. And he did not ask you for money; is that right?

A. No, no one asked me for money.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. I have no further questions.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Mr. Leno, when the police called you --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- did they call you at the studio?

A. Called me at the studio, yeah.

Q. Did you know you were being secretly recorded?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever learn that?

A. Yeah, I did learn that actually.

Q. Do you remember when the police asked you if they were looking for money, you said, "I think so"?

A. Yeah, I probably did say that. But they never asked me for any money. But at the time when I got the phone calls, originally, it sounded -- as I said, it sounded suspicious. When a young person that overly effusive, and, "Oh, Mr. Leno, you're the greatest. And you’re” --

I thought, really? Why would -- it just didn’t quite click for me, you know.
Q. And you thought they were looking for money, right?
MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as asked and answered and improper opinion.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Does the degree of effusiveness, is that explained by his affection that you now understand for comedians?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; calls for speculation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. ZONEN: All right.
Q. You did not know at the time of those voice messages that this is a child who had been a graduate of The Laugh Factory, laugh academy; is that correct?

A. No, I didn’t know, because, as I said, it was unusual to have a 12-year-old child leave you a long voice message. In the kind of business I’m in, you hear from a lot of crazy people, you know. And things -- and you’re reluctant sometimes to follow up. But whenever it’s a child, I always do follow up. You kind of drop all your guard, and go, okay, let me just -- because this might be real, you know. So that’s what I did here.
Q. When you actually had the conversation with Gavin, was he gracious on the telephone?
A. Again, that recollection is not clear to me. Because having spoken to a number of children in the hospital, you know, four or five a week sometimes, sometimes it kind of -- especially when children are sick, you tend to have a very general conversation along the lines of, you know, “Our prayers are with you.” And, you know, “Your parents love you.” And, you know, “When you get out,” you know, “maybe you’ll be able to do this,” or “Come to our show, and we'll give you a VIP seat," and -- you know, so you tend to talk in very general terms, so I can't be real specific about that.

Q. Could you have been speaking with a nurse when you were talking with Gavin at the hospital?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; calls for speculation.
THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Well, you got on the telephone with a female; is that correct?
A. Yes. It -- at the time I believe it was the mother.
Q. Okay. There was no advance notice from you that you would be placing that call; is that right?
A. No, I just -- I tend to be -- I like to take care of things as they happen. You get a call, you get a letter.
"Okay. Give me that number. Let me call them right now," because if I put it down, there will be three more, and, you know, you don't want to leave a kid hanging. So, yeah, you take care of it right away.
Q. And there had been a series of phone calls over a period of time; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And a vacation?
A. I believe so.
Q. Okay. And then a conversation with Louise Palanker?
A. Right. Right.
Q. And then you called back?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Okay. And there were no other calls after that conversation; is that correct?
A. No.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.

THE WITNESS: Oh.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that true?
A. I'm --

Q. That there were no other calls from Gavin to your voice message after your conversation?

A. Right. After my conversation with Louise Palanker, she said, you know, “He gets real excited. I’ll take care of it.”

And I said, “Okay.”

Q. Then you called Gavin at the hospital afterward, after your conversation with Louise Palanker?

A. No, I think it was before. You know, again, I -- I can’t say for sure. Because it all tends to blend together.

I remember I called -- I believe I called the hospital. And then after that, there were -- I think the messages came after that, but I would not swear to it.

Q. And nobody from your office arranged that telephone call in advance? In other words --

A. No, no. I just pick up the call and -- I just pick up the phone and I make the call.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. No further questions.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Mr. Leno, when you spoke to Gavin and his mother --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- did you know the family was trying to get money from various celebrities?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as assuming facts not in evidence, beyond the scope of cross-examination.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you know anything about any fund-raisers at The Laugh Factory?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; irrelevant.

THE WITNESS: Oh.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

MR. ZONEN: No further questions.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: We have Renee Zellweger on the show tonight.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Call your next witness.

MR. SANGER: Could I have just a second to make sure the next witness is there? Because I believe he is.

Your Honor, with the Court's permission, we'll call Suli McCullough. He's on our list, but he's farther down the list.

THE COURT: That's fine, Counsel.

Come to the front of the courtroom, please.

When you get to the witness stand, I'd like you to remain standing up there.

Face the clerk over here and raise your right hand.

SULI MCCULLOUGH

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Suli McCullough. S-u-l-i. Last name, M-c-C-u-l-l-o-u-g-h.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Mr. McCullough, how are you?

A. Oh, good. How are you?

Q. I'm doing pretty well so far.

Now, you need to talk into the right -- the other one. That one, yeah. It's kind of hard to get close enough to it.

All right. First of all, what is your occupation?

A. I'm a stand-up comedian, a writer and an actor.

Q. There you go. And do you have any connection from time to time with The Laugh Factory?

A. Yes, I perform there regularly. I've been a regular there since 1989.

Q. All right. And do you know Jamie Masada?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Okay. Now, have you ever met Michael Jackson?

A. No, I have not.

Q. All right. At The Laugh Factory, did you have occasion to meet a child by the name of Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you have occasion to actually visit him at the hospital from time to time?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. About how many times?

A. I would say about three or four times.

Q. All right. Did you have extensive dealings with Gavin, or how would you describe it?

A. I would say, yeah, I did have extensive dealings with Gavin. He was in my comedy camp. Comedy camp is something we do for underprivileged kids, and we teach them the fundamentals of stand-up.

Q. All right. And have you -- for instance, have you ever been to his house?

A. No, I have not.

Q. Has he ever been to your house?

A. No. They did call my house often. And I invited the family -- I was on The Jamie Fox Show for a couple seasons, and I invited the family to a taping.

Q. Did they go?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. So at some point, you understood that Gavin Arvizo became sick; is that right?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Was there a fund-raiser that was organized by Jamie Masada at The Laugh Factory?

A. Yes, there was. We actually did two fund-raisers.

Q. I was going to ask you how many.

A. We did two, yes.

Q. Were you there at the fund-raisers?

A. I was there for both fund-raisers.

Q. Did you see how they were put on? In other words, what happened?

A. Yes, I did see how they were put on. I also participated in both of them.
Q. So you participated as a comedian on the stage --
A. That's correct.
Q. -- is that correct?

And did you see the actual fund-raising, the collecting of the money?
A. No, I did not.
Q. All right. Now, in the course of this fund-raising, were you told by Jamie Masada what the purpose of the fund-raisers were?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. And what did he tell you the purpose was?
A. He told me the purpose --
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; hearsay.
MR. SANGER: It's impeachment.
THE COURT: All right. Overruled.
THE WITNESS: Jamie told me that the purpose of the fund-raisers were to raise money to help pay for the medical expenses.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll object as irrelevant.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: And did you have occasion to be at a press conference held by Jamie Masada on January 5th, 2005? I think that was the date.
A. Yes, I was.
Q. All right. And did Mr. Masada at that press conference indicate that the fund-raiser for Gavin Arvizo was put on --
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object as leading and hearsay.
THE COURT: Sus -- I didn't hear the whole question. Do you want to --

MR. SANGER: It may be leading. Rather than just blurt it out, let me rephrase it.
THE COURT: Okay.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Did Mr. Masada speak at that press conference?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. And did he state the purpose of the fund-raiser for Gavin Arvizo at that press conference?

A. I don’t remember if he did or not.
Q. And did you?
A. Did I state that? Yes, I did.
Q. And you stated at that time that it was for raising money for medical bills, right?
A. That’s correct.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Leading and hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Did you state the purpose of the fund-raiser at that time?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. All right. And what did you say it was?
A. I said --
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
THE WITNESS: Can I continue?
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Was Mr. Masada present at the press conference when you spoke?

A. Mr. Masada was present, yes.
Q. And you stated the purpose of the fund-raiser as you understood it, correct?
A. That’s correct.
MR. SANGER: Okay. I have no further questions.
THE COURT: Cross-examine?

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:
Q. Good morning, Mr. McCullough. How are you?
A. I’m good, how are you?
Q. I’m just fine.
You had a conversation with Mr. Masada where he told you that Gavin’s fund-raiser was going to help raise money for medical expenses?
A. Jamie asked me to participate in the fund-raiser and he said that the money would be used to go -- to help cover the medical expenses. That’s correct.
Q. Okay. Were you aware whether or not Gavin was going to have any medical expenses after he got out of the hospital?

A. From visiting him in the hospital, and knowing that -- where the family came from, it was pretty common knowledge that medical expenses are expensive.

Q. Uh-huh.

A. And yes, they were going to incur some costs.

Q. Okay. Did you know that they were going to have to prepare a safe room or a room that would be germ-free for Gavin after he got out of the hospital?

A. I was aware of that, yes.

Q. Would you consider that a medical expense?

A. I would, yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you. No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Were you aware that the germ-free room was paid for by Louise Palanker?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Hearsay, foundation, and vague as to time, I would say.

THE COURT: The objection’s sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Were you aware that -- as of the time that you made this last statement in January of 2005 about the fund-raiser being for medical expenses, were you aware that Gavin Arvizo had full medical coverage through Kaiser Permanente as a result of his father’s long-time employment at Von’s?

A. No, I was not aware of that.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Hearsay;

irrelevant.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is in.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. I have no further questions.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: No further questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you very much.

THE WITNESS: All right. Thank you.

THE COURT: Call your next witness, please.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Judge, I’m sorry, one of the jurors needs to go to the back room.

THE COURT: She had to step out for a second. Can counsel approach? We can take up that issue that we were going to have to take up.

MR. MESEREAU: Do you mean the motions?

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

THE COURT: On your motion.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: (To Juror No. 5) Just so you know, I used that time very effectively.

JUROR NO. 5: Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. Call your next witness.

MR. SANGER: May I proceed?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Monica Wakefield, please.

THE COURT: Come to the witness stand, please. When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

Face the clerk over here and raise your right hand.

MONICA DE LA SANTOS WAKEFIELD

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: I'm Monica De La Santos Wakefield. Shall I spell my last name?

THE CLERK: Yes, please.

THE WITNESS: W-a-k-e-f-i-e-l-d.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. All right. Miss Wakefield, the first thing we tell everybody is to lean into that right microphone, the one on the right. It's a little hard to do so --

A. Sorry.

Q. No, that’s okay. How are you employed?
A. I work for Kaiser Permanente Regional Reference Laboratory.

Q. And where is that located?
A. North Hollywood.
Q. All right. Now, at some point, you were contacted by the Santa Barbara Sheriff’s Department to look into some medical records; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. And you did that for them; is that correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you reported back your findings?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. I’d like to refer to that same incident. Before I do that, do you recall roughly when it was that you talked to the sheriff’s department?
A. Yes.
Q. When was that?
A. I think that was a year ago, May or March. One of the “M” months --
Q. Okay.
A. -- for sure.
Q. March or May. But sometime sort of the spring of 2004; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. And were you asked to look into your records to see if a creatinine clearance test had been conducted with regard to a patient, Gavin Arvizo?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you determine whether or not that had occurred?

A. I don’t understand what you mean. If that had -- the test was taken?
Q. Whether or not the test was taken, yes. Did you look into the records to determine what had happened?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Do you recall when the procedure, the medical procedure, occurred; that is, the sample was brought in?

A. I don’t remember the date of collection, because it was on microfiche when I received the photocopy from microfiche.

Q. All right.

A. And so I don’t remember the date of collection. But I do remember that I think there was - it’s been a year, so I apologize - not enough specimen for the test to be completed, I think.

Q. All right. Let me --

May I approach with --

Or let me ask you if it would refresh your recollection to take a look at a police report that was --

A. Certainly.

MR. SANGER: May I approach?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I’m going to leave this up here. I have another copy. You can look at the whole thing. And I think you might want to look right around that area of the report.

Take a moment, read that over, and see if that helps refresh your recollection as to what it was that you reviewed when you looked at the records, and then I’ll ask the specific questions.

A. May I ask a question?

Q. Yeah.

A. Do you know who may have the microfiche copy that I had sent? May I look at that if it’s available?

Q. If -- you sent it to the --

A. To Sergeant Robel.

Q. To Sergeant Robel. Well, you can ask that question and I can’t answer it.

A. Okay. Okay.

Q. Sergeant Robel happens to be in the courtroom, but let’s go on with what we’ve got here as best you can.

A. Okay.

Q. If you need to look at the underlying records, we’ll take a break, call another witness, and we can try to find those records.

Let’s see how far we can get.

A. Sure.

Q. If this helps you refresh your recollection. Does it at all?
A. Yes, it does.

Q. Okay. So do you recall when the -- the original report for medical services was? In other words, somebody came to Kaiser Permanente with regard to this creatinine clearance on a particular date. Do you recall what that date was?
A. I don’t remember the date of collection. I just remember the phone call.
Q. All right.
A. I think it was --
Q. Reviewing the report does not refresh your recollection as to the date?
A. The date of collection where the specimen could have been taken, is that what you mean?
Q. The outpatient summary report, the date that something occurred at Kaiser Permanente.
A. Like on Tuesday, May 11th, right? Talking about that one, when I received the fax?
Q. Yes. There’s --
A. I do remember that, uh-huh.
Q. Okay. Now, there’s a date of the actual report that’s in this report. Does that refresh your recollection as to that date? If it does, fine. And if it doesn’t, that’s okay.
A. Yes.
Q. What was the date that the actual summary report occurred?
A. It was the 10th.
Q. March 10th of what year?

A. Of -- no, wait, last year, so it was 2004. Last year. May. I think it was May 9th or 10th. I’m looking back into my memory bank here, and -- of the phone call, and of the date of the phone call originally. And then when I had faxed it to Sergeant Robel, I think it was May 11th.
Q. All right. It was May 11th, 2004, when you faxed the report to Sergeant Robel?
A. Okay.
Q. So the question is, what was the date of the original report?

A. The date of collection?
Q. You’re saying date of report --
A. What I mean is when a patient comes in and has their specimen drawn. Is that what you mean?
Q. Okay. All right.
A. That I don’t recall.
Q. Okay. And looking at that paragraph doesn’t refresh --
A. It does not ring a bell.
Q. Okay. So you would be able to --
MR. SNEDDON: I may be able to help speed this up a little bit. You may want to show her this.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you.
May I -- yes, okay. May I approach with this document?
THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Let’s see if that helps.
A. Oh, yeah.
Q. There you go.
MR. SNEDDON: I’m glad to help.
MR. SANGER: Thank you, Mr. Sneddon.
Q. Okay. All right. Now, take a look at that and then see -- first of all, as soon as you’re finished looking at it, let me know and I’ll ask you a question.
A. Okay.
I do have a memo of that, uh-huh.
Q. All right. Now, was that a record that is kept in the ordinary course of business at Kaiser Permanente?
A. Not in our department, but it is on microfiche. When it’s in the system, there’s a certain amount of days that it’s kept in the system and then it’s purged and then we have to request for microfiche.
Q. And you are a client service advocate for Kaiser Permanente; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And so your job is to field issues and problems that relate to services that are provided for patients of Kaiser Permanente; is that correct?
A. Yes.

Q. And it's your job to routinely look into the records of Kaiser Permanente to determine what procedures were performed and report that to other people; is that correct?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor --

THE WITNESS: Only to --

MR. SNEDDON: Excuse me.

Maybe I can speed this up, too. If counsel is trying to establish the business records exception, I'll stipulate that the exhibit can be admitted into evidence.

MR. SANGER: I think I'll accept that.

May I take one more look at it, just to see?

THE WITNESS: We only speak to medical staff.

MR. SANGER: Hold on one second.

All right. Before I accept that stipulation, can I ask a few more questions?

THE COURT: Absolutely.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Q. When you look at that particular document --

THE COURT: Counsel, I'm sorry to interrupt you. Would you mind -- let's put a number on it right now.

MR. SANGER: I realized that just as I started to talk. Defense next in order, please.

THE COURT: All right. What is that?

THE CLERK: That would be 5107.

THE COURT: That will be 5107.

Yes. Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, looking at Exhibit 5107, does that indicate when the patient came to Kaiser Permanente?

A. Yes. It says, "Date of collection."

Q. Was that March 10, 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And the patient in that case was Gavin Arvizo; is that right?

A. It does say so.

Q. Okay. Now, it does not say on that report that there is not an adequate specimen, does it?

A. It says, "No specimen received." So according to this, the technologist who tested in the chemistry department did not have a specimen to test.

Q. Okay. Now, does it tell you whether or not -- which specimen we're talking about, a urine or a blood specimen?

A. Doesn't indicate to me.

Q. Does it show that there is a urine specimen of 90 milliliters?

A. I think with that indication of "90 ML," I think that means that they need at least that, or they need that to complete the test.

But it says -- the "TV" is total volume. So if it says "90 ML" and -- for the specimen container to be in, and there's nothing in there, it's going to say, "No specimen received." They will result it out as "No specimen received" if it's an empty --

Q. Do you remember telling the Santa Barbara sheriffs that it was noted in the results that the -- that the urine sample contained 90 milliliters? So the question is whether or not you recall telling the sheriff that?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you recall telling the sheriff -- let me withdraw that. Do you recall, after faxing the report to the sheriff's department, that you were recontacted by telephone by the sheriff's officer?

A. Uh-huh. Uh-huh. I do remember that.

Q. And that was Sergeant Robel; is that correct?

A. Yeah, uh-huh.

Q. And Sergeant Robel asked you why the creatinine test was incomplete. Do you recall him asking you that?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And do you recall telling him because the lab technician failed to take blood from the victim?

A. Not so much that they failed. I don't remember saying that. But for a creatinine clearance, I belive they need a serum and a urine, and it looks like that it may be one or both specimens. According to this report, as I look at it, there was no specimen received for either.

Q. Okay. Now, again, do you recall telling Sergeant Robel at that time that you need both the blood and the urine to complete the test?

MR. SNEDDON: Object as asked and answered, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I think, yeah, it rings a bell.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And do you recall telling them that you only needed 10 milliliters of urine to conduct the test?

A. Yes, at least 10 ML. Yes, I do remember that.

Q. I'm going to ask you to look at the report that's in front of you, not the exhibit, but the police report --

A. Okay.

Q. -- and look at the last three lines there on page three, which I think is the one that you're turned to. Just read it to yourself.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you can turn to page four and read the rest of it if you want.

A. Okay. I do recall this, yes.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection that you told Sergeant Robel that there was 90 milliliters of urine that was brought in?

A. I still wouldn't remember. And the reason why I say -- if I may say so, when --

Q. Well, the question, first of all, is --

A. Okay.

Q. -- does that refresh your recollection --

A. No.

Q. -- as to whether or not that's what you told --

A. No, it still doesn't. It still doesn't. But there's a reason why, though, that I would think that's why. But I won't state it if it's not necessary.

Q. All right. Let me ask another question. I don't mean to keep you from talking, but let me ask another question here.

A. Okay.

Q. And then just to be clear, if you look at the paragraph before that -- and this may have been asked and answered, and I will apologize in advance, but I'm bit unsure at the moment. Look at line 23 and 24 on that page three. The sentence there.

A. Uh-huh. Uh-huh.

Q. Does that refresh your recollection that you told Sergeant Robel that the reason the creatinine test was incomplete was due to the lab technician failing to take blood from the victim?

A. Rings a bell.

Q. So does that refresh your recollection that that's what you told Sergeant Robel after reviewing the records?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay.

A. But there's also an explanation with that, too. But I won't add to it unless you want me to.

Q. Okay. Well, my question, is that what you told Sergeant Robel?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, asked and answered. Object.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: Just a moment, I'm sorry. Overruled. And the answer was, "Yes."

MR. SANGER: Okay. I have no further questions.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Would you like to tell the jury what it is that you'd like to tell them about the explanation?

A. Yes, I would.

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for a narrative.

THE WITNESS: If they want me to.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: That means you can go ahead and tell the jury.

A. Okay. When we do research, you know, a medical staff person, we do not speak to patients at the regional reference lab. We only have their specimens.

But in this particular one, when we receive a phone call, as Sergeant Robel had called, what I know I did was that I looked up in our reference manual for the information of what a creatinine clearance would require for a certain specimen.

There are hundreds of specimen tests that we reference every day. You know, we'll get a phone call, "What does the hepatitis surface antibody need, or a surface antigen need? Virgin 2 or not Virgin 2?" Things like that.

So if I remember in my mind back a year ago - and I do apologize for the incomplete explanation - but I do know that if -- when I received the phone call, I looked up creatinine clearance in one of our reference manuals. And it spec -- it just gave an explanation of it needed such and such specimen.

And I don't even know it now, you know, even though we do creatinines every day. But it would just say something and then we'd have to give it --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Okay. I'll ask you another question.

A. Okay.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Let me just ask you this.

A. Okay.

Q. Looking at the document, 5107, --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- is it your -- as I understand, it is your opinion, in reviewing that document, that from that document, it indicates that neither one of the specimens were sufficient to do the test, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Both the urine and the blood?

A. Uh-huh.

MR. SNEDDON: No further questions.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
THE COURT: Counsel?

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. All right. Now, you said you talked to Sergeant Robel from the sheriff’s department?
A. Yes.
Q. Last year, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And then you talked to an investigator, Scott Ross, on the 20th of this month, four days ago, right?

A. Yes, Friday.
Q. And he went over what you had told Sergeant Robel; is that correct?
A. Uh-huh. Yes. This is the same page.
Q. And you told him that you were -- you had been in communication with Sergeant Robel, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. A year ago?
A. Yes.
Q. And you told him that --
A. Back in February, too. February.
Q. And you told him you received a subpoena in February of this year from the prosecution; is that right?
A. Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object as immaterial and irrelevant. It’s beyond the scope.
THE COURT: Overruled. Go ahead. The answer was, “Yes.” Next question.
MR. SANGER: Thank you.
Q. And when you talked to Mr. Ross four days ago, you told him that your recollection was correct -- I’m sorry, your recollection was consistent with the police report; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. And you told him that the specimen collected was 90 milliliters; is that correct?
A. Yes.

Q. And you told Scott Ross that the amount needed for the test was 10 milliliters, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you told him that the test was not performed as a result of lab personnel's failure to obtain blood; is that correct?

A. Yes, but that's with the explanation that I was giving to the other gentleman there.

Q. That's -- you didn't give Scott Ross that further explanation, did you?

A. No, it's all coming back to me, you know, after a year.

Q. So you told Scott Ross that the test was not performed as a result of lab personnel's failure to obtain blood; right?

A. Yes, I did.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. No further questions.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Thank you, by the way, for calling me a gentleman.

When Mr. Ross interviewed you, he didn't show you that report that's been marked for identification?

A. This one?

Q. No, no, the lab report.

A. No. He didn't have it.

Q. He didn't show it to you?

A. No. But I asked him if you had it, I'd be able to remember better, you know. Because I know in line 22 or 23, or -- no, up here --

MR. SANGER: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: That's okay. During the interview you were not shown a copy of that, of the lab --

A. No.

Q. -- of the report that you now have?

A. Huh-uh. No.

MR. SNEDDON: I have no further questions. And I move that be admitted into evidence.

THE COURT: All right. Do you have any other questions?

MR. SANGER: I have no further questions.

THE COURT: As to the motion?

MR. SANGER: I’ll submit it, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And I’ll admit the document.

You may step down. Thank you.

Call your next witness.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor. The defense will call Miss Mary Holzer.

THE COURT: Come forward, please. When you get to the witness stand, remain standing.

Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

MARY ELIZABETH HOLZER

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Marry Elizabeth Holzer. H-o-l-z-e-r.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning, Miss Holzer.

A. Good morning.

Q. Miss Holzer, what kind of work do you do?

A. I am an office manager/paralegal for a law firm.

Q. And which law firm is that?

A. Law Offices of Feldman & Rothstein.

Q. Is that in Los Angeles?

A. Pasadena.

Q. Okay. And where is your home, without giving the address? Do you live in Los Angeles?

A. I live in Encino.

Q. Okay. Do you know someone -- actually, before I go into that, please give a brief history of your responsibilities at the firm.

A. I handle cases, clients.
Q. All right. Let me start a little better than that.
A. Okay.
Q. When did you first start work at that law firm?
A. I believe it was 1985 or ‘86. I’m not sure.
Q. And when you started work at the firm, what were you doing?
A. I was originally hired as a personal secretary to Mr. Rothstein.
Q. And Mr. Rothstein is a partner at the firm?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Okay. And did you have any other responsibilities at that firm from time to time?
A. Yes, I do the banking. I do supply ordering. I handle clients that need assistance. Occasionally, you know, I work the files.
Q. And have your job responsibilities changed through the years?
A. I’ve gotten more responsibilities, yes, over the years, of course.
Q. And what do you mean by that?
A. Well, when I first started out, I was just as secretarial, and then it proceeded to -- I was promoted to office manager, as our firm got larger. And then I took on more responsibilities.

Q. Did you ever meet someone named Janet Arvizo?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you know approximately when you met Janet Arvizo?
A. I can’t give you the year, I’m sorry.
Q. Do you know approximately when it may have been?
A. Maybe 1999.
Q. Do you recall the circumstances under which you met Janet Arvizo?
A. The family came to our office to retain us to represent them in a case.
Q. And what case was that?
A. It was a case, assault and battery, against J.C. Penney’s.

Q. And did your firm represent the Arvizo family in that case?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you know who in the Arvizo family you represented?

A. David Arvizo, Janet Arvizo, Gavin Arvizo and Star Arvizo.

Q. After your firm agreed to represent the Arvizo family in the lawsuit against J.C. Penney, did you have a lot of involvement with the Arvizos?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you please explain what you mean.

A. I was in charge of -- I don’t want to call it hand-holding, but pretty much -- they didn’t have a car, so I drove them to appearances. I sometimes helped out when they didn’t have child care, when they needed -- if David or Janet needed to go somewhere for the case. Not personal.

Q. And did you talk to Janet Arvizo from time to time?

A. Daily.

Q. And what do you mean by that?

A. She would pretty much call several times a day, yes.

Q. That was almost every day?

A. Close, yes.

Q. Would she call for you?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you develop a friendship with Janet Arvizo?

A. That’s kind of hard to explain. “A friendship” as in did I like her and were we buddies?

Q. Yes.

A. She was a client.

Q. Was she a friend?

A. No.

Q. Did you talk to her children from time to time?

A. Yes.

Q. And typically how would that happen?

A. They would come into the office. Usually they would pop in every once in a while and the children would come in my office, and sit on my lap, and draw me pictures, tell me how much they loved me, and write little notes and post it on my pin board, and say how great I was, and that I was helping their family.

Q. Would Janet tell you how great you were?

A. Yes.

Q. How would she do that?

A. She always would say when everything’s over, she wants to take me to Las Vegas and have a girls weekend, and things like that.

Q. Did you ever go to Las Vegas with her?

A. No. No.

Q. Did you ever have a girls weekend with her?

A. No.

Q. Now, you indicated that you would drive the family to various locations?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said you would drive them to appointments?

A. Yes.

Q. What kind of appointments are you talking about?

A. Defense Independent Medical Examinations, mediation, the minors’ comps, hearings, depositions.

Q. How many times do you think you drove the family to these various appointments while your firm was representing the Arvizos in the J.C. Penney suit?

A. Multiple, multiple times. I -- more than I could count.

Q. Now, do you recall at some point Janet Arvizo being in a driveway?

A. Yeah.

Q. What do you recall about that?

A. Well, it depends on which driveway you’re speaking of.

Q. Well, what do you recall about her being in a driveway and falling down?

A. Throwing herself down on the ground?

Q. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as relevance, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: She had an Independent Medical Examination with a physician for her injuries. I don’t know if you want me to tell you --

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, please.

THE WITNESS: -- the whole story.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yes, please.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object to the narrative answer.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: What did Janet Arvizo do in the driveway when she was there for that examination?

A. She threw herself down on the ground, started kicking and screaming, carrying on that the doctor was the devil, and the nurses were the devil, and they were all out to get her.

And I explained to her that they were only asking her standard questions that they ask in an Independent Medical Examination; that -- the history of her injuries and how she obtained the injuries.

And she was very defensive. And they asked us to leave because she was so irate.

Q. Did you leave?

A. Yes, I took her out.

THE COURT: Counsel? Let’s take our break.

MR. MESEREAU: Oh. Yes, Your Honor.

(Recess taken.)

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.
Q. Miss Holzer, you indicated that your law firm was representing the Arvizo family in a lawsuit against J.C. Penney, right?
A. Correct.
Q. And that was a civil lawsuit, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. That was a lawsuit in which the Arvizo family were seeking money from J.C. Penney, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And the money they were seeking was allegedly based upon personal injuries they claim they had received from J.C. Penney security guards, right?
MR. ZONEN: Objection, Your Honor. Leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Would you please speak into the microphone to your right, if you can. That one, yeah.
A. Yes.
Q. Thanks.
The purpose of medical examinations was to determine the extent of injuries, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Without injuries, there would be no claim for money, right?

A. Correct.
Q. Now, did Ms. Arvizo ever tell you that she was the victim of domestic abuse by her husband?
A. Yes.
Q. And was it your understanding her husband's name was David?
A. Yes.
Q. And was David also a claimant, a plaintiff, in that lawsuit?
A. Originally.
Q. And originally was David also suing J.C. Penney for damages?
A. Yes.
Q. And the children, Star and Gavin, were also suing for damages, true?
A. True.
Q. Okay. Did Ms. Arvizo ever tell you that her children were abused by David, to your knowledge?
A. Determine "abused."
Q. Did she ever use the word?
A. She never used the word "abused."
Q. Did she say the children were mistreated by David?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, at one point in the course of your responsibilities, you were shown photographs of Janet with bruises, true?
A. True.

Q. And who first showed you those photographs?
A. I believe Anthony Ranieri.
Q. And was it your understanding those photographs were to be used in the lawsuit against J.C. Penney?

A. Yes.

Q. And was it your understanding that the photographs were supposed to show injuries inflicted on Ms. Arvizo by J.C. Penney security guards?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever have a chance to discuss with Janet Arvizo those photographs?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did she tell you about those photographs while that lawsuit was going on?

A. She told me that the bruises that were on her body were inflicted by David that night after the altercation at J.C. Penney’s.

Q. And what was your response to her telling you that?

A. Well, it scared me.

Q. Why?

A. Well, I represent my law firm, and when a client admits to fraud, it’s kind of scary.

Q. And did you say anything to Mrs. Arvizo in response?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did you say to Ms. Arvizo about that?

A. I told her that she couldn’t do that, that that was wrong, and that, you know, she needed to retract that, and that she needed to speak to Mr. Rothstein about it.

Q. Did you tell her that was fraudulent?

A. I don’t know whether I used that word. I told her it was wrong; that “You can’t do that.”

Q. And --

A. I was very upset.

Q. And what did she say to you in response?

A. She said, “Well, don’t say anything to anybody,” because she was at that time in a custody battle with David, and that -- I -- I don’t know. I’m sorry. I lost my train of thought.

Q. Did she threaten you?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. How?

A. She told me that David’s brother Ray is in the Mexican mafia and runs drugs between Los Angeles and Las Vegas, and that she knows where I live, because she had been to my house on several occasions, and they would come and kill me and my nine-year-old daughter.

Q. Did this terrify you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever tell anyone at the law firm about what Janet had told you?

A. No, I did not.

Q. And why didn’t you do that?

A. Because she told me not to.

Q. Did you have any additional discussions with Janet Arvizo about these fake injuries?

A. Well, her injuries weren’t fake. She had injuries.

Q. Or, let me rephrase it. Did you ever have any further discussions with her about the fake claims against J.C. Penney?

A. I did. I tried to get her to speak to Mr. Rothstein about it. I asked her if I could speak to Mr. Rothstein about it, because we run a clean law firm, and I really didn’t feel that we should be involved in something like that.

And she proceeded to call me daily and tell me she had told David, and David was raging mad, and that he was going to come after me, and that I better watch my back.

Q. How many times do you think Janet Arvizo threatened you and your daughter?

A. I’d say about eight, nine times.

Q. Are there any other -- are there any other things you haven’t described that she said to you when she threatened you?

A. She just said she was scared for me and my daughter; that she didn’t want to see anything bad happen to us, because she considered me her dear friend.

Q. Did you consider her to be your dear friend?

A. Not at all. I was just doing my job.

Q. At some point did you learn that Janet Arvizo and her family obtained approximately $152,000 from that lawsuit?

A. Yes.
Q. And was it your understanding that that money was distributed to various members of the family?
A. Yes.
Q. And at some point, did you stop representing Janet Arvizo, “you” being the firm?
A. No.
Q. At some point, did the lawsuit end?
A. Yes.
Q. And did your responsibilities as far as the Arvizos go end at some point?
A. Once I made the blocked minors’ accounts with the bank.
Q. And what do you mean by that?
A. Well, it’s my responsibility to -- when a child under the age of 18 gets a settlement, it’s my duties to purchase certificates of deposit at the bank so that they roll over until they’re 18.
Q. Did Janet Arvizo ever talk to you about Michael Jackson?
A. Oh, yes.
Q. What did she say about him?

A. She would invite me and my daughter to come with them, and how wonderful he was, and what a great time my daughter would have at his ranch.
Q. Did you ever accept her invitation?
A. No.
Q. Did Janet Arvizo ever tell you anything about her children being in acting classes?
A. Yes.
Q. What did she say?
A. She told me she had them in comedy -- stand-up comedy classes and acting classes. I don’t know how far in detail you want me to go.
Q. I do.
A. All the way?
MR. ZONEN: I’ll object to the narrative form of the answer.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: What did Janet Arvizo tell you about her children learning to act?

A. She said she wanted them to become good actors so she could tell them what to say and how to behave.

Q. Did she ever say anything to you about Gavin getting his stories straight in the J.C. Penney case?

A. Yes.

Q. What did she say?

A. She said she wasn't worried. This was at the Independent Medical Examination for psychiatric of all three, Gavin, Star and Janet. And when we were at the doctor's office, she was very concerned about them completing general forms, you know, like, "Generally do you feel happy?" "Generally do you feel sad?" You know, "What kind of days" -- "How do you feel when you wake up?" Those kind of forms. And she refused to have the children fill them out.

And then she wanted to participate in the medical examinations with the doctor and the children.

And I asked her, you know, I said, you know, "It doesn't work that way." You know, "The doctor sees the children on their own." You know, "You can't go in there."

And she said, "Well, I'm pretty sure Gavin will get the story straight, but I'm not sure Star will remember what we practiced and what I told him to say."

Q. Now, at any point in time, did Janet Arvizo ever tell you words to the effect, "Call up J.C. Penney or their lawyers and tell them I lied under oath"?

A. Never.

Q. At any time did Janet Arvizo ever tell you words to the effect, "Call up J.C. Penney or their lawyers and give the money back"?

A. No.

Q. Did Janet Arvizo ever tell you words to the effect, "Let the other side know I perjured myself"?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: I have no further questions.

THE COURT: Cross?

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Ms. Holzer, during the time that you were working at this law firm and this case was in your office, you had an opportunity to be able to have numerous conversations with Miss Arvizo and other members of her family; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And your file became extensive at your law firm; is that right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. And it included a lot of the information about the incident and depositions and police reports and medical reports; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. In fact, the Arvizos never got anything close to $152,000, did they?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that true?

THE COURT: You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

Well, I believe that was the gross settlement.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And from that settlement was spent all the expenses, was paid for the expenses; is that correct?

A. Some of it was expenses. There was attorney fees. There was expert fees.

Q. Yes.

A. The children received a portion.

Q. Yes.

A. And David rejected any portion. And, you know, he had dropped out of the case, so....

Q. David Arvizo was paid nothing?

A. Paid nothing.

Q. Are you certain?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Janet Arvizo got about $32,000; is that right?

A. I would say that’s about right.

Q. All right. Gavin Arvizo got about what, $28,000?

A. I think 25 maybe.

Q. Okay. 25. That went into an account and will stay there until he’s 18?

A. Correct.

Q. Star Arvizo got about 5,000, 6,000?

A. I think it was eight.

Q. About $8,000?

A. Yeah.

Q. That was because of a concussion that he had; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. Gavin’s injury was a broken elbow, fractured elbow; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that is an injury that he received at that particular event; is that right?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Well, your law firm certainly represented that that was an injury that was received in the J.C. Penney’s event?

A. That’s what we were told at the time.

Q. And that was the basis of the injury; is that correct?

A. That’s what we were told at the time.

Q. And in fact, did he have a broken elbow?

A. Correct.

Q. Did Janet ever tell you that David broke that elbow?

A. Janet told me that David pushed Gavin and Star away from her when they tried to protect her --

Q. All right.

A. -- as he was beating Janet that evening.

Q. All right. But do you remember telling us in an interview at your attorney’s office --

A. Yes.

Q. -- that Janet did not tell you --

A. No.

Q. -- that Gavin -- hold on, that Gavin’s injury was caused by her husband?

A. No, she did not tell me that.

Q. At any time?

A. At any time.

Q. All right. So you're telling us that at some later time she told you that her injuries were caused by her husband?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, among the information that you had in your law firm was the information about the arrest and release of both David and Janet Arvizo from county jail; is that right?

A. Could you repeat that, please?

Q. At the time of their arrest on that date, back in 1998, and I believe this was on August 27th, 1998, the date of the incident at J.C. Penney's, both of them were arrested and taken to jail; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Janet was released a few hours before David, and David was released just after midnight; is that correct?

A. That sounds correct.

Q. All right. Janet checked into the ER room about an hour and ten minutes later after David's release; is that right?

A. Not to my knowledge.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You have medical records from that, don't you?

A. Well, yeah, but I haven't looked at them in years.

Q. All right. I understand that. But it is true that Janet went to the ER room that night after her release and after the release of her husband?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Are you familiar -- are you aware of whether or not she sought medical treatment that night?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE WITNESS: No, I believe she sought medical treatment the next day.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Would the next day be after midnight?
A. I guess so.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You don’t know how long it was?

A. I don’t know the hour.
Q. All right. But do you know how much time went by from the time of David’s release to the time that she checked herself into a clinic?
A. No, I do not.
Q. If you were to learn it was an only an hour, would that be consistent with her statement to you that it was David who beat her up and caused those injuries?
A. Well, no. Maybe. I don’t know.
Q. All right. Did she tell you, in fact, during this conversation where she revealed to you that it was her husband who inflicted those injuries, did she tell you that the children were there?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now, you know that the children, in fact, were taken from J.C. Penney’s by their grandparents?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you know how the children left J.C. Penney’s?
A. No, I do not.
Q. You know that the children were at J.C. Penney’s at the time of this incident?
A. Yes, they were.
Q. And in fact, they were two of the complainants, two of the plaintiffs in this lawsuit?

A. Correct.
Q. Both of them were injured; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. And that was the cause of action for a settlement of this case; is that right?
A. Correct.

Q. Now, did you ever ask her how the children left J.C. Penney's given the fact that she and her husband were arrested?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever ask her how these children came back into her possession in time for her to be beaten in their presence?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

MR. ZONEN: I asked if she asked.

MR. MESEREAU: Relevance.

THE COURT: The objection's overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ever?

A. No.

Q. Did she tell you that she went home and picked up the children first?

A. She told me that when they got -- she said when they got home -- these were her words. When they got home, David was raging mad and accused her of creating the chaos at J.C. Penney's and Tower Records.

Q. Which home are we talking about?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Did she have more than one residence she stayed at at the time?

A. Well, they lived someplace prior to where they lived later in the case.

Q. All right. This was not the Soto Street address?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. All right. But they had a separate residence at the time?

A. Well, they lived somewhere.

Q. But do you know if they went to the grandparents' residence in El Monte?

A. I don't believe so, no. They were living on their own, because they had a neighbor that you had to call because they didn't have a telephone.

Q. All right. Now, these children were small at the time, weren't they?

A. Star's pretty hefty. He's -- he was a --

Q. Let me ask that question. I meant young. They were young?

A. They were young, yeah.
Q. They were seven and eight, weren't they?
A. Yeah.
Q. Now, seven- and eight-year-olds taken away from J.C. Penney's would have been taken from J.C. Penney's by some adult; is that right?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Calls for speculation and no foundation.
THE COURT: Foundation, sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Well, your understanding is that an adult came and picked them up while their parents went to jail?
A. I have no understanding. I have no understanding of any of that.
Q. Do you know how they joined up with their children that night in the period of time from the time of the release of David Arvizo from jail to the time that she checked herself into a clinic?
A. No, I do not.
Q. But she told you that the children were present when David went into a rage; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. So she ended up back in the presence of both of the children?
A. Correct.
Q. And then David got angry and inflicted injuries?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, you've seen the photographs of her injuries, haven't you?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. They were photographs that were furnished to your law firm at some time later; is that right?

A. Correct.
Q. And your law firm did not become involved in this case until after the criminal matter had long been dismissed; is that true?
A. Correct.
Q. So there was no pending criminal matter at all by the time she became involved in your law firm and this suit started; is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. Isn't it true that in those injuries that were shown to you, those injuries on those photographs, they go from the bottom of each leg right at the ankle, all the way up to the top of each thigh, both front and back, up to close to the buttocks on both legs? Is that true?

A. Correct.

Q. And is it true that the injuries on her arms go all the way from the wrist, all the way to the shoulder on each arm, both front and back; is that true?

A. That is correct.

Q. And it is true that they are rather large, substantial black and blue marks --

A. Yes.

Q. -- that extend all the way from literally the wrist to the shoulder on both arms, and large, substantial black and blue marks that go all the way from the ankle to the buttocks on both legs? Is that true?

A. That's true.

Q. In addition, there was an injury to her face; is that true?

A. I don't recall.

Q. In addition, there was an injury to her wrist; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And that would be consistent with somebody putting handcuffs on her at the time of a struggle; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. In fact, all of those injuries that you saw depicted in those photographs are completely consistent with her being forced down to the ground by three or four different people who are either on top of her, using their knees to put pressure on the backs of her legs, the front of her legs, and on her arms and wrists; is that right?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE WITNESS: That's what I believe --

MR. MESEREAU: Calls for speculation; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you believe, based on your observation of those injuries, that they were perfectly consistent with what you were representing in your lawsuit?

A. At that time I did.

Q. All right. Now, did she at a later time come to you and ask you to go with her to an attorney named Michael Manning?

A. Did he own the cigar shop? If he owned a cigar shop, yes. I don’t remember his name.

Q. Do you remember telling us in an interview that she came to you and asked you to go with her to her --

A. Divorce attorney.

Q. -- family law lawyer?

A. Her what?

Q. Family law lawyer.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And she showed you injuries; is that right?

A. Yes. Well, she showed them to me in my office.

Q. These were not injuries sustained in the J.C. Penney’s suit?

A. This was after the case was settled.

Q. This was years and years later?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. But you described injuries that are very consistent, in your opinion, with the injuries that she received in these photographs?

A. They looked exactly the same.

Q. They’re identical injuries?

A. Pretty much, except for the handcuffs.

Q. All right. So she had bruises that were intense and huge and deep blue that went all the way from the ankle to her buttocks, the front of her leg, the back of her leg, both legs; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. She had injuries that went all the way from her wrist to her shoulders, the front of her arms, the back of her arms, both arms; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. It was identical to the injuries that you had seen three years earlier?

A. How identical do you want me to get? They were very consistent.

Q. But they were as close as you can describe in the sense that they were consistent, large, very large, very deep, dark blue, black and blue marks, bruises --

A. Yes.

Q. -- that ran, again, all the way from her ankles to her buttocks, and all the way from her wrist to her shoulders in a consistent fashion to those --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Pardon me.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: -- to those photographs that you saw three years earlier; is that true?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation and misstates the evidence.

MR. ZONEN: She saw it.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. Do you understand the question?

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that true?

A. That's true.

Q. Now, you then went with her to an attorney in Pasadena; is that right?

A. Well, I first asked her to speak to Mr. Rothstein. First I asked her if I could take her to a shelter, her and the children, because she should not subject herself or her children to that.

Q. Miss Holzer, did you go with her to an attorney in Pasadena?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. That attorney was represented to you by her as being her family law lawyer?

A. That is correct.

Q. She was already separated from David Arvizo at that time?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you went, and you went up into the office with her; is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. All right. Now, this is a person who had threatened to kill you and your child?

A. No, she didn’t threaten to kill me. She threatened to have the Mexican mafia, her brother-in-law, kill me.

Q. But she -- you believed that she was the person who was going to be instrumental in arranging the assassination of your child; is that right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. So --

A. Well, no, she said it was her husband.

Q. Well, ma’am, did you just tell Mr. Mesereau on direct -- wait till the question is asked. Did you just tell Mr. Mesereau on direct exam that she had threatened to have your child killed?

A. She warned me.

Q. All right. So you’re telling us now that she did not threaten to have your child killed?

A. What she said was David is going to send his brother over to take me and my daughter out.

Q. All right. So you -- you did not interpret that as meaning that she was going to --

A. No.

Q. -- arrange to have that done?

A. Not her. She was saying that -- she had told David that he had beat her that night and pushed the children out of the way when they tried to protect her.

Q. All right. Now, Mr. Mesereau asked you questions about whether or not she threatened to have your child killed, and you said, “Yes.”

A. I guess I misunderstood.

Q. You misunderstood his question?

A. I suppose I did.

Q. All right. Your testimony at this moment is she did not threaten to have your child killed; is that correct?

A. What she said was, “I’m worried for you and your child. I don’t know what David’s going to do. His brother’s in the Mexican mafia. He runs drugs between Las Vegas and Los Angeles. David is mad that I told you that he beat me that day.”

Q. So this is a subsequent conversation to the first conversation that she had about --
A. That was every conversation. She said the same thing every time.
Q. All right. And now she comes back into the office after the lawsuit with J.C. Penney’s has concluded; is that right?
A. That’s correct.
Q. You no longer have any business with Janet Arvizo whatsoever; is that right?
A. No, that is not correct. She still hadn’t done the minors’ compromise.
Q. All right. So she comes back to the office and she shows you now, in the privacy of your office, all of these injuries that David had inflicted on her; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Did she tell you that she was no longer with David at that point?

A. Yes.
Q. All right. Did she tell you how it was that she -- that he inflicted those injuries on her if she was no longer with him?
A. No.
Q. Well, did you ask her that?
A. Well, she just said, “He,” you know, “came over, like he usually does, and beat me up again.”
Q. All right. And beat her from head to toe?
A. Head to toe, yeah. She said she’d be on the floor, and he’d be kicking her, stepping on her, kicking her, stepping on her.
Q. And you were very concerned about her well-being?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. So you went with her to her family law lawyer, and in fact, you told the family law lawyer that he should do something about this, because this is a terrible situation?
A. I did. I asked him if he was going to file a TRO.
Q. All right. A TRO would be a legal proceeding, a temporary restraining order; is that right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Now, you did not feel that by doing that you would somehow activate David Arvizo’s wrath and cause your child to be murdered; is that right?

A. Well, at that point I was -- I felt bad for her. I mean, I felt bad for the kids.

Q. You were no longer concerned about whether or not you and your child would be assassinated; is that true?

A. No, I was still worried.

Q. All right. You did not call the police?

A. No, I did not.

Q. You never called the police?

A. No, I did not.

Q. You worked for two attorneys that you’d been working for for about 15 years; is that right?

A. More than 20.

Q. More than 20. And you understand that between an attorney and a client, there’s a confidential relationship; is that true?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And you could have gone to either one of those lawyers that you knew and say, “I’m now talking to you as a client, and this is in confidence”; is that right?

A. No, I didn’t want to involve my boss.

Q. You didn’t want to involve your boss, the person who’s prosecuting the civil suit?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Ma’am, have you returned the money yet to J.C. Penney’s?

A. No.

Q. The conversation that you had with Mr. Manning, that was his name; is that right?

A. I don’t remember his name.

Q. But he’s the attorney who has an office above a cigar store?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And you sat in that office with him and with Janet Arvizo?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. And you had her remove enough of her clothing in your presence so that he could see those injuries; is that right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And you told him that he should do something about those injuries; is that right?

A. Yes. He’s her family attorney.

Q. And you were pretty insistent about that; is that right?

A. Of course.

Q. And you did that knowing that that would activate some kind of a legal action against David Arvizo?

A. She already had a legal action against him.

Q. Did you tell Mr. Manning, or whoever that lawyer was, that you did not want to have your name included in any report? Did you tell him that?

A. No.

Q. Did you tell him under no circumstances should he mention to the other party of that family law matter, David Arvizo, or to David Arvizo’s lawyer, that you were in any way instrumental in having those injuries depicted to him?

A. No. I was there about three minutes.

Q. You were there long enough for him to see the injuries?

A. Yeah.

Q. And you were there long enough to give him direction as to what he should be doing on behalf of this woman; is that right?

A. I wouldn’t say give him direction. I just said, you know, “What are you going to do? Are you going to file a TRO?” I mean, it’s just common sense.

Q. Ma’am, are you taking any medications at this time?

A. No.

MR. ZONEN: I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Prosecutor Zonen asked you questions about those photographs that show injuries on Ms. Arvizo, okay?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Did you know that Ms. Arvizo had those photos taken a week after the J.C. Penney incident?

A. No, I don’t, because she came to our office well after the fact.

Q. Did Janet Arvizo ever show you her -- oops, excuse me. Did Janet ever show you her booking photos at the jail which show no injuries?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence, and leading.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever see the booking photos at the jail which were taken when Janet Arvizo was arrested the day of the J.C. Penney events?

A. I believe I did. She was sitting in a chair. I’m not sure. It was many years ago. I’m not sure.

Q. They don’t show any injuries, do they?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall ever asking her, “When did you take the photograph that shows the injuries?” that Prosecutor Zonen just described?

A. No, I never asked her.

Q. And just to clarify, how long after the J.C. Penney incident did your law firm get involved with the Arvizos, if you know?

A. I would say nine months maybe.

Q. Okay. Now, you talked about a minor’s compromise, and would you please explain what that is?

A. Well, when a minor under the age of 18 receives any form of settlement or financial gain - I believe they call it the Jimmy Coogan Law - it’s to be blocked until the minor becomes 18, unless it’s an annuity.

Q. And does that mean the money sits in an account and earns interest for the child until they turn 18?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Okay. And is the account in the child’s name?

A. The account is in the mother’s name as legal guardian of the child.

Q. Okay. So to your knowledge, was that account in Janet Arvizo’s name?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So Janet Arvizo would have had full notice and knowledge about the existence of that account, correct?

A. Oh, yes. She went with me to the bank.

Q. There’s no question that Janet Arvizo knew about the existence of that account, correct?

A. Yes, she knew about the existence of that account.

Q. Did you help her set up that account?

A. Yes, I did. I filled all the paperwork out myself.

Q. And to your knowledge, was that account earning interest for Gavin?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there also an account for Star?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you help set that account up for Janet?

A. Yes.

Q. And to your knowledge, was that account in Janet’s name?

A. Yes, it’s Janet Arvizo as legal guardian of Gavin Arvizo, a minor.

Q. Okay. And which bank were those accounts set up at, if you know?

A. City National Bank.

Q. Okay. Now, was it part of your responsibilities at the firm to continue to gather information about those accounts after they were set up?

A. No.

Q. To your knowledge, did the accounts then simply appear in Janet’s name, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And the statements would go to Janet, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And Janet would essentially take control of those accounts, right?

A. Well, she can’t touch them. She can’t take the money out.

Q. But she’s in charge of them, right?

A. Yeah, she gets -- the statement is in her name.

Q. Okay. Okay. So approximately when do you think those accounts were set up?

A. It was a long time before I could get her in. I really had to really get on her. As a matter of fact, the checks had expired and I had to have the checks reissued.

Q. And you set up the account for her?

A. Right. And I had to set the accounts up again.

Q. Did she tell you where to send the statements?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know where they were sent?

A. To her mother’s address in El Monte.

Q. Did she tell you why she wanted them sent to that address instead of the home address?

A. No.

Q. Did you think she was trying to hide those accounts?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; speculative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Janet ever tell you she had used her mother’s account to funnel moneys?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object to the term “funnel moneys,” argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Janet ever tell you about her mother’s bank account?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever know what bank her mother’s accounts were at?

A. No.

Q. Did she ever tell you about a Washington Mutual account?

A. Gavin’s donation account?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as exceeding the scope of the cross-examination

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When did you last talk to Janet Arvizo?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; exceeding the scope of the cross-examination.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: She called me, I would say, about three, four months ago.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know why?

A. She wanted to be friends.

Q. What did you say?

A. I said I was very busy.

Q. Did she say anything else?

A. She asked me to call her. She’d like to get together and maybe have a girls’ weekend. And that she had just had a baby and she was remarried.

And I felt like --

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as to her personal feelings as irrelevant.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did she say anything about this case at any time?

A. No.

Q. Did she say anything about the J.C. Penney case?

A. Well, yes, she did. I rephrase that. Yes, she did.

Q. Did she talk about the J.C. Penney case?

A. No, she talked about this case.

Q. Did she remind you of her threats?

A. No. She proceeded to tell me that Michael Jackson was no longer her savior. He was now the devil.

Q. Did that remind you of her calling the doctor the devil?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as leading and argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was that the first time you heard her use the word “devil”?

A. No.

Q. Did she use that word many times?

MR. ZONEN: I'll object as exceeding the scope of the cross-examination.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: I have no further questions.

MR. ZONEN: I have no further questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

THE COURT: Call your next witness.

Do you want to check that microphone? Is there a connection that -- look at the connection. There's something causing static there.

THE BAILIFF: I can turn it down a little.

THE COURT: It didn't do that before. I don't think it's the volume. I think the lawyers have beat my poor microphone to death.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: If you want, we can switch this one out with that one.

THE BAILIFF: We can switch microphones, if that's all right.

THE COURT: Okay. Yeah, try that.

(To Mr. Ranieri) If you'd just stand there for a moment, we're switching microphones.

MR. RANIERI: No problem.

THE COURT: Why don't you -- don't plug that in there.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: No?

THE COURT: Let's leave that alone and let's have a technician look at it on the break.

Take a seat.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: No, not yet, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Test that for me.

MR. MESEREAU: Hello, hello, hello.

THE BAILIFF: It's not working.

THE COURT: Okay. That's perfect.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Let's put the other --

MR. MESEREAU: Hello.

THE COURT: Put the other microphone back and have a technician come over on the break, please.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Okay, it's off. So make sure you turn it back on.

THE BAILIFF: It is the connection.

THE COURT: We'll get some help here on the break.

MR. MESEREAU: Hello, hello, hello.

MR. ZONEN: Mr. Mesereau was there last.

(Laughter.)

MR. MESEREAU: Hello.

I'm not going to touch it, Your Honor.

THE BAILIFF: Okay. No touching.

THE COURT: Would you have the technicians come and check?

THE BAILIFF: Yes.

THE COURT: Now, I'm sorry, raise your right hand.

ANTHONY RANIERI

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Anthony Ranieri. R-a-n-i-e-r-i.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Ranieri.

A. Good morning.

Q. Do you know someone named Janet Arvizo?

A. I do.

Q. And when did you first meet her?

A. My best recollection was probably in 1998.

Q. And what were the circumstances under which you met her?

A. I was contacted by her and her family relating to a lawsuit against J.C. Penney's.

Q. And what kind of work do you do?

A. I'm a personal injury attorney.

Q. What kind of work were you doing at that time?

A. Personal injury trial work.

Q. And did you meet with Janet Arvizo?

A. I did.

Q. Approximately when did you meet with her?

A. At the same time that I got the first call. It was at a colleague's office, and I met her and two children at that time.

Q. And what did you discuss with her?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I just want to make sure that since I have not been served with any of the orders concerning the waiver of the privilege, and it's my understanding that the privilege, as between myself and all of the family members, has been waived unconditionally, and if that's the case, I'll go ahead and proceed.

THE COURT: Can you help me on that?

MR. MESEREAU: I believe that was the Court's order.

THE COURT: All right. Counsel, you agree? Who's on this case?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That's mine, Your Honor. And we will agree with that.

THE COURT: All right. I will find there is a total waiver of the confidential attorney-client privilege, and you may testify.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I'll make it different. And I'll order you to testify.

THE WITNESS: Thank you. Could you please repeat your question?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yes. When you first met with Janet Arvizo, what was discussed?

A. She related to me the circumstances of the incident that formed the lawsuit against J.C. Penney's in which there was an altercation between herself, the children, her husband and J.C. Penney's security guards.

Q. And approximately when was this?

A. The altercation or the meeting?

Q. The meeting.

A. I believe in 1998. That's my best recollection.

Q. To your knowledge, how long after these alleged events happened did you have this meeting?
A. Probably within a couple of weeks. That was my recollection.
Q. And did you agree to represent her?
A. I did.
Q. Okay. Did you represent the Arvizo family in the J.C. Penney's lawsuit?
A. I did as a member of the law firm, yes.
Q. What firm was that?
A. Feldman & Rothstein.
Q. Okay. Do you recall attending a deposition of Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes, I do.
Q. And in a deposition, someone testifies under oath, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Someone is asked questions by the other side with a court reporter, true?
A. That's correct.
Q. And at the beginning of the questioning, the person being deposed is told they are testifying under oath, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Was it your understanding that Janet Arvizo was testifying under oath, under penalty of perjury, in that deposition?
A. It was my understanding and my instruction to her.
Q. And did she agree to abide by the oath in that deposition?
A. I -- my recollection is that in the deposition, when she was sworn by the reporter, that she understood the meaning of the oath she was taking.
Q. Do you recall in that deposition, under oath, Janet Arvizo denying that she'd ever been beaten by her husband David?
A. I don't specifically recall that question. But I do remember in general that that was -- that she always had denied that, yes.

Q. Okay. And to your knowledge, did she always maintain that any physical injuries she had had come from J.C. Penney’s security guards?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she ever tell you that wasn’t true?

A. No, she did not.

Q. Did you ever learn at some point that wasn’t true?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Foundation; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall in that deposition Janet Arvizo saying that she was fondled approximately 25 times by J.C. Penney’s security guards on that particular day?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Hearsay; relevance; and Court’s order.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes, I recall that.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And had she ever told you that before?

A. She had not.

Q. Was that the first time you ever heard Janet tell that story?

A. It was.

Q. How many times do you think you had met her -- excuse me, let me rephrase that. How many times do you think you had discussed these alleged events with Janet before that deposition?

A. No less than 25. I talked to her quite often.

Q. And you’re saying that in those approximately 25 discussions, she never told you about her being fondled 25 times by J.C. Penney security guards?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Asked and answered; argumentative.

THE COURT: Asked and answered, sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Were you surprised when she said that under oath?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall ever learning about a fund-raiser for Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes.
Q. How did you learn about that fund-raiser?
A. I believe all of my recollection is that Janet informed me that there was some sort of fund-raiser going on to raise funds for Gavin's medical treatment and living expenses.
Q. Were you invited to the fund-raiser?
A. No. I don't recall it being a formal fund-raiser. I thought it was just sort of a solicitation of money.
Q. Did she ask you for money directly?

A. She did.
Q. Did you give her any money?
A. I did not.
MR. MESEREAU: I have no further questions.
THE COURT: Cross-examine?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: No questions, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down. Call your next witness.
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor, the defense will call Miss Karen Brando.
THE COURT: Come forward. When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing. Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

KAREN BRANDO
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.
THE WITNESS: My name is Karen Brando. K-a-r-e-n, B-r-a-n-d-o.
THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Good morning, Mrs. Brando.

A. Good morning.
Q. Mrs. Brando --

THE COURT: Your mike.
MR. MESEREAU: Oh. Okay. Pardon me.
Q. Mrs. Brando, are you related to Marlon Brando?
A. Yes.
Q. How so?
A. Daughter-in-law.
Q. Okay. And do you have any children?
A. Yes.
Q. And who are they?
A. Faustif, Franco, Shane, Nelson and Prudence.
Q. And have you ever been to Neverland Ranch?
A. Yes.
Q. How many times do you think you've been there?
A. Several. Maybe 10, 15.
Q. Do you know the fellow seated at counsel table on my right?
A. Yes.
Q. And who is he?
A. Michael Jackson.
Q. Is he a friend of yours?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever meet a person named Janet Arvizo?
A. Yes.

Q. Do you know approximately when you met Janet Arvizo?
A. It was a couple years ago at the ranch.
Q. And were you staying at the ranch?
A. Yes.
Q. To your knowledge, was Janet staying at the ranch?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you recall where you met Janet Arvizo at the ranch?
A. In the kitchen.
Q. And what do you recall her doing in the kitchen?
A. She came up to me and told me she was going home with me.
Q. She told you she was going home with you?
A. Yes.

Q. Is this the first time you ever spoke to her?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you surprised by that comment?

A. No, because I was going with the driver.

Q. How long had you been at the ranch at that point?

A. Two days.

Q. And were your children there as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Who of your children were at the ranch?

A. Prudence was there. And I'm not sure if Shane was there.

Q. Okay. Now, how old was Prudence at that point?

A. Seven.

Q. And how about Shane?

A. 14.

Q. Okay. And had you arranged or had someone arranged for a driver to take you home?

A. Yes.

Q. And how was that arranged, if you remember?

A. My husband Miko came up to me and told me that he was going to stay and that Gary would drive me home.

Q. Okay. Was your husband Miko at the ranch at that point?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. This wasn't the first time you'd visited Neverland, right?

A. No.

Q. You'd been there many times before this?

A. Yes.

Q. So what were you doing in the kitchen when Janet Arvizo came up to you?

A. I was standing -- I was just standing there. I was standing kind of in the hallway right between the kitchen and the breakfast nook.

Q. And do you know about what time of day this was?

A. It was early evening, around six o'clock.

Q. And do you recall the date being March 12th, 2003?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Okay. Do you recall if it was March of 2003? Don’t know?

A. I’m sorry.

Q. Okay. All right. So Janet Arvizo came up to you and said, “I’m going home with you”?

A. Yes.

Q. And had you met her any other time before that?

A. No.

Q. Did she introduce herself?

A. No.

Q. What did you say when she -- when this stranger walked up and said, “I’m going home with you”?

A. I didn’t say anything to her. I couldn’t. I wasn’t driving.

Q. Did you and she have a conversation?

A. No.

Q. How long did she talk to you about going home?

A. She just told me she was going home with me.

Q. And after she said that, what do you recall her doing?

A. She just walked off.

Q. And what did you do after that?

A. I went to Miko and told him I didn’t want her going home with me. But he said, “It’s okay. Just make sure she gets dropped off at her house first so she doesn’t know where we live.”

Q. And did you go home that evening?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she go with you?

A. No, she came up to me about an hour later and said she changed her mind, she was going to stay.

Q. Did you say anything to her in response to her statement?

A. Nothing.

Q. Can you describe Janet Arvizo’s demeanor when you first met her?

A. I watched her in the kitchen and she was very abrupt. She was very hyper, demanding. Someone that you don’t trust.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object to the last --

THE COURT: Stricken.

MR. SNEDDON: Move to strike.

THE COURT: It’s stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did she demand anything of you?

A. Just to go home with me.

Q. Okay. How much time elapsed, if you remember, between the time she came up to you and said, “I’m going home with you,” and when she came up to you and said, “I’ve changed my mind. I’m staying”?

A. About an hour.

Q. Okay. Can you describe her demeanor when she came up to you and said she was going to stay?

A. Calmer. She was calmer than she was earlier. Earlier it was like she was frantic.

Q. Did you ever see her after that, that moment?

A. No.

Q. Ever talk to her after that moment?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

MR. SNEDDON: No questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

MR. SANGER: We’ll call Prudence Brando.

THE COURT: Please remain standing. Look over here and raise your right hand. Face the clerk.

PRUDENCE BRANDO

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

THE COURT: All right. You may be seated.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: P-r-u-d-e-n-c-e.

MR. SANGER: Okay? Last name okay?

THE COURT: That’s fine.

MR. SANGER: All right. Okay.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Prudence, hello. I’m going to ask you some questions, okay?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. Now, we need you to talk right into that microphone on the right, right there, the one you’re right in front of. Good.

How old are you?

A. Nine.

Q. Okay. And you go to school?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. What grade are you in?

A. Fourth.

Q. Fourth grade?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. Do you like it?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Who’s your dad?

A. Miko.

Q. And who’s your mom?

A. Karen.

Q. Okay. Did your mom just come into court here?

A. Yeah.

Q. All right. Now, do you remember spending some time at Neverland Ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. How often do you go there?

A. A lot.

Q. Okay. Do you know the gentleman seated right here?

A. Yes.

Q. And who’s that?

A. Michael.

Q. Okay. Is he a friend of yours?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. When you were at Neverland Ranch, do you recall some kids whose last name was Arvizo?

A. Yeah.
Q. Do you remember their first names?
A. Yeah.
Q. What are their first names?
A. Star and Gavin.
Q. All right. And did you see them around the ranch while you were there?
A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell me what you remember them doing around the ranch?
A. Driving the golf carts and going on rides.
Q. Okay. How were they at driving the golf carts? What did they do with the golf carts?
A. They were crashing them.
Q. Now, you say “crashing them.” Was it like by mistake, or what did you think they were doing?
A. I think on purpose, because they were driving all crazy and going -- they were just driving crazy.
Q. Okay. Did they ever say anything to you when they were driving the golf carts and they were -- let me ask you this: Did you ever see them crash the golf carts?
A. A couple of times.
Q. And what did they crash into; do you remember?
A. Like when they turned, they would, like, skin the side of it.
Q. Okay. Do you know if the Arvizo kids, Star and Gavin, would hang out around the zoo sometimes?
A. Yes, they would.
Q. And were they good to the animals at the zoo?
A. Yeah.
Q. They were okay? Did you see them at the theater?

A. Yeah.
Q. What would you see them doing at the theater?
A. They would be watching movies and stuff.
Q. And did they get stuff while they were at the theater?

A. Yes.
Q. What would they get?
A. Like candy, popcorn.
Q. Okay. And that was there for people to have, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did they go on the rides at the amusement park?
A. Yeah.
Q. What would you see them doing on the rides?
A. Throwing candy off the rides.
Q. Okay. Would they throw it at people?
A. No.
Q. Do you know -- when they were at the theater, do you remember them doing anything with the candy and popcorn while they were at the theater besides eating it?
A. No.
Q. Do you remember if they'd throw it or anything?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as leading. He answered the question. It's asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained. I will allow some leading. That is an asked-and-answered question, so --
MR. SANGER: Okay. Very well.
Q. Do you recall the Arvizo kids, Star and Gavin, doing anything with the telephones that are in the theater?
A. No.
Q. Don't recall? Okay. Now, when you saw them doing stuff they weren't supposed to do, did you ever tell them to knock it off?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object to that question, the use of the words "they weren't supposed to do."
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. SNEDDON: It's editorial.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Did you ever see Star and Gavin doing anything they weren't supposed to do?
A. Sometimes.
Q. Did you ever talk to them about that? Did you ever say anything to them?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall talking to Mr. Jackson at any time, to Michael? Did you ever tell Michael the kids were doing something?

A. No. I'd just hang out with him sometimes, but --

Q. Okay. Do you recall Davellin Arvizo? Do you know who she is?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. And is that the sister of Star and Gavin?

A. Yeah.

Q. Do you recall -- do you recall if Davellin used to tell Star and Gavin to stop doing things?

A. I don't think so, no.

Q. You don't recall? Okay. Okay. And then have you been in Michael's private room in his house?

A. Yeah.

Q. And you know Prince and Paris, right?

A. Yeah.

Q. Who are Prince and Paris?

A. His kids.

Q. Michael's kids?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Have you gone in there with Prince and Paris?

A. Yeah.

Q. And what do you do when you go into his room?

A. He just showed us around his room.

Q. Did you watch T.V. in there?

A. Yeah, for a couple minutes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. All right. I have no further questions.

MR. SNEDDON: No questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

MR. SANGER: May I have just a moment to see who's --

THE COURT: You may.

MR. SANGER: We’ll call Phillip Esplin to the stand.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

Face the clerk over here. Raise your right hand.

PHILLIP W. ESPLIN

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Phillip W. Esplin. E-s-p-l-i-n.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: May I proceed, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes, you may.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Okay. Dr. Esplin, what is your profession?

A. I’m a forensic psychologist.

Q. All right. I’m going to ask you to move that right microphone up a little higher. Just bring it up higher, like that, and try to talk into the right microphone, if you can.

All right. A forensic psychologist?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And what does a forensic psychologist do?

A. It’s a psychologist that tends to focus on psychological or social science issues that are related to various judicial proceedings. It could be a dependency matter, a juvenile court. It could be a competency to stand trial. It could be study relative to children and witnesses, things of that nature.

Q. Okay. And where do you practice? Where is your office right now?

A. Phoenix, Arizona.

Q. All right. Now, I’d like you to go back and give us a brief description of your educational background starting with college.

A. I have a bachelor's degree obtained in 1967. I then spent three years in the United States Marine Corps. When I was released from active duty, I went back to graduate school, obtained my master's degree in 1973. I continued on with my doctoral studies. Finished my doctoral dissertation in late summer of 1978.

I took the national examination, psychology, in the fall of 1978, was licensed by the Arizona Board of Psychologist Examiners in November of 1978, and I've been licensed since that time.

I did an internship in child psychology in Tempe, Arizona, in 1974-75.

Q. All right. Let me go back. What is your bachelor's degree in, what subject?

A. Sociology was my major. Psychology was my minor.

Q. And your master's degree is in what subject?

A. Psychology.

Q. And your Ph.D.?

A. Psychology.

Q. Now, is that clinical psychology or --

A. No, I came from a psychoeducational background. And my interest and dissertation had to do with studying brain-injured children, that may have had an injury, an acute injury or an injury secondary to a congenital condition. So I was interested in how children learn, how children -- to help them remember things that they learn.

Q. All right. And since 1974 and 19 -- I'm sorry, 1975, when you concluded your internship, how have you been engaged?

A. My career's been divided into two parts. From beginning roughly 1976 until 1988, I worked predominantly in a clinical area. I worked with a hospital system where I had some responsibilities for a child program, inpatient program, an adolescent program.

I also assessed and treated children that had been removed from their homes by the state for either sexual maltreatment, neglect or physical maltreatment.

I also, during that period of time, worked extensively with the courts in Arizona relative to evaluating children and families that were going through a divorce.

In 1988, I began my relationship with the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development in Washington, D.C. They began what’s called The Child Witness Project, research project, which began the -- the planning began in 1988. We began the first field study in 1989.

And that series of studies involves children ages 3 through 14 who may have been the victim of a crime or a witness to a crime. And I’ve participated as part of that team effort to try to understand how children go about accommodating adversity in an environment, how their memories operate, whether there’s age effects of memory, and how can we develop procedures that will increase the accuracy of information that we can obtain from children during the course of an investigation.

Q. All right. So let’s go back over this in just a little more detail. From 19 -- in 1974 and ‘75, when you did your internship, did that involve children?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did that involve children?

A. I was involved in a re -- my internship was under the auspices of a federal demonstration project that was attempting to develop what’s called engineered classrooms for mentally challenged children, for brain-injured children, for deaf children, and for children that were designated as severely emotionally disturbed.

Q. Okay. Now, in part, your graduate education related to brain-injured children; is that right?

A. Well, I -- my independent research, my dissertation, I was interested in developing a method for examining sensory suppression effects and if there’s hemispheric damage. Once I got out and started practice, that got left, frankly, by the wayside.

Q. So after the internship, is it correct to say that you began to work more with children who were maltreated, or at least that became a -- allegedly maltreated or actually maltreated, that became a predominant part of your practice?

A. Yes. There was -- I was the clinical director of a day-treatment program that was run by the State of Arizona. That program had 150 families in the program. Those children had been removed from their home and placed in a psychiatric facility.

And the objective of the program was, where feasible, to return them home, or in the alternative, to consider parental termination and placement in a long-term either adoptive home or a -- what was called then a therapeutic foster home. The majority of those children had been maltreated in some capacity.

Q. And this would have been during your experience from 1976 to 1988?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. So at that point you began to have -- go ahead and take your time. Get some water there first.

A. Excuse me. I've got a little bit of a cold.

Q. Okay. At that point, you began to have fairly regular contact with children who either were or claimed to have been sexually abused; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, you mentioned in the course of this, that -- oh, thank you.

You mentioned in the course of this that the -- some of the children were involved in legal proceedings, or maybe all of them?

A. They all were involved in one way or another with legal proceedings.

Q. All right. And so the court was supervising what happened with these children pending a placement or some other resolution of their situation; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, in 1988, you talked about The National Institute of Child Health. Can you describe that in a little more detail? What is The National Institute of Child Health? I think there's more to the name than that, but --

A. Well, there's National Institutes of Health. That's a government-sponsored series of research institutes. There's The Center For Medicine, The Center For Cancer, The Center For Retardation. Within it, The National Institute of Health, there's a section called the section on children's social and emotional development within the Institute on Child Health and Human Development.

Q. All right.

A. So it was within that section that The Child Witness Project was funded.

Q. All right. So you were working within that section on a child witness project?

A. That's correct.

Q. And what specifically was the mission of this particular funded section?

A. I had presented a pilot study at a NATO conference in 1988 in Italy in which I had compared two groups of children, one group in which we felt we had strong independent evidence that they had been sexually abused, a second group in which we felt that there was substantial indication they had not been abused. And I was interested in seeing to what degree could you develop information that would help you categorize those two groups.

That field study then led to me going back, spending a couple of days with Dr. Lamb and his colleagues at NICHD, and out of that then came The Child Witness Project.

What our mission has been is to work -- we conduct what's called field studies, and that's a little different than laboratory studies. Laboratory studies occur when you can control all the conditions in the laboratory. So you subject a child to certain experiences. You videotape it. You then can question them in various ways and you can measure precisely the accuracy that may come from different types of questions and so on.

Q. Let me interrupt you right there. That type of laboratory experiment does not lend itself to sexual abuse experimentation; is that correct?

A. Well, it’s -- it’s very important work to establish theoretical principles about how memory operates. But you cannot recreate the circumstance in a laboratory that may exist for a child who has been subjected to sexual maltreatment.

So the laboratory studies, in and of themselves, are insufficient. So it requires taking those principles in the laboratory about memory, motivation, how to question witnesses, and then apply it in field studies in which there are live investigations of potential crimes against children, and see how that data converges. The degree to which the principles in the laboratory you can replicate in the field, the more confidence you can have that your methods are sound.

Q. Now, in addition to the laboratory studies, you mentioned, then, the field studies. Can you describe the field studies?

A. Those are studies that are conducted in cooperation with law enforcement and/or Child Protective Services.

So we would go to a site, and we would spend X number of years there. We would be training the sex crime investigators in interviewing procedures. We work with them on trying to collect corroborating evidence, and we then measure how well that interview and investigative protocol works compared to whatever they were doing before we began our research.

So we’ve been -- we just finished up a five-year project with the Salt Lake Police Department and the Utah Sheriff’s Department or Salt Lake County Sheriff’s Department. We’ve been in Israel nationally since 1990. We had a five-year project with the West Palm Beach Sheriff’s Department, and with the Marian County Sheriff’s Department. We have an ongoing project with The Children’s Justice Center in Salt Lake, which is an advocacy center in which children are questioned and it’s videotaped. And they are implementing our procedures there at that site.

Q. Now, is it the object of these projects that you are conducting with law enforcement, both internationally and throughout the country as you described, is it the object to develop techniques to try to avoid false claims?

A. Well, it’s -- the answer is yes. It’s intended to try and develop methods that maximize the opportunity of, number one, obtaining accurate information. And number two, probably motivating the child to try to be accurate, because you have problems. You have some children that deny because the event did not occur. You have some children deny, which is a false denial, for whatever motives they may have for withholding the information. So you have kind of a two-pronged problem. The other difficulty is, in the majority of these kinds of cases, oftentimes it’s the word of the child against the word of the defendant, and oftentimes there isn’t the kind of corroborative evidence that would be nice to have. Consequently, the child becomes a central player in the process. So it’s -- our efforts have been geared to trying to adopt strategies that will maximize accurate information from the children and then also understand dynamics that occur when a child, for whatever motive, may not be forthright with you.

Q. And in that regard - I asked about one side of it - you are looking to see if you can develop techniques that will maximize the ability to get the truth, is that right, get to the truth in your investigation?

A. To get accurate, forthright information.

Q. So that could go either way. You’ve got children who are denying when something did happen. And you’ve got children saying things happened when they didn’t happen; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. Now, it sounds like your involvement with the National Institute of Child Health has continued from 1988 to the present; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. In addition to that, have you continued on in working with children in other respects?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. And what regard is that?

A. I evaluate children who have been -- in civil matters, who have been the victim of abuse, relative to treatment needs, short and long term.

I consult with institutions that provide care to children so that their environment lessens the opportunity for a child to be exploited at the hands of an adult.

And I also continue to look at cases that are unusual and do retrospective analysis where we know what the ground truth is.

So I also will do some training. I do some instruction about children’s competency, factors that can affect their competence.

Q. All right. Now, you mentioned -- just to clear up a couple things, you mentioned you’re licensed as a psychologist in the State of Arizona. And that license you obtained in 1978; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you have been continuously licensed and in good-standing there?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. Now, are you licensed in the State of California?

A. No, I am not.

Q. So you would not be permitted to practice clinical psychology and see patients without going to open -- or going to -- I’m sorry, would not be able to open an office for doing that in California without getting a license?

A. Well, most states have a guest provision, so I could come in the State of California to do an assessment, something of that nature, so many days a year, just like a California psychologist could come into Arizona, if there’s provision.

If I was going to move here and set up a practice, I would need to get a license through the California Board.

Q. All right. And you do not -- at this time, you haven’t moved here. You don’t intend to practice here?

A. There’s too many people.

Q. And evidently the dry air is better for your respiratory system.

The -- now, is there anything that prevents you from offering -- either ethically, professionally or license-wise, from offering your forensic services and your opinions in courts in states within which you do not have a license?

A. No.

Q. All right. Now, you have -- in addition to the educational background and history you gave us, so on, you have written a number of articles; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And are a number of these articles -- let me ask you this: Do you know how many articles you’ve written on the issue of child psychology in general?

A. I believe there’s 25 articles on child witnesses that have been published in peer-reviewed journals.

Q. Okay.

A. I think there’s eight book chapters.

Q. Okay. So the 25 articles in peer-reviewed journals, can you tell us what that means? What is a peer-reviewed journal?

A. That would -- it refers to a professional journal in which, when you submit the article, the article is blindly reviewed by other experts in the field, who make editorial comments, recommend either acceptance or rejection of the article, and provide you feedback if they feel that the article needs to be modified, rewritten, for -- you know, if it’s not clear, whether there’s confusing areas.

So it’s an attempt to increase the quality of scientific publications. So most scientific journals are what they call peer-reviewed journals.

Q. And that would be true for, say, physicists who are publishing articles in their peer-reviewed journals as well?

A. That’s correct. That would be in contrast, say, if I wrote an article for Newsweek magazine, it wouldn’t be peer-reviewed.

Q. All right. So in these peer-reviewed journals, how recently is your most recent publication?

A. I have a publication that was accepted December of ‘04 in the -- I believe it was The Journal of Developmental Sciences.

Q. And you have published articles -- without going into each one, but you’ve published articles pretty much each year over the last --

A. I believe the first --

Q. -- ten years or so?

A. Well, the first article was 1991. And I believe I’ve published pretty much annually since that time.

Q. Have you published in The Developmental Review?

A. Yes.

Q. And who is the -- what organization sponsors that review?

A. APA. American Psychological Association, I believe.

Q. All right. And you’ve published in The Journal of Consulting and Clinical Psychology; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Applied Developmental Science?

A. Correct.

Q. A publication called Child Development?

A. Correct.

Q. A publication called Child Abuse and Neglect?

A. Correct.

Q. A publication called Legal and Criminological Psychology?

A. Correct.

Q. Another one called Family and Conciliation Courts Review?

A. Correct.

Q. Another one called Learning and Individual

Differences?

A. Correct.

Q. International Journal of Behavioral Development?

A. Correct.

Q. Psychology, Public Policy and the Law?

A. Well, that’s a law review journal published jointly by the University of Miami and the University of Arizona Law School. But I have published in that law review journal.

Q. All right. And then do you recall the books to which you contributed chapters?

A. First chapter was in a book put out by the APA, the American Psychological Association, called The Suggestibility of Children’s Recollections. Actually, the first one was a book put out by NATO called Credibility Assessment. Then there was a chapter in a book on -- a forensic handbook. I’d have to look. I don’t --

Q. We don’t have to go over all of them, but these are -- these are books that are respected in the field of psychology, for the most part?

A. They’re books that are sponsored by the Office of Scientific Affairs for the American Psychological Association.

Q. All right.

A. I believe all but one.

Q. And in order to be asked to write a chapter for that, you have to be accepted among your peers as to somebody who’s qualified to write such a chapter?

A. Whoever is editing the book has got to believe you have something to contribute to the book.

Q. All right. Now, have you also given seminars? Do you speak at seminars from time to time?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. All right. And do you speak on the issue of child witnesses and the general subject matter you’ve been talking about?

A. Yes.

Q. And when I said seminars, that would include also presenting scientific papers at symposiums?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Now --

THE COURT: Do you want to take the break?

MR. SANGER: I was just going to get to the next big subject. So that would be fine. Thank you.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Q. All right. Dr. Esplin, there’s one other little detail I want to clear up before we go on to the more substantive part of your testimony. Do you charge for your services?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. All right. And what do you charge for the services in a case like this?

A. My standard rate is $400 per hour for the time I spend in my office. $3600 per day, plus expenses, if I have to leave Arizona.

Q. All right. And are you charging the defense in this case those amounts?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Now, I’d like to ask you, first of all, if you were asked to see any patients or do any clinical evaluations of anybody involved in this case?

A. No, I was not.

Q. Were you sent a transcript of the testimony of Dr. Anthony Urquiza?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Other than that, were you sent any other information?

A. No, I was not.

Q. Now, I’d like to ask you if you had an opportunity in the course of your studies and your practice over the years to hear the term “Child Sexual Abuse Accommodation Syndrome”?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. And are you familiar with the person who developed that work on that syndrome?

A. Yes.

Q. And who was that?

A. Roland Summit.

Q. Was he a doctor?

A. Dr. Summit was an adult psychiatrist that worked in the Los Angeles area at I believe it’s Harbor View, consulted with Los Angeles County relative to maltreatment issues.

Q. All right. And did he -- what was the primary thrust of his work with people who are allegedly mistreated?

A. I believe that his -- that -- that the experiences that underlie the paper, the 1983 paper where he discussed the syndrome, were female patients who had been subjected to chronic incest or that they were individuals who had been sexually abused over an extended period of time by the father. And that -- and so it was not brief encounters. It was not encounters of short duration. It was encounters in which there was other facets to the relationship that was very important.

Q. All right. Now, you mentioned 1983, a paper written by Dr. Summit. Is that where he basically came up with the phrase “Child Abuse Accommodation Syndrome” or “Child Sexual Abuse Accommodation Syndrome”?

A. Yes. That was the first paper -- that’s what people attribute to when he wrote that initial position.

Q. All right. And in Dr. Urquiza’s testimony, he actually referred to Dr. Summit; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, to further understand what you just said, Dr. Summit’s work was based primarily on adult females who were reporting incest by their fathers; is that right?

A. It’s my understanding as of the time that he wrote that initial paper.

Q. Now, was this -- did he develop this Child Sexual Abuse Accommodation Syndrome as a diagnostic tool, or what?

A. No, he -- it was -- as I understand it, it was written to assist professionals and other people, other general population, in understanding the dynamics in which a child who has been subjected to a sexualized relationship goes about making the best of it.

Q. All right.

A. So to help therapists trying to understand that there's dynamics there that are complex.

Q. So a female child who is sexually molested by her father from a young age and was in later life dealing with this, is that the sort of situation that would be core to what Dr. Summit was dealing with?

A. I think the essence of it was, number one, the chronicity, and number two, the complexity of the relationship that existed independent of the sexual aspect.

Q. All right.

A. If you have a child and they're in a family system, and the father is sexually exploiting the child, the child -- that's a complex circumstance for the child to react to. The child may love the father dearly, the child may recognize the importance of the father to the family's survival economically, and so the child is presented with a dilemma, and oftentimes the dilemma is they don't want this aspect of the relationship to continue. They don't want to have a sexual relationship with their father, but at the same time, they may love him dearly, and they may not want the family system to come apart, so they're put in a difficult spot. And oftentimes they -- in fact, in those circumstances, more often than not, I think they try to accommodate it.

Q. All right.

A. So make the best of it, and -- until something happens where it comes out or they get older and separate from the family.

Q. All right. And so when you say "accommodate," that's one of the words in the title that he gave to this. Are there validation studies -- let me ask you first. What are validation studies in general in a way that would apply to this sort of thing?

A. I think it’s important to distinguish between a circumstance where we know abuse occurred so -- and how does the person that’s in this situation make the best of it, and looking at how we make a determination about whether abuse has or has not occurred. So the accommodation syndrome is best suited for helping us to understand how a known victim accommodates that victimization.

That’s separate from the utility of the syndrome in trying to determine whether an event occurred or did not occur. Then it has less utility. It wasn’t intended for that purpose, and it can lead to mistakes.

Q. So let me just stop you -- break this up a little bit.

So when you’re saying CSAAS, Child Sexual Abuse Accommodation Syndrome, may lead to mistakes when you’re trying to use it to predict whether or not somebody’s telling the truth, is that what you’re saying?

A. When you’re trying to decide whether an event’s occurred or not occurred, it has very limited value.

Q. Okay.

A. Now, it has value. For example, one of the factors, the delay in reporting, that factor does have substantial scientific support, meaning that there are a lot of reasons why children that are in the circumstances don’t tell anybody else for some substantial period of time.

Now, but having said that, the timing of the outcry is not related to the validity of the allegation. So a person can come forward immediately. Maybe that’s true; maybe it is not. A person can make the allegation after a period of delay. Maybe it’s true; maybe it is not. So that it’s a mistake if you used the timing of when the person first tells somebody else as suggesting that means it’s more likely that it happened or did not happen.

Q. Okay. In other words, there are -- there are certain things that are predictors and there are other things that are not necessarily predictors; is that correct?

A. That’s correct. And the other problem is, the absence of any of those factors would not suggest that the child had not been victimized.

Q. All right. So let’s take delay, first of all, one of the factors in Roland Summit’s original work. What you’re saying is, delay -- I’m sorry, let me withdraw that.

What you’re saying is actual abuse, sexual abuse, could end up resulting in a delay in reporting or not; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And whether there’s a delay or there’s not a delay, that doesn’t, in and of itself, help you to predict whether or not the person is telling the truth about the sexual misconduct; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. And other than delay, have the other factors been subject to validation studies using control groups and scientific method?

A. No.

Q. So, what are some of the other factors that are often quoted following Dr. Summit’s original work?

A. He talks -- they talk about secrecy, so that there will be a process in which the child is engaged. And in a lot of these cases, these are crimes of intent, not of impulse. So the person wants to lessen the probability of the child reporting, so there’s some process in which they will convince the child, either directly or subtly, that it’s something you have to keep to yourself. So that was the first phase, which was called secrecy.

The second was called helplessness, and that related to a circumstance in which the child’s not equipped, because of the power imbalance, to respond to the overtures in the way they might if it was an age mate, so that there’s a sense of helplessness in that regard that they’re more dependent. They’re less capable of standing up for themselves.

The third stage had to do with the process of accommodation, making the best of it, living with it.

The fourth stage had to do with disclosure, or unconvincing disclosures, incomplete disclosures.

And the fifth had to do with recantation, taking back.

So those five factors are looked at as constituting the syndrome.

Q. Have there been validation studies to validate any of those five factors?

A. The only one that has received validation is the delay in reporting. There are cases in which -- there are cases that occur in which the acts are acts of impulse. They’re not acts of deliberation. A person gets intoxicated. He’s a stepfather. The child is there, and he acts out those impulses.

There are cases where the -- there is an engagement process, a seduction process that does involve secrecies. But the difficulty is the concept -- it’s a heterogeneous group of kids that get maltreated, so the secrecy hasn’t been borne out as in substantiated cases. That doesn’t mean that there are occasions in which some process is undertaken by a perpetrator to lessen the likelihood the child’s going to tell somebody, but it’s just that it hasn’t stood out and been validated.

Q. So in the research, this has not been validated; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And therefore, the presence or the absence of any or all of these elements that you’ve just got through talking about wouldn’t really have any diagnostic utility; is that correct?

A. That’s -- none of the five factors have been subjected to ground truth studies in which you have three groups. You have one group of children which have indisputable evidence that the abuse occurred. You have a second group of children in which there’s no abuse. And you have a third group of children of false allegations.

Q. All right.

A. And then you see to what degree do those concepts assist you in identifying accurately which group the child should be in. And there has not been that type of validation study.

Q. So in your training of law enforcement and your multi-year process working with various law enforcement agencies both internationally and throughout the country, have you taken the position that their procedures should not rely on these particular factors for diagnostic purposes?

A. Yes, with the caveat that they need to be aware that there are circumstances that could involve one or more of these. But the absence wouldn’t mean it didn’t, and they don’t want to think that, for example, that a delay suggests that it’s not accurate. So that you need to inform them so they don’t have beliefs that are incorrect.

Q. All right. So it doesn’t -- it doesn’t act as a predictor. It’s just information?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. Now, with regard to contradictory reports, is there a difference when you’re dealing with small children who might be, you know, three or four years old or five years old, and children in other age groups?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Can you tell us about children who would be in the 10- to 14-year age group, what you look for in reports?

A. If you examine the studies that’s relating to the age effects on memory, and you look at the different effects, and you look at, say, three- to six-year-olds, six to nine, ten and up, what the developmental literature suggests is that by age ten, ten years, kids ten and up, have roughly the equivalent qualities of memory as it relates to reporting events, what happened. They’re less sophisticated when interpreting the meaning of what happened.

As you move below ten, then you begin to see age effects in the amount of information reported, the different categories of details that they report. You see differences in what is meaningful to them versus older-aged children, important.

So it’s important to know that with regard to event memory, what happened, where they were, other things that were occurring preceding the event and after the event, what’s called contextual embedding, children are quite capable, from ten up, to report that and to remember that quite well.

Q. So in the 10 to 14 area, let us take that as an age group, would it be correct to say that incomplete reports would be fairly common, but contradictions of key details would not be expected?

A. That’s what the literature would suggest.

What that means is that it would not be uncommon, whether it is an adult or a child, if they’ve had a complex relationship in which sexual encounters have occurred on a frequent basis, to not give you all the information at one setting.

The key is, as you look at what they say across time, is on what kind of details are they being consistent, and on what kind of details may there be omissions or additions upon each telling.

The core elements, the central features of the event should remain steadfast.

Q. Now, again, you were talking about over time where you have the chronic abuse that may go over a period of years. Is that the sort of situation you’re talking about?

A. Yes.

Q. If you have a situation that occurred involving a number of days at the most, within recent memory, would you expect children in the area of 10 to 14 to not only have key details right, but also to be fairly consistent in their report?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, I’m going to ask you about --

A. Now, I’m sorry, let me just add something.

Q. Sure.

A. That assumes that they are motivated to disclose to you.

Q. All right.

A. It assumes you have a motivated child. It assumes that the events had distinctiveness or they were important to the person, and that they were alert at the time the events were occurring.

Q. All right. Now, Dr. Urquiza offered some anecdotal testimony about the rate of false claims.

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And do you think it’s appropriate in your scientific background and your experience in working with this area to measure false claims rates using anecdotal experiences?

A. I think that you could fit that in, into the scheme, but that would not be wise to rely on that.

Q. All right. And if somebody only had interaction, excuse me, with children who had been adjudicated to have been abused, and that was their experience for evaluating whether or not false claims occur, would that be an adequate experience base to make such an accurate determination?

A. Well, I think you’d need to point out that your sample were children that had previously been adjudicated, so that the rate of false alarms in that population you would expect to be less than if you were looking at children on the front end, where there was an ongoing investigation.

Q. All right.

A. Because there’s an investigation, there’s been an evidentiary hearing, there’s been a sorting out of the evidence, so that the likelihood that you have a false alarm in that population would be less. It wouldn’t be nonexistent, but it would be expected to be substantially less than if you were looking at substantiation of the first reports. Those are much higher in unsubstantiated cases.

Q. All right. Now, there are studies -- there have been studies to determine a range of false claims, a range of percentage of false claims; is that correct?

A. Well, let me just respond this way: To begin with, the base rate of true cases and false cases is not static. It’s not the same -- you might have different rates in 1985 than you have in 1995. You might have different rates of false alarms in 2000 than you had in 1995. Because as you're increasing public awareness, as you were doing programs with children to encourage reporting, those affect your base rates. So you can't -- that's one problem.

The second problem is the estimation of the base rates varies depending upon what criteria you've used to substantiate a case as being true or false, and so that makes it complex.

I think the important thing is to be concerned not about the magnitude of the problem, but acknowledging that there are false cases of sex abuse. There are true cases of sex abuse, and there are false denials of sex abuse. And there are true denials. That's a fact. And then we could -- to try to argue about its frequency or infrequency is counterproductive scientifically.

Q. Well, without arguing about it, let me ask you, have there been studies that have shown a false report rate somewhere between the 15 to 40 percent range?

A. Yes, I think if you looked at the survey studies, you'd see the estimates ranging from 2 percent to over 40 percent.

Q. On the one hand, the 2 percent, do you believe that those -- that the -- that that's an accurate overall number?

A. That there are 2 percent of false allegation cases?

Q. Right.

A. I do not agree with that. In 1992, there were 500,000 reports of sex abuse. There were -- in the United States. There were 128,000 that they determined were substantiated or indicated.

Now, they could be making mistakes both ways, but if you use that data, you would have a false alarm rate or a nonsubstantiated rate of over 50 percent. So you have to be very careful, you know, when you talk about some absolute rate.

Q. Who conducted that study, by the way?

A. The Center For Child Abuse/Neglect, National Center For Child Abuse and Neglect. It was based on 1992 U.S. Department of Health and Human Services data on reports.

Q. Okay. Would it be correct to say, do you feel, the actual rate of false reports is somewhere between that on the high side and 2 percent on the low side?

A. Well, I think that’s way -- here’s my problem: I think that you have to look at the context in which you’re trying to evaluate the report. So you have a different rate of false alarms when you’re looking at a divided family issue. So someone going through a divorce, that rate would be higher than the general population rate.

The rate of false alarms would be lower when a child is left to their own devices than it would be if the child was subjected to external influences by someone in a position of authority.

So you can’t just take a rate out here as an absolute rate. You have to look at what are the contexts in which those classes of cases occur.

Q. All right. Let’s talk about the person in position of authority. Would that include a mother?

A. Could well include a mother.

Q. Now, there are different types of false claims; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you describe the types of false claims?

A. One type, which is more often seen with the three- to six-year-olds than the older-aged kids, is a circumstance where the child has a genuine but mistaken belief. So the child believes what it is they’re telling you, they’re just incorrect. That’s one type of false belief.

Q. Ah -- go ahead.

A. Another type of false belief is an older child who is reporting a belief that something happened in the fore-distant past. So a 12-year-old is telling you about an event that happened when they were three. The 12-year-old may believe that, but they could be incorrect. So that’s the second type.

You have a type where if the event under investigation is vague, so that the actions are not distinct and complex, that can be subject to confusion. So a witness could have a genuine belief, but because of the simplicity or vagueness of the event, that belief could be mistaken.

The other category is where the child is being deceptive, either by omission or commission, meaning the child is saying this did not happen, when, in fact, it did, as being deceptive by omission, not telling you. Commission would be telling you something that they know is not correct.

Q. Now, let me ask you about that last category. Would that be an intentional false claim?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And do intentional false claims occur most often in a particular age group?

A. Ten and up.

Q. Now, is this still relatively rare if the child is left to his or her own devices?

A. Yes, in the absence of external influences, the base rate with which a child, on their own, would come up with a false allegation would be significantly lower than it would be in the absence -- or in the presence of external influences.

Q. So in a situation where a parent was pushing the child to make a false claim for gain, would that be a circumstance under which an intentional false claim might be found?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, is there anything that -- any other factors that would affect that, such as the truthfulness, the general truthfulness of the parent or the person who is in a position of authority?

A. I don’t believe scientifically we’ve figured out yet how to separate valid from invalid accounts based upon what a child or adolescent may tell you alone, without considering other types of evidence. We haven’t been able to figure that out.

Having said that, the -- and the other concern is, is that there’s a point where children come to know the power of certain statements or information. So there is circumstances where they can understand that and use that for manipulation. You would want to look at the environment, the world of that child. You'd want to look at what are the ethical standards of the caretakers, what is their customs, what's their belief about the importance of forthrightness, or, in the alternative, lack of forthrightness. The primary influence on forthrightness or integrity comes from children watching how their parents conduct themselves.

So if you want your child to have a good work ethic, you have one. If you want your child to be forthright, you try to be forthright. So it has a powerful influence. You want -- you'd want to look carefully at the environment of the child.

Q. So that environment would include whether or not the parents or parent that is in the child's environment is a truthful and forthright person; is that correct?

A. Whether or not they have a character of being accurate and candid and forthright about important matters.

Q. And basically, if they don't have that character, if they aren't forthright about important matters on a regular basis, that could increase the chance that a child, age ten or older, could engage in intentional false claims?

A. Well, it lessens the child's appreciation for forthrightness. It provides them an opportunity to model behavior where you may decide not to tell the truth because it suits your purposes. So it would increase the likelihood that a child may adopt that type of pattern in their relationships.

Q. Now, is it possible that false claims can occur in situations where there is a motive on the part of the influential adult?

A. Yes. It's very important to look at the context of the original outcry, look at the key players, and look to see whether there exists any stake in the outcome or any potential gain by people who are significant in the child's world. You'd want to rule that out as a matter of investigative course.

Q. And would financial gain be a potential motive on the part of the influential adult?
A. Could be.
Q. And a desire to seek retribution against somebody on the part of the influential adult?
A. Could be.
Q. Would that also be a motive?
A. Revenge.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. I have no further questions at this time.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Doctor, you mentioned a -- good afternoon. Excuse me.
A. Hi.
Q. Doctor, you mentioned that there was -- am I on?
Okay. You mentioned there was a study that you had reviewed that talked about 500,000 different accusations in a period of time and only so many substantiated. Do you have that study with you?
A. I don’t have the study. I have the citation.
Q. You didn’t bring the study with you?
A. No.
Q. Would you tell us the citation on that, please?
A. Yeah, it was published by The National Center For Child Abuse and Neglect, 1994. It covered the reporting period of 1992. The data came from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services statistics on child maltreatment. So there was physical abuse, emotional abuse and sex abuse, reported incidents in that data.
Q. We’re not talking about exclusively sexual abuse, then?
A. No. I think there were 200 and -- 2.8 million cases reported. Of that 2.8 million, 500,000 were sexual maltreatment.

Q. And when you talk about validated or substantiated, what do you mean?

A. They were simply whoever did an investigation, the investigative agency classified them as indicated or substantiated, or not indicated or not substantiated.

Q. If a child makes an allegation of sexual abuse and then recants it, would that be indicated, substantiated or otherwise?

A. I don’t know whether they would substantiate it and then remove it. I have a problem with the concepts “substantiate” and “indicated,” because I think there’s errors on both using that concept. It’s a concept that was developed out of Protective Services, which is reason to believe, but there’s a lot of errors both ways when you look at what criteria they’re using for, quote, “indicated,” or, quote, “substantiated.”

Q. It’s hard to make sense of such a figure if we don’t know what exactly it is they do to substantiate an accusation, right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Would it be fair to say that the substantiation of those accusations would be different depending on whether they’re sexual abuse, physical abuse or emotional abuse?

A. Yes, I would put very little stake in that data, because it didn’t define ground truth sufficiently. I would not put any data on saying, well, that means there’s 128,000 true cases, and the balance false. I think that would be incorrect. So how I use it was to show the extremes of the estimates --

Q. Okay.

A. -- and the limitations of the estimates.

Q. You view the 2 percent rate to be a little bit silly?

A. Yes.

Q. And you view the 50 percent rate to be a little bit silly?

A. I would view it that way, yes.

Q. It’s somewhere in there, but nobody knows quite where; is that right?

A. Again, left to their own devices, I would say with children below 13 it would be a lot less.

Q. And in -- you mean false accusations?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you believe that they are -- there are fewer false accusations the younger the child goes?

A. Six to ten, left to their own devices, I think the rate of false alarms, where that child would come up with it on their own, would be very low, compared to the 13-plus group or the 3 to 6 group. With the 3 to 6 group, I don't believe the majority are intentionally lying. I think they may have mistaken beliefs due to concerns of suspicions on the part of people that have influence on them.

Q. All right. Doctor, in terms of disclosures, you agree with Dr. Urquiza that you really can't draw any conclusion from a child reporting late; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. We're talking about reporting allegations of sexual abuse?

A. Correct.

Q. And is it a true statement that most children never report?

A. Well, if they never report it, we wouldn't know they were abused. So I think that the more accurate statement would be there are a number of people that wait an awfully long time to come forward. They may not come forward during their minority. If they never come forward, we wouldn't know whether they were abused or not.

Q. But are there figures that speak in terms of the numbers or percentages of occasions that victims of childhood sexual abuse report, either during their adolescence, during their teen years, during their young adult years or at any time during their adult years?

A. Yes.

Q. And are those figures such that you're able to say that there are substantially large numbers of people who never report, ever?

A. I think it would allow you to say -- to estimate there would be a sizable number that do not share that with another person.

Q. I mean, we can't conclude that the number of people who ultimately do report stand for the entire population of those who have ever been abused; is that correct?

A. No, that's right. And I agree. I think we agree. Given the fact that a sizable do not report as children but report later in life, would allow you to assume there's also a sizable number that haven't reported yet.

Q. And you would agree with Dr. Urquiza when he says that the time and even the manner in which one discloses is not necessarily reflective of whether -- of the truth of the allegation?

A. Yes.

Q. And in fact, children often report in piecemeal. They'll give a little information now, and a little information later, and more information after that. Would that be true, that's not unusual?

A. I would agree with that if, by that, you're talking about that they don't tell you everything there is to tell you on the initial disclosure.

Q. Uh-huh.

A. I would agree with that.

Q. And that kids don't necessarily know what's important to tell or not to tell?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. It's vague, because -- as to the age of the kids.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

A. I think what they would view as important would not be the same as what we may view as important.

Q. And that's the distinction that you made when you told us that children from about ten on have memories that are fairly comparable to adults?

A. Event memories.

Q. Event memories, yes. But they don't necessarily know what's important to say?

A. That's correct. They -- they're less capable of giving meaning to the event as it's occurring.

Q. All right.

A. And they're less capable of determining how important it may be to tell versus not tell. And they become indecisive, so they don't take any action because they're -- you know, when I talked about their capacities, it was for event memory, not understanding and developing a strategy for their own best interest.

Q. And, Doctor, sometimes it's dependent upon age and gender of the child in terms of the likelihood that they would be disclosing at all; would that be correct? Those are factors to weigh in consideration?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And if you're talking about a male adolescent child and a male offender, that could be very difficult for a child to reveal that kind of abuse; is that correct?

A. Do you mean a male offender or a -- a male offender, male victim?

Q. Male offender, male victim, male adolescent victim.

A. Yes.

Q. And by "adolescent," we're talking about, you know, age 10 to 13, 14, around there.

A. Yes.

Q. And one of the reasons that that's particularly difficult is because of the stigma of being labeled homosexual; would that be correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And in fact, children from 10 to 14 really do appreciate the significance of that label, don't they?

A. I think they appreciate by third grade.

Q. All right. So --

A. So you have a greater denial rate on validated cases with males than females.

Q. All right. An adolescent child walking up to another boy in the school ground is not particularly inclined to tell that other boy or group of boys that they were molested by a man; would that be true?

A. I would agree with that.

Q. All right. Now, Doctor, in assessing credibility of victims, I mean, one of the things you do is just look at what they say, right, see if it makes sense?

A. You would want to examine how the information was obtained and the different categories of details --

Q. Uh-huh.

A. -- to the statement.

Q. Uh-huh. You’d want to see if those interviews are tape-recorded, would you not?

A. Yes.

Q. Because that would tend to resolve a lot of questions about what exactly was said or not said to the child?

A. Help you do a systematic analysis of that interview.

Q. And, Doctor, when we’re dealing with compliant victims particularly, you’re looking to the extent of the relationship between the victim and the offender; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. I mean, as opposed to a victim who simply comes upon an offender on the street and is forcibly abducted or forcibly molested. Those are different kinds of cases, are they not?

A. Yes.

Q. And in dealing with compliant victims, there’s usually a relationship that exists or occurs or is developed between the offender and the victim?

A. Yes. You’re talking about outside of the sexual elements?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. Yes. And that relationship establishes or the activities that lead to that relationship are what allow this act to take place, is that correct, the sexual act?

A. If the person -- if the acts were intentional, purposeful, then there would be -- it would be quite usual for there to be aspects to the development of the relationship, the development of other aspects to it, that would set the stage for the sexualization of it and potentially lessen the probability of disclosure.

Q. Yes. Children around the age of, oh, 9 to 13, are really not inclined to engage in sexual activity with an adult unless they've been groomed for it; would that be correct?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. That's beyond the scope of the direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. ZONEN: I believe that what leads to these acts are exactly what was asked in direct. Certainly in the context of the activity and evaluating it.

MR. SANGER: I would object to speaking responses.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Doctor, would you expect that, in dealing with a compliant victim or a victim who knows the person and has some level of relationship, that if a child tells you that he was befriended by this person, that would certainly be consistent with establishing that kind of relationship; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. If the child tells you that he or she has spent a great deal of time with that person, perhaps an inordinate amount of time than one might expect an adult to be spending with a nonrelated child, that would be consistent with the establishment of that type of relationship; is that right?

A. Could be.

Q. If a child tells you that he or she was given gifts or privileges beyond what an adult would normally give a child, that would be consistent with the establishment of this type of relationship; is that right?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. This is beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that correct?

A. I would agree.

Q. All right. If the gifts are particularly personal in the sense of a gift of something that's literally taken off the person of the adult, a watch or jacket, and given to the child, that they may then put it on themselves, that’s a particularly personal gift, that could be consistent with the development of that kind of relationship; is that right?

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object to the relevance; “could be consistent.”

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You can answer.

A. The greater -- the greater the value of the gift to the recipient, to the child, the more persuasive the gift would have, the more persuasiveness.

Q. Taking a child to fun places and occupying that child’s time with fun events would be consistent with the development of that type of relationship; is that true?

A. It could.

Q. Giving a child money would be consistent with that, would it not?

A. It could.

Q. Having a child share intimate moments with the adult such as, oh, staying in his room for long periods of time, would be consistent with it, would it not?

A. It could be.

Q. Having a child share a bed with the adult would be consistent with the establishment and creation of that type of relationship, would it not?

A. Could be.

Q. Getting a child’s parents to trust the person, making efforts to really become close to the child’s parent and even telling them that they have to trust the person would be consistent with that, would it not?

A. Could be.

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object. This is speculative and -- at this point.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Allowing a child to do grown-up things, such as drinking or swearing, would be consistent with the establishment of the kind of relationship that would sexualize a child or reduce inhibitions; would that be true?

A. It would develop a specialized relationship. Yes, I would agree with that.

Q. Okay. Hugging a child, kissing a child, I don't mean in a sexual way, but just allowing a child to become comfortable with physical contact, so touching a child and kissing a child more frequently than what an adult would do with a nonrelated child, that could be consistent with the establishment of that kind of relationship; is that right?

A. It could.

Q. Letting a child stay up late or even up all night long?

A. Again, if it was a special entitlement or a special privilege, that could relate to the process.

Q. Undressing or being naked in front of a child is a way of sexualizing a child; is that right?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. That's beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Showing a child sexually graphic material is a way of sexualizing a child; is that right?

MR. SANGER: Objection; beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Well, Doctor, wouldn't you want to look at statements of children who talk about, or who complain of being victims of sexual abuse and who would fit into the category of the compliant victim, wouldn't you want to see if, in fact, there is that kind of a relationship that had been established that would accommodate the commission of those kinds of acts on a child?

A. Yes, you'd want to look at that within the investigation, both with information you may have obtained from the child and other sources of -- to see whether or not there was materials that were sexually toned.

Q. Because it’s exactly that type of behavior that allows a child to be party to those types of behaviors; is that right?

A. Well, it would -- it could serve to desensitize the child to sexually toned materials that could lead to more sexually toned acts.

Q. And it’s that type of behavior that would, to the greatest extent possible, guarantee that a child would not report those types of events; is that true?

MR. SANGER: I object to that question. It’s ambiguous and argumentative.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that true?

A. To the extent that the child comes to perceive they were a party to it and had a stake in it, it could -- it could lessen their motive to report.

Q. Children don’t always understand what is happening to them when they are being subjected to sexual behavior by an adult, do they?

A. No, but what I was trying to point -- the point I was trying to make is if they come to think they’ve got some responsibility, so they’ve gone along, and if they’re aware that that would not be sanctioned by, say, the parents, then if they then participated, they may have a motive to not disclose out of fear of consequences for themselves.

Q. Is that unusual, that a child would have or experience some level of self blame; that they would think that they’re responsible for what happens?

A. No. That’s not uncommon.

Q. That’s not uncommon. Okay.

A. When the -- when the participants are known to each other, it would be less common if it would be a stranger assault circumstance.

Q. Doctor, is it your expectation that a child who has been molested would immediately report that molestation to that child’s parent, mother or father?

A. No.

Q. In fact, isn’t it the case that the parents are often the last ones to know; that they don’t want their parents to know?

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor, it's argumentative.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Okay. With ten and up, I would say that the like -- with younger-aged children, the more likely to go to parents. They may not know they've been abused; that -- they may not appreciate the circumstances. I think the older-aged kids are more likely to go to a friend, not the parents.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Are children concerned about not being believed?

A. Yes, if they --

MR. SANGER: Objection. That's ambiguous as phrased; overbroad.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Are children concerned that they will not be believed if they disclose that they have been molested?

A. The older-aged children, I would agree with that statement.

Q. By "older-aged," are you referring to ten and older?

A. Eight and up for that question.

Q. That's one of the issues that they deal with, "Will I be believed?" in terms of whether or not to come forward with this disclosure?

A. Correct.

Q. And if the person who committed these acts, if that person is a respected person in the community, highly regarded person in the community, do children intuitively understand that and understand that that factors into the question of whether or not they'll be believed?

A. The older children, yes. The younger -- the children below age, not as willing. Over ten, I think they can appreciate -- they can weigh that possibility clearer than the five-year-old can.

Q. Are children concerned, even at age eight, with the stigma of sexual abuse?

A. Yes.

Q. And does that factor into their decision as to when to disclose?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Okay. As a scientist, you were asked a bunch of questions there that started out, “Could it be consistent with.” Do you understand what those questions meant? In other words, “consistent with”?

A. Well, could you see it occurring in a particular case; not see it in another case.

Q. In other words, if somebody says, is it consistent with somebody going into a 7-Eleven and committing an armed robbery in broad daylight, is it consistent with that that the person got up in the morning, the answer would be, “Yes,” wouldn’t it?

A. That’s correct.

Q. “Consistent with” questions prove too much, don’t they?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

Q. What Mr. Zonen asked you about, taking people to fun places, does that mean if a person takes children to fun places that they are therefore molesters?

A. No. And that’s why you have to be quite careful when you develop investigative leads which would come from patterns of conduct that might have that motive, because -- but you don’t want to base your determination about whether a crime’s occurred based upon what might be consistent with.

You could have a Boy Scout leader or a Little League coach that was a pedophile, a predatory pedophile, that was seeking opportunities to exploit those kids that were under their care. You could also have a wonderful human being that was trying to shape the personality development of those kids.

And you have to be pretty careful, because you -- you know, there’s things to be -- to take note of, but they don’t constitute the kind of corroboration that allows you to have increased certainty about whether a sexually motivated act has occurred.

Q. There are people who are just nice, caring, loving people who love children; is that right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And they’re not molesters, right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. Now, you indicated in response to some of the questions of the District Attorney that children may make one kind of report or another kind of report. Again, the question is whether or not the actual event occurred; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you were asked about some indicators. Let me ask you about some other indicators. You were asked about some specific things that I stayed away from, but I’m going to ask you now in response to the D.A.’s questions.

If a child who is in that age of 10 to 14 were to report that his grandmother told him that he had to masturbate, because boys get to a certain level, and if they --

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as exceeding the scope of direct examination; assuming facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: What’s the direction here?

MR. SANGER: I’m going to ask if that statement has been made consistently, under oath and then in prior statements and then in court, the defendant is accused of making that statement, is that consistent with children directly lying?

THE COURT: All right. I’ll sustain the objection.

MR. SANGER: All right.

Q. When you look at the category of cases where there’s a potential for intentional false statements - okay? - because I know you’ve told us about everything else, but let’s just focus on intentional false statements by minors - are the factors that you want to look at, do they include whether or not a minor makes a directly contradictory statement about something that was said or done?

A. Yes.

Q. And when you look at intentionally false claims cases, is it important to look to see whether or not the parents of that minor engaged in a long course of deceptive and lying behavior?

A. Yes.

Q. And would it be important to look at whether or not the parents of that minor child actively engaged the minor child in supporting them in their deceptive behavior to people?

A. Yes, that would be particularly important.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. No further questions.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. But Mr. Sanger asked you about nice people who generally love -- genuinely love children as being people that would tend to do the types of things that I read to you earlier.

You would not include among that category, nice people who genuinely love children, those who show children sexually explicit material, would you?

A. I would not.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. No further questions.

MR. SANGER: And I have no further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: May I be excused, Your Honor?

THE COURT: You're not excused. You may step down. You are to remain on call until the completion of this trial --

THE WITNESS: Okay.

THE COURT: -- which is not very much longer.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, sir.

MR. SANGER: But he may go --

THE COURT: He certainly may go back to Arizona. He remains on call.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

THE COURT: Call your next witness.

MR. MESEREAU: The defense will call Mr. Julio Avila.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

JULIO AVILA

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name's Julio Avila. Julio, J-u-l-i-o. Avila, A-v-i-l-a.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Avila.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. Mr. Avila, where are you employed?

A. Neverland Ranch.

Q. And how long have you been working there?

A. About four years and six months, seven months.

Q. What kind of work do you do there?

A. Right now I'm working as security.

Q. And what other jobs have you had at

Neverland?

A. I worked in the park.

Q. What did you do?

A. I was a park operator.

Q. Okay. Is that the amusement park?

A. Yes.

Q. What were you doing as an amusement park operator?

A. Maintenance, run the rides for guests, and run the small trains.

Q. Any other jobs you've had at Neverland?

A. No, those are the only two.

Q. Those two?

A. Yes.

Q. And currently you’re in security?

A. Yes.

Q. What do you do in the area of security?

A. I work in the night shift. On the night shift we just do our perimeter checks, walk around the property to make sure everything is good.

Q. And do you know the fellow seated at counsel table to my right?

A. Yes.

Q. Who is he?

A. That’s Mr. Jackson, my boss.

Q. Okay. Do you recall ever meeting a family by the name of Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. And when do you think you first met them?

A. I met them maybe a couple of months after I started working there. It was maybe like -- like five months after they had, like, the blood drive.

Q. And approximately when do you think that was; do you know?

A. I’m guessing maybe like -- like in December, January of 2000, I think. No, January 2001.

Q. Now, you mentioned a blood drive. What blood drive are you talking about?

A. I think it was a blood drive that they had for Gavin.

Q. Did you participate in that?

A. No, I started working maybe, like, three weeks after that.

Q. Okay. So when you first met -- let me rephrase that.

Did you meet Janet Arvizo at some point?

A. Janet. I met her, but I hardly talked to her.

Q. Did you ever meet Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall when you first met him?

A. It was like a regular guest. Comes to the park and wants to ride some rides.

Q. Did you meet Star Arvizo?

A. Yes.
Q. Where did you meet him?

A. In the park.
Q. How about Davellin Arvizo?
A. Same. In the park.
Q. Met her in the park, too. And that’s the amusement park, right?
A. The amusement park, yes.
Q. When you first met Gavin Arvizo, what was he doing?
A. When I first met him, he -- I think he drove up on, like, one of the golf carts that the guests use, and just came up and he wanted to run some rides, so I run some rides.
Q. Now, did he just come up to you and ask you to let him on the amusement rides?
A. Yeah. They’ll come up and they just say, “I want to get on” -- “on the Ferris wheel.” “Okay.” So I’ll go over there and I run it for them.
Q. If there aren’t a lot of children at Neverland, can whoever is there just come up to you and ask you if you’ll turn a ride on and let him do it?
A. If he could turn them on himself?
Q. No, if you will.
A. Oh, yes, yes.
Q. Typically if there aren’t a lot of children on the rides, will a child come up to you and say, “Could you please start the Ferris wheel,” or “Could you please start the carousel,” that kind of thing?

A. Yes.
Q. And normally would you try and accommodate them?
A. Yes.
Q. And what hours were you working when you were working in the amusement park?
A. Usually there’s two shifts. Usually I would work the 7:00 to 3:30, and sometimes I would switch off from like 1:30 to 10:00. The park usually closes at ten o’clock.
Q. Okay.

A. The amusement park.
Q. Okay. Now, did you operate some rides for Gavin?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you operate some of the rides for Star?
A. Yes.
Q. How about Davellin?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And what rides did you observe them to be on?
A. They were mostly on the big rides, which was The Zipper, The Spider, the Ferris wheel, Sea Dragon, the bumper cars, and the swings.
Q. How many times do you think you accommodated Gavin when he wanted to get on an amusement park ride?

A. Wow. A lot. Numbers, like 60, 70, 80. A lot of times.
Q. And how many times do you think you accommodated Star Arvizo when he wanted to take a ride?
A. About the same.
Q. And how many times do you think you accommodated Davellin Arvizo when she wanted to get on one of the rides?
A. About the same.
Q. All right. Now, did you have a chance to observe the behavior of Gavin on those rides?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll object. Vague as to time.
MR. MESEREAU: I’ll rephrase.
THE COURT: All right.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: At any time did you have a chance to observe Gavin on those rides?
A. Not really in the beginning to observe him, because they were just regular guests that would come, and then they would just leave somewhere else after they were done with the rides.
Q. But did you ever see them do anything that bothered you?
A. At first, no.
Q. At any time?
A. After a while, they would -- you know, they would -- their behavior would get like more - how can I say it? - confident to do other stuff that we didn’t approve of.

Q. What didn’t you approve of that they did?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; relevancy.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Like spit at myself and a co-worker. Stuff like that. Like when they would be on the rides, they would, you know, either spit at us when we were -- like on The Wave Swinger, when they would be all the way on the top, they would spit at us down, take off their shoes and throw it at us. Stuff like that.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you see Gavin do that often?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see Star do that often?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see Davellin do anything like that?

A. No. She -- no.

Q. You said they dropped things from the rides?

A. Yes.

Q. What did they drop?

A. It was mostly like when they would throw stuff. That would be their shoes. Their shoes, and they would spit and stuff like that.

Q. Did you see them spit on you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see them drop shoes on you?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, what did you do -- excuse me, let me rephrase that. What was your response to Gavin and Star spitting on you?

A. I would just tell them to stop or I wouldn’t run any rides for them.

Q. And did they seem to respond to your statements?

A. Yes. When I would tell them to stop, they would.

Q. And what was your response when they’d throw their shoes at you?

A. Same thing. I would tell them to stop, and they stopped.

Q. Did you ever see them spit on anyone besides yourself?

A. Yes. My co-worker.

Q. Who was your coworker?

A. His name is Javier Velasco.

Q. And did you ever see them throw shoes at anyone else?

A. On anyone else, no.

Q. Was there any time of day that you would tend to operate the rides for Gavin and Star?

A. What was that again?

Q. Was there any particular time of day when you tended to operate the rides for the Arvizo children?

A. Just whenever they would get there. Sometimes they would get there early. You know, then they'd leave. A couple hours later they would come back. So just whenever they would want to ride the amusement park, we would run the rides.

Q. You mentioned one other employee, Mr. Velasco, right?

A. Yes.

Q. To your knowledge, did any other employees complain about the Arvizo children's behavior in the amusement park?

A. I'm not -- maybe the other co-workers that work in the park, they seen stuff like that. But the ones that interacted more with them was myself and Javier Velasco.

Q. Did you ever see Gavin and Star operate one of the rides themselves?

A. Yes.

Q. And describe what you're talking about, please.

A. I was running The Zipper, which is at one side of the park, and -- and then when I looked to the other side of the park, I noticed that the swing was running and I was the only one there. So I had to stop this ride and run over to the ride that was running and figure out what was going on, and I guess Star was turning on the rides by himself without any supervision of an employee.

Q. So what did you do in response?
A. I just stopped it right away, and I told them, “You can’t be doing that, because it’s” -- you know, “someone could get in an accident.”
Q. Did you actually see them begin to operate that ride?
A. No, but when I was getting there, he was sitting down in the control panel.
Q. Where is the control panel in relation to the actual ride?
A. It’s right in the middle of the ride. So the swings are going, and he’s like in the middle. The control panel’s right in front right here.
Q. So was he sitting down in the control area?
A. He was sitting down, yes.
Q. And operating the ride?
A. Yes.
Q. Was anyone actually riding on the ride --
A. Yes.
Q. -- while he operated it?
A. The sister was on the ride.
Q. So Davellin’s on the ride, and Star is operating it at the control panel?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you see Gavin anywhere at that point in time?
A. No, not at that moment.

Q. Okay. Did you determine how long Star had been operating that ride on that occasion?
A. About -- maybe like 30 seconds before I got there.
Q. And where did you have to come from to stop that behavior?
A. I was running The Zipper, which is, let’s see, about maybe like 60, 70 yards away.
Q. Okay. Did you -- excuse me. Let me rephrase that.
Is there a part of Neverland called the control room?
A. Control room, yes. That’s a room that turns on all the lights -- well, most of the lights for the amusement park.

Q. And where is the control room located?
A. It is -- as soon as you come in towards the park, it’s by, like, a tree, castle kind of thing, like treehouse, and it’s right under that.
Q. And what does the control room look like?
A. There’s some stereo equipment and then there’s a lot of breaker boxes that turn on the lights.
Q. Is the control room a big area?
A. No. It’s maybe like -- like from right here to like right there, something like that. It’s kind of small.
Q. And how do you get into the control room?

A. There’s a door that -- you open up a door and you just go right in.
Q. Is the door ever locked?
A. When we’re there it’s open all the time. But when we leave, we lock it.
Q. Okay. And how do you lock the door to the control room?
A. It’s just a simple knob, you know. Hit the switch and close it.
Q. Do you have a key?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Does anyone else work in the amusement area with you?
A. That has a key?
Q. Yeah. Does everybody have a key to that?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that everybody who works in the amusement ride area?
A. It’s -- amusement ride area and security has one key.
Q. Now, when you’re operating those rides, you say you leave the door open?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Are you generally far away from that control room door?
A. No, it’s usually pretty close.
Q. Okay. So you’re not far away from it when you’re doing your work in the amusement park, right?

A. Oh, no, no.

Q. Okay. Did you ever have a chance to find Star Arvizo in the control room?

A. Yes.

Q. Please explain what you mean.

A. Well, I was using the telephone and -- well, then Star or Gavin would just know where to find us sometimes. When they couldn't find us -- when they couldn't find us around the park, they would check the control room, if we were there.

Q. Did you have a chance to watch Star's behavior in the control room?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you see?

A. He was writing on the control room, like on the -- by where the phone's at, the words, "You suck dick."

Q. You saw him write that?

A. Yes.

Q. And what time of day was this?

A. Mid-afternoon.

Q. And did you walk into the control room and see him doing this?

A. When I was using the phone, he was doing it. And when I turned around and saw, I asked him, like, "What are you doing?" You know, "You can't be writing that kind of stuff here."

And he kept on doing it. And when he was done, I just kind of like, with another pen, just kind of went over it, take out the words.

Q. Did you say anything to him?

A. Yeah, I told him not to be writing that kind of stuff here.

Q. Did he say anything back to you?

A. No, he just laughed.

Q. Did he leave the control room after that?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Was that the only time you ever saw him in the control room?

A. He would go some other times, like, too, but he wouldn't write anything no more.

Q. Okay. Now, did you ever see Star with any adult magazine?

A. Yes.

Q. Explain what you saw.

A. Like one time in The Zipper, in the control panel, which is -- the ride's here. The control panel's right in front to run the ride. There was a magazine in there. And then Star came up and he saw it, he's like, "Oh, that's mine."

Q. And did he tell you where he got the magazine?

A. Yeah, he said he brought it from home.

Q. From his home?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you see him do with that magazine?

A. He was just looking at it. And when he would, you know, walk away, he would just stash it like in the pant area, like tuck it in.

Q. Did you ever see him put it anywhere to hide it?

A. Not put it, but I would find -- I found it in The Zipper and I think someone else from the park found one like where the swings are at.

Q. Okay. And did they say anything to him, to your knowledge?

A. To my knowledge, no. I don't know.

Q. Yes. Now, after he told you he brought it from his home --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- what did he do with the magazine?

A. He was just looking at it. And then I'm like, "Well, you know what? Just put it away, because there's" -- you know, "There's other guests here, and just don't be bringing it to the park."

Q. And what part of the park did you find Star with the magazine he said he brought from his home?

A. Where The Zipper's at, which is closer to the -- to like where the theater area is at.

Q. Was Gavin with him at this point in time?

A. No, not at that point.

Q. Was Davellin with him at this point in time?

A. I think she was.

Q. And what were they doing when you caught Star with that magazine?

A. I think she was in the -- on the ride, the one I was running, while Star was looking at it.

Q. Okay. Now, which ride was she on, if you know?

A. The Zipper.

Q. Okay. So are you at the control panel?

A. Yes, I'm in the control panel.

Q. You're operating The Zipper for Davellin, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And where is Star standing at that point?

A. The control panel's here, and then there's a fence area, just like small, right here, and he was right here on this side, to the right.

Q. When you first saw his magazine, where did you see it?

A. It was -- the control panel, there's two doors that you open up, like two little black doors you open up, and it was tucked in there.

Q. And did he admit it was his?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Did he then take it from that area?

A. Yeah, he took it away, and he started looking at it, and then he -- when I told him to put it away, he just tucked it in his pants.

Q. Now, was this sometime in the year 2003, do you think?

A. Yes, yes.

Q. Was it February or March of 2003; do you know?

A. You know what? I'm not sure exactly what month.

Q. Okay. When you talked to Star about the adult magazine, was Davellin still on the ride?

A. Yes.

Q. Had they arrived together, to your knowledge, for the ride?

A. I think she arrived first, and then she got on, and then -- I think -- because each one had different cars, I think. And when she got on, Star was right behind her.

Q. Okay. Now, you've described one incident where you caught Star trying to operate a ride --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- with Davellin on the ride, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see any of the Arvizo children do that again?

A. Maybe before that, Gavin would try to start them, too.

Q. And describe what you mean, please.

A. For example, let’s say him -- Gavin, Star and his sister would come up and they would be, “I want to” -- “Can we ride The Zipper?”

“Sure.”

As we were walking, maybe Gavin was already at the control panel trying to start it.

Q. And you saw this happen?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you do when you saw that happen?

A. I told them, like, not to be doing that, because, you know, only the employees can be running the rides.

Q. Did you ever see Gavin or Star driving quads on the property?

A. Yes.

Q. And please describe what a quad is.

A. That’s a -- a quad is like a four-wheel -- like a motorcycle where you can take to the mountains and drive them around there, around the property.

Q. How fast do they go?

A. How fast do they go? Maybe like 30 miles per hour, I guess. 40.

Q. Did you observe them driving those quads?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you notice about it?

A. Destructive. Run over the grass. Just almost -- I mean, Gavin almost tried to -- like, he almost ran over, like, my co-worker, Javier Velasco. If he wasn’t paying attention, he would have gotten hit, but he was aware of how they were driving, so --

Q. And when you saw them driving like this, did you say anything?

A. No. We did at first, but after a while they would keep on doing it, and, you know, we would just stay out of the way.

Q. Did you see the mother around while they were driving the quads in this fashion?

A. I hardly saw the mother.

Q. Did you ever see the mother at the amusement area?

A. Rarely. Maybe like once. Let's say if they were there for a week, maybe she would come down once for, like, a couple minutes and that's it.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. We'll take our break.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Avila.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. You've worked at Neverland for about five years. Is that about right?

A. A little bit less than five years, yes.

Q. You're in security now?

A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been a security guard?

A. Like four months, five months.

Q. And you testified that the Arvizo boys became more and more rowdy as their stay increased at Neverland; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. So when they first came there, they were -- would you say that they were fairly well behaved?

A. I would say fairly well. It was quick. They would come, get on the rides, and leave.

Q. But as they stayed there more and more, their behavior became more and more rowdy?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you say that's a common pattern among children at Neverland?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE WITNESS: Yes, among children --

THE COURT: Just -- overruled.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: So the longer kids stay at Neverland, the more rowdy they tend to become; is that fair to say?

A. Rowdy --

Q. Misbehaving, that type of thing.

A. Misbehaving. A little bit. Not a lot.

Q. Okay. You were interviewed about these facts by the Santa Barbara Sheriff’s Office; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And during that interview, you had some problem determining whether the sheriff’s department was talking about the Cascio kids or the Arvizo kids; isn’t that true?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is, “Yes.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. And the reason for that is because the Cascio kids, who stay there quite often at Neverland, are quite rowdy themselves; is that fair to say?

A. They would stay there a lot, but they weren’t rowdy.

Q. Didn’t you say they were rowdy? Didn’t you tell the sheriff’s department that they were?

A. No, they weren’t. Not the Cascios.

Q. None of the Cascio kids misbehaved?

A. No.

Q. As far as this magazine that you said was found in Star’s possession, I believe your testimony is he was standing beside you and leafing through a magazine with pictures of nude women?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was one magazine, correct?

A. Yes, just one magazine.

Q. Okay. Now, you signed a declaration in this case for the defense; isn’t that correct?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And who prepared that declaration?

A. I think it was Eric Mason. I think he first interviewed me.
Q. A private investigator?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now, in that declaration, it says that Star had pornographic “magazines.” Was that a misprint?
A. That I have seen, it was just one magazine.
Q. Okay.
A. Someone else said they found one. Maybe that’s why it’s “magazines.”
Q. But you have no direct knowledge of this other magazine that was found?
A. No. Other magazines, no.
Q. So Star -- if I’m picturing this correctly, Star is standing next to you, and he’s just casually looking at this magazine?
A. Yes, I’m running the ride here, and he’s about maybe like right here, this far away, to my right.
Q. Okay. Indicating maybe about three or four feet?
A. Yeah.
Q. And just casually looking at the magazine?
A. Yes.

Q. Like it’s no big deal to look at a nude magazine at Neverland?
A. Yeah. Yeah. Well --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; assumes facts not in evidence.
THE COURT: Argumentative.
MR. MESEREAU: Argumentative.
THE COURT: I’ll strike it. Sustained.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay.
(Laughter.)
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: So let’s move on to the -- well, before we move off that subject, is it -- did you know that Mr. Jackson kept nude magazines at Neverland?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: No.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Didn’t you tell the sheriff's department that you had knowledge that Mr. Jackson had nude magazines at Neverland?

A. No. No. No.
Q. You're sure about that?
A. Yeah.
Q. Didn't you tell Detective Vic Alvarez that this magazine might have come from Mr. Jackson?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.
THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: As far as this ride that was started by Star, you said that you were in a different part of the park?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were operating The Zipper?
A. Yes.
Q. Didn't you also state in one of your interviews that the Arvizo children were the only three children at Neverland during that time?
A. There was times that they were. And then there was times that, you know, after a day or two, there was more people there.
Q. But didn't you specifically state that during this incident that Star operated the swing ride, the Arvizo children were the only three children at Neverland? Didn't you specifically state that?
A. I can't remember if I specifically said it, but I know that it was -- it was them three that were there during that time.
Q. So they were the only three at the amusement park at that time?
A. At the amusement park, yeah.
Q. Why were you operating The Zipper if the Arvizo children were the only three people at Neverland and they were in a different part of the park?

A. Well, they were in the park. They -- you know, they split up. Let's say one wants to ride on this ride, one wants to ride on this ride. Okay, "Well, let me go run this ride first," and then if there's, you know, one person, two other -- the other two people are somewhere else. I don't know where they're at.

Q. Well, didn't you just say Gavin wasn't anywhere to be seen during this time; he wasn't around?

A. When was this at?

Q. When Star and Davellin were over on the swing ride and Star was operating it.

A. No, Gavin was not -- when Star started the ride, Gavin was not there.

Q. Gavin was not at the amusement park at that time?

A. I don't know if he was in the amusement park, but I didn't see him there where the swing was at.

Q. Okay. So do you know who was on The Zipper at that time?

A. The Zipper -- what time?

Q. During the time that Star was operating the swing ride.

A. Okay. You know what? I'm not sure.

Q. Okay. Now, do these rides have keys that prevent their operation by children?

A. Some do.

Q. And there are very young children that stay at Neverland; is that correct?

A. Yeah.

Q. And the swing ride does have a key, correct?

A. The swing ride has a key, yeah, I think it does.

Q. Didn't you tell that to investigators, that it had a key?

A. Yeah, I think it has a small key on the left corner.

Q. So don't you remove those keys when those rides are not being operated?

A. No.

Q. You just leave the keys there, and if someone comes up and operates them, you'll try and stop them, I guess?

A. Yeah.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you, Mr. Avila. I have no further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down. Call your next witness.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes. The defense will call Ms. Lessie Dean Wraggs.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

LESSIE DEAN WRAGGS

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Lessie Wraggs. Lessie Dean Wraggs. It’s L-e-s-s-i-e, D-e-a-n, W-r-a-g-g-s.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good afternoon, Miss Wraggs.

A. Hi.

Q. Miss Wraggs, you live in the Compton area?

A. Yes.

Q. And that’s in Los Angeles County, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever met someone named Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. And when do you think you met Janet Arvizo for the first time?

A. I think it was like ‘98. I’m not for sure.

Q. And what are the circumstances under which you met her?

A. She came to Universal Dance to bring her kids.

Q. And what is Universal Dance?

A. It’s a dance -- tap school, ballet and jazz.

Q. Okay. You may want to just put the microphone a little closer if you can. Thank you very much.

You said it’s a school for what?

A. Dance.

Q. Okay. And were you working at that school?

A. Yes. Receptionist.

Q. What was the name of it?

A. Universal Dance.

Q. Okay. And where was the Universal Dance school located?

A. 6009 West Olympic Boulevard in Los Angeles.

Q. And you were the receptionist?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. When you first met Janet Arvizo, was she with her children?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did you meet this family?

A. She came up to me and asked me about classes for her kids, but she wanted free classes, and I told her that she would have to talk to the owner.

Q. Okay. She wanted free classes?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you send her to the owner?

A. Yes.

Q. And who was the owner of the school at that time?

A. Paul and Arlene Kennedy.

Q. Okay. Now, do you still work at the school?

A. Part time. I go up and help out.

Q. Okay. And so for how many years have you -- I received a note to ask you to try and raise your voice a little bit.

A. Okay.

Q. Thank you very much.

How many years now have you worked at that school?

A. About 13 or 14 years.

Q. Now, when Janet asked you if her kids could go to the school for free, did you have the authority to tell her they could?

A. No.
Q. And that was the owners’ responsibility, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. You sent her to the owner?
A. Yes.
Q. And what’s the next thing you recall about Miss Arvizo?

A. She -- he talked to her. I don’t know what he said to her. And Arlene talked to her. They decided to let them have some free classes.
Q. Do you know why?
A. Do I know why?
Q. Yes.
A. She said she couldn’t afford to pay for the classes, and that she had been passing by looking at the school and saw some of the kids dancing, and she was interested in her kids dancing.
Q. Now, to your knowledge, did the Arvizo children attend the school?
A. Attend Universal?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. How long do you recall their doing that?
A. They were there like about maybe three years.
Q. Okay. So this would be starting in approximately when?
A. Eighty -- ‘98.
Q. Okay. Okay. And would you see them often?
A. Yes, I used to see them. Well, I was seeing them every weekend.
Q. Do you ever recall whether or not Janet asked anyone for money at the school?
A. Yes. Mr. Kennedy. Paul Kennedy.
Q. How do you know that?

A. I had heard. Well, he said something to me about it.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll object and move to strike based on multiple hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Would you see the children with the mother from time to time?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you describe the mother’s demeanor?

A. She -- she had control of the kids. She controlled the kids very well. The father, he didn’t have control like she did.

Q. And when you say “control,” what do you mean?

A. Okay. We had advanced classes and beginner classes and intermediate classes, and she wanted her kids in the advanced class and they wasn’t ready, and she would tell her kids to go on and go into the classes anyway.

And I would tell them that they couldn’t go, but when I would turn away, she would try to send them in. After sending them in, Miss Kennedy would have to go and pull them out.

Q. Okay. Did that happen often?

A. Quite a few times.

Q. Were the kids well behaved, to your knowledge?

A. No.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. They would be all over the dance school, into things that they didn’t have no business being into, going to the shoe boxes. Like we had tap shoes that were, like, behind me or either in the closet. They would be in the closet. They would just go all over the desk and just do whatever.

Q. Did you try and stop them from time to time?

A. Yes. They always talked smart. The two boys especially.

Q. That’s Gavin and Star?

A. Yes.

Q. And what would they say to you?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’m going to object as hearsay.

THE WITNESS: “We’re doing what we want to do.”

THE COURT: Just a moment.

The objection is overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: What did Gavin and Star say to you that you thought was smart?

A. "We're doing what we want to do."

Q. And what would you say to them?

A. I would tell them they have to get off the shoe boxes. Sometimes I have to move them out of their way to make them leave them alone.

Q. Now, did this kind of smart behavior happen right from the start?

A. I think about the second time they came, that's when I noticed how they were. And I mentioned to Paul and Arlene Kennedy that, "These kids are out of control, and I think they're only here because the mother want to use you. I think they have money to pay for their classes." I told her that.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll object. Improper opinion; no foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall how the Arvizo family would arrive at the dance school?

A. The only time that I really recall is when they came in with a new car.

Q. And what kind of car was it?

A. It was like an SUV.

Q. Do you know approximately when they arrived with the SUV?

A. She told us about -- well, he told us first about that they had had a problem at J.C. Penney's; that the security guards beat --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll object as nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let me just first focus on the car.

A. Okay.

Q. When they first started coming to the school, were they arriving in an SUV?

A. No.

Q. One day you saw them arrive in an SUV, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And approximately when was that, do you think?

A. I’m not for sure when. It might have been like --

BAILIFF CORTEZ: You need to speak up.

THE WITNESS: I’m not for sure what year it was.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And did it seem to be new?

A. It was new.

Q. Okay. Did you ask Janet where they got this new SUV?

A. No, I didn’t ask her.

Q. Did you see them arrive in that brand-new SUV after that?

A. Yes.

Q. How many times do you think they arrived in that brand-new SUV?

A. At least three or four times.

Q. Okay. Now, did you ever talk to Janet about an incident that happened at J.C. Penney’s?

A. Yes.

Q. And did she tell you about that incident?

A. Yes.

Q. What did she tell you?

A. That the security there jumped on her for no reason at all, and her kids was running trying to help her, and as they was running trying to help her, the security guard beat her to the ground. That’s about it. She --

Q. Did she ever say anything about the race of those security guards?

A. Black.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. 352; relevance.

MR. MESEREAU: I think it’s impeachment, Your Honor.

THE COURT: The objection’s overruled. The answer was, “Black.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did she say anything more about the race of those security guards to you?

A. She just said that they were black, all of them were black.

Q. And did she say she was concerned about something coming out of that incident?

A. She said the reason they hadn’t been back to dance school is because her kids were scared to death of black people and that they hated blacks now.

Q. Do you recall whether or not Janet ever said that her family was homeless?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she say that?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know approximately when Janet said that her family was homeless?

A. It was after that incident.

Q. Did you believe her?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good afternoon, Miss Wraggs.

A. Hi.

Q. Hi. Now, you began your testimony by telling us about how Janet stopped by the dance school and asked about free classes.

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know if that dance school ever gave scholarships to students before that time?

A. Yes, they gave scholarships to certain kids.

Q. Okay. Did Janet ask for a scholarship?

A. No.

Q. When she came in, tell me about how she asked for the free classes. How did that conversation come about?

A. First she stood around and looked at the kids dance.

Q. I’m sorry?

A. She went around and went to each class and was watching the kids dance.

Q. Did she have any children with her?

A. Yes, she had her kids with her.

Q. All three?

A. All three.

Q. Okay.

A. And then she came to the desk and asked me about free classes.

Q. If there were any free classes?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she know whether or not -- were there any signs posted that this dance school was maybe a community-service-oriented enterprise, or was for pay? Does it have anything like -- you know, like pricing sheets on the wall, anything like that?

A. Yeah, we have -- we had schedules, and it showed how much the classes cost. Gave her a schedule.

Q. Where are those schedules?

A. They were at my desk.

Q. All right. And you referred her to Paul Kennedy?

A. Yes.

Q. And he’s the owner of that school, right?

A. Paul and Arlene Kennedy. She talked to both of them.

Q. And the Kennedys agreed to allow Miss Arvizo’s children to attend that dance school for free?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you present during that conversation that she had with the Kennedys?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And the Kennedys continued to allow the Arvizo children to have free classes at their school for three years?

A. Yes. I don’t know how many years, but they were there.

Q. For three years?

A. They were free. They were free.

Q. Well, didn’t you testify just a few moments ago that it was three years?

A. I told you also I’m not for sure about the years, but she was there taking free classes. It was probably about three years.

Q. All right. And the Kennedys could have terminated those classes at any time that they wanted?

A. Yes.

Q. As far as this remark about the children not attending dance class because they were afraid of black people, you didn’t believe that, did you?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. That misstates the evidence.

THE WITNESS: Pardon?
THE COURT: Overruled. You may continue.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: My question was, you didn’t believe that the children disliked black people, did you?
A. No, I didn’t believe it.
Q. Okay. Janet was concerned that that was their perception; that they might have a problem with black people. She was worried about that, wasn’t she?
A. No. I don’t think so, because the kids --
Q. Did she express it?
A. No, because the kids had came before Janet brought them back. She didn’t know that her husband had already brought them there, and they had been playing with the kids. But when she came, she said the reason they hadn’t been back was because the kids were scared of blacks and that they hated blacks now.
Q. Okay. So that was Janet, what Janet thought, but Janet was wrong?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, how old were the children when they started this dance school?
A. Let’s see. I think one was about eight.
Q. Do you know which one that was?
A. I think -- well, the baby boy might have been seven or eight, and then Gavin was about nine.

I think. And I’m not for sure how old the girl was. She might have been 10 or 11.
Q. Did Gavin have cancer during the period of time they attended the school?
A. No.
Q. Was this before he had cancer or after he had cancer?
A. Before.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you. No further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

Next witness, please.

MR. MESEREAU: Defense will call Ms. Arlene Kennedy.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

THE WITNESS: Sure.

THE COURT: I'm going to ask you to face the clerk right here and raise your right hand.

ARLENE KENNEDY

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Arlene Kennedy. A-r-l-e-n-e, K-e-n-n-e-d-y.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good afternoon, Miss Kennedy.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. Miss Kennedy, do you run a dance school?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And how long have you done that?

A. I'm in my 25th year.

Q. What is the name of the school?

A. Universal Dance Design.

Q. And where is it located?

A. In Los Angeles.

Q. And do you teach there as well?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Have you taught during the entire time that you've owned the school?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Okay. Do you know someone named Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And how do you know her?

A. Janet came to my school with her family, her husband and her three children, when her youngest was about -- Star was about five years old. And they came into my school and they asked my brother and I -- they said they couldn't afford to take lessons, so they asked if we could give them a scholarship that they could take free lessons, and my brother said yes, they could.

Q. Do you know approximately when this was?

A. Star was about five years old. That's the only -- I can't tell you, you know, what year it was, because I don't know how old he is now, but he was about five -- he was five years old.

Q. Now, were the father and the mother together when they asked for free classes?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. Did you ask whether or not the father was employed?

A. I didn't. My brother actually did talk to the family, and my brother actually made that decision.

Q. And did you know whether or not the father worked for Von's?

A. I didn't know where he worked.

Q. Did you know whether or not the mother worked?

A. The mother I don't think worked at that time.

Q. Okay. Did anyone tell you that they were homeless?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did they tell you they had no money?

A. They said they didn't have any money. They said they didn't have any money. They couldn't afford dancing classes.

Q. Okay. And you and your brother agreed to give them free classes, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And how long did the free classes go for, if you know?

A. Well, they went in and out, because there was like a series of events. So, let's say that they would take the classes for this period of time, and then they were gone. And then when they came back, there was -- the father was telling me about the issue of J.C. Penney's. And so they were back for a short time, and then they were gone again, and then Gavin got cancer.

And so when -- all during the time when he had cancer, I was up, you know, at the hospital visiting him and what have you, and then they were gone. So they were gone during that time and then after he got healed, they came back again.

And then after, they were -- they were back again for a short period of time, and then they were gone again, and I guess it was during the time of her divorce. And then they came back again.

And the last time that I saw them, they were in middle school, and they rode a bike. Star and the girl rode bikes to my school from East L.A., and they had to go back at night, and I said, "If this is your best way of traveling," you know, "as young as you are," I said, "that's very dangerous for you to be going from L.A. to East L.A. on a bike at night."

And I said, "If you don't have an adult," you know, "coming with you," I said, "I don't think you should come like that."

And that was the last that I saw them for dance classes.

Q. Now, your description of the children being on bikes, was that after Gavin had recovered from cancer?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did the children tell you they had no car?

A. They didn't -- they didn't say that they didn't have a car, because they didn't discuss that. I know that while they were in the hospital, I know that Carol Lamir asked Michael to give them a car so that they can get back and forth to the hospital. I remember that.

Q. And to your knowledge, did that happen?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. Now, during the entire period of time that you've described, were the Arvizos going to your school for free?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever charge them a dime to go to your school?

A. Never.

Q. And this is for how long a period of time?

A. Well, I would say from Star being five years old until they were in middle school.

Q. And did you ever learn whether or not during that period of time the father was employed?

A. The father was employed, yes, prior to Gavin's being sick. And I know once Gavin was sick, stricken with cancer, the father became unemployed because he stayed at the hospital night and day with his son. So he gave up his job to stay at the hospital with his son.

Q. Now, did you discuss the alleged events at J.C. Penney with Janet?

A. When Janet came back. But the father and I discussed it first, because I said, "Well, where have the kids been?"

And he said, "Oh, Miss Kennedy," he said, you know, "It's been crazy." And he started telling me about J.C. Penney's, but when Janet came back, it was a different story than what he had told me.

Q. What did Janet tell you?

A. Janet told me that the event happened in the alley, and it was some black guys that, you know, jumped on her and what have you, and that she said that she hoped that her children wouldn't grow up to hate black people.

But the father, on the other hand, had told me that it happened in the middle of the mall.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Object as to hearsay, the statements of Mr. Arvizo.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And were you told that the children were not attending the school because of the J.C. Penney incident?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, at some point while you were giving free lessons to the Arvizo children, did you ever learn that the family had obtained $152,000 from J.C. Penney and another company?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll object as vague as to time.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: At any time did Janet Arvizo ever tell you, “We don’t have to get free lessons anymore. We just got $152,000 from the J.C. Penney lawsuit”?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll object as to relevancy, without foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever learn whether or not the Arvizos obtained money from J.C. Penney?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. When was that?

A. Janet told me that the last time. I think it was after the -- when they came back to dancing school, she said that she had a lot -- they got a large settlement, and she said that the only thing that they really got was these bicycles. That’s the way she put it.

Q. All they got was the bicycles from J.C. Penney?

A. That’s what she said. “We got a lot of money, but the only thing that we got that we can show for it was the bicycles.”

Q. And did you continue to give the children free lessons after that?

A. I did. I did.

MR. MESEREAU: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good afternoon, Miss Kennedy.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. So, the information that Janet gave you about the J.C. Penney settlement, she didn’t hide from you that she got some money out of that settlement; is that true?

A. That’s true.

Q. Okay. And as far as the time that the Arvizos were attending your dance school on scholarship, if I understand it correctly, there was a period of time that they attended, and then they left, they came back, they left, they came back again?
A. That’s true.
Q. Okay. And how long were these two periods where they left your dance school for a period of time?
A. Well --
Q. Let’s go with the first one.
A. I would say the first one probably was -- was months, I would say.
Q. All right.
A. I want to say that.
Q. And was that around the time that -- when they left at that point, was that around the time that the J.C. Penney’s incident occurred?
A. Yes. Yes.
Q. Okay. When Janet was talking to you about the alley incident that you just described, are you certain that she was talking to you about the J.C. Penney’s incident at the same time?
A. Yes. Yes.
Q. She said an alley?
A. Yes.
Q. But in either event, she indicated that she was attacked and assaulted and injured?

A. Yes.
Q. All right. Did you ever attend church with Miss Arvizo?
A. Yes.
Q. On more than one occasion?
A. Well, it’s the reverse. Actually, she attended with me.
Q. On more than one occasion?
A. Yes.
Q. And the decision to give this family a scholarship, was that just a thing that you and your brother did out of the kindness of your heart?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever feel like you shouldn’t have done that?
A. No.
Q. All right. And you’ve done that for other people as well?
A. Of course.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. No further questions.
MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
THE COURT: Call your next witness.
MR. MESEREAU: Yes.

Defense will call Mr. Chris Tucker.
THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, would you remain standing.
Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

CHRIS TUCKER
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.
THE WITNESS: My name is Chris Tucker.
C-h-r-i-s, T-u-c-k-e-r.
THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Tucker.
A. Good afternoon.
Q. Mr. Tucker, do you know the fellow seated at counsel table to my right?
A. Yes.
Q. Who is he?
A. Michael Jackson.
Q. Is he a friend of yours?
A. Yes.

Q. How long have you known Michael Jackson?

A. Probably four, three years. Four to three years.

Q. And what are the circumstances during which you met Michael Jackson for the first time?

A. What are the circumstances?

Q. Yeah. How did you meet him?

A. It’s funny; I met him through Gavin Arvizo.

And we talked on the phone one time, but of course I knew of him for years. And we talked on the phone, and again we met -- we talked, and we met in New York City, and we -- from then, we met a few other times and went from there.

Q. Now, how did you meet Gavin Arvizo?

A. I met Gavin at The Laugh Factory. And I’m a stand-up comedian, so I went to The Laugh Factory and I met his father. His father approached me and told me that his kid -- he had a kid that loved me and he was dying of cancer.

And I met him -- he told me he was doing a benefit at The Laugh Factory. I told him, “I don’t know if I can make it, because I’m always in and out of town, but I’ll try to make it,” because, you know, he said his kid was dying. So I met him at The Laugh Factory, and that’s how I met him.

Q. Okay. Do you remember the first time you met Gavin at The Laugh Factory?

A. The first time was at a benefit.

Q. Okay. And what do you know about that benefit?

A. The benefit was a camp for kids that they put on, they said, every year for kids that wanted to act and do comedy, I guess.

Q. And was the benefit, to your knowledge, for the purpose of raising money?

A. Oh, yes. Yes. It was for raising money, and there was -- it was, I guess, to like -- for the doctor bills and stuff. I don’t know. Something like that. But it was definitely for raising money.

Q. And who invited you to the benefit?

A. The father. Gavin Arvizo’s father, his father.

Q. Okay. So the father told you there was going to be a benefit to raise money for medical bills for Gavin?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And you attended that benefit, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Who else did you see there, if you remember?
A. I seen -- I met a lot of kids, and I met his brother Star. And it was kind of dark in the comedy club, but from what I can recall, that's where I met a few of the -- I think it was Star and his father and that was it.
Q. Do you recall whether or not you contributed money on that occasion?
A. I don't -- not that night, but I did contribute some money, yes.

Q. And explain that, if you would.
A. I was asked a few days later to give some money, because they didn't raise any money. They didn't make any money. So I did. I wired some money to their foundation.
Q. Okay. Who told you they hadn't raised any money at the benefit?
A. Gavin told me, and his father -- well, Gavin told me. Gavin told me.
Q. So Gavin told you they didn't make a dime at that fund-raiser?
A. Yeah, they said they didn't make any money, and they needed some money. They couldn't -- you know, they needed some money. So --
Q. And you then wired them some money?
A. Yeah, I wired them some money.
Q. How much did you send them; do you know?
A. It was probably 1500 or more.
Q. Okay. And you believe that was for medical expenses?
A. Yes, I was hoping it was for that.
Q. Okay. Now, did you see the father from time to time?
A. Yeah, only with the kids.
Q. Okay. And where would you see the father?
A. When they visited. I took them to Knott's Berry Farm one time. I took them to the mall a few times to buy them clothes and stuff. Those were the times I seen them. Only with the kids.

Q. Okay. Now, you say you took them to Knott's Berry Farm?

A. Yeah.

Q. And please explain what you did.

A. Well, I took them also with my son, went to some rides to make him, you know, have a good time. We rode rides, and that was -- that was about it.

Q. And who -- who was on that trip, that you can remember, every person that was there?

A. It was my son, Star, Gavin's brother, Davellin, I think my son's mother, and -- yeah, that was -- yeah, my son's mother, and David, the father.

Q. And who arranged that trip?

A. I did.

Q. And did you arrange for transportation?

A. Yes, I think we went in my car and they followed us in a car.

Q. Okay. Was that an all day type of trip?

A. Excuse me?

Q. Was that an all-day affair?

A. I think so, yes. I think it was nighttime. It went into the night, yeah.

Q. Now, you said you bought clothes for the Arvizo children at a mall; is that correct?

A. Yeah. Yeah. Yeah.

Q. And explain what you did, if you would.

A. We went to, like, a sports store. They liked the Raiders, and bought them Raiders stuff, shirts and hats and shoes and stuff like that.

Q. And who was with you when you bought these clothes for the Arvizo children?

A. The father.

Q. Okay.

A. And -- David.

Q. Did you ever meet the mother?

A. I met her in -- the first time in -- in Las Vegas.

Q. Okay. And her name was Janet?

A. Janet, yes.

Q. Okay. And please explain the circumstances under which you met Janet Arvizo in Las Vegas.

A. Yeah, it was real brief a few times, because I was filming, and it was -- I didn't really have a lot of time so it was real brief. So, it was just, "Hello," "Hello," because we was filming a movie the first time.
Q. Was this on the set that you met Janet Arvizo?
A. On the set, yes.
Q. Who was with her, if you remember?
A. I think David, her husband, and all the kids came up to Las Vegas on a road trip to visit me on the set. I invited them to the set.
Q. To your knowledge, who arranged for that trip? Was it David or the mother?

A. I don't know. I think it was David, because at that time I never met her. It was always the kids and the father.
Q. And approximately what year do you think this was?
A. I think it was 2001.
Q. Okay.
A. I think.
Q. And they came to the lot, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You met them there?
A. Yes.
Q. To your knowledge, did they stay very long?
A. To my knowledge, I heard they stayed a while, and they was -- they was trying to get them to leave, but I didn't know because I was so busy. That they did stay a couple of -- a week or two. I don't know.
Q. And you say they were trying to get them to leave. Who are you talking about?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object. Lack of foundation; calls for hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: To your knowledge, did the Arvizo family remain on the set while you were filming?
A. Only the kids, they came. The father -- I think they came with the father, and they was on the set for a while, and then they was doing stuff around town, but they was on the set a few times, yes.

Q. During that trip to Las Vegas when you first met Janet, did you ever see the family again after the day they came to the set?

A. Yes. I seen -- after that day, I think -- I think it was the day they came to my house, and I met the mother again when we went to Miami, I think.

Q. Now, let me -- maybe -- I may not have asked you a very good question.

You're in Las Vegas, you're filming, and you meet the Arvizos on the set, correct?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. That's the first time you meet the mother, right?

A. Yes, uh-huh.

Q. Do you see them again in Las Vegas on that trip?

A. Yeah, I see them in and out several times, because I was filming long hours, so I'd -- I definitely seen the kids because they'd come to the set and they would be at the set, and I would -- and I think the mother came a few times, too, and the father. So I seen them, but I was so busy. So it was definitely several times I seen them again, yeah.

Q. And did you help them stay on the set? I mean, did you give them a pass or anything of that sort?

A. Yes, I told them that -- I told the people that this was okay for them to be there. They were my guests.

Q. Okay. And did you consider them friends of yours at the time?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Now, after that Las Vegas trip, did you see the Arvizos again?

A. After that, I seen them -- I think it was at the house that time. And any other time I can't think of it, but it was at the house that time.

Q. Is this at your house?

A. My house.

Q. Was this in Los Angeles?

A. In Los Angeles, yes.

Q. Okay. Now, why were they at your house in Los Angeles?

A. Well, they called me, because they wanted to go out of town, and they wanted to -- and they wanted to find out where Michael was, because they always wanted to find out -- they wanted to find out where Michael was, and they wanted to go out of town.

Q. Okay. Now, you say “they wanted to go out of town.” Are you referring to Janet?

A. I’m saying the kids, because most of the time I talked to Gavin.

Q. Okay.

A. And --

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to move to strike as hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: It’s impeachment.

MR. SNEDDON: I don’t think there’s --

THE COURT: Sustained. You’ll need to be more direct about who’s speaking.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

Q. I won’t use the term “they” when I ask you questions about who’s speaking. I’ll just use individual names, okay?

You said the Arvizo family was at your home after the Las Vegas trip, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And who in the Arvizo family was at your home?

A. Gavin, Davellin, Star and Janet, the mother.

Q. Was the father there on that occasion?

A. No.

Q. Did you invite them to your home?

A. Yes.

Q. Who did you invite specifically to visit you at your house?

A. Star -- Gavin and his family, whoever was with him. At the time, I didn’t know who was with him at the time. David, Davellin, Star and Gavin.

Q. Now, before Janet and her children visited you at your home in Los Angeles, did you speak to Janet on the phone?

A. I did speak to her before that --

MR. SNEDDON: Vague as to time.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. What year was the Las Vegas trip?

A. I guess it was 2001.

Q. And how long after the Las Vegas trip did Janet and the children come to your home in Los Angeles?

A. It had to be -- I was filming, so it had to be a couple of months, a few months.

Q. So do you think we're still in 2001?

A. I think so.

Q. Okay. Did Janet call you on the phone after the Las Vegas trip?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you speak to her on the phone?

A. Yes.

Q. Did -- what did she say to you?

A. I talked to her one morning, and I remember because we was promoting a movie and we was talking about something, and she started crying on the phone, was crying, crying, crying, and, you know, she always said I was their brother, the kids' brother, and all that stuff.

And we -- you know, I can remember this phone call, because she was crying. And I was -- you know, I was always saying, you know, "Everything's going to be all right," because that's about as much as I could do. And that phone call was kind of confusing, so I don't remember what was said and all that stuff.

Q. But you remember her crying?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Did you invite her to your home during that phone conversation?

A. No. No, that was another conversation.

Q. Okay. After that first conversation, did she call you again?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Okay. Do you recall whether or not you ever called Janet?

A. No, I never called her.

Q. Did you ever call David on the phone, to your knowledge?

A. Never called him, no.

Q. Did he ever call you on the phone?

A. Not that I can recall. It was mostly Gavin.

Q. So Gavin would call you on the phone?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he call you often?

A. Yes.

Q. And I’m talking now about the time period after the Las Vegas trip, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. How did Gavin get your phone number?

A. I gave him my number at The Laugh Factory the first time I met him. He asked for it, and I gave it to him.

Q. Okay. And is there any particular reason why you gave Gavin Arvizo your phone number at The Laugh Factory?

A. Because, I mean, I felt like, you know, whatever I could do to help him out. You know, he didn’t have any hair. He was going through, you know, all this what they say, you know, he was going through, whatever. But, you know, he was a kid, and whatever I could do, you know, I’d say, you know, “Here.”

Q. Was he going through chemotherapy?

A. Yes. That’s what they said, yeah.

Q. Did they tell you he was undergoing cancer treatment?

A. That’s what they said.

Q. This was at the fund-raiser, right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, after that fund-raiser, Mr. Tucker, did he start calling you on a regular basis?

A. Yes, he did. Yes.

Q. And when you say “a regular basis,” like how often would Gavin Arvizo call you on the phone?

A. He called -- he called a lot. And then -- and then -- he called a lot. It wasn’t my main number, but I knew it was -- I checked all the time, because I was always different places. So I checked it so I can tell how many times he called. But I always called him back when I got a chance, because I wanted to let him -- you know, just to call him and say hello.

Q. And when Gavin would call you, did you ever believe his mother was on the line?

A. No. I didn’t -- no, I only talked to him. I didn’t think nobody was on the line, no.

Q. Did Star ever call you?

A. Star, he called sometimes with Gavin, yes.

Q. Okay. How about Davellin?

A. Davellin never called, no.

Q. How many times did the Arvizos visit your home in Los Angeles?

A. Probably once -- probably three times. Probably three times, yes.

Q. Were all of these visits after the Las Vegas trip?

A. No. They was before. I think one of them was afterwards, but the rest of them was before.

Q. Okay. Now -- now, the first time they visited your home, was that after the fund-raiser?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was after you gave Gavin your phone number at the fund-raiser, right?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Okay. Was that the only fund-raiser you ever attended for Gavin?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Who do you recall seeing at that fund-raiser besides the Arvizo family?

A. A lot of young kids. A lot of comedians that I didn’t know their names, but a lot of comedians, but a lot of kids. That was -- and I was like the only, like, I think, comedian, known comedian there, yeah.

Q. And was it your understanding that everyone was there to raise money for Gavin?

A. That’s what I was told, yes.

Q. Okay. Did you see Gavin in the lobby of The Laugh Factory, if you recall?

A. I met him upstairs after -- well, I think right after, right after it was over, I met him upstairs in The Laugh Factory.

Q. Do you recall, when you entered The Laugh Factory, if Gavin was at a table?

A. Don’t know. Don’t know.

Q. Do you recall if any member of the Arvizo family was at a table in the lobby of The Laugh Factory collecting money?

A. I don’t know.

Q. Okay. So after it was over, you say you met Gavin upstairs?

A. Yes.

Q. Was anybody with Gavin?

A. I think his father and his brother was there when I was introduced to them.

Q. Okay. And did you spend time talking to Gavin upstairs?

A. Yes. I was talking to him.

Q. Is that when you gave him your number?

A. I gave him my number and a pair of shoes, Nike shoes that I got.

Q. How did you end up buying Nike shoes from them?

A. I get them for free from NikeTown, so I called them and told them I was meeting a kid, and I wanted to get him something, a gift.

Q. His father was there when you gave him the shoes?

A. Yes.

Q. And Star and Davellin were there also?

A. Star was there, yes. Yes.

Q. Was Davellin there, if you know?

A. I think she was. I don’t know.

Q. Okay. So was the first visit to your home shortly after that fund-raiser?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay.

A. Yes.

Q. And what was the purpose of the first visit to your home, if you know?

A. Just visiting.
Q. Okay.
A. Just visiting.
Q. Did they spend a lot of time there?
A. I think so. Just -- they wanted to know where I lived and where I stayed, so I told them to come over.
Q. And did they spend a lot of time on that visit?
A. I think they just stopped by probably an hour or so. They might have been somewhere. I don’t know.
Q. Do you recall what they did in your house?
A. I showed them around. And I got a small basketball court, so we probably shot basketball. Just -- you know, a pool table. That’s about it.
Q. And did they continue to call you after that first visit to your home?
A. Yes.
Q. And who -- when I say “they” --
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to -- that’s why I was going to object.
MR. MESEREAU: I asked the wrong question.
Q. Did any member of the Arvizo family call you after that first visit to your home?

A. Gavin. Gavin called.
Q. Okay. Did he call you a lot between the first visit to your home and the second visit to your home?
A. Yes.
THE COURT: Counsel? I need to stop a couple minutes early because there’s an issue, so would this be a good point?
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. I’ll excuse the jury, and we’ll see you tomorrow morning at 8:30.
THE COURT: And Mr. Tucker, you may step down.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: All right. I understood you had an issue, Mr. Sneddon.

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, Your Honor. Thank you very much for accommodating me.

What I was going to ask the Court, if the Court recalls, during the course of the testimony of the trial, Detective Bonner, he indicated in his testimony that we had obtained from the telephone company not only the subscriber information for Mr. Geragos, but also had obtained the telephone records for Mr. Geragos, but that those records had not been looked at and would remain sealed.

In light of Mr. Geragos's testimony in the courtroom last week and the waiver of the attorney-client privilege, we are now requesting the Court for authorization for us to look into those telephone records with regard to the communications between Mr. Geragos, Mr. Miller and other members of the indicted -- the mentioned co-conspirators in the Indictment. So I'm asking the Court's permission for us to be able to do that now.

THE COURT: Wish to be heard?

MR. SANGER: Well, just briefly.

May I?

MR. SNEDDON: Sure.

MR. SANGER: It's a little late in the game to do this, but aside from that issue, I also see there being an issue about phone records of a law firm involving other confidential matters. It's -- that's not necessarily our issue per se, but since Mr. Geragos isn't here, I think it's fair to say, as an officer of the court, that that would be an issue.

THE COURT: How would you propose to review the records? Or do you agree there's an attorney-client privilege involved?

MR. SNEDDON: No, there's nothing confidential in the communications. It's a telephone conversation. I don't think there would be a problem, because we're only looking for specific numbers that we already have as evidence in this case, and those would be the only numbers we would be looking at.

THE COURT: So you’ll just look at the --

MR. SNEDDON: We’re not fishing for new information. We’re fishing -- we’re not fishing at all, but we’re only looking for those numbers that have already been put in evidence in this case, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: And I object the District Attorney is fishing.

MR. SNEDDON: Maybe that’s where I wanted to be. It was a Freudian slip.

THE COURT: All right. I’ll order them released with the proviso that you only look for the numbers that have been mentioned and you not look to see what other numbers there are.

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, Your Honor.

One other minor matter. I just wanted to let you know, consistent with our conversation in chambers, that I anticipate the defense will be finished tomorrow morning sometime. We will have witnesses ready to go tomorrow. I cannot guarantee to the Court that we will have a whole day, though, because we have at least five or six people coming from Los Angeles, some of which had previous commitments, but I will tell the Court we should be done on Thursday.

So I wanted to let you know that, and I think that’s what I told you right from the get-go, and we’ve done what we can.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I just have -- I know you want to go. I have one question.

THE COURT: You know I want to go? Do I look anxious to you?

MR. SANGER: The fact that you were jumping out of your chair was circumstantial evidence.

Your Honor, with regard to the records, I’m just a little unclear. I understand you’ve resolved the privilege issue, but we should also have the records.

I’m not interested in looking at anybody else’s records, but if they’re going to look at the records, we should have the records, so we can see if there's some information that's beneficial to the defense. And I don't know how the Court would propose to do that.

THE COURT: Well, I think I'll let them look at them, and then you can follow. The problem really arises because of the late waiver of the attorney-client privilege by Mr. Jackson with Mr. Geragos, so -- we had all of those protective records. So I think the -- I'll just let them look at them first, and when they're through they'll give them to you.

MR. SNEDDON: I don't mind making a copy for them, if the Court would authorize me to do that. I would be more than glad to do that this afternoon, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. And both sides are under the same order to only look for the numbers that are in evidence, and neither side is to reveal any other numbers to anybody.

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir. Thank you.

MR. SNEDDON: That's fine. Thank you.

THE COURT: Is this -- you know, I'm going by the list you gave me, and by the list you gave me, this would not be your last witness. Is this your last witness?

MR. MESEREAU: This would be our last witness.

THE COURT: This is your last witness?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes.

THE COURT: So the other name that was there, you're not --

MR. SANGER: There was another name that's --

THE COURT: They can't hear you in the back.

MR. MESEREAU: This is our last witness.

THE COURT: So this is the last witness.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes.

THE COURT: All right. See you tomorrow morning.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you.

THE COURT: Notice how slowly I'm leaving.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:30 p.m.)

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.

THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Has anyone seen my gavel?

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: You may proceed.

CHRIS TUCKER

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued)

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Tucker.

A. Good morning.

Q. Mr. Tucker, yesterday, you testified that Gavin Arvizo called you after the one fund-raiser you attended, told you that no money had been raised, and that because of what he said, you sent him $1500 or more, right?

A. Yes. But he was over my house when he asked for the money.

Q. It wasn't on the phone?

A. It wasn't on the phone.

Q. Who was he with at your house when he asked for the money?

A. With his father.

Q. Okay. And did you write him a check right there?

A. No, I didn't have no money on me, so I told him I would wire it, and they gave me the information to the -- the place to wire the money to.

Q. Okay. And obviously that was a bank somewhere, right?

A. Yeah. It was -- yeah.

Q. Do you recall what bank it was?

A. No, because I just gave the information to my people to wire the money.

Q. Okay. Okay. Now, did you ever learn whether or not any money was actually raised at that first fund-raiser?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever learn whether or not other moneys had been deposited into that bank account?

A. No.

Q. Okay. And were you ever asked to attend any other fund-raiser for Gavin?

A. No.

Q. All right. Do you recall the words Gavin used when he asked you for money at your home after telling you no money had been obtained at the first fund-raiser?

A. It was just -- he was just real sad-looking and said he didn’t -- they didn’t raise any money, and they needed some money.

Q. Now, you saw people at that fund-raiser, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you a little suspicious when Gavin made that statement to you?

A. Yes. Yes, but I was always thinking I was helping him, so I just did it.

Q. Did his father also ask you for anything at that particular time at your house?

A. No.

Q. Okay. And did -- did it appear that his father drove Gavin to your home that day?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see Gavin and his father at your home on any other day?

A. They visited a few times.

Q. And do you recall whether or not Gavin’s mother came to your house on any occasion in Los Angeles?

A. Yes, one time.

Q. And approximately when was that, if you know?

A. I can’t say approximately, but it was at the time we took the trip.

Q. Okay. And that would be in approximately February of 2003, right?
A. I guess, yes.
Q. Okay. Now, do you recall the Arvizos -- excuse me. Do you recall any member of the Arvizo family ever asking you for an automobile?
A. No.
Q. Do you recall whether or not any member of the Arvizo family asked your fiancee Azja --
A. Yes.
Q. -- to try and get a car?
A. Yes.
Q. What do you know about that?
MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object. Excuse me. I'm going to object as hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained. Foundation.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you speak to Azja about the Arvizos' desire to obtain an automobile?
A. Yes. Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I move to strike. Hearsay; lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Stricken. Sustained. Foundation.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Tucker, did you ever say anything to Azja about whether or not the Arvizos should get one of your cars?
A. Yes.

Q. What did you say to Azja about that?
A. Well, they was calling to get some keys to a truck that I own, and I told her not to give them to her. But it was -- you know, we talked about it. And they kept calling, the kids kept calling, asking her for these keys for the truck.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to move to strike the answer as hearsay.
THE COURT: Stricken. It's nonresponsive.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was your information about the Arvizos' desire to take your truck, did that come from Azja?
A. No. Well, I knew about the truck, them wanting the truck, yes.

Q. How did you know about that?

A. Because -- because the kids was telling me they needed a ride around town. They needed a car. So I offered to give them the truck.

Q. Okay.

A. But then I said “No,” because I got a little nervous.

Q. What did you get --

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object. Move to strike; hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: It’s impeachment, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever decide not to give a truck to the Arvizos?

A. Yes.

Q. Why?

A. Because I got a little suspicious and nervous, and I thought I was doing too much. I said -- I said, “No.”

Q. Who did you say “No” to?

A. I said it to my son’s mother after the fact that I offered it. But then I changed my mind.

Q. Okay. And you never gave any member of the Arvizo family any automobile?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Do you recall Gavin putting you on the telephone with Michael Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. And --

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object. Vague as to time.

THE COURT: Overruled. Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Please explain what happened.

A. I was on the set of one of my movies in Las Vegas, and Gavin told me that he talked to one of Michael’s people, and it was -- possibly he was going to call the next day and we’d talk on the phone, because he knew I was a fan of Michael’s, I guess, and I told him that would be fine.

And we talked on the next day. Michael was on the phone in my trailer, I went to my trailer and

I talked to him, and that’s when we talked.
Q. And did you go see Michael Jackson after that call?
A. Yeah, after I finished filming, we made plans to maybe later on connect and meet, and I did in New York after I finished filming, we met.
Q. And did you stay in contact with Mr. Jackson after that?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And are you in contact with him to this day?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. At some point you learned that Janet and David Arvizo had separated, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And how did you learn that?
A. Through my son’s mother.
Q. Okay. And did you stay in contact with David after that?
A. No.
Q. Did you stay in contact with Janet Arvizo after the separation?
A. No.
Q. Did you stay in contact with the children?
A. They would call every now and then and we talked very few times.
Q. Now, you mentioned your son’s mother. You’re referring to Azja, correct?

A. Yes. Yes.
Q. Before 2003, how many times do you think you had been to Neverland?
A. Probably five. Five, six times.
Q. And how many times -- excuse me. Had you ever been to Neverland with the Arvizos?
A. I think once or twice.
Q. And do you remember what the occasion was?
A. I remember one time it was -- I think they came for my son’s birthday party, and also another two or three times. I don’t know.
Q. And was Michael Jackson always at Neverland when you visited?
A. No.
Q. How many times do you recall seeing Michael

Jackson at Neverland before the year 2003?
A. Once or twice.
Q. Now, at some point you learned about the Bashir documentary, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And how did you learn about that?
A. I think the news maybe, in the news.
Q. And do you know whether or not, after the Bashir documentary, you spoke to Gavin?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And did you call him or did he call you?
A. I think he -- I called him one time, but I think he definitely probably called me, too. I don't remember.

Q. Okay. Let me ask you a question about something that happened before the Bashir documentary that I neglected to talk about.
At one point you took the Arvizo family to Oakland, right?
A. Yes. Yes.
Q. And approximately when was that?
A. I don't know approximately, but it was -- I know it was during the football season, because I took them to a Raiders game and it was -- I can't recall what --
Q. And who did you take to the Raiders game in Oakland?
A. It was my son, Davellin, Star, and Dave, the father, and Gavin.
Q. Okay. Was that just a one-day trip?
A. One day, yes.
Q. Did you pay for everything?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. So you speak to Gavin after the Bashir documentary airs, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And what does he say to you?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Hearsay.
MR. MESEREAU: Impeachment.
MR. SNEDDON: I'm --
THE COURT: Well, there's two ways we can go.

I can ask him to be more specific and then I don't want to hear “leading,” you know. That’s the problem.

MR. MESEREAU: I can be more specific if you’d like, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Tucker, after the Bashir documentary aired, do you recall discussing with Gavin Arvizo whether or not the media was hounding their family?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did Gavin say about that?

A. One time I can recall he said that it was hard to get around because they had no transportation, and the media was following them everywhere.

Q. Okay. Did you ever talk to Janet Arvizo about that problem?

A. Not that I can recall.

Q. Okay. How about Star?

A. Most -- I can’t remember.

Q. And how about Davellin?

A. Can’t remember. No, I don’t think so.

Q. Was Gavin the member of the family that called you the most?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did Star call you from time to time?

A. He called. Sometimes he was on the phone, he would give the phone to Gavin. It was always Gavin and Star.

Q. Okay. Never Davellin, that you remember?

A. No.

Q. Okay. And did you ever think the mother was on the line or in the background?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Do you know one way or the other?

A. I don’t know.

Q. And did you ever know where Gavin was calling you from from time to time?

A. No. I knew sometimes he stayed with his grandmother. Sometimes he stayed other places. I just didn’t know.

Q. Okay. Now, what did you say to Gavin when he told you the media was hounding his family after the airing of the Bashir documentary?

A. I told him, you know, I felt sorry for him and I told him if there was anything I could do, I'd try to do something, but --

Q. And did he make any request of you?

A. You know, he was always complaining about they couldn't get around. And that's what made me say, "Okay. I'll try to do what I can to try to get them transportation." But -- I was very cautious with that, but -- that's when I was like, "They can't get around. The media's around them." So that's what made me say, "I'll try to give them a car or something."

Q. You think you made that offer in the year 2003?

A. I think so, yes.

Q. Because they said they had no way to drive around?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you know whether or not Michael Jackson had lent them an automobile at that point?

A. Yes.

Q. But they still were saying they couldn't get around?

A. Yes.

Q. Did that make you suspicious?

A. Yes.

Q. Did anything else that they did make you suspicious?

A. Well, I think they did a lot of things that I didn't see that my people were telling me to watch out.

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object to that and have that stricken. It's hearsay.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Who were your people?

A. My brother, a few of my assistants that was on the set with me, was watching everything, you know. Gavin's behavior, Star's behavior. And they was telling me, but I was working. And they was telling me to -- you know, it was time for them to leave.

"They're" -- "Chris, they're doing a lot of stuff," you know, and --

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as hearsay and a narrative. Move that the answer be stricken.

THE COURT: Hearsay. Stricken. It's nonresponsive, also.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Were your suspicions based on what you observed or what you observed and what other people told you?

A. I observed a lot of stuff, but I always -- you know, I always gave it the benefit of the doubt, because I felt sorry for Gavin and I always wanted to try to help him and I let a lot of stuff just go by. But I knew what they was talking about.

Q. What did you observe that made you concerned?

A. Well, they stayed for a long time in Las Vegas, but, like I said, I was working, you know. But they stayed. They wanted to move to my hotel, and they wanted the same room I had and stuff. I was getting all this information, but I was so busy. So I knew about that, and I knew about Gavin wouldn't sit down on the set and all this stuff. But I knew how Gavin was, and I just wanted him to have fun and be -- to be a kid, or whatever.

So I did know everything, yeah, of course.

Q. Now, you say they stayed for a long time in Las Vegas. Were you paying for that?

A. Yes.

Q. How long do you remember their staying in Las Vegas?

A. It had to be weeks.

Q. Did you think they were taking advantage of you?

A. I was hoping they wasn't. I was hoping they wasn't, but, you know, when it got back to me, yeah, that's what it looked like. But I was hoping they wasn't.

Q. You mentioned Gavin's behavior on the set. Please describe what you're talking about.

A. He just -- just -- just bad, you know, being bad, being like a little kid.

And people -- you know, the director was telling me, you know, it was time for them to leave, they got to go. But I was like being naive, still being naive, you know, This kid, let him have some fun.” But everybody was saying the same thing, so it was -- it was getting, you know, that we couldn’t hardly film, because they wouldn’t know it was time to -- for action, I mean, “Be quiet. We got to do a scene.” So it got a little out of hand.
Q. And was anyone on the set in Las Vegas with the Arvizo children?

A. The father was there, yes.
Q. Okay. Did you ever see the mother there?
A. I think she was there once or twice.
Q. Okay. And are you saying that the parents didn’t seem to discipline the children very well on the set?
MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object to the question.
THE WITNESS: No.
MR. SNEDDON: Compound in the use of “parents.”
MR. MESEREAU: I’ll rephrase it. I’ll rephrase.
THE COURT: I’ll sustain the objection.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did it appear to you that David properly disciplined his children on the set in Las Vegas?
A. No.
MR. SNEDDON: Object as leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did it appear to you that Janet properly disciplined her children on the set in Las Vegas?
A. No.
Q. How much of a problem were they on the set?
A. It -- you know, it was handled, but it was to a point that they -- you know, everybody had to say, you know, “Chris,” you know, “We got to” -- “We got a job here to do. Make sure that they’re either in the trailer or off.” And then we had to send them off to have stuff to do all day.

Q. When you agreed to pay for their visit to Las Vegas, was there any understanding how long they would stay?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did you have an expectation about how long they would stay?

A. A few days. Come to the set, visit, and then -- and then, of course, leave, yeah.

Q. And when did you learn that they had stayed there for weeks?

A. My brother told me, and was telling me that they wanted to stay where I was staying and they wanted the same room.

And I was like, you know, “Don’t bother me with that stuff.”

MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object. Hearsay, move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did any member of the Arvizo family ever refer to you as part of their family?

A. Yes.

Q. Who?

A. The mother and Gavin and Star.

Q. And what did the mother say about that?

A. She just was frantically always saying I was their brother and all that stuff, and that she loved me and all this stuff.

Q. And what was your reaction to that?

A. I was -- you know, I was getting a little nervous, because, you know, my whole thing was to just help the kid, not to get attached to the whole family. Not like that. Because I just wanted to make his life a little easier. So I said, you know, I need to watch myself because I know, you know, I’m high-profile, you know, I got to be careful, because sometimes when people see what you got and what you -- you know, they’ll take advantage of you. So I tried to be careful and tried to pull back a little bit.

Q. What did Gavin say to you about being family?

A. He -- he always just said, you know, “You’re like a big brother,” and, you know, stuff like that.

Q. Did Gavin tell you he loved you?

A. Yeah.

Q. Did he say that often?

A. Yeah.

Q. Did Star say anything to you about being part of their family?

A. Yes.

Q. What did he say?

A. He -- he said, “You’re like a brother to us. You’re like a brother,” always said stuff like that, yeah.

Q. And did Star tell you he loved you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Davellin say anything to you about being part of their family?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And what did Davellin say?

A. She would always say, “You’re like a big brother to Gavin and Star,” and she appreciated everything I did for her little brother and stuff like that.

Q. All right. Now, let’s move to the period of time after the Bashir documentary. You said you spoke to Gavin about it, right?

A. Yes.

Q. He talked to you about the media hounding them?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he make any requests?

A. He always complained about they couldn’t get around, and -- you know, and he wasn’t feeling, you know, good about that. So that was the main thing, I think, that he said.

And so I tried to, you know, make that easier for him, because I felt sorry for him.

Q. Now, at some point, did you travel to Miami with the Arvizo family?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And why did you do that?

A. Well, that was part of the -- they -- Gavin called, and they wanted to -- to -- they couldn’t get around. The media was following them around. And they wanted to -- to find Michael. They wanted to go out of town to find Michael.

And I said, “Okay.” I was trying to help them so they can get around and to get out of town so they can, you know, be left alone.

Q. And Gavin told you they wanted to be with Michael?

A. Yeah. They was looking for Michael and they wanted to find him and they wanted to go -- and they found out he was in Miami some kind of way and they wanted to go to Miami.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, at this time, with the Court’s permission, we’d like to put up Exhibit 451, which is in evidence. It would be Tab 6, page two. I’d like to put it on the overhead.

THE COURT: You may.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you.

Q. Mr. Tucker, I’m showing you a document which is in evidence, and it appears to be a phone record of Mr. Jay Jackson, okay? And do you know who Major Jay Jackson is?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did you ever discuss with Janet Arvizo whether or not she had a friend who was in the United States Army?

A. No.

Q. She never told you anything about that?

A. I think boyfriend or somebody.

Q. You did learn about that?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Let me just ask you a question about this document.

Now, if you look at the two calls on February 4th, you see a call from Reseda. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Then you see a second call on February 4th from Reseda?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. There is a number for both those calls. It’s (818) 757-1861. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Whose number is that?

A. That’s my number.

Q. And it says it’s a call in the evening, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. All right. Now, was that your cell phone number?

A. That’s my home number.

Q. Okay. And do you recall any of the Arvizos calling you on February 4th in the evening?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And who called you on February 4th in the evening?

A. Gavin. Gavin called me, yeah.

Q. Is that the conversation where he said that he wanted to be with Michael in Florida?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, do you remember -- Thank you, Your Honor. Do you remember anything else that Gavin said in those two calls on February 4th to you?

A. That was -- I think that was about it; that he just said that they couldn’t get around and they wanted to get out of town, because they had nowhere to go.

Q. Okay. And did you offer to help them go to Florida?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you say to Gavin in that regard?

A. I said that, “Well, I may be” -- “I’m going out of town, and maybe I can” -- I was thinking about going out of town. So then at that time I knew that they wanted to go out of town, so I said, “Okay. You guys can fly with me. I’ll fly you out of town, so you guys can,” you know, “get away,” yeah.

Q. And just to clarify, the phone records we just showed you, the call is from someone to you?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. You never called Gavin on February 4th?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Okay. All right. So did you agree to help Gavin get to Miami?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you tell him about that?

A. I told him to, you know, “Come over and you guys can fly with me” -- “I’ll try to charter a plane, and you guys can fly with me and go to Miami.”

Q. Now, did you tell Gavin that you had a home in Florida?

A. I told him -- he knew I had a house in Orlando, yes.

Q. How did Gavin know that?

A. I told him.

Q. Did you ask Gavin how he knew Michael Jackson was in Florida?

A. I can’t remember. I’m pretty sure I did. But I think that he was calling Michael’s people and he found out some kind of way.

Q. Now, at this point, given all the conversations you’d had with Gavin, his requests for money, the talk about automobiles, what you’d seen on the set, did you consider Gavin to be awfully sophisticated for someone his age?

A. Yes.

Q. And explain what you mean by that.

A. He was really smart, and he was cunning at times, but I always overlooked it because I felt sorry for him. But I knew he was -- he was a little kid, but he was cunning. And his brother Star was definitely cunning.

Q. When you say “cunning,” explain what you’re saying.

A. Always say stuff like, “Chris, let me have this. Let me have this. Let me get this. Come on, I’m not feeling good,” stuff like that.

And I knew it was going a little too far, but I always said, “He’s sick,” you know, “He’s got a lot of problems, family problems,” so I always just overlooked it.

Q. Did you agree to take the family to Florida?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you do that?
A. Excuse me?
Q. Did you do that?
A. Yes.
Q. And how did you arrange that?
A. I chartered a plane, and it was later on in the evening when it was ready, the plane was ready, and then we -- and we left.

Q. Okay. And if you remember, who was on the plane with you?
A. Davellin, Janet, Star and Gavin.
Q. And did you speak to Gavin on the plane?
A. It was kind of late, so everybody sort of fell asleep after -- well, everybody was happy and was excited to go. Relieved -- like relieved to get away from California. And we spoke -- everybody spoke for a little bit, but it was kind of late. And he was happy, ready to go see Michael, excited. And then everybody sort of fell asleep.
Q. Now, how did everyone get to the plane, if you know?
A. They was dropped off, I think.
Q. Okay.
A. You know.
Q. Do you know whether or not they went to your house that day?
A. Yeah, they was dropped off at my house.
Q. At your house?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who dropped them off?
A. I don’t -- I don’t remember.
Q. Okay. And did you then go to the airport with them?
A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, before you went to the airport with them, do you recall having a discussion with Janet Arvizo at your home?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was that about?
A. That’s the point that I was -- I was going to give her this truck, the loaner, this truck to drive, but I got real uncomfortable when I was getting ready to loan the truck because she started frantically crying, like -- not crying like something normal, but it was like something was wrong with her.

And I got really, really -- something in my spirit just didn’t feel right about it, and I felt -- I said, “Oh, I’m going too far,” because -- and I knew she was -- something mentally wasn’t right. So I gave her the keys. But then I didn’t feel -- I didn’t feel comfortable about it at all.

Q. So was it your impression that Janet was, in her own way, asking for a truck?

A. No. I was just doing it as helping Gavin. I don’t think she was asking for it, no.

Q. But you say she was acting kind of crazy?

A. She started acting frantically, like mentally something wasn’t right.

And then I was, like, --

Q. Do you remember what she said?

A. She was just, like, you know, “Chris,” you know, “you like a brother,” and the “brother” thing again, and crying and -- just frantically crying and stuff.

And then I was, like, “Something” -- you know, “Something ain’t right,” you know.

Q. And did you then go with the family to the airport and fly to Miami?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Do you recall whether or not Janet seemed excited about going to Florida to see Michael Jackson?

A. Yes, she was excited. Everybody was excited, the kids. And everybody was excited to go down there to see Michael, yeah.

Q. Did Janet say anything about how excited she was, that you remember?

A. She was -- she was relieved to leave, and she was happy to -- to go. She was -- she was thanking me and was excited to see Michael. And the kids were. They was all excited.

Q. Did anyone in the Arvizo family ever give you the impression they were going there against their will?

A. No.

Q. Now, when you got to Florida, what did you do?

A. We met up -- I met up with my brother at the airport and then we went straight to the hotel.

Q. And which hotel was that?

A. I think it was the Turnberry.

Q. Okay. And had you arranged in advance to have reservations at the Turnberry?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you stay there?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, when you got to the airport, did anybody pick you up?

A. Yeah, we had a car there. Yes.

Q. Okay. And did you arrange that or did Michael Jackson, if you know?

A. I arranged it and my brother was there waiting on me.

Q. Okay. Now, you got to Florida, went to the hotel, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. You went to the hotel with the Arvizos, right?

A. Yes.

Q. What's the next thing that happened?

A. I went to the hotel, and I went to my room, and the kids, I think, was looking for Michael.

Q. And were you with them when they were looking for Michael?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And did you see Michael?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did you see Michael Jackson?

A. We went to his room. I think we all just went up there to say hello.

Q. And did you speak to Michael?

A. Yes, briefly.

Q. Was that in his hotel room?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And were the Arvizos with you when you spoke to Michael?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall your saying anything to Michael in his room?

A. Just said hello and was happy to see him.

Q. And did you discuss the Arvizos with him?

A. We did. I did.

Q. What did you say?

A. Later on I did. I just told him to watch out for Janet because I felt suspicious about her.

Q. And did you tell Michael Jackson why you were suspicious about Janet Arvizo?

A. Yeah, because -- and she even made me more suspicious later on. But first, like I said, I gave her the keys. I -- at that point I knew something wasn't right.

And then I was trying to talk to Michael.

She kept interrupting, like -- and I was like -- I didn't know why she was doing it.

And then I just -- I tried to pull Michael in the room, and I said, "You need to watch out. Just be careful." And then -- that was really brief, and then I left.

Q. Now, why was that conversation brief?

A. Because the phones was ringing, the kids was all over the place, and it was -- you know, Michael's very busy, so it was always somebody pulling at him.

Q. Do you recall whether or not Michael responded when you said, "Be careful of these people"?

A. Yes, he did. He was listening. And we talked about other stuff and then I left.

Q. Okay. And where did you go when you left?

A. To my room.

Q. Okay. And when you went to your room, do you know where the Arvizos were?

A. I think they stayed in the room. I don't know.

Q. Okay. Did you see Michael Jackson again on that trip?

A. I think I seen him once before and then I left.

Q. Okay. Did you see the Arvizos again on that trip?
A. Yes. Yes.
Q. Where did you see them?
A. I think I -- I think I seen them when I went back to say bye to Michael in the room or around the hotel.

Q. Now, do you recall whether or not you spent any money on the Arvizos on that trip, besides the flight?
A. The flight and -- and I can’t remember if it was anything else.
Q. Did they get a massage or anything like that, that you remember?
A. No, not that I can remember.
Q. Okay. Okay. When you were trying to warn Michael Jackson about Janet, where was Janet?
A. She was in the next room.
Q. Okay.
A. Yeah.
Q. And did you -- did she ever come to you while you were trying to warn Michael?
A. I mean, it was knocks on the door. I don’t know who it was. But I don’t know who it was at the door, no.
Q. Do you recall Janet saying anything about Michael Jackson being a father to their family?
A. Oh, yes. Oh, yes. That was right before we went in the room. She was frantically -- the same thing. Michael’s the father. I’m the brother.
And that’s when -- that’s when I told Michael. I took him in the room, and I was trying to talk to him. I said, “Something ain’t right.”

Because I was never around her that much until that point. They came to the house and then in Miami. And I said, “Mike, something ain’t right.”
Q. Do you recall in Miami whether Gavin was saying anything about Michael Jackson being a father?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was Gavin saying?

A. He was repeating the same thing. It was -- it was -- she was saying “father,” and Gavin was saying “father,” and he was saying I was a brother, and it was just getting to be a little bit too much.
Q. Okay. Now, when you were in -- did you go to Orlando at some point?
A. Yes, I went to Orlando the next day.
Q. Okay. And when you were in Orlando, did you learn whether or not Janet had any keys to a vehicle?
A. She left the keys at the hotel. I heard.
Q. At what hotel now?
A. I think at the Turnberry.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, move to strike. Hearsay; lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Stricken. Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you know whether or not Janet left any keys at the Turnberry Hotel?
A. Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: Same objection. Lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Foundation, sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
Q. When you got to Florida with the Arvizos, did you have any personal knowledge of whether or not Janet had any keys to a vehicle?
A. Yes. I knew she had the keys, yes.
Q. Keys to what vehicle now?
A. To -- the keys that I gave her to the truck that I own.
Q. Okay. And did you ever learn what she did with those keys?
A. Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever get those keys back?
A. No.
Q. What happened to them, if you know?
A. They was lost.
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Lack of foundation; calls for hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained. Foundation.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you give the keys to your vehicle to Janet?
A. Yes.
Q. And when did you do that?
A. When she was at my house right before the trip to Miami.

Q. Okay. Did you see her do anything with the keys?
A. She took them, put them in her hand, in a pocket. I don’t know.
Q. And at some point did you ever try to find out where those keys were?
A. She called my son’s mother looking for the keys. She lost them apparently.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object. Move to strike as hearsay and ask counsel to move on.
THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever get the keys back at any time?
A. No.
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Asked and answered.
THE COURT: Overruled. The answer was, “No.” Next question.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
Q. Now, at some point you got back to Los Angeles from Florida, right?
A. Yes.
Q. How long were you in Florida?
A. A couple of weeks.
Q. Okay. Did you still have the truck in your possession when you returned?
A. Yes.

Q. And did you do anything to get a new set of keys to the truck?
A. No.
Q. Whatever happened with the keys, if you know?
A. They were lost. Fortunately they were lost, so -- yeah.
Q. All right. Now, after this Florida trip, did you ever hear from Janet again?

A. Yes.
Q. And when was that?
A. Well, I heard from the kids, several messages, wanting another pair of the keys to get the truck.
MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object as nonresponsive and hearsay.
MR. MESEREAU: I’ll rephrase it.
THE COURT: All right. I’ll strike that answer.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: After you got back from Florida, did Janet ever call you again, to your knowledge?
A. No.
Q. After you got back from Florida, did Gavin ever call you?
A. Yes.
Q. And did he call you at home?
A. He called me, yes.

Q. Okay. Do you remember what he said to you?
MR. SNEDDON: Object as hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Tucker, you’ve described a truck --
A. Yes.
Q. -- that you had offered to the family. What kind of truck was that?
A. A Toyota truck. A Toyota truck.
Q. Do you know about what year that was?
A. What year was the truck? It had to be maybe 19 -- I don’t know. I don’t know.
Q. Do you know approximately what the truck was worth at that time?
A. Yes, 14,000. I think it was maybe a 2000 or something like that.
Q. Okay. Did Gavin continue to call you after you got back from Florida?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you continue to talk to Gavin?
A. Yes.
Q. And did Gavin ever ask you for any more financial assistance?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Calls for hearsay,

Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: Impeachment.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: They was constantly calling for the truck. And I felt like the mother was making them call for the truck because it was getting on my nerves.

MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object to the last statement and ask it be stricken as conclusion and speculation.

THE COURT: Stricken, not responsive.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When Gavin called you after the trip to Florida, did he himself ask for the truck?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Janet ever call you after the trip to Florida and, to your knowledge, ask for the truck?

A. I think once or twice. I don’t remember.

Q. Okay. Do you remember whether or not Star called you after the Florida trip and asked for the truck?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Okay. Now, at this point in time, was it your understanding that Azja Pryor was in touch with the Arvizo family?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you know whether or not she was talking to them quite often?

A. Yes.

Q. And without saying what she told you, were you discussing the Arvizo family with Azja?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you yourself ever discuss your concerns about the Arvizo family with Azja?

A. Yes. I told her about the truck, and I told her, “Don’t give it to them,” because I felt uncomfortable, and I felt like I did enough. And she was telling me they kept calling about the truck, because the truck was with her.

Q. When did you last talk to any member of the Arvizo family?

A. Last time I talked to them was Gavin for a quick second.

Q. And when was that?

A. It had to be a year ago. Almost a year or two ago, I think. A year ago, probably.

Q. And did he call you?

A. No, I called him.

Q. Okay. Why did you do that?

A. I was going through some old notepads that I had. I was throwing away a lot of numbers and I ran across his name, and I didn't even think the number worked. And I just called it just to check, and he answered the phone.

And I said, "Gavin," and he said, "Chris." Like real happy, like, to hear from me, because he hadn't heard from me for a long time. And he was like, "Hey, Chris," and I said, "Hey, Gavin."

And all of a sudden I heard a "Get off that phone - now," and the phone just -- click.

And I knew it was Janet. And I was really concerned at that time because I was, like, you know, that was really, really strange, because, you know, I didn't know what -- what was going on.

Q. Have you talked to any member of the Arvizo family since that particular call?

A. No. No.

Q. Now, did that call -- Mr. Tucker, when do you think the last time you spoke to Gavin was?

A. I think it was after the -- after the Miami trip, I sort of, like, just wanted to distance myself. So I think it might have been a few times after that. I don't remember.

Q. And this is after you warned Michael Jackson to get away from these people?

A. Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Tucker.

A. Good morning.

Q. Mr. Tucker --

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Your microphone’s off, sir.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Tucker, were you contacted by law enforcement with regard to making a statement involving the Michael Jackson investigation?

A. Yes.

Q. And you declined to give a statement to law enforcement, correct?

A. No, I don’t think so.

Q. You don’t think so?

A. No.

Q. You weren’t contacted and asked if you would cooperate with law enforcement and refused?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall your attorney being contacted and requested that we talk to you?

A. Yes.

Q. And he declined to allow us to contact you?

A. No. No.

Q. That’s your recollection?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall how many times that -- did your attorney ever tell you that we had contacted -- that law enforcement had contacted you and wanted to interview you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; privilege.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SNEDDON: I’m not asking what was said, I just want to know if he was contacted.

THE COURT: No, that’s not what you asked.

MR. SNEDDON: All right.

Q. Were you contacted by your lawyer about --

A. Yes.

Q. -- about a request for law enforcement to talk to you?

A. Yes.

Q. And on how many occasions?

A. I don’t know how many occasions.

Q. It was more than once, was it not?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Do you recall law enforcement leaving cards at your house to ask you to call them so that they could interview you?

A. I recall they came one time and wouldn't even come to my door. I came outside looking for them. But they wouldn't come to my door.

Q. I asked if you recall them leaving business cards at your house and asking you to contact them so they could do an interview with you.

A. I don't know if they left them at the house. They might have left them at the gate. You can't get to my door unless they call me.

Q. What I'm asking is, do you recall law enforcement leaving any cards at your house asking you to contact them so they could interview you?

A. If they did, I would immediately return it to my attorney, and he got back in touch with them. I do recall giving it to my attorney to get in touch with them, because I know you have to do that or that's breaking the law.

Q. At any time prior to your testimony here this morning, did you ever grant an interview with any law enforcement officer?

A. We set up appointments and it never happened.

Q. You personally recall setting up appointments with law enforcement?

A. My attorney took care of that, yeah.

Q. That's your understanding?

A. That's my understanding, that my attorney did that, yes.

Q. That law enforcement never showed up?

A. They came to my gate one time, my mother was there as a witness, and never came to my door.

Q. No, I'm asking you whether or not on those occasions that you said that your attorney set up an interview with law enforcement that they didn't show up for the interview?

A. Excuse me?

Q. Maybe I misunderstood you. I understood you to say that, through your lawyer, you actually consented to an interview with law enforcement; is that correct?

A. Of course. I told him if -- if I got to go in there, I got to go in.

Q. And was an appointment set up to do that with law enforcement, to your knowledge?

A. It was supposed to be set up. To my knowledge, it was supposed to have been set up, and I think you guys didn’t want to interview me.
Q. That’s what you think, huh?
Did you ever -- so at no time prior to your appearance here in court were you ever interviewed by law enforcement; is that a fair statement?
A. I don’t think so. I don’t remember.
Q. Now, the telephone call that you told the jury about where you heard Janet yell in the background to hang up the telephone, do you recall that?
A. Yes.
Q. You just testified about that. That actually was made by you to Gavin after the charges had been filed against Mr. Jackson; isn’t that correct?
A. Yes. It was that time period, yes.
Q. And prior to that, you had been seen publicly with Mr. Jackson appearing at a number of functions; isn’t that correct?
A. I don’t remember.
Q. Well, did you appear publicly at a number of functions with Mr. Jackson at or about the time the charges were filed in this case?
A. I don’t remember. I don’t.
Q. You don’t -- you can’t say one way or the other?

A. I don’t -- maybe. Maybe not. I --
Q. Would you agree with me that there certainly were occasions that you did appear with Mr. Jackson publicly?
A. I can’t say. I can’t say, because at that period of time I didn’t see Michael for a while, for a long time, yeah.
Q. So you have no recollection of ever appearing publicly with Mr. Jackson during that time period, after the charges were filed and between the time of the telephone call with Gavin?
A. Maybe. Probably before that period of time or -- I don’t know. I can’t remember.

Q. Would you agree with me that after you were introduced to Mr. Jackson by Gavin that you and Mr. Jackson thereafter struck up a friendship?

A. Yes.

Q. And that, as you describe it, you became friends?

A. Yes.

Q. So it was an ongoing relationship between you and Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall an occasion of being with Mr. Jackson -- let me ask you this question. Do you know who Al Malnik is?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall an occasion where you were actually photographed with Mr. Jackson and Mr. Malnik together?

A. Yes.

Q. And that that photograph was actually made public. Do you recall that?

A. Yes. No, I don’t recall the photograph, but I know that we was at a birthday party one time.

Q. And was that at Neverland Ranch?

A. No.

Q. It was at another -- it was in Miami?

A. Yeah, it was in Miami.

Q. Where Mr. Malnik lives?

A. Yes.

Q. And that would have been after the charges had been filed in this case; isn’t that correct?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Let me go back a little bit and talk a little bit about your relationship with Gavin. You first met Gavin because of his cancer, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were kind enough to actually visit Gavin in the hospital on a number of occasions, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And when you visited Gavin at the hospital on those occasions, his father David was there most of the time, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did -- and I guess, based on your testimony, you never met Janet Arvizo at the hospital?
A. Most of the time they -- you know, I asked about it, but they was ashamed of her.
MR. SNEDDON: Move to strike as nonresponsive, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Stricken.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: What I asked you, Mr. Tucker, was when you visited the hospital and visited Gavin, did you meet Janet Arvizo at the hospital?
A. No.
Q. And you were also kind enough that, on New Year's Eve or right after New Year's, which would be the year 2001, you and Azja Pryor and your son visited Gavin in the hospital, correct?
A. I think it was just me. It was New Year's night. It was New Year's Eve, yes.
Q. And you don't think Azja Pryor was present?
A. I think she might have been. She might have been.
Q. When you were there that night, do you recall having a conversation with Janet on the phone on that evening?
A. I don't know. I don't remember.
Q. Do you recall Janet telling you that she appreciated very much everything that you were doing for her son?

A. I don't remember.
Q. Were you aware of the fact that Gavin had attended a comedy camp at The Laugh Factory?
A. Yes.
Q. And you are aware of the fact that Gavin was very fond of comedians, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And that one of the reasons that he had selected to meet you was because you were a comedian of some note, correct?
A. I wasn't aware he was fond of that many comedians. I think his father said I was his favorite comedian, and I didn't know they had contacted everybody in the whole town.

Q. Well, a lot of comedians, correct?

A. I wasn’t aware of that. I thought that he was -- you know, he was particularly saying, “Chris, you are my favorite comedian, and you are” -- you know.

Q. Did he talk to you about the fact that he admired Jay Leno?

A. No. He didn’t mention not one time about any other celebrities, any other times.

Q. Okay.

A. Not one time.

Q. So the answer is “No”?

A. No.

Q. So if I would read you a list of celebrities, the answer would be “No,” “No,” “No”?

A. To me he mentioned nobody but Michael Jackson. And he knew I was a fan of Michael Jackson, and that was it.

Q. Okay. So your testimony is that he mentioned to you when he was in the hospital that he was a friend of Michael Jackson’s -- a fan of Michael Jackson’s?

A. He mentioned it when we first met, because I guess he seen from my movies that I’m a fan of Michael Jackson. So he mentioned it. The first thing that came out of his mouth --

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’ll move to strike as nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Overruled. Next question.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: I think the question I asked, Mr. Tucker, was, was that what he told you in the hospital?

A. No.

Q. Okay. So he was not in the hospital at the time that he told you that he was a fan of Michael Jackson?

A. The first time we met he told me he was a fan of Michael Jackson.

Q. And that would have been at The Laugh Factory?

A. The Laugh Factory, yes.

Q. At the benefit?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did he tell you at that time that he knew Michael Jackson?

A. At what time?

Q. At The Laugh Factory, the first time you met him.

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And that he had been in contact with Michael Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. By way of phone?

A. Yes.

Q. And during the time that you took Gavin to Knott’s Berry Farm with your family, that was a time when Gavin was still fighting his battle with cancer, correct?

A. Yeah. I think he was still going through chemotherapy, yes.

Q. And were you aware from conversations -- well, I’ll just ask you, were you aware of the fact that the family was having financial problems?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Just “yes” or “no” is fine.

A. I had an idea they were, but I wasn’t concerned. I was concerned about his health.

Q. All right. So that’s fair enough. Did you ever visit their apartment in East Los Angeles?

A. No.

Q. Did you know they lived in East Los Angeles?

A. They told me they lived, yeah, in East Los Angeles, yeah.

Q. Did you know that the mother of your child, Azja Pryor, had actually visited their place in East Los Angeles?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she describe to you what the place was like?

A. Yes.

Q. And it was pretty bad, wasn’t it?

A. She -- she really told me what -- mostly about what -- you know, what was going on. I don't remember what she said. I really don't.

Q. So she didn't describe what this one-room apartment was like?

A. I don't think she was concerned about that. I think she was more concerned about what was going on with that family.

Q. But the question --

Move to strike as nonresponsive, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: I asked you whether she described to you the apartment.

A. No, she described what -- you know, there was a lot of problems going on in that family and I was asking her why was she over there with my son.

MR. SNEDDON: Move to strike as nonresponsive, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: So --

THE COURT: The first --

MR. SNEDDON: Everything beyond "No." So we don't have to go through this again. Thank you.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Were you aware of the fact when you visited the hospital that the father, David Arvizo, was not working?

A. No.

Q. Were you aware of the fact that, during the time that you were visiting the hospital, that the mother was working?

A. No.

Q. Were you aware of the fact of how the medical bills were being paid?

A. No.

Q. And when you gave the money -- let me talk about this situation where you actually were kind enough to give money to the family. Gavin was at your house, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And the father was at the house?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Star at the house?

A. Star was there, yes.

Q. And I want to see if I'm not confusing this with something else in your statement to the defense investigator. But you indicated that there was an occasion where Gavin asked you for some money, and that he was being prodded into it by his father David; is that correct?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE COURT: Do you want the question read back?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: All right. The court reporter, read it back, please.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: It was a time that Gavin approached me and asked for some more money after I initially sent some money, wired some money.

And I was -- I didn't know. I was suspicious. I didn't know if it was the father, because I was still naive; Gavin -- would Gavin do something like that.

But then I thought about it. And Gavin was so cunning and so smart that I -- Gavin -- it's hard -- if Gavin didn't want to do something, he's not going to do it, so --

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I move to strike as nonresponsive to the question.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Tucker, the question I asked was, do you recall telling the defense investigator in this case that there was an occasion where Gavin Arvizo and David Arvizo were at your house and that Gavin was being prodded by his father to ask for money?

A. I said --

Q. Do you recall that?

A. I remember the occasion that Gavin came to me and asked for some more money and his father was with him and his father said, "Gavin, come to the car.”

And I told Gavin, “No, I can’t give any more money, you guys.” I remember that occasion.

Q. Do you remember telling the defense investigator that the father was actually prodding and pushing Gavin to ask for the money, but you said it appeared Gavin didn’t want to ask? Do you recall telling him that?

A. I thought I told Gavin that I couldn’t give any more money. And when the father responded, “Gavin, let’s go,” I didn’t -- I was like, “What is this? Is this a tag team?” I didn’t know what was going on. But I knew Gavin was smart enough and I knew that he was --

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, move to strike as nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Stricken as nonresponsive.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to ask one more time, and if the answer is “no,” that’s fine. I just want to -- did you tell the defense investigator in this case that there was an occasion --

A. Yes.

Q. -- where Gavin -- let me finish, in fairness to you. Let me finish the question.

That Gavin Arvizo asked you for money and that you -- your observation was that he didn’t want to do it but was being pushed by the father to ask?

A. No, no.

Q. You never told the investigator that?

A. What I said is, yes, I told them I thought the father was a part of that, but Gavin was the one who asked me for the money. And I said I think the father was there with him.

Q. Put him up to it?

A. No. I knew Gavin was doing it on his own, but the father was there. And I think they was doing it together. That’s what I said.

Q. And you didn’t say that Gavin was reluctant to do it; is that --

A. I said the father was there, and Gavin was asking, yes.

Q. The question is “yes” or “no.” Your opinion was that Gavin wasn’t being prodded into it by his father?

A. I think it was both of them, yes.

Q. And this was at a time when Gavin was still going through chemotherapy, correct?

A. I don’t remember. I don’t remember.

Q. Do you remember when it was that the Arvizos split up?

A. I don’t remember. They didn’t tell me. I’ve heard from other people.

Q. Now, at the time that you took the family to the Raiders game, was Gavin still going through chemotherapy at that time?

A. I think so. I think so.

Q. And the father was there on that trip?

A. Yes.

Q. And you also took Gavin to some Laker games, did you not?

A. Yes.

Q. In fact, you took Gavin down to the locker room on one occasion; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Introduced him to some of the players?

A. Yes.

Q. And you arranged, actually, to have Gavin’s photograph taken with Kobe Bryant at one time, did you not?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you the one that arranged to have Gavin’s picture put up on the speaker system above the arena at the Laker game?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Now, you told us that you began to develop some suspicions about Gavin, is that correct, or the family?

A. Yes.

Q. Which was it, the family or Gavin?

A. It was the family.

Q. Okay. And was this a time -- at a time when Mr. Arvizo, David Arvizo, was involved with the kids?

A. Excuse me?

Q. Was this a time when your suspicions started to develop that David Arvizo was still in the family picture?
A. It started when we was -- when I met the entire -- in Vegas, when they was staying the whole time and not leaving.
Q. Up to that point in time you had no reason to have any suspicions?
A. I wasn’t.
Q. And that’s when -- when you began to have doubts in your mind, let’s put it that way; is that fair enough?

A. That’s when my people was telling me that, “Watch out.”
Q. Now, that trip to Las Vegas, you were filming there on the set. And that was during a summer, was it not?
A. I think so.
Q. That would have been the summer of 2001; isn’t that correct?
A. I think so.
Q. Or 2000? 2001?
A. I don’t know.
Q. Well, it was your movie -- so -- I mean, 2001?
A. I think we were filming in 2001, 2002. It was a long movie. I’d have to check.
Q. Do you recall when the movie came out?
A. I think it came out 2001.
Q. Now, the car that -- did you see them driving a car at that point in time?
A. They -- I think they had a truck.
Q. That was the one that Mr. Jackson had given them, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And based upon your direct examination testimony, was it your impression that the Arvizo family retained custody and control of that truck all the way up during the time that you were talking to them about the other Toyota truck?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Repeat the question.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Yeah. You told the jury that you were a little suspicious of the Arvizo -- or the Arvizo family about you giving them the truck, because you thought that Michael Jackson had already given them a truck. Did you not tell us that?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did you have -- did you have a concern at the time that you were talking to the Arvizos about the Toyota truck that they already had a truck that had been given to them by Mr. Jackson?

A. They told me they didn’t have a car. And I just said -- you know, trying to help out Gavin, giving them another car.

Q. So the fact that Mr. Jackson had at one time given them a car or a truck was not -- you didn’t feel that they were misrepresenting the fact that they didn’t have a car, correct?

A. I didn’t ask any questions, because, I mean, it’s a little kid. So I just said, you know, “If you need a car, I’ll” -- you know, “I’ll get you a 12000 car.” I didn’t know what happened, if it broke down or what. I didn’t know.

Q. Mr. Tucker, what I’m asking you was what your mindset was at the time these conversations were going on with Gavin Arvizo regarding the truck. Was it your mindset that they already had a car that had been given to them by Mr. Jackson?

A. I was -- I didn’t even think about it, because the car -- I didn’t think about the car that they already had or Mr. Jackson’s car. I wasn’t even thinking about that. They told me they didn’t have a car and I gave them a car.

Q. At the point you gave them a car, you had no suspicion that they did not have a car, correct?

A. I -- I didn’t think about it. I just didn’t think about it. I should have, probably, but I didn’t think about it.

Q. If you didn’t think about it, I guess you didn’t have a suspicion then, right?
A. I didn’t know. I just --
Q. All right. Did you know that, in fact, that car -- that Mr. Jackson’s car had been returned?
A. No.
Q. Over a year before?
A. No.
Q. And you knew at the time that they were talking to you about the subject of the Toyota, your Toyota truck or Azja’s Toyota truck, Azja Pryor’s, that the father, David Arvizo, was no longer in the picture, he had been gone for a while, correct?

A. I had heard from my son’s mother that there was a lot of problems going on, and -- you know, all this stuff. And I just heard a lot of stuff. So I didn’t know definitely. I was hearing a lot of stuff.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, move to strike as nonresponsive.
THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: What I asked you, Mr. Tucker, was, did you know at the time that they were talking about the truck whether or not David Arvizo was no longer a part of the family? Did you know that?
A. Well, how I found out was through my son’s mother. Because they told me that there was all this stuff going on in the family.
Q. Okay. So --
A. They didn’t tell me anything.
Q. I’m not --
A. They didn’t tell me.
Q. I’m -- that’s fine. I just want to make sure we understand. Your understanding was, at this point in time, that the father was no longer in the picture, correct?
A. I just heard a lot of mis -- stuff. I didn’t know. I didn’t know what was going on. No, I didn’t know.

Q. You hadn’t seen David Arvizo for a long time?

A. I didn’t see the whole family for a little while. I didn’t see them every day.
Q. I know you didn’t see them every day. But you talked about having phone conversations with them, didn’t you?
A. With who?
Q. You talked about having phone conversations with the family.
A. He never told me everything. Every time Gavin called, I asked him how he was doing, but he never told me about this other stuff.
Q. When was your brother married?
A. I don’t know. A few years ago. I don’t know. My brother? Which brother?
Q. Well, the one that got married that you took the kids to. The wedding.
A. That I took the kids?
Q. Do you remember taking -- inviting the Arvizo children to your brother’s wedding?
A. My brother -- okay, I know which one you’re talking about now. I don’t know what year. It had to be maybe 2000. Maybe. I don’t know.
Q. Do you recall going to a wedding in Pasadena for your brother?
A. Yes.

Q. You can’t recall the year that you went to your brother’s wedding?
A. No.
Q. You invited the Arvizo children to go with you, did you not?
A. Well, they wanted to go, and they basically invited themselves, but, yeah, they came.
Q. You could have said “No.”
A. Yeah, but I thought I was doing the right thing.
Q. Okay. So you took them to your brother’s wedding in Pasadena, correct?
A. They came to the wedding, yes. They wasn’t in the car with me.
Q. Okay. But they -- you had your picture taken with them at the wedding, didn’t you?
A. Yeah, they was at the wedding. They showed up.

Q. But you invited them?
A. Yeah. If they wanted to come, they could come.
Q. I mean, they didn’t know where the wedding was. You had to give them the information, didn’t you?
A. No, I didn’t. I didn’t know where the wedding was. I mean, they sent out -- they must have called somebody. I don’t know. I don’t know how --

Q. You don’t know how they found out where the wedding was in Pasadena?
A. No.
Q. It was at a private residence, wasn’t it?
A. Well, you could call -- I mean, they got people for that, that when they do weddings. I don’t know who they called. But I’m pretty sure they asked me -- I don’t remember if I told them to come, because, you know, like I said, anything, you know, for Gavin, for him to feel, you know -- have some fun or whatever. And he knew my brother, so --
Q. Well, at this point in time, Gavin’s cancer had been in remission for some time, hadn’t it?
A. I think he was doing better, yeah.
Q. I mean, in the photograph that shows you and the kids, Gavin no longer has the pale look --
A. Yes.
Q. -- and the loss of hair, right? Correct?
A. In the photograph. Which one?
Q. The one taken with you at the wedding with the kids.
A. I don’t remember. I don’t remember that photograph.
Q. He has all his hair back and it’s dark again; isn’t that correct?
A. I think he did, yeah. He was doing pretty good at that time.
Q. In fact, he’d been over cancer for almost a year, in remission, hadn’t he, by the time your brother got married?

A. I’m pretty sure that he was getting better at that time, yes.

Q. And he looked very healthy at the time the photograph was taken at the wedding; isn’t that correct?
A. I don’t even know what photograph you’re talking about, but I guess you know.
Q. Okay. I’m going to show it to you in just a second. Maybe that will help you jog your memory.
A. Okay.
Q. Now, you bought your -- the mother of your child - I should refer to her as Azja Pryor - a new car. It was a Mercedes SUV, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And when you went to buy that car, you actually took the Arvizo children with you, did you not?
A. I don’t remember.
Q. You don’t recall them being with you; that you took them and you even allowed them to pick out the color?
A. I don’t remember. They may have been with me. I don’t know.
THE BAILIFF: Judge.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And that would have been somewhere just before Christmas of the year 2002, correct?

A. I don’t know. I don’t remember.
Q. You don’t remember when you bought Azja Pryor a Mercedes SUV?
A. I can -- I know it was -- it was recently. But I don’t remember exactly, the exact date and time, because I don’t remember.
Q. Well, can we pin it down that it was before Christmas --
THE COURT: Counsel. Let’s take a break.
MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Judge.

DEFENDANT'S NO.

5108 One page of Verizon phone records 12158

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Mr. Tucker -- there we go.

Mr. Tucker, you were shown a phone number on an exhibit that was displayed on the board there, and you identified that as your phone number, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. That's a landline, meaning it's a non-cell phone? That's your home phone number?

A. Yes.

Q. And that's a number you had given to Gavin, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that the only number you gave?

A. No, I gave him a voice mail number when we first met, and eventually he had my home phone number.

Q. Does your home phone also have voice mail on it?

A. Yes, message.
Q. Yeah, yeah, voice message, sorry. Now, I want to show you a photograph, if we could have --
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: “Input 4.”
MR. SNEDDON: -- “Input 4.”
Q. Would you take a look at that for a second. And that’s People’s Exhibit -- People’s Exhibit No. 14.

Do you recognize the people depicted in that photograph?
A. That’s a nice photograph. Can I get it after the trial?
(Laughter.)
A. I haven’t even seen it.
Q. That depends on whether you’re a good boy or not.
(Laughter.)
Q. Do you recognize that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. The people in the photograph?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And that’s you and your son and your girlfriend, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And the Arvizo family?
A. Yes.
Q. And that photograph was taken at your brother’s wedding?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. All right. Thank you. Your son, I believe his name is Dustin?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And what is Dustin’s birthday party -- birthday name -- excuse me. What is Dustin’s date of birth?
A. September the 13th.

Q. Okay. And so his birthday would be on September 13th?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you recall having a birthday party for him at Neverland Valley Ranch?
A. Yes.

Q. And you invited a number of people to the party, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And in fact, you invited the Arvizos to that party, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And in order to get everybody out to the ranch, you chartered two big buses to get them out there, correct?

A. No, we had one bus. One bus. I think it was one bus, yes.

Q. Just one bus?

A. It might have been two. I don’t know.

Q. Do you recall that the Arvizo family was on the same bus that you were on?

A. Yes.

Q. And that, in fact, Janet Arvizo was on that bus, correct?

A. I don’t know if she was on there or not.

Q. You don’t recall seeing Janet Arvizo and a person named Jay?

A. I think so. I think so.

Q. Now, that birthday party that you had for your son was during the year 2002, correct?

A. I think so. I think.

Q. And how old would your son have been in the year 2002?

A. Might have been five, going on five.

Q. Okay. Now, after the birthday party, did you stay at the ranch with your son?

A. I don’t remember. I don’t remember.

Q. Do you recall an occasion during the year 2002 where you were at the ranch during the summer for about a week with your son?

A. I don’t remember how long it was, but I know I’ve been at the ranch with my son before, yes.

Q. Okay. And do you recall that during the summer of 2002, you were at the ranch with your son and the Arvizo children for approximately a week?

A. I knew we all was at the ranch before one time, and I don’t know what year, what time. I don’t remember now.

Q. But you do recall spending at least a week with the Arvizo children at Neverland Valley Ranch at some point in time?

A. I don’t remember how long it was or how many days it was.
Q. Was it more than --
A. What year it was.
Q. Was it more than two days?

A. I don’t remember. I don’t remember.
Q. Do you remember going horseback riding with the children at the ranch?
A. I remember that.
Q. All right. I think we were -- one other thing I want to go back and clear up.
You told the ladies and gentlemen of the jury that you gave -- or you wired some money or had money wired to an account that was given to you -- account information that was given to you at your house, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And the people who were present at your house on that occasion were David Arvizo, Gavin Arvizo and Star Arvizo, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And it was the father, David Arvizo, who gave you the account information, correct?
A. No, Gavin gave it to me.
Q. Gavin gave you the account information?
A. It was on a news -- a paper, a piece of paper, and he gave it to me.
Q. Okay. So he showed you an article that had been published about him?
A. Yes.
Q. And he showed you the account information on that?
A. And he gave me the proper spelling of his name, because I didn’t -- he spelled down the name and everything.

Q. I want to talk a little bit about the car, or the truck, the Toyota truck, okay?
Do you recall that the new car you bought for Azja Pryor was before Christmas of 2002?
A. It might have been that time.

Q. Okay. And do you recall that when you made the decision to give the Toyota truck to the Arvizo family, that that decision was made around Christmastime, that it was going to be a gift to them?

A. No.

Q. It was never going to be a gift to them?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever tell Azja Pryor that it was going to be a gift to them?

A. No.

Q. So it's your testimony that the decision on your part to give the Arvizos the truck occurred after the Bashir video?

A. Yes.

Q. And one of the things that you said that kind of turned you off was Janet's reaction to the news that you were going to give her the truck?

A. Yeah.

Q. She was overly effuse -- overly grateful to you?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did she tell you that she was grateful that you gave her the truck?

A. Her behavior was frantic, and I was -- I was -- I got real scared that I went in too deep with the family.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I move to strike as nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: What I asked you, Mr. Tucker, was, did Janet Arvizo tell you that she was grateful to you for giving them the truck?

A. She was -- like I said, she was crying, and saying that -- she didn't say that, no. She was just saying, "You're my brother. You're like a brother. And Michael's like a father." She kept repeating it and she kept repeating it. That's when I got, like, "Whoa."

Q. So it's your testimony that the thing that bothered you about her response was that she said that you were like a brother to her?

A. No. She started frantically crying, eyes got red, and shaking.
Q. Okay. So she was crying and she was shaking?
A. Like she was possessed.

Q. Well, or she was terribly grateful to you for something that you'd done?
A. I know the difference of that.
Q. You do?
A. Yeah, I meet a lot of people. I know the difference of that.
Q. This is one of the first occasions you actually met Janet in person, isn't it?
A. I met her in Las Vegas.
Q. And this was the second occasion in which you'd met her?
A. Yes.
Q. And the family does have a practice of hugging people the first time they meet them, do they not?
A. No.
Q. No?
A. No.
Q. You have never seen that?
A. No.
Q. Did it bother you that the children called you "brother"?
A. No.
Q. Did it bother you that Davellin called you like a "big brother"?
A. No.
Q. Did you think that because of the things that you'd done for them that that was how you were acting towards them, as a brother?

A. At that time, at first, yes.
Q. Now, you said that at some point in time the children would call -- or Gavin would call and ask about the car, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And this was after you'd already been to Miami, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you just tell Gavin that you changed your mind and you weren't going to give them the car?
A. I was -- I didn't tell -- I didn't speak to Gavin, because I was thinking it over, because -- you know, I was -- like I said, I was -- I think I crossed the line, and I was getting in too deep.
And I was really, really nervous.
And I didn't talk to him, because I was down in Orlando, and they was calling my son's mother every day. And she was trying to get in touch with me to see what was going on. Because I didn't tell her that I was doing that, because I didn't have a chance to talk to her because I had went out of town.
Q. You didn't tell her to just say, "Tell them I've just changed my mind. I'm not going to give them the truck"?
A. When I got back, I told them -- I told her.

Q. You told her that?
A. When I returned back to California, yes.
Q. And when was that?
A. Weeks later. It had to be two weeks later, because I was working.
Q. And this was after many telephone calls asking for the status of the truck, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You've talked about Las Vegas and the filming on the set. Who is Brett Ratner?
A. The director of Rush Hour.
Q. And there actually was the Rush Hour, and then there was a sequel to that, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Another Rush Hour?
A. Yes.
Q. Mr. Ratner was involved in that also?
A. Yes.
Q. And to your knowledge, Mr. Ratner is married to Al Malnik's daughter, correct?
A. No, I don't know.
Q. You don't know?
A. I don't know.

Q. You’ve been to Mr. Malnik’s house, have you not?
A. Yes. Yes.
Q. You didn’t see any pictures of Brett Ratner’s wife at Mr. Malnik’s house?

A. No.
Q. So you don’t know if they’re connected in that way?
A. No.
Q. Now, when you were in Miami -- let me see if I can get this straight. You arrived in Miami, and you were met at the airport by your brother, correct?
A. My brother met me there, yes.
Q. Yeah. Yes, sir.
A. Yes.
Q. And then you went over to the Turnberry Inn?
A. Yes.
Q. And did the Arvizos ride with you and your brother to the Turnberry?
A. I’m pretty sure they did.
Q. And when you arrived in Miami, it was close to -- it was after 1 a.m. in the morning, correct?
A. I don’t know. I think probably -- it was late, yeah. It had to be late, yeah.
Q. Okay. And when you got to Miami -- I’m sorry, when you got to the Turnberry Hotel - all right? - your room was in like another tower away from where Mr. Jackson’s room was; is that right?
A. I don’t know how the hotel is situated, but it was another room.
Q. It was a ways away, though?
A. I don’t -- I don’t know.

Q. You don’t remember?
A. I don’t remember, no.
Q. That -- you said that you went to Mr. Jackson’s room. Now, did you go to Mr. Jackson’s room when you got there in the early morning hours of the -- when you got to Miami, or did you go to bed and then go over there the next day?
A. I think we all went to his room. I don’t know if it was that late.

Q. You don’t think it was past one o’clock in the morning?

A. I don’t know if it was that late.

Q. So your recollection is that these events occurred on -- right after you arrived in Miami and arrived at the Turnberry, and then you went to Mr. Jackson’s room that night --

A. Yes.

Q. -- or early morning, whatever it was. That’s your recollection?

A. I think when we got there, the kids was so excited to see Michael, and we -- and they pulled me along with them all the time, so I think we went right up there. If I recall, we went right to see -- and we was trying to find out where Michael was.

Q. And this was -- and this was the -- well, let me go back and ask you another question. You were able to find out where Michael Jackson was staying, correct?

A. They found out. The kids found out.

Q. The kids found out?

A. Yeah.

Q. Do you know how they found out?

A. I don’t know how they found out.

Q. Do you know whether they were called by Mr. Jackson?

A. No. I don’t know.

Q. And it’s on this occasion that you pulled Mr. Jackson aside, and you tell him -- you give him a warning about the Arvizo family, correct?

A. I was -- yes. I was -- I was scared. And then once -- I tried to talk to Michael for a second, because I was getting ready to leave back out of town, and the mother went frantically again, “brother,” “father,” and I couldn’t even talk to him. And that’s when I said, “Michael,” you know, “Something ain’t right.”

Q. You pulled him aside and gave him some advice?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. He cut off the witness.

THE WITNESS: I said, “Something ain’t right. Be careful.”

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: This was a conversation just between you and Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. And I think you said it appeared to you that he took your advice seriously?

A. He -- yes, yes.

Q. Okay. Did you know what the Arvizo family -- well, let me put it this way: Did you know that there was a press conference planned with the Arvizo family and Mr. Jackson in Miami?

A. No.

Q. Did you know that after Miami, a couple of days later, that Mr. Jackson chartered a plane and flew back to California to his ranch?

A. No.

Q. Did you know that he took the Arvizo family with him on that chartered flight?

A. No.

Q. Did you know that the children actually stayed at the ranch for the better part of a month after you gave Mr. Jackson that advice?

A. I was in Orlando.

Q. I’m just asking you if you were aware.

A. No.

Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Jackson during that period of time?

A. No.

Q. Did you follow the media coverage of the Bashir documentary?

A. I’ve seen it from time to time on television, yes.

Q. You saw there was quite a furor that was created as a result of what was put on T.V., correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever follow up with your friend, Michael Jackson, and ask him, “Did you follow my advice and stay away from the Arvizos?”

A. No, because I was still, like, really suspicious and didn’t know, because of my relationship with the kids, knowing him, I still -- you know, Gavin was calling me. I would have said hello to Gavin, too.

So I didn’t -- I just said, “Just be careful,” because I knew we was both high-profile, to be careful. And I knew how nice Michael was, and I knew that you had to be careful.

Q. Now, you indicated to the jury that Gavin called you and said that the media was hounding them, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that at your house?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember how many telephone calls you had with Gavin about that?

A. I don’t remember. No.

Q. Would it have been more than one?

A. I don’t remember. I really don’t.

Q. And do you remember that telephone conversation -- well, you said as a result of that conversation, that you decided that you were going to charter a plane and help them out and take them to Florida, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So after that telephone conversation with Gavin, you decided -- you made some contacts with somebody to charter a plane to fly them to Florida?

A. Yeah, because I was already going to Orlando, and I was debating if I was going to go. And then I decided yes, I was going to go if they needed to go, and they didn’t have nowhere else to go because of the media, and they was trying to find Michael. So I said, “Okay. Let’s go.”

Q. So you had already chartered a plane?

A. No, I was -- I was thinking about it, because --

Q. Thinking about it?

A. -- because I have a home in Orlando. And they told me they needed a place to go, and they was trying to get away. They was trying to find Michael.

Q. I understand that.

A. And I said, “Okay. I’ll charter a plane for you guys, if you all want to go down there and get away because the media is hounding you.”

MR. SNEDDON: Move to strike as nonresponsive, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Tucker, isn’t it a fact that you had already chartered a plane to fly to Orlando, Florida, and that you were scheduled to leave for Orlando, Florida --

A. No.

Q. Let me finish the question, in fairness to you.

(Continuing) at 4:45 on February the 4th of 2003; isn’t that true?

A. No. That’s -- I booked the flight. And when they said they wanted to go, that’s why we left later on in the afternoon.

MR. SNEDDON: Move to strike as nonresponsive, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, may I have the overhead, please?

Q. Mr. Tucker, do you recognize the document I’ve placed on the board?

A. No.

Q. Do you recognize that it -- it indicates that a trip was planned for February 4th, to leave from Van Nuys and to fly to Orlando, and that there was a cost of the charter flight indicated at the bottom?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

MR. SNEDDON: This is in evidence. I’m sorry, I didn’t give you a number. I apologize. This is Exhibit 250, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. Let me look at the question.

MR. SNEDDON: I’m sorry?

THE COURT: All right. I’ll overrule the objection.

You need to have the question read back.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And do you recall -- Mr. Tucker, is the name of a company you have called Tuck-You-In?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And do you recall that you actually ended up getting billed for the fact that you were going to leave on February 4th of 2003? Do you recall that?

A. Excuse me?

Q. Yes. That you actually paid for a part of the plane on February 4th of 2003? Do you recall that?

A. I paid for all of it, and I recall making a trip on that same exact day and leaving later on that afternoon.

Q. So you think you left on February 4th?

A. No. I left on the day I chartered -- I said that I was going, and I don't know what day that was.

Q. Well, this says you're leaving on February 4th. Does it not say, "Trip date, February 4th, 2003"?

A. If that's the day I left.

Q. So your testimony is whatever the day it says up here is the day you left?

A. No. I'm saying whatever day I said I was going, that's the same exact day I left. Whatever date that was.

Q. Well, this indicates you're going to leave on February 4th.

A. Well, whatever date that is. And I have documents to say that same day that I left, I left. And the same day I chartered the plane was on that day, and I can get it to you.

Q. All right. Let's look at another exhibit under 250.

I want the top part of it, please. If you could freeze in on that.

Do you see the document that we've placed up there that's People's Exhibit 250?

A. Yes.

Q. And it indicates that you are to leave at 1615 hours, isn't that correct, on February 4th of 2003?

A. Yes. That's what it says, yes.
Q. Were you at the airport at that time on that date?
A. I don't know. I don't know.
Q. Do you recall that the plane sat on the ground for about nine hours on that date and you were at the airport?
A. No, because they don't do that. Planes won't do that.
Q. You don't do that.
This is another document that's in 250. Get the bottom part, please.
Do you see the notation there, it says, "No fly. Sat at the airport for nine hours"?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Do you recall that happening; that you were at the airport and it didn't take off?
A. No.
Q. You have no recollection of that?
A. No.
Q. Do you have a recollection as to what time the plane did leave?
A. It was later in the evening, when I notified my people and told them I was going. And they -- it took a while to get the plane together, I guess. Because they just can't get a plane together. And that's when we left.
Q. It was through the same company, correct?

A. Excuse me?
Q. It was through the same charter company?
A. I think so, yes.
Q. Now, do you remember talking to Evvy Tavasci? Do you know who that is?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. That's Michael Jackson's secretary, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you have talked to Miss Tavasci on occasion?
A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall talking to her on the -- on the day that you went to Miami?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Okay. And when you talked to her, did she indicate to you that she'd already made arrangements for the family to fly to Florida?

A. No.

Q. She didn't tell you that?

A. No.

Q. Did you call her to tell her that you were going to take the family to Florida?

A. I called her to find out where Michael was, because I was also looking for him. And if he was there, I was going to stop by and say hello.

Q. So you didn't know where Michael was at that point?

A. No.

Q. And so I guess at this point you hadn't had that conversation with Gavin?

A. No, I had -- I had the conversation with Gavin. That's why I was looking. Because he said that Michael was down in Miami. He was looking for him. So I called Gavin to confirm it before I chartered a plane to go down there and see him.

Q. Do you recall what time it was when you called Evvy Tavasci?

A. No.

Q. Was it in the morning or in the afternoon?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Was it on the same day that you talked to Gavin, right after you talked to Gavin?

A. The same day, yes.

Q. The same day you talked to Gavin?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: You had an exhibit? Thank you.

May I approach the witness, Your Honor? I'm sorry.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Tucker, I have an exhibit here that's been marked in evidence in this particular case as 451, and I think you can accept this representation, because I've just talked to counsel.

These are your telephone records, your receipts, okay?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. And under Tab --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Wait a minute. I didn’t stipulate to that.
MR. SNEDDON: Well, okay. I’ll just have him look at it. I was trying to save some time.
Q. Under Tab 9, does that appear to be, at the top, your telephone number?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And it indicates this is the information for the account under that telephone number, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. True?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, what I want you to do is, I would like you to look at the information on this -- this telephone record very quickly, and particularly, to make it easier for you, I want you to focus on the dates of the 4th and 5th of February of 2003. Okay?
Go ahead and take whatever time you need, but it should be quick.
A. I’m kind of confused. It’s just on this one page?
Q. No, sir. Well, I want you to look at all the pages, so when I ask you the question, you’re satisfied that what I’m asking you doesn’t appear on -- I want you to look at all of the records from here through where it says “Tab 10.” These records right here. Okay?

And particularly, I want you to focus on -- if I may turn to the second page, you can see it has dates, times, and places called, and the length of the call. See that?
A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. So if you’d look at that, those few pages real quickly, if you want, or take as much time as you want, and what I’m going to ask you questions about are the 4th and the 5th.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, may I inquire as to whose phone records he’s showing him?

MR. SNEDDON: I -- Mr. Tucker’s records.

MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Tucker’s records.

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir. That’s what I showed you.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Not Mr. Jackson’s records?

MR. SNEDDON: No, Mr. Tucker’s records.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: I’m sorry, Judge.

Q. With regard to the tab that I asked you to look at, those are your phone records, correct?

A. I didn’t really look at them.

Q. Okay. It has your name and your number and your billing address, correct?

A. This is really confusing to me. I’m -- but, yeah, it does have my number, one of my numbers. But this is not my number, (310) 821 -- I don’t know who number that is, whose number that is.

Q. Which number are you referring to?

A. This number right here.

Q. Go ahead. Put your finger on it again, so I can --

A. Those numbers right there.

Q. Right here?

A. Yeah.

Q. Those are calls. Is this your number at the top?

A. That’s my number, yes.

Q. All right.

A. Okay.

Q. Now, it’s true, is it not, that on February the 4th, 2003, those records reflect you made no telephone calls from that telephone number, correct?

A. I don’t understand the question, then. On February 4th, I don’t know how many calls I made to who or what.

Q. Well, look on the records.

A. I don’t understand these records. And if I did -- if it’s on there, it’s on there. I guess you could say it, but I don’t know how this record is.

Q. You don’t understand the records?
A. No.
Q. Do you see any telephone calls on February 4th in those records?
A. I see February 2nd, 5th, 5th, 11th. I don’t see 4th on here right now. I don’t see 4th.
Q. All right. Thank you. Now, with regard to the 5th - okay? - what’s the time of the telephone call on the 5th?
A. I don’t understand these records. I’m sorry. You can repeat it.
Q. Mr. Tucker, in the column on the far left-hand side, it says, “3:33 P,” right?
A. That’s what you say. I don’t know.
Q. No, I want you to look and tell me if that’s what it says.
A. I don’t even know which is the top or bottom.
Q. The left-hand side on February the 5th.
A. Yes.
Q. Right next to that, it goes, “3:33 P,” correct?
A. Yep.
Q. 3:30 p.m., correct?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. And underneath that, on the 5th, there’s another call, correct?
A. Yes. 12038

Q. What time was that call made?
A. It says on these records 4:37.
Q. Okay. And those are the only two calls on the 5th --
A. I don’t know.
Q. -- on your phone.
A. I made a lot of phone calls on the 5th, whatever day that was. I don’t remember.
Q. But they’re not reflected in your telephone logs?
A. I have a lot of phones. I don’t know.
Q. Were you at home?
A. I don’t -- I guess I was at home part of the day.

Q. Were you at home when Gavin called you that day?
A. Yes.
Q. On the 5th?
A. Yes.
Q. You’re positive?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recognize the number that you called at 3:30?
A. No.
Q. Do you recognize the number you called a little after 4:00?
A. No.
Q. Do you know what Evvy Tavasci’s telephone number is?

A. No, not by heart.
Q. Do you remember what time it was when you placed the call to Xtra Jet that day?
A. No.
Q. Do you know what the number is at Xtra Jet?
A. No, because I don’t call them directly.
Q. Who do you call?
A. My assistant calls them.
Q. So you didn’t call Xtra Jet that day?
A. No.
MR. SNEDDON: May I have just a moment, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: All right. So it’s your testimony that after you talked to Gavin that day, the flights were made, arranged to fly to Miami. They all came to your house the same day, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And that you were taken to the airport, and you flew to Miami?
A. Yes.
Q. That’s your testimony?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, I actually just have a couple more questions.
When you were in Miami, do you recall taking the kids down and paying for a massage for them, for the boys?

A. No.

Q. Or a pedicure for Davellin?

A. No.

Q. You have no recollection of that at all?

A. Not that I know of. No.

Q. And this was a time where you were suspicious of the Arvizo family at this point, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you aware of the fact that on the day that you flew with the children to Miami that Michael Jackson had called Gavin in the morning?

A. No.

Q. Gavin didn’t tell you that?

A. No.

Q. Nobody told you that?

A. No.

Q. Did Michael Jackson tell you that he had called Gavin?

A. No.

Q. Did you ask him if he had called Gavin?

A. I didn’t talk to Michael.

Q. I meant when you got to Miami.

A. No.

Q. Do you know somebody by the name of Gary Hearn?

A. No.

Q. Do you know who Mr. Jackson’s chauffeur is?

A. No.

Q. Limo driver?

A. No.

Q. So it’s your testimony that you didn’t call or talk to the Jackson limo service on that day?

A. No.

Q. Now, on the flight, you said everybody was pretty subdued and tired, correct?

Let me correct that, because that’s not what you said. I want to be fair to you.

You said the kids were excited and Janet was excited about seeing Michael Jackson?

A. Everybody was excited about -- they was excited about getting out of Miami and going to see

Michael. Getting out of Los Angeles, going to Miami, and to see Michael, yes.

Q. Okay. But you indicated, I think, that you -- you went to sleep because of the lateness of the hour?

A. No. I was up until it got late, and when everybody dozed off, I dozed off, too.

Q. Now, when you left California, it was California time, right? That's a bad question.

(Laughter.)

Q. It's just a joke. I laugh at yours. There's a time difference between California and Miami, right?

A. Yes. Three hours.

Q. Three hours. And it was your understanding that the controversy that had led the Arvizo family to go to Miami was the Bashir documentary tape?

A. It's because they couldn't get around. The media was on them. And they said they had nowhere to go and they wanted to go see Michael. That's my understanding.

Q. Because of the Bashir tape?

A. Because of I guess whatever happened in the media. I don't know.

Q. I thought you told us on direct examination that you were aware of the fact that the Bashir documentary had been shown.

A. Yes.

Q. And you were aware of the -- I think you even mentioned on cross that you were aware of the controversy that had created --

A. Yes.

Q. -- for Mr. Jackson.

A. Yes. But the reason why I gave them a ride was because the media, they had nowhere to go. They was getting hounded and they wanted to go see Michael.

Q. I think we've got that.

A. All right.

Q. Now, when you left Miami, you went to Atlanta with your brother, correct?

A. No, I went to Orlando.

Q. Orlando?
A. My brother went to Atlanta.
Q. Did your brother take the charter?
A. No.
Q. So you -- how did you get to Orlando?
A. A charter.
Q. A charter?
A. Yes.
Q. Your brother went a separate way to Atlanta?
A. Yes.
Q. That’s your recollection?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you stay on the East Coast for a couple of weeks?
A. Yes.
Q. And you came back to your home in California after that?
A. I -- yes. I think I did, yeah.
Q. Well, do you recall whether you did or not?
A. I think I came back. I think I came back shortly, after a couple of weeks, yeah.
Q. When you came back, were you still getting calls about the car? The truck, I’m sorry.
A. When I got back, my son’s was mother was all tangled up with this family, going places. And I didn’t know what was going on, because we was out of touch. And, yes, they was -- some kind of way they got to her and got her connected in all this mess.

Q. Yeah. All right. So what I want to know is, at that point in time, did you tell Gavin, “I’ve changed my mind. I’m not going to give you the truck”? That can be answered “yes” or “no.”
A. I didn’t talk to Gavin, no, not at that time.
Q. Okay. You didn’t talk to Gavin at that time?
A. No. But I told my son’s mother to tell them.
Q. You told Azja Pryor --
A. Yes.
Q. -- to tell them you’d changed your mind and you weren’t going to give them the truck?
A. And they kept calling. And she said, “They keep calling." And everybody's getting on the phone and talking to her.

MR. SNEDDON: Move to strike as nonresponsive, Your Honor.

THE COURT: After "Yes," I'll strike it.

MR. SNEDDON: All right, Mr. Tucker. I have no further questions. Thank you very much.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Mr. Tucker, in response to the prosecutor's questions, you said that your fiancee, Azja, was tangled up with this family?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you mean by that?

A. She -- they -- they was --

MR. SNEDDON: Excuse me. I'm going to move to strike. No foundation. It calls for hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: There was no objection to the answer, and I'm just asking him to explain it, Your Honor.

THE COURT: It calls for a narrative. I'll sustain the objection.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: During the time when you became suspicious of the motives and actions of the Arvizos, was your fiancee, Azja, involved with the Arvizos?

A. She -- she was talking, but she wasn't aware of what I was aware of at that time, because I was in Orlando. But she wasn't that involved. They called every now and then, but not like they started calling when they was trying to get that truck, get the truck.

Q. Okay. Now --

MR. SNEDDON: Move to strike that part that refers to hearsay testimony, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I'll strike after "She wasn't that involved."

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You said Azja was in a mess with this family, right?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you mean by that?

A. She was --

MR. SNEDDON: Same objection. Lack of foundation, and it will call for hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Were you concerned about your fiancee being involved with the Arvizos?

A. Yes.

Q. Why?

A. Because she was going to couns -- meetings and stuff over at the house and --

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object again. It calls for lack of foundation and hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer stays in. Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Are there any other reasons why you were concerned about Azja's involvement with the Arvizos?

MR. SNEDDON: Same objection. Well, I take that back. It can be answered "yes" or "no." I'll take it back. I'll wait for the answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes. Because I always --

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Excuse me. Just answer "yes" or "no."

MR. SNEDDON: Now I object to anything beyond the answer "yes" or "no."

THE WITNESS: What was the question?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Were there any other reasons, other than the ones that you described, why you were concerned that your fiancee, Azja, was involved with the Arvizos?

A. Yes.

Q. What concerned you?

MR. SNEDDON: I object. Lack of foundation. Calls for hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever warn Azja at some point, "Get away from that family"?

A. Yes.

Q. And approximately when did you start warning Azja to get away from the Arvizos?

A. It was before the Miami trip. I was just like -- because they was calling her all the time.

And I was like, “Wait a minute,” because I knew how far I was going to go, but I told her to -- you know, to be careful, because, you know, they calling, and they wanted to talk to my son all the time and all this stuff.

And I said, you know, “Just hold off.”

Q. Now, to your knowledge, where was Azja when you were in Miami with the Arvizos?

A. In Los Angeles.

Q. And despite your growing suspicions, you continued to be nice to them, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Why?

A. Because, you know, I still wanted to -- you know, to -- I just didn’t want to just -- totally just cut them off, because I didn’t know what they would do. So I tried to ease my way away, because I started to find out all these problems they had.

And they never told me about these things. So I was like -- my friends was warning me, but -- and now I was finding out from my son’s mother and from other --

MR. SNEDDON: Object as a narrative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You were concerned about them, first of all, because of things you observed, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You were also concerned because of what other people told you, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were concerned because of requests and demands the Arvizos made on you, right?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I object.

Compound and leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, the prosecutor asked you if you knew about the Arvizos’ financial problems, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you know about their $152,000 J.C. Penney settlement?

A. No. No.

Q. Did you know whether bank accounts had been set up by the mother for her children out of that settlement?

A. No.

Q. Did you know whether or not Jay Jackson was supporting them on an 80,000-a-year salary?

A. No.

Q. Did you know whether or not the mother was getting welfare at the time she was being supported by Jay Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Did you know whether or not the Arvizos were raising money from other celebrities?

A. No.

Q. Now, at some point you said you learned they were calling every comedian in town, right?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you learn that?

A. Later on, in the media.

Q. Did you know whether or not they were asking other comedians in town for financial assistance?

A. No.

Q. Did you know whether or not George Lopez was arranging a fund-raiser for them?

A. No.

Q. Did you know whether or not they were getting free benefits from an acting school -- or dancing school? Excuse me.

A. No. No.

Q. Did you know whether or not they were telling people they were homeless?

A. No.

Q. Did you know whether or not Janet hired lawyers to defraud J.C. Penney?

A. No.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object to that question. It’s argumentative and it calls for a legal conclusion.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is, “No.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When did you begin to think that Gavin was cunning?

A. When he approached me and was asking for more money, I knew that -- you know, I know -- I meet a lot of kids, and I knew that he -- he -- and the little things that he would say.

And definitely Star. Star would say stuff all the time like, “You got too much stuff.” And, “You don’t need all this stuff.”

And -- but I would always ignore it, because I’m thinking I’m helping a kid with cancer, and it’s all about, you know, that.

But Star would always say cunning stuff, and would always -- I had to check -- almost check his pockets before he would leave my house, because I didn’t really -- I never really trusted him. But I was always naive because I thought I was doing a good thing.

Q. Now, you said the mother was possessed, in your mind, right?

A. Yes. I thought --

Q. What did you mean by “possessed”?

A. Just -- she had some mental problems.

And I remember the kids always -- you know, they was always ashamed to talk about her, and always --

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object to the question. Calls for a conclusion, speculation, the way it’s phrased.

THE COURT: I’ll leave in that part of the answer that she had some mental problems and strike the rest of the answer.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, the prosecutor showed you some phone records. Do you normally analyze your phone records?

A. No.

Q. Who handled your phone bills?

A. My business people.

Q. Was that true in 2003?

A. Excuse me? Yes.

Q. In the year 2003?

A. Yes, yes, yes.

Q. Would your phone bills go right to your business people?

A. Yes.

Q. And would they handle them?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you analyzed a phone bill before?

A. No.

Q. How many phone numbers did you have in 2003?

A. Probably three.

Q. How many landlines do you think you had?

A. Four. Probably four.

Q. And how about cell phones?

A. Two.

Q. Okay. So you may have had five phones?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you typically carry a cell phone with you all the time?

A. Sometimes, yes.

Q. Okay. Now, did you have a different carrier, if you know, for long-distance service rather than basic service?

A. I’m pretty sure I did.

Q. Do you know who they were?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Now, during February of 2003, were you typically the only person at your home?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. At some point, did you learn that Azja was no longer in communication with the Arvizo family?

A. No, I -- I don’t know.

Q. Was it your understanding that Azja was communicating with them after you became suspicious?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And were you getting a lot of your information about the Arvizo family from her?

A. Yes.

Q. And in 2003, did you know whether or not the Arvizo family was living at Jay Jackson’s home?

A. No.

Q. Did you know whether or not they were living at their grandparents’?

A. No.

Q. Did you know whether or not they were trying to get rid of their East L.A. apartment?
A. Um --
MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object to that. Assumes facts not in evidence.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you know anything about that?
A. Excuse me, what was that?

Q. Whether or not the Arvizos were trying to get rid of their East Los Angeles apartment?
A. I didn't know anything about that.
Q. Okay. Now, was that flight to Miami the last time you ever flew with them?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And do you recall who was paying their hotel bill in Florida?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. Did you pay that?
A. I don't know.
Q. You don't know?
A. I don't think so. I don't know.
Q. Did you have any meals with them in Florida, if you recall?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Did you take them around at all during that trip?
A. No.
Q. Now, is it unusual for a celebrity who schedules a press conference to suddenly cancel it?
A. No.
Q. Celebrities schedule and cancel press conferences all the time, don't they?
A. Yes.
MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.
MR. SNEDDON: No questions.
THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.
MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, the defense rests.
THE COURT: Rebuttal?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes. We're going to need a moment, Your Honor. We might want to take a couple of minutes. We have to find Mr. Auchincloss and the witness.

THE COURT: You lost Mr. Auchincloss?

(Laughter.)

MR. SNEDDON: I didn't know that. I was so engrossed with Mr. Tucker, I didn't see him leave. I'll tell you what. Hang on. I know what we can do.

MR. SANGER: There are a couple of matters to take up, so I don't know how the Court wants to handle that.

THE COURT: I guess we need to know their first witness. Who's your first witness?

MR. SNEDDON: I've changed them. We were going to put on the one that was the subject of some consideration, but I have two that I can put on that are relatively short, and I'll do that if the Court wants me to.

THE COURT: I'd appreciate that.

MR. SNEDDON: And I've had the bailiff summon them down.

THE COURT: Counsel, are there any exhibit issues left on your case? I don't know of any. I'm just wondering if --

MR. MESEREAU: I don't think so, Your Honor. I already spoke to my co-counsel about it. I don't think so.

THE COURT: Okay.

(Discussion off the record.)

THE COURT: Remain standing. Face the clerk. Raise your right hand.

TIMOTHY PATRICK ROONEY

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Timothy Patrick Rooney. R-o-o-n-e-y.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Actually, Mr. Rooney, you've testified previously in this case, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. Now, just to refresh the jury's memory, you're an employee of Santa Barbara County?

A. As a D.A. investigator.

Q. All right. And so you work for the District Attorney's Office?

A. Correct.

Q. And on the 11th of November -- not the 11th. Let me rephrase that.

On November 18th, 2003, you were part of the law enforcement personnel that went to the ranch at -- Neverland Ranch, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you had previously testified in connection with some of the ranch logs that you had seized during the course of the search warrant, correct?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now, you were in the security office, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And were you assigned a particular responsibility on that search that day in the security office?

A. A couple different responsibilities, yes, sir.

Q. Did one of those involve the filing cabinet?

A. Yes.

Q. And were you the one that was solely responsible for the review of the materials in the filing cabinet?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And did you go through each and every one of the drawers of that filing cabinet?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you do that carefully?

A. Very.
Q. And were you briefed ahead of time as to what you were to look for?
A. Yes.
Q. I think you previously indicated you were looking for records involving the Arvizo family for 2002 and 2003?
A. Correct.
Q. And certain other individuals who were on the list, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Associated with Mr. Jackson?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, with regard to your going through the drawers in that file cabinet, did you, in going through that drawer, find any records at all that dealt with 2003 and the Arvizo family?
A. No.
Q. And you went through those records carefully; is that correct?
MR. SANGER: Objection; asked and answered.
THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Very carefully.
MR. SNEDDON: No further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. Investigator Rooney, how’re you doing?
A. Good.
Q. Now, you were informed sometime before you took the stand today that there had been testimony that the 2003 records were in the very file cabinet that you had looked through, correct?
A. Vaguely, yes, sir.
Q. Did the District Attorney, Mr. Sneddon, tell you that there had been testimony in this trial that the 2003 records for the gate logs at Neverland were in the file cabinet that you were assigned to search through; is that right?
A. No, that’s not accurate.
Q. Who informed you?
A. That’s not what I was informed.
Q. What were you informed?

A. I was simply asked if I was the one who searched that file cabinet and were these records present.
Q. Were you told that the records were produced by the people at Neverland Ranch through their attorneys?
A. No.

Q. Were you told that a witness had testified that the records for 2003 were, in fact, in that file cabinet?
A. I don’t believe I was told that, no, sir.
Q. Now, you just said you went through very carefully?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. So if you were supposed to locate these records, you said anything to do with Arvizos in 2002, 2003, if you were supposed to locate them and they had been there and you missed them, that would be an embarrassment, wouldn’t it?
A. Not necessarily.
Q. Okay. It could happen?
A. Could it have happened?
Q. Well, you say it’s --
A. Repeat your question.
Q. If you missed them, if they were there, it’s not necessarily an embarrassment --
A. No, sir.
Q. -- I’m just trying to find out why not.
A. Why it’s not an embarrassment? Well, that’s your verbiage.
Q. And I don’t mean to really embarrass you right now, but the point is, you understood you were being brought in here to testify that you really looked in that file cabinet thoroughly and you didn’t find 2003 records; is that right?

A. That is correct.
Q. So you didn’t ask, “Why am I being brought in to testify to that?”
A. I did not ask, no.
Q. You were told?
A. I had heard. No, I wasn’t even told.
Q. You had heard it?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. All right. Now, let’s go back to November 18, 2003. You were part of the search team, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was comprised of 70-some people, I think; is that right?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object.

THE WITNESS: I don’t know the number.

MR. SNEDDON: This is irrelevant and beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SANGER: Let me do something else.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: All right.

Q. You had a meeting with sheriff’s deputies and others before you went out to the ranch to search; is that correct?

A. A briefing, yes, sir.

Q. A briefing. And you were given a packet of information to review; is that right?

A. Right.

Q. And that packet of information explained the basic suspicions or allegations in the case; is that correct?

A. I don’t believe it did.

Q. It gave a basic overview of what this investigation was about, did it not?

MR. SNEDDON: Same objection, Your Honor. Beyond the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I’m sorry?

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: No, I don’t believe it did. I believe it was just a list of the items we were looking for. I don’t recall that identifying details of the case.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: When you were at the briefing, where did the briefing occur?

A. Solvang substation.

Q. And how many officers were there during your part of the briefing?

A. Guessing, about 60.

Q. All right. And were you making an effort to keep this briefing confidential so that the public and others wouldn't know that you were having a briefing about a search warrant that was about to be executed?

A. You're asking me about a role that -- I was attending as one of the search members. My role was not to keep anything confidential, but to search.

Q. Well, let's ask about that. Was it your role to, say, call the press and say, "We're going to search" --

A. No. No.

Q. It was your understanding, in your years in law enforcement -- I forgot how many, but it's quite a number, if I recall.

A. 27.

Q. 27. In your 27 years in law enforcement, when you're going to execute a search warrant, part of what you were doing is trying to execute it by surprise, for the most part, right?

A. Certainly.

Q. You don't want anybody to know you're coming out, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And when you got to Neverland Ranch, did it appear to you that you had achieved that goal?

A. Not completely, no.

Q. Okay. Do you have any information whatsoever that there was anybody in that security office who had any information about the nature of your search or what you intended to do before the first officers got there?

A. I'm sorry, repeat the question.

THE COURT: I can have it read back.

MR. SANGER: Please.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: I have no idea.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And when you went -- when you arrived at the security office, were there other officers there already?

By “officers,” I’m referring to anybody in the search party, the investigators, like yourself, the D.A. or sheriff’s officers.

A. I believe we went there as a unit. I don’t know if somebody was in there previously and had photographed. I know they were photographing the interior of the residence prior to us searching.

Q. And the protocol for that search, and basically any other search, is when you arrive, you get the personnel, whether it’s individuals in a single-family residence or people at a workplace, you get those individuals and you move them away from the areas you want to search; is that correct?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: All right. Okay. I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Mr. Rooney, is there any doubt in your mind that those records were not in that file cabinet on the day you looked in there?

A. There’s no doubt in my mind at all.

MR. SANGER: Argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Rooney, with regard to the search of that file cabinet, can you assure this jury that everything that you saw, that there was nothing in there that dealt with the Arvizos after 2003?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Objection. Argumentative; move to strike.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes, I’m certain of that.

MR. SNEDDON: No further questions.

MR. SANGER: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I think we will get to this witness -- my understanding is that they were going to call a couple of police officers.

Before we get to this particular witness, we may have to have our motion heard. There's actually motions from both sides.
THE COURT: Is that correct?
MR. SNEDDON: I was busy lining up the witness, Your Honor. I apologize, but --

THE COURT: He said this was one of the witnesses we needed to have a hearing on. I don't have that on the papers that were --
MR. SNEDDON: Neither do I.
MR. SANGER: Well, we didn't have -- they had not listed this witness. They had not listed -- I'm sitting down, I apologize, just so I'm close to the microphone.
They had not listed this witness for today as of the time we did that motion, so we couldn't list it. Although we, I think, had a footnote in there saying it would probably apply to other witnesses.
MR. SNEDDON: It's right on your list.
MR. SANGER: Yeah, last night.
MR. SNEDDON: Well --
THE COURT: (To the jury) all right. I'll give you an extra long lunch. We won't reconvene until the normal end of the lunch period, because I want to take one, too.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: All right. The jury is out.
All right. We'll take up the issue that you wanted to exclude the testimony of Michaels and Francia. And apparently this applies to someone else, too.

MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor.
As I explained to the Court before we started today in chambers with Mr. Sneddon, we had received one witness list, which I'm not faulting the D.A., but we received one witness list --
THE COURT: You don't have to explain that.

MR. SANGER: We prepared this, and then we have a different list here. On page six, I did indicate in a footnote, “We respectfully request a proffer as to all of the prosecution’s witnesses and a 402 hearing, if necessary.”

Now, I can understand, for instance, the last witness would be appropriate rebuttal. The question that we have with regard to any of these other witnesses is whether or not they are proper rebuttal or if they have just been held back as something that should have been put on during the case-in-chief. We don’t know -- we can’t really tell from Shane Meridith’s reports what aspect of that they wish to present.

We also -- when it comes to the testimony of Charli Michaels and Blanca Francia, in particular, those are 1108 witnesses. And we have a particular concern about 1108 witnesses being called in rebuttal, who -- we have a particular concern about 1108 witnesses called in rebuttal who could have been called in the case-in-chief. And we cited the Supreme Court’s statement on this from the Carter case, which is really -- reflects the Penal Code. You’re not supposed to use --

THE COURT: Yeah, I’ve read that.

MR. SANGER: So the dramatic effect that can be achieved by holding things back to rebuttal is to be avoided by the Court. It’s particularly prejudicial when it has to do with 1108, because 1108 is particularly prejudicial to start with.

The Court made a delicate balancing decision. And they shouldn’t be allowed, for instance, with regard to Charli Michaels, in particular, this is a witness who they knew about. They knew that the conduct that she allegedly said that she saw and she said on television in paid appearances, that that conduct was denied not only by Mr. Jackson, but it was denied by the person who was the alleged victim. They knew that for the last ten years. So there was no surprise.

There’s no purpose in bringing this person in for rebuttal other than to say that -- other than to make a dramatic point at the end of the case and have that bell ringing in the jurors' ears.

So we -- and that's the brief that we filed.

I think we tried to keep it brief, but we specifically highlighted that point; that 1108 has to be dealt with, I think, in an even more sensitive fashion, because otherwise it is dramatic, and it is improper rebuttal.

We can't tell what exactly Blanca Francia is going to be called for as far as rebuttal. But we can't imagine what it would be that would be relevant, and that's why we ask for a proffer.

Jesus Salas. There's a paper that was filed this morning and handed to us. Of course, just as we handed them ours this morning, because this just came up. And they -- the prosecution seeks to call that witness for -- let's see if I've got the right one. As I recall, they said to show that Mr. Jackson was intoxicated in the presence of young people.

Now, that was already covered in the case-in-chief. There was no particular defense evidence about that. And that's just the sort of thing that should not be permitted in rebuttal.

When we brought this up in chambers, this general subject matter this morning, Mr. Sneddon said, well, there's actually five areas that they want to get into with either this witness or these witnesses. I wasn't sure exactly what the delineation was, but we don't know what those areas are.

So we can identify some areas for some of these witnesses that we believe is clearly improper rebuttal, and we don't know what the other areas are. So we would ask for a proffer as to each of these witnesses so that we have a chance to have a fair hearing on the issue of whether it is proper rebuttal.

THE COURT: Who's speaking for the People?

MR. ZONEN: I am, Your Honor.

The witnesses we're talking about are Charli Michaels and Blanca Francia; is that correct? I don't want to start talking about somebody else.

THE COURT: Yes. I think he wanted a proffer on Shane Meridith, too. That’s what --

MR. ZONEN: What are the others? I think Mr. Auchincloss will speak to Shane. Mr. Sneddon will speak to Shane Meridith.

THE COURT: You found him?

Go ahead.

MR. ZONEN: As to the other two, as to Charli Michaels and Blanca Francia, we’re intending to call Charli Michaels to testify to three specific things, matters that were brought up with defense witnesses, and for which defense witnesses either specifically denied or gave testimony inconsistent with what we believe will be clarified by Charli Michaels.

Charli Michaels will testify that she did witness Michael Jackson dancing or rehearsing on one occasion with Wade Robson and did witness an event where she had -- where Michael Jackson had his hand around the crotch of young Wade Robson, who at the time was probably around 11 or 12 years old, in a move similar to a dance routine that he, in fact, has done and performed.

She will also testify that she had had conversations with Joy Robson, Wade Robson’s mother, and that in the course of those conversations, Joy Robson had complained to her and was very upset, and expressed to her concern that Michael Jackson was interfering with her relationship with her son; that her son wasn’t spending time with her; that her son had become distant from her because of the attention that he was expressing. That’s directly contradictory to what Joy Robson testified to on the witness stand.

THE COURT: Well, is it?

MR. ZONEN: I have one more, but go ahead.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. ZONEN: The third matter was when Wade Robson was specifically asked questions about he and Mr. Jackson throwing stones at the lion at the time.

And what he acknowledged initially on cross-examination was, yes, that they both had, and that in fact he had been encouraged to do so by Mr.

Jackson for purposes of tormenting the lion to get it to roar. By the time the break came about, throwing stones at a lion became throwing pebbles at a cage, but initially it was throwing stones at a lion.

That event was witnessed by Charli Michaels, who will testify that it is, in fact, throwing stones at a lion.

We have listened to days and days and days and days of testimony about bad conduct by Star and Gavin Arvizo. It has been our position all along that that kind of conduct by the boys at the ranch is not just tolerated by Mr. Jackson, but encouraged by Mr. Jackson. This is a direct example of how that's done. We believe it's very relevant on that issue.

As to Blanca, Blanca's testimony would be similar to that of Charli Michaels with regards to a conversation she had with Joy Robson. And once again, that conversation was also that she was in a state of real distress; that she was crying; that she was very upset; that she had not been able to see her child; that her child had been kept from her by Michael Jackson, a statement that she directly denies. We think it's relevant in that regard.

THE COURT: What -- let me ask you the -- what is -- how do you see that this is different than what she testified to on direct in the defense case?

MR. ZONEN: I don't believe that she was asked that question because it would have required a hearsay answer from Joy Robson. I don't believe I either asked it or it was offered. And I don't believe we would have been entitled to have done so. To ask her about her conversations with Joy Robson would have been hearsay. If somebody can show me a transcript of that, I'll certainly stand corrected. But my recollection is that I never asked her that question for that exact reason: It's hearsay.

THE COURT: I thought she testified -- well, you've seen the points and authorities by Mr. Sanger.

MR. ZONEN: I have them right here, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And he’s saying she didn’t deny that on --

Isn’t that what you’re saying, Mr. Sanger?

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir. She was asked and then eventually --

THE COURT: Initially she didn’t remember, and then --

MR. ZONEN: I’d have to see the transcript, Your Honor. That’s not my recollection. My recollection is we never asked her.

THE COURT: Well, my recollection is that she didn’t remember, and then --

MR. ZONEN: We’re talking about Blanca Francia?

THE COURT: Maybe I’m talking -- I’m talking about Miss Robson.

MR. ZONEN: I’m sorry, I didn’t do that examination. I thought you were referring to Blanca.

THE COURT: Okay. I’m back to where I went -- interrupted you, and you wanted to finish.

MR. ZONEN: My recollection is that Joy -- Joy -- their contention is Joy Robson was asked directly those questions about whether or not she had told other people that Michael Jackson was in some way interfering with her relationship with her child. And on the witness stand she was, what, ambivalent about it? I’m not sure what the defense position is.

THE COURT: I think she said -- first she said she didn’t remember telling somebody that. And then I have a vague recollection that she later said, “Well” -- someone showed her the transcript and she said, “Well, I must have said it,” you know, “There it is.”

But then didn’t she try to say that it was really because it was Mother’s Day or something? I’m having a hard time remembering.

MR. ZONEN: If that was the transcript, then it was likely a transcript of a deposition, which certainly would be different from a conversation that she would have had in the presence of --

THE COURT: Yeah, she was shown the deposition. Look at page five, where Mr. Sanger lays it out, what -- lines 12 through 20.

MR. ZONEN: That's with regards to -- hold on. I'd have to see it in the context of the entirety of the testimony. That would be again saying, "I don't recall the conversation." I believe that that would be grounds for being able to bring in the person who actually had the conversation to be able to impeach that witness with the content of the conversation. And it is, of course, separate and apart from the observations of Blanca Francia as well.

I'm sorry, I just got this brief this morning, and I've been trying to read it while listening to testimony as well, so I'm not as focused on it as perhaps I should be.

THE COURT: Take a minute to read it.

MR. ZONEN: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I have the actual transcript here. And it may be, with our dailies, that we have a slightly different pagination. I'm not sure. No, no, I think that is right. 9234. I don't know if you have the transcripts on the computer that you can go back to.

THE COURT: No. I have the transcripts in my office, but not on this desktop here.

MR. SANGER: Yeah, I have it here. And if I may, I mean, there was a specific reference to Charli Michaels. And it is what we said. I can show it to the Court and counsel.

THE COURT: Well, let me just ask you, since you have the transcript, I was trying to remember -- I remembered her conceding, as you indicated in your points and authorities, that she must have said that. I mean, she said it because it's there in the deposition transcript.

Did she go on to say -- or did she say -- did she give any explanation as to why she would have said that in the deposition? That's what I was trying to remember. I thought she'd given an explanation, perhaps, about Mother's Day or -- but I don't have the transcript.

MR. SANGER: I can answer that. Is this unplugged?

Let me just stand up here, and I'm happy to let --

(Discussion held off the record at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: There's apparently a second screen that has work product before we show it to everybody. I don't think it was a big deal.

THE COURT: Your secret tactics.

MR. SANGER: Secret tactics. It says, "Bob Sanger, say this next."

THE COURT: (To Ms. Yu) Oh, you're the one that's responsible.

MS. YU: For everything. Sorry, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: I could read it. Maybe that's the easiest way.

THE COURT: That would help me, and then everybody gets to hear it.

MR. SANGER: And Mr. Zonen is welcome to look over my shoulder, as long as I can get my bifocals in the right place here.

MR. ZONEN: No, that's all right.

MR. SANGER: All right.

THE COURT: You know, I'm just interested --

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: -- to what explanation, if any, she gave regarding that.

MR. SANGER: And I just had it and now I've lost it, so.... It will just take me a second, I'm sorry.

Okay. Yes. This is Mr. Sneddon asking questions. Line 27, on 9234, according to the -- I believe this is the final daily.

And it says:

"Q. Now, do you recall an incident that occurred on Mother's Day during 1990 on a trip to the ranch?

"A. Yes.

"And you were upset, correct?

“A. Yes.

“And you were crying at one point?
“Yes.
“And the reason for that was that you had not seen your son all day, correct?
“Yes.
“And it was Mother’s Day?
“That’s right.
“And you found out that the reason you hadn’t seen your son that day was because he had been sleeping all day, correct?
“A. I think so, yeah.
“And you spoke to some people at the ranch about your feelings, did you not? One of the employees?
“A. I think someone asked me if I was okay.
“Q. And you told them that you felt that your son would rather be with Michael Jackson than with you, correct?
“A. I don’t remember saying that.
“Q. Do you know somebody by the name of Charli Michaels?
“A. Yes.
“And who is Charli Michaels?
“I think she works security at the ranch.
“And did you tell Charli Michaels that you felt that the defendant, Michael Jackson, was separating you from your son?

“A. I don’t recall saying it.
“Q. Do you recall testifying to that in your deposition with Mr. Feldman?
“A. No.
“Would it refresh your recollection if I showed you a copy of the deposition?
“A. Yes.
“Mr. Sneddon: May I approach, Your Honor?
“The Court: Yes.
“The Witness: Okay.
“Q. By Mr. Sneddon: Does that refresh your recollection?
“A. I don’t remember saying it, but I testified to it.

“Q. I’m sorry?

“I don’t remember saying it, but obviously I testified back then about it. I don’t remember saying it.”

THE COURT: Okay. Thanks.

MR. SANGER: It goes on. As far as I can tell, it’s -- yeah, maybe I should -- just to be clear, I don’t think it changes it, but -- all right. Let’s see. Where did I leave off. There?

MR. ZONEN: Right here, “Question.”

MR. SANGER:

“Q. You said that Wade would rather be with Michael than with yourself and you were upset about it?

“Well, I read it, but I honestly don’t remember saying it.

“Q. At the time you were at the ranch on the first occasion” --

Is that how far we have to go? Yeah, I think that’s it.

THE COURT: Thank you. That helps.

And then -- okay. On those issues, then my ruling will be that I will allow the testimony, as proffered, of Charli Michaels and Blanca Francia.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I don’t know what Blanca Francia -- we haven’t been told what Blanca Francia is going to testify to. Oh, just on the Joy Robson was upset?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Sorry.

THE COURT: There’s nothing -- is there anything else that you’re representing?

MR. ZONEN: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And on the -- and I think the part on the rocks is admissible, too. I will allow that.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: I didn’t have a chance to address that, of course, because that wasn’t in their original proffer, but --

THE COURT: But I don’t need you to.

MR. SANGER: I had that feeling.

THE COURT: And I am going to admit the evidence on the “good parent” issue that you’ve proffered.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. Let’s take our noon break.

MR. SANGER: We didn’t hear what -- did I miss something? We didn’t hear what Shane Meridith had to say.

THE COURT: Why don’t you talk to each other, and let me know if a hearing is necessary.

We’ll take our break.

(Recess taken.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you, Your Honor.

SHANE MERIDITH

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Mr. Meridith, you are the same Shane Meridith that testified previously in this case?

A. Yes.

THE COURT: All right.

(To the witness) Let me remind you that you’re still under oath.

THE WITNESS: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Meridith, you’ve already told us that you were employed at Neverland Valley Ranch, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And your role was as a security guard, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And during the dates -- during the month of February, you were employed there, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And between the 17th and the 20th of February, you were working that week, is that correct, on those days?
A. Yeah. I would have been if I was there, yeah.
Q. And the shift that you were working would be what?
A. Predominantly it would be a 12-hour shift, and it would be anywhere from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m., or 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.
Q. You were working in the daytime on many of those days, correct?

A. Yeah, correct.
Q. During the time between the 17th of February and the 20th of February when you were at work at the ranch, did you ever see any boys driving any cars on the property?
A. No, I did not.
Q. During the time that you were on the ranch during that period of time, did you ever read any notes in any of the logs that were kept that indicated any boys were driving cars on the property without adult supervision?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Based upon your training and experience in working at Neverland Valley Ranch, if somebody had seen an underage child driving one of the cars during that period of time, would that be the kind of thing that would be noted in the logs of the ranch?
A. I would imagine so.
MR. SNEDDON: No further questions.
THE COURT: Mr. Mesereau?
MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Mr. Meridith, Neverland is approximately 2800 acres, correct?

A. That’s correct.
Q. And when you worked security, how many other security personnel were there?
A. That could be anywhere from two to four other individuals, besides myself.
Q. Did you all hang out together during your shift, or did you go separate directions?
A. Yes, sir, we would have our own specific jobs.
Q. And what specific jobs are you talking about?
A. Well, one officer would be at the gate, which would be the gate security, and that would be a -- depending on how many officers were available, we would split that shift up.
And the other officers, you would have either one or two officers that were doing the house checks, and then you would also have an officer doing a mobile check in a vehicle.
Q. Now, you’re not sure which checks you did during the time period the prosecutor just identified?
A. Right. Yeah, I could have been doing anything during that time.
Q. What could you have been doing?
A. Doing a perimeter check, doing a house check, doing a mobile check, or working the front gate.

Q. Now, please describe what you mean by “a perimeter check.”
A. You would drive -- what you would do is, we would leave our security shack area. We would drive through the front of the property, leaving actually through the front gate, going off property for about -- probably a mile or so in either direction of the ranch, just to check to make sure that the fence line was secure.
Q. If you were doing a perimeter check, someone could have driven a vehicle on the property and you wouldn’t see it, true?
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Calls for speculation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Sure.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: If you were doing a perimeter check, how far away from the main house would you be?

A. Well, like I said, you'd actually -- you know, at some point during that mobile perimeter check, you would actually leave the property. So I'd say at any -- the furthest point you would be -- would probably be six, seven miles maybe.

Q. So you could be six or seven miles away from where the vehicles are located, right?

A. Correct. During that check.

Q. And there would possibly be hills even blocking your view of the main house, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And if someone were driving a vehicle around the house, you would have no way of even seeing it if you were looking that direction, right?

A. That's correct.

MR. SNEDDON: Object as argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, besides a perimeter check, what else could you have been doing during your security work during that time period?

A. You'd also do a house check, which was where you'd be, you know, physically checking the house area, walking around the house, going through the arcade, areas like that.

Q. And what other types of checks would you have been doing?

A. Other than that, other than the mobile or the house check, you would be at the front gate, or any check that was deemed necessary by a supervisor. Somebody would have you check something.

Q. Now, the prosecutor asked you whether or not, if someone was caught driving a vehicle for a short distance, for example, it would automatically go into the log. Doesn't actually get logged in, does it?

A. Not -- I mean, that's -- no. It wouldn't be unusual for it not to be logged.

Q. In fact, every time a guest is found violating any type of rule at Neverland and stopped and told not to do it, it isn't automatically logged in, is it?

A. That's correct. It's left up to the supervisor whether it gets --

Q. Would it be accurate to say that percentagewise, when guests or their children are caught violating some rule at Neverland, most of those never get logged in anyplace, correct?

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object to the question. It calls for speculation.

MR. MESEREAU: It's cross-examination.

MR. SNEDDON: And doesn't deal with the subject matter.

THE COURT: Just a moment.

Overruled. It calls for custom and habit.

Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: I now don't remember if you actually --

THE COURT: I'll have it read back.

MR. MESEREAU: I'm sorry.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: I couldn't -- I couldn't speculate on whether -- on a percentagewise. I mean, personally, if something were to come to my attention, it would be logged in. But that's just my personal -- you know, I wouldn't know -- as far as somebody else dealing with something that happens like that, I wouldn't have any knowledge of that.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Wouldn't you agree that other security personnel often did not log things in that they thought were violative of a rule?

A. I mean, that's a fair assumption. That's a fair assumption. I wouldn't -- again, if it's something that I would -- you know, that I thought was pertinent, I would log it in. Or I would have whoever I was supervising log it in. But, you know, it's possible, sure.

Q. Now, were you given a course on when to log something in?

A. No, sir.

Q. Was anybody given a course about when they should put something into the logs if they see a rule being violated?

A. Not that I’m aware of.

Q. Is the decision to log something in pretty much up to the individual who sees the violation?

A. That’s correct. Or the supervisor. Like I said, more times than not it would be the supervisor’s discretion whether it should be logged in.

Q. If you’re going to log something in, what do you have to do?

A. As far as?

Q. Where do you go to log it in?

A. The front gate. You would call the front gate and they would log it in the logbook there, and then you’d also do a log at our shack area.

Q. All right. Now, if you’re doing a perimeter search, and you find someone -- say you found a visitor wandering around the property where you didn’t want them to be - okay? - and you said, “Why don’t you go back to the main house. You shouldn’t be here. This is 2800 acres of property, and you don’t want to get lost,” or whatever, you would have to drive a distance, possibly, to log that in, correct?

A. Yeah, you’d have to drive back to the main house area to log that in, or just call it in to the front gate.

Q. And while you were working at Neverland, do you recall any situations where somebody brought to your attention that some child had violated a rule and you never, ever saw that logged in?

A. Yeah, that’s fair to say.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Mr. Meridith, I’m not talking about violating any rule at the ranch. I’m talking about an underage child driving a vehicle on the ranch, okay?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And in your experience, would that be something that would be logged in or officials to be notified?

A. Absolutely.

Q. The ranch has -- is very safety conscious, is it not?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And they try to minimize the amount of liability or risk that can occur from the many guests that occur at the ranch; isn't that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And the fact that an underage child would be allowed into a vehicle and to drive it without supervision would be something that would be a very serious violation of the ranch protocol, would it not?

A. I would think so, yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you. No further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

THE COURT: All right. You may step down. Thank you.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Call Jesus Salas to the stand.

THE COURT: You're recalling him. He's already testified.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes, he has, Your Honor.

THE COURT: You may be seated. You're still under oath.

JESUS SALAS

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Salas.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. You have previously testified in this case that you were the house manager during the period of 2003 at Neverland Ranch, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And during the period of February-March 2003, how often were you at Neverland Ranch?

A. I would say I was there like for a couple of weeks.
Q. Okay. Did you -- were you working in the month of February?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. How many days a week were you working in February?
A. Well, I was working pretty much every day.
Q. Every day?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Even weekends?

A. Even weekends.
Q. And what about in the beginning of March? Were you working in March?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. How many days a week were you working in March?
A. It was about the same.
Q. Okay. So you were working without days off during that period of time?
A. Well, I had some days off, but, you know, pretty much I was busy most of the time, yes.
Q. Would you ever spend the night at Neverland?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. How often during that period of February-March 2003?
A. I would say I spent more time during the month of March.
Q. Okay. As far as spending the night there?
A. Yes.
Q. In the first couple of weeks of March, have you had a chance to review the logs concerning your attendance at Neverland Ranch?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. And how often were you spending the night during the first couple of weeks in March?
A. It was about a week and a half, couple weeks that I was spending -- staying there over the night.
Q. During the first couple of weeks?

A. That’s correct, yes.
Q. All right. During your period of -- during the period of time that you worked at Neverland Ranch, and I believe you said you've worked there for quite a few years; is that correct?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Going back to what year?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. Going back to what year? When did you start working at Neverland Ranch?

A. I started working there in '83.

Q. Okay. So before Mr. Jackson purchased the ranch you were working there?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. Did you ever witness children, underage children, driving motor vehicles at Neverland Ranch?

A. No. I never --

Q. Did you ever hear that underage children were driving motor vehicles at Neverland Ranch?

A. No. Never heard anything about -- nobody ever reported anything to me.

Q. Did you ever report to anybody that underage children were driving vehicles at Neverland Ranch?

A. No.

Q. You never told Joe Marcus anything like that?

A. I never told Joe Marcus.

Q. While you were house manager -- let me just refresh my memory. When did you start your duties as house manager for Mr. Jackson?

A. When?

Q. When. When did you become house manager?

A. Oh, that was 2002, I believe.

Q. All right. During the period of time that you were house manager at Neverland, did you have an office in the main residence?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you have a desk in that office?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever keep money, cash money, in that desk?

A. No. Never kept any money there.

Q. Did you ever have -- so was there ever a time when you were missing money, where money was taken from your desk or from your office area at Neverland Ranch?

A. Never lost any money, no.

Q. During the time that the Arvizos were guests at Neverland Ranch, did you ever keep anything that -- maybe a paperweight of some sort, something that looked like a crystal made of plastic or glass? Did you ever have anything like that in your office or your desk?

A. Not that I can remember, no.

Q. Did you ever have anything like that that you found to be missing --

A. No.

Q. -- in your office or desk during the period of time that the Arvizos stayed there?

A. No, not at all.

Q. During the time that you were house manager and the Arvizos were staying at Neverland Ranch, did you ever receive a report of any kind from a chef working in the kitchen that money had been removed from a drawer or from the kitchen area that belonged to one of the chefs?

A. No. Never was reported to me.

Q. Did Angel Vivanco specifically ever tell you that money was taken from the kitchen area by one of the guests?

A. No. Never told me anything.

Q. During the time that you were house manager at Neverland and the Arvizos were staying there or at any time, did Angel Vivanco ever tell you of an incident where Star Arvizo was playing around with a knife involving Mr. Vivanco?

A. No. Never was reported to me.

Q. You have previously testified that one night you helped the Arvizos to leave Neverland Ranch, that you drove them to their home. Do you remember testifying about that?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. The night that you drove the Arvizo family from Neverland Ranch, did you ever notify Joe Marcus that you were leaving Neverland with the Arvizo family?

A. No, I didn't never talk to Joe Marcus that night.

Q. Did you ever notify anybody to tell Joe Marcus that you were leaving Neverland with the Arvizo family?
A. No, I didn’t.
Q. Never had a conversation with him that evening?
A. No.
Q. During the period of February and March of 2003, you remember that the Arvizo family spent quite a bit of time at Neverland, true?
A. That is correct, yes.
Q. Can you characterize in a percentage basis the number of nights during that period that the Arvizo children spent the night in Mr. Jackson’s bedroom?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Were you aware whether or not the Arvizo children ever spent the night in Mr. Jackson’s bedroom?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you ever personally witness the fact that the Arvizo family would spend the night in Michael Jackson’s bedroom?

MR. MESEREAU: Same objection.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You may answer.
A. Yes.
Q. As house manager, would you often -- how late would you stay before you went home at night?
A. Varies. Sometimes it was one o’clock, two o’clock, three o’clock in the morning.
Q. And when you would leave the property, would you generally be aware of the location of individual guests who were in the main residence?
A. I would say yes.
Q. Okay. Was that part of your job, to be somewhat aware of what the guests were doing inside the main house? Not what they were doing, but I should say their various locations?
A. Well, it was necessary for me to know where they were so I can notify the security for safety reasons.

Q. Okay.

A. Yes.

Q. And based upon your personal experience -- let me back up.

So during that period of time when -- let's say in the evening hours and in the early morning hours when you were staying late at Neverland Ranch, would you frequently -- would you generally stay around the main residence?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Would you be inside the main residence?

A. I was inside there.

Q. And that's where your office was, correct?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. So were you personally aware -- during this period of time, February-March, when the Arvizos were visiting Neverland Ranch, were you generally aware of their location, the location that the Arvizo boys slept in?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes, I was aware.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And can you characterize, based upon your own personal observations, the -- on a percentage basis the number of nights you would estimate that the Arvizo boys spent in Michael Jackson's bedroom during that period of time that they were visiting in March and February of 2003?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I would say they spent 90 percent of the time.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Mr. Salas, during that same period of time, focusing again in 2003 -- I believe you said that you left your employment at Neverland sometime during the summer of that year; is that correct?

A. That is correct, yes.
Q. During that period of time of 2003, before you left your employment, did you ever see Michael Jackson when he was in an intoxicated state?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Beyond the scope; improper rebuttal.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, I did.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: How often would you see Mr. Jackson in a condition that you would characterize as intoxicated during that period of time?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; relevance.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: It was quite a few times.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you ever see him intoxicated in the presence of his own children?
A. Yes, I did. Yes.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance.
THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I didn’t hear.
A. I said, yes, I did.
Q. How often did you see him intoxicated in the presence of his own children?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: My belief, it was, say, about three times.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you ever see him intoxicated, in such an intoxicated condition that you had a concern as to whether or not he could properly and responsibly care for his children?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; beyond the scope; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, I -- I did.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And what was your opinion about that?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; irrelevant opinion.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You may answer.

A. To me, it wasn’t -- it wasn’t -- it wasn’t safe for the skids to be around him.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you, Mr. Salas.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Mr. Salas, you say you’ve seen Mr. Jackson intoxicated maybe three times during that period?

A. That is correct, in the way that I thought it wasn’t safe for him and his family.

Q. Was a nanny around?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. In fact, there was a nanny around taking care of his children, correct?

A. That is correct, except when he used to take them to his room, yes.

Q. Okay. And have you ever been intoxicated in your house?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Were your children there?

A. Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; irrelevant.

THE COURT: The answer is in. Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you say you saw the Arvizo children in Michael Jackson’s room, right?

A. That is correct.

Q. Were you in the room with them?

A. I was not in the room with them.

Q. Pretty big room area, isn’t it?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. It’s two levels?

A. That is correct, yes.

Q. And people sometimes sleep on the lower level, right?

A. True.

Q. Sometimes people sleep on the higher level,

right?
A. That is correct, yes.
Q. In fact, Mr. Jackson has had a lot of people in and out, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You don’t know where anyone was sleeping when the Arvizo children were in that area, right?
A. Actually, I knew where they were staying.
Q. Well, they were staying in that large area, correct?
A. Right.
Q. You testified earlier at one point you saw them on the lower level, right?
A. That’s correct, yes.
Q. The lower level below Michael Jackson’s bed, true?
A. True.
Q. His bed’s upstairs, and you saw them sleeping downstairs, right, one time?
A. That is right, yes.
Q. Now, was it part of your job to normally go into his room?

A. Only when he asked me or he needed something.
Q. And if he asked you to bring him something, you would open the door and go in, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And there are other people he would ask to come in his room and bring him things, right?
A. That is true, yes.
Q. Now, the prosecutor asked you about whether or not Angel Vivanco ever reported a knife incident to you, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Were you aware that he never said he reported it to you; he said he reported it to Rudy Lozano?
A. I wasn’t aware of that. Never was reported to me.
Q. Who is Rudy Lozano?
A. He is the chef.
Q. Okay. He was Mr. Vivanco’s direct supervisor, true?

A. Yes. In the kitchen area, yes. But I was responsible for all of them.
Q. Okay. Now, did you know that Star Arvizo pulled a knife on Kiki Fournier one time?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Irrelevant; no foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you know that?
A. I was not aware of that.
Q. So she didn’t report that to you?
A. No.
Q. Not everybody always reported to you problems that the Arvizo children caused at Neverland, right?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Well, I’m just finding that out.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yeah. Did anyone ever report to you that Star was found with an adult magazine that he said he brought from his own home?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was that ever reported to you?
A. Never was reported to me, no.
Q. Did anyone ever report to you that Star and Gavin Arvizo were caught masturbating in the guest unit?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was that reported to you?
A. No, it wasn’t.

Q. Was it ever reported to you that Star Arvizo went into the control room of the amusement park and wrote the words “Suck Dick” on the wall? Anyone report that to you?
A. No. Never was reported to me.
Q. Was it reported to you that one of the security guards caught Star and Gavin Arvizo in the wine cellar alone with a half-filled bottle of wine?

A. No, that was never reported to me either.

Q. Was it reported to you that Gavin Arvizo told Angel Vivanco, “You put alcohol in my milkshake or I’ll get you fired”?

A. No, it wasn’t.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And argumentative.

THE COURT: Misstates the evidence, sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: Excuse me. I’ll rephrase it. My mistake.

Q. Was it ever reported to you Star Arvizo told Angel Vivanco, “You put some alcoholic beverages in my milkshake or I’ll get you fired”?

A. No, it was never reported to me.

Q. Was it ever reported to you that Star and Gavin used to spit on employees when they rode the amusement park rides?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: No. Never was reported to me either.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was it ever reported to you that Star and Gavin Arvizo would take their shoes and throw them at people from the amusement park rides?

A. Never heard that either.

Q. Was it ever reported to you that Star and -- Star and Gavin Arvizo made an absolute mess out of their bedrooms in the guest quarters?

A. Not that I can remember, no.

Q. Was it ever reported to you that Star and Gavin Arvizo used to search the television for adult films --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: -- at their guest unit?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Not everybody reports every violation of a guest to you, do they?

A. Well, I guess not.
Q. Now, you said you learned a lot of things weren’t reported to you, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And where have you learned that from?
A. Well, being part of responsibility.

Q. Now, there are drawers in the kitchen, correct?
A. There are what? I’m sorry.
Q. Drawers in the kitchen, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And certainly someone in the kitchen could put money, if they wanted, in one of the drawers temporarily, couldn’t they?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. And not everybody would report that to you, would they?
A. I guess not necessarily, no.
Q. And if one of the Arvizo children stold money from a drawer in the kitchen, you wouldn’t necessarily find out about it, would you?
A. Not if they don’t tell me.
Q. And if Angel Vivanco thought his job was in jeopardy if he reported it, you might not hear, right?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Assumes facts not in evidence.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, have you looked at any records to determine whether or not you called Joe Marcus the night you drove Janet Arvizo from the ranch?
A. No, I never -- no.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I showed you a phone record showing a phone call on the night of February 12th, time, 12:55 a.m., to Joe Marcus from a ranch number?
A. No, I can tell you, because Joe wasn’t even at the ranch that day.
Q. Do you know why anyone would be calling his number?

A. I have no idea, no.
Q. Where was he at that point, do you know?
A. Not sure, but I believe he was at home.
Q. Okay. Do you know who would have called his number at 12:55 a.m. on Wednesday, February 12th --
A. No, I don’t.
Q. -- 2003? If I showed you the record, would it refresh your recollection at all?
A. Probably not.
Q. Okay. Okay. Now, you said something about being at the ranch for a couple of weeks during that time period; is that right?
A. That’s correct, yes.
Q. And what did you mean by “a couple of weeks”?
A. I mean to spend the night, most of the nights there.
Q. And are you talking about working all day and all night, or just all night?
A. No, talking about working all day and all night.

Q. Okay. Okay. And that’s in the main residence?
A. Yes.
Q. Well, if you’re working all day or all night, or both, in the main residence, are you necessarily going to see if somebody drives a vehicle?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You’re not always looking at the vehicles, are you, when you do your work?
A. Absolutely not, no. That was not my job to keep an eye on them.
Q. And that’s a very big house, right?
A. It’s true. Very big -- big house.
Q. And what kind of work were you doing in the house at that point in time?
A. Well, it was different. Many things. Just making sure that the house was clean; that we had what the guests needed. And it was not just that. It was just also driving the limousine different areas. It could be picking up people, dropping off people. So I was not always there at the ranch.

Q. And if you’re not always there at the ranch, you couldn’t possibly always know if someone’s driving a vehicle on the ranch, correct?
A. That is correct.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Were you always on the ranch during those weeks that the prosecutor asked you questions about?
A. Well, once again, I was not always there. Like I said, I was always driving somebody somewhere else.
Q. Okay. Where would you drive people to?
A. I drove people to L.A., pick up people from L.A., Burbank. I mean -- yes, Burbank. Santa Barbara, you know.
Q. And how often would you drive people off the ranch to L.A., or Burbank, or Santa Barbara?
A. Well, it depends. I mean, it was -- it was to the point that I was driving people, I mean, almost every other day or every day during the Christmas season.
Q. And if you’re driving people off the ranch to L.A. and Burbank and Santa Barbara, and you’re gone every day or every other day, would it be reasonable to say you’re not going to be looking at who’s driving a vehicle on the ranch?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.
THE WITNESS: That is correct.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And are you saying that during that period of time, you were probably more off the ranch than on it while you were working?

A. Not necessarily, because if it was -- it depends on the area that I was picking up people. It could have been two, three hours, four hours, five hours. But I was -- you know, I spent a lot of time at the ranch also.
Q. When you drove to Los Angeles, typically how long would it take you from the moment you left the ranch till the moment you returned?

A. Talking five hours, six hours.
Q. Okay. Now, were you the primary person who would drive people off the ranch?
A. No. It was another driver before I started to do that, yes.
Q. Who would decide whether you were going to drive someone off the ranch?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object as beyond the scope.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: The prosecutor asked you questions about your office at Neverland, okay?
A. Right.
Q. And where is that office located?
A. It is located on the back of the house. When you first go in the main entry in the back, it is the first room on your left side.
Q. And is that very close to the kitchen?

A. It's just a wall dividing that.
Q. Is there a door to that office?
A. No, it has no door.
Q. In fact, people can go in and out of that office very freely, correct?
A. That is correct, yes.
Q. In fact, you pass that office when you're coming in from the back, right?
A. Correct, yes.
Q. You pass that office if you're leaving the house from the back, right?
A. That is correct, yes.
Q. And what do you find in that office?
A. There's videos. There's -- I mean, there's all kinds of stuff. Glasses. I mean, stuff that is there that belongs to Mr. Jackson.
Q. There are phones, right?
A. There's a phone, yes.
Q. Virtually anyone can walk in or out of that office, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You were not the only one using that office at that point in time, right?
A. No, because everybody can go in and use it.

Q. Were you the only one using the drawers in that office at that point in time?
A. No, not necessarily.
Q. In fact, other people used those drawers and didn't tell you what they put in them, right?

A. Well, I know pretty much I knew what was in those drawers.
Q. Well, if you were on a drive to L.A. and back, you wouldn't know who was in or out of that office, right?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Mr. Salas, I wanted to just make sure I understood one thing about your testimony correctly. Mr. Mesereau asked you at the beginning of his cross-examination if you saw Mr. Jackson intoxicated only three times. Is that accurate, that you saw him intoxicated only three times?
MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, I limited that to the time period.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Let me rephrase.
Q. Let's say during the last -- during the year 2003, how often did you see Mr. Jackson intoxicated?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You may answer.
A. Lately, it was -- it was a lot. I mean, I would say it was -- it became to the point that he was intoxicated a lot.

Q. How often in a week?
A. I'll say, you know, four times maybe, or more than that.
Q. And Mr. Mesereau asked you a number of questions about whether certain things were reported to you, such as children asking for vodka in a drink. That was never reported to you?
A. That was never reported to me, no.
Q. Or children writing something nasty on a wall. That was never reported to you?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, do the amusement park operators report to you as the house manager?

A. No, they never reported it to me.

Q. So I believe your former testimony is that only the maids would report to you, and the chefs, the people who work in the house?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you tell me, is there a general rule concerning giving children what they ask for at Neverland?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, if a child asks for something like vodka from somebody, is that something that would necessarily be reported?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Argumentative; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I mean, is that something that you’ve seen reported before?

A. Well, I would say that it had to be reported.

Q. I’m sorry?

A. It had to be reported if there was something like that, yes.

Q. And did you ever see a report of that nature?

A. Never got any reports.

Q. Then how do you know it had to be reported?

A. Well, I’m saying because if it’s a kid, and the kid is asking for a drink, you know, somebody needs to tell somebody.

Q. So that’s the type of thing that would have been reported if it happened?

A. Absolutely, yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. No further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

Call your next witness.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Call Vic Alvarez.

THE COURT: Come forward, please, to the witness stand. You may be seated. You’re still under oath.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

VICTOR ALVAREZ

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Alvarez.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. I should say “Detective Alvarez.” Did you interview an employee of Neverland Ranch by the name of Julio Avila?

A. I did.

Q. And did that interview take place on March 21st, 2005?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And why did you interview Mr. Avila on that date?

A. I had received a defense interview that had been taken by a private investigator.

Q. And did you go to confirm some of the information that you received in that report?

A. I did.

Q. Did you ask Mr. Avila some questions about the Arvizo family operating one of the amusement park rides at Neverland Ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. What did he tell you?

A. He said that -- I asked him in particular the ride, I believe it was the swing, how it operated. He said it had an “off” and “on” button, and that Star had started the ride after watching him operate it.

Q. Did he tell you which Arvizo children were present when that ride was being operated?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Who was present?

A. He said all three were present.

Q. Did he tell you whether or not there were any other children who were in the amusement park area during that time?

A. Only the three children were present.

Q. There were no other children present?

A. No.

MR. SANGER: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did he say anything about operating a Zipper ride immediately before he went over and stopped the Arvizo children from operating that ride?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he say who he was operating that Zipper ride for?

A. No.

Q. Did you ask him about the Arvizo children and their behavior in general?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ask him about whether or not they crashed any carts, or did he give you any information about that?

A. Yes. He -- I believe he did say that they would ride the carts recklessly, but he said all the kids -- I think he was pretty general about all the kids ride the carts recklessly.

MR. SANGER: I’m going to move to strike after, “Yes.” He said they did. Nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Stricken; nonresponsive. The answer is, “Yes.”

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That’s fine.

Q. Did he say anything about how all the kids operated carts at Neverland?

A. He did.

MR. SANGER: Objection; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: What did he tell you about that?

A. He said that all the kids ride the carts recklessly.

Q. Did he tell you anything in general about the behavior of children who are guests at Neverland?

A. I asked him.

Q. All right. And did he answer you?

A. Yes.

Q. What did he tell you?

A. He said that basically the kids are free to do whatever they want. And I asked him, “Do they pretty much run amuck here?” And he said, “Yes.”

Q. At some time during your interview, did he ever express some confusion as to whether or not he was talking about the behavior or misbehavior of the Arvizo children as opposed to the Cascio children?

MR. SANGER: Objection; calls for a conclusion without foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did he ever express to you any indication that he didn’t understand he was talking -- you were talking about the Arvizo children?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did he express that?

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object. I may have to object to the last question in order to make it correct, so I’d move to strike the answer for the purpose of objecting that it calls for a conclusion without a foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: The question again, please?

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: The question was, how did he express to you any confusion he had over which family you were trying to ask him questions about?

A. He did not know the sister’s name, and he was confusing names of the two families.

Q. Did he ever say anything to you about where he believed the family that was -- that you were asking questions about, did he ever indicate where he believed they were from?

A. He just said they were not from California.

Q. Did he ever indicate to you whether or not he filed reports on any of this information that he was giving you?

A. He did not file any reports.

Q. Did he ever indicate to you whether or not he had knowledge that Mr. Jackson possessed erotic materials, adult erotic materials in his bedroom?

A. Yes.

Q. What did he say?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. This is without foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

MR. SANGER: Well, I'm -- okay.

THE WITNESS: We were --

MR. SANGER: It seems to me there should be a foundation first as to how this witness would have known --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll object to the speaking objection. This is impeachment of the testimony.

THE COURT: The objection was overruled. Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: There was mention of adult material and where it had come from. And I asked him if it came from -- "Could it have possibly come from Mr. Jackson's bedroom?" at which time he said, "Yes, it could have" --

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object and move to strike. That's just based on speculation. It's not impeachment.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I don't think he's finished answering the question.

THE COURT: Are you finished? Had you finished answering the question?

THE WITNESS: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Go ahead and finish.

THE WITNESS: He said, "Yes, it could have come from the bedroom."

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And did he say why?

A. He was aware that there was this type of material in the bedroom.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, it's improper impeachment if there's no foundation for the testimony, the hearsay. I object.

THE COURT: I’ll sustain that objection and strike his answer.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I believe -- well --

THE COURT: Being aware lacks foundation, personal knowledge.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: We did -- well, I could ask to tell you at sidebar that there was specific testimony regarding this that goes to this impeachment, irrespective of foundation.

MR. SANGER: I mean, I know what it is, if there’s any question in the Court’s mind.

THE COURT: Well, come forward.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: I’m going to strike this witness’s testimony concerning what knowledge Mr. Avila had about adult material, and I’m going -- at the ranch, and I’m going to base that ruling on the fact that there is insufficient foundation for that testimony, so the jury’s ordered to disregard that testimony.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Mr. Alvarez, during this interview that you had with Mr. Avila, did you ask him generally about the behavior of the Arvizo children at the ranch?

A. I did.

Q. Did he ever mention to you anything about the Arvizo children misbehaving using the quads?

A. No.

Q. Lastly, did you attempt to contact Chris Tucker as a witness in this case?

A. I did.

Q. On how many occasions?

A. Three different occasions.

Q. And how did you go about doing that?

A. Mr. Tucker lives in the L.A. County area. It’s a gated community. So every time you pull up to the guard shack, they ask you who you are and what your business is. So I would identify myself as a detective with the sheriff’s department. I had his address. The guard takes down the license plate of your vehicle, and I went to his residence.

Q. So you actually made it through the gated entry?

A. I did.

Q. Did you go to his residence?

A. I did.

Q. Is his residence gated?

A. No.

Q. Did you go to his front door?

A. I took pictures of his residence, and then I went to his front door.

Q. Did you ever make contact with anybody at Mr. Tucker's residence?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you leave your business card?

A. I did.

Q. Did you write any notes on that card?

A. I did.

Q. What did you leave as a note?

A. On -- my business card has my name, my title, and phone numbers. And I would put on the bottom "Over," and on the back side, I wrote, "Please call me," and I'd put my cell phone down on it.

Q. You did this on how many occasions?

A. Three different occasions. I would leave a card on the front door and the mailbox.

Q. Each time?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever make contact with Mr. Tucker's attorney?

A. I did.

Q. On how many occasions?

A. I believe it was one time.

Q. And did you request of Mr. Tucker's attorney that Mr. Tucker contact you and allow you to interview him?

A. I did.

Q. Have you ever received any calls from Mr. Tucker or his attorney to set up an interview for the purposes of this case?

A. No.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. No further questions.

//

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Detective Alvarez, first of all, with regard to Chris Tucker, how many times did you go to the actual residence of Mr. Tucker?

A. Three times.

Q. Three times to the front gate?

A. To the front door of his residence.

Q. Okay. So you went to the gate, and three separate times you were allowed to go through the gate to go to his front door?

A. Yes. Actually, after the first time, the guard knew me and just waved at me.

Q. I didn’t ask that. I asked did you go to his front door?

A. I went to his front door of his residence, not of the guard shack.

Q. Okay. That’s what I’m asking. You went to the front door of his residence?

A. Yes.

Q. And you’re saying he was not there or nobody answered the door each of the three times?

A. That’s correct.

Q. So the guards did not get permission to let you through from Mr. Tucker. They let you through because you showed a badge and said you had business there?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Were you ever on the property at any time when you saw Chris Tucker’s mother?

A. No.

Q. And you believed you went to the correct house?

A. Yes.

Q. You took pictures of it?

A. I did.

Q. All right. Now, with regard to Mr. Tucker’s lawyer -- let me withdraw that.

First of all, on one of those occasions you left a card; is that correct?

A. No, I said on three occasions I left a card.

Q. All three occasions you left a card?

A. Yes, I did.
Q. In response to having a card left, on one occasion you got a call back from Chris Tucker’s lawyer; is that correct?
A. No.
Q. You called Chris Tucker’s lawyer yourself?
A. I did.
Q. How did you know who his lawyer was?
A. I believe it was given to me by one of my supervisors.
Q. Okay. Do you know if Chris Tucker’s lawyer called to say, “I’m Chris Tucker’s lawyer”?
A. I spoke to him.
Q. Okay. Before you spoke to him.

A. Okay.
Q. Before you spoke to him, one of your supervisors gave you a name and said, “Here’s his lawyer,” right?
A. Correct.
Q. And then you called him up?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. Now, and then Mr. Tucker -- Mr. Tucker’s lawyer, do you remember his name?
A. I don’t.
Q. Is that Mr. Sweeney, by any chance, or is it somebody else?
A. The name sounds familiar, but I can’t positively say that that was his attorney.
Q. Okay. Do you know how many attorneys Mr. Tucker has?
A. I don’t.
Q. Okay. Now, you’ve been around for some time working in the courts as well as being on the street and being a detective, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. You’re aware that people who are movie stars or celebrities tend to have a number of different lawyers; is that correct?
A. Yes.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Relevancy and assumes facts.
THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: When you talked to this lawyer - you can't remember his name - do you recall what capacity he was calling you back in? Did he tell you, "I'm an entertainment lawyer," or a --

A. He didn't call me back. I actually made contact with him when I called him.

Q. I'm sorry. I think you said that. It gets to be this time of day and sometimes --

A. I understand.

Q. I missed that. In any event, you called him?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he tell you what his capacity was? "I'm Mr. Tucker's entertainment lawyer," or "I'm a lawyer who" --

A. "I'm Mr. Tucker's lawyer. What can I do for you?"

Q. And you had asked to have a meeting with Mr. Tucker?

A. I asked him if -- well, I told him who I was, and I told him I would like to interview his client.

Q. Okay. All right. And did you call him back after that?

A. No.

Q. So you called him one time, and that was it?

A. He told me Mr. Tucker had nothing to say.

Q. Okay. Did you call him that one time and that was it?

A. There's no reason for me to call him back after that comment.

Q. I see.

Did you go out to Mr. Tucker's house before or after you had that conversation with this lawyer who said, "Mr. Tucker has nothing to say"?

A. This was after.

Q. The call was after? Or the visits were after?

A. The visits were after.

Q. The visits. So after Mr. Tucker's lawyer said he has nothing to say to law enforcement, you then went to his house three times and left cards?

A. When I called his attorney, it was early on in the investigation, and I would say it was probably in ‘04 sometime. When I went to Mr. Tucker’s residence, it was earlier this year.

Q. All right. Now, having said all of that, a person has absolutely no obligation to speak to you under the law of California; isn’t that right?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Argumentative; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: That’s true.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. And this is not the first witness who has refused to talk to you?

A. I wanted to talk to him. I didn’t want to talk to his attorney.

Q. My question was, this is not the first witness, in your experience as a law enforcement officer, who has refused to talk to you, is it?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Same objection.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: All right. Do you think it’s possible that people who know Michael Jackson feel that the Santa Barbara Sheriff’s Department is on a witch hunt?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection, Your Honor. Argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Let me ask you about the interview you had with Mr. Avila. Now, this interview took place on March the 12th, I think it was?

A. 21st.

Q. I’m sorry, March the 21st. Okay. March the 21st of this year, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was after Mr. Avila had already been interviewed and submitted a declaration; is that correct?

A. Three months after.

Q. Okay. So you were aware of basically what he had to say by the time you went to see him; is that correct?

A. Well, I knew what was on the report. I didn’t know what he had to say.

Q. All right. Now, when you went out to talk to Mr. Avila, where did you meet him, by the way?

A. I went to his residence.

Q. Okay. It was about 1:30 in the afternoon?

A. Yes.

Q. And you took the prior interview and declaration with you; is that correct?

A. I did.

Q. Was the prior interview with the sheriff’s department?

A. I took the prior interview that he had done with the private investigator.

Q. So there was a private investigator’s interview, and then a declaration that was prepared and he signed under penalty of perjury; is that correct?

A. It was a declaration that I had in my hand.

Q. So --

A. Because --

Q. Go ahead.

A. I suppose -- go ahead.

Q. Let me ask another question. Let’s just clear that up, clear this up.

When you say he had a prior interview with you, you had a report of an interview by a private investigator; is that correct?

A. Yes. I don’t think we had interviewed him prior, our department.

Q. And then -- that was my original question.

Fine.

And then you had a declaration that Mr. Avila had signed under penalty of perjury?

A. All I had was a declaration with a signature at the bottom.

Q. In your report, you said you spoke to Mr. Avila concerning a prior interview and declaration.

So your reference is to --

A. The one piece of paper that I had in my hand.

Q. So you believe that the declaration was a result of the prior interview. Was that the reference there?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Fine. Most of -- almost all of what you went over with Mr. Avila was, in fact, consistent with his declaration, was it not?

A. I don’t agree with that.

Q. All right. He said he worked as a ride attendant in the amusement park at Neverland Ranch; is that correct?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’m going to object to counsel reading the interview into the record.

MR. SANGER: This isn’t the interview. This is the report of the interview, but I’m hitting particular points.

Sorry to respond.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Do you have the question in mind?

A. No, I don’t.

Q. I’ll ask it again. Mr. Avila told you that he worked as a ride attendant in the amusement park area of Neverland Ranch, correct?

A. No, he didn’t.

Q. Did he tell you -- well, he didn’t say that?

A. He said he was a security guard, but used to be a ride attendant.

Q. What I asked you was, did he tell you he worked as a ride attendant in the amusement park area?

A. Prior.

THE COURT: Well, wait a minute. I’m going to go back, here. I’m going to sustain the objection. There’s no sense in going through and asking those kind of questions. Let’s move along.

MR. SANGER: All right.

THE COURT: The parts that, he’s right, that they agree upon is not relevant. The parts they don’t agree on is.

MR. SANGER: Well, prior consistent statements --

THE COURT: No.

MR. SANGER: No? All right.

Q. You indicated that there was an issue about -- or let me put it this way: You testified, in response to questions from Mr. Auchincloss, that there were -- he had made some statements about who was present at the ranch at the time that he was operating some rides while the Arvizo children were there?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, one thing, if I may, he did tell you he was a ride attendant at that time?

A. At that time.

Q. Okay. And when the Arvizo children were there, he told you about the time that Star Arvizo went over and started the swing ride; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And he said that -- you asked him who was present when Star did that, and he said that he couldn't remember the name of the sister at that point; is that correct?

A. Right.

Q. But he said -- he said Star and Gavin. He's the one that gave the names "Star" and "Gavin," correct?

THE COURT: Aren't you just doing what I've asked you not to do?

MR. SANGER: Well, this is the particular area that he was talking about, who was present, and I believe the issue was --

THE COURT: You can ask those questions. What I don't want you doing is to read the report and ask him if that's right. The question of whether he said Star and Gavin were there is a legitimate question, but you're doing exactly what I asked you not to do.

MR. SANGER: Okay. I'm sorry. I will not look at it. I will try to do it this way.

THE COURT: It's one thing to ask him the facts. It's another to ask him whether he agrees with statements in the report. And you continue to ask him whether or not he agrees with statements in the report, which is what I don't want you to do.

MR. SANGER: Very well.

Q. So, Mr. Avila told you that Star was the one who tried to start the ride, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And he told you he couldn’t remember the sister’s name, but he said the sister was there; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then he also told you Gavin was present, correct?

A. I don’t know if he actually mentioned his name.

Q. Now, you asked him if anybody else was present, right?

A. Yes.

Q. He told you he couldn’t remember whether or not other children were present at the ranch; isn’t that correct?

A. He told me there was nobody else present.

Q. Where?

A. At the rides, at the amusement park.

Q. My question was, did he tell you he couldn’t remember whether or not other children were at the ranch, were staying at the ranch at that time?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; relevancy.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Possibly.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Would it refresh your recollection to look at your report?

A. Sure.

Q. Do you have your report with you?

A. I do.

Q. I’d like you to look at page two at the bottom. Read it to yourself and see if that --

A. That’s correct.

Q. Okay. Thank you.

Now, you asked him also -- you talked about the Arvizo children being destructive at the ranch, something to that effect?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Isn’t it a fact that Mr. Avila told you that other children would do things, but it seemed like the Arvizo children did this more often than other children?

That's offered for impeachment. I'm not --

THE COURT: I understand.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE WITNESS: Possibly, but there was more to it than that.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I'd ask you to look at page three of your report and see if that refreshes your recollection.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And in fact, does that refresh your recollection that he said, quote, "But it seemed seemed like the Arvizo children did this more often than other children," close quote?

A. That's correct.

Q. When you put quotes in a report, that is a direct verbatim quote from what the person actually said to you; is that correct?

A. That's why I do that.

Q. Yeah.

May I have just a moment here, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Okay.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And did Mr. Avila relate to you that Star Arvizo had written some obscene words on the wall in one of the control rooms?

A. Yes.

Q. And he used the name "Star," correct?

A. Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll object as beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. And then what -- let me put it this way and see: On that last issue about the writing something obscene on the wall, was there any hesitation when Mr. Avila told you the name of the person that did it?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Same objection.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

MR. SANGER: And may I ask, then, the name of the person?

Q. What was the name of the person he gave you who did it?

A. Star.

Q. Okay. Thank you.
And with regard to the pornographic magazines, did Mr. Avila tell you the name of the child who had the pornographic magazines that he brought from home?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; beyond the scope.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: It’s “magazine.”
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Or “magazine.” All right. I’ll accept that for now, but did he tell you the name of the person who did that?

A. Yes.
Q. Who was it?
A. Star.
Q. I’m sorry?
A. Star.
Q. And if you look at the bottom of page four -- let me ask you if that helps refresh your recollection as to whether or not Star had pornographic “magazines” as opposed to a “magazine.”
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; beyond the scope.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: I can explain that, but it does say “magazines.”
Q. BY MR. SANGER: So your reference, though -- your understanding was he was talking about Star having one magazine in his pocket or one magazine in his possession that he said he brought from home?
A. I was referring to what was written in the investigative report from the private investigator, and it said “magazines.”
Q. Okay.
A. And that’s what I thought, it was magazines.
Q. So when you asked him about that, he said Star told him that he brought the pornographic magazines from home; is that correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And then you clarified with Mr. Avila that he had seen one magazine in Star’s possession; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, you said something else about, “Did Mr. Avila ever tell you about the quads?” I don’t have the exact quote, but it was something to that effect, and you said, “No, he didn’t.”

Do you remember that question and answer?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever ask Mr. Avila about the quads?

A. No.

MR. SANGER: No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Just one question. Detective Alvarez, when Mr. Avila was describing the issues concerning the writing of the information on the control room, I believe it was a control door of some type --

A. Yes.

Q. -- and when he was referring to the issue regarding pornographic magazines or a magazine, was this after or before the confusion was cleared up about which family you were talking about with Mr. Avila?

MR. SANGER: I object. That misstates the evidence; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: It’s a difficult question.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yeah, I can rephrase it. Maybe make it a little simpler.

Q. You previously mentioned that there was some discussion between you and Mr. Avila regarding whether or not you were talking about the Arvizo family or the Cascio family, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Did that discussion take place before or after you talked to him about the magazine?

A. That was before.

Q. Did that discussion take place before or after you talked to him about the writing that Star did?

A. As far as which family it was, it was before.

Q. Okay. So you had already had a discussion about the individual names of the children before you spoke to him about those two incidents?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Objection.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.

MR. SANGER: Objection. It’s argumentative and misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: All right. Overruled. The answer is in.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. No further questions.

THE BAILIFF: Judge, it’s --

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Here’s what I’m getting at: The original discussion, when you first started, you were asking him if he was talking about the Cascios or the Arvizos. Do you remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. And he told you that he was talking about the Arvizos, and they were more destructive than the Cascios, correct?

A. I think he said “than other kids.” He didn’t specify.

Q. And he said he recalled the Arvizo boys were the ones throwing things and spitting at employees from the rides?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; beyond the scope.

MR. SANGER: That’s the place where he was --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; speaking.

MR. SANGER: -- clarifying it.

THE COURT: Go ahead. You may answer that.

THE WITNESS: Repeat your question.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: During this conversation, he told you that he recalled the Arvizo boys throwing things and spitting at employees while on the rides, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And he told you that the Arvizo boys would throw their shoes off the top of the Ferris wheel, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then he said that the Cascio children were also active, but not as active as the Arvizo boys, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And thereafter, when he -- when he talked about -- let me withdraw that. At all times when he talked about Star and Gavin, he used their first names as “Star” and “Gavin,” correct?

A. Not at first, no.

Q. The very beginning of your interview with him, he told you -- let me withdraw that. Before that conversation we just had about who was more active, the Arvizos or the Cascios, he had told you specifically that Star Arvizo was the one that started the swing ride, correct?

A. I don’t recall if he used the name, but he did say the younger of the two brothers.

THE COURT: Let’s -- just a minute. I’m letting this go on, but the reason is, I understand this is the last witness we have today, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes.

THE COURT: I don’t want to take a break and come back for one question if we’re going to release the jury. That’s why I’m sitting here, just so everyone understands. “Everyone” being the jury.

MR. SANGER: With that kind of pressure, I have no further questions.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: No.

THE COURT: All right. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: So that is the last witness, right?

MR. SNEDDON: It is, Your Honor.

THE COURT: For today. We have witnesses tomorrow.

MR. SNEDDON: We do. And can I request the Court stay on the bench after the jury leaves?

THE COURT: Yes.

(To the jury) So I’m going to excuse you now for the rest of the day and we’ll see you tomorrow morning at 8:30.

What, did they lock you out?

AN ALTERNATE JUROR: Roadblock.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: All right. The door’s closed.

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you, Your Honor. I appreciate that.

I wanted to have the Court remain just briefly because I wanted the Court to have an opportunity -- we intend to move the Court tomorrow morning, as part of our evidence, to play the videotape interview, the initial interview with Gavin Arvizo which occurred in July of 2003. And I wanted to have the exhibit marked, and I’m sure the Court would like to look at it in advance in order to make a ruling. I shouldn’t say I’m sure you would like to, but I’m sure the Court would feel compelled to do that.

And the video is about an hour long, and there are -- if the Court could make a note that when the video gets to, on a timer, 49 minutes and 50 seconds, that there is a portion that we would propose be deleted, up to 51 minutes and 45 seconds. And then that the videotape be terminated at one minute and four seconds -- I’m sorry, one hour and four minutes and ten seconds. The actual length is one hour and four minutes and 30 seconds. We feel that the materials contained within the time frame that we’ve delineated would not be appropriate and would be, in our view, prejudicial and so we’re taking them out on our own.

But we would like to play it. We believe that the tape is relevant on the issues of prior consistent statements made by Gavin Arvizo, and we believe it is also relevant, particularly relevant, on the issue of whether or not the testimony of the child was scripted.

They put a witness on, Mrs. Holzer -- Miss Holzer, to indicate that Mrs. Arvizo was in the habit and custom of having her kids script things, and there's been other indications by the defense throughout this trial that this whole thing was scripted by the mother. And I believe that this is relevant evidence on that issue for the jury in rebuttal to rebut that evidence that's been put on by the defense.

And that's our offer of proof, and I would like to have this marked as next in order, and if the clerk could help me -- actually, I have some tags.

MR. SANGER: While that's being marked, unless Mr. Sneddon has another comment, could I be heard on that briefly?

I have no idea what occurs during the deleted sections, so I have no opportunity to speak to that at this precise moment.

However, this is just the kind of rebuttal that is designed to be dramatic, and it's just what the Supreme Court said should not occur. It's a way to have Gavin Arvizo come back and testify, in essence, without cross-examination one more time in front of the jury right at the end of the case to bolster what is, I think, quite a weak case with quite a bit of impeachment as to this family.

And if they wanted to play this tape, they could have played it previously, because the impeachment occurred during the prosecutions's case. It continued during the defense case, but the impeachment was substantial during the prosecution case, and there's no reason why they couldn't have played it then and said, "Well, if you're going to suggest he made this up," you know, "let's play this tape."

And I'd remind the Court that we had police officers up on the stand who -- I believe Detective Robel and Detective Zelis, and we went over specific statements that were made in this interview that they now want to play. They held it. Instead of playing it at that time and saying, "Okay, we'll show you what it said," now they've held it until rebuttal to play it, and that’s improper rebuttal. That’s the kind of dramatic thing that should not be permitted.

The fact that there was other impeachment of Janet Arvizo during the defense case is hardly a reason to bring in this tape, when the actual impeachment of Gavin Arvizo occurred during the case-in-chief. So we would strongly object on that.

And also, of course, it could well -- I mean, we have to go back and look at it. I’m not saying this is a promise or a threat. I’m just saying it’s -- as a lawyer, if we look at this, if this sort of thing starts to come in, obviously we may be playing other excerpts from other things, and, you know, he was interviewed several times, made several inconsistent statements over a period of time, depending on whether or not law enforcement knew of the rebuttal video and other things that have been brought out. And so we may have to play other parts or ask leave to play other parts.

I think it’s too late. They had their opportunity, didn’t take it. They can’t do it now just for dramatic effect.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I take exception to what Mr. Sanger says, first of all, about the status of the evidence in this case, that we could have played this tape in our case-in-chief, because I don’t think we could have. And second of all, I don’t know it was at that point where the defense had raised, through evidence, the fabrication issue and the scripted issue.

And they have made a big deal about this and this family, and I think after the Court sees this videotape, it will see, as the jury should have the opportunity to see in a case of this importance, that this was far from videotape -- scripted, and we welcome Mr. Sanger to put on any other kind of videos that he wants. There’s only one other one, it was a short one, with regard to the victim in this case, but we believe that the case that the defense has put on has raised this as an issue to the point where we feel we now are entitled, under the Evidence Code, to present it.

And this wasn't an issue we created. This is an issue they created. And they created it through their witnesses, not through ours. And it seems a little unfair, having sat through hours of outtakes and minute -- minutes of puff pieces about the ranch and some of the other videos that the defense was allowed to put on in their defense, that we can't now put on a piece of evidence that goes right to the heart of this case and to the heart of their defense.

And so I would ask the Court -- and we can talk about it after you see it, but I think you'll see what we're talking about, and I've had it marked as People's 900 for identification purposes, and --

THE COURT: That's a DVD, is it?

MR. SNEDDON: It is, Your Honor, a DVD.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I realize ordinarily it's argument, rebuttal, argument, but -- or response, rebuttal. In other words, I usually don't get another chance, but could I respond to one thing particularly? I want to make a legal point, if I could.

THE COURT: All right. One point.

MR. SNEDDON: I wasn't finished.

MR. SANGER: Oh, I'm sorry.

MR. SNEDDON: I wanted to alert the Court to one other thing, Your Honor, with regard to the video.

The sound on the video on this particular DVD, the sound is not the greatest, and it may be that you need amplification. The courtroom will be no problem. Everybody can hear it. But I know when you listen to it on the DVD, you may have to use headphones to hear it, or maybe your computer can jack up the sound, but I wanted to alert you to that.

If that's a problem, we have a VHS version of it that we can bring over that you can plug in, and it has no problems. So I wanted to let the Court know that.

I'm sorry, Counsel.

MR. SANGER: On that last point, VHS or otherwise, it just needs to be marked for identification, whatever it is, so we know what we're talking about.

The legal point is, in addition to what I've already said about the dramatic effect, there's also a confrontation issue with regard to this, and I think under Crawford, which is still law that is developing from the United States Supreme Court, I think under Crawford, the confrontation issue here would involve a constitutional right of the defendant.

This witness, had it been brought out while he was in the case-in-chief, we could have -- maybe could have dealt with it. And even then, it would only be -- it could only be offered for prior consistent statements where inconsistent statements were offered, it seems to me.

But to bring it out now really denies the right of confrontation. So --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: I take it the Court's going to watch it, or listen to it, or -- I don't know.

THE COURT: Well, do you think I should just rule out of hand? Just deny playing it and not know what it says?

MR. SANGER: Not necessarily, but I think the offer from the prosecution was such that I think the Court knows it's a long video of the complaining witness, so I suppose you could rule based on that alone, but that's why I said I assume the Court's going to watch it.

THE COURT: All right.

All right. Let me -- on another issue here, looking at your witness list here for tomorrow, it looks like you also put "slash Friday." Is that your thinking? This is going to go into Friday?

MR. SNEDDON: No, I really think -- most of those witnesses are very short, Your Honor, and of course I can't account for cross-examination and who's doing it, but I really -- I think there's every reason to believe we will finish on Thursday, and maybe it could flop over, Your Honor. You know how it is in trial. But our expectation is that some of these people are like some of these witnesses today, like we ask three or four questions and that's it. And several of them have to do simply with establishing the records, custodian of records, that we want to ask a couple of questions about.

But frankly, I don't -- the only one that's problematic is Mr. Geragos, and that involves a discussion that I need to have with counsel on some of those e-mails about whether -- you know, his establishing the foundation for some of those.

But I'm telling the Court that we are doing the best we can to try to get this done tomorrow. And that's all I can promise you.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Now, in that --

MR. SNEDDON: Could I --

MR. SANGER: In that regard, before we change to another subject, and I'll just sit here if that's all right, depending on what the Court does with this tape, if the Court allows the tape to be played, we will then want to have Gavin Arvizo available for surrebuttal. And if the prosecution's going to rest on Thursday, rest their rebuttal on Thursday or early Friday, he would be one of the witnesses we would -- I believe right now we would want to call.

Obviously, this is a fairly spontaneous decision, but I believe that's the case, and we were required -- and appreciate also the courtesy. We're required to let the District Attorney know if we need any of the Arvizos here, rather than subpoena them directly or contact them directly, so I just want to let the Court know that's what we are considering, and they should make arrangements to have him available, if possible. Or even if it's not possible, for that matter.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, I'm -- we will do what we promised to do for the Court. And we'll discuss the relevancy and the appropriateness of that when we come to that.

Judge, could I make one other comment? I know the court personnel needs to take a break, too, but I promise it will only take a second, but it's important in terms of the schedule.

We filed a motion with the Court with regard to the limiting instruction on the Bashir outtakes.

Not on the Bashir outtakes, the Hamid outtakes. And you recall, at the time you agreed to play them, you said you were deferring the ruling on whether it's hearsay or whether it was going to be a similar instruction to the Bashir tape itself.

Obviously, if the Court's going to determine that those outtakes come in for the truth of the matter stated, we will expand our rebuttal to confront the questions that were made. I sincerely believe, in all honesty, that it should -- the jury should be instructed the same way they were as to the Bashir tape, and I hope the Court will do that.

But I wanted to tell you, if you decide to do otherwise, I will have to represent to the Court that our rebuttal would be substantially longer, to take on some of the issues in those outtakes, as to the truthfulness of those statements.

THE COURT: The instruction that we gave on the Bashir tape was that it was not being admitted for the truth of the matter asserted, with the exception that some statements by the defendant were being admitted to the truth of the matter asserted, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Except for those admissions dealing with -- the sleeping with boys admissions.

THE COURT: So you're proposing that same instruction?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir, I am. And as a matter of fact, I read -- I went back last night in preparation for this, and I actually read your admonition to the jury, and it strikes me that we all forgot this; that we were going to tell them -- we were going to tell them what portions, because you say in your instruction -- you might want to look at it, but you say in your instruction that you were going to tell them what portions of that, at a later time, come in under those auspices, and I guess we really never did it. We kind of assumed they would figure that out on their own.

I might just say to the Court, you might want to look at that to see if you want to give further clarifying instructions, and we had that motion where we did cull out, and the Court did cull out certain parts of that particular video that the Court did agree could come in for the truth of the matter, and we might want to highlight that to the jury so there would be no mistake to the jury what it is that the Court ruled in that respect.

I do believe that I will -- I do believe that in the outtakes portion, most of those admissions by the defendant that you admitted for the truth of the matter are not in that outtake part. Both counsel, I believe, probably, we should review that to make sure that my representation to the Court is correct. But that is a loose end that I noticed last night when I was preparing for this thing.

THE COURT: I have a note to myself on that issue, too.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: We have -- that took more than a second, but --

THE COURT: It was a lawyer's second.

MR. SANGER: A lawyer's second. And I'll just say --

THE COURT: It's like a New York minute.

MR. SANGER: It's the opposite of that.

MR. SNEDDON: See if you can do it in the same time.

MR. SANGER: I can do it in the same amount of time.

First of all, on those issues, we would like to be heard, and I don't want to press the Court and the staff while you're waiting for a break, but I would like to be heard on that motion that was filed in general, and what portions of the original Bashir tape should be received by the jury for the truth of the matter and how that should be presented to the jury, and then secondly, on the issue of whether or not the entire outtakes come in for the truth of the matter asserted as the context of the overall statements of the defendant.

So if the Court wants to hear it now, fine, but I suspect not.

THE COURT: No.

MR. SANGER: I'd be happy to address it some other time.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: And I did have one of those things that really would only take about 45 seconds.

I have an exhibit I'd like to mark next in order, and it is a part of the Verizon bill for Neverland Valley Ranch that we received at the same time the prosecution did from the records, or the phone records that were subpoenaed. However, when the prosecution marked their records, they pared them down to the ones they wanted to use, of course, so this has not been admitted yet.

Mr. Sneddon agreed that he would not object to the foundation; in other words, that this is a phone bill that was prepared in the ordinary course of business and was presented to the Court under 1560 of the Evidence Code. Mr. Sneddon wants to argue relevance. But I'd like to get the first part done, and let the Court know that we then need to argue as to whether or not the jury should see this.

THE COURT: You can have that marked, then.

MR. SNEDDON: The representation by Mr. Sanger is correct. I waived the foundation, but I don't waive the relevancy and the materiality. Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. We'll recess until tomorrow morning.

MR. SANGER: Thank you, Your Honor.

(The proceedings adjourned at 1:20 p.m.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. We have two issues I think to take up before -- at least two before the jury comes in.

THE BAILIFF: Is your microphone on?

THE COURT: I’m sorry, we have two issues to take up before the jury comes in.

The first issue is on the tape that was -- I watched yesterday afternoon. The Court will allow the playing of the tape. I think the -- it’s awful long. It seemed to me that, you know, playing half an hour of it would be better than playing the whole hour. There’s a lot at the beginning that’s not even the boy talking.

MR. SANGER: Could I be heard on that part, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: I watched -- of course the prosecution made the motion towards the end of the day, and so I watched that thing in the middle of the night, basically, again to see what it looked like from the standpoint of playing it. And there’s a tremendous amount of prejudicial material by way of police officers making statements that are absolutely inadmissible in court.

On the other hand, to simply pick out, you know, statements of Gavin Arvizo in a vacuum that don’t show that the police officer just said, you know, “You’re really brave. We want you to do this. You’re doing the right thing,” and all the other things that they were saying, you know, takes it out of context. I don’t think that we’re prepared -- I don’t think the People are prepared either to present a pared down version, nor are we.

THE COURT: This is -- excuse me. This is one of those rulings that is not -- you know, if the defense wants the whole tape played, then -- you know, they don’t want any of it played, but if it’s played, they want the whole tape played, then that’s all right. I would understand that.

MR. SANGER: I understand what the Court’s saying, and I’m just saying if we’re going to come up with a pared down version, I think we’d have to meet and confer on that because they’re going to want some parts and --

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: I don’t think we can do it off the cuff right now is my point.

THE COURT: Well, let me ask you this: Are you saying that if they -- I understand that you don’t want to play it at all. Having made that ruling, are you saying you would rather have it all played than parts of it?

MR. SANGER: I can’t absolutely say that either. I think it probably should be edited, but the question would be how would it be edited.

THE COURT: You’re not going to agree on that. I mean, you make the suggestion that you and the prosecution could get together and agree on that. That’s not going to happen. I mean, you couldn’t agree on a simple stipulation on some evidence that had no significance whatsoever. So I just don’t really --

MR. SANGER: I don’t want to argue with the Court on that. But I think we have agreed on quite a number of things, Your Honor, in fairness.

THE COURT: This is --

MR. SANGER: But it seems somewhat impractical, because we’re at -- and Your Honor is saying, you know, “Do you want all” -- “You don’t get nothing, so do you want all or part?” And what I’m saying, I don’t know what part they want to show.

THE COURT: They wanted to show all -- you know what they said. They said it yesterday. They want all except from 49 minutes 50 seconds to 51 minutes 45 seconds and the last 20 seconds. I mean, they told you what they wanted. They told me what they wanted.

MR. SANGER: No, I understand that, Your Honor. Maybe I’m not communicating here. I understand that. Your Honor is suggesting they should show a half an hour, more or less.

THE COURT: I thought, because it's a lengthy tape and there's a lot of material there that doesn't relate to anything, that they should show less.

MR. SANGER: Right. And having had our motion denied to exclude the whole thing, I don't necessarily disagree with the Court, but I can't agree unless I know what half hour they want to play. So all I'm saying is, we have to at least know what they're proposing if they're going to do that. I would agree there's extraneous material on the tape that probably shouldn't be shown, but I don't know which half hour they want.

Does that make any sense?

THE COURT: Okay. That was just a suggestion that they try to reduce the amount. I wasn't ordering that.

MR. SNEDDON: Good morning, Your Honor.

First of all, I think we're in a position -- I don't have a problem with what the Court suggested. I think that the first part of the video, where the -- what we might call the rapport-building stage could easily be deleted out or edited out.

Mr. Auchincloss doesn't have any witnesses this morning, so he could go upstairs and begin the editing process and come back with a suggestion. If the Court would like us to do that, we'd be more than glad to do that. I think probably that would account for about 10 or 15 minutes, at least, of the interview that I don't have a problem with. And we would be willing to do that. I'm not saying that -- I mean, I'm -- I share the Court's concern about reaching an eventual stipulation, but I'm willing to do what we can do to at least take that part out and move on with it. And so if you want us to do that, we'll do that.

And absent that, then my position is -- other than the things that we've indicated to you that we really feel should not go to the jury because of the 352 nature of it -- to the defense, not to us. But it's not appropriate, and I agree with that, and I'm sure the Court does, too, having heard what's in there. So that's our position, and we'll do what we can to accommodate the Court.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I have a suggestion. I'm just still a little taken aback.

I don't think the Court's fully aware of how much cooperation there has been, despite the fights over other things here.

THE COURT: I'm sorry, there has been a lot of cooperation.

MR. SANGER: There we go. Thank you. A little appreciation goes a long way at a time like this.

THE COURT: You guys have really done a good job on this.

MR. SNEDDON: You don't sound too sincere about that.

THE COURT: No, I want to make Mr. Sanger feel better.

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: Thank you. It's working. Just another minute or two and --

THE COURT: And your last argument was really excellent.

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: There you go. Thank you. That would be the one I lost on this tape.

THE COURT: But a good argument nonetheless.

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: Well, what I would suggest is this: With the consent or concurrence of the District Attorney, I will ask Mr. Dunkle, who's my associate lawyer in my office here in Santa Maria,

I'll ask him to go over to the D.A.'s Office. They can get a running start if they want to, but at some point this morning, if they would meet with him and try to confer and try to work it out, we'll take our best shot.

THE COURT: That's a good way to do it.

MR. SANGER: I think Mr. Mesereau and I should have the final say, so we probably need to --

THE COURT: Confer.

MR. SANGER: -- have some time to confer, but we'll try to do that.

Now, with regard to the Court's ruling that the tape is coming in in one fashion or another, we had indicated that we would need to then have Gavin Arvizo made available. We'd also like to have Janet Arvizo, Dr. Katz and Larry Feldman.

THE COURT: For a moment, I thought you were going to say something else. But that's fine.

MR. SANGER: Could you indicate what it is and I'll add it to the list?

So we'd like to have them available, and I understand they were the People's witnesses and that they would have a number to call them. We tried to find a number for Dr. Katz to give him a heads-up and we didn't have one, so --

THE COURT: All right. So I think that one of your people should call them right away this morning, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, Your Honor. We'll do that.

I want to tell the Court that, first of all, we're not waiving any objection with regard to the materiality of whether it's appropriate.

THE COURT: That's fine.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Second of all, my understanding as of -- I'm trying to think of the day, because I don't want to misrepresent to the Court. Whenever it was that Larry King was here. As of that point in time, Mr. Feldman was in South Africa, and I didn't know that until I called up to talk to him and he was gone and his partner told me that.

So I will call the office today and find out if he's back. But I know he's -- I know at that point last week, whenever Mr. King was here, that Mr. Feldman was in South Africa. So I'll do what the Court told me to.

THE COURT: And you have the list of witnesses that he just gave?

MR. SNEDDON: Right. There was four of them. Dr. Katz, Mr. Feldman, Mrs. Jackson, and Gavin.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SNEDDON: And that’s not a problem. We already alerted the family. So that’s not a problem.

THE COURT: Okay. All right. Then --

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, if that’s the situation, then I think we can -- the other issue I talked to you about, the letters with Mr. Geragos, I guess we’ll have Mr. Geragos come back tomorrow and establish the foundation since we can’t reach a stipulation. Unless there’s one that they reached.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SNEDDON: If the Court agrees to receive it into evidence based on the circumstantial nature of the thing, like some of the Schaffel documents. So I guess what I’ll say is we’ll move for the admission of those. If the Court doesn’t admit it, then we would have Mr. Geragos come back tomorrow. It looks like we’re going to be here tomorrow. But let’s play it by ear and see what comes about.

THE COURT: Well, I would prefer that, rather than have Mr. Geragos come back, that both sides are working so well together throughout this case.

MR. SNEDDON: I have no problem with that.

THE COURT: I thought we reached -- I thought you reached some possible agreement when you were talking to me just before we came --

MR. SNEDDON: That was on a different piece of evidence, Your Honor. That was on the tape. And I think Mr. Mesereau and I have -- I don’t want to speak for Mr. Mesereau, but I think we probably worked that one out to our satisfaction.

But this is a different -- this is the e-mails, the Brad Miller e-mails to Mr. Geragos that the Court allowed us to --

THE COURT: That were seized in the search warrant.
MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir, these are the ones that were the subject of the attorney-client privilege and were released to us late, I think last week. We got them on Saturday, actually, because of the waiver, and that was the first time we saw them, and so we determined that we want to have those admitted into evidence.
And we'd so move. I could have them marked right now, if you like, for identification.
THE COURT: Have them marked so I can look at them and see what you're talking about.
MR. SNEDDON: Hand me the stickies.
MR. SANGER: I believe it's our position -- I'm sitting down at the microphone, so I'll stand.
It's our position that we need Mr. Geragos with regard to the content. They are not necessarily self-authenticating. And even if they are, the relevance is not established without his testimony, so that's why we're asking that he come back up in order to -- it's not just perfunctory, there is a reason for him to come up.

THE COURT: Okay.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, the documents have attached to them a one-page cover sheet. Actually, I don't know if there's a page missing, but it's a document from counsel to us. I really think that probably should not be part of the exhibit. So with their permission, I'll remove that and just have the e-mails themselves marked for identification.
MR. SANGER: Could I see?
MR. MESEREAU: That's fine.
MR. SANGER: Yeah, that should be removed.
THE COURT: All right.
MR. SNEDDON: This would be Exhibit 901, Your Honor. And it's a multi-page document. I haven't counted them, but it's maybe 20 -- 20 pages, and I'll hand that to the clerk.
THE COURT: I'd like that exhibit.
THE CLERK: Oh, sorry.
THE COURT: All right. The next issue that we have is the motion to admit evidence concerning Jordan Chandler.

Do you wish to be heard on that, Mr. Sneddon?

MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Zonen is going to handle that, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Zonen?

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I think we've adequately stated our position in the pleadings. I can tell you that with regard to the relevance of that material, there was quite a bit of testimony that was presented during the course of the defense case about nothing untoward or inappropriate occurring in Michael Jackson's bedroom and numerous witnesses who have testified to the fact that many children, particularly back in the 1993, '94, '92 period, who spent not just nights, but weeks and even months in Michael Jackson's bedroom, in Michael Jackson's bed, and it was a completely nonsexual event.

The fact that this child was able to give a description of a unique feature of his anatomy that could not have been known by him except for a very intimate acquaintance with Mr. Jackson is very good circumstantial evidence of the fact that the relationship between he and at least that child was something more than casual and something more than innocent.

In that regard, we'll submit, unless you have questions.

THE COURT: Let me hear from the defense.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: I, once again, tried to keep the brief brief. I hope the Court --

THE COURT: I appreciate you keeping your briefs brief.

MR. SANGER: Yes. I don't want a lack of volume to suggest that this didn't take well into the night to get done here. And I don't want to repeat everything, but I think because it is such an important issue, we’re right at the end of the case, I feel compelled to speak about it just briefly, if I may.

First of all, this seems to come directly within the California Supreme Court’s discussion in the Carter case, which basically says it’s not proper to bring in evidence that magnifies evidence that the opposition has not had a chance to meet squarely during the case-in-chief, which we haven’t, because this was not offered, it was not hinted at. It was not even in the original 1108 motion from which the Court made a cut and reduced what they had presented originally. So it wasn’t even in there.

I mean, we had no notice to deal with these issues -- with this issue at all. So there is certainly unfair surprise, as stated directly in the Carter case.

And Carter also says that the Court is supposed to avoid dramatic evidence introduced late in the trial that’s going to have an undue effect.

Now, as we pointed out, this was not offered. I mean, this is really a stretch to even come up with any kind of an argument as to why this should -- why they could even ask to bring this in. And they’re not asking to bring it in as 1108 evidence. They’re asking to bring it in as 1101(b) evidence.

And the idea is, I think they’ve said in their pleadings, that this goes to the issue of whether or not Mr. Jackson was shy or modest. Now, that’s not what Mr. Zonen just said when he got up here and argued. I think he shifted the argument a bit, if I’m not mistaken, and talked about things happening in the bedroom.

They didn’t offer -- I mean, we can’t just keep having a moving target here. They didn’t offer it in their moving papers. They didn’t offer it for that purpose. They offered it on the shy and modest purpose. So it would be 1101(b) evidence on kind of a collateral matter, if it ever happened. But it didn’t happen in this case in the defense.

We went through and did a word search on the entire transcript, several different words, “shy,” “modest,” all sorts of things. We found one question that used the word “shy,” not even in this context. It had to do with whether or not a maid saw Mr. Jackson change his shirt. And the objection was sustained to that question. So it was never answered. So it didn’t happen.

We also went through and -- just to be sure, and read -- we read all the testimony from the key witnesses in the defense who might have said something like that if anybody said it. And the only thing we can come up with is an investigative report where the word -- I think “shy” -- it was either “shy” or “modest,” one of the two was used. We quoted it in there. And it turns out that that was never brought out from that witness on the stand.

So it seemed to me that, when I was looking at this, this was a pocket brief the District Attorney had originally prepared in case somebody did this. It didn’t happen. Now they’re trying to bring it in by way of rebuttal, and it would just be absolutely inappropriate as 1101, because it doesn’t rebut anything, okay?

What really they’re trying to do, and I think that’s what I heard Mr. Zonen just argue, is they’re trying to argue this is 1108. And it doesn’t meet the criteria for 1108. It doesn’t meet the criteria the Court set down that it would be somebody directly observing something. So it would have the prejudicial effect of the jury considering it, obviously, for 1108 purposes. Because it would be very shocking to see pictures of -- anatomical pictures and all that sort of thing.

So just from that standpoint, they’ve made no -- show no basis. There’s no foundation to admit this as rebuttal, because there’s -- they haven’t shown what they’re rebutting under 1101(b). And obviously, if they did that, the prejudice would be so overwhelming, because it would go to the 1108 and it shouldn’t come in for that reason.

And as we said before, 1108 -- as the Court is well aware, 1108 is a very delicate kind of an issue. The jury is given tremendously prejudicial evidence, that is, prejudicial in the sense that it is propensity evidence, and that propensity evidence -- under this weird law we have in California that doesn’t exist most other places, propensity evidence is allowed to come in, but the Court has to exercise discretion in limiting it, so it doesn’t overwhelm the trial. And the Court made those rulings. And to bring this in at this point and emphasize 1108 in rebuttal with something that isn’t even really 1108 evidence would be tremendously prejudicial.

But when you get right down to it, the main reason that it has to stay out is it violates Crawford and the confrontation clause. It’s not admissible hearsay. It is testimonial directly under Crawford. This is the kind of stuff that Crawford is talking about, when police officers do interviews, and they get information and they write it down in reports, and then they preserve that and the prosecution wants to bring it in, that violates the confrontation clause. You cannot do that.

So you would have a violation of a federal constitutional right were this allowed in, in any event, and so the Court can start at either end. Either just decide it on that and it’s over, or you look at the other end. It’s not proper rebuttal, because there was no evidence to rebut. And under the Carter case, it’s simply dramatic evidence that would be overwhelming at the end of the trial and really, in my opinion, and as we briefed, totally meaningless. There is no probative value. But if there was, by a stretch, it would be on a collateral matter.

And so I think -- I feel very strongly about this that this is absolutely inappropriate. And I will submit it, Your Honor. Thank you.

THE COURT: Mr. Zonen?

MR. ZONEN: Just briefly with regards to

Crawford. This is not hearsay at all. It’s not an exception to hearsay. It’s not hearsay.

The issue is whether or not this child had knowledge of the existence of that particular spot. And the evidence of his knowledge, certainly his ability to draw that picture, would be circumstantial evidence that he knew about it. It would be the equivalent of a child being able to say that a room was green. And he would only know that if he had been in the room. It’s not for the truth of the matter that the room is green. We can show that independently with the photograph as can we show the spot with the photograph. But the fact that a child would know that the room was green would only be knowledge that the child would have circumstantially because he was there or because somebody told him.

In this particular case, it’s the type of information that was not commonly available at the time, and circumstantially it would be relevant for the fact that he must have seen that particular spot, and therefore it’s not testimonial. It’s not communication in that regard. It would not fit within Crawford. It’s simply not hearsay.

MR. SANGER: And if I may make just one comment on that -- I know we shouldn’t go back and forth but --

THE COURT: I’d really like you not to do that.

MR. SANGER: Very well, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I’m going to deny the request to bring in the evidence of the blemished penis. This is the reason: It’s twofold, really. And under a 352 analysis, the Court agrees with the defense, that shyness really was not an issue of any proportion. I think you’ve reminded me -- I knew there had been some statement somewhere in the trial about shyness, but the -- I think you’ve reviewed that with me, and I think I agree with -- my recollection now has been refreshed to exactly what that was. But I knew it was only a small thing to start with, if anything. And you’re saying it was actually nothing.

But the analysis there would be, even if shyness had been raised as an issue, the prejudicial effect would far outweigh the probative value of the shyness issue. And secondly, I think -- even though your analysis is I think correct, I keep going through it, but I think it is not hearsay. I still think Crawford would apply to the ability to cross-examine the boy -- or the -- you know, Mr. Chandler. He’s not a boy anymore -- on that issue, and that’s definitely not available, so that would be my reasoning for excluding that evidence.

Was there anything else we needed to discuss before we brought the jury in?

MR. ZONEN: Could we have just one moment?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Your Honor, we delivered to the Court the only copy of the DVD of the -- oh, that’s already been delivered. Thank you.

THE COURT: The clerk has it. I’ve --

THE CLERK: Is it okay to release it?

THE COURT: Yes, I’ll release it. I’m going to release it to the District Attorney in accordance with our agreement that he’ll notify your associate to work with him to --

MR. SANGER: Yes, certainly. And we’ll need a minute or two to get on the phone and arrange that, if that’s all right, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Since you’re there, there’s one housekeeping matter. And let me address that first. Mr. Mesereau may have something.

Just one quick housekeeping matter. I identified a phone record, for the record, at the end of the day yesterday, and it was the last exhibit marked for the defense, the number of which is not directly in front of me.

Let me stand up, I’m sorry.

I talked to Mr. Sneddon, and when we offered that exhibit, I just want the record to be clear, I indicated that it was actually from the subpoenaed materials. And I've clarified that with Mr. Sneddon because I went back and checked. The same information is in the subpoenaed materials. It's in a different computer printout. This is from an actual bill that Mr. Sneddon agrees to the foundation.

Do we have the number, just so we're --

THE CLERK: 5108.

MR. SANGER: 5108. So the foundation is taken care of, and I wanted to clarify that so there wasn't any misrepresentation. And we'll address the issue of the admissibility of that, and I think we'll bring a witness to court to show the relevance.

Thank you.

THE COURT: That's where we left it yesterday. You're just clarifying where the document came from.

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: All right. Is everybody ready to bring in --

MR. SANGER: Well, I just need a couple minutes. I've got to talk to Mr. Dunkle and find out if he's --

THE COURT: All right. Would you --

MR. SANGER: Excuse me one second.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: Oh, okay. The bailiff indicated she called Mr. Dunkle for me and he will be coming over, so I'll --

THE COURT: I'll give you a couple of minutes to talk to him before we call the jury in. Just do it as quickly as you can.

MR. SANGER: Yes. Yes, sir.

MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, there's one matter that we might be able to take up. It's a subpoena duces tecum for the Brad Miller telephone records. It's premarked as Exhibit 448. It's been discovered to Mr. Sanger. There's a certificate by the custodian. We'd be offering that into evidence. I don't know if the Court would like to look at that now or when the jury comes in.

THE COURT: Does it have to do with your next witness, or is this --
MR. NICOLA: We're going to be presenting some more link charts. It will be brief telephone testimony.
MR. SANGER: The only issue that I have with that, I assume that it is from the correct source. I did not know they were going to bring in Brad Miller records today. I knew they were bringing in Geragos records. I did not get -- bring over that set of records. So if I could have just a moment on that, when we have the break here, I'll take a look, and I think it should be okay.
THE COURT: Okay.
MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor.
MR. ZONEN: Could we have a couple of minutes before the jury is brought in?
THE COURT: Yes. I'm not going to call the jury in until you tell me you're ready, but I'll ask you to expedite it for me.
MR. ZONEN: We're going to make efforts to contact the witnesses that they've requested for tomorrow.
THE COURT: Okay.
(Recess taken.)
//
//

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning.
THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.
THE COURT: Sorry for the delay, but it's going to be a little bit this way as we get through these rebuttal and perhaps surrebuttal issues.
Go ahead, Counsel.
MR. ZONEN: We'll call Gina Villegas to the stand.

THE COURT: Please remain standing. Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

GINA VILLEGAS

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name’s Gina Villegas. It’s G-i-n-a, V-i-l-l-e-g-a-s.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

MR. ZONEN: May I proceed?

THE COURT: Yes.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Miss Villegas, good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. What is your current occupation?

A. I am an office manager for Hollywood Ford.

Q. And what is Hollywood Ford?

A. Hollywood Ford is an automobile dealership.

Q. In Hollywood, I’m assuming?

A. Yes.

Q. And that’s in Los Angeles County, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And what is your position at Hollywood Ford?

A. I’m an office manager.

Q. What does that mean? What do you do?

A. I do payroll and I also do DMV for the company.

Q. Are you familiar with the record systems that they have at Hollywood Ford?

A. Yes.

Q. And you’re familiar with how they keep records of the purchases and sales of cars?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you asked to make a search of your records at Hollywood Ford to determine whether or not a car had been sold to a person by the name of Janet Arvizo or Janet Ventura?

A. Yes.

Q. And for what period of time did you search?
A. I was told to search from 2002 to 2003, and then I just took it upon myself to go back to 2000 to 2004, to make sure.
Q. So the earliest date you went to is what?
A. 2000. The year 2000.
Q. The year 2000?
A. Yes.
Q. Would that be January 2000?
A. Yes. The whole year of 2000, yes.
Q. Through 2004; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Were you able to determine if Janet Arvizo or Janet Ventura ever purchased a car from Hollywood Ford?
A. She never did.
MR. ZONEN: Thank you. No further questions.
THE COURT: Cross-examine?
MR. ZONEN: Oh, excuse me. If I could. One -- one last question.
THE COURT: All right.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were you able to determine whether or not there had been other inquiries into this exact matter, whether or not Janet Arvizo or Janet Ventura had ever purchased a car?
MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor, that would call for hearsay.

MR. ZONEN: I'll change the question.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead and answer.
A. If I checked if there was other ways?
Q. Were there other inquiries about this exact matter, whether Janet Arvizo or Janet Ventura had purchased a car?
A. I got paperwork in the mail from another attorney asking to -- to look for those files.

Q. And was that an attorney for Michael Jackson?

A. I’m assuming it was. I don’t really -- I can’t be for sure because I didn’t even bother to look. I just looked for the names, if it was on there, and I called back the person to let them know that I didn’t find anything under those names.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. No further questions.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, please, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. Miss Villegas, we haven’t met. My name is Thomas Mesereau and I speak for Mr. Jackson.

A. Okay.

Q. Were you asked by the prosecutors to do a search?

A. Yes.

Q. And when did they ask you to do that search?

A. It was Thursday -- I got a phone call on Tuesday from a Detective Alvarez. He didn’t personally ask for me, he just asked if he could speak to somebody who could do a search under certain people’s names.

Q. Okay. Now, did he ask you to determine whether or not a money order was ever presented to Hollywood Ford by someone named Janet Ventura?

A. No, that he did not ask me.

Q. Do you know, as you speak today, whether or not someone named Janet Ventura ever presented a money order in the amount of $23,000 and zero cents to Hollywood Ford at any time?

A. No, we never got a check from --

Q. Did he ask you to determine if Janet Ventura ever presented a money order drawn on Washington Mutual Bank to Hollywood Ford between 2002 and 2003?

A. Did he ask me to check for the check?

Q. Yes. Yes.

A. No. No.
Q. Did you look to see what deposits were made at Hollywood Ford during that period of time?
A. No. I didn't look for the deposits.
Q. Do you know whether or not a Janet Ventura essentially laundered a money order through Hollywood Ford during that period of time?

MR. ZONEN: Objection, that's argumentative, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let me ask you this: If someone goes to Washington Mutual Bank and says, "Prepare a money order payable to the order of Hollywood Ford for $23,000 and zero cents," and someone shows up at Hollywood Ford with that money order, what is the normal procedure for handling it?
A. The normal procedure for handling it is making a receipt for the cashier's check. And also we reference if -- they're called stock numbers. Every car is identified by a number. So we reference the number on there and the receipt number on there, so that if something should come back, fraud or NSF or however, then we know what deal it belongs to.
Q. Let me ask you this: What does Hollywood sell besides automobiles?
A. They sell service to vehicles, and they sell parts.
Q. Okay. Now, if someone came to Hollywood Ford with a money order to the amount of $23,000 dated November 9th, 2001, and wanted to purchase parts with that money order, could they do so?
A. I assume so. I've never seen that amount of money being purchased for parts, but --

Q. And if they purchased parts for less than $23,000, would they get change?
A. On a money order, no.
Q. What would the procedure be to handle that money order?
A. The procedure would be, we would wait 15 days for that -- we treat it as a check. We would wait 15 days for it to clear and then we would create an account where we would refund you the money back after the 15 days had cleared.

Q. Now, to your knowledge, as an office manager, if someone were to go to Washington Mutual Bank, have a money order prepared that’s nonnegotiable, written in the amount of $23,000 and zero cents, payable to the order of Hollywood Ford, and it says on the money order, “Remitter, Janet Ventura,” and then changed their mind about presenting that money to Hollywood Ford, what would the procedure be, if you know, to get that money in your pocket?

A. Well, if it was done all in the same day, if we made the receipt and it was done in the same day, we would void out the receipt and give it back to you. But if we’ve already deposited also into our account, then again, we would wait 15 working days for the check to clear.

Like I said, everything is set up by a stock number, so that money would be holding with that stock number and that account number. And then we -- if there was no deal, they would say, “Hey, there’s no deal,” and we refund back the money.

Q. How would you refund back the money?

A. With a Hollywood Ford check.

Q. And did the prosecutors ever ask you to check to see if a Hollywood Ford check was ever presented to someone named Janet Ventura?

A. No.

Q. Did they ever ask you to check to see if a Hollywood Ford check was ever given to Janet Ventura designated to receive that money on her behalf?

A. No.

Q. Okay. What if you get a cashier’s check in the amount of $23,000, zero cents, payable to Hollywood Ford, drawn on Washington Mutual Bank for $23,000, will you allow someone to negotiate that instrument?

A. Negotiate to get --

Q. Yeah. Can they use that to purchase something?

A. Yes.
Q. And how hard would it be to purchase something with a cashier's check?
A. Not hard. It would -- I mean, they would just present it, and --
Q. Could you use it almost as you could any other check?

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And if you see a cashier's check like that, $23,000, paid to the order of Hollywood Ford, it says, "Remitter, Janet Ventura," and someone wants to purchase something with that check, what is the procedure at Hollywood Ford for authenticating the check or making sure it's valid?
A. The same as we would treat any other check. We would just deposit the same way, I mean, or whatever they're purchasing, whether it's a vehicle, parts or service, deposit it the same way.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay. May I approach the witness, Your Honor?
THE COURT: You may.
MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, I have a document I'd like to mark next in order. Oh, it's already marked?
MR. ZONEN: May I see it, please?
MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I have Exhibit 5098 and we'd like to put that up, if we could, please.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Miss Villegas, I want you to look at that exhibit, if you can. It's a little bit blurry. You may notice at the top, you see "Washington Mutual Bank, Paid to the Order of Hollywood Ford." Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And you see to the right, the date is November 19th, 2001. The amount's $23,000, okay?

A. Okay.
Q. It says, "Balancing Copy Non-Negotiable." See that to the right?
A. Yes.

Q. It says under that, “Remitter, Janet Ventura.” Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, if someone comes to Hollywood Ford and presents them with that check --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- what can they do with that check at Hollywood Ford?

A. They can either use it to deposit, you know, money for a car or pay cash for a car, if that’s the total amount. I’ve never seen service or parts meet any kind of total like that, but, I mean, I guess if they’re going to buy tons of accessories, maybe I guess it would be.

Q. Okay. Did you determine whether or not someone named Janet Ventura had ever purchased anything from Hollywood Ford during that period of time?

A. Janet Ventura did not purchase anything.

Q. Purchase anything?

A. Right.

Q. And do you know if anyone ever was presented with that check for any purpose?

A. No, I don’t know. I mean, I wouldn’t think so, because on any type of -- on the top part of the check, there would have been our account numbers, our receipt numbers. Even if you purchase, you know, service or parts, there would be a repair order number, a counter ticket number. And we also do ask for people’s driver’s license, because we do get fraud copies of cashier’s checks or personal checks. So we ask for a lot of identification.

Q. Okay. So basically you don’t know what this person, Janet Ventura, ever did with this particular document?

A. No, I do not.

Q. You don’t know why she had it drawn paid to the order of Hollywood Ford?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as irrelevant. I’ll object as irrelevant, beyond the witness’s scope of understanding.

MR. MESEREAU: That’s what I’m trying to determine, Your Honor.

MR. ZONEN: Lack of foundation.
THE COURT: You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Okay. I’m sorry, could you repeat the question?
MR. MESEREAU: Yeah, sure. Let me withdraw the question and repeat it.
Q. As you sit here today, you don’t know whatever happened to that document, correct?

A. No, I do not.
Q. And if Janet Ventura withdrew $23,000 in this form of a document from an account for the benefit of her son, Gavin Arvizo, who was ill, you don’t know what she did with it?
MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I’m going to object as argumentative and beyond the scope of this witness’s knowledge.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, let me refer you to the document on the bottom, okay?
A. Okay.
Q. You may notice that the instrument on the top says, “Remitter, Janet Ventura,” the one on the bottom has the name Janet Arvizo. Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And you see it says, “Payable to Hollywood Ford”?
A. Correct.
Q. It’s on Washington Mutual. Looks like a receipt, okay?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. That’s not something that you can find in any of your records, correct?
A. No. Those are deposit or withdrawal slips from Washington Mutual.
Q. Yeah. Okay.
A. So I wouldn’t have that.

Q. Wouldn’t have that at all?
A. No.
Q. Now, did anyone from the prosecution ask you to check your records to see if the name Janet Ventura came up anywhere?

A. In vehicle sales --

Q. Yeah. No vehicle sales.

A. No vehicle sales for Janet Ventura.

Q. Okay. And none for Janet Arvizo?

A. And none for Janet Arvizo either.

Q. So I guess it would be safe to say that whatever was done with that check, you don’t know what happened to it?

A. Hollywood Ford --

MR. ZONEN: Object as speculative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And if whoever Janet Ventura is, or Janet Arvizo, took that and endorsed it and deposited it into some other account, that’s nothing you’d know about?

A. No.

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Asked and answered and speculative.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did your records --

THE COURT: Overruled. You need to wait.

MR. MESEREAU: I’m sorry.

THE COURT: The answer is, “No.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did your records indicate whether a Janet Ventura had ever even been to Hollywood Ford during these particular years?

A. I mean, if she came off the street to inquire about a vehicle?

Q. Yes.

A. No, I’m sorry, I wouldn’t know that. Just the sale itself I would know.

Q. Okay. Now, at your business, if someone comes in off the street, claims they’re interested in buying a vehicle or parts, is there any procedure for keeping their name and address in a marketing file, or a public relations file, or a file where you would send promotional brochures, that kind of thing?

A. Not for the accounting office purposes. But for the salesman, I mean, he could keep her name to contact her later to see if she's interested.

Q. Okay.

A. I've seen that happen.

Q. Now, would the individual salesperson be responsible for that particular account information or would the actual store keep the information?

A. Information, her personal information, like an inquiry type of thing?

Q. Yes.

A. The salesman would have that.

Q. So basically, these are salespeople on commission; is that the idea?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So they're responsible for their own marketing files, their own index of potential customers or clients?

A. Correct.

Q. The company itself wouldn't keep that information?

A. No. Only the actual sale.

Q. And would the salesperson put that information into a computer owned by the company, do you know?

A. We're manual, we don't go off of computers. Everything we have is manual.

Q. Now, what other -- let me rephrase that. Specifically what was the task you were asked to do by the prosecution?

A. The task I was asked to do was to look for either a Janet Arvizo or Janet Ventura to see if she had purchased a vehicle between the years 2002 and 2003.

Q. Now, if you wanted to find out whether or not the company had any other information on Janet Ventura, what other files could you have checked?

A. Um, as for sales or service, there wouldn't really be anything I could check for that. I would have to -- like I said, the reference on the check would have a counter ticket number, which are all filed numerically, and I can go back and look at that.

Q. Okay. Okay. And is there any other source of information on potential customers, clients, whatever, that could possibly have any information on Janet Ventura that you didn’t check?

A. Just the service and the parts. I mean, like I said, if that money was used for service or parts, that would be the only thing.

Q. Okay.

A. The reference number would have to be there.

Q. Okay. All right. Now, were you asked to check the name Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. And nothing showed up for her either?

A. Nothing came up for her either.

Q. Okay. Let’s see, did you check the name Gavin Arvizo?

A. No, I just looked for “Arvizo.” I didn’t have any Arvizos.

Q. And no Venturas either?

A. And no Ventura either.

Q. Okay. So we really don’t know what happened with that?

A. No, I do not.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Thank you very much.

MR. ZONEN: Happened with what? Objection; vague.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: We don’t know what really happened to this $23,000 that apparently a Janet Ventura had paid to the order of Hollywood Ford, really?

A. As for car sales, no.

MR. ZONEN: That’s a misstatement of evidence. Objection. And argumentative and speculative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Is Hollywood Ford a check cashing service?

A. No.

Q. If I walk in there with a $23,000 check and tell you, “I’m not particularly interested in a Ford product, but I have a check to cash,” would they cash it?

A. No.

Q. All right. Did you determine whether or not any checks had been cashed on behalf of Janet Arvizo?

A. I didn’t look in the deposit books to see anything like that.

Q. All right. But you would have records if a check was cashed in conjunction with a purchase of a car?

A. Right.

Q. There would be no other reason that somebody would be cashing a check of that size?

A. No.

Q. If I walked in and said, “I’d like to buy a $20 sun visor and I’d like to pay for it with a $23,000 cashier’s check,” they might balk at that; no?

A. I’m sorry?

Q. They might be resistant to selling me a $23,000 sun visor -- or excuse me, a $20 sun visor --

A. For 23,000 --

Q. -- with a $23,000 check --

A. No.

Q. No?

A. Right.

Q. There was no record at all of a purchase of a car by Janet Arvizo, a Janet Ventura?

A. No.

Q. And this information was given to the defense in advance; is that right?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. No further questions.

//

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Excuse me, what information was given to the defense in advance?

A. About not purchasing -- Janet Ventura or Janet Arvizo not purchasing a vehicle.

Q. Okay. But you didn’t tell the defense what Janet did with that money, correct?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You certainly -- the prosecutor asked a question about providing information to the defense. You couldn’t provide the defense any information whatever happened to this money, right? You don’t have that knowledge?

A. I don’t have a car sale --

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object --

THE WITNESS: I don’t have a car sale for that name.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yes, okay. The only information you gave to the defense was that it didn’t look like a car was purchased, but what the person did with that money is beyond your knowledge?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

MR. ZONEN: No further questions.

THE BAILIFF: It’s break time.

THE COURT: You may step down. We’ll take our break.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. What is your current occupation?

A. Records supervisor at the West Covina Police Department.

Q. How long have you held that position?

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Your microphone’s not on.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: For what period of time have you held that position, records supervisor?

A. West Covina, since August.

Q. And this is the West Covina Police Department; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. West Covina is located in Los Angeles County?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you asked to do a records check to determine the time, release time, on a person who had been taken into custody at West Covina City Jail?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that person David Gavino Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you have those records with you?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And is this an arrest that occurred on or about the 28th of August of 1998?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Can you tell me when that person was booked into the jail and when he was released?

A. He was arrested at 1813 hours, booked in the jail at 2145 hours, and released on that same evening at three minutes after midnight.

Q. So three minutes after midnight on the 28th?

A. On the 28th.

Q. So he was brought in on the 27th?

A. 27th, right.

Q. And released three minutes after midnight on the 28th?

A. Right.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. I have no further questions.

MR. SANGER: Excuse me one second. There was a change in the order of witnesses. I apologize.

Miss Frey, do you have the West Covina records? They were the ones that Steve Dunkle came over and looked at and got a copy of yesterday.

Perhaps we should hand it to the Judge first.

Your Honor, I was going to ask that -- there were records that were subpoenaed from the West Covina Police Department by the defense, and I believe they were --

THE COURT: There’s a return.

MR. SANGER: -- handed to you there by the clerk.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: And I would like to have those records marked as defense next in order.

THE COURT: Did you want me to open them? I’m not quite sure why you handed me --

MR. SANGER: Yes, well, in case there was any question. I would like them opened. I believe they were opened previously.

THE COURT: They do not appear to have been previously opened.

MR. SANGER: All right. Maybe that’s a different set. So let’s live dangerously and find out what’s in the envelope if we may, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. They appear to be West Covina City Jail booking records with the appropriate subpoena attached and the declaration of business records.

MR. SANGER: All right. May I approach and check that out?

THE COURT: I’ll let you decide how you want them marked.

MR. SANGER: Please. Before they’re all stapled together, there might be two groups. Let me take a quick look, if I may. Thank you.

I think the most appropriate thing to do, Your Honor, now that I look at them, there appears to be, in the materials handed to counsel, the subpoena and then the declaration, and then there appears to be a set of records pertaining to Janet Arvizo and another set pertaining to David.

I would be interested in marking as separate exhibits the set pertaining to Janet and the other set pertaining to David, and then it would be up to the Court and counsel as to what should be done with the other documents. I don’t think they’re relevant, except for foundation.

THE COURT: All right. I’ll have them marked separately as you’ve requested.

MR. SANGER: And then the other documents would be lodged with the envelope and would remain with the court files.

THE COURT: That would be fine.

THE CLERK: David’s records are 5109 and Janet’s records are 5110.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Okay. Miss Aggers, sorry to keep you sitting there?

A. That’s okay.

Q. I see you brought some papers with you. Is that a copy of the same thing that was provided directly to the Court?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And you have reviewed the records to testify to what you told us just a little while ago; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. In other words, you wouldn’t remember off the top of your head everybody’s booking information?

A. No.

MR. SANGER: All right. I would like to approach, if I may, Your Honor, with 5110, and show the witness this packet of information.

THE COURT: You may.

MR. SANGER: That’s the -- Janet.

MR. ZONEN: Yes, go ahead.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Did you have occasion to review the information pertaining to Janet Arvizo?

A. Briefly, when I sent this to the court.

Q. All right. So you were the actual person that sent this in, then?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. And those records are, in fact, true and correct records of the West Covina City Jail?

A. Yes.

Q. And they're kept in the ordinary course of business as official police records; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And similarly, the records that you provided with regard to David Arvizo, which I've marked as 5109, would also be true and correct records of the West Covina City Jail, and they are official police records; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Kept in the ordinary course of business?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So let's take a look at 5109. And I'm going to ask if you can tell, by looking at that packet, when Janet Arvizo was booked into the West Covina City Jail.

A. 5110? 5109?

Q. I'm sorry, you're right. 5110, I'm sorry.

Let me restate it, just so we're clear. Taking a look at 5110, Exhibit 5-1-1-0, can you tell from those records when Janet Arvizo was booked into the West Covina City Jail?

A. Yes.

Q. And when was that?

A. She was arrested at 1800 hours. And she was booked in the jail at 1948 hours.

Q. Okay. And is there a different place to book in females than males in that jail?

A. It's the same place.

Q. Same place. So you go into the booking area and people are processed as they go through; is that right?

A. Right.

Q. So it appears that Janet Arvizo was booked into the jail before David Arvizo; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And what time does it show she was released?
A. At 2115 hours.
Q. So she was released before David Arvizo; is that correct?
A. Yes. Yes.
MR. SANGER: All right. Now, may I approach just to make sure we're literally on the same page, here?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SANGER: They have this in a different order for some reason. Excuse me one second, Your Honor.

Okay. First of all, Your Honor, I'd like to move into evidence 5109 and 5110 if I can, please.
THE COURT: All right. They're admitted.
MR. SANGER: And I think the easiest way to do this, because we have different pagination here, would be to put this up on the board, if I may, and so I'd ask to show 5110, if that's all right.
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: First of all, in these records with regard to Janet Arvizo, is there any indication that Janet Arvizo was beaten up?
A. I didn't see any indication of that.
Q. Okay. And I'm going to turn to -- two, three, four, five, six, seven -- I'm going to turn to page seven and put that up, with the Court's permission.
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: And again, this is of 5110.
Excuse me.
This form, are you familiar with this particular form?
A. Yes.
Q. How many years have you worked for West Covina?
A. This is my first year with West Covina.
Q. Have you worked elsewhere?

A. Yes.
Q. During your year, have you become familiar with these forms at the West Covina Jail?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And is that one of the standard forms?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And it says, “County of Los Angeles Sheriff’s Department.” Does West Covina have a independent -- an independent police department, or is it part of the sheriff --

A. Independent police department.

Q. And is the jail facility run by the sheriff or the police?

A. Police department.

Q. Okay. So for some reason you’re using an L.A. County Sheriff’s Department Medical Receiving Screening Form; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that’s something you use in the ordinary course of business there, right?

A. Right.

Q. And what is the purpose of this particular form?

A. Basically to screen the incoming in-custodies to make sure there are no medical problems that you need to be aware of.

Q. Can you go a little closer to the right microphone there? Everyone has this problem, especially when we ask you to turn around. Sorry. All right. So, you want to find out if an inmate comes in and they’re suffering from any kind of injury; is that right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Because you want to make sure that they either have medical attention or something happens so they’re not just put in the jail and have a further problem, right?

A. Right.

Q. If somebody was severely beaten, for instance, you would want to know that when you book them in, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. The first question on this form is, “Do you require any medical attention?" And in Janet Arvizo's case, it's checked "No"; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And then at the bottom of this form, there is a place there for "Inmate Signature"; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And I know you're not a handwriting expert, but you would expect that the inmate, in this case Janet Arvizo, is the one that signed there; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And before somebody's booked into the jail, unless they're unconscious or something else is going on, they're required to sign this form in the presence of an officer; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. Okay. Now, if we look at the page preceding that, there's a form here entitled, "Officer's observations"; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And is this also a form that's used in the ordinary course of business there at the West Covina City Jail?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And what is the purpose of this form?

A. The same as the previous form. It's just more in-depth, to see if there's any observation that the jailer or officer would have indicating injuries.

Q. And who is the one that actually fills out this form?

A. The jailer.

Q. Okay. And the jailer is somebody whose job it is to take people in and process them into the jail; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. So when you have somebody -- when you say "jailer," you have a booking officer who's assigned to take people in, fill out their paperwork, correct?

A. Right.

Q. And that person is also supposed to observe the individual to see if they have any visible signs of injury, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And they look not only for actual injury, but they look for symptoms of drug withdrawal, mental illness issues, other issues; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And once again, they are concerned to make sure that they're not checking somebody in who has injuries that may not be readily visible; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. All right. In this -- in this particular case, it says, "Deputy Completing the Form," and there's a deputy's name there; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. With a badge number or employee number?

A. Yes.

Q. And that would be -- that would indicate that that individual, whoever it is, did that screening when Janet Arvizo came into the jail, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And it says the form is "Approved By" -- it looks like a doctor down there. Does that mean the doctor actually conducted an examination of the person?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. All right. So the doctor signs off in general, saying that, you know, he's looked at the form and it looks okay, and this -- as he goes through this night's paperwork, it looks okay; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And in this particular case for Janet Arvizo, there is a "No" checked in each of the categories on the form; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And the way it works there, if you have a "No" in every category, that means that the person doing the actual booking has not seen any indication that there's anything physically wrong with the person or anything that would require medical or psychiatric attention at that time; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

MR. SANGER: If you could leave it on for just one second.

Q. All right. And then there are also other questions -- and I'm going to turn to another page in just a second. But there are other questions that are asked to evaluate a person's mental level -- let me withdraw that.

There are other questions that are asked to determine a person's level of mental functioning; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. So you want to see if you have someone who's developmentally disabled who may, you know, not really be understanding what's going on; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And again, in this case, it appeared that Miss Arvizo was, according to the records, was functioning at an appropriate level; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Then there's a property inventory showing what property was on the person's -- on the person of the individual who was being booked into jail; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. Now, is there also a process for obtaining a booking photo?

And just as the lights go on, that's what I'm going to put up. Anyway, if I may, Your Honor, I'm going to put up the booking photo.

Is there a process for obtaining a booking photo?

A. Do you mean during the booking process?

Q. Yes.

A. It’s just done during the course of the booking.

Q. Yes. Okay. So during the booking, you take a photograph of the individual, correct?

A. Right.

Q. And in this case there is a photograph as part of the records, here, of the West Covina City Jail, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And if there were particular -- let me withdraw that.

If you had an individual who had -- well, let me withdraw that and just put this up. This is the last page of the exhibit.

Is that a true and correct copy of the booking photo that was taken at the time that Miss Arvizo was arrested?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And by the way, both Mr. and Mrs. Arvizo, both Janet and David Arvizo, show as their residence address 12643 Ramer in El Monte; is that correct?

A. I don’t have her copy in front of me, but his address shows that.

Q. All right. Let me show you this. And I’ll just put it up on the board, if I may.

A. Yes, it shows the same address.

MR. SANGER: Excuse me one second. I think somebody was trying to get my attention.

(Discussion held off the record at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: Okay. And, Your Honor, I think I offered both and they were received; is that correct?

THE COURT: That’s correct.

MR. SANGER: So I have no further questions. Thank you.

THE COURT: Are there Social Security numbers on that?

MR. ZONEN: We’ll take a look at it. If there are, we’ll delete it.

MR. NICOLA: There are; halfway down on the left.

MR. SANGER: Oh, there is. Hard to read. I apologize, I put it up. I don’t know if I got that whole thing up there.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Do you know if Miss Arvizo was actually put into a jail cell?

A. I don’t know that.

Q. If somebody is arrested and kept for less than two hours on a misdemeanor, where are they processed?

A. They may be placed in a cell temporarily.

Q. Okay. Is there a reception center that they would be taken to?

A. There is.

Q. So they wouldn’t go through the whole process of actually changing clothes into the jail garb, would they?

A. Not for a misdemeanor.

Q. Not for a misdemeanor.

And do you know if she was released on O.R., own recognizance, or she posted bail of any kind?

MR. SANGER: Objection; relevance.

I’m sorry. Objection; relevance.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: This appears to be a fairly prompt processing of an inmate; would that be your opinion?

A. It would be.

MR. ZONEN: All right. I have no further questions.

MR. SANGER: I have just one question, I think, just to clear this up.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. You said they are booked on misdemeanors; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And a misdemeanor is a crime?
A. Yes.

Q. It's not like a traffic violation. It's an actual crime in California; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. I'll reask the question. Was she released on O.R. or did she post a bond?
MR. SANGER: Objection; relevancy.
MR. ZONEN: It's relevant given the last question.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. ZONEN: No further questions.
MR. SANGER: And obviously no further questions.
THE COURT: You may step down.
Call your next witness.
MR. SNEDDON: I'll call George Erwin.
THE COURT: Come forward, please. When you get to the witness stand here, remain standing.
Face the clerk over here and raise your right hand.

GEORGE ERWIN
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.
THE WITNESS: My name is George Erwin.
G-e-o-r-g-e, E-r-w-i-n.
THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SNEDDON:
Q. Good morning, Mr. Erwin.
A. Good morning.

Q. And the microphone that you want to use is the one over there. Yes, sir. And lean into it, because we'll want everybody to hear what you have to say.

You have a business in the Los Angeles area, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And what is the name of that business?

A. It's Dino's Moving & Storage.

Q. And how long have you been associated with Dino's Moving & Storage?

A. Oh, 25, 30 years.

Q. It's a family business?

A. It's a family business.

Q. Passed on to you and your brother?

A. Correct.

Q. And where is this? Give you a little free advertising. Where is it located?

A. It's in North Hollywood.

Q. So could you give us a brief description of what the nature of this moving and storage business is that you have?

A. We are a third-generation family business, referral-based, residentially oriented. We move homes, and store as incidental to moving. We do packing and relocating of homes.

Q. And when you are asked to store items, do you have a storage facility that you use to do that?

A. Yes, we do.

Q. Is that located at your headquarters?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And could you just describe generally to the ladies and gentlemen of the jury what your storage facilities are?

A. Our storage facility is a 12,500-square-foot concrete tilt-up warehouse. It's a state-of-the-art building. It is high security; motion detectors; wired into the police and the fire department. Inside the warehouse, we have hundreds of vaults. Vaults are large wooden cubes approximately five feet by seven feet by eight feet tall. They stack three high. We have approximately 330 vaults in the warehouse.

Q. Okay. Now, were you asked to come to court here today and to bring some records in connection with the storage of some items under the name of an individual by the name of Bradley Miller?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And did you bring your file?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And you have the original documents in the file; is that correct?

A. I do.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Your Honor, may I approach?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: I'm just going to show them to counsel.

MR. SANGER: I don't want to interfere with counsel, but would it be appropriate for me to look at them at the same time?

MR. SNEDDON: I was going to bring them to you.

MR. SANGER: Oh. Then that's even better.
If I could have just a moment, Your Honor.
May I just have a second?

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SNEDDON: All right. Your Honor, with the permission of counsel, I believe that -- let me ask the witness for foundation, and then we'll just make the offer.
Your Honor, I'm going to have a set of documents marked as People's No. 904 for identification purposes. Where shall I put it?

Q. Mr. Erwin, you were kind enough to bring your original documents on the Bradley Miller file to the court, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. You also made copies of the originals that are in your file, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And have you had a chance to compare the copies that you made with the originals in your file?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. And they’re accurate with regard to the -- they’re accurate with regard to the originals. They’re duplications of it, correct?

A. Yes, they are.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I would move --

Q. And these are kept in the normal course of business at your establishment?

A. Yes.

Q. And they’re prepared at or about the time of the transaction?

A. Correct.

Q. And they’re used in the conduction of business for you; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I would move that Exhibit 904 be admitted. And we used the copies and we’ll allow the witness to take the originals back to his office.

MR. SANGER: With the exception of the word “conduction,” I would not have an objection.

THE COURT: They’re admitted.

And the agreement is you may take the originals back.

MR. SANGER: I would like the witness to keep the originals there until I finish cross-examination.

THE COURT: Exactly.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: I’ll try not to use any more bad grammar in my questions to you.

All right. Your Honor, is the Elmo on the right -- it should be, I think.

Mr. Erwin, I’m going to put these documents up and just ask you a few quick questions about it, all right?

A. All right.

Q. And you have the originals in front of you, so if you need to look at them, but I think you should be able to see from the board.

The first document I'm going to place up has the actual tag "904" on it.

Now, with regard to this document, does this document have a title?

A. Yes. This is a bill of lading.

Q. And what purpose does it serve?

A. It serves as a -- an accounting of where we -- of origin and destination, and a time ruler across the top for the time of arrival, time at a location, transportation time to destination or next pick-up or delivery. So it's a time accounting and geographical locations.

Q. All right. If we could just scoot that document down a little farther so we could see the top of it.

No, the other way.

All right. It has a No. 5020 in the upper right-hand corner. What is that? That's just the receipt number?

A. That's just random printing -- it's a random print number. When these are printed, they routinely do sequential numbers.

Q. Underneath that is a date, or is a series of numbers, "3-1-03." What is that?

A. That would be the date of the -- that this activity took place.

Q. And then on the left-hand side of the exhibit, "From," has the name "Brad Miller." Would that be the person that you were doing business with?

A. That's correct.

Q. And underneath that is an address that's on Soto Street, and an apartment number. What would that indicate?

A. That would be the pick-up location.

Q. Okay. And then where it says, "To," what does that information indicate?

A. The "DMS" is our in-house -- it stands for Dino's Moving & Storage. The Lot No. 439, which is a number -- it's comparable to an account number that we assign whenever we bring a lot into storage.

Q. Okay. And then there is a part of the form that is not prefabricated or preprinted, with a “CK#1477.” What does that indicate, if you know?

A. That means that the charges on the bill of lading were paid with that check number.

Q. Okay. Now, on -- where it indicates “From: Brad Miller,” there is information there with a name and a phone number. What is the purpose of that information?

A. That’s a contact name, where it says, “See Asaf,” I believe.

Q. Okay.

A. Apparently they’re a representative of Brad Miller’s or -- or I don’t know. That would be the contact person to see there.

Q. Okay. Let’s go to the next document. And this one, what is this particular document?

A. All right. This is a service agreement. It goes hand in hand with the bill of lading. And it -- it simply -- it states the -- as a service contract, it states the itinerary for the job, which would be in this case a pick-up location, and bringing the shipment to Dino’s Storage. It’s assigned as Lot No. 439. States the hourly rate at which we’ll proceed.

Q. Okay. And this was also filled out on March 1st of 2003, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. All right. Let’s go to the next document. This document has a “5025” at the upper right-hand corner and a series of numbers, “3-5-02,” underneath it. What is this document?

A. This is another bill of lading that was issued for a continuation of the job.

Q. Now, I noticed that the first document had “03” and this one appears to have “02.” Is that a “2” or a “3”?

A. Right, we do not use those numbers in our system.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. You’re referring to the “5025” in the top right-hand corner?

Q. I’m referring to the “3-5” and what appears to be “02.”

A. Well, it should be “03.” I don’t know if it’s an error or it’s just illegible.

Q. But this transaction, this series of transactions, occurred in ‘03, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Now, on this particular document is another group of writings that are placed on it, and it looks like a dollar sign.

What does that information on the right-hand -- middle right-hand side of the document indicate?

A. That’s payment information again.

Q. For the services you provided?

A. Correct.

Q. The payment by check?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Let’s go to the next document.

May I approach the witness for a moment, Your Honor? It appears that there’s one page missing.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Perhaps I could have a moment, too, so I can figure out what’s going on.

MR. SNEDDON: I’ll show counsel what I think is missing from the exhibit.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Erwin, in your original documents -- well, let me put it this way. Let me just do it so we have it in evidence.

That’s good. Well, drop it just a little bit. There.

This document has a “No. 439” in the upper right-hand corner, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And it has a date of “3-1-03” on it,

correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Could we scoot the exhibit up just a little bit? All the way, so we -- okay. Keep going. All right. That's good.

All right. Now, the information that's contained on the bottom portion of this exhibit that is part of 904, what is this information?

A. That is an inventory of the items that we picked up.

Q. Now, what I want to ask you is, it appears on the right-hand side that there's -- it says, "Pick-up, 3-4-03." Do you see that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Was there more than one pick-up of goods at this particular location?

A. There were two -- there were two pick-ups.

Q. When was the first one?

A. The first one was on 3-1-03, and the second one was on 3-5-03.

Q. Okay. Now --

A. So that should read "3-5-03" for the second pick-up there.

Q. Now, is there a document in your original files that reflects just what was picked up the first day, on 3-1-03?

A. Well, that document shows that.

Q. That shows -- okay.

Let me approach, if I might, Your Honor, just so counsel and I can get this straightened out.

(Whereupon, an off-the-record discussion was held between Mr. Sneddon and the witness at the witness stand.)

MR. SANGER: I was going to say, could we do it on the record so we all hear it, I guess is what I was going to ask.

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to have a document marked as 905 for identification purposes, Your Honor. I'll show it to counsel.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SNEDDON: May I approach the witness and ask him some questions about Exhibit 905, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Erwin, do you recognize the exhibit that I've shown you as 905?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Do you find the original of that document, 905, in your file presently, currently?

A. Yes. I have the original document that this was copied from after the first stage in the development of the original.

Q. Okay. Would that be the exhibit that's on the board right now?

A. No, sir, that is -- the exhibit on the board now is a complete document. This is a copy after the first pick-up. It's a copy of what -- of the inventory at the time of the first pick-up.

Q. Okay. So that document -- go ahead.

A. And before we were called back to -- for the second pick-up.

Q. So that document - and by "that," I mean 905 - reflects the items that were picked up on the first occasion, on March 1st?

A. Yes.

Q. All right.

A. I probably -- I probably made a copy -- when I knew that this original was going to go back out for a continuation of additional items, as a caution, I made a copy of the original for myself --

Q. Okay.

A. -- to keep in the office, which I don't have in my file because you have it.

Q. Thank you for sharing.

MR. SANGER: The problem is, I don't have it either, so I'm just a little bit lost here. Perhaps I could have just a moment with counsel to ask a question off the record?

THE COURT: All right.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Mr. Erwin, the document that you have in your hand is 905, and that reflects the items that were picked up on the first time, on March 1st, 2003, correct?
A. That’s correct.
Q. All right. Now, the item that’s on the board that the ladies and gentlemen of the jury are now viewing, that is a compilation of what was picked up on both the first time and the second time; is that correct?
A. That’s correct.
Q. And that’s an itemization, correct?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. And I noticed that in the column to the far left of each of those items, there’s a little “X.” Do you see that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. What is the purpose of that “X” on the document?
A. That “X” is -- is -- is placed there when the item is checked off at the time that it leaves storage.
Q. Okay. So when you release these items, that’s how you determine and document what you gave back?
A. That’s correct. It’s checked off as it goes out of storage.

Q. All right. Now, does your file reflect the date in which these items were released?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was that date?
A. That would be October 1st, 2003.
Q. And that would be to a Major Jay Jackson and a Janet Arvizo, correct?
A. That’s correct.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, if I haven’t, I move that 905 be admitted into evidence.
MR. SANGER: I have a problem. As far as I can tell, it wasn’t provided in discovery, and it’s not -- it’s a copy that seems to be a fax Xeroxed copy of something that’s not in the witness’s file. So I’d like to have an opportunity to get a copy of it, number one, and number two, ask some questions before that's received.

THE COURT: All right. I'll withhold ruling until he's had a chance to ask some questions.
MR. SNEDDON: That's fair enough.
Judge, has 904 been moved into evidence?
THE CLERK: Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: It has?
THE CLERK: Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: Thank you, ma'am.
I have no further questions, Your Honor.
MR. SANGER: To expedite -- this is yours.

This is mine. Okay.
Excuse me one second. This is the entire exhibit here, 904?
MR. SNEDDON: As far as I know.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Fine.
Your Honor, could I ask to retrieve 905 and see if there's somebody available, with the Court's permission, to make a copy for both the parties? It might make it easier.
THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.
MR. SANGER: Could the court staff do it?
The D.A.'s offered, but whatever is quickest.
THE COURT: That's what I say. Whatever is quickest.
MR. SANGER: It's been returned to me to hand to the bailiff, and --
THE BAILIFF: Just one of each?
MR. SANGER: No. Two. One for each side, for two of us.
THE BAILIFF: It will be on yellow paper.
THE COURT: Yes.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. Let me ask you a few questions here while we get that copied, and then we'll go through some of your documents with a couple other questions.
First of all, I think you said you're the owner and the proprietor of Dino’s Moving & Storage; is that correct?

A. That’s right.

Q. And you mentioned it’s a family business?

A. Yes.

Q. This is a business that belonged to your parents at one time?

A. My Uncle Dino.

Q. Your Uncle Dino?

A. Yeah.

Q. All right. And your brother and you now are the principals in the business?

A. Yes, we are.

Q. And how long has the place been in existence?

A. The facility that we’re currently at?

Q. The business.

A. The business? Well, it started with grandpa in the ‘50s, and Dino jumped in in the late ‘60s. John and I got involved in early to mid-’70s.

Q. All right. And from what I gathered from the way you started out, you’re rather proud of the business?

A. We are.

Q. Good.

A. We’re very successful. We’re referral-based only.

Q. I heard that, and I was going to ask about that. You’re saying referral-based. So you don’t really put out a lot of advertisements. You get referrals from satisfied customers and others; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And you are bonded and licensed; is that right?

A. We’re licensed by the State of California Public Utilities Commission.

Q. In order to maintain that license, do you have to meet certain standards?

A. Yeah, definitely, you must comply with the minimum requirements for insurance, property -- property and liability insurance, as well as workers' comp.

Q. And if you maintain a professional operation, you can keep your license, I take it?

A. Yes.

Q. And you have kept your license with the Public Utilities Commission of the State of California for how long?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object to this as being immaterial and irrelevant.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Oh, we -- our current license was obtained in 1984, and it's been in place since then.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. And do you have to -- when you say "insurance," I asked about bonded. You have to have adequate insurance to cover any liability for any malfeasance on the part of Dino's, if there is any; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And your job -- well, let me put it this way: The work of Dino's Moving & Storage is to assist people in actually moving from one location to another in some cases; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. So you have moving vans, and you have movers who do their thing; is that right?

A. That's it.

Q. And you also have the storage facility you told us about where you can store people's valuables for them; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Now, in this particular situation, you've looked at your records, which you brought with you, and it appears that there was an initial engagement of your services for the date of March the 1st, 2003, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And there were services performed on that date; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell us what services were performed?

A. Items 1 through 20 on the inventory were picked up. They were tagged, inventoried, loaded onto the truck, and stored in the warehouse.

Q. All right. So if I put up page four of the exhibit, which I'll just move to the top there, this is your warehouse receipt; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And so you said Items 1 through 20. Do we have our pointer?

A. No, it would be 1 through 19. And Number 20 would be the starting number on March 5th.

Q. All right. So what we see here, it is blurry. Either that or my vision is going, here. But right down this line here, it says 1 through, and it -- apparently the first number is cut off, but that would be 19 right there.

A. Yes.

Q. It says, "Small box"?

A. Correct.

Q. And then somebody wrote a "2" in next to the zero on this; is that correct?

A. Right. That's how we use this form.

Q. All right. On your original, is it cut off, or is that the way -- it just goes 1 through 10 repeatedly. I guess it does, doesn't it?

A. It's -- it goes 1 through -- yeah, 1 through 10 without the 1.

Q. 1 through zero and then 1 through zero?

A. Right.

Q. So now that I figured that out -- all right. And it isn't cut off. It's just not there. So this one right above the 20 is where it cut off?

A. That was the last item on 3-1-03.

Q. Okay. The people that went to move this out of the location were there for how long; do you know?

A. I need to reference the bill of lading and I can tell you.

Q. So would that be -- let me guess. Is that this one?

A. Yes, that’s the one.

Q. That’s the one, okay. So the people who came to do this move would have come to the apartment on Soto Street, right?

A. Correct.

Q. With a truck, and they would have picked up whatever is there, correct?

A. Yes. They arrived at 8:15. They loaded until 9:30. They drove to the warehouse, stopped for 15 minutes to -- for a break, and unloaded at the warehouse from 10:30 to 11:00.

Q. All right. I was just pointing up there, so I want to make sure I got this right. This is -- do you count portal to portal? In other words, they start the clock running when they drive from the warehouse to the location?

A. No, generally -- well, yes, with storage -- with storage we do.

Q. All right. So 8:15 is when they would have left the warehouse, correct?

A. 8:15 is when they arrived at origin.

Q. So you have some other time showing when they --

A. Right. Seven o’clock.

Q. Okay.

A. There’s a little -- there’s an indication at seven o’clock with a “WH” above the time ruler. That’s the time they left the warehouse.

Q. You’re looking at the original, and you can read what I’m showing with the pointer. There is “WH,” warehouse, “7:00.” 8:15 is the time that they arrive at the location?

A. Correct.

Q. And then they load from 8:15 to 9:30, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then 9:30 to 10:15 is driving back to the warehouse?

A. Yes.

Q. And they take a break, represented by the “X,” correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then they offload the materials from 10:00 -- what is it? 10:30 to 11:00, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, when you look back at this -- do you charge for packing if your people have to go pack stuff up?

A. Yes, we do.

Q. Can you tell whether or not your people had to pack stuff up?

A. It doesn't look like it, because there's no materials listed on this bill of lading in the section to itemize materials.

Q. Yes. If you look up here on the bill of lading, this area, you would have packing materials and that sort of thing; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. And when you look at page four, which I'm putting up again with the Court's permission --

THE COURT: Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: If I may do it retrospectively, it appears that the first five items there, it says, "Wardrobe"; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So that would represent things that are in a wardrobe kind of a box; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And then you have 6 through 10, it says, "Small box." So it indicates things were packed in small boxes; is that right?

A. Right. And No. 11 is a large box.

Q. Okay.

A. And No. 12's a four-foot-five cubic-foot box. Number 11 and 12 are large boxes. 13, 14 are -- well, 13 is a dining table. 14 and 15 are dining chairs. 16 is a picture. And 17's a picture. 18's a large box. 19's a small box.

Q. All right. Now, as a part of being licensed and taking pride in your business, you would expect your employees to accurately record what they load on and off the truck, correct?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And you would expect them to deliver to the destination, in this case the warehouse, exactly what it is that they picked up when they got to the place where they're picking the things up, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, I don't mean to insult you, but, I mean, that's an important part of your business, is making sure --

A. Absolutely.

Q. All right. Now, this other document, which was marked as 905, it hasn't been admitted yet, do you have any idea where that came from?

A. It's likely that I made a copy of this inventory when I knew that -- that we were going to have to go back to get -- to finish the job. And so subsequent to -- well, no, prior to sending this document, this original document inventory, I made a copy of the -- of the inventory as it -- as it existed on -- after 3-1 and prior to 3-5.

Q. So --

A. Because --

Q. But you didn't keep a copy in your file?

A. Well, I did. And that's where that came from. But I was visited by a couple of gentlemen from the District Attorney's Office that asked for copies of my file. And it seems to me that I gave them that copy without noticing that it was not a complete copy.

Q. In any event --

A. I probably assumed at the time that -- well, here's a copy of the inventory in my file. You can have this one, rather than making a copy. I had over -- it seems to me that I must have overlooked the fact that that was a copy of -- a freeze frame picture in the middle of the job, after Stage 1 and before Stage 2.

Q. That's okay. That's fair enough. I'm just trying to find out, because it's obviously -- we want to make sure it's accurate here.

And you're basically saying, now that you compare it, it looks like that was the freeze frame after the first move, right?

A. Right. And I can also tell there's something on that document that's not on the original, which is -- it has a fax stamp across the top, and it has a signature under -- where the contract signature belongs in the middle of the page, where it says, "Per G.E."

Q. Yes.
A. "G.E." are my initials. My foreman, who executed Stage 1 here, on the -- March 1st, got a signature in the bottom left-hand corner, but didn't get a signature in the middle of the page where the "X" is. So I put "Per G.E.," acting on behalf of Brad Miller, who hired me to do this job. And subsequently I must have faxed that copy to Brad Miller to have him sign the contract line, because it's signed on that copy.
Q. Okay. Is Brad Miller a personal friend of yours, by the way?
A. No.
Q. Was he just a customer?
A. I don't know him.
Q. Don't know him at all?
A. No. I know his assistant was a long-time client of Dino's.
Q. Long-time client of your company?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. I couldn't hear what you said. All right. But you didn't know Brad Miller himself. All right. So the mystery is going to come to a close here somehow or another. This is the page from 904 and it shows, "Per G.E."

Your Honor, I'm going to withdraw my objection to the admission of 905.
THE COURT: All right. It's admitted.
MR. SANGER: And then I'll ask to put it up, if I may.
THE COURT: Well, all right. Go ahead.
MR. SANGER: Is that all right? Okay.

Q. What I'm going to try to do is put it up next to this, so we get this over with here, if we can. Is that all right?

THE COURT: The only reason that I hesitated was the District Attorney was going to put it up and ask some questions, and you requested to ask him some questions before that, so if he has no objection, then --

MR. SNEDDON: I'll defer to counsel, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. So -- all right.

Q. If we put this up, that's as wide as it gets here, so I'm going to slide it over. But on the right is 905, and on the left is the page from 904, and you can see here what you were talking about when you say this seems to be a freeze frame. It doesn't have the other items listed. It just goes up to 19. But it otherwise appears to be a copy or a faxed copy of the same document pretty much, right?

A. Right.

Q. Now, when you say "pretty much," it looks like somehow somebody got Brad Miller to sign this one, but he obviously didn't sign the original, because the original that had the new things added on it still doesn't have his signature on it, true?

A. True.

Q. If we look up here, though, it appears that this is actually a copy of the document in progress, because it has the same notations, the same slant of the writing and all that, right?

A. It is.

Q. Okay. There we go.

Now, the significance of this, I suppose, is that on 3-1, 905 is what happened, and we went over this with the boxes. So pretty much a bunch of boxes were picked up, a table, some chairs and a couple pictures, right?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And it appears from this that somebody had already prepared this house for -- or this apartment for a move, and had boxed material up; is that correct?

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Calls for a conclusion and speculation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: In any event, it appears that somebody had boxed things or at least there were things in boxes by the time your people arrived?

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object to that also. No foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: You indicated if your people had boxed things, that you would have had a notation on the --

A. Only if we used our materials. If there were existing materials there, which oftentimes when people are relocating they have some materials.

Q. All right. So --

A. So I wasn't there myself personally. So I don't know -- yeah, I don't know.

Q. So you don't know, all right. Whatever it was, the loading -- according to 904, the loading and if there was any packing, would have occurred between -- now I can't see anymore. What is that? -- 8:15 and 9:30, right?

A. Yes. It would -- if there was any packing, it would be incidental to loading.

Q. Okay. Now, it appears that on -- let's see, which one is which?

Yes, on page four of 904, there's a notation there, "3-4-03," and there's other documentation in here that indicates that actually the pick-up occurred on 3-5-03; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. So your understanding, looking at all the documents, is there was an initial move of boxed materials and a couple tables, some chairs, a couple pictures on 3-1.

And then 3-4, somebody came back, your people came back and picked up a number of other items; is that correct?
A. The actual pick-up, the second pick-up, was on 3-5.
Q. I'm sorry, on 3-5. It says "3-4," but your other records show it was actually 3-5?
A. Right.
Q. All of this went to your warehouse, then, on 3-5, right?
A. The second half went on 3-5.
Q. So all of it was in your warehouse by 3-5?
A. That's correct.
Q. And it was locked up and secure there?
A. It was secured in vaults.
Q. Was there any indication that anybody had come to look at it or tamper with it between the time it was placed there in early March and later when it was removed?
A. No.
Q. And when was it removed?
A. On October 1st, 2003.

Q. And you would not have expected, based on the professional running of your business, that anybody would have tampered with this material in any way from the time it was delivered to you to the time that it was picked up; is that correct?
A. It's not possible.
Q. So I said "Is that correct"? You're agreeing with me; is that --
A. That's -- yes.
Q. You're saying it's not possible that anybody would have tampered with it in between?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, vague as to time as to what "in between" is.
MR. SANGER: I'm sorry, I'm clarifying the same question, but let me reask it so we have a good question.
Q. Between the time that the materials were delivered to you and the time when they were picked up by Janet Arvizo, or by Janet, whatever her name was at the time, Janet and Jay Jackson, in that time period was the material that was stored tampered with in any way?

A. No.

Q. Now, when you provide movers for moving purposes, do you ever provide cleaning services?

A. No.

Q. So --

A. We clean up our -- we pick up our own milk cartons.

Q. So if you have movers come in and they bring their lunch, they'll take their lunch and the bag, or whatever, and throw it away, right?

A. We hope they will.

Q. Okay. But you don't -- you don't have somebody come in with a vacuum cleaner and vacuum the apartment?

A. Generally not.

Q. Is that possible that could happen, or --

A. It's possible. But I know most of our men would not want to do that.

Q. All right.

A. Because they're movers.

Q. Is there anything in your file to indicate that there was -- there were cleaning services that were provided?

A. Nothing to indicate that.

MR. SANGER: All right. Now, with any luck, did we get the disk?

It would have been the CD version of that.

(Discussion off the record.)

MR. SANGER: I apologize, Your Honor, but we're trying to find the DVD of the moving and we're honing in on it.

I would accept any assistance from the prosecution if they know.

MR. SNEDDON: If I know what? I know a lot of things, but --

MR. SANGER: The number of the exhibit on the move.

MR. SNEDDON: The surveillance move?

MR. SANGER: The move of the items or --

MR. ZONEN: I think it’s 817 or near 817. It’s near 813 to 817.

(Discussion off the record.)

MR. SANGER: I wonder if we could do this, Your Honor. What I’d like to do, there were two copies of this, if I’m not mistaken. One was received and the other wasn’t.

THE COURT: They can’t hear.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Let’s see if we can use our time wisely here.

What I’d like to do is play the tape of the move that’s already been introduced into evidence. We’re just having a little difficulty making sure we have the right tape.

Could I defer to Mr. Sneddon to go ahead with his redirect, if any, and then try to do this at the break?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, first of all, I -- I object to the showing of this. He’s indicated he wasn’t there, and he indicated his people don’t do any clean-up services. So what’s the relevancy of showing this to this witness?

MR. SANGER: There are two employees who appear to be movers. There’s a third person who appears to be a cleaner, but I just want to establish these are his people who were doing this move.

THE COURT: You’re not going to show the whole video?

MR. SANGER: No, we don’t need to show the whole thing. I just need to show a clip of it so he can look at it and tell us those are his people doing the job.

THE COURT: Do you want to do your other -- do you have any other examination?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, I do.

THE COURT: All right. Would you accommodate him by doing that until the break?

MR. SNEDDON: I would, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. All right. Mr. Erwin, we placed back up on the board --

If we could have the lights, Your Honor, please.

-- one of the documents containing your file, and this is the one from 3-5-02, but you really say it is ‘03, with the number “5025” at the top.

Does this particular bill indicate that there were in fact boxes purchased, or that you charged people for, for packing during the course of this particular move?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So it looks like, to me, there was at least two and perhaps a third -- a fifth one down here?

A. There’s two small boxes, two medium boxes, and one roll of tape.

Q. Okay. So that’s tape. When I say it says “1,” that word is “tape”; is that right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Okay. So there were four boxes that were used?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, if we could, I want the item, the inventory items, please.

Thank you.

All right. Now, on the inventory items that show all of the items collected over the two-day process, do you see -- first of all, it looks like there were some chairs taken, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And a scooter?

A. A scooter, yes.

Q. And a refrigerator?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay.

A. And a mattress.

Q. And a mattress.

Now, with regard to the items that -- take a second to review your original there, if you have to, but do you see any plants at all that were taken?

A. No.

Q. So there was -- no plants were taken during the time that you went to the -- your movers were there?

A. There’s none on the inventory here.

Q. Okay.

A. And they wouldn’t live well in the warehouse.

Q. I understand that. Would you have ordinarily taken them, though?

A. Not to our warehouse.

Q. What would you have done with them?

A. Sometimes we do transport plants over to another location along the way. Some people will keep their plants at a friend’s house while we put their belongings in storage, if there are nice outdoor plants in planters that they want to keep.

Q. So if there were plants, let’s say, for instance, at this particular location, would your workers unilaterally either leave those plants there or throw them out? Do you know what your directions and your policy would be on that, if the owner has not made any arrangements with you?

A. We -- we’re working for -- whatever the client requests. That’s what we would do.

Q. So if --

A. If they want them left, we leave them. If they want them dropped off somewhere, we would do that. If they want us to carry them to a dumpster, I suppose we would do that for them. If they want us to take them to the warehouse, we would advise them that they’re not going to survive --

Q. All right.

A. -- in the warehouse.

MR. SNEDDON: Fair enough. No further questions. Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: The problem is, without putting it in the machine and looking at it, I'm not sure which is which. From the notations that we have, it appears to be Exhibit 813, but the DVD and the sleeve of 813 does not appear to be that which was described on the record. So we just need to look at it. I apologize, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Are the jurors going to object if they get an extra five minutes?

No? All right.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I have to recite something for the record.

I've talked to Mr. Sneddon about this and the clerk. In the transcript, at page 6335, there's a reference to playing a tape, Exhibit No. 813, and a further reference to the fact that that was the move from the house.

There's all sorts of possibilities as to what could have happened here, but it turns out that 813, as it's marked by the clerk, is an exhibit that did not come into evidence and is something else, okay?

As far as I can tell, it appears that 818 is in fact the exhibit previously referred to on the record as 813. So I think if we just recite it, we'll let the chips fall where they may.

THE COURT: The chips are someone misspoke and that's what happened, and thank you for correcting that.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

So 818 does show it was received into evidence, and this does purport to be the video of the house, so whatever the record shows before, that's what we're going to play now, if that's all right.

THE COURT: That's all right.

MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you.

What I'm going to do, with the Court's permission, is start it, just so the witness can see the very beginning, and then I'll fast-forward, and I'll just use fast-forward, because it's very shortly thereafter it shows the moving people, and then we'll go from there.

THE COURT: Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, People's Exhibit 818, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I'm going to pause here right at the beginning.

There's a gentleman there who seems to be doing some cleaning or something. Does he appear to be one of your employees?

A. No.

Q. All right. And we see a date of March the 5th, 2003, just for the record.

Let me now play, and I'm going to go ahead and fast-forward.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, People's Exhibit 818, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. SANGER: On the counter, we're now at 3:32. I'm going to freeze this for a second.

These gentlemen seem to have shirts that say "Dino's Moving & Storage." Are those your people?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know who they are from the back?

A. The foreground would be Joe Chavez, and the background is Carlos Solano.

Q. And Mr. Chavez and Mr. Solano, have they been employed by you for some time?

A. Quite some time. A few years.

Q. Are they trusted employees?

A. Very much.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, unless somebody wants me to play more, that's all I want to play.

THE COURT: Well, we're not going to take a vote on it, so --

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: Very well.

So I'm going to press "Stop" and take the thing out, and I have no further questions.

THE COURT: Anything further?

MR. SNEDDON: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

Now, the understanding was he can take his original records with him?

MR. SNEDDON: That’s correct, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: I also still don’t have a copy of what was originally in my file.

THE COURT: That one sheet?

THE WITNESS: The in-progress with the signature on it.

THE COURT: We can give you a copy of that right now, can’t we?

MR. SANGER: Yes. To save time, I’ll just give him my copy and I’ll have another one made.

MR. SNEDDON: I have a copy of the other one, so I’ll just give him mine and you can keep yours, and then we don’t have a problem.

MR. SANGER: Just for the record, so we’re clear, I am returning 818, in that envelope, to the clerk, along with the other exhibits.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

All right. Call your next witness.

MR. ZONEN: Theresa Marquez, please.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

Face the clerk over here and raise your right hand.

THERESA MARQUEZ

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated and state and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Theresa Marquez. T-h-e-r-e-s-a, M-a-r-q-u-e-z.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

MR. ZONEN: May I proceed?

THE COURT: Yes.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Miss Marquez, what is your current occupation?

A. Custodian of records at Kaiser Permanente in Baldwin Park, California.

Q. At what location, please?

A. Baldwin Park, California.

Q. Were you asked to make a determination as to whether or not there were medical records belonging to a Janet Arvizo --

A. Yes, we were.

Q. -- with a date of 8-28-98? In other words, a visit to the ER room at a Kaiser facility on 8-28-98?

A. That's correct.

Q. And in fact, were there records of that day?

A. Yes, there are.

Q. And which Kaiser facility is that?

A. Baldwin Park Medical Center.

Q. Where is the Baldwin Park Medical Center?

A. It's located in the City of Baldwin Park off the 10 freeway. You would get off on Baldwin Park Boulevard.

Q. And that's in Los Angeles County?

A. Los Angeles County.

Q. Did you make a copy of those records for us?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And do you have them with you?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Could we have those, please?

(Whereupon, an off-the-record discussion was held between Mr. Zonen and the witness at the witness stand.)

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. ZONEN: Could I approach the witness, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. I'm showing you now Exhibit No. 906. Is this in fact what you just handed me?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And are those in fact an accurate copy of the medical records from Kaiser Hospital?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. For that date of 8-28-98; patient, Janet Arvizo?

A. Correct.

MR. ZONEN: I would move to introduce those records into evidence.

THE COURT: They're admitted.

MR. SANGER: I'm sorry, Your Honor. I haven't quite had a chance to finish looking at them, if I could. We just received them.

MR. ZONEN: If I could go on with just a different question, then.

MR. SANGER: I don't mind if he goes ahead while I'm looking at them.

THE COURT: Okay. Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Can you tell us the time -- there's a registration time that's logged in these reports when a patient comes in; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. What does the registration time reflect?

A. This reads 1:11 a.m.

Q. 1:11 in the morning; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, what does that mean, "registration time"?

A. That's actually the time they come to the desk and they ask to see a physician, and they are actually checked into the ER.

Q. So that's the first time they actually meet with somebody at the hospital facility?

A. Correct.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. Subject to the introduction of this exhibit into evidence, I have no further questions.

MR. SANGER: And I'll submit it as far as the admission of the documents

THE COURT: All right. I'll admit the records.

MR. SANGER: I was doing too many things at once. What is the exhibit number, if I could ask, please?

THE CLERK: 906.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Okay. So it appears that this person came to Kaiser Permanente on the 28th at 1:11 in the morning; is that right?

A. That's the time that this member was checked in, yes.

Q. All right. So somebody -- are you familiar with this particular facility?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. So somebody walks into -- they can walk into the emergency room; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And they would be met by somebody who would assess their immediate need for medical assistance; is that correct?

A. Well, the procedure would be they would walk in. They would speak to the receptionist. Their medical record number would be taken. They would be asked a few questions. Then they'd be asked to be seated until a physician can come up to see them.

Q. So when they walk in and have that first contact, that would be the time of registration; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. So this person walked in shortly before 1:11 in the morning of the 28th?

A. Yes.

Q. And it appears, from the records, that the person was released that evening, right?

MR. ZONEN: I believe that may be a misstatement; vague. "Released that evening."

MR. SANGER: It was early in the morning, so however you want to put it.

Q. Early in the morning. It appears that the patient was released later that morning; is that correct?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. About what time?
A. The latest time I see on here is 4:15 for the last note.
Q. And it indicates at 4:15 in the morning, “DC’d,” right?
A. Yes.
Q. That’s “discharged”; is that correct?
A. That’s correct.
Q. “Discharged in good condition,” correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And she was prescribed aspirin?
A. I don’t know what she was prescribed. Not by this note. I believe the first page, we have a prescription of Motrin 400.

Q. Okay. That was at 2:45 she was given some Motrin?
A. I am looking at the first page which indicates a prescription of Motrin. Let’s see. It’s indicating that at 2:45, she was given Motrin.
Q. All right. And then when people come in at that time of the early morning, is that a fairly busy time for the emergency room, usually?
A. That’s difficult to say. We don’t have trends of busy times and slow times.
Q. Okay. I guess you can have a major problem, but that’s one of the times when you’re likely to see people coming into the emergency room, right?
A. You know, I really don’t want to say that that’s so, because in looking at the records, again, looking at trends, there isn’t a definite trend as to if it’s a peak time or not.
Q. Okay. If there are other people there, then the person has to wait?
A. Correct.
Q. And then they’re eventually seen by a physician; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And then it appears here that she was seen somewhere around 1:45?

A. Well, if you look at the first page on the top, after “Time Registered, Triage Time,” that’s when the nurse actually talked to her.

Q. The triage time was what? 1:15?

A. 1:15. And then they probably put her in a room until the physician can see her.

Q. So in the ordinary course of things, she eventually had some X-rays; is that right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And all of that came back negative?

A. “Normal study.”

Q. And then it -- and then it shows, “4:15, Discharged in good condition”?

A. Correct.

MR. SANGER: All right. Very good. No further questions.

MR. ZONEN: No further questions. And the exhibit is in; is that correct?

THE COURT: The exhibit is admitted.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

MR. ZONEN: We’ll call William Dickerman to the stand.

THE COURT: He’s recalled; is that correct?

MR. ZONEN: Yes. Re-call him. Thank you. Who’s doing Mr. Dickerman? Oh, okay.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

THE COURT: Come to the front of the courtroom. You were previously sworn. You may be seated.

WILLIAM DICKERMAN

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

MR. ZONEN: May I proceed, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. ZONEN: May I approach the witness?

THE COURT: Yes.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Mr. Dickerman, good afternoon. And we are just at good afternoon.

A. Good afternoon.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Microphone’s off.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. If the trial goes another four months, I will learn.

Q. Thank you for coming back. We have a few questions to ask you about a few exhibits.

You brought with you a collection of letters and communications; is that correct?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And I’d like to show you right now a collection of documents that’s before you that is now marked as People’s Exhibit No. 903; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And could you take a look at those very rapidly, just to assure yourself that those are the same documents or a copy of documents that you brought with you today; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And those are copies of documents that you have in your file?

A. Yes.

Q. And that file you brought with you today; is that right?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. So to the extent that you have actual copies, the actual copies you brought with you, and these are copies of copies?

A. I’ve also got originals that were faxed.

Q. And originals that were faxed; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, do these represent communications between you and an attorney by the name of Mark Geragos?

A. They sure do.

Q. You testified previously to some communications, and some of those letters were shown to you previously; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. But I’d like to specifically go over some of these letters and talk to you about how they were communicated specifically to Mr. Geragos; is that all right?

A. Sure.

Q. Let’s begin with the very first letter on this collection of documents that is marked 903. And this letter is dated March 26th, 2003. Is this a letter that you authored?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Is this a letter that you sent to Mr. Dickerman -- excuse me, Mr. Geragos?

A. I had it messengered to Mr. Geragos.

Q. All right. And explain what you mean by having had a messenger deliver it.

A. I or my secretary phoned Allstar Messenger Service, which is the attorney service/messenger service I’ve been using for about 15 years, put in an order, filled out a form, had them come over, told them to deliver it to Mr. Geragos, and they took it.

Q. All right. In this particular letter dated March 26th, 2003, do you refer to the passports and visas belonging to your clients, the Arvizos?

A. Yes, in paragraph two at the bottom of the first page.

Q. And the delivery service that you use and have been using for 15 years, is it your experience that they are reliable and responsible in delivering letters?

A. I don’t think I’ve had a problem with them in delivering anything in 15 years, whether it’s court documents or letters or anything else.

Q. Let’s please go to the next document on here, and that’s the one -- it’s about four pages in. It begins with “Allstar Messenger” is the heading on the top. That, plus the next page after that, what are those two documents?

A. The first document is my copy of the form that was filled out and given to the messenger service, along with the letter to be sent. So there are, I believe, three pages of it. The first one they take, and the last one is a pink copy. I have the original here, and that is what I kept for my files.

Q. And that also is dated March 26th, ‘03?

A. Yes.

Q. The second page is what, please?

A. The second page is the invoice from Allstar Messenger Service for that delivery, reflecting that I owe them $14.75 for delivering the letter to Geragos & Geragos.

Q. All right. Move to the next page, if you would, please. Is this a letter to Mr. Geragos as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And is the date on this April 3rd, 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. In this letter, do you reference a prior letter that you sent him?

A. Yes, I referenced the March 26th letter that I just testified about.

Q. And how was this letter, the April 3rd letter, delivered to Mr. Geragos?

A. That was by fax. On my fax machine to his fax machine.

Q. All right. Now, if you’ll turn to the next page, the page right after the April 3rd, 2003, letter, is that a facsimile transaction report?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Explain what that is, please.

A. Every time a fax is sent from my office, I get a report showing that the fax was received or it wasn’t received, and the reason if it wasn’t received.

Q. All right. Is this generated by your fax machine?

A. Yes, it is. It’s a machine that I had -- I no longer have, but I had it for 10, 12 years.

Q. All right. Was it your experience that when this machine tells you a fax has been transmitted, that it actually had been?
A. Always.
Q. Did you ever have an occasion where the machine told you the facsimile had been transmitted and in fact it hadn’t?
A. Never.

Q. Does this piece of paper now, and we’re dealing with the one that says April -- April 3 at 6:16 p.m., does this indicate that the fax that you had sent to Mr. Geragos on the 3rd of April in fact had been transmitted?
A. Yes.
Q. And at what time of the day was that?
A. It says 6:16. The fax machine always ran a couple minutes off, so it could have been 6:14 or 6:12, something like that.
Q. Go to the next page, please. Is the next page a cover letter from Geragos & Geragos, a fax cover sheet?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Does that contain Mr. Geragos’s fax number?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. All right. Is that in fact the same fax number that you sent the prior communication to?
A. Yes. It says that right on the transaction report.
Q. All right. And in fact, all of your communications sent to Mr. Geragos were sent to that same fax number; is that correct?
A. Yes. That’s correct.
Q. Let’s move to the next page. Is the next page a letter from Mr. Geragos dated April 6th, 2003?
A. Yes, it is.

Q. All right. Now, that’s two sentences, is it not?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you read it out loud to us?

A. “Dear Mr. Dickerman: Thanks for your letter of April 3, 2003” --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Hearsay. The letter -- the document speaks for itself.

THE COURT: It is speaking for itself. He’s just reading it.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

THE COURT: That’s how it talks.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Go ahead, Counsel.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead and please read it.

A. “Thanks for your letter of April 3, 2003. Please give me a call so that we can make arrangements.”

Q. Now, in your experience as an attorney, when you get a letter back from somebody else who thanks you for a letter dated a particular date, that tends to suggest that they got that letter; is that right?

A. In my experience, always.

Q. All right. Now, going back to your letter of April 3rd, 2003, let’s turn back a few pages, the letter that he acknowledges that you received --

A. That I -- oh, sorry.

Q. Do you have it in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. The letter of April 3rd, 2003, that he acknowledges that you received, what -- in the first sentence, what do you say in that letter?

A. “Dear Mr. Geragos: On March 26th, 2003, I wrote you and asked that you deliver certain items to my office by April 1.”

Q. You don’t have to go any further than that. That letter that he acknowledged receiving referred to the March 26th, 2003, letter, the one that demanded the passports and the visas; is that correct?

A. It’s the only letter I wrote on March 26th.

Q. All right. Now, let’s move on. We left off with Mr. Geragos’s letter to you that’s dated April 6th, 2003. Go to the next page, please. Is that next page a letter from you to Mr. Geragos dated April 8, 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you refer to passports, visas and birth certificates in that letter?

A. Yes. In the third paragraph.

Q. All right. How is this letter communicated to Mr. Geragos?

A. By fax machine to the same number as the others that I had faxed.

Q. And did you in fact keep a transaction report from your fax machine indicating whether it had been successfully faxed?

A. Yes. That’s the next document.

Q. And that’s the next page; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. That transaction report indicates what?

A. That on April 8th at 7:18 p.m., I faxed two pages to Mr. Geragos’s fax number, and that it was received.

Q. Okay. Let’s move on, please, to the next page. The next page is a letter from you dated April 9, 2003; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. This is also a letter to Mark Geragos; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Was this letter faxed to him?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that letter received by him, or at least was it -- did your fax machine indicate that it went through?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. In that letter of April 9, 2003, do you reference passports, visas and birth certificates?

A. Yes.

Q. Actually, you demand their return to your client; is that correct?

A. Yes, I asked that he, quote, “immediately deliver to me,” along with the documents you just mentioned, some other items.

Q. Now, the next page again, as we acknowledge, was the transaction report on the fax machine?

A. Yes.

Q. Please now go to April 11, 2003. Is that the next page?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that a letter from you to Mr. Geragos?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that faxed to him as well?

A. Yes. At the same number.

Q. And the transaction report indicates that that letter was processed as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Please move to the next one. We now have a letter from Mr. Geragos to you, April 15, 2003; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And that is a letter from Mr. Geragos that appears to be one sentence?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. What does that sentence read?

A. “We have retrieved various items from storage and would appreciate your advising us as to where they should be delivered.”

Q. Did Mr. Geragos up to this point, either by telephone or in any other communication, indicate to you anything about passports belonging to your clients, the Arvizos?

A. He -- in one conversation, I think it was on March 31st, I asked him about passports and visas, following up on the letter that -- well, when he called me, because he wanted additional time to respond to the March 26th letter, we talked about it briefly. He didn’t exactly know what I was talking about. I think he said that there were -- there were passports around that he had heard of, but he didn’t know what it was -- what that was about.

Q. Okay.

A. I understood he was going to find out and get back to me. He never did.

Q. Did he ever?

A. He never got back to me on that. He never responded to any of my letters asking for any of these items, except for items in the storage unit.

Q. Okay. Moving on to the next page, a letter dated April 22, 2003 --
A. Yes.
Q. -- is that a letter that you sent to Mark Geragos?
A. Yes.
Q. And this letter is dated April 22nd, 2003. Do you once again demand the return of their possessions, including their passports?
A. Yes.

Q. Was this letter delivered in some fashion to Geragos & Geragos?
A. It was faxed at about 2:17 p.m. to the same fax number as I previously stated, and it indicates that it was received.
Q. Okay. Move on to the next page, a letter dated May 12, 2003, from you to Mr. Geragos; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. In this letter, do you fax this letter to him?
A. Yes.
Q. And did your fax report, the next page in these documents, indicate that it was received?
A. Same as all the others, yes.
Q. Next letter, please, the next page. Is this a letter from Geragos & Geragos, from Mark Geragos to you?
A. Yes.
Q. And the date is May 15, 2003; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. In this letter, does he acknowledge receipt of a prior letter from you?
A. Yes, my letter dated May 12th.
Q. Does he refer to passports at all?
A. No.
Q. Move to the next one, please. May 15, 2003.

Is this a letter from you to Mr. Geragos?

A. Yes.

Q. And in this letter, do you once again ask him to return immediately your clients’ passports and birth certificates?

A. Yes. And the last sentence of the second paragraph, and you can see my frustration, because I underlined “immediately,” and I had been getting no response, so I was quite disturbed.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; move to strike.

THE COURT: I’ll strike the -- after “Yes.”

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: But the word “immediately” is, in fact, underlined; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, did you send this by facsimile?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you have a transaction report that indicates it was, in fact, processed?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Can you tell us when this letter was processed?

A. It says 4:33 p.m., May 15, to the same fax number.

Q. I’m sorry?

A. To the same fax number.

Q. Okay. The next page is a fax cover sheet from Mr. Geragos; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And the next page after that is a letter from Mr. Geragos back to you?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, the letter is dated, from Mr. Geragos to you, May 17, 2003; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Please read to us the first sentence of that letter.

A. “Thank you for your histrionic letter dated May 15, 2003.”

Q. Are communications getting a little testy at this point?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. But he acknowledges receiving the May 15, 2003, letter?

A. Yes.

Q. And the May 15, 2003, letter specifically demands the immediate return of your clients' passports and birth certificates; is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. Let's move on to the next, a letter from you dated May 20, 2003. You sent that to Mr. Geragos?

A. Yes, by fax.

Q. By fax. Again, the same fax number?

A. Identical.

Q. All of these are to the same identical fax number?

A. Yes.

Q. And you, once again, have a transaction report indicating that that letter was properly processed.

A. Yes.

Q. May 29, 2003, another letter from you to Mr. Dick -- from you to Mr. Geragos; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Properly faxed that same day, May 29. The next page is a letter from Mr. -- the cover sheet of a fax from Mr. Geragos to you; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then the next page after that is a letter from Mr. Geragos to you dated June 2nd, 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. It references your letter of May 29, 2003; is that correct?

A. In the first sentence.

Q. All right. Does not mention anything about passports, does it?

A. No.

Q. And finally, the last page of that is a document that appears to be a fax to you from Bradley Miller; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that's dated June 12th, 2003; is that correct?

A. Yes.
Q. Up until this facsimile was sent to you by Brad Miller, did they ever tell you where your clients’ possessions were?
A. No.
Q. Did Mr. Geragos or anybody from his office ever acknowledge the fact that there were passports that belonged to your client and were in his possession?
A. No.
MR. ZONEN: No further questions.
I will move to admit -- excuse me. One more second.
Q. Mr. Dickerman, the documents -- the copies that you have before you that are the collection, a complete -- let me do that one more time.
Exhibit 809 -- 803 --
A. 903.
Q. 903. It’s Friday, isn’t it? Thursday.
I’ll start again.
Exhibit No. 903, a collection of documents that are, in fact, communications between you and Mark Geragos, is this a complete collection of the letters that were sent by you to Mr. Geragos and returned from Mr. Geragos to you?
A. As far as I know, yes.
Q. And this is an accurate copy of each of these documents; is that right?

A. Yes.
MR. ZONEN: I would move to introduce into evidence Exhibit No. 903.
MR. MESEREAU: No objection.
THE COURT: It’s admitted.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Mr. Dickerman, I’d like to refer you to your letter which purports to be dated March 26th, 2003. Do you see that?

A. Yes.
Q. Is that letter signed?
A. This document does not bear a signature.
Q. Do you have a copy of a signed letter of March 26th?
A. No.
Q. Do you normally sign letters that you send as a lawyer?
A. Always.
Q. Why didn’t you sign this one?
A. I did sign the letter. This is a copy.
Q. Does anyone know where it is, a copy of the signed letter?
A. I didn’t -- apparently I didn’t sign -- I didn’t copy the signed letter. I probably ran a duplicate from the printer. And I usually do not copy my signature because it’s easier to run a copy from the printer than to go to the Xerox machine.

Q. Let’s look at your letter of April 3rd, 2003. Does that have a signature of you?
A. It does, because that was a document that was faxed. That’s the exact copy of what was faxed.
Q. You’re suggesting that when you messenger copies of your letters you don’t sign them, but when you fax copies of your letters you do sign them?
A. No.
Q. What are you suggesting?
A. A document that is faxed is the exact document with the signature. I made -- I have an original of a letter that I mail or messenger, and the original would be signed, and very often I don’t copy the signature, but I run a second copy out of the printer.
Q. Have you been in touch with the prosecutor about these letters before you testified today?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he ask you to look in your file to get copies of your letters?
A. I’m not sure. But I told him I had copies of my letters.
Q. Did he ask you to look in your file and look at the copies of the letters you claim you sent to

Mark Geragos?

A. I don't remember specifically.

Q. So far, there is no copy you've been able to find of a March 26th letter that you actually signed, true?

A. Yes.

Q. Yet, we have other letters in this package that you did sign, right?

A. That's right. And as I explained, they are copies of precisely the document that I faxed. I would not fax a document without my signature. However, I did messenger the document with my signature.

Q. How do you know that if you don't have a copy of the signed letter?

A. Because I sign my letters before they go out.

Q. Where is the copy?

A. I didn't make a copy of my signature. There's no reason to make a copy of my signature. The -- these copies are of faxes that were sent that were faxed. They are faxed, obviously, with my signature.

Q. When you make a demand letter like the letter of March 26th on behalf of a client, do you routinely sign the letter?

A. Always.

Q. Where is the signed copy?

MR. ZONEN: That's argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You don't have a signed copy, do you?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let me refer you to the first page of your March 26th, 2003, letter. I'd like to refer you to the last paragraph. It's number two. Do you see that?

A. I do.

Q. You say as follows: "The Arvizos demand that Jackson immediately return to them," and I want you to look at Item B, "The papers they have signed, including passport, visa applications, school documents, documents in connection with the legal action in Britain concerning 'Living with Michael Jackson.'" Do you see those words?

A. I do.

Q. Isn't it true that later, after you sent this letter, assuming you sent it, your client, Janet Arvizo, denied ever authorizing a legal action in Great Britain?

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as compound and vague and exceeding the scope of the direct examination.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Microphone's off.

MR. MESEREAU: He introduced it into evidence, Your Honor.

MR. ZONEN: This letter's been in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained. Exceeds the scope of direct.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

Q. Let me go to the next page, number four.

A. Yes.

Q. You asked for copies of any model release your client, Janet Arvizo, signed involving footage, right?

A. Can you point me to the line?

Q. Sure. Paragraph number four. One, two, three, four, five -- I'd say at 5, 6 -- lines 5, 6 and 7 in paragraph number four.

A. Where it says, "Titled "This Model Release'"?

Q. Yes.

A. Okay.

Q. Now, did you have a copy of a model release when you wrote the letter?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Did Janet Arvizo tell you she had negotiated and signed a model release?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; exceeds the scope of the direct examination.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let's go to the letter you claim you sent to Mr. Geragos on April 8, 2003. Do you see that?

A. Okay.

Q. Let's look at the first paragraph. One, two, three -- well, the first complete sentence. Excuse me, I'm sorry. The second complete sentence. Could you please read that sentence to yourself?

A. Okay.

Q. You say in your letter to Mr. Geragos, referring to the apartment, "She tells me that, contrary to what you said about there being a truckload, she had very few possessions, since she lived in a bachelor apartment. She does not believe that much, if any, furniture was removed." Was that what Janet Arvizo told you about her address at Soto Street?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; exceeds the scope of the direct examination.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In that paragraph, are you referring to the Soto Street address in East Los Angeles?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; exceeds the scope of the direct examination.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let me refer you to a letter of April 11, 2003, that purports to be to Mr. Geragos from you. Do you see that letter?

A. Yes.

Q. And in the second letter, you write, "My clients have also learned that Mr. Jackson has produced or is producing and that FOX will broadcast a program involving home videos or home movies." Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did your client tell you that?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; exceeds the scope of the direct examination.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let’s move to a letter from Mr. Geragos to you, which is signed and faxed on April 15th, 2003. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Geragos says to you, “We have retrieved various items from storage and would appreciate your advising us as to where they should be delivered,” right?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you immediately advise him where to deliver the items?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Well, if you go back to previous letters, and I don’t know which exactly they are without going through and reading them, I had requested, on numerous occasions, I believe, that Mr. Geragos give us a list of what there was, and to tell us where it was. And I had told him that what we were most interested in were passports, visas, birth certificates and these other things that are included in the March 26th letter that apparently he says he didn’t receive, but that he acknowledges having received in phone conversation and refers to in subsequent letters.

It was obvious to me that he was skirting the issue and trying to make the issue different from what it was, which was to get back these items. And we were not talking about the items in storage. We were talking really about the passports, visas, items of clothing that apparently were taken at Neverland, and the other documents and tapes and whatnot that was mentioned very specifically in March 26th -- in the March 26th letter.

Q. Let me ask you the question again. You may not have understood.

Mr. Geragos, on April 15th, says to you, “We have retrieved various items in storage and would appreciate your advising us as to where they should be delivered.”

My question is, why didn’t you tell him where to deliver them?

A. I’m just referring to these letters, because I know there is voluminous correspondence here about this specific issue.

Well, if you look at the April 22nd letter, you’ll see I wrote, quote, “Your April 15” -- yes, I had asked for these items to be delivered immediately. There was no reason for there to be any discussion, any movement, any mailing, any anything to get back the passports, visas, birth certificates and those other materials.

Mr. Geragos never referred to those, except in this one conversation that I referred to. He never responded in these letters, and it was clear he was dodging the issue. And I kept on writing to him saying, “These are the things that we want,” and I didn’t want him skirting the issue by dealing with things that were not at issue.

And I wrote in that letter on April 22nd, quote, “Your April 15 letter,” that’s the one you just referred to, “ignores the specific requests and refers simply to,” quote, “’various items,’” period, close quote. “As to those referred to above, you already have my instructions for delivery. I demand, for the fourth time, that you comply with my request,” period, close quote.

And then the second paragraph, here’s the more specific answer to your question: Quote, “As for any other items,” and that’s referring to, I guess, the items that he was referring to in the April 15 letter, “I repeat my request of March 26th that,” quote, “’Jackson immediately provide a list of all” -- “of all,” bracket, “my clients’,” closed bracket, “personal property that he possesses or controls or stored, whether it was left at Neverland, removed from my clients’ apartment, or obtained in any other way. They also demand to know the precise location of all such property, and the identity, address and phone number of each person with access and/or a key to any place where the property is located.’”

And that's a close quote, because I'm quoting the March 26th letter.

And I continue, "In order to know what to do with items other than those I have asked you repeatedly to deliver to me," and there I'm referring to the passports, visas, birth certificates and items of clothing, "my clients need to know what and where it is. They have a right to know, too," period, close quote.

And then I go on to discuss something else.

Q. I understand --

A. Did that answer your question?

Q. No, it doesn't. I understand all the legalese in your letters. What I'm asking you is, where do you tell them where to deliver the material? Show me some place.

A. I didn't tell them where to deliver the materials.

Q. So he asked you where to deliver it, and you would not respond?

MR. ZONEN: I believe the witness was interrupted.

THE COURT: It's asked and answered.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did your client tell you that no furniture was stored on her behalf? And I'm referring to Janet Arvizo.

A. I don't remember specifically, but if it's in the letter, then that's what happened.

Q. Well, in your letter of May 12th, you still haven't told them where to deliver it, right?

A. As of May 12, he still hadn't told us what there was, where it was stored and who had stored it. I asked him very specific questions since March 26th. I asked him for a list of what there was, who had possession of it, where it was. They had a right to know those things. And his intention to just dump whatever he felt like dumping was not what we were about. It was quite easy for him to tell us where the stuff was. That's what I wanted to know. My client wanted to go out there and retrieve the items, not to have them delivered, actually, anywhere.

What I wanted delivered and what I told him repeatedly, over and over and over again, was deliver the passports, birth certificate, visas, clothing, to my office.

Yes, he knew exactly where to send those materials.

Q. And when you didn't respond to his letter of April 15th asking you where he should deliver the possessions, you knew exactly what you were doing, didn't you?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You and your client were trying to set up Mr. Jackson for a lawsuit, true?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you have your profit-sharing arrangement with Larry Feldman at this time?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Beyond the scope.

THE WITNESS: Could I respond to that?

THE COURT: No. It's beyond the scope. Next question.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, could I correct a statement that I made in previous testimony? Because it seems to make a big difference here to Mr. Mesereau.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, I think, with all due respect to the witness --

THE COURT: Next question.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. All right.

Q. Now, I'd like to refer you to Mr. Geragos's letter to you of May 15th, 2003. Do you have that in front of you?

A. May 15th?

Q. Yes. 2003.

A. Got it.

Q. And I'm referring you to -- excuse me, let me start off -- let me withdraw the question.

First, Mr. Geragos indicates that your landlord refused delivery of items, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it is true that your landlord did refuse to accept items Mr. Geragos had arranged to deliver to your office, correct?

A. Mr. Geragos had not arranged to deliver anything to me at any time, any place. The landlord -- well, I don't know, "landlord."

Landlord's representative, the person that I deal with at the property, left me a phone message about some -- some things being attempted to be dropped off. I got that at home, as I was observing -- or at the end of observing a religious holiday, which Mr. Geragos full well knew I was doing, because it was on my answering machine, and told me that these items were attempted to be delivered.

And I came back to the office the next day, saw an e-mail, I believe -- I forget who it was between, and I wrote an e-mail back to the office manager named Salome Ahadi and told her -- she was expressing some pique about this having happened because no arrangements were made.

And I said to her, and I'm almost quoting, "I would apologize if I had any idea what this was about." And I said, "I knew nothing about it, made no arrangements, made no agreement, have no knowledge about it whatsoever."

Q. Let me refer to your letter of May 12th, 2003, to Mr. Geragos.

A. Yes.

Q. Don't you confirm in the first paragraph that Mr. Geragos sent movers to your office with furniture?

A. Yes, according to what the office manager had told me. I don't know for sure whether there was furniture or what was involved.

Q. You didn't know for sure?

A. I wasn't there. I wasn't there. As I say, I got this phone message --

Q. Right --

A. -- and that's it.

Q. Don’t you write the following, Mr. Dickerman: “This then will serve to confirm that on April 24th at about 9:30 a.m., you sent purported movers to my office laden with a huge amount of furniture and possibly other items that the movers told the receptionist and building services representatives I had directed and arranged to be delivered”?

You confirm that an attempted delivery was made of items and furniture, correct?

A. It wasn’t from my personal knowledge, but that’s what it says. That’s based on what I was told at the office. I have no reason to believe that that’s not correct.

And I go on, if you want to keep this in context --

Q. Sir, I’ll --

A. -- to state that there was no such --

Q. I’ll ask the questions.

A. -- arrangement.

Q. I’ll ask the questions.

A. Well, if you want to get to the truth here, Mr. Mesereau, instead of playing games --

Q. Mr. Dickerman --

A. -- I’ll be happy to explain all of this, and then we can have a reasonable trial where the facts come out instead of implications.

THE COURT: Just a minute, Counsel. You’re not an advocate here. You’re a witness.

THE WITNESS: Sorry, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Everyone understands what position Mr. Mesereau is in and what position you’re in. Now, I want you to listen to the questions and answer the questions.

THE WITNESS: I will, Your Honor.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Dickerman, when you wrote these letters on behalf of Janet Arvizo, did you think it was her right to decide what materials would stay in storage, paid by someone else, and what materials you would accept when you felt like accepting them?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Argumentative and compound.

THE COURT: You may answer the question. Do you want it read back?

THE WITNESS: No, but I'm not willing to waive the attorney work-product privilege. He's asking for my thoughts, and those are out of bounds, as he well knows.

THE COURT: I think you need to listen to the question.

Have the question read back.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: He's asking for my thoughts. My thoughts are my work-product. I'm not willing to waive the privilege.

THE COURT: The work-product privilege doesn't apply in criminal cases. I know you're a civil attorney, so I'll give you a little leeway here.

THE WITNESS: I am. All right.

I'm sorry, could you read it back one more time?

THE COURT: What I'm going to do, though, is ask you to rephrase it so that I know the question you're attempting to ask.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes.

Q. Mr. Dickerman, in one of your earlier letters to Mr. Geragos, you confirm your belief that although there may be little furniture stored for Janet Arvizo, there in fact may be some, correct?

A. You'd have to point me to the letter. I --

Q. Sure.

A. I don't have the letters memorized.

Q. Okay. Let me refer you to your letter of April 8th, 2003.

A. Okay.

Q. In that first paragraph, referring to your client, Janet Arvizo, you say that, "She does not believe that much, if any, furniture was removed."

A. Right.

Q. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, did she tell you she did not believe that much, if any, furniture was removed?

A. She must have, or I wouldn’t have put it in the letter.

Q. Did you ever confirm whether or not any furniture was removed from the Soto Street apartment?

A. I’m not sure what the Soto Street apartment is, so I guess the answer would be no.

Q. Wasn’t that the apartment that Janet purported to live in?

A. I don’t know about the address. I don’t know the street name.

Q. Well, what -- what apartment are you referring to in your letter?

A. An apartment that they lived in. I don’t know that she ever referred to the address.

Q. And Janet Arvizo never told you where the materials were taken from?

A. She told me they were taken from her apartment, but I don’t know that there was any reason to tell me an address, a street number or a street name. Or maybe she did and I just don’t recall it. The name of the street was not important.

Q. Was the purported home of Janet Arvizo, where materials were taken, allegedly, against her will, important to you?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as argumentative and irrelevant.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Are you saying under oath you didn’t know what the address was of the apartment where possessions were supposedly taken from?

A. I may have known then. I don’t remember now. The name is not familiar to me.

Q. Did you review your file before you agreed to testify today for the prosecution?

A. I didn’t review my file. I made copies of the documents that have been put in evidence.

Q. How many meetings have you had with any representative of the prosecution before testifying today?

A. I don’t know what you mean by “meeting.”

I was upstairs in the room awaiting testimony. And Mr. Zonen came up and I gave him these documents. If that’s a meeting, I don’t know. One today and one before the last time I testified. And I testified to Mr. Sneddon -- meeting Mr. Sneddon, gosh, I don’t know, two years ago, or a year and a half ago.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as to irrelevant, anything beyond the prior testimony, and asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled. You interrupted the witness.

I’m not sure you had completed your answer.

THE WITNESS: Yeah, I don’t know what you mean by a “meeting.” A meeting can be defined as two people in the same room together.

I never had a meeting for the purpose of discussing testimony or reviewing documents.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You don’t know how to define the word “meeting”?

A. As I said, a meet -- you define it and I’ll tell you whether I had them.

As I said, I was with Mr. Zonen for a couple of minutes upstairs. If that’s a meeting, then, yes, I had a meeting with Mr. Zonen today. And I had a meeting with him the time -- before I testified last time.

And I met with Mr. Sneddon long before there was a case, I guess. But a long, long time ago. Just an introductory meeting, you know. I -- I think that’s it.

Q. Well, Mr. Dickerman, in this series of correspondence with Mr. Geragos, you were threatening to sue Mr. Jackson on behalf of the Arvizos for a number of things, including withholding possessions from Ms. Arvizo that were taken from an apartment, correct?

A. You’d have to point me to that.

Q. Well --

A. I don’t know that I ever threatened to sue Mr. Jackson on behalf of the Arvizos for anything.

Q. Let’s go to your first letter, then, on the 26th. Do you see that letter, the one that you didn’t sign?

A. I signed it.

Q. Okay. You just don’t have a copy. The one you claim you signed, but there is no copy, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Let’s look at the last paragraph. It says, “The Arvizos expect Jackson to comply with the demand to cease contacting and intimidating them immediately. His failure to heed this demand will force my clients to seek a civil restraining order and perhaps to vindicate their rights in other ways.”

A. Yes.

Q. You’re not threatening a lawsuit?

A. Well, when you say “a lawsuit,” I think of actually a civil -- a full-blown civil action. To get a restraining order is -- I guess technically it’s a lawsuit, but it’s a quick thing. You go down to court, you put in a declaration, perhaps have some testimony, and it’s done really quickly.

Q. But, sir, it says, “They may seek a civil restraining order and perhaps to vindicate their rights in other legal ways,” right?

A. That’s correct. And it’s purposefully vague there. I didn’t threaten a lawsuit. “Other legal ways” meaning anything that we can legally do is a possibility, sure.

Q. Like what, for example?

A. Well, there --

Q. That isn’t a lawsuit?

A. There’s a writ of possession. You can’t do anything without actually filing a Complaint or a Petition. In order to get a court order, as you well know, having practiced civil law yourself, you need to file some kind of an action. You can call that a lawsuit. You can call it an action. You can call it -- I believe the civil procedure refers to a number -- I think the Code of Civil Procedure refers to a number of different kinds of action.

So as I say, when I refer to a lawsuit, when I ask somebody, “Do you want to file suit?” I’m talking about a full-blown civil action with causes of action that you eventually go to trial on to recover, usually, damages for your client.

Saying various other legal ways could have been, as I say, a writ of possession, which is, yes, you have to file some kind of a Complaint or a Petition, or whatever else there was.

There was no decision made here as to what was going to be done, so to say “other legal ways” leaves open anything that my clients decided to do.

Q. Including lawsuits, true?

A. Sure.

Q. That’s your first letter, right?

A. My first letter to Geragos.

Q. Yes.

A. Yeah.

Q. Was that the first letter you ever wrote to anyone on behalf of Janet Arvizo?

A. I think so.

MR. ZONEN: I will object as exceeding the scope of the direct.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is in.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, when you first met your client, Janet Arvizo, you didn’t ask about the address of the apartment that she was complaining about?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, let me refer you to a letter from Mark Geragos to you of May 15th, 2003. Do you see that letter?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Geragos writes the following to you: “Since it appears that you are not equipped nor willing to receive the property at your office, we suggest that a simple matter in which to resolve this situation is for your client to assume the $100 a month charge for the rental units in which the property is being stored.” Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you agree to that in your next letter?

A. You’re referring to the May 15 letter in which I say, quote, “You seem to believe that if you repeat or imply a falsehood often enough it will be believed.” Is that --

Q. That’s correct. Did you think it was false that he said the unit cost $100 a month?

A. No. What I was referring to was his statement that we had somehow agreed, or that he was acting properly in having these materials deposited, or he tried to deposit them at my office, when there was no arrangement, when he knew that I was out for a religious holiday, and we had no agreement whatsoever, and he had never responded to any of the requests to know what there was, where it was, who had possession of it.

Q. Now, the day you learned that Mr. Geragos had a mover appear at your office, did you call him back and say, “I’m back in the office. Let’s arrange to deliver it at a certain location”?

A. No. What I did was carry on correspondence with Mr. Geragos. I believe at one point, and I think there’s a letter here, that when it turned out that he was being totally deceitful and dodging and not responding, I believe I told him that we should have no further communications orally, but that everything should be in writing.

The reason these things are in writing, which I usually -- I just never had an experience with anybody where there’s this series of letters to get an answer to a question.

The reason for this writing is just to document the impossibility of getting him to do what I had asked him to do so many times, which was a simple request: Give us the passports, the visas, the birth certificates. In fact, the other materials were not that critical. What my clients wanted were the passports, birth certificates, visas, the other documents that were very specific.

Q. Did your client prefer that someone else continue to store the furniture at their own expense?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Asked and answered and argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In any of these letters, do you tell Mr. Geragos where to deliver the furniture?

THE COURT: Counsel, that’s asked and answered.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

Q. Let me refer you again to the paragraph on the Geragos letter to you of May 15th, 2003. He asked you on that date --

A. I’m sorry, what date?

Q. I’m sorry, May 15th, 2003.

A. Okay.

Q. Mr. Geragos says, “Since we have not been able to resolve this,” he asks if your client will assume the $100 a month charge for the rental units, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was your response to that?

A. Well, that same day I responded to him detailing his lie about having had an arrangement to drop off those materials.

And then I said, in the next paragraph, quote, “I will consider your suggested resolution once you comply with my previous requests that you provide a list of all items you intend to,” quote, “deliver,” period, close quote.

“I was told there was a massive amount of furniture in your,” quote, “’delivery,’” close quote, “while my clients, who lived in a bachelor apartment, had very few possessions and little, if any, furniture. Your client, thorough deception, makes mine understandably reluctant to take his or your word for anything. I'd also like you to deliver immediately," underlined, "my clients' passports, birth certificates, and the clothing items previously described."

And there, in the final paragraph, is my request that he not communicate with me in any way but writing, because I did not want any more -- I hate to say this about another lawyer. I did not want any more lies. And if they were in writing, I didn't think that he was going to lie, although he continued to do so.

Q. I understand. Let me reask my question again.

In your response to Mr. Geragos, Mr. Dickerman, do you ever tell him, one, where to deliver the items, or two, that your client will assume the cost of representing the unit? Anywhere 12319 in all your verbiage, do you say anything about either of those issues?

A. Yeah. I said once he complies with my previous requests -- I don't know if there's a problem. Is the microphone on? Maybe you're not hearing me. It says -- well, now it's not. Oop, is it on now?

It says that once he complies with my previous requests made over a period of, let's see, March, April, May, almost two months, that I would be happy to do what he wanted.

Again, my clients' immediate concern was not to get the items back from the vault. That was not the big deal.

Q. And does your client care about who paid to store them?

A. My client agreed subsequently to pick up the tab once they knew where the items were, absolutely.

Q. Months later, correct?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Well, let's keep going, okay?

A. Excuse me, just to complete the answer --

Q. Sure.

A. -- the final paragraph of that May 15 letter says, quote, “Finally, your blatant dishonesty regrettably compels me to instruct you to act only on my written authorization, instruction or agreement.”

Q. I understand all the words.

What I’m trying to find out is, two months after your March 26th letter, you’ve never told him where to deliver the items and you’ve never agreed to have your client pay the costs of storage, true?

A. Well, he asked about the cost of storage later on, and --

Q. Can you answer my question?

A. Yeah, of course.

Q. Please do.

A. The letters say what they say. But to make it sound like I was dodging --

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as nonresponsive to the question.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Well, let’s go -- let’s keep going and see if you ever tell him where to deliver the material, okay?

We’ve got a letter that you sent him on May 20th, 2003, right? Is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. That’s approximately two months since your first letter of March 26th, 2003, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you still told him where to deliver anything?

A. You’re referring to the letter in which I say, “My clients are willing to assume payment for storage of their possessions”?

Q. Yes.

A. And the one where I say, “I ask that you provide the precise location of all such property, and the identity, address and phone number of each person with access and/or a key to any place where the property is located”?

Is this the letter that says, “You have never responded to that more than reasonable request"? And the one where I go on to say, "If my clients are to," quote, "assume payment on the two storage lockers," close quote, "as you requested they do, they will obviously need that information, as well as any agreements that are to be assumed. I look forward to receiving all such information at once."

Q. It wasn't until two months later that you agreed to pay the costs on behalf of your client, true?

A. Not two months after -- two months after what?

Q. Well, from March 26th to May 20th, you went back and forth with all this verbiage, and it wasn't till May 20th that you ever agreed to assume the costs of the storage facility, true?

A. No, that's false. And you know it's false, because there was no vault discussed by Mr. Geragos or even acknowledged early on. So to say it's two months from the date when I asked for items that were never responded to, you know that's false. So, no, it was not two months.

Q. Did your client ever assume the costs of the storage locker?

A. I don't know whether they did or not.

Q. You don't know till today? You don't know at all?

A. I understood that -- well, I know that they told me that they would do so, and I transmitted that information to -- it was either Geragos or Miller, sure.

Q. Well, let's look at Miller's fax to you of June 12th, 2003. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. It's the last document in this package, right?

A. Right.

Q. Brad Miller sends you a message: "Dear Mr. Dickerman: Sorry I was not able to get back to you yesterday. My office manager, Karen, let me know you called this morning."

So, in fact, you're not just reducing everything to writing. You're making phone calls, aren't you?

A. My comment about writing was to Geragos. I have no understanding of a connection between Geragos and Miller except that Miller's doing something on his behalf.

Q. What does that mean? What does that mean?

A. I didn't have a problem with Mr. Miller.

Q. Please explain what you mean by that. He's doing something on his behalf, but you don't think he has anything to do with him?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Argumentative --

THE WITNESS: I knew nothing about --

MR. ZONEN: -- and exceeding the scope of the direct examination.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let's look further at Mr. Miller's fax to you, Mr. Dickerman, on June 12th. It says, "Janet's belongings were packed and loaded by Dino's Moving & Storage, 12641 Saticoy Street South, North Hollywood, California. They then placed the items in storage at their facility where they have remained since, occupying, I believe, two vaults. I just sent a check to Dino's for storage payment May and June. Please call John at Dino's, (818) 503-3999, and make whatever arrangements are necessary to transfer the storage from myself to either you or your client. Tell Dino's they can fax whatever paperwork is necessary for me to sign," and it gives the fax number. "Thank you, Brad," with a cc to Mark Geragos.

You didn't know he had a connection with Geragos when you got that fax?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Argumentative and exceeding the scope of the direct.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Well, I don't know exactly what you mean by "connection." Obviously they had something to do with each other, yeah. But I had no problem with Miller, when you talk about putting things in writing. I --

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Well, you got this fax of June 12th, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you do about it on behalf of your client, Janet Arvizo?

A. I'm pretty sure I called my client, and told them that we had now located the items, and I believe I asked them whether they wanted to assume the cost, and I think Janet Arvizo said she did.

Q. Did she?

A. I don't know. I don't know what happened after that.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. The last letter that Mr. Geragos -- that Mr. Mesereau asked you about dated June 12th, 2003, that identifies Dino's Moving & Storage, is that the first communication you had from anybody identifying where your clients' property was stored?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Geragos ever tell you where the property was stored?

A. Never.

Q. Did Mr. Geragos ever tell you that he had the passports that belonged to your client?

A. No.

Q. Let's go back to the letter that's dated May 12th, 2003. That's the one where you wanted to move on a little bit, and let's go back to the beginning of this letter.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: May 12th, 2003, your letter to Mr. Geragos, do you have that in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. Read -- the first two sentences end with the words "to be delivered." If you'd read those out loud, please.

A. "Dear Mr. Geragos: I thought I had previously memorialized by letter your April 24th stunt with the movers, but I find I did not. This then will serve to confirm that on April 24, at about 9:30 a.m., you sent purported movers to my office laden with a huge amount of furniture and possibly other items that the movers told the receptionist and building service representatives I had directed and arranged to be delivered."

Q. Stop right there.

That was the part that Mr. Geragos read to you -- that Mr. Mesereau read to you; is that correct?

A. Yeah. At least part of it, yeah.

Q. Go ahead, now, and read the next sentence that you wrote.

A. "As you know, and knew then, and as my correspondence reflected, there was no such arrangement. In fact, much to the contrary, I asked you on numerous occasions to deliver just the passports and certain other documents and a few items of Gavin Arvizo's clothing. Not only did you never deliver those items, you never even acknowledged any intention or interest in doing so."

Q. Now, this is actually another letter I had not pointed out to you earlier where you refer to the passports again; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. So this is the May 12th letter that refers to your clients' passports?

A. Yes.

Q. And previously I identified five different letters. That's actually May 6th; is that correct?

A. I haven't been counting.

Q. All right. Now, did you know in advance, at the time of the delivery of the contents of your clients' apartment to your office building, that Mr. Geragos was going to do that?

A. I'm sorry, did I know whether -- did I have any advance notice that he was going to do it?

Q. Yes. Yes.

A. None.

Q. Did he ever call you and say, “We’re going to just go ahead and deliver your clients’ property to your office”?

A. Never.

Q. Are you a sole practitioner?

A. Yes.

Q. How large is your office?

A. One, sometimes two.

Q. All right.

A. Well, and sometimes other attorneys that I associate in on cases. But as a regular matter, one and a secretary.

Q. Okay. And do you have room to store a refrigerator and possessions from even a small or modest studio apartment?

A. I have no storage whatsoever except for some files. I keep everything off site. I would never -- I could never store anything in the building. I have no agreement with them to do so.

Q. If you had been asked in advance to accept possession of the Arvizo family residence at your office, would you have agreed?

A. No, I --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; calls for speculation.

THE WITNESS: It doesn’t call for speculation. I certainly wouldn’t have. I couldn’t have.

THE COURT: Just --

MR. ZONEN: Mr. Dickerman, you can’t do that, okay? Please, just answer the question.

THE WITNESS: Sorry.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Would you have agreed to that?

THE COURT: Read the question back.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: Absolutely not.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. And nobody contacted you from Mr. Geragos’s office in advance; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

MR. ZONEN: No further questions.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Mr. Dickerman, isn’t it true that at one point Mr. Geragos was so frustrated because you would not let him know where to deliver --

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as to whether or not Mr. Geragos --

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: -- your client’s property that --

MR. ZONEN: -- was frustrated as exceeding the scope, and --

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: -- that he had to write you a letter --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: He wrote you a letter threatening to auction it off if you didn’t tell him where to deliver it or accept responsibility for storage, right?

THE COURT: Just a moment. You’re going to have to start over. The question is garbled by interruption.

MR. MESEREAU: I’m sorry.

Q. Isn’t it true, Mr. Dickerman, that at one point Mr. Geragos was so frustrated at your unwillingness to tell him where to deliver the items in storage, that he told you if you don’t tell him where to deliver it, he’s going to possibly let it be subject to auction by the owner of the storage facility, right?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as speculative as to whether or not he was frustrated.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you have the May 17th letter from Mr. Geragos to you?

A. Yes.

Q. Let me just go through that letter with you.

"Dear Mr. Dickerman: Thank you for your histrionic letter dated May 15, 2003. Beyond your bluster and personal attacks, please remember that you have a duty to resolve this matter in the most efficient manner possible. In that regard, please advise us as to whether your clients will accept our offer that they assume payment on the two storage lockers."

Next paragraph: "As to your request for an inventory of the property, our offer allows your clients immediate possession of all their property," period. "We will waste no further time or resources of our client. You have caused us the unnecessary expense of one delivery attempt and we will not waste additional funds for the sole purpose of placating you."

"Lastly, please be advised, in the event your clients, one, refuse to assume the payments on the storage lockers, or two, fail to promptly remove the property therein, the property may ultimately be subject to auction by the storage facility. Govern yourself accordingly. Very truly yours, Mark Geragos."

You wrote him back and still didn't tell him where to deliver it, right?

A. You're referring to the letter where I tell him that we're willing to assume payment and take delivery once he complies with the request I've been making since March 26th, for almost two months.

Q. So your --

A. Is that the one?

Q. -- your position was, "Give me what I want, and you keep storing what I don't want at your expense"?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Argumentative and asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

MR. ZONEN: No further questions.

THE COURT: All right. You may step down. We'll take our break.

(Recess taken.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Excuse me, I just stepped in quickly because I understand there's -- you want to put a stipulation on the record; is that right?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, please, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. ZONEN: Do we already have this exhibit identified? We do. We turned it in to the Court.

THE COURT: Yes, I just handed it back to the clerk. It's 901.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you, Your Honor. Exhibit 901 we're going to stipulate can be admitted into evidence subject to the stipulation that these are from Brad Miller's computer. They are e-mail communications between Brad Miller and Mark Geragos, and that the deletions that are in here, the deletions are done with Court approval, directed by Mr. Geragos, and they delete sections that refer to other clients.

THE COURT: All right. Do you agree with that stipulation?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I'll approve that stipulation, and that relieves the necessity of Mr. Geragos' appearance tomorrow; is that correct?

MR. ZONEN: I believe so, yes.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes. My understanding is he would like to fly out of town --

THE BAILIFF: Microphone.

MR. MESEREAU: My understanding is Mark Geragos would like to fly out of town tomorrow, and we have no objection to that, but I would not want to tell him to do so until the Court approves.

THE COURT: I'm asking you. Do either of you -- do either of you have any need for Mr. Geragos to appear tomorrow?

MR. MESEREAU: No, Your Honor.
MR. ZONEN: No.
THE COURT: So we can release him to go where he wants to go?
MR. ZONEN: Yes.
THE COURT: All right. That will be fine.
MR. MESEREAU: Thank you.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)
MR. MESEREAU: Excuse me, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Would you face the clerk and raise your right hand, please.

CHRISTINE CAUSER
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.
THE WITNESS: Christine --
BAILIFF CORTEZ: Ma’am, be seated first.
THE WITNESS: Christine Causer.
C-h-r-i-s-t-i-n-e, C-a-u-s-e-r.

THE CLERK: Thank you.
THE COURT: Counsel, before you ask a question, there’s -- can you give us an indication of -- I’m speaking to all of you -- are we going to have a full day tomorrow on evidence? Does that seem to be the situation?
MR. MESEREAU: I think we might, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Okay. Go ahead, Counsel.
MR. SNEDDON: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SNEDDON:
Q. Mrs. Causer?
A. Yes.

Q. Mrs. Causer, you’re going to have to lean into the --
A. Right here?
Q. The other one.
A. Oh. Okay.
Q. There we go. Thank you very much.
Mrs. Causer, you live in the Los Angeles area?
A. Yes.
Q. And what is your current occupation?
A. I work as a visitation -- visitation services at a mortuary.
Q. That’s at Rose Hills?
A. Yes, it is.

Q. Now, at one point in time, did you work as an intern for the Mid Valley News?
A. Approximately four or five years ago.
Q. And was the person that you worked for Connie Keenan?
A. Yes.
Q. She was the editor at that time?
A. Yes.
Q. And you’re familiar with Mrs. Keenan?
A. Yes.
Q. And in connection with your work with Mrs. Keenan, did you become involved in writing an article for the Mid Valley News?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Now, I want to ask you some questions, some specific questions. Did you ever tell Mrs. Keenan that you had delivered a cooked turkey to the Arvizo family?
A. Not a cooked turkey.
Q. Okay. You delivered a turkey, did you not?
A. Yes.
Q. And when you delivered that turkey to the Arvizos, did you also give them some money?
A. Yes.
Q. How much did you give them?
A. Five dollars.
Q. That was a lot of money to you at that time, wasn’t it?

A. It was -- it was somewhat -- not really a lot, but it was a token amount, really.

Q. Did you tell Mrs. Keenan that you had done that?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you get in trouble for doing that from her?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you ever tell Mrs. Keenan that, when you delivered the uncooked turkey to the Arvizo family, that Mrs. Arvizo said to you, “That’s nice, but I’d rather have money”?

A. No.

Q. You never made that statement to her?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever tell Mrs. Keenan that the Arvizo family was going to lose their home as a result of what -- the medical expenses connected with their son Gavin?

A. I don’t believe so.

MR. SNEDDON: No further questions, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good afternoon, Miss Causer.

A. Hello.

Q. Miss Causer, my name is Tom Mesereau. I speak for Mr. Jackson.

You did have a discussion with Miss Keenan about Janet Arvizo’s reaction to your bringing the turkey, did you not?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did you tell her Janet Arvizo’s reaction was?

A. I just felt that she rather discarded it. She didn’t seem really pleased.

Q. And did Janet Arvizo proceed to tell you anything about her financial condition?

A. Yes. She did mention the medical expenses were uncovered by the insurance that they have -- had at the time or didn't have anymore.

Q. And did she tell you that her car had been repossessed?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she tell you that one chemotherapy injection cost more than $12,000?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object. This is beyond the scope of the direct examination. I --

MR. MESEREAU: I don't believe so, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: I was specific as to her conversation with Mrs. Keenan.

THE COURT: Sustained. It's beyond the scope.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, did you tell Miss Keenan that Janet Arvizo told you that one chemotherapy injection cost more than $12,000?

A. I don't think I said "more." I think I said "12,000."

Q. And did you tell Mrs. Keenan that Janet Arvizo told you her car had been repossessed?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell Mrs. Keenan that Janet Arvizo said they had a deteriorating financial condition?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you tell Mrs. Keenan that Janet Arvizo said they no longer had medical insurance?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell Mrs. Keenan that Janet Arvizo said the financial toll on the family has been undescribable?

A. I don't recall those words, actually.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you this article?

MR. SNEDDON: Well, which article?

MR. MESEREAU: The article written by Miss Causer.

Q. Might that refresh your recollection on what that word was?

A. Probably.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you had a chance to review that portion of the article?
A. Not recently.
Q. Okay. I mean just this second, did you have a chance to look at that?
A. Just recently now, yes.
Q. Does it refresh your recollection about what you told Miss Keenan?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you tell Miss Keenan that Janet Arvizo told you that the financial toll on the family has been undescribable?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, did you tell Miss Keenan that Janet Arvizo told you that becoming a comedian is Gavin’s dream?
A. Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, that’s double hearsay. I’m sorry. Double hearsay.
THE COURT: Just a moment, please.
MR. MESEREAU: Sure.
THE COURT: It’s overruled.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: I’m sorry, I didn’t hear your answer, Miss Causer.
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And did you tell Miss Keenan that Janet Arvizo told you that before his illness, he, meaning Gavin, attended Rush Hour and became friends with Chris Tucker, who has become a big brother to him?

A. Yes.
Q. And did you tell Miss Keenan that Janet Arvizo told you that Suli McCullough, a stand-up comic on The Jamie Fox Show, was also an important support to Gavin?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you tape-record your interview with Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. And at some point did you double-check to see if the fact about the chemotherapy costing $12,000 was correct?

A. Yes.

Q. That wasn't a typographical error, was it?

A. I don't believe so.

MR. MESEREAU: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: No questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

Call your next witness.

MR. ZONEN: We'll call Maria Ventura. Maria Ventura.

We need an interpreter.

THE COURT: I'll remind you that you're still under oath. You're still under oath. And you may be seated.

MRS. VENTURA: Okay, of course.

MARIA VENTURA

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Miss Ventura, good afternoon.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. I'd like to direct your attention, please, to the 27th of August of 1998.

A. That's fine.

Q. All right. On that particular occasion, in the evening hours, did you proceed to a shopping mall in the West Covina area?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you go there for purposes of picking up your grandchildren?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that the day your daughter Janet and her then-husband David were arrested?

A. Yes.

Q. When you got to the shopping mall, was either David or Janet still there? Were either one of them still there?

A. Janet was there, a police officer, a patrol car, and the kids.

Q. Okay. Did you -- which kids?

A. Gavin and Star.

Q. Did you take the children home with you?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Janet taken by the police?

A. Yes.

Q. How long did the children stay with you?

A. Till the next day.

Q. All right.

A. Because I called her. The kids were not well.

Q. All right. What was the matter with the children?

A. They complained all night. Star was complaining about a headache, and Gavin, his arm. And I gave them Tylenol.

Q. All right. The next day, did somebody take them to the doctor?

A. Yes, both of them.

Q. Okay.

A. Janet and David.

Q. All right. Did David or Janet see either of the boys from the time you picked them up?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

MR. ZONEN: Let me reask that question again.

Q. You took the two boys from the shopping mall directly to your house; is that true?

A. No. I went to see if I could get my daughter out.

Q. Okay. Where were the boys when you went to get your daughter?

A. With me.

Q. In the car?

A. We walked over there to the police station.

Q. It’s not too far from the shopping mall?

A. No, the mall is right there, and then we just came like that in the car, and then we got out and went in.

Q. Was your husband with you?

A. He was driving.

Q. Okay. And were you able to get your daughter out at that time?

A. No.

Q. And did you then go back to your home?

A. Yes.

Q. And that’s your home in El Monte?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And did you stay at your home that night with your two grandsons, Star and Gavin?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know approximately what time it was that Janet and her husband David arrived at your house and took the boys?

A. The next day.

Q. All right. Do you know approximately what time the next day that was?

A. I don’t remember.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. No further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No cross-examination.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

Call your next witness.

MR. SNEDDON: Re-call Detective Bonner, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Be seated. You’re still under oath.

DETECTIVE BONNER: Thank you.

CRAIG BONNER

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, before I begin questioning Detective Bonner again, I brought up the issue of an SDT. I think we’ll need it admitted into evidence. Mr. Sanger mentioned he needed to get his reports. I believe he’s had time to do that.

MR. SANGER: Well, that would assume facts not in evidence, but if we’re talking about the Brad Miller phone records, we can proceed with those.

MR. NICOLA: Premarked as Exhibit 448.

MR. SANGER: We can proceed with those, Your Honor.

THE COURT: So I’ll --

MR. NICOLA: May I approach the clerk, Your Honor?

THE COURT: You’re consenting to their admission, Counsel?

MR. SANGER: Yes. In other words, they were subpoenaed.

THE COURT: Okay. So 448 is admitted.

MR. SANGER: Well, the question -- all right. They’re subpoenaed, and so I don’t know what part he’s going to mark, so I’ll wait until I find out.

THE COURT: Well, you’re not -- I misunderstood. You’re not consenting to their admission. You want him to proceed. I’m not sure what you’re agreeing to. That’s all.

MR. SANGER: Okay. I had earlier indicated to counsel that I needed time to look at this. I don’t need any more time to look at them, but I don’t know what he’s going to do with them.

THE COURT: You’re not agreeing to anything.

MR. SANGER: Assuming he’s not marking the affidavit, if he wants to mark the phone records -- just to make it easy, so we can get it done, if he wants to mark the phone records as a particular document or a particular exhibit, I have no objection to that. And I’ll agree that there is a foundation laid, provided, pursuant to the subpoena.

MR. NICOLA: We actually marked the envelope that all of those documents came in. We would withdraw the actual affidavit of the custodian of records prior to introducing them into evidence.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. NICOLA: I don't believe there's an argument they're the Brad Miller phone records for January, February and March of 2003. And I would ask just a couple of foundational questions prior to moving them into evidence.

THE COURT: All right. Go ahead.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. NICOLA:

Q. Detective Bonner, placed in front of you are the contents of Exhibit 448; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the first page of those documents appears to be the certification of the custodian of records from Pay Less Cellular; is that true?

A. That's true.

Q. And have you examined a copy of these documents and ascertained what they are?

A. Yes, I have. And they are the cellular telephone records for an account belonging to 12347 Bradley Miller.

Q. Do they cover a period of January through March of the year 2003?

A. They do.

MR. NICOLA: We'd move Exhibit 448 into evidence at this time, Your Honor, save the certificate of authenticity.

MR. SANGER: All right. And I have no objection.

THE COURT: Well, they're admitted.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you.

THE COURT: And let's mark the certificate of -- or let's just lodge the certificate.

MR. NICOLA: We can also mark it as Exhibit 447, if that works.

THE COURT: All right. All right. Mark it 447, but it does not go in evidence.

MR. NICOLA: Madam Clerk?

Q. Detective Bonner, I've handed you Exhibit 449, and do you recognize those cellular telephone records for Mark Geragos and the firm Geragos & Geragos?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And do they cover a period of January through March of the year 2003?

A. I believe February through March of 2003.

MR. NICOLA: Okay. And I believe, Your Honor, counsel agreed to a stipulated foundation on those records, and we move those into evidence, if I’m accurately representing the stipulation.

THE COURT: Just offer them in.

MR. SANGER: It’s a little bit confusing because counsel’s got different numbers than we had before. Let me just look.

I had 460. Is 460 just the diagram?

MR. NICOLA: 449 are the actual --

MR. SANGER: Is this 449? No. That’s all 460. All right. Let me take a look at 449.

Just a moment, please.

If I may approach for that.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: With regard to 449, I’ve decided to say I don’t have a horse in this arena, but -- if I can, but 449 does have apparently the other -- what would be sensitive, confidential attorney-client phone numbers, I would suppose, from a law firm. And I think, as an officer of the court, as I said before, we should be cautious with that. If it’s being admitted, there’s -- unless there’s some protective order, it would be open to the public.

I don’t want to make a big thing out it, but I think I should make that point to the Court.

MR. NICOLA: May I respond, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. NICOLA: With respect to all the phone numbers, all the phone records that were exhibit -- that were introduced throughout this trial, we’d make a motion that they be sealed from public view at the end of the case, and that they only be shown to court personnel, the attorneys and the jury.

THE COURT: You'll have to file a formal written motion.

MR. NICOLA: We will.

THE COURT: But assuming you're going to do that, I'll admit the records with that understanding.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor. And finally, if I may approach the witness with Exhibit 460. That's --

MR. SANGER: Yeah, 460 I've got.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Detective Bonner, is Exhibit 460 a series of telephone link charts and supporting documentation that you created for the rebuttal portion of this case?

A. That is correct.

Q. And with respect to Exhibit No. 449 and Exhibit No. 448, did you examine the contents of those telephone tolls for Mr. Miller and Mr. Geragos in coming up with your charts --

A. I did.

Q. -- as exhibited in Exhibit 460?

A. That's correct.

Q. And does the period of time of Exhibit No. 460 cover the months of February and March of 2003?

A. That is correct.

Q. Okay. If you could turn your attention to the first two pages, 2-4 and 2-5.

A. 2-4 and 2-6?

Q. Excuse me, 2-4 and 2-6. You put the year '05 on that?

A. That is incorrect.

Q. It is '03?

A. Yes.

Q. Do the rest of the charts show the proper year of 2003?

A. They do.

Q. Now, with respect to the link charts in Exhibit 460, did you try to show the communications between telephones registered to Mr. Geragos, Mr. Miller and the other unindicted co-conspirators in this case?

A. That is correct.

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object to the characterization by counsel and move to strike. My point being it should be, at the very least, “alleged.”

THE COURT: All right. Use the word “alleged,” at least.

MR. NICOLA: I would substitute the word “other” with “alleged.”

THE COURT: All right.

THE WITNESS: That’s correct.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Okay. With the alleged co-conspirators in this case.

Can you quantify for the jury, please, generally, approximately how many communications within that period of time occurred between the phone -- the cell phone registered to Mr. Geragos and the cell phone registered to Mr. Miller?

A. A minimum of 50 telephone calls.

Q. And the cell phone belonging to Mr. Geragos and the cell phone belonging to Mr. Schaffel?

A. In excess of 15 telephone calls.

THE REPORTER: 15?

THE WITNESS: 15.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Did you note any communication between the cell phone registered to Mr. Miller and Mr. Frank Cascio?

A. Yes, I did. There were in excess of 60 telephone calls between those two telephones.

Q. Generally, without going into each exhibit in there --

If I could please have “Input 4,” Your Honor, please.

I’d like to show you the chart you’ve created for February 12th of 2003.

THE COURT: Should it be “Input 4”?

MR. NICOLA: “Input 4.”

THE COURT: That’s “Input 4.”

MR. NICOLA: Ahh. Thank you, Mr. Auchincloss.

Q. Now, this appears to resemble the charts you previously testified about, with the exception of a number of links. If you could explain the differences to the jury, please.

A. Absolutely.

Basically what we did here is, in reviewing the records of Brad Miller and the Geragos records, we found that there were links between Geragos, Brad Miller, Marc Schaffel and Cascio, and because of that, we also included the existing phone analysis involving the alleged co-conspirators as well as Neverland Ranch.

Q. Did you find any three-way calls between the phones of Geragos & Geragos, Brad Miller and Marc Schaffel?

A. On the 12th, there was one three-way call between Mr. Geragos, Mr. Miller and Mr. Schaffel.

Q. And do your records indicate whether or not Mr. Geragos, or the phone registered to Mr. Geragos, was the initiating party in that three-way conversation between those three phones?

A. My recollection is that it was, yes.

Q. Okay. If you could turn your attention to the chart for February 19th, please, of 2003.

Once again, if you could explain to the jury the difference in this chart compared to the chart you testified to in the People's case-in-chief.

A. In the original charts, we did not have the Brad Miller or Geragos & Geragos records. Upon including these records, we found connections between Geragos and Miller, and Miller and several of the co-conspirators. Because of that, we have included them within this graphic.

MR. SANGER: Objection and move to strike the answer.

MR. NICOLA: Can we try to refer to the "alleged co-conspirators," Sergeant?

THE WITNESS: I thought I did, but --

MR. NICOLA: Okay.

THE COURT: Is that the objection, Counsel?

MR. SANGER: That was the objection, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: With respect to the chart and your spreadsheet, which is I believe the last part of Exhibit 460, did you try to capture all of the calls on the spreadsheet on these diagrams?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And there were a few that you didn’t put on here for one reason or another?

A. Correct.

Q. Is there a link on February 19th between the Marc Schaffel phone and the Geragos & Geragos phone directly?

A. That’s correct. There should have been one.

Q. Okay. And were there any three-way calls on the 15th?

A. Again, I believe there was one three-way call involving Mr. Schaffel’s phone, Mr. Miller’s phone and Mr. Geragos’s phone.

Q. Okay. And when did the toll records become available to you for the Geragos & Geragos phones?

A. I believe that was on Tuesday of this week.

Q. And that was pursuant to a court order?

A. I believe so.

Q. If you could turn your attention, please, to the February 20th, 2003, chart. Once again, you just added the Brad Miller tolls, the Geragos and Geragos tolls to the alleged co-conspirators?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Do your records reflect whether any three-way calls between the Brad Miller phone, Geragos phone and the Schaffel phone occurred on Thursday, February 20th of 2003?

A. I believe there was one call, yes.

Q. And with respect to the telephone calls between the Miller phone and the Cascio phone, were those predominantly one direction or both directions?

A. My recollection is both directions.

Q. In analyzing the records for the entire period between February 1st and the end of March of 2003, did you find daily or nearly daily contact between the Brad Miller phone and the Geragos & Geragos phone?

A. “Nearly daily” would probably be the better terminology.

Q. And if I asked you the same question with respect to the Brad Miller phone and the Frank Cascio phone, how would you answer that?

A. “Nearly daily” again.

Q. Was there also a substantial amount of contact between Mr. Amen and Mr. Schaffel during that period of time?

A. Yes, there was.

Q. Or at least the phones registered to them?

A. Correct.

MR. NICOLA: If I may have just a moment, Your Honor.

Q. Sergeant Bonner, if you would turn to the next chart. Not the next chart, the chart for Saturday, February 22nd of 2003.

I’m sorry, I misled you. I do want to go to the 21st. I apologize.

And does the chart for February 21st of 2003 accurately reflect the phone records that you analyzed for the individuals seen up there on the chart?

A. That is correct.

Q. Okay. I only want to ask you specifically about the call between the Geragos phone and the Schaffel phone, and calls between the Geragos phone and the Brad Miller phone.

Do your records show that the call from the Geragos phone to the Schaffel phone was one placed by the Geragos phone?

A. The Geragos and Schaffel connection was from Geragos’s phone to Schaffel’s phone.

Q. Okay. With respect to the calls between the Geragos phone and the Miller phone, were those one directional or both directions?

A. Both directions.

Q. Okay. Generally, with respect to the phone calls between the Geragos phone and the Schaffel phone, were those conversations longer than one or two minutes? I'm asking about the whole volume.

A. In general, usually they were longer. They were usually 10- to 13-minute telephone calls.

Q. Okay. If I asked you the same question with respect to the Geragos phone and the Miller phone, what would your answer be?

A. Again, usually more than one to two minutes. But in this case, more like the four- to six-minute time frame.

Q. If you could turn to the chart for February 22nd, 2003, a Saturday. And with respect to the calls between the Geragos phone and the Brad Miller phone, were those generally over one minute in length?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you tell us what time of day those calls began?

A. The first telephone call I have is at about 9:26 a.m. for five minutes.

Q. And that's from the Miller end to the Geragos end?

A. I believe that's actually the Geragos phone calling the Miller phone.

Q. Oh, I apologize.

And if you could tell us when those calls last came in on the 22nd.

A. The last call I have is at 5:23 p.m. for three minutes. Again, a call from Geragos's phone to Miller's phone.

MR. NICOLA: If I may yield the questioning to the District Attorney, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: Could I have the lights, please?

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. NICOLA: While they're talking, may I offer Exhibit 460 into evidence, Your Honor?

MR. SANGER: I think before it's admitted, I do have a reason to ask some questions.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: I'd like to do that. Thank you. I can wait until cross-examination, unless the Court wants me to do it on voir dire.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. We'll just wait. I'm sorry.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SNEDDON: All right. We're just going to go ahead.

I gave you a copy of this this morning, right?

MR. SANGER: Yes.

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Sergeant Bonner, I think you previously testified in this case that you were present at the Neverland Valley Ranch on November 18th, 2003, during a portion of the execution of the search warrant, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And during the course of the execution of that search warrant, you had occasion to go into what we call the master suite or master bedroom of the defendant in this case, Mr. Jackson, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And during the time that you were in Mr. Jackson's room, the master suite, let's just call it that for right now, master bedroom, did you hear the chimes go off in that area?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now, did you at that time have occasion to examine the mechanism by which the chimes were activated?

A. No.

Q. Now, did you go back on December the 4th of 2004?

A. Correct.

Q. And you were on the premises at that time; is that correct?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Did you have occasion at that time -- and you were in the bedroom, Mr. Jackson's bedroom, correct?

A. I was, yes.

Q. Both upstairs and downstairs, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you have occasion at that time to examine the mechanism by which those chimes were activated?

A. I did. I was present, along with the security personnel who was examining it and explaining the workings to us.

Q. And were you present when the chimes were actually activated during the time that you were in the bedroom suite on that particular occasion?

A. I was.

Q. Were you also present in the bedroom on the 18th of November of 2003 when the chimes were activated?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Now, I want to show you some photographs.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I've had three photographs -- they've been marked for identification purposes and I've shown them to counsel. They're marked as 157, 159 and 160 for identification purposes.

May I approach the witness, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Detective Bonner, let's start with the photograph that's marked as 157 for identification purposes, okay? Do you recognize that photograph?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Do you recognize what's depicted in that photograph?

A. This is a picture --

Q. Before you tell me what it is, just tell me, do you recognize what's depicted?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And is it an accurate depiction of what it purports to represent?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Let’s turn to 159. And do you recognize what’s depicted in the exhibit People’s 159?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And is that an accurate depiction of what it purports to represent?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. All right. And let’s go to 160. All right. Now, with regard to 160, do you recognize what’s depicted in that photograph?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is that an accurate depiction of what it purports to represent?
A. Yes, it is.
MR. SNEDDON: All right. I move that 157 and 159 and 160 be admitted into evidence, Your Honor.
MR. SANGER: Could I voir dire briefly on that, please?
THE COURT: Yes.

VOIR DIRE EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. Did you take those photographs?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Do you know who took them?
A. I know -- I do not specifically know who took these exact photographs, no.
Q. Do you know what date those particular photographs were taken on?

A. I do not, other than one of the two days that we were out there.
Q. Do you believe that because you believe that would be the two days that somebody might have had access to take those sorts of photos?
A. And because I know -- I have reviewed these and I know that it came out of the photographs that our forensics people took during the service of our warrants.

MR. SANGER: I don’t think that’s an adequate foundation, but I don’t know if the Court can understand the basis without looking at the photographs and perhaps having us approach for a moment.

THE COURT: All right. Do you want to bring the photographs over?

MR. SANGER: Yes.

Thank you.

And may we approach?

THE COURT: Yes.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: Let’s see. Did you offer those?

MR. SNEDDON: They’re admitted. I’m sorry, I’m taking your job over. I think I asked that they be admitted.

THE COURT: All right. They’re admitted.

(Laughter.)

MR. SNEDDON: I’m sure no offense was taken at that, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I was almost ready to hand it over to you.

MR. SNEDDON: That would be a big mistake.

THE BAILIFF: You need to turn your microphone on so they can hear you.

MR. SNEDDON: It’s on.

THE BAILIFF: No, him.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I don’t think your mike is working.

THE COURT: My mind is -- oh, my mike.

(Laughter.)

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Detective Bonner -- excuse me. Detective Bonner, with regard to the chimes system at the Neverland Valley Ranch connected with the defendant’s bedroom - okay? - did you actually have occasion to be present when the chimes were activated on November 18th, 2003?

MR. SANGER: Asked and answered, twice.

MR. SNEDDON: I’m trying to go back and satisfy your --

MR. SANGER: The objection is asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled. Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: Yes, I was.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And did you also -- were you present on the 12th -- I mean, on the 4th of December of 2004 during the time that you were out there when the chimes were activated?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And did you personally participate in experiments to determine how the various chimes were activated?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you personally observe the sensors that activated certain portions of the chimes?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you personally hear those chimes when they were activated?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now, with regard to -- we're going to put some photographs up on the board.

Are you also familiar with the mechanism by which the door -- by which entry into the door of the suite to Mr. Jackson's bedroom can be accessed?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. All right. Now, let's put some photographs up on the board. And let's begin with 160.

All right. Do you recognize what's depicted in the photograph People's Exhibit 160 in evidence?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Would you tell the jury what that is?

A. That is a curtain motion sensor. It is mounted on the ceiling and it sends down what can probably be best described as a blanket of the sensor, and as soon as you walk into that blanket, it would then set off whatever it's supposed to set off.

Q. And in this case --

MR. SANGER: Excuse me, I'm sorry. I'm going to move to strike the answer as being an opinion without a foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: In this particular case, did you actually conduct experiments with regard to this particular sensor as depicted in the photograph, Exhibit 160?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. As you walked past the sensor, what happened?

A. As I walked underneath the sensor, the alarm sounded within the living space of the master bedroom suite.

Q. And could you tell the jury where this particular sensor is located in the hallway to Mr. Jackson's bedroom?

A. That sensor is located just outside of the door that leads into the living space of Michael Jackson's master bedroom suite.

Q. All right. Now, let's -- let's turn to 157. Do you recognize what's depicted in the photograph 157?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. In particular, do you recognize what's depicted, the little white -- what appears to be a white rectangular box in the middle -- in the center of the photograph?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And what is that?

A. That is the alarm enunciator, which was set off when you broke the plane of the curtain sensor that was on the ceiling outside of his bedroom.

Q. Now, was there more than one curtain sensor outside of Mr. Jackson's bedroom?

A. Yes, there was.

Q. Was there a second sensor?

A. There was a second sensor that was located down the hallway, just prior, at the doorway leading into what I guess could be called a foyer or entryway to the house.

Q. So that if you're in the foyer and you open the doors and walk through those doors down the hallway to Mr. Jackson's bedroom, there's a sensor up by those doors?

A. Yes.

Q. And do they activate a chime within the room?

A. During the -- on both November 18th, 2003, and December 4th, 2004, there was no activation of an enunciator within the room when you walked under those -- the curtain sensor that was closest to the foyer.

Q. Now, you had occasion to review the defense exhibit that was admitted in this case with regard to the three scenes where the maid was asked to walk out the door and down the hallway, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. In those particular scenes that you observed, the sensor at the far end of the hallway near where the doors from the foyer are was working during the course of those videos, correct?

A. I believe --

MR. SANGER: Objection. Move to strike the answer for the purpose of objecting. There's no foundation for this opinion.

THE COURT: Well, sustained, the foundation objection.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Were you present on the 18th of November of 2003 where you saw people walk through the entryway, through those doors from the foyer into the hallway, to begin to walk down to Mr. Jackson's bedroom? Were you present and did you hear any alarm go off when they did that?

A. No.

MR. SANGER: Objection. Wait, excuse me. Objection. That's compound. And I move to strike the answer, because it would be without foundation as to at least one of those two parts.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I asked him if he was present.

THE COURT: All right. I'll overrule the objection. The question is basically whether he heard an alarm go off on that date when someone walked under the sensor, right?

MR. SNEDDON: That's basically it, when he was present.

MR. SANGER: And the objection is -- yeah, the objection is no foundation that he was present while somebody was walking under that sensor.

THE COURT: All right. The objection is overruled.

Do you understand the question?

THE WITNESS: I do.

And the answer is that, yes, I was there, and, no, it did not activate anything when somebody walked under the sensor.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Was that the same situation in December when you went -- December of 2004 when you went back?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Now, so we could probably orient this for the ladies and gentlemen, the exhibit that’s on the board there, which is 160, I believe.

MR. NICOLA: 157.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: 157, the one with the white box in the middle, can you tell the ladies and gentlemen of the jury, where is that located in Mr. Jackson’s bedroom? Is it on -- let’s start, first of all, is it on the first floor or on the second floor?

A. It’s on the first floor in the living area of the master bedroom suite.

Q. Where in the living area of the suite?

A. It was located underneath a bookcase/cabinet that was backed against a wall nearest the -- as you’re walking into the room, the left bathroom.

Q. Would that be the bathroom where the Jacuzzi is?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. Now, did you determine that -- that there was another one of these devices that’s depicted in the photograph, 157, within the room?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Where was the second device located?

A. It was located on the ground, underneath a red and gold chair, also could be considered a throne, I suppose.

Q. Where was that located in Mr. Jackson’s bedroom?

A. That was located against the same wall, but this chair was located immediately next to the doorway that led into the right bathroom where -- the bathroom that had the stairwell leading to the upstairs sleeping quarters.

Q. Now, on -- in December of 2004 when you were out there, did you participate in some -- did you personally participate in some experiments to determine whether or not the device located under the throne chair, that’s similar to the one depicted in 157, was working?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you determine whether or not it was working?

A. There was at no point in time, in walking under any of the sensors, that that enunciator was activated.

Q. So you call it an enunciator; is that correct?

A. That’s the correct terminology.

Q. But the one depicted in 157, over by the entrance to the bathroom where the Jacuzzi is, was working?

A. It was working, correct.

Q. Now, on November the 18th of 2003, when you went out to execute the search warrant - okay? - on that particular occasion, did you personally determine whether or not the enunciator that was located under the throne seat, as you referred to it, was working on that date?

MR. SANGER: That would be a “yes” or “no.” Otherwise, I have an objection.

THE COURT: Okay. Answer “yes” or “no” only.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: You were able to make a determination? “Yes” or “no.”

A. Yes.

Q. And what was it?

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object. No foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: It was not working.
Q. All right. Let’s show the last photograph.
That should get us through the rest of the day.
This is 159 in evidence, and particularly I want to direct your attention to the small white device that is located by the doorway.
First of all, do you know what that is?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And how do you know what it is?
A. Because I was present when the security personnel analyzed it, and I also tested that object.
Q. Yourself?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And what is that? What function does it serve?
MR. SANGER: I’m going to object.
THE WITNESS: It’s a motion sensor.
MR. SANGER: I’m going to object. It calls for hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: It is a motion sensor that, when activated, unlocks the entry/exit doors to Mr. Jackson’s personal bedroom, allowing a person to walk out without needing a key.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Okay. So, the view that the jury has of this particular exhibit, and let’s direct your attention directly to the door itself, where would you be standing if you were looking at that door?
A. You are inside Mr. Jackson’s living area of his personal bedroom, looking out into the hallway which leads to the foyer.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I think this would be an appropriate time to --
THE COURT: All right. We’ll take our recess. See you tomorrow, 8:30. Remember the admonition.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:30 p.m.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Let's see, we have a motion to quash a subpoena.
Mr. Levine, is it?

MR. LEVINE: Yes, Your Honor. Did the Court have an opportunity to read my motion?

THE COURT: I've read your motion. I don't have a copy of the subpoena.

MR. LEVINE: Could you --

MR. NICOLA: I have to get one.

MR. LEVINE: I faxed it over, but I didn't fax the subpoena, Your Honor. The content of what they want is pretty much everything in the file. And I think the Court has previously ruled twice that they were not entitled to that. And I think the Court told Mr. Zonen on two separate occasions, on the 13th and the 20th, that the Court wasn't going to order that. And I just wanted to point out --

THE COURT: You must understand, though, I was telling them that they had to follow the proper legal process. They couldn't just, in open court, ask me to order people to produce records. So you've misconstrued my refusals.

MR. LEVINE: To the extent that that may be -- I will accept that, Your Honor. But I think what we have here is a very limited attorney-client waiver. There's been no waiver of the attorney work-product privilege. And I think the law is very clear that that privilege is strictly with Mr. Geragos.

THE COURT: I think you're mistaken there. There was a waiver of the attorney work-product privilege, plus it's very limited in criminal cases anyway. So it's very, very limited, if at all.

MR. LEVINE: Well, 105.46 of the discovery code incorporates the attorney work-product privilege. I mean, I understand that the waiver executed by Mr. Jackson purported to waive that privilege, but case law is very clear that that privilege rests solely with Mr. Geragos.

THE COURT: Yes. It's also very clear it's very limited in criminal cases. We've been through this on numerous witnesses here, Counsel. We've been schooled well on this issue.

MR. LEVINE: Okay. The point that I would like to make, Your Honor, is that the request is just for everything. And I think that --

THE COURT: I haven’t seen the subpoena. That’s the deficiency I’m dealing with here.

MR. LEVINE: Could we wait, then, until after you review the subpoena?

THE COURT: Sure.

MR. LEVINE: Thanks.

THE COURT: Okay. And somebody’s getting it for us?

MR. ZONEN: Yes, Your Honor.

MR. LEVINE: Yes.

THE COURT: All right. There’s another issue here, the -- a couple of issues I want to bring up. One is the -- originally when we allowed the rebuttal tape in, I gave -- I guess the takeout tape. It was the takeout that -- no, it wasn’t the outtakes. It was the original Bashir tape; that the District Attorney asked that certain things that Mr. Jackson said be admitted for the truth of the matter asserted, and we instructed the jury that certain things would be -- that we’d advise them later. Someone brought this to my attention the other day, and I think the District Attorney should provide us with the portions of the tape -- not right now.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: With the portions of the tape that show -- that you intend to argue are admissions, so that perhaps the Court should be more specific; at least we should discuss in our preparation of final instructions what areas the jury might conceivably consider are admissions or not admissions, which ones you were thinking about, because it is ultimately a jury question, but there is some preliminary finding, maybe, that I should make.

MR. SNEDDON: Yes. I’ll do that, Your Honor. I believe I have the notes that were made the day the Court ruled as to which ones would be admissible when we went through it. And I’ll take the responsibility for that, and share it with Mr. -- with counsel for the defense, and hopefully we can just come up with something we both agree on. It’s on the record. I remember we did it in open court, so -- and it was by page and line number, so it shouldn’t be that difficult to come by.

THE COURT: And in connection with that, then you had asked for a special instruction along the same lines on the takeout tape.

MR. SNEDDON: We did.

THE COURT: The outtakes and -- so we should address -- I will give that instruction, but we should address the same issue on that tape.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. I’ll review that tape. I don’t believe there’s any in there, but that would be good for us to come to a consensus on.

THE COURT: Yeah. I would want it.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. I’ll do that.

THE COURT: And be sure that everyone agreed that was the case.

MR. SNEDDON: That would be fine, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: I take it you’re going to give us an opportunity to argue that motion. I don’t think that’s actually been heard yet.

THE COURT: What motion is that?

MR. SANGER: The motion the prosecution made to limit the outtake tape.

THE COURT: Oh, yeah. No. That’s why I didn’t give -- that’s what I’m talking about.

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: I want some actual material, what we’re talking about; this piece of information, that piece of information, all the information. I want both sides to address that. I’m more concerned -- the tape’s been shown, you know. What we’re talking about is jury instructions on this issue.

MR. SANGER: Right. Correct.

THE COURT: So I’m just asking you to be prepared to discuss those as we get ready to discuss jury instructions.

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, can I ask for a point of clarification on that?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: I understand exactly what the Court is saying, but, as I mentioned yesterday, I'm assuming -- and I don't want to assume too much, but I'm assuming that some sort of a limiting instruction on the tape in general is going to be given; that it was not admitted for the truth of the matter, except for those portions that may --

THE COURT: That's the issue.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, it would affect our rebuttal, because if the Court determines that those statements come in for the truth of the matter, then we obviously would be putting on evidence to show some of the statements made by Mr. Jackson during the course of those outtakes were not true. And so that's why we filed it prior to the time that we sit down for instructions.

I know I'm not -- I'm not asking the Court to carve out those portions of the tape where there may be -- may or may not be admissions by the defendant that would come in for the truth of the matter. But generally speaking, there's a great deal of narrative, an interview by the defendant that has nothing to do with what I would believe to be an admission.

And so I guess that's what I'm asking the Court now, because we need to know that before we rest, because, I mean, if some of that stuff comes in for the truth of the matter, we're going to call witnesses to prove otherwise. That's why we filed the motion, Your Honor.

And I believe that the understanding on the original Bashir tape was that that was not for the truth of the matter, except for the admissions, and it seemed to me that the same thing should apply to the outtakes.

THE COURT: That is true. That's what the Bashir tape ruling was, and that's the reason for admitting the outtakes. There really was not a truth-of-the-matter admission there. It was to balance the information. It was sort of the rest of the story.

I kind of viewed it as a situation where you have a conversation and only part of the conversation is admitted, so you let the other side admit the conversation, or the document. Sometimes part of a document's admitted. It's not clear the total meaning unless the whole conversation -- or a whole document.

So that's why I admitted the outtakes, was to give the defense -- they had been requesting that. They wanted the balance of the total picture and --

MR. SANGER: But in that case, it would come in for the truth of the matter. The whole conversation comes in for the truth of the matter.

THE COURT: Then the Bashir tape all comes in for the truth of the matter, right?

MR. SANGER: No.

THE COURT: You just want your side to have the truth of the matter.

MR. SANGER: No, I understand the irony there, in a sense, but the fact is that the whole Bashir tape has all sorts of other hearsay. The only reason that it was admissible for the truth was that --

THE COURT: I meant as to Mr. Jackson's statements.

MR. SANGER: As to his statements, yeah. If his statements come in for the truth of the matter --

THE COURT: Whether they're admissions or not. I don't think you do understand the irony. But go ahead.

MR. SANGER: No, no, I do. I'm wrestling with the irony at the moment. Ironically, it turns out.

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: I understand what the Court is saying, and I was just about to concede that, but I don't know -- I'd have to think about the Bashir tape. But it seems to me, if Mr. Jackson said things on the Bashir tape -- we had limited portions of the tape --

THE COURT: We've already told them they are not to take that tape for the truth of the matter asserted except for certain parts, which we told them we'd advise them about later.

MR. SANGER: Now, I'm not too worried about what Mr. Jackson said in the Bashir tape. What I'm worried about is -- you're not suggesting, Your Honor, that what Mr. Bashir says and other people --

THE COURT: No.

MR. SANGER: Okay. So that would still not come in for the truth.

Then the rest of the conversation, it would seem to me, whether it was on the Bashir tape or the outtakes, the whole conversation would come in for the truth of the matter as to what Mr. Jackson said.

THE COURT: Well, what Mr. Jackson said there was hearsay, and it has to have an exception to the hearsay rule to come in for the truth of the matter asserted, and admissions is one exception.

MR. SANGER: Well --

THE COURT: Clearly you don't let out-of-court statements of the defendant in that are not within the normal classifications, and that's what you're suggesting.

MR. SANGER: Well, generally, under the Evidence Code, if the entire statement comes in --

THE COURT: That doesn't --

MR. SANGER: -- it generally does all come in. I understand, Your Honor --

THE COURT: As to one limited piece of the conversation. You know, if they said, "Okay. The admission is, 'I sleep in the bed with young boys,'" and the other part of the conversation is, "But I don't have sex," then, yeah, that comes -- that's it. But if, you know, part of the conversation was what he did in town yesterday, no. And that's where we come in. There's a lot of outtake material there that's not material to the parts that are admissions.

MR. SANGER: Well, and that -- I think that's something we need to -- I don't know that we can accomplish it right now, because --

THE COURT: Well, the D.A. says he can't rest until -- literally he can't rest --

MR. SANGER: The District Attorney is restless.

MR. SNEDDON: That's the most accurate thing you've said during this whole trial, Judge.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Well, my first argument is, under the Evidence Code -- I understand what the Court just said, but under the Evidence Code, generally if they let in part of the conversation, the rest of it -- ordinary case, the rest of it comes in and it just comes in for the truth.

THE COURT: That's your argument.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor is saying, well, we need to do something to pare it down. In order to pare it down, it's going to --

THE COURT: We need to do something to give the jury some legal instruction, some help here, you know. We can talk about it, but they have to decide it.

MR. SANGER: All right. Now, the tape itself also came in, the outtakes. The Hamid video came in also to show -- to rebut -- to rebut the contention that the Bashir tape was such a disaster and there was nothing that could be done except to do illegal things to the Arvizos.

THE COURT: That's right.

MR. SANGER: And so it came in to show, "Well, no, we had this in the bank." That was there. That was a strong piece of information or something that could be put out to the public.

THE COURT: Let me ask the District Attorney what his --

What is your position on the instruction we should give on the outtake tape that Mr. Sanger and I have just been discussing?

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, our position is I think outlined in the papers we filed with you; that is, that the outtakes were admitted, as the Court has amply pointed out, as simply a further picture of the entire portions of the interview of the Bashir documentary which was originally shown, and that they do not meet any exception to the hearsay rule, and therefore the limiting instruction that you gave the jury early on in this case with regard to the original documentary should be given with regard to the rest of the outtakes.

Now, what we haven’t done, and the part where we addressed earlier in our conversation is, I can’t tell you, as I stand here, whether there are or are not any admissions by Mr. Jackson during the course of those outtakes.

Frankly, my recollection is that there are not, because I recall that the tape -- the outtakes ended before the discussion began of his relationship with Gavin and his relationship with other boys and his -- and the questions asked by Mr. Bashir about, you know -- that dialogue about, “Well, isn’t it” -- “Shouldn’t an adult man not be sleeping with little boys?” So I don’t believe that’s on the outtakes.

So I don’t think -- I believe that probably all of the outtakes are probably subject to the limiting instruction, except for one portion. And the one portion I would point out to the Court that we put in independent of the outtakes, actually we put in in our case, is the defendant’s statement about the Jesus Juice, as an admission that he did use that term and it corroborates the statement of the kids.

But other than that one statement, my recollection, as I stand before the Court right now is, I don’t believe there’s probably any other admissions that would qualify as those that we set out - when I say “we,” the Court, and counsel for the defendant, and us - in open court and delineated in the original Bashir, which may qualify as admissions.

But I’ll tell you that my opinion is that the bulk of that tape, the outtakes takes are hearsay and should be subject to the same instruction as the original Bashir documentary.

I hope that addresses what the Court asked.

THE COURT: It does. Let me ask you a question now. On the tape of Garvin -- Gavin --

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: -- what’s your purpose in introducing that?

MR. SNEDDON: Well, we indicated to the Court that there were two purposes. And of course one was prior consistent statements. And the other was that there has been an allegation on the part of the defense that this entire case, and the allegations made by Gavin in particular, was scripted by the mother. They presented several witnesses, most particularly Mary Holzer, to try to infer from what happened, or what statements were made in prior cases, or a prior case, that this case is a similar situation.

And so we are offering it for two purposes. One is the prior consistent under Evidence Code Section 791, but more importantly, we’re offering it for the -- it would be actually a nonhearsay purpose, which would be for the purpose of allowing the jury simply to examine the demeanor and the manner in which the disclosures were originally made by Gavin to the law enforcement agencies.

And of course I realize that is a different type of a ruling for the Court. And when you ruled that we could show it, I realize that you just made the ruling and didn’t say on which basis. And so I do -- I do recognize, and I did recognize at the time, that there may be -- the way it would come in and whatever instructions you would give the jury may be different, and I do concede that, and so --

THE COURT: If I didn’t say it - and I think, now that you mention it, I probably didn’t - my intent in allowing that, making that ruling, was to -- not for the impeachment statements, but for the purpose of allowing the jury to examine his demeanor and the manner in which he made the disclosures.

And it’s been my thought to give some instruction along with that, or afterwards when we give instructions, to limit the use of that tape not for the truth of the matter asserted.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I have no problem with that. For us, the significance of it is simply the way the disclosure occurred, and his manner and the way he behaves and reacts to the officers in what he says. So that's not a problem with us. And I understand the difference. And I kind of anticipated that might be what the Court had in mind.

THE COURT: Mr. Sanger?

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Would you address that point, please? You are doing that issue, aren't you?

MR. SANGER: Yes.

I agree with the Court, it was not -- it should not be let in for prior consistent statements, because that should have been in the case-in-chief. And that's why we argued that on this thin basis, that it's collateral impeachment of Holzer, scripted, that may or may not apply to this situation.

And we argued that it was very -- you know, to be able to play this at the end, as we cited the case several times, the Carter case from the Supreme Court, that says you shouldn't be allowed to put dramatic evidence on at the end for a purpose that isn't really -- or that goes beyond what the real lawful purpose is, and we still believe that that's the case. So that's the first thing.

Secondly, as far as the truth of the matter, I think the Court could frame an instruction. The danger, though, would be that no matter what the Court says, the jury's going to sit here and listen to Gavin's statement at the end of the case and they're going to hear the words, and there's no way that they're going to be able to disregard what he's saying.

And if the Court limits it the way the Court limits it, there's also the fact that then we can't cross-examine even on some strange remarks that are made by Gavin that may not otherwise be picked up. Because it is our position that this was rehearsed. He had told Davellin this story. Davellin had told Dr. Katz. Davellin had told the police. And then he comes in, and by the end of the statement, he says, "I haven't told my sister or my brother about this.”

If we can’t -- if we can’t inquire about that -- the officer, when they put the tape on, for instance, and say, “Well,” you know, “he told you” -- “Isn’t it a fact that you already interviewed Davellin and she already told you that, and you are aware Dr. Katz interviewed Davellin and she had all the details?” You know, I’m just giving that as an example.

THE COURT: And to respond to that example, it seems to me that if the purpose is the spontaneity and demeanor of the child reporting it to the police for the first time, then in fact that cross-examination would be permitted, because -- not for the truth of the matter, but because it shows -- or it’s evidence that a jury could infer shows lack of spontaneity.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: So it’s tricky business, I understand. You know, that’s why I --

MR. SANGER: We can live with that. That would -- that makes sense. I appreciate what the Court just said. And that would make sense if we’re at least allowed to cross-examine on a couple of those issues like that.

I still -- I don’t know if the Court was inviting a further argument it shouldn’t come in at all, but I certainly would argue that. I think the Court ruled previously, so I don’t mean to be arguing with the Court.

THE COURT: I did. And I understand that.

And all of these issues are -- they’re similar legal concepts, and that’s why it’s good to be discussing all of them at the same time, because invariably one side wants to produce evidence that’s very similar to what the other side wants to produce, and they both oppose the evidence.

MR. SANGER: Right. That’s our job.

THE COURT: Well, but I like to make you look at it that way.

MR. SANGER: No, I understand that.

Well, and so in this -- if the Court was going to let it in -- I don't know if the Court's considering revisiting that decision.

THE COURT: Well, I would consider -- since we're rediscussing it, I would consider anything new that you want to say on that issue, if you felt that you were cut short. I don't want to hear the argument again. I heard the argument. But if there's something you thought of later, or in this conversation we've just had this morning, if there's something else you want to say about that ruling, say it.

MR. SANGER: What I would add to everything else I said is that -- and it's actually become more clear right now, is that, by playing the tape, that could well lengthen the -- the surrebuttal process considerably. By not playing the tape, it would eliminate a good amount of surrebuttal that I don't think -- I think by the time all the dust settles with that rebuttal and the surrebuttal, I don't think the jury is going to be any further ahead in their process of finding out what happened, but --

THE COURT: Well, in that regard -- let's talk about your surrebuttal. If it's admitted -- if the tape's admitted only for the purpose of the demeanor, spontaneity, that type of issue with Gavin, and not for prior consistent statements or the truth of the matter asserted, you'll be required to address for me each issue, each witness that you intend to call on surrebuttal as to what the significance, relevance of that witness would be.

MR. SANGER: Well, I understand. I could address that briefly so the Court has an idea. I mean, for instance, Gavin would be called and could be cross-examined on circumstances leading up to giving this interview, and whether or not he's spontaneous during the particular interview. And there's some particular issues I --

THE COURT: I'm not really concerned about Gavin. I could clearly see that. But why would you re-call Mrs. Arvizo?

MR. SANGER: Mrs. Arvizo, because she has -- let me answer my part first, and I think Mr. Mesereau wants to add something there.

But the -- but we'd call Mrs. Arvizo because that is the reason it's called -- I mean, the reason it's presented by the prosecution is they're saying this rebuts somehow Holzer's implication that because J.C. Penney's was coached, that this was coached. Well, we can -- we would like to call her, now that we've had some further evidence in this case, and confront her with some issues that suggested this was coached. And so --

THE COURT: When you say that "this was coached," you're saying that this interview with the sheriff was coached.

MR. SANGER: That's correct.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: And then we have Dr. Katz, because Dr. Katz did the prior interviews where Davellin also told him all the details. And that obviously flies in the face of the idea that this is spontaneous and the police officers are somehow dragging this out of him. And Gavin also told all -- different details, but generally the same story, with some striking inconsistencies, but generally the same story he told to Dr. Katz.

So we would need to go through and show that this is not as spontaneous as it appears. And I think if it's looked at in those eyes, it isn't spontaneous. But if it isn't looked at through those eyes, then, you know, the People are going to say, "Well, look and see how spontaneous he is." And so we need to do that.

We also have Mr. Feldman --

THE COURT: What I really wanted to be sure of was that you weren't going down the street of now you have to impeach him with statements he made post. I mean, that's how we -- you see what I'm saying?

If they're not admitted for the truth of the matter asserted, we're not -- we're not admitting them for prior consistent statements, then we're not going to admit them for inconsistent statements.

MR. SANGER: And if the Court does that, if that's -- if the Court's going to allow the tape -- and I’m urging the Court to reconsider that, because I think at this point it’s -- it shouldn’t be. But if the Court were to admit the tape, then I think that would be a good part of the instruction to give the jury, to let them know that we are not going to be attempting to impeach his statement, because it’s not offered for the truth. We’re not going to be attempting to impeach it at this time. Counsel’s not being allowed to, or however the Court would phrase it, go into the subsequent statements that were made.

Now, we have introduced evidence of some of those previously, so they’re in evidence, but I think that would be fair. Otherwise, it will appear that we’re just kind of giving up or not challenging what was said. And I don’t think that would be fair to the defense.

Could I have a second, just to see if Mr. Mesereau wanted --

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, may I have a chance to respond just briefly to something?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: I’ll wait for Mr. Mesereau.

MR. SANGER: I’m sorry, I heard Mr. Sneddon’s voice, but I didn’t hear what he said because I was talking to Mr. Mesereau.

THE COURT: Well --

MR. SANGER: Too bad, I missed it?

THE COURT: Well, I don’t know. It was pretty important.

MR. SANGER: All right. Let me respond to that, Your Honor. Once again, Mr. Sneddon is wrong.

THE COURT: He said, “Let me be” -- he wants to be heard.

MR. SANGER: On this issue.

THE COURT: On this issue.

MR. SANGER: I would like to just remind the Court, please, on the outtakes, I did have a response. I would like to respond to what Mr. Sneddon said on that. But we are now talking about this other issue, so I’ll -- as long as you give me an opportunity to do that before we’re through.

THE COURT: No, go ahead and respond to the outtakes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Switching gears here to the outtakes, Mr. Sneddon said the outtakes ended before the discussions about Gavin. Well, that's not correct. That's not even close to being correct. The outtakes are outtakes that were done in June, the end of June of 2002, the first two tapes, and then the third disk is in January of 2003. The third disk, actually, is at the very end. All of the other filming for the entire video, for the entire Bashir video, has been done at that time. In June, some of the videotaping has been done. But -- and the last -- the last one, all of it was done.

Secondly, not all of the statements of Mr. Jackson were taken by Mr. Bashir's film crew during the same time that Hamid was taping. So in other words, Bashir also taped at other times, obviously in Las Vegas and other places, at the ranch, at other dates undisclosed. We don't know because he's asserting the shield and won't answer. So he has other material that he got, and we don't have outtakes from that.

So, first of all, on the outtakes, let me give an example here. If the Court is going to limit it, our first position is the outtakes come in for the truth of the matter because it's part of the overall conversation. And there were cuts from that that were played in the actual Bashir, so the whole thing comes in.

Second, if the Court says it doesn't come in for the truth of the matter entirely, then we would ask that the Court look at this liberally. For instance - I was just thinking of an example - there's a point at which Mr. Jackson talks about his former wife, Debbie Rowe. And you recall there's questions about the children and -- a number of questions that related to the children.

If the Court is going to start carving things out, I suppose there could be an order that the statement as to the circumstances of the birth of his children would not be offered for the truth of the matter. But the statements that relate to his love for his children and his relationship with his children, particularly in direct response to questions from Mr. Bashir, would be admitted for the truth of the matter, because that goes directly to the issues in the Bashir tape where he talks about his love for children.

What Bashir did is, he cleverly and surgically took out what he thought was the most sensational clips from all the footage he had, which included all of this, and he did not include extensive commentary by Mr. Jackson about how he loves children, and Mr. Bashir encouraging him, and Mr. Bashir saying, "Oh, this is wonderful. I've seen your relationship," and he's responding to it. Because that truly does put the statements on the tape in context. So, if we're going to do it surgically, it would have to be somewhere along those lines.

Now, the Court could probably -- if our motion to admit it all for the truth is denied, the Court could probably give a general instruction, without going through and saying, "The tape up to this part is admissible for the truth of the matter, and then from this counter number to this counter number it isn't." And the Court could probably fashion something that covers the subject matter, in other words, saying that the entire tape -- give examples, perhaps.

THE COURT: I understand your position.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Very good.

All right. So unless there's a response to what Mr. Sneddon has on the other thing, I'll submit it.

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Sneddon?

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I'm done on the Bashir thing. I think the Court has our position on it. And we'll look at the tape. If there's something on there, there's something on there. If there's not, there's not. I think I made that clear.

With regard to the second part, however, I do want to say this, because I think there's been the creation of a misimpression with this Court, and that is that -- the question that you asked about Dr. Katz and the reason that Dr. Katz would be called, and counsel's reference of a fact that Davellin made statements to Dr. Katz about there had been previous disclosures, based upon my recollection of the testimony, is untrue.

There had been discussion by Gavin with Davellin with regard to certain incidents, including the showing of the pornography, adult materials, the drinking, the mannequin incident, but there had been no disclosure of the sexual activities between the defendant and Gavin. And I think Dr. Katz was very clear that, in Gavin's conversation with him, there was no disclosure, and when he got to that point he just dropped his head and he wouldn't talk anymore, and that's why Dr. Katz felt he needed to make a mandated report.

So I think what I'm saying to the Court simply is, before the Court opens up a lot of avenues for cross-examination or bringing these witnesses in, I think it's incumbent on the defense to show where there's some testimony in this case that there really was a disclosure of the sexual conduct between the defendant and the victim in this case on a prior occasion, before he disclosed on the video that we're about to play.

I believe the state of the evidence in this case is there was absolutely none. This was it. And that this would be collateral to the main issue as to why this tape is being shown. So --

THE COURT: I think, so that you understand, I will require both sides, but in this case specifically the defense, to -- before a witness is called, to make an offer of proof on surrebuttal as to why they're calling the witness and how it relates to your rebuttal. I'm not opening up this trial again for anybody.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay.

THE COURT: So -- and at that time you'll have an opportunity to address it. I just wanted -- and I appreciate that Mr. Sanger gave me a picture of some of the material he thought he was going to be bringing in, and most of what he said seemed relevant. But I will look at each piece, and I’m going to hold people tight to this, because we’re on surrebuttal. The case is over. You’re on rebuttal.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: On your subpoena, come forward.

MR. LEVINE: Yes, my more boring issue, Your Honor.

Just to keep it very brief --

THE COURT: I don’t think your issue is boring, Counsel.

MR. LEVINE: Thank you, Your Honor.

Compared to the others.

With the benefit of hindsight, it seems that Mr. Geragos testified pretty much that he ordered surveillance in this case and the reasons why he did that. And I think that’s the extent of what both sides were getting at during the cross.

We have here an attempt to basically try to get billing statements, everything related to his representation. A lot of that, the Court can see, is irrelevant to what has occurred. It would be beyond the scope of both cross and direct. And I think to even -- and I think what he stated in his testimony is that he didn’t take any notes. He didn’t have any tapes. Whatever e-mails there were, the Court -- they have been provided by the defense to the prosecution.

And I think that Brad Miller, who did the surveillance and would be the relevant witness as to what occurred during the surveillance, I think he was raided, and I think that there was a search warrant served on his offices. I don’t really think that the records, his billing records and what are other extraneous items that may be in the file, are really relevant at this point.

I think both sides -- Mr. Zonen did a very effective cross-examination that lasted almost five hours. And I think that there’s really nothing left to do in this particular area. So, it appears that the request, as it’s framed in their subpoena, is just overbroad, putting aside any privileges or any other issues. And I think that it would be better if there was something specific that we can respond to.

I mean, you have to understand, the file with Mr. Jackson, the brunt of it is just box -- I don't know how big it is. I haven't seen it. But most of it is after he was arrested. So there would be a lot of --

THE COURT: That seems to be one of the problems with the subpoena, now that I see it, is that the -- there's not a limitation to the time period that the waiver purports to. You know, it appears to be overly broad from the standpoint that they subpoena everything, which, you know, clearly they are not entitled to subpoena records beyond the time waiver.

MR. LEVINE: Even if we limit it to records within the time waiver, I mean, let's say they add that sentence and it's in there, which I think they -- I think that was their intent. Again, it's just a situation here where, at this very late stage of the trial where everybody has rested, and we're getting back into what seems to be very insignificant information. Mr. Geragos's testimony was very collateral to -- it's just ancillary, a very small part, and he just basically ordered surveillance. And it seems that --

THE COURT: It's a little more complicated than that.

MR. LEVINE: I understand. I read --

THE COURT: You didn't see the trial, so I'll accept --

MR. LEVINE: I did see parts of it. It was very compelling, Your Honor. I was here last week. But I think that it would be better if we can just have --

THE COURT: One of the things I'm addressing is there was some testimony just yesterday about the number of phone calls between Mr. Geragos and other people involved during this period, which flies in the face of your assertion that he was just -- that he just ordered surveillance. You know, that's not true. He was very involved in a lot of that, you know, what was going on, and that -- so I just -- you know, I just have to tell you, your assertion doesn’t stand up. But --

MR. LEVINE: I’m not suggesting that he didn’t talk to people. The fact that a phone call was made, again, I’m just really -- just seems -- again, what the defense called him for was for that purpose. That other items came up, I understand. I’m just trying to --

THE COURT: You have to realize that, until the defense called him, he claimed the privilege, and he -- the District Attorney couldn’t call him. They couldn’t subpoena his records. In fact, I had a special master spend months going through the e-mails, the computer hard drives that were seized, and segregating out the privileged material, only to have him come into court and have the privilege waived. So what may appear to you to be a late subpoena isn’t late at all, considering when Mr. Geragos and Mr. Jackson waived the privilege.

MR. LEVINE: All right. We didn’t like that argument. We didn’t like the attorney-client and not the attorney work-product. I understand that.

THE COURT: I’ll just make this easy for you. I’m going to -- I’ll make it easy for me, excuse me, not for you.

MR. LEVINE: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I’m going to allow the subpoena, but I’m going to limit it to materials that are within the scope of the waiver.

MR. LEVINE: Okay. Is there a time frame as far as -- I know that the boxes are in storage somewhere and they have to be pulled out.

THE COURT: Well, Mr. Geragos actually said he didn’t think there was much material.

MR. LEVINE: I agree.

THE COURT: So it can’t be very burdensome. He didn’t think there was hardly anything.

MR. LEVINE: Well, that would be me, though. I would have to go through the boxes, Your Honor, so --

THE COURT: All right. We’re back in session

Tuesday. That's when I want it here.

MR. LEVINE: Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, would it be possible to get it earlier than that? Given the reality of our case, we're going to be done Tuesday.

THE COURT: They can't hear you back there.

MR. ZONEN: One of these days I'll remember this.

We believe that we will likely be resting on Tuesday. If we don't get the materials until that time -- and frankly, if we have to wait till Tuesday, we would probably need Mr. Geragos's presence here. If we could have it before Tuesday, we might be able to resolve a stipulation where he wouldn't actually have to come; that we could perhaps stipulate to the admissibility of some materials. But we would need the materials in advance of that date. Otherwise, I'm afraid Mr. Geragos would have to be here on Tuesday, as he would be the only one to lay the foundation for the introduction of those documents, assuming there's some relevant documents among the file.

MR. LEVINE: I really have nothing to do this weekend, it being Memorial Day weekend. I'm happy to accommodate this request to go through it. I don't really think there is much, because I think his testimony was he didn't take notes, he didn't have tapes. And I know that --

THE COURT: That's pretty much what he testified to.

MR. LEVINE: He also turned over a lot of stuff to the defense, which I would assume they have possession of and they would be obligated to turn over to the prosecution, given the fact that they waived the privilege that they had.

THE COURT: They have different obligations. You're only required to turn over what you have, not what's been forwarded to other people.

So in order to help bring this case to an end, and to ruin your weekend, I'll order that you present it on Monday to the district attorneys.

MR. LEVINE: It's a lovely drive here from

Los Angeles, Your Honor.

MR. ZONEN: He’ll only have to go to Santa Barbara.

MR. LEVINE: Okay.

THE COURT: You should make an agreement how you’re going to get together.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll do that. Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. LEVINE: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you.

What I want to do is -- you want to say something?

MR. SANGER: I do. I just missed the last part there.

These are documents that are subpoenaed to the Court, not to the District Attorney’s Office. I don’t mind them being delivered to the District Attorney’s Office if we have an agreement that they will immediately provide us with a copy.

THE COURT: So ordered.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: But I don’t think they were listening this time either.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I was listening.

THE COURT: Oh, you were. Okay.

Oh, it was you that wasn’t listening last time. I get confused about who’s not listening.

Don’t bring the jury in. I want to just take a couple minutes and look at some material here before you bring the jury in.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: (To the jury) I know what you’re thinking.

JUROR NO. 7: Uh-oh.

THE COURT: You’re probably thinking, “Well, if you don’t want us to come in until 9:15, then why do you have us here at 8:30?” Right?

This is just a little bit more complicated.

We’re in the rebuttal stage, and the legal issues become more complicated, and I'm just trying to take care of them as quickly as they come up and then get you in here.

Just think of it this way: You only have 15 more minutes till the break.

Counsel, you may proceed.

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you, Your Honor.

CRAIG BONNER

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

MR. SNEDDON: First of all, I'd like to begin by having another photograph marked as 909 for identification purposes. I've shown it to counsel and I'd like to approach the witness, with the Court's permission.

THE COURT: You may.

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Detective Bonner, yesterday, we were talking during your testimony about the location of the two areas where the sensors were located in the downstairs area of Mr. Jackson's bedroom suite, okay? And I've handed you the exhibit marked as People's 909. Do you recognize that photograph?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And have you seen that area before?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. And is that photograph an accurate depiction of what it purports to represent?

A. Yes, it is.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'd move that 909 be admitted into evidence.

MR. SANGER: No objection.

THE COURT: It's admitted.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, could we have the input for the Elmo, please?

Q. We put on the board the photograph -- excuse me. There we go -- the photograph marked as 909, which is now in evidence. And do you recognize that photograph?

A. Yes, I do.
Q. Okay. And in that photograph, do you see the areas where the -- what you call the -- what do you call them? -- the enunciators are located?
A. Yes.
Q. And I guess I should give you the red -- that's the laser. Would you, first of all, point out the locations of what you call the enunciators?
A. The two enunciators, or alarm speakers, were located, the first one, underneath this bookcase/cabinet, right down here.
Q. You're indicating in the lower left-hand corner of the Exhibit 909?
A. Correct. Underneath it.
Q. All right.
A. The second enunciator was located underneath this chair, or throne.

Q. Okay. Now, I'm going to show you another photograph marked as 54, which is in evidence. Do you recognize that photograph?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And that's the same chair -- the chair that's depicted in that photograph is the same chair depicted in photograph 909; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And was that the location of the chair the time that you were out at the house in November of 2003?
A. Yes.
Q. And was that the location of the sensor -- or the enunciator that you mentioned on that occasion?
A. Yes.
Q. And the same thing in December of 2004?
A. Yes.
Q. So -- and this is -- which door is this?
A. This is the doorway that leads from the hallway into the private area of Michael Jackson's room, or the living space downstairs.
Q. All right. Now, the next photograph is People's 69, which is in evidence. You recognize that photograph?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And is the cabinet depicted in that photograph the same cabinet that you referenced earlier in your testimony?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And the room just to the left of that cabinet is what room? What is that?

A. That's the bathroom with the Jacuzzi tub.

Q. Okay. And again, was this the same location -- was this cabinet and the enunciator in the same location as depicted in this photograph on the 18th of November, 2003?

A. Yes. However, due to the angle that the film -- or the photograph is taken at, you cannot see it in this photograph.

Q. But you did see it personally?

A. Yes.

Q. And in December when you went out there in 2004, was that cabinet still in the same location?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And the enunciator was still in the same location?

A. Yes, it was.

MR. SNEDDON: We can have the lights, Your Honor.

Now, Your Honor, I have an exhibit which has been marked as 908 for identification purposes, and I've indicated to counsel what portion of the exhibit that we want to play, and we have it pre-set to that portion. And what I've told counsel that we would do, if this is okay with the Court, is that we will take the portion that's played in court out of this exhibit and provide that, simply that portion, for the Court in case the jury wants to look at it later. In other words, we'll substitute -- not -- we won't substitute. We will provide a 908-A, which will have just the portion that's shown to the jury.

THE COURT: That's good.

MR. SNEDDON: Because there's other matters on here, and we didn't have time to do the editing on it. And I think that's acceptable to the Court and I think that's acceptable to counsel.

MR. SANGER: Yes, it is.

THE COURT: All right. That's good. I'd like you to do that.

MR. SNEDDON: We will do that, Your Honor. So this is Exhibit 908, and we're going to -- let me ask a few foundation questions and then we'll show it.

Q. Detective Bonner, you had occasion to review a DVD disk of some portions of the search warrant that was executed in December of 2004, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you were present when those portions of the video that the jury is about to see were filmed; is that correct?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. In fact, your voice can be heard on the video?

A. Correct.

MR. SNEDDON: And with regard to the portions that we are about to see, Your Honor, I have another exhibit that I'd like to have marked as People's 907 for identification purposes. I've shown it to counsel, and it's a diagram. And I'd like to show it to the witness and authenticate it before we show the video.

THE COURT: You may. How long is the video now?

MR. SNEDDON: Very short. It's --

THE WITNESS: About 40 seconds, 45 seconds.

MR. SNEDDON: 40 seconds. What's the number on that? 907?

THE WITNESS: Absolutely.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, can I ask the questions here? I'll talk real loud, if that's all right.

I'll go back and forth. I could use the exercise.

Q. 907, do you recognize that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did you prepare that?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And is that -- does that purport to be to scale or just an illustration of the various locations of the rooms of the defendant's master bedroom?

A. This is not in any way to scale. It's just a quick drawing just to show relative location.

MR. SNEDDON: With the Court's permission, I move that be admitted for illustrative purposes of the witness's testimony that he's about to give.

MR. SANGER: No objection.

THE COURT: It's admitted.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. I think we'll play the video and then we'll go back to this exhibit.

THE COURT: All right.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, People's Exhibit 908 (to be later marked as 908-A) was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. SNEDDON: All right. For the record, that portion of the video that was shown was 19:20 to 19:55.

Now, we could have the lights again, Your Honor.

Q. Mr. -- Sergeant Bonner, where was the cameraman located at the time that those chimes were going off?

A. He was standing directly in front of or on top of the area where the enunciator was located underneath the bookcase/cabinet.

Q. All right. Let's put this Exhibit 907 up on the board, if we can.

Okay. This is Exhibit 907, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. Now, on the particular exhibit - you have the laser there - you have an "Enunciator 1," with a little square; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Where is that located in relationship to the room?

A. Enunciator 1 is located right here. This was where the bookcase was. And the enunciator was underneath the bookcase.

Q. All right. And could you illustrate to the ladies and gentlemen of the jury the approximate location of the cameraman at the time that they heard the chimes going off in the Exhibit 908?

A. Our cameraperson was standing right above that bookcase pointing down, at one point in time directly, the camera pointing directly at where that enunciator was at.

Q. You're indicating just to the top left of the small square, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Or rectangle?

A. Through the video, he moves -- he starts out approximately right here, and I believe he ends right about here.

Q. Okay. And then with regard to the "Enunciator 2," what does that relate to in your previous testimony?

A. Enunciator 2 was the nonworking enunciator that was underneath that red and gold chair.

Q. Now, using this diagram as a further illustration, you were shown a photograph yesterday that showed one of the sensors up in the ceiling prior to -- close to the entrance of Mr. Jackson's bedroom door, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And would you show us the location of that on the diagram?

A. It is right here, and I have called it "Curtain Sensor 1."

Q. Now, in November and December -- November of 2003, let's take them one at a time, was that curtain sensor working?

A. Yes.

Q. And in December of 2004, was that curtain sensor working?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: I'll object, asked and answered, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled. Next question.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: With regard to the exhibit, 907, you have a second curtain sensor located on that exhibit, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And why don't you show the jury where that's located?

A. That’s located prior to the doorway leading into the foyer. Right there.

Q. And was that sensor active on November 18th, 2003?

A. It did not activate any alarms.

Q. And with regard to December of 2004, was it working?

A. Again, it did not activate any alarms.

Q. You weren’t out at the ranch in February and March of 2003, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. I’m just going to ask you one other thing and then we’ll be done.

I’ve handed you the exhibit that -- it’s 907, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And would you please put on Exhibit 907, with the red pen I’ve given you, the approximate location of the sheriff’s department cameraman at the point where the video was played to the jury?

So with regard to Exhibit 907, you’ve placed a little red figure on that; is that correct?

A. Two circles with a line between the two, approximating the positions that you observe him to be in.

Q. So he moved during the course of the filming; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. But in that area. That was the area during the entire time that the chimes were ringing?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. You’ve had occasion to view the defense video of the three scenes where the chimes were filmed?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And with regard to the time that those were filmed, could you determine, from your experience of being out there twice, whether both of the enunciators were working on that day?

A. I believe both enunciators were working when the defense did their video.

MR. SANGER: I’m going to move to strike that. I didn't understand the question. I move to strike the answer for the purpose of objecting. That would call for speculation. There's no foundation. He wasn't there.

MR. SNEDDON: I'm about to ask him that question.

THE COURT: All right. I'll sustain the objection and strike the answer so you can --

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Have you reviewed that video?

A. Correct.

Q. And from reviewing that video, are you able to determine whether or not both of those enunciators were working at the time that the defense conducted their experiment?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Objection. He answered. He just answered "yes" or "no," so that's fine.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And are you able to reach that opinion based upon your prior experiments and familiarity with how this system works?

A. Yes.

Q. When you were actually out there?

A. Yes.

Q. I would ask you how -- what is the basis of your opinion that both enunciators were working the day that the defense filmed their exhibit concerning the chimes in the Jackson suite?

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor. Assumes facts not in evidence. There's no evidence as to his opinion, only that he had one. And I object to his opinion, to any opinion, as not being based on an adequate foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled. I'll allow the answer.

THE WITNESS: There are two different enunciators located in two different locations. There are two different curtain sensors located in two different locations.

We know, based upon our being there in December of '04 and on November 18th of '03, that Curtain Sensor 1 activated Enunciator 1, which is located furthest from the stairwell, and that would presumably have a lower volume than if Enunciator 2 was activated, based upon the filming with the individual in the upstairs.

When you listen --

MR. SANGER: Excuse me. First of all, it’s a narrative. And second of all, I move to strike the last part as being an opinion without a foundation.

THE COURT: I am going to sustain the objection and strike the opinion.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Are you able to tell, from a review -- based upon your familiarity with the system and your having been out there, are you able to determine, “yes” or “no,” from a review of those films, that both enunciators were working that day?

A. Yes.

Q. And are you able to determine that based upon your review of the sounds, the differing sounds that the chimes make at certain portions during those scenes?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you also able to determine, when you were out there before, that the enunciators have three volume settings on them?

A. No.

Q. Multiple volume settings?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Leading; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did you determine that at some other point in time?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. I have no further questions on this subject, Your Honor. But I believe at this point I would have this witness -- I’ll ask one question, and then I think we have a stipulation to offer to the Court. And we can have the lights.

MR. SANGER: First of all, I want to object to the last question and move to strike the last answer for the purpose of objecting to the question on the grounds there's no foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: During the course of your role in this investigation, was it your responsibility to review the items that had been obtained through the course of the search warrant process?

A. Yes.

Q. And was one of the assignments that you had to determine the items that were seized from the office of Investigator Brad Miller?

A. Yes.

Q. And during the course of that review, did you determine whether or not there was a tape that was recovered from Mr. Miller's office that dealt with an interview between Janet Arvizo and the Department of Child & Family Services in Los Angeles on February the 20th of 2003?

A. There was not.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. I believe the stipulation, Your Honor, is that --

MR. SANGER: Tom?

MR. MESEREAU: Oh.

MR. SNEDDON: Do you want to read it? That's fine, thank you. I'll read the stipulation, Your Honor, into the record, if that's appropriate for the Court.

THE COURT: You may.

MR. SNEDDON: Both sides are willing to stipulate to the following: That prior to the trial, both the prosecution and the defense exchanged documents and other evidence with each other, and on December the 6th of 2004, the defense provided to the prosecution a copy of the DCFS interview of February the 20th of 2003.

THE COURT: Is that your agreement, Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: The stipulation reads we provided the prosecution with our copy of that interview, I believe.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SNEDDON: That's fine.

THE COURT: Is that your agreement?
MR. SNEDDON: That’s our agreement
THE COURT: Is that your agreement?
MR. MESEREAU: So stipulated, Your Honor, yes.
THE COURT: I’ll approve that stipulation.
(To the jury) When the parties stipulate to a fact, the jury is bound by that stipulation.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I think probably to tie things together for the jury and the Court, we should indicate that the stipulation we entered into is directly related to the exhibit that has been played for the jury here in the courtroom. And I don’t have -- I’m sorry, I apologize for not having the exact exhibit number, but I will find that and provide that to the Court later, if you want.
MR. MESEREAU: I’m not sure what that even refers to, Your Honor.
MR. SNEDDON: I’m referring to the tape that was played of that conversation that the jury heard, which is the February 20th DCFS interview.
MR. MESEREAU: I’m not stipulating to that. I’m just -- if he wants to argue that, he can. The stipulation is the stipulation.
THE COURT: (To the jury) All right. So you’re not bound by what they don’t stipulate to.

All right. Let’s take our break.
(Recess taken.)
THE COURT: Go ahead.
MR. SANGER: I believe Mr. Sneddon was concluded, so may I proceed, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SANGER: Thank you.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. Detective Bonner, how are you doing?
A. Good.
Q. All right. Now, there was a lot of testimony about “enunciators” and “curtain sensors” and things like that. Did you learn those terms when you were out there in December of 2004?

A. The terminology, yes.
Q. Okay. And you learned that because you were out there with some people who had some background in these items; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. You’re not an expert in any of this; is that correct?
A. No.
Q. And before December the 4th, 2004, if somebody said, “Where was the enunciator?” what would you have said?
A. “What is an enunciator?”

Q. All right. And if somebody said, “Where is the curtain sensor?” what would you have said?
A. “What’s a curtain sensor?”
Q. All right. Now, you mentioned in the video that we saw that the person was pretty much standing right on top of that cabinet. Do you remember that testimony?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. In fact, the person with the camera was standing some distance away from the cabinet, wasn’t he?
A. Not far.
Q. Okay. Not far. But that’s some distance away. That’s not “on top of,” is it?
A. He was -- in the position of the camera, the camera was on top of the location.
MR. SANGER: Uh-huh. Do we have the Exhibit 907? Oh. It’s right here. Thank you.
May I put 907 up, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SANGER: Thank you.
Q. I’m showing the exhibit tab, “907,” at the bottom and then I’ll shift back up here.
This is your not-to-scale drawing, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you did not make that at the time that you were out there, did you?
A. No, I did not.

Q. You made that when? Yesterday? Or --
A. A couple days ago.

Q. All right. Do you remember a piano in that room?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. It says, “First floor living room area.” Where is the piano?

A. It’s not in there.

Q. I know you didn’t draw it in there, but can I have the --

A. It was located right about approximately where the “R” -- where the “O” is for “Enunciator 1.”

Q. All right. Well, anyway, everybody can see that, I suppose. We used to have a pointer. Do you have a pointer?

MR. ZONEN: Yes.

MR. SANGER: May I borrow it?

MR. ZONEN: Certainly.

MR. SANGER: Thank you. I’m not sure what you do to make it point. All right. Here you go. That’s it.

Q. So the piano -- there’s a little alcove over here, is that right, with a window?

A. Yes.

Q. And the piano is right in that alcove; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you remember seeing the piano in the video, the little clip that we just saw?

A. No.

Q. All right. And the picture -- let’s see which one this is. May I put up 909, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: In the picture, 909, the photographer was standing right in this area right here; is that correct?

A. From that point to poss -- I believe a little bit left of where you’re pointing.

MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object as vague as to whether he’s talking about this photograph or the cameraman.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I obviously meant the cameraman that you were talking about who's taking the video. Because the photographer who took this picture, if he was standing there, you'd see him, right?

A. Correct.

Q. So the photographer who was taking the video was standing in approximately this location that we're -- I'm pointing at on Exhibit 909; is that right?

A. Correct, and then moved slightly to his left within the filming.

Q. Moved over here a little more; is that right?

A. Up closer, but, yes.

Q. Okay. All right. Now, you heard the video that was played, right?

A. Which video are you talking about?

Q. The one that was just played. I forget the number. It was --

A. Our video.

Q. -- your video.

A. Yes.

Q. I'm sorry, forgive me one second. 908-A theoretically is the video that was played.

A. Right.

Q. You heard that?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. All right. Now, were you aware that there's a volume control on this video player here on the console in the middle of the courtroom?

A. I am aware of that, yes.

Q. Okay. Were you aware that all other videos that were played for all subject matter were played between Sound Level 7 and 9?

A. Yes.

Well, I'm sorry, I take that back. No, I am not.

Q. Were you aware that Mr. Auchincloss set this video on 1, the sound level 1 to play the 908-A?

MR. SNEDDON: I move to strike this testimony as lack of foundation on the witness's part and irrelevant as to the testimony.

THE COURT: Sustained on foundation.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Do you know what setting Mr. Auchincloss put that on when he played it?

A. No, I don't.

Q. You would agree that there's generally volume controls when you're playing videos, right?

A. There are.

Q. Now, you were asked some questions about being aware of the investigation in this case because of your position as one of the detectives in the case, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And are you aware that a number of people have testified that the bell that they heard at the time of the video that was played by the defense, that being the video of the test of the alarm, that that alarm is pretty much the alarm that they've been hearing at that ranch in that hallway for years? Were you aware of that?

A. I've heard that secondhand, yes.

Q. And you don't have any decibel level tests to produce to the Court at this time?

A. No. We attempted, and it was not -- it wasn't worth doing. There was no -- it wasn't consistent would be the best way to describe it.

Q. Well, decibel level tests really don't do you much good unless you have something to compare it with; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. So you're basically saying, "Yeah, pretty much that's what I heard. I heard a bell, and it sounded like a bell," right?

A. And the volume level, yes.

Q. And other people have said they heard what they heard, right?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And I think you answered this to Mr. Sneddon, but just to be certain, you personally have no idea how this system was functioning in February and March of 2003, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Okay. Let me go back to the phone records now, which is the first thing you testified to. And let me clear some of this out of the way.

You have in front of you, I think, Exhibits 460, 448 and 449; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And those exhibits would be the packet of -- let me withdraw that.

Exhibit 460 would be the packet of materials that contain your various charts of phone calls made to and from various people; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And 460 also includes the list of the phone numbers that went to and from; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. That's a chart that's also in 460.

All right. Now, 460 was your effort to add certain phone calls, based on records that you reviewed, to the charts that you made previously; is that right?

A. Not necessarily, no.

Q. Not necessarily. I always worry about an answer like that.

A. Well, in certain situations, we did.

However, in situations where the calls only showed calls between Bradley Miller and Mark Geragos and did not connect up to the alleged co-conspirators, then we did not include that data in there.

Q. Okay. So what I'll do -- I think, to be safe, I better take the actual exhibit.

Your Honor, may I approach to retrieve the exhibits?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Just so we're oriented, Your Honor, I'd like to put up the first page of Exhibit 460, if I may.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: So on page one on 460, you show four calls going between Geragos & Geragos and Brad Miller, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And to make that determination, you used the phone records that were in those other two exhibits, 448 and 449; is that correct?

A. Correct.
Q. So 448 were the records of Brad Miller?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. And then 449 were the records of Geragos & Geragos?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, what phone was it that you looked at for the records of Geragos & Geragos?
A. His cellular telephone ending in 3900. I’m sorry, ending in 2100.
Q. 2100. Now, Freudian or otherwise, you said 3900. Why would that --
A. That is his office phone.
Q. Did you analyze that phone number as well?
A. We do not have those records.
Q. Okay. Did you analyze that number when you looked at the Brad Miller records?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Okay. So are some of the phone calls that you’ve identified on your chart? And I’m putting up the first page here of 460. Are some of those phone records phone calls that were made between the law firm’s number of Geragos & Geragos and Brad Miller?

A. Correct.
Q. Brad Miller’s cell phone records have both incoming and outgoing calls; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. So that’s not always the case, right? In phone records, you don’t always --
A. That’s correct, yes.
Q. So in this case, you could tell, by Brad Miller’s phone records, what calls were being made from that phone and what calls were received in most cases, correct?
A. Correct.
MR. SANGER: Now, let me skip ahead to the next page. And actually this is page three, because there’s a page -- if I may, Your Honor, there’s a page on the back of page one. They’re two-sided. So I’ll put up what is, in essence, page three.
THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And this is for 2-12 of 2003; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And I think you told us, by the way, the first two pages say "'05" and they're really "'03"?

A. That's correct.

Q. I put one up there that said "'05," but it's really "'03."

Now, you have lines back and forth. You still don't show which direction the calls are going in your chart; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. And if you go back to the records, you could figure that out, and you did on occasion; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. Except for the three-way calls that you identified, of which there were a couple, I think you testified to --

A. Correct.

Q. -- the rest of them are calls between two different phones?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. So once again, when you put everybody together, when you loop everybody together, it doesn't mean that Brad Miller's phone, for instance, in this -- if you look at this chart for 2-12, that Brad Miller's phone has any connection to Vincent Amen's phone; is that correct?

A. Only in that they have Schaffel in common.

Q. Well, but they don't have Schaffel on the line at the same time; is that right?

A. No.

Q. All right. So from the standpoint of the theory of the prosecution that somehow these people are all related, that's --

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object to that question as argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: When you say they have Schaffel in common, you're simply showing that there's phone calls from Miller to Schaffel, however you say his name, and there's phone calls from Schaffel's phone to Amen's phone or vice versa, right?

A. Correct.

MR. SNEDDON: I object. That's unintelligible and compound.

THE COURT: Well, it's compound for sure.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Is it sustained, Your Honor? I couldn't quite hear what you said.

THE COURT: I said it's compound. I didn't rule on the other issue. Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: Spared me an unintelligible ruling.

THE COURT: Right.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Well, what I'm getting at here is, the Brad Miller phone and the Schaffel phone have calls that go one way or the other, three calls going one way or the other, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And then the Schaffel phone and the Amen phone have three calls going one way or the other, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. You have no information from these phone records who was on any of those phones, correct?

A. Yes and no.

Q. Okay. You have phones that are registered or purchased by a certain person?

A. And cellular phones at that.

Q. And some are cellular phones, so you might assume that the person who has the cell phone is a person who's making the calls, right?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. So -- but other than that, you don't know --

A. No.

Q. -- who was on the phone?

All right. And you certainly don't know the subject matter of these calls, right?

A. No.

Q. Now, throughout here, and I'm not going to put all these up, you listed quite a number of phone calls between Brad Miller and -- Brad Miller's phone and the Geragos & Geragos phones, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And those phone calls you listed starting on February the 4th of 2005, right?

A. Correct.

MR. SANGER: So I'll go back -- with the Court's permission, I'll go back to that page.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And you prepared this as an exhibit in the case of People versus Michael Jackson, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And from these phone records, do you have any information that any of those four phone calls had anything to do with Michael Jackson or any of these other people who were doing whatever they were doing during this period of time?

A. On that particular day, I do not.

Q. Okay. In fact, you omitted to list a large number of telephone calls between the Geragos phone or phones and the Brad Miller phones during the period of time for which you had records, did you not?

A. I don't understand what you're --

MR. SANGER: Okay. Well, let's do this. May I approach? I want to show the witness an exhibit.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: I'll tell you what, I'll do it this way, if it's all right with the Court. I have Exhibit 903, which actually was introduced through the testimony of Mr. Dickerman, and I'd like to turn to a page several pages into it, and I'll put that up.

MR. SNEDDON: Can I see it, please?

MR. SANGER: Yeah.

Q. I'm going to put this up here, and I'm really just showing the top part of it, which is the letterhead of Geragos & Geragos, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And you mentioned a 3900. It's a little unclear, actually, as I look at it, but the phone number there is (213) 625-3900. That’s the main phone number for that law firm, correct?

A. It appears by that particular document, yes.

Q. And you had mentioned earlier 3900?

A. Correct.

Q. So you were aware that this is, in fact, the main phone number for the Geragos & Geragos law firm; is that right?

A. 3900 or 3000.

Q. 3900?

A. 3900 is the information that I have received from the phone company.

Q. Yeah. Okay. Well, now we’re having some -- where do you get 3000 from? Does that look like 3000? It does, a little bit, to me.

A. It does -- it does when I’m looking at it here.

MR. SANGER: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: That was my concern, too. So let me just show you the document.

When you look at it -- if I may ask the question here, when you look at it, it really is 3900, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. I’ll put it back up, and maybe I can -- there we go. That’s the way it is. So that number, (213) 625-3900, that is the number that you looked for when you looked for phone numbers starting with February 4, 2005, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Were you aware that Brad Miller was a private investigator?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you aware that Brad Miller was working for Mr. Geragos during the time period 2003, February through March?

A. That is my understanding.

Q. Were you aware that Mr. Miller was working for Mr. Geragos on other cases during that time?

A. I am not aware personally, no.

Q. Not personally, but through your investigation, you became aware of that, did you not?

MR. SNEDDON: I'll move to strike as hearsay; lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: As of, I believe, yesterday, I heard somebody mention another case that they were working on together.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: High-profile case, right?
A. Correct.
Q. And you would expect a lawyer and an investigator working on a high-profile case -- having nothing to do with Mr. Jackson, right? The case you just heard about, the case you heard about had nothing to do with Mr. Jackson, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. You would expect that Mr. Geragos and Mr. Miller, his investigator, would be having telephone conversations about that high-profile case, independent of anything to do with Mr. Jackson or anybody associated with Mr. Jackson, right?
MR. SNEDDON: Same objection, Your Honor. Lack of foundation; calls for speculation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: In fact, when you look at the records --
And I have here, Your Honor, 448, and this is an envelope of records which were the Bradley Miller records. And I want to turn to certain pages.
Okay. As luck would have it, they're in a different order. Give me just one second, Your Honor.
I'm going to turn to the page that is the telephone bill of January 8, 2003, and it's page 6 of 29, and I'd like to put that page up on the screen, and it would be from Exhibit 448.

THE COURT: All right.
MR. SANGER: Thank you.
Q. I'm not going to go through all of these, because they're in evidence, but just as an example -- take a few examples here. Here on November 30th of 2002, there is a call from the Geragos law firm to Mr. Miller’s phone; is that correct?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object to this. November is way out of the time frame of the purported testimony offered by the prosecution. This is irrelevant and immaterial.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. SANGER: I don’t know if there was an answer, Your Honor.

THE COURT: No, there wasn’t.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: So my question was, it appears November 30th, 2002, there was a telephone call from the Geragos & Geragos telephone system to Mr. Miller; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And let’s see if we can -- I’m not going to go through all of these again, but let me just do some representative ones here.

If we -- I’d like to put up page 9 of 29, the January 8th phone bill from Exhibit 448, if I may.

Do you see an incoming call? Brad Miller’s phone receives a call from the Geragos & Geragos law firm on December 5, 2002, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And you see down here a couple of calls. One is an incoming call from the cell phone number you had for Geragos & Geragos; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And that would be December 6th, 2002?

A. Correct.

Q. And it’s followed by an outgoing call to the Geragos cell phone on that same date, three minutes later, right?

A. Correct.

Q. In fact, if we go through the records prior to February 4, 2003, the records that you have that start about November of 2002 and go through February 3, 2003, there’s quite a number of calls, dozens of calls between Mr. Miller’s phone and the Geragos & Geragos phones; is that correct?

A. I know now that there are three. We did not extend beyond the relevant time frame during our analysis.

Q. Well, and how did you determine the relevant time frame?

A. Based upon what was happening with the family and the events that occurred beginning in the beginning of February and ending mid March.

Q. So when you say you’re showing the phone calls that are in the relevant time period, you’re saying that you believe somehow support your theory in this case against Mr. Jackson; is that right?

MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to object to that and ask counsel be admonished. It’s argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Saying the relevant time period, you’re talking about the time period that you believe pertains to this case, right?

A. Correct.

Q. But you don’t know that the phone calls were made during that period of time. Let me withdraw that.

You don’t know whether or not the phone calls made during that period of time had any relation to this case?

A. I think I can, yes.

Q. You think some of them did?

A. Correct.

Q. Some of them -- there are calls being made between Mr. Miller and Mr. Geragos that have something to do with what he testified to that he was doing in this case, we would assume, right?

A. Well, in addition to that, you have direct calls between Mr. Geragos and the alleged co-conspirators. You also have direct calls between Mr. Miller and the alleged co-conspirators.

Q. That’s right.

A. And calls between Mr. Geragos and Mr. Miller during that same time frame.

Q. That’s right. But when you put the calls between Mr. Geragos and Mr. Miller up there, you don’t know how many of those pertain to this case and how many of those pertain to the other high-profile case you talked about, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object. It's argumentative and asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: No.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And you also don't know how many calls pertained to other things that relate maybe to other cases or other matters, do you?

A. Not necessarily, no.

Q. Okay. Now, you said you only know of three. I think I showed you four so far, but --

A. I remembered three, but if you showed me four, I know four.

Q. All right. Let me ask you to do this, because I really don't want to take up the Court's time doing this, if I may.

What I'd like to do is take this off the board, and I'm going to -- with the Court's permission, I'm going to take Exhibit 448, which is the actual court exhibit of the Brad Miller phone records, and I'm going to also bring up a book with some markers on it and let the witness take a look at all of that and see if we can't identify some more phone calls more quickly.

May I do that?

THE COURT: Fine.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: That's 448, and I'll show you my book there, and you can do whatever you want to answer this question. But what I'm going to ask you, after you have a chance to flip through, there appears to be some phone numbers that we already highlighted and put some post-its there so you can find them.

And what I'm going to ask you is, after you reviewed that, if that would give you sufficient information to tell me whether or not there appear to be dozens of phone calls between Mr. Miller and -- Mr. Miller's office and Mr. Geragos's office prior to February the 4th, 2003.

A. I did it.

Dozens, as long as you're talking multiple, as in two or three dozen, yes.
Q. Two or three dozen, all right. May I approach with another exhibit, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: I was going to say while counsel is looking at that, but by the way, the Law Firm of Geragos & Geragos, you determined, has a number of lawyers in it; is that correct?
A. I know of at least two --
Q. Okay.
A. -- personally.
Q. Personally you know of two?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. In fact, besides personally knowing of two, there's five or six lawyers in the firm, is there not?
A. I don't know.
MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object to that. Calls for speculation
THE COURT: It's overruled. He said he doesn't know.
MR. SANGER: All right. I'm going to show you what's been marked for identification as Exhibit 5108.
And, Your Honor, this was previously marked for identification perhaps at a point when the jury wasn't in the room, so if I may recite what it is. It is a page from a telephone bill of February the 25th, 2003, to a number at the ranch, 688-1679. And I believe Mr. Sneddon agreed to the foundation for that. It hasn't been offered yet.

Q. Okay. So I'm asking you to look at Exhibit 5108. You've got that in front of you. And I'd like you to look at the first entry, which is on line 13, for February the 12th, a call at 12:55 a.m.
A. Okay.
Q. Does it appear that a call was made at 12:55 a.m. from the ranch to a particular number that's shown there? Do you see it?
A. Yes.

Q. And it lasted about seven minutes. They were billed for seven minutes?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. Do you recognize the number to which that call was placed?
A. I do not.
Q. But you would agree that there is a call at 2:55 a.m. that’s made from the ranch elsewhere; is that correct?
A. 12:55 a.m.
Q. I’m sorry, 12:55 a.m., and it’s made to a local (805) area code --
A. Correct.
Q. -- destination.
All right. Thank you. And I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SNEDDON:
Q. Detective Bonner, with regard to the exhibit that was played for the jury, 808, I believe is the exhibit --
MR. SANGER: It was 908-A.
MR. SNEDDON: I’m sorry.
MR. SANGER: 908.
MR. SNEDDON: 908? Thank you.
Q. 908-A, the one that was played in the courtroom, the one that you marked the location of the cameraman at the time it was made --
A. Correct.
Q. -- you were there at that location when that film was made; is that correct?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. And you were obviously in the courtroom when you heard it played for the jury?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Was the sound of those chimes louder or softer at the time that you were standing next to the cameraman in the room than in the courtroom here?
A. I would say it was consistent.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. Thank you very much.

MR. SANGER: I have no further questions.

MR. SNEDDON: Oh.

MR. SANGER: Oh, maybe I do.

MR. SNEDDON: I'm just reminded, yeah, before the witness leaves, that there was -- we moved 416 into evidence and the Court held it back until after Mr. Sanger had cross-examination, and we would now move that 416 -- 460, I'm sorry. That's how these problems occur -- 460 be admitted into evidence.

MR. SANGER: Those are the --

MR. SNEDDON: Charts.

MR. SANGER: -- the charts. They're cumulative to a certain extent, but I'll submit it.

THE COURT: Admitted. Any other questions?

MR. SNEDDON: No, I don't have any questions.

THE COURT: All right. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Call your next witness.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, at this time I have a document which I'd like to move -- I've had marked as People's 902 for identification purposes. I gave counsel a copy of it yesterday. I'll let him examine it to make sure it's --

MR. SANGER: No, no. That's all right.

MR. SNEDDON: It's a document from the Superior Court, the State of California, the County of Los Angeles, and it's a five-page document, and it is part of the lawsuit involving the Arvizos and J.C. Penney. And I would move that this document be admitted into evidence. It is certified by the Clerk of the Court May 26th of 2005.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I have an objection to that which I'll state in legal terms first. The objection is that the document contains hearsay, and the Court will have to look at it to see what I'm talking about. There's a declaration that's just hearsay, opinion.

Secondly, it's an incomplete document.

THE COURT: Wait. Who has the document?

MR. SNEDDON: I do, Your Honor. I'll --

MR. SANGER: It's an incomplete -- if I may just finish my objection. Is that all right, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: It's an incomplete document in that it refers to Exhibits, I believe, A and B that are not attached to this particular document, and it is also one document that, besides being hearsay, is out of context without those exhibits and without the other documents surrounding it.

If you'd want us to approach, I was going to pinpoint the objection.

MR. SNEDDON: I could state the relevancy, which probably might be helpful to the Court. I could do it from here or I could do it at the bench.

THE COURT: Why don't you approach.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, there is another item.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SNEDDON: There is a series of photographs marked 889 through 897, which are the photographs I believe that were relevant to the testimony of Brett Barnes, and they were marked for identification. They were authenticated by at least two witnesses, and we move that they be admitted into evidence.

MR. SANGER: And I missed the numbers on that. I'm sorry.

MR. SNEDDON: 889 and 897. I believe the letter is 897. The photographs are 889 to 896. And there might even be a blank space in there.

MR. SANGER: Before we get to that, Your Honor, just so the record is clear, I don't think the Court ruled on the record.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Your microphone's off, sir.

MR. SANGER: My fault, I'm sorry.

I don't think the Court ruled on the record with regard to 902.

THE COURT: All right. I'm ruling at this point, without further information, it's inadmissible.

MR. SANGER: Now, with regard to what was just offered, quite frankly, I'd have to take look at it to see what we're talking about.

THE COURT: 889 --

MR. SANGER: Could I approach your clerk? I believe she's retrieving them.

THE COURT: Yeah. 889 through 897. 895 has not been identified, so it wouldn't include 895.

MR. SANGER: Let me show them to Mr. Mesereau.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, as far as the photographs are concerned, which are 889 through 896, minus 895, which is not being offered, we would have no objection to that series.

With regard to the letter, which is 897, that's hearsay, and we would object.

THE COURT: 889 - let me see those, please - through 896 are admitted.

895, not having been identified, it's not one of the ones I'm admitting.

MR. SANGER: With regard to the letter -- I just gave it back. Whatever number that was. 897?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: I'll object as hearsay, but I'd also object that this is not proper rebuttal. This is something that occurred during the defense case or was brought up during the defense case, and if it was going to be moved in, it should have been moved in then. But it's still hearsay, so I don't think it comes in either way.

THE COURT: Do you want to speak to the hearsay issue?

MR. ZONEN: Yes, Your Honor.

It's reflective of the declarant's state of mind. She was cross-examined extensively about that letter. The author of that letter was a witness for the defense during the defense case. And that letter, without getting into the content of it, reflects her feelings and views of the relationship between she, the defendant and her child, and I believe it’s relevant for that, in that regard.

THE COURT: I’ll take this up later.

MR. ZONEN: Would you like a typed copy of that? It’s easier to read in a typed copy.

THE COURT: If you have one.

MR. ZONEN: I don’t know that I have one here, but I will get one for you as soon as possible.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Will you give us a copy of the typed copy?

MR. ZONEN: Yes.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Your Honor, at this time we would like to publish for the jury seven different documents from the 400 series of documents, all in the 400 notebook. These were the documents that were admitted pursuant to a search of the home of Marc Schaffel.

I can proceed in a couple of ways. There’s two of the documents that will require reading, either by myself or by the jury. So those will take just a little bit of time. And I can publish them on the Elmo and give the jury time to read them. The other documents are short and should be pretty quick to get on and off the screen.

So I’m happy to proceed any way you’d like me to. These documents, by the way, are not part of our rebuttal case. They were admitted at the end of the People’s case, and we did not have a chance to publish them because of that.

THE COURT: And I said I would allow you to publish them.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: How would you like me to proceed? Just to put them on the Elmo and give the jury time to read them?

THE COURT: That’s fine.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Very well. I’ll just mention each document as I’m placing it on the Elmo.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, could we just approach for a moment? Could we approach for a moment?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I believe counsel’s just going to take a moment to look at the documents before I publish them.

THE COURT: That’s what we agreed to.

MR. SANGER: Based on the representation that each of these has actually been received -- I know the Court had some rulings, but based on that representation, I have no objection.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Your Honor, if I could please have the Elmo.

MR. SANGER: I would object to any reading. I mean, introduce what it is, but I don’t think there should be further discussion, except to say, “This is Exhibit so and so.”

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That’s my intention. And if I could confirm with Madam Clerk, was 419 received into evidence? 419, page three?

THE CLERK: Yes. Yes. Yes, it was.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. The first exhibit will be 419, page three, Your Honor.

(Whereupon, People’s Exhibit 419, page three, was published to the Court and jury.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: The next exhibit will be 418-A.

THE CLERK: 418-A was not received.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: 418-A?

THE CLERK: 418, page three, was received.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes, okay. But 418-A?

THE CLERK: Was not received.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Not received, okay. 418?

THE CLERK: That was received.

(Whereupon, People's Exhibit 418 was published to the Court and jury.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: The next exhibit I'll ask to publish is Exhibit 417, page 12.

(Whereupon, People's Exhibit 417, page 12, was published to the Court and jury.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll show a wide-angle view, and then I'll close in on the text portion.

THE COURT: Counsel, we're going to stop just for a second.

Go ahead, Alternate.

MR. SANGER: Could we use the moment to approach on a different matter at this time?

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: I think with Mr. Sneddon on this one.

I'm sorry, Mr. Sneddon.

MR. SNEDDON: What's the matter?

MR. SANGER: Approach.

MR. SNEDDON: May I know what it's about?

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: May I proceed, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: The next exhibit I will be publishing will be Exhibit No. 410, page two.

(Whereupon, People's Exhibit 410, page two, was published to the Court and jury.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And the next exhibit I will be publishing will be 407, pages two and three. And this one will take a little bit of time. These next two are -- have some text in them, so I'll probably move in close and then gradually move down the page, with the Court's permission.

(Whereupon, People's Exhibit 407, page two, was published to the Court and jury.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: If I may, I'll move the letter down.

(Whereupon, People's Exhibit 407, page two, continued to be published to the Court and jury.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And finally, I'll move on to page three now.

(Whereupon, People's Exhibit 407, page three, was published to the Court and jury.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And then the last exhibit we'll be publishing at this time is Exhibit No. 405. I'll also move this down slowly to give everyone a chance to read it.

(Whereupon, People's Exhibit 405 was published to the Court and jury.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you very much, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Sneddon?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Do you have the -- remember that short brief you gave me on the issue on this tape, on this DVD?

MR. SNEDDON: Do I remember the issue?

THE COURT: Do you have the brief that you provided me with?

MR. SNEDDON: On this issue?

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SNEDDON: I -- I -- I'm not sure if I do. Could I check my briefcase?

THE COURT: Yes. I don't have mine at bench, so I was just wondering if someone had it.

MR. SNEDDON: Oh, on the -- yes, sir, I know what you're talking about.

I'm sorry, Your Honor, I did not bring my copy with me. I think Mr. Auchincloss can retrieve it on his computer, but to get it printed out would be another thing.

THE COURT: Okay. Are you going to -- are you preparing to play that now?

MR. SNEDDON: I was. I have a few questions to ask to lay the foundation, but I can have somebody run upstairs and print it out. It may be on -- should be on Mag's computer, isn't it?

Your Honor, I think Mr. Nicola has it on his computer as well, and we can go up and print it out and have it down here, I think, in just a couple of minutes.

THE COURT: All right. I appreciate it.

MR. SNEDDON: Would you like me to go ahead and at least lay the foundation?

THE COURT: Yes. Go ahead.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. I’ll call Sergeant Robel back to the stand, Your Honor.

THE COURT: You’re still under oath. You may be seated.

STEVE ROBEL

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Sergeant Robel, in conjunction with your assignment involved in this investigation, did you conduct an interview with Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Do you recall when the first time it was that you interviewed Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And when was that?

A. I believe it was July the 6th, 2003.

Q. And where did that interview take place?

A. In the City of Santa Barbara.

Q. And where in the City of Santa Barbara?

A. At the SART Cottage.

Q. And what does “SART” stand for?

A. Sexual Assault Response Team. It’s a building that we use to conduct forensic interviews.

Q. And was the conversation and interview that you conducted that day with Gavin Arvizo tape-recorded?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Was it also videoed?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And was there another officer who participated with you in that interview?

A. Yes, there was.

Q. And who was that?

A. Detective Paul Zelis.

Q. Now, you have had occasion since then to review the tape of the interview with Gavin Arvizo, correct?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. And you've actually done that on a number of occasions?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Now, with regard to the original interview, what media format was that done in?

A. VHS.

Q. And you've reviewed that VHS tape; is that correct?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. And later, for purposes -- well, later, that VHS was converted into a digital form; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And have you had occasion to review the digital form of the interview between you and Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. And have you -- with regard to the VHS original and the DVD copy that was made, do they appear to you to be the same?

A. Yes, they do.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I believe that we have previously marked People's 900, and it was marked for identification purposes at that time, and we would now move that People's Exhibit 900 be admitted into evidence.

MR. SANGER: We object, of course, but if it's admitted, it's admitted for a limited purpose.

THE COURT: It is.

MR. SNEDDON: With that understanding, Your Honor, and --

THE COURT: It's admitted.

MR. SNEDDON: -- I'm afraid I've stalled as long as I can.

THE COURT: Maybe we'll just start the break. The reason I wanted that is, I want to give a limiting instruction, and I'm trying to develop some words, and so I think we'll just break early so I can look at that. I don't want to show the tape till we've done that.

MR. SNEDDON: I understand. That's -- I understand fully. Thank you.

THE COURT: Send it back to me as soon as you --

MR. SNEDDON: I'm sorry?

THE COURT: Send it back as soon as you get it.

MR. SNEDDON: Oh, send it back. Yes, sir.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: (To the jury) I was going to say, "Would you step out for a minute?" but I got the laugh anyway.

All right. What I've been working on, what we've been working on, is an instruction here, and this is an instruction as it relates to this evidence that the District Attorney is about to present:

You have previously heard evidence of Gavin's statements presented by both the prosecution and the defense. You are about to hear and see a tape-recording of the interview of Gavin Arvizo by Sergeant Robel and Detective Zelis in July of 2003.

This is being shown to you only to observe the demeanor, manner and attitude of the witness. His statements are not to be considered for the truth of the matter stated.

Since the evidence is offered for this limited purpose, the defense is only permitted to offer rebuttal evidence for this limited purpose.

All right. You may proceed.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, we're prepared to show the video at this time, and I would request that Sergeant Robel be allowed to sit back here so he wouldn't be in the way for people to see the video.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Is that okay with the Court?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. Fine.

I think I should indicate for the record, this is Exhibit 900. It's in evidence.

THE COURT: And you should tell everyone about how long it will take to play it.

MR. SNEDDON: Oh, okay. It's about one hour and four minutes long.

THE COURT: All right.

(Whereupon, a DVD, People's Exhibit 900, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. SNEDDON: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Sanger?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. All right. I only have a couple of areas to cover with you here.

The first one is that there's sniffling you hear throughout that tape. Did you hear that?

A. Yes.

Q. That was Detective Zelis; is that right?

A. On a couple occasions it was Detective Zelis. He had a cold.

Q. A couple of occasions?

A. There were occasions that it was Gavin as well.

Q. And I saw you giving Gavin Kleenex to help him with his sniffling?

A. No, he was wiping his nose with his finger.

Q. And you would agree, if people watch that, they can form their own opinion on that?

MR. SNEDDON: I'll object as argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, the other thing I want to ask you about is, and this relates to the demeanor of Gavin Arvizo, because that's our limited scope here, okay?

The demeanor of somebody when you're -- well, let me put this in context. Excuse me.

I think we've already been over this, but you've been a police officer for a long time, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you've conducted many, many interviews; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you've conducted many, many interrogations; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And there's a difference between an interview and an interrogation, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. An interview, you're listening, you're taking notes, you're hearing what has to be said, right?

A. Correct.

Q. An interrogation, you're trying to get somebody to tell you something. You think they're not maybe being forthcoming. You want to interrogate them and get it out of them; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. This was an interview, not an interrogation, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the demeanor of a person will differ -- in your vast experience in this regard, the demeanor of a person is going to be affected by whether or not you're doing an interrogation or an interview, correct?

A. In a way, I don't agree totally with that.

Q. Let's start with this: Do you agree mostly with that?

A. When you're interviewing adults versus children, there is a difference in their demeanor, whether -- and even interviewing children, there's a major change in their -- even if it's a friendly interview, you're going to see behavioral changes in a child versus an adult.

Q. All right. You may be reading more into the question than I thought there, but the fact is, if you're saying to somebody in a situation where you are interrogating them and challenging what they are telling you, that is likely to have an effect on their demeanor, as opposed to simply interviewing them and listening to what they have to say, right?

A. That is correct.

Q. And in this particular case, Gavin was 13 when you did this interview; is that correct?

A. Yes, he was.

Q. And, for instance, there’s a part where you ask him what an erection was, if he knew what an erection was; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And this 13-year-old boy told you he knew what it was because Michael Jackson had told him. Remember that?

A. He shook his head and -- I even had a hard time hearing what he said, but he shook his head as “Yes.” I couldn’t say exactly if he said it was Michael or not at this point.

Q. Okay. Whatever it is, it’s on there.

A. Right.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object to counsel’s statements and move to strike.

THE BAILIFF: Can’t hear you.

MR. SNEDDON: Object to counsel’s statements and move to strike.

MR. SANGER: It’s actually foundational to the next question.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, it --

MR. SANGER: But, whatever.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. My point is, whatever he said, whatever he said in response to the questions as to whether or not this 13-year-old boy knew what an erection was, you did not challenge him at that point and say, “Well, what do you mean? You’re 13 and you’re telling me you don’t know what an erection is,” right?

A. No, I did not.

Q. All right. And you would agree that if you had conducted an interview in that fashion, that that might have resulted in a different demeanor on the part of the witness that you were interrogating; is that correct?

A. Can you ask that again, please?

MR. SANGER: Probably not.

THE COURT: Do you want it read back?

THE WITNESS: Yes, please.

MR. SANGER: If we can read have it back, if that’s all right, Your Honor.

(Record read.)
MR. SANGER: Now that it was read back, I actually used two words there that probably aren’t compatible. Can I withdraw it and make it more clear?
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: You indicated you were conducting an interview and not an interrogation, so my question is, if you had used interrogative techniques in response to questions like that, you would expect to see a different demeanor on the part of the subject, no matter who it is, right?

A. Asking that particular question? Is that --
Q. Sure. I was just using that as an example.
A. Under interrogation versus interview.
Q. Yeah. You’d expect to see a different demeanor, correct?
A. Possibly.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SNEDDON:
Q. Sergeant Robel, in the course of your training, you have been to a number of classes and training exercises dealing with the specific interview of child sexual assault cases, have you not?
A. Yes. Several.
Q. And have you ever been to a class where they’ve told you to use the interrogation and techniques that you would use with an adult with a kid in that setting?
A. No.
MR. SANGER: I would object, Your Honor, as beyond the scope of cross and outside the limited issue.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Would you ever use an interrogation technique with a child molestation victim?

A. No, I wouldn’t.

MR. SANGER: Objection; outside the scope.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, he asked specifically that question.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I would not. It’s --

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Why?

A. Because interviewing a child, he is -- this person is a victim, not a suspect, and in this particular interview, I was trained in forensic interviewing, and that is interviewing and not interrogation.

MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. And that decision is based on the fact that you assumed that this individual was a victim, correct?

A. I assumed to -- the charges that I was investigating, the alleged charges, yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you. No further questions.

MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, we have no further evidence to present in rebuttal.

I would indicate to the Court, however, that with regard to the document that we went to the Court -- to sidebar on, which I believe is 902, that I would like the opportunity to present further documentation on Tuesday morning on that issue, so I could rest contingent upon that.

THE COURT: Is that agreeable with you?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you, Your Honor.

Thank you, Counsel.

THE COURT: I was trying to remember what document that was, but now I do remember.

MR. SNEDDON: Do you remember now?

THE COURT: I do. So now I’m -- I would allow you to try to resubmit that. That was taken under that --

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: Before we proceed, could we have a moment to talk?

THE COURT: Well, you can have a break if you'd like.

MR. SANGER: Very well.

THE COURT: But I wouldn't want to have to take a break and then come back and you weren't going to do anything.

MR. MESEREAU: Let me talk to counsel if I can, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: Can we just have a moment?

THE COURT: Yeah.

Let me make a ruling. Counsel? You don't have to move. I'm just -- I am going to sustain the hearsay objection to 897.

(Discussion held off the record among the defense team.)

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, the defense rests.

THE COURT: All right. Both sides have rested subject to one document.

MR. SNEDDON: That's correct, Your Honor.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, there's one additional document that the Court has under submission as well. That's the letter. And I did furnish --

MR. SNEDDON: He just ruled on that.

MR. ZONEN: Oh.

THE COURT: I just ruled it was hearsay.

MR. ZONEN: Oh, I'm sorry.

MR. SNEDDON: You lost it.

THE COURT: And I sustained the objection.

MR. ZONEN: It's not the first time.

THE COURT: (To the jury) All right. Then you have heard all of the evidence that you're going to hear in this case. What remains for the Court and the attorneys is the process to agree and work out jury instructions.

It's hard for me to estimate how much time that's going to take. I know it's going to take a day. I know that. I mean, that's a minimum. And that means that you would not come in on Tuesday. So Monday is a holiday, right?

Okay. Tuesday you're not going to come in because we're going to go over jury instructions.

Now, what I'm going to have you do is to call in on Tuesday afternoon at -- let's say, you know, not before -- say at four o'clock, and there will be a message on whether you're to come back in on Wednesday or -- yeah, Wednesday or Thursday. And that depends on whether we get all of our jury instructions done, and I think we will. I really think we will, but I don't want you coming in and, you know, have to wait around. I just don't want that. I want us to be done with our job before you come back.

Now, is there a number -- what number can I give them? What's your number, Leslie?

THE BAILIFF: Mine?

THE COURT: No, no.

THE BAILIFF: Mine?

THE COURT: No, I need -- what's a number to give them so that we can have a message for them? Should they call Jury Services?

THE BAILIFF: Jury Services would be the best number.

THE COURT: You know what? If you'll go back in the jury room, I'll release -- just stay there until the bailiff comes back and gives you a number to call. So it's kind of -- I know it puts you on this kind of a situation, but it's better to do it Tuesday afternoon than Wednesday morning.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, could there be an admonition, given the long weekend?

THE COURT: Oh, yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: I will admonish you to remember you're not to discuss the case with anyone. You're still not to form any opinions or conclusions, because until you know the law, until you hear the law, until you hear the argument of counsel, you really aren't allowed to decide this case. You've got to wait till that moment when everything has been done for you to decide the case.

You're not to go to any place mentioned in the evidence for the purpose of investigation or trying to find out for yourself. You're not to consult any written works, legal works or other works, to try and help you in this case. Remember, you can only decide the case from what you hear on the witness stand and the evidence that comes in.

You're not to watch any news events, any news programs. You're not to read any newspapers or magazines relating to this case.

And there's an admonition, too, that I never have to give a jury, and you're going to hear about it in the final instructions, but there is a rule of law that prevents jurors, after the case is over, from charging compensation for giving information or accepting compensation for giving information about your experience.

And I alert you to that, because it's not something we usually read, you know. It's not something you really -- jurors aren't usually offered compensation or have that opportunity. But I wanted to just advise you in advance there is some specific laws about that that affect all of you, and I will give you the actual law when I read it to you next week.

And I'll see you probably on Wednesday, but we'll get this phone number for you in just a couple minutes.

Take them back and --

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Yes, sir.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: All right. Is there any reason not to recess until --

MR. MESEREAU: I don't think so, Your Honor.

THE COURT: -- until Tuesday morning?

MR. MESEREAU: I don't think so.

THE COURT: You'll be prepared in every respect with your jury instructions, any that you don't have?

MR. MESEREAU: If I may, Your Honor, I think I may have spoken prematurely. There was an issue yesterday that --

THE BAILIFF: Can't hear you.

MR. MESEREAU: There was an issue yesterday --

MR. SNEDDON: Microphone. Gordon? He wants to use the mike.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Oh.

THE COURT: My secretary's reminding me that there was a motion that you're going to file to seal those phone records, Mr. Geragos's phone records.

MR. SNEDDON: I'll take care of that. We'll have it on Tuesday morning.

MR. SANGER: I believe the representation was that the motion was going to be to seal everybody's phone records.

THE COURT: All phone records, yeah. Okay.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, there was an issue yesterday where I stipulated to some e-mails that it appeared had been sent from Mr. Miller's office to Mr. Geragos's office. I later learned that there was some documents attached to that exhibit that were not strictly e-mails. I think Ms. Yu and Mr. Zonen met with you about that.

THE COURT: They did.

MR. MESEREAU: And I was not stipulating to the non-e-mail documents. And I did discuss that with Mr. Zonen as well. I don't -- I think --

THE COURT: They're not -- that was explained to me. Those are not in evidence.

MR. MESEREAU: Yeah, okay. Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. ZONEN: The entire packet has been withdrawn; is that right?

THE COURT: The entire packet has been withdrawn. Make sure my clerk knows the number of that packet.

MR. ZONEN: Okay.

THE COURT: Anything else?

MR. MESEREAU: Not from the defense, Your Honor.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Just one minor detail, Your Honor. We now have the redacted portion of 908-A, and we'll submit that to the Court for admission at this time.

908, we will -- it's marked, and it will be an exhibit, but we will not ask for its admission.

MR. SANGER: And out of an abundance of caution, it's the old pig in a poke as opposed to the horse in the arena thing. I should probably listen to it once. It's only 40 seconds.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I have a copy for defense counsel.

MR. SANGER: Maybe what I could do is just play it here. After you leave the bench, play it here real quick, listen to it. If it's okay, we will submit it. If not, we'll bring it up Tuesday morning.

THE COURT: That's fine.

MR. SNEDDON: What time did the Court want us here Tuesday morning, Your Honor?

THE COURT: We're going to conduct court the same time as we have.

MR. SNEDDON: Regular hours, okay.

THE COURT: Okay?

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I intend to do that during deliberations, too. Deliberations will only be during the same hours as we've had court.

(The proceedings adjourned at 1:25 p.m.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning.
MR. SANGER: Good morning, Your Honor.
MR. SNEDDON: Good morning.
THE COURT: Let’s see, I have a question for the District Attorney. I’ve had a package of your instructions for a while, and then I was given a manila envelope with another set of them. Is that a different set or is that just another copy of the same ones?
MR. SNEDDON: Judge, that is a different set. And the reason is, is that several of the instructions we originally requested have been withdrawn because they’re no longer applicable based on certain evidence that came in or didn’t come in, and that there are several others that were needed to be added because, again, of the evidence the way it came in in the case.

THE COURT: Well, I guess what I’m going to do is -- you know, I’ve spent a considerable amount of time analyzing the instructions given to me by both sides before today. So I’m going to use the set that I’ve worked with now for quite a while.

MR. SNEDDON: Right.

THE COURT: And to the extent that you want to have me take copies out of the new set, you can do that, but there’s no way I could start again this morning to figure out what you’re doing.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I don’t think you’re going to find this to be a problem, because I think on your own you will discover that some of the ones that we requested are not applicable. So I don’t think this is going to be a big thing.

And I want to let you know that the ones we submitted this morning are ones that have all the “his”es and the “her”s corrected out of it and the applicable language inserted, so we thought that might be helpful to the Court.

THE COURT: That would be helpful.

MR. SNEDDON: So I think you’ll find those to comport with what the actual instruction should be so it can be read in an intelligent manner.

THE COURT: Okay. And I did get a few new ones from the defense, their new suggested specials, which I anticipated specials from both sides being submitted.

MR. SANGER: As I understand it, Your Honor, just so we’re clear, we don’t have any specials from the prosecution.

THE COURT: Other than what they’d already submitted in their original package. Like 222, 222 Penal Code Section, which was the last instruction they added.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: And I think they did during the course of the trial at one point, although I can’t remember if -- maybe I did a special myself on the Bashir tape.

MR. SNEDDON: We had requested the Court to take judicial notice of certain things and you said you would defer those until the time of the instructions.

THE COURT: Right. You'll need to bring my attention to those items.

Okay. I have made a list of the instructions, comparing the ones that have been given by both sides, and made some notes on which ones need to be modified, which I think is what you were addressing, Mr. Sneddon, that maybe the modifications have already been given.

So if we start at 1.00, I showed that both of you had requested that. And now I see that on the new one from the D.A., you don't request that; is that correct?

MR. FRANKLIN: No, Your Honor. We do request that the -- apparently the program, the CALJIC program we have, knocked off 1.00 in this list. We have included it as a part of the instructions and it should be given. I don't know why -- I just noticed now that it was not at the top of the list. It should have been.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: But I would think it should be, yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I'll give that, then.

And then 1.01, I'll give that. Both of you requested that.

MR. SANGER: I gather, since we're not hearing anything, that the new packet of the District Attorney from this morning does not have changes to these so far.

THE COURT: Right.

1.02, and I think this is where you have -- there is a -- some selection had to be made at that point, right? That's why the -- I just need to see what it is.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, we just -- since there were stipulations, we removed the brackets on 1.02. I think you'll see that in the one we proposed. Other than that, I don't think there's any changes to 1.02.

THE COURT: All right. The brackets are removed as to the party making the objection; is that right?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, actually --

THE COURT: I'm making the stipulation, excuse me.

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir. Where it says, "However, if the attorneys have stipulated or agreed," the CALJIC has brackets, and we simply removed that because there were stipulations during the course of this case.

THE COURT: Okay. Do you understand that, Mr. Sanger?

MR. SANGER: Yes. They had -- they left one bracket in their original thing and they've taken it out. So we'll take that. That's fine.

THE COURT: So that's fine. I'll give that. 1.03.

MR. SNEDDON: Again, Your Honor, we removed the brackets because we have had witnesses testify in Spanish.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: And I don't see any brackets in their original version, so I take it it's the same.

THE COURT: That's true. So I'll give that. 1.20. 1.20 is okay. "Willfully defined," I'll give that.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, you skipped over 1.05. The prosecution withdrew it.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: We did not. You've already given that at the beginning of this case, but it's such a long case that it might be good to give it again.

THE COURT: We could give 1.05 minus the first two paragraphs.

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: Is that your request?

MR. SANGER: That would be my request, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. Modify that. Jed, for purposes of preparing these, you're going to take notes and send them over to Carrie?

MR. BEEBE: Yeah.

THE COURT: So the first two paragraphs of 1.05 would be deleted.

MR. BEEBE: Okay.

THE COURT: Then 1.06, it looks like that's a correct statement that should be given. You don't have that in your second group, Mr. Sneddon?

MR. SNEDDON: No.

MR. SANGER: Um --

MR. SNEDDON: It seems to be -- I mean, I'm not making an excuse, but it seems to be covered by other instructions that are going to be given. If the Court recalls, on the conspiracy instruction, you actually even have to read the entire overt acts and indictment again. And with regard to the other offenses, it's -- since there's only one defendant in this case, it seemed it would be covered, but we have no problem if the Court wants to give it. Seems to me this is more where you have multiple defendants, but there would be no harm in doing it.

THE COURT: I really actually like the idea of, right at the beginning, reminding them of exactly what we're going to be talking about in total, because the rest is all piecemeal. Is there any objection --

MR. SNEDDON: None.

THE COURT: -- Mr. Sanger?

MR. SANGER: There's no objection to that. I think the bracketed part at the bottom, there are no lessers.

THE COURT: Well, there's a question on that. And the -- do you want to just think for a moment? Is there a lesser-included providing intoxicating liquor to a minor? Isn't that a lesser-included of the administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony?

MR. SANGER: It probably is. We'd have to look at the exact elements, but I believe that it would be. However, we’re not requesting the lesser.

THE COURT: Is it something that you have any say about? I mean, isn’t it mandatory for the Court to do that?

MR. SANGER: I believe --

THE COURT: It’s not something that the defendant can waive, is it?

MR. SANGER: I believe the defendant can waive it. But I believe the defendant has to waive it. And -- I could be wrong. But I believe the law right now -- it’s changed, as Your Honor knows, over a period of time. I believe that if the prosecution requests the lesser, then -- that may be what the Court is thinking of, that the defense can’t waive it. But I’m not conceding that, but just having a discussion about it. I believe that may be true. But I think if both sides waive the lessers, unless the law changed again here, and I’m not positive, but I believe we can waive it, if both sides do.

THE COURT: And is that your position, Mr. Franklin?

MR. FRANKLIN: I don’t have a position on that, Your Honor.

THE COURT: They’re waiving --

MR. SNEDDON: I think the reality is --

MR. SANGER: I should have said that. That was a lot simpler, wasn’t it?

MR. SNEDDON: We’d like to look at that during the break, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I think that has to be resolved. There’s too many other issues that are tied to that, that we have to resolve that after the first break. I mean, I want to know that because we’ll have to change this instruction. We’ll have to change other instructions. This isn’t something that we can decide at the end of the day. It’s something we have to decide at the beginning.

MR. SANGER: Just one second. There is a section in CALJIC itself that deals with lessers.

It’s Appendix C, as the Court knows, and it may answer the question right now as to the current state of the law.

MR. SNEDDON: Which one?

I’m sorry, Your Honor, I didn’t hear which one he said. C or --

THE COURT: C.

MR. SANGER: It does appear that the Breeverman case, 1998 case --

THE COURT: They can’t hear you.

MR. SANGER: The Breeverman case, 1998 case, from this, looks like it may be controlling. It looks like the Court would have to make a determination as to whether the evidence supports the giving of a lesser.

THE COURT: And I have looked at all of the charges. And this is the one charge that seemed, to me, that the evidence does support the giving of that lesser.

MR. SNEDDON: It does.

THE COURT: Which would then make it sua sponte required instruction, and I don’t see anything in there that allows a waiver.

MR. SANGER: Yeah, just reading the discussion and refreshing my recollection such as it is on this, it seemed to me that we had an argument at one point that if both sides agree, and there’s a stipulation and a waiver on the record by the defendant personally, that the Court does not have to give it where there’s -- but, if -- because the language was notwithstanding the waiver by one side or the other. There was some -- there was some language in the case that left the door open, not to mention doors being opened to interpretation, that if both sides actually agree and the defendant waives it on the record.

But I’ll submit it, unless the Court wants to take the next break, and we can take a look at the case itself.

THE COURT: What’s your -- Mr. Sneddon, what’s your position? Mr. Franklin doesn’t have one, so I’ll ask you what yours is.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, I’m --

THE COURT: You still want to wait a few minutes?

MR. SNEDDON: No. I’m convinced that the Court needs to give it.

THE COURT: That’s what I thought. Okay.

So then that language at the bottom of 1.06 would be necessary.

MR. SANGER: And just for the record, although I would suspect if the prosecution is not joining, our position is fairly weak on this, but for the record, we would object to the giving of an instruction on the lesser.

THE COURT: Okay. Now, one of the questions I have, which I think has to be decided, again we have to discuss it early on, because it will come up in other instructions, is in Count 6, the crime alleged is an attempt to commit a lewd act upon a child.

May I ask what -- what acts you’re relying on for that?

(Off-the-record discussion between the Court and Court Research Attorney Jed Beebe.)

MR. SNEDDON: Does the Court want me to respond to that, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yeah, just a second. If you’ll wait just a second.

Okay. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Specifically, the testimony from Gavin Arvizo that the defendant reached over and grabbed his hand and moved his hand towards Mr. Jackson’s crotch area, and that the boy then took his hand away and said he didn’t want to do that. I also believe that there’s some testimony that at that point Jackson said something to the effect that it was natural and okay, but the boy didn’t want to do it.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

Additionally in 1.06, I think we should add the language, “In Count 1, the crime alleged is conspiracy." And then say, instead of moving right to the date, "to commit the crimes of extortion, false imprisonment or child abduction," to make the statement to the jury clear at this point.

And then I'd like to add at the end of the instruction, after the last paragraph, "In Counts 7 to 10, namely, administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony, the lesser crime is furnishing alcohol to a minor."

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, is the Court -- does the Court have in mind the "furnishing" aspect being the violation of 272, contributing, or the specific B&P Code Section --

THE COURT: The specific B&P Code Section.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. I just wanted to know. Thank you.

THE COURT: And that would be 16.010, we would modify later to -- when we get to the specific offenses, to have that -- use paragraph two of that, furnishing liquor to a person under 21. The second paragraph, "Every person who unlawfully sells, furnishes, gives or causes to be sold, furnished or given away any alcoholic beverage to any person under the age of 21 is guilty of a violation of Business & Professions Code Section 25658, 12498 Subdivision (a), a misdemeanor."

And then it goes on, "In order to prove this crime, each of the following elements must be proved: One, the defendant, Michael Jackson, furnished, gave or cause to be furnished or given away an alcoholic beverage to Gavin Arvizo; and two, Gavin Arvizo was under the age of 21. "

MR. SANGER: At the end of 1.06, Your Honor?

THE COURT: No, I'm going to put that at 1.06.

MR. SANGER: Oh.

THE COURT: I'm going to put it back where we have a discussion of the crimes.

MR. SANGER: I agree with that. That's not what I meant, I'm sorry. I was referring the Court's attention to the end of 1.06. It says -- you indicated "the lesser crime is furnishing alcohol to a minor," and I think that should say "a misdemeanor." Is that correct?

THE COURT: It should. You can say that if you want.
MR. SANGER: Well, it says that --
THE COURT: We will say that.
MR. SANGER: It says "a felony" elsewhere, so I think we should say that.
THE COURT: Yes, I think you're right. Okay.
MR. SANGER: I think 1.12 was requested by both sides and was withdrawn by both sides. If it wasn't by us, it is now.

MR. SNEDDON: One point what?
MR. FRANKLIN: 12.
MR. SANGER: 1.12.
MR. SNEDDON: Oh, yeah.
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SANGER: Now, in that regard, if the Court is going to read the indictment at some point --
THE COURT: I don't think I need to read the indictment.
MR. SANGER: I don't think you do. I heard Mr. Sneddon say that.
MR. SNEDDON: No, I didn't say that. I said that there's a CALJIC instruction which requires you to read the conspiracy charges and the overt acts in the 1600 series.
THE COURT: Which you've already prepared.
MR. SNEDDON: I have.
THE COURT: And the only problem with it, in the old package - I haven't seen the new package - was that the Doe names were used.
MR. FRANKLIN: The new package does, too.
THE COURT: So we want that instruction with the names in it.
MR. SNEDDON: We can modify that.
THE COURT: We've used their names throughout the trial.
MR. SNEDDON: We'll modify that for the Court.

THE COURT: Yes. But will you modify it quickly?

MR. SNEDDON: Well, how quickly would you like it? By noon?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: You’ll have it.

THE COURT: Thanks.

The reason I want to do this is -- I don’t know if I told you this or not, so I’ll tell you, I intend to give each of the 20 jurors a full package of the instructions to read as I read them to them. So I will have those prepared. So I have to have a full package today so that I can have those prepared. You know, usually we have overnight to clean up any things like this. But we don’t in this case.

MR. SNEDDON: Are they going to be allowed to take their packet in with them to deliberate?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay.

THE COURT: That’s the purpose of giving it to them.

MR. SNEDDON: That’s fine.

MR. SANGER: All right. If we’re keeping track, that was my concern, that the name -- we don’t have “Does” showing up in the instructions anyplace.

THE COURT: That’s my intent here.

MR. SANGER: With that, we withdraw the 1.12.

THE COURT: Okay. 1.12 has been withdrawn by both sides.

You know, it’s break time. And we have people in the audience that have been sitting even though we’ve been not sitting here. So I will take the break. That will give you a chance to catch up, Counsel, on those items.

(Recess taken.)

MR. SANGER: I guess we’re ready to begin, but we’re not going to have the benefit of Mr. Franklin’s opinion. A little humor, sorry.

THE COURT: I appreciated it. It didn’t call for a belly laugh.

MR. SANGER: No, no, it wasn’t a real knee-slapper, but I appreciate the smile.

THE COURT: 1.21.

MR. SANGER: I think you passed 1.20 without saying you’re giving it, but I believe it should be given.

THE COURT: Well, let’s see. You’re right. 1.20, “willfully,” I had marked that off as giving it. 1.21 I will give. That’s “knowingly.” And 1.22.

MR. SANGER: That’s “malice.” And “malice” is used in false imprisonment, which is CALJIC 9.72.

MR. BEEBE: That’s child abduction.

MR. SANGER: I’m sorry, child abduction.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, it’s defined in 9.72 in the sections under child abduction. “Maliciously” is defined in that instruction.

THE COURT: So we don’t need --

MR. SNEDDON: So we don’t need the -- this would be a repetition.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: If it's not on -- if it's not used in any other instruction - and I couldn't find it going through here quickly - then we'll submit it.

THE COURT: All right. So I'm not going to give 1.22, because it is in another instruction.

1.23, "Consent," I'll give that one.

1.25. That defines a minor.

MR. SNEDDON: I think we asked that, and we withdrew that. That's one of the ones we withdrew because the age limitation is actually 14 in this case.

MR. SANGER: Well, the age limitation for alcohol is 21, so you've got three different ages.

THE COURT: Yeah, for the lesser-included.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, that's defined, though. In the B&P it says "21."

THE COURT: Under that code section?

MR. SNEDDON: I believe it does.

THE COURT: Let me see.

MR. SANGER: It was 16.010.

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, it does say "21."

THE COURT: Yeah, I think that's sufficient, don't you?

The "furnishing," do you have that in front of you, Mr. Sanger?

MR. SANGER: Yeah. 16.010, there's no question that's covered. I'm just thinking is there any other place where "minor" is used in this case, and I don't think there is, because I think the other is under the age of 14. So we would agree to withdraw it based on that.

THE COURT: Okay. The next one is "Direct and circumstantial evidence," 2.00. I'll give that.

The next one is 2.01, "Sufficiency of circumstantial evidence," I'll give that.

The next one is "Sufficiency of circumstantial evidence to prove specific intent or mental state," I'll give that.

MR. SNEDDON: I believe, Your Honor, in the ones that we submitted, that the bracketed information is filled in and/or brackets taken off where appropriate. I just wanted to direct the Court’s attention to that.

THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

MR. SANGER: I think that’s the same. I think that was done in the original one.

THE COURT: Yes, I think so. But that’s good then.

MR. SANGER: Wait a second. There is another change here. It’s modified. Can we have just one second, please?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: I can just indicate to the Court, with regard to the originals that we submitted, those were done by Mr. Nicola, but the ones that we submitted this morning were done by Mr. Franklin and I over the weekend, so I have a great deal more confidence in the fact we -- they may be the same in some cases, but I --

THE COURT: Looks okay.

MR. SNEDDON: Yeah.

THE COURT: But you’re looking at something that I don’t see, Mr. --

MR. SANGER: There is a difference, and it may not be a big difference, but it always worries me when there’s a modification and there’s no indication it’s modified.

The original one just says --

MR. SNEDDON: Which one are we dealing with, Counsel?

MR. SANGER: 2.20, the first one says, “You may not find the defendant guilty of the crimes charged unless the proved circumstances are not only…,” and then it says, in the second version, “…guilty of any of the crimes charged in the indictment unless the proved circumstances…,” which just causes me to wonder why we have different language. And I don’t think it’s necessary to say “indictment.” “Crimes charged” is adequate. An indictment is not evidence of a crime.

MR. SNEDDON: That’s fine. Whatever. It doesn’t make any difference.

THE COURT: So we’ll take out “in the indictment” and just leave “charged crimes.”

MR. SANGER: If you have your original one, I think that’s --

THE COURT: We can use that one.

MR. SANGER: You can use that one.

THE COURT: No change is necessary, Tracy, because we’re using --

MR. SNEDDON: 2.02 has that language there for the lesser-included, but I believe the lesser-includeds in this case are general intent crimes, or a general intent crime.

THE COURT: It is a general intent crime.

MR. SNEDDON: So I just wanted to bring that to the Court’s attention.

THE COURT: Okay. All right. 2.03 is “Consciousness of guilt, falsehood.”

MR. SANGER: We originally requested that at the beginning of the trial.

THE COURT: It is requested by both sides.

MR. SANGER: But I would withdraw our request and object to it.

THE COURT: Okay. What evidence are you relying on?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m specifically relying on that portion of the Bashir video in which the defendant was confronted with the statement about a 40-year-old man sleeping with children, and said it’s not sexual, it’s not sexual, and then went on to portray the incidences being those of where they eat cookies and drink milk, and things like that. And I think that those are fabrications, which I think, if the jury finds those to be not true statements, can be used to reflect his consciousness of guilt.

MR. SANGER: The only problem is that the crimes charged in this case are alleged to have occurred after that video. That video was done in 2002, the fall of 2002, and the crimes alleged here are alleged to have occurred in February and March of 2003. So it could not be a false statement regarding the crimes for which he is now being tried, which is the language of this --

MR. SNEDDON: I don’t think there’s any requirement that it be during the time frame of the charges. It can be a statement that’s made before that reflects on the charges that are currently pending.

THE COURT: It says, actually, “…deliberately misleading statement concerning the charge for which he is now being tried.” So he can’t be making a misleading statement about a crime he hasn’t committed; I mean, hold him to that, it doesn’t seem to me. I think Mr. Sanger is right.

Is there any other evidence that you can think of that you --

MR. SNEDDON: No, that’s what we had in mind.

THE COURT: All right. I’ll reject that, as requested by the defense. It’s rejected.

MR. SANGER: And for some reason, 2.04 was in our packet early on. And we’d withdraw the request for that and also object to it.

MR. SNEDDON: It can be withdrawn, Your Honor, 2.04.

THE COURT: 2.04 is withdrawn.

2.05.

MR. SANGER: The same with 2.05.

MR. SNEDDON: Same.

THE COURT: 2.05 is withdrawn.

MR. SANGER: And 2.06.

THE COURT: 2.06 -- let’s see, 2.05 -- 2.04, that was withdrawn, is, “Efforts by a defendant to fabricate evidence.” And 2.05 is, “Efforts other than by defendant to fabricate evidence.” And those have both been withdrawn.

2.06, “Efforts to suppress evidence.”

MR. SANGER: I think I said this, but we also withdraw our original request and object.

THE COURT: Do you have any evidence you’re relying on for that, Mr. Sneddon?

MR. SNEDDON: No, you can withdraw that, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. 2.06 is withdrawn. 2.09, “Evidence limited as to purpose,” that should be given. I’ll give that.

MR. SANGER: We obviously have specials that I take it the Court will come to at the end.

THE COURT: Yes. I was just thinking, should there be something in 2.09 that says, “You will be instructed further on that”?

MR. SANGER: Well, I was thinking the special --

THE COURT: On one part we did not instruct them at the time, the takeouts. I am going to give a limiting instruction on that, but they didn’t receive it at the time.

MR. SANGER: Oh, I see. You’re saying take the words out “at the time”?

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: Well, I would suggest you leave that in, and then follow this with the special instructions regarding the various items. I don’t know whether the Court will entertain all of our requests, but following the various -- I’m sorry, following this with the specials relating to the various specific items. And when you introduce the outtake evidence, you can say at the time we did not give a particular limiting instruction; however, this is also subject.... So I think you should alert them.

THE COURT: I think you’re right. Because there was -- all right. That’s fine. And you’re suggesting that we put the limiting instructions right after this instruction.

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Well, I’ll tell you, I’m willing to do that as a placement, but I think I would like to put off the discussion of those until later, because it’s going to be a little more intense discussion, but --

MR. SANGER: We'll try not to disappoint you at the given time.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, can I point out that there is still some other limiting instructions that you give that are involving 1101 evidence that probably -- that there are specific instructions on, so you won't be able to line up all of those limiting instructions under this one.

THE COURT: Yeah, that's why I want to look at the whole --

MR. SNEDDON: Package before we get there.

THE COURT: Yeah. To where it all fits best. I mean, I kind of like the idea of following the general, but we'll see how it fits.

MR. SNEDDON: All right.

THE COURT: This is that change, Mr. Franklin, in the overt instruction?

MR. FRANKLIN: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. FRANKLIN: The wonders of global search made it faster.

THE COURT: Thank you.

Mr. Sanger made a joke about you in your absence, but I'm not going to take the time to explain it to you.

MR. FRANKLIN: I'll sweat it out of him outside.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. FRANKLIN: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: 2.11, "Production of all available evidence not required," I'll give that.

2.11.5, I'll give that. That's "Unjoined perpetrators of the same crime."

MR. SANGER: Yeah, just for the -- Your Honor already ruled, so I'm not arguing, but just -- we would intend to withdraw our request for that and object to it.

THE COURT: All right.

2.13, "Prior consistent or inconsistent statements as evidence," I'll give that.

2.20, "The believability of witnesses." It looks like you have removed the "conviction of a felony.” We don’t have any convictions of a felony, do we?

MR. SNEDDON: No. No.

THE COURT: And did you take anything else out? “Character evidence”? That’s out, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Correct. I believe we took out the --

THE COURT: Yes, you did. I’m just checking the other one prior. Okay.

MR. SANGER: Well, but they also took out “past criminal conduct of a witness amounting to a misdemeanor” and “whether the witness is testifying under a grant of immunity.”

MR. SNEDDON: Right.

THE COURT: I think both of those should be in.

MR. SNEDDON: Which is that, Your Honor?

THE COURT: “Past criminal conduct of a witness amounting to a misdemeanor” and “whether the witness is testifying under a grant of immunity.”

MR. SNEDDON: What misdemeanor is that?

THE COURT: Possibly welfare fraud.

MR. SANGER: Actually, the law’s a bit of an anomaly, because it says “prior conviction of a felony,” and then you don’t have to have -- or you can’t just use a conviction of a misdemeanor.

THE COURT: You have to have the facts.

MR. SANGER: You have to have the facts. However, if you have the facts of a felony, that also would count, where you don’t have a conviction for a felony, but you have the facts. So it really should say, “past criminal conduct of a witness,” period.

We don’t have convictions of a felony, but we have criminal conduct that amounts to a felony.

And possibly to both. Possibly a felony and a misdemeanor.

THE COURT: I’m not sure that’s correct. The rule for impeachment with misdemeanors is that you have to impeach by the actual conduct. And with a felony you may impeach by a conviction.

MR. SANGER: I agree with that, but the obverse of that is not necessarily true. In other words, the fact that you don't have a conviction for a felony does not preclude you from showing felony conduct to show moral turpitude and lack of truthfulness.

So the fact that perjury, for instance, is a straight felony, it's not a wobbler, you could only introduce -- if the other were -- the opposite were true, you could only introduce evidence of a conviction for perjury, but you couldn't introduce evidence of underlying conduct, where you could introduce evidence of welfare fraud because that could be either a misdemeanor or a felony, so it wouldn't make any sense.

I mean, in other words, I think the rule is that if it's a felony, a conviction is sufficient. If it's a misdemeanor, a conviction is not sufficient. You have to show the conduct. But that doesn't mean that you can't show the conduct of a felony. The instruction is worded that way simply because that's usually the case, I think, that you have --

THE COURT: I'm going to use the instruction as worded and add "the past criminal conduct of a witness amounting to a misdemeanor" and the "whether the witness testifying is under a grant of immunity."

Do you have that, Tracy?

And 2.21.1, "Discrepancies in testimony," I'll give that.

2.21.2, I'll give that. That's "A witness willfully false in their testimony."

2.22, "Weighing conflicting testimony," I'll give that.

2.23, "Believability of a witness, conviction of a felony," that's withdrawn.

MR. SNEDDON: I don't think we have any evidence of that.

THE COURT: Is either side requesting that?

MR. SANGER: I don't believe there's any evidence of that, actual conviction of a felony.

THE COURT: 2.23.1, “Believability of a witness, commission of a misdemeanor.”

The question there would be whose name goes in there, or names? “Evidence has been introduced for the purpose of showing that a witness....”

Do you want to leave the names out and just argue it?

MR. SNEDDON: That’s what I think ought to be done.

MR. SANGER: Well, there’s Janet Arvizo and Rudy Provencio.

MR. SNEDDON: Rudy Provencio?

MR. SANGER: Manufacturing evidence, false evidence.

THE COURT: What --

MR. SANGER: And I’m still troubled by this felony, that you can --

THE COURT: Well, let’s just move on. Be troubled elsewhere.

MR. SANGER: It has to do with this instruction, though, that’s -- and the prior instruction as well.

THE COURT: Let’s just deal with the question at hand, please.

MR. SNEDDON: I think it should be left blank and argued.

MR. SANGER: I suppose, because there’s more than those two witnesses that could arguably fall into that category. Cindy Montgomery and -- so I’ll submit it.

THE COURT: It seems better to do it that way, I think, and leave each side to whatever crimes they think have been shown.

Is there any -- on this issue that you’re worrying about, Mr. Sanger, is there anything in the supplements? I mean, these are instructions that have been used for years.

Is there anything in the supplements that shows that the language of the CALJIC official instructions shouldn’t be followed? I’ll come back to it if you want.

MR. SANGER: Yes, if I could. We’ll try to --

THE COURT: Some authority would help.

MR. SANGER: -- at a break, see if we can.

I was just looking at the use note to see if -- it doesn’t say to the contrary either, which surprises me, if there’s a rule to the contrary. It doesn’t say only a felony conviction may be used. It talks about the fact that there’s -- a conviction is adequate proof, and that shows there’s moral turpitude, and that’s the basis for impeachment.

So we’ll see if we can take a look on the break at that.

THE COURT: Yeah, I thought that to some extent. Well, do you think we should change 2.23.1 to say, “Evidence has been introduced for the purpose of showing that a witness” -- “or to show” -- “Evidence has been introduced for the purpose of showing witnesses have engaged in past criminal conduct”?

MR. SANGER: Period. That would be my request.

THE COURT: It’s changing it, though, from “a” to “witnesses.”

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: Is that okay?

MR. SANGER: That would be correct, yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, I would prefer that you put “witness” and then bracket, “e-s,” paren, so that the Court doesn’t appear to be editorializing that there really are, because this is a jury decision.

By putting more in, it’s an indication that there is some lack of discretion in this area, and, quite frankly, it is up to the jury to make that decision. Or to put “witness or witnesses.”

But I think to say “witnesses” tends to imply that there has been some misconduct done, and I don’t think that’s really -- I think that infringes upon the jury’s fact-finding process.

MR. SANGER: There’s definitely more than one witness. I mean, I said Rudy Provencio and I got an argument on that, but --

THE COURT: The rest of the instruction talks about a witness.

MR. SNEDDON: It would have to be modified throughout, I think.

MR. FRANKLIN: “The” to “a.”

THE COURT: Do you have an opinion on this, Mr. Franklin?

MR. FRANKLIN: Change “the” to “a” where it appears. The third sentence, “The fact that a witness engaged in....” Other than that, with respect to policy decisions, I defer to my senior lead counsel.

THE COURT: I’m not sure where you’re saying change “the” to “a.”

MR. FRANKLIN: The second sentence commences, “The fact that the witness engaged in” --

THE COURT: Oh.

MR. FRANKLIN: -- I’d suggest we change “the” to “a” to keep it sort of noncommittal. And I think there’s merit to the notion of “witness or witnesses.”

THE COURT: “Witness or witnesses.” Is that okay, Mr. Sanger?

MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Then I think I’ll just leave “the” alone.

MR. FRANKLIN: Your Honor, are we going to leave in “amounting to a misdemeanor” or strike that?

MR. SNEDDON: No, that stays in.

THE COURT: Right now it’s staying in.

MR. FRANKLIN: Very well.

THE COURT: And I’m allowing Mr. Sanger to show me a reason to go along with his approach, which would be just to put in “a crime” as opposed to “a misdemeanor.” What’s your position on that?

MR. FRANKLIN: If we -- I think if you either specify -- if you specify a misdemeanor, then you have to define what crimes are misdemeanors. The jury won’t know. So there may be some merit to leaving out either specification of a misdemeanor or felony and leave it just “crimes.” Although it could be argued, of course, by either side as to what crime is a misdemeanor.

THE COURT: So neither side is advocating that we just follow the “misdemeanor” language then; is that correct?

MR. SANGER: That’s correct.

THE COURT: In that case, we’ll follow the “crime” language. “Has engaged in criminal conduct,” that’s where that would stop, right? On 2.23.1?

MR. SANGER: Yes. And then, depending on which version you have, three or four lines down says “amounting to a misdemeanor” should be left out.

THE COURT: Yeah, we cross out “amounting to a misdemeanor,” and then again that repeats itself. And then the heading on this instruction should be changed to “Commission of a crime,” right?

MR. SANGER: Yes.

Would it be appropriate to then revisit 2.20 and take “amounting to a misdemeanor” out of that?

THE COURT: Yes. Okay. And that’s where it would say, “Past criminal conduct by a witness amounting to” -- that’s all. Just “past criminal conduct of a witness,” huh?

MR. SANGER: Yes. Period.

THE COURT: Period. Okay.

Okay. 2.24, “Believability of a witness.”

What character testimony has been introduced?

MR. SANGER: I don’t think there is, and we would withdraw the request and object to it.

MR. SNEDDON: That’s fine.

THE COURT: Okay. It’s withdrawn by both sides, 2.24.

2.25: “Refusal of witness to testify,” when a witness refuses to testify to any matter based on the privilege against self-incrimination.

MR. SANGER: We've submitted a special instruction that tries to grapple with the situation I think we're in here. I don't think 2.25 adequately addresses it. And I know the Court ruled otherwise previously and gave an instruction, but the more I've thought about it, the more it seemed that we have the right-of-confrontation issue when it's a prosecution witness and that that should be acknowledged.

So I wonder if the Court would want to hold this, tab it or something, until we get to the specials.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: And, actually, the same would go for 2.26. Just hold that, too, because I think there's a special that tries to grapple with all of those.

THE COURT: Neither of those were in the original packages, so I'll hold ruling on 2.25 and 2.26 until we look at the specials at the same time.

2.27, I'll give that. That's "the sufficiency of the testimony of one witness."

2.40, "Traits of character of defendant."

MR. SANGER: Excuse me one second.

Well, there was a 2.29, but I take it that was withdrawn. That was a witness in custody, so -- I'm sorry.

THE COURT: I don't have that.

MR. SANGER: I had a note that the prosecution asked for it. It doesn't matter. If the Court doesn't have it, we don't want it, nobody wants it.

THE COURT: Okay. 2.40. I don't think that the --

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, are we on 2.29?

THE COURT: Well, yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Yeah, I think in light of the Court's ruling that we couldn't ask any have-you-heard questions, that this instruction should not be given.

MR. SANGER: 2.29?

THE COURT: 2.40.

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, I’m sorry. And we’re on 2.29 now?

THE COURT: There is no 2.29. I don’t have one.

MR. SNEDDON: That’s a mistake.

THE COURT: Okay. 2.40, which is “The traits of character of defendant,” so you’re right. You’re not asking for this. Nobody’s asking for 2.40 at this point.

MR. SNEDDON: All right.

MR. SANGER: I think we asked for it, but I -- I think the Court ruled that there was -- that there was not character evidence during the course of the trial.

THE COURT: Yes. Which is exactly what you wanted me to rule.

MR. SANGER: Right. Except for the 1108, which was not character, but it was --

THE COURT: Right.

MR. SANGER: So I think in light of that, we’d have to withdraw it.

THE COURT: Okay. Both sides withdraw 2.40.

MR. SANGER: And 4. -- 2.42 would go as well.

THE COURT: Yes. That’s “Cross-examination of a character witness,” so that’s gone also. Do you agree, Mr. Sneddon?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, that would have been one of the ones we would have withdrawn, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. 2.50, “Evidence of other crimes.”

MR. SANGER: We have two versions from the prosecution. We got the earlier one, and the more recent one, which is the one we have this morning, I haven’t had a chance to compare it and see which brackets were eliminated.

MR. FRANKLIN: We’ll eliminate the “he/she” on line 5.

MR. SANGER: Well, that would be a good point right there.

THE COURT: This is evidence that the defendant committed other crimes.

MR. SNEDDON: Right.

THE COURT: So you’re going to submit a new one with “he” in it?

MR. FRANKLIN: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Just going to take out the word “she.”

MR. SANGER: It’s -- doing this on the fly, it’s a little hard to tell which brackets have been taken out here, so --

THE COURT: I know.

MR. SANGER: I see in the new one there’s -- inexplicably the word “certain” shows up at the beginning of the instruction. I suppose it doesn’t hurt anything, but that causes me to have concern about the rest of the instruction.

I have some observations, if the Court is ready.

THE COURT: Yes. Just a moment.

Did you want to say something?

(Off-the-record discussion between the Court and Court Research Attorney Jed Beebe.)

MR. FRANKLIN: Which one, Bob?

MR. SANGER: We’re on 2.50. At least I am. I think the Court is.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: I have objections to the new version, and I think the new version eliminated some of what was in the old version that clearly does not apply, so I think we could work with the new version, if that’s all right with the Court.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: We’re already eliminating the word “she” up there in the second paragraph. I don’t know why the word “certain” is there. I don’t know why that really matters, but that’s not part of the instruction at the very beginning.

THE COURT: Okay. We’ll take out “certain.”

MR. SANGER: Now, I have really two objections to this. After the words “Counts 2 through 10,” the bracketed material, “or a clear connection between the other offenses and the one of which the defendant is accused so that it may be inferred that if defendant committed the other offenses, defendant also committed the crimes charged in this case," which is 1101(b), this is an 1101(b) instruction, and under the facts of this case, that sounds like propensity, which is not what 1101(b) was designed to do. And I take it there's an 1108 as a separate instruction.

The other thing, and I'll just defer to counsel to comment on whatever, but just let me indicate there's -- this instruction apparently is related to the alleged sex offenses. It's not related to the conspiracy. There is no conspiracy with regard to Counts 2 through 10. So the two paragraphs at the bottom of page one that pertain to part of a larger continuing plan, scheme or conspiracy, and existence of conspiracy, that should be eliminated. That would not apply to the 1101(b) evidence.

MR. SNEDDON: I disagree with both those comments. But, first of all, the comment above is the direct language taken from the 2.50, which was bracketed, and it does refer to the inferences which the jury is allowed to draw with regard to this type of evidence.

And secondly, there are -- there is evidence before the Court, before the jury, that involves 1108 type of conduct on the issue of the conspiracy.

So it seems to me that this instruction applies not only to the events and testimony directed at the 1101, but also directed to the conspiracy.

MR. SANGER: May I just have a moment, Your Honor, please?

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, just to make it clear with regard to the 1101(b) on the sexual part, this is a situation where the jury is allowed to draw inferences from the conduct involved in that evidence for certain limited purposes under 1101, and then those same acts of conduct are allowed to be expanded on in 1108.

But that's not to mean that the inferences that are traditional 1101 types of things for modus operandi, scheme, motive and intent are not -- that those other offenses, just because they're allowed on the grounds of 1108, are not useful under 1101 for the purposes that 1101 authorizes. I think that's why that language should be kept in.

THE COURT: But I thought the 1101 evidence was limited to the method, the characteristic method. Isn't that why we introduced that?

MR. SNEDDON: No, I think in our moving papers we actually delineated five separate reasons why it was admissible under 1108 -- 1101. And each one of these are reasons that we set forth, along with the factual recitation as to why they would be admissible under the traditional 1101 approach.

MR. SANGER: Well, the way I see it, there's a separate instruction and then we requested a special on 1108. And I understand this is a 2005 revision, and that doesn't mean that the jury -- that the commission that proposes these instructions got it right.

In 2.50, they basically talk about common plan or scheme, intent, motive, knowledge, and those are the issues for 1101(b). And that's what 2.50 should address. They throw in a sentence at the end of the third full paragraph there, or a portion of the sentence, right after the word "10." It says, "or a clear connection between the offenses so that it may be inferred that if a defendant committed the other offenses, the defendant also committed the crimes charged in this case."

That's clearly 1108. That's clearly not 1101. There's no reason to put 1108 language in the 1101(b) instruction. So I think that should be -- that should be taken out.

And the use note also says if you have 1108, you should be using 2.50.01. And once again, the conspiracy is -- the existence of a conspiracy has nothing to do with this prior sexual acts, so that should go out.

And I think, if you take that last sentence out after the Counts 2 through 10, starting with -- or the portion of the sentence starting with “or a clear connection” to the end of the paragraph, if you take that out, then it stands on its own as an 1101(b) instruction. And then you go to 2.50.01, and that covers the 1108. So to the extent it’s not coterminous, I think some of the evidence was 1101(b) and some of it was 1108.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I think that counsel’s making two mistakes. One, I think that the 12 -- the revisions to 2.50 are the insertion of the gang enhancement ones, which were previously not in there. I don’t think it changes the basic language of the instruction 2.50.

And I think what counsel’s preoccupied with is the fact that 1101(b) does not have to be used only in sexual assault cases. It can be used in burglaries. It can be used in robberies. It can be used in murders. It can be used in virtually any type of a crime.

And in this particular case, I think we have evidence that not only relates to issues involved in the molestation of Gavin Arvizo, but also to the conspiracy. And particularly motive evidence. And some of the other acts are acts that are alleged in the overt acts from which the jury is entitled to draw inferences.

MR. SANGER: Well, now, if Mr. Sneddon is now saying that 2.50 is just a straight 1101(b) instruction, then that’s all the more reason that you would have to take out that 1108 language, because if he’s claiming that it pertains to all of the counts, then it should just be a generic 1101(b) instruction.

MR. SNEDDON: No, that’s --

THE COURT: This is how I’m going to give the instruction, then. Do you want to --

MR. SANGER: Yeah.

THE COURT: -- get your materials? “Evidence” -- I’m not going to use the word “certain.” “Evidence has been introduced for the purpose of showing that the defendant committed crimes other than that for which he is on trial.” So that sentence has one change, right? And then the next one, “Except as you will otherwise be instructed, this evidence, if believed, may be considered by you only for the limited purpose of determining if it tends to show,” colon, “A,” the next paragraph, “A characteristic method, plan or scheme in the commission of criminal acts similar to the method, plan or scheme used in the commission of the offense in this case which would further tend to show the existence of the intent which is a necessary element of the crime charged.” Then the rest of that paragraph goes out. Next paragraph: “The existence of the intent which is a necessary element of the crime charged.” The next paragraph I will use would be, “A motive for the commission of the crime charged.” And the next paragraph I would use would be, “For the limited purpose for which you may consider such evidence, you must weigh it in the same manner as you do all other evidence in this case.” Okay. 2.50.1 -- 2.50.01, “Evidence of other sexual offenses, Evidence Code 1108.” Is there any reason -- going back to 2.50 for a minute, is there any reason that the heading on that shouldn’t at least cite Penal Code Section 1101?

MR. SANGER: Evidence Code Section 1101?

THE COURT: Excuse me. Yeah.

MR. SANGER: That would make sense.

THE COURT: So would you add that, Tracy? Evidence Code -- just like the next -- the way I picked that up is the next one, 2.50.01, cites Evidence Code 1108. And I think -- the reason I think that’s important is that, to some extent, my instructions to the jurors might have used the numbers “1101” and “1108.” I can’t remember. To the extent that it does, that would be clarifying help, right?

MR. SANGER: I don’t think it hurts.

THE COURT: Excuse me?

MR. SANGER: I say, I don’t think it hurts.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: I do have a question about the interrelation between 2.50 and 2.50.01.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor excluded the portion -- the traditional portion of 1101(b), which is that the evidence cannot be considered to prove that a defendant is a person of bad character or that he has a disposition to commit crimes.

Now, I understand that the reason the Court did that, I suppose, is that 2.50.01 is going to, you know, say, “But you can consider the disposition to commit crimes”; however, there is 1101(b) evidence that wasn’t 1108, so you’re not making that distinction. And in case we have anybody who’s got an advanced degree in philosophy, they might pick up on that at some point in the instruction.

Would it be possible to say at the end, “You’re not permitted to consider such evidence for any other purpose, and except for the evidence referred to in the next instruction, you may not consider this evidence to prove the defendant is a bad person” -- “is a person of bad character or that he has a disposition to commit crimes”?

THE COURT: Well, I think there is -- the sentence in the second paragraph states that, “It may be considered only by you” -- or, “may be considered by you only for the limited purpose of determining if it tends to show....” so it tells exactly what the limitations are.

MR. SANGER: I suppose -- I realize 1108 turned the law on its head here, but one of the things that jurors were always warned of in 1101(b) was that very delicate matter that they’re not supposed to consider it for proof of the fact that the person is of bad character or has a disposition. And to the extent there's 1101(b) that's not 1108, we're not giving them that admonition.

THE COURT: I think it's clearer if the one instruction, 2.50, tells them it can only be considered for certain purposes, and the next instruction tells them that they can consider it for a disposition. I think it's more confusing to do it the way you're suggesting.

Okay. 2.50.01.

MR. SANGER: We once again have a new one, which is fine. It removes some brackets.

MR. SNEDDON: We just took out the ones that didn't apply in this case, which were the --

THE COURT: Right. So you left --

MR. SNEDDON: -- force and violence.

THE COURT: You left in A and took put B, C, D, E and F, which I think is appropriate, and then you took out "she" in the next paragraph.

MR. SANGER: We do have a special on 1108, but I don't think it's going to impact this --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: -- so much.

And the only objection I'd -- I don't want to be too picky here, but since "any of the following" is one --

THE COURT: Is only one.

MR. SANGER: -- it should just say, "Sexual offense means a crime under the laws of the state or of the United States that involves...," and then just take out "any of the following," "any conduct made criminal by...."

MR. FRANKLIN: Striking "any of"?

MR. SANGER: Strike "any of the following," and then it will just read "involves any conduct made criminal by...."

THE COURT: Okay. You stop at "the United States"; is that right?

MR. SANGER: No. You just say "that involves...," and it's just one sentence. "Sexual offense means a crime under the laws of the state or of the United States that involves any conduct made criminal by Penal Code Section 288.”

THE COURT: All right. And just keep the sentence running.

MR. SANGER: Yeah. And actually, as I think about it -- I mean, I understand there could be conduct outside the state.

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: But there’s no definition of the laws of other states or the United States, so how would a jury know if something violated a federal law or a state law of another state?

THE COURT: Because it has to involve conduct made criminal by Penal Code Section 288. I mean, that’s what the real subject matter is.

MR. SANGER: That’s right. “Sexual offense means a crime that involves conduct made criminal by” -- it’s not a big thing. It’s just a thing.

THE COURT: Okay. So I do think I’ll accept your change there and take out the words “any of the following,” and the second paragraph at the end, colon, and go straight. “Conduct” becomes part of the sentence. “Any conduct,” okay?

And the next one is 2.50.1, “Evidence of the other crimes must be proved by a preponderance of the evidence,” I’ll give that.

And then 2.50 -- 2.50.2, “Definition of preponderance of the evidence,” I’ll give that.

MR. SANGER: Yes. So 2.50.1 and 2.50. --

THE COURT: 2.

MR. SANGER: -- 2. Excuse me one second.

Okay. So on 2.50.1, we have proposed a Special Jury Instruction No. 4 that I think would basically be a suggestion to modify 2.50.1 with some or all of the language of that. Could we come back to that, or --

THE COURT: Yes.

The next one’s 2.51. 2.51, “Motive.” I’ll give that.

The next one is 2.60, “Defendant not testifying. No inference of guilt," I'll give that.

2.61, "Relying on the state of the evidence, defendant may...," I'll give that. 2.61.

MR. SANGER: I think 2.70 is withdrawn by both parties. Put it this way: I believe it was withdrawn by the People in their latest set, and we would also withdraw any request for it.

THE COURT: Okay. And that leaves 2.71, "Admission defined."

MR. SANGER: Yes. And the People's latest version has the bracketed gender issues resolved.

THE COURT: That's okay. I'll give that.

2.71.5, "Adoptive admission."

MR. SANGER: We would withdraw -- excuse me. We would withdraw any request for that and object to that being given.

MR. SNEDDON: This will pretty much rise and fall on the basis of your previous decision as to the failure to respond to the accusation on the program, so that's the theory we had. So I would guess that this would be one that you would refuse. We're not withdrawing it, but I think -- to be consistent, I think that I need to point out that the Court will probably refuse it.

THE COURT: Yes, that's correct, I will refuse it.

Then 2.71.7.

MR. SANGER: And we would -- at the beginning of the trial we submitted a bunch of these, obviously not knowing exactly what was going to happen, but this is one we would withdraw and object to it being given.

MR. SNEDDON: And it seems to me this is one that specifically applies, because it says it's a pre-offense statement. And we're talking about the admissions.

MR. SANGER: But this is designed -- I'm not looking at the use notes, but I will. I mean, this is designed for a situation where somebody's talking about, "I'm trying to rob the bank," or "I got a gun in case I want to rob a bank," something like that. It doesn't add anything to the --

THE COURT: What did you have in mind?

MR. SNEDDON: Hearsay statements about sleeping with teenaged boys.

THE COURT: So you’ve listed, “Evidence has been received from which you may find that an oral statement of intent, plan, motive or design....” You used all of the words in the instruction. What words were you thinking of?

MR. SNEDDON: Well, I think -- I think all four of them apply. But that’s his intention, that he plans to do that, and it’s a motive for the crime in this case, and he has a design on young teenaged boys.

MR. SANGER: That’s not the way the word’s used. That was clever, though.

MR. SNEDDON: It’s not what?

MR. SANGER: You know, it’s actually interesting, because 2.71 may not even apply. However, 2.71.7, basically I think what the prosecution is saying is that there’s statements that were made that the admissions, under 2.71, would be statements that were made that would be admissions of something that might pertain to the 1108 evidence. It’s not admissions as to the future conduct.

And 2.71.7 I believe pertains to the kind of pre-offense statements that I referred to, like “I’m going to go out and buy the gun because I might want to rob a bank some day,” and then the person robs a bank, and then you say, “Well, he said he was going to do that.”

MR. SNEDDON: And our contention is that these statements indicate a predisposition and his intention to continue in this kind of conduct from which the jury can draw a reasonable inference that this conduct occurred with regard to Gavin Arvizo.

MR. SANGER: Well, then, so that’s 1108.

MR. SNEDDON: No, it’s not 1108. It’s an admission. It’s an admission on his part. It’s his statement. 1108 is conduct that was viewed with regard to other individuals.

MR. SANGER: Well, I don’t mean to get involved in a direct argument with Mr. Sneddon, but addressing the Court, the predisposition -- the word “predisposition” is -- evidence pertaining to predisposition is inadmissible unless it comes in under 1108. So this can only be talking about 1108, in which case it’s redundant. It doesn’t make any sense the way it’s worded. 2.71 would be the admission that would pertain to 1108. It’s something that was said after the fact that the prosecution wants to argue bears on 1108 events having occurred.

2.71.7, there is no -- despite the creative use of the word “design,” there is no predisposition issue under 2.71.7. If you say somebody has -- you know, we’re talking about robbing a bank, I suppose they’re talking about robbing a bank, it’s not a predisposition. It would go to intent or something.

So I think for purposes of argument -- I mean, nobody’s going to understand this unless it’s argued by the lawyers. So for purpose of argument, 2.71 gives the prosecution the opportunity to argue that things that were said on the tape -- and the only statements that came in by Mr. Jackson are pre-offense statements. So the things said on the tape they could argue were an admission of some sort that pertains in some way to the 1108 evidence.

MR. SNEDDON: That is not --

MR. SANGER: 1108 evidence --

MR. SNEDDON: -- what we’re saying.

MR. SANGER: Excuse me one second.

1108 evidence, then, is offered for the purpose of showing there’s some predisposition, which are propensity. But 2.71.7 doesn’t advance the ball for anybody.

THE COURT: This requires -- in your mind, it requires some statement that shows at that time he’s contemplating a crime of some sort.

MR. SANGER: That he’s --

THE COURT: So his statements --

MR. SANGER: -- subsequently charged with.

THE COURT: -- that he allows young boys to sleep in his room doesn't show a crime. That's what you're saying?

MR. SANGER: Well, that's correct. But it doesn't show the intent, plan, motive or design. It -- he's talking historically at that time. If you remember, the statements that were selected were statements with regard to Gavin Arvizo that occurred prior to 2003, and then also a remark -- we have it here someplace, but a remark to the effect that he has allowed other children to sleep in his bed.

THE COURT: I guess I'll have to go back to exactly what statements you're relying on for this instruction.

MR. SNEDDON: I'm relying on the statements that the Court allowed to be admissible as admissions on the part of the defendant. And that is those admissions in the Bashir video. And I think I provided the Court with a copy of what I believe to be consistent with the Court's ruling earlier before the trial started, and I believe those statements apply.

You know, I think the problem here is that, you know, an admission is something from which the jury draws an inference. Whereas a confession would be a complete -- would be a completed statement as to all elements of the crime. And -- and the reason that the Court ruled that those admissions were to come before the jury is because it does indicate that he has a motive and intent to sleep with young teenaged boys, and he has admitted to doing so, which allows the jury to draw an inference that he did so with Gavin under circumstances which are directly related to the crimes alleged in this count.

MR. SANGER: Actually, I'm looking at what was submitted this morning by the prosecution, and it's a document that doesn't have anybody's name on it. And I think Your Honor asked your clerk to check. That's the one that was filed by the prosecution and --

THE COURT: Yes, I have it.

MR. SANGER: I'm just looking at it now, again having received it this morning. I'm certain these are not the correct excerpts.

MR. SNEDDON: Well --

THE COURT: "The correct excerpts" meaning what?

MR. SANGER: Well, Your Honor ruled earlier that certain statements could come in if they laid the foundation and got the tape in, and they got -- they introduced the Bashir tape that had some statements. They also sought to introduce another tape that never came into evidence.

But, for instance, page two here, it says, on page 41, there's a discussion between Gavin and Bashir. You know, I just look at that, and I know that wasn't one of the parts that the Court approved.

We could go back and figure it out, but aside from that, the general proposition is that what they wanted to introduce were statements of Michael Jackson that could be construed as --

THE COURT: Admissions.

MR. SANGER: -- admissions that of course would have to be admissions as to prior conduct, not future conduct, because there's no future conduct yet by definition. That would come in under 2.71.

We are proposing in a special instruction that the Court not delineate the exact paragraphs, and instead, with both the Bashir tape and the outtakes, the Court categorize it as statements by Michael Jackson that pertain to his relationship with children.

THE COURT: I know that. But I can't see you getting anywhere with that one, so --

MR. SANGER: Oh, you can't. Well, it just seemed to be an easier way to do it. But the point of the story is, whether we do it that way or not, that's what it was about. The Court was ruling that statements --

THE COURT: But what I had ruled was that certain statements, if the jury determined that they were admissions, could be used for the truth of the matter asserted. And I asked Mr. Sneddon to give me a list of the statements that he thought he would be relying on to submit to them for admissions.

And the purpose of that was that I needed to know what statements I might allow you to put in for the truth of the matter asserted which were connected to the admissions and not generally connected to everything he said about children.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: Which is what you threw in in your instruction.

So let's take a break.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Okay. On 2.71.7, I will go ahead and give that, but I'll just, I think, limit it to "intent." Take out "plan, motive and design."

MR. SANGER: And I believe this is correct, Your Honor, but just so I'm clear on the record, we did withdraw our request and we object to this.

THE COURT: All right. It's clear now.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you.

THE COURT: 2.72, we don't need that anymore, do we?

MR. SNEDDON: I think that's a sua sponte instruction.

THE COURT: Okay. 2. -- all right. I'll give that.

2.80, that's expert testimony, I'll give that.

2.81 --

MR. SANGER: Could you slow down one second, Your Honor, please? There's two issues here.

Okay. On 2.80, you're giving their newer version?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: 2.81. Actually, 2.81 is the one that you originally had requested, right?

MR. SANGER: We had requested, well, yes, in advance of the trial.

THE COURT: So that’s given.

MR. SANGER: Yes. I think there was some such testimony.

THE COURT: And then 2.82, “Hypothetical questions,” we’ll give.

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: And 2.83, “Resolution of conflicting expert testimony,” I’ll give.

2.90, “Presumption of innocence,” I’ll give.

Now we come to the principals and accessories. My take on this is that we shouldn’t be giving that at all, 3.00, 3.01, 3.02. In this case we’re dealing with -- on one crime we’re dealing with conspiracy, and that has all the instructions that relate to the relationship between co-conspirators, which are different than principal and agent.

MR. SANGER: And we would -- I’m sorry, we would withdraw 3.00, .01 and .02, and object to them being given.

MR. SNEDDON: We agree.

THE COURT: Okay. So I’ll withdraw 3.00, 3.02 -- 3.01, 3.02.

3.10 withdrawn? This is the definition of an accomplice.

MR. SANGER: Well, it appears that the prosecution has withdrawn 3.11 and .12, but not .10.

MR. SNEDDON: There was some method in our madness in that, Judge. And the method was -- or the madness was perhaps that we felt that the conspiracy instructions adequately covered any liability issue, and we wanted to make sure that if there was going to be a discussion as to whether these accomplice instructions need to be done, there at least be one left in to make it a conscious ruling on the record.

And our feeling is the same as the Court’s, and that is the conspiracy instructions adequately have addressed the involvement of other participants in this crime, but we just felt that it should be discussed and either withdrawn or objected to on the record by the defense, and that's the reason we left the one in and took the others out.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Well, there's a difference between the aiding, abetting and principal instructions, which we agree should go out, and the accomplice instructions, because those have to do with the testimony of the accomplice as opposed to criminal liability.

In other words, I agree that the conspiracy instruction covers the liability of individuals involved in the offense for substantive law purposes, but the accomplice instructions pertain to whether or not corroboration is necessary for an accomplice witness. That's a different issue.

THE COURT: I think the accomplice instructions don't apply either, so let's take them one at a time.

I'm not going to give 3.10. And do you want to object to that?

MR. SANGER: Yeah, we're requesting that the accomplice -- all the accomplice instructions be given. So starting with 3.10, yes, we request it.

THE COURT: I'm not going to give 3.11. I'm not going to give 3.12. I'm not going to give 3.13. I'm not going to give 3.14. I'm not going to give 3.16. I'm not going to give 3.18. I'm not going to give 3.19. And all of those were relating to accomplices.

3.31, "Concurrence of act and specific intent."

MR. SANGER: Now, the prosecution has provided, this morning, a fuller version of 3.31.

THE COURT: That's correct. I'm looking at that.

Tell me when you've had time to read it.

MR. SANGER: I've had time to read it, and I have a question so far, two questions.

One, I'm not sure that the specific intent on conspiracy is exactly right. But let me look at that.

The other one is the attempted lewd act requires the specific intent to commit the lewd act, but it also requires the specific intent to arouse or appeal to or to gratify, I think.

So an attempt, you have to have the specific intent to commit the actual crime, plus the specific intent that's -- I'm sorry, that's required --

THE COURT: Is the same.

MR. SANGER: -- in the definition, yes. And then you also have to specifically intend to commit that crime. It's an attempt.

THE COURT: Do you want to respond to that?

MR. SNEDDON: If they want to put it in, that's fine, Judge. I think what we envisioned there was that there is going to be another instruction as to what that crime envisions and entails, but I see no harm in just dropping down that section from above and adding it on there.

Actually, I'm not sure that that's even -- I mean, it's a little redundant because that's what the crime is. I'm not so sure you just couldn't take out "the specific intent to commit a lewd act" and just put in "the specific intent to arouse, appeal to, or gratify the lusts or passions or sexual desires of the perpetrator or the child." That's really what it is.

THE COURT: Are you conferencing on this?

MR. SNEDDON: No, I think there was some confusion on --

MR. FRANKLIN: Can I have just a moment to confer with Mr. Sanger?

Bob?

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SNEDDON: No, I think I was on the right page.

THE COURT: Okay. So how do you want to change that, then?

MR. SNEDDON: Well, I would suggest that what we do is simply start with the word where it says “specific intent,” and then just take out “commit a lewd act with a child under the age of 14,” and just put in “requires a specific intent to arouse, appeal to, gratify the lusts and passions or sexual desires of the perpetrator or the child.” In other words, take the same exact language --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SNEDDON: -- for the crime above and just drop that down.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Well, I would propose that, instead, say, “requires the specific intent to commit the” -- “a lewd act with a child, with the further specific intent to appeal to, gratify” -- “or gratify the lusts or passions or sexual desires.” Because technically in an attempt, you have to have the specific intent to commit the act. And then in order for it to be an attempted 288, it’s got to be with the further specific intent of arousing passions and so on.

The way the prosecutor suggested it, it eliminates the specific intent to commit the act, and it could be interpreted as just, you know, some intent to arouse passions on the part of the individual.

MR. SNEDDON: Just add them both in. That’s fine with me. I don’t really care.

THE COURT: Okay.

We don’t have 3.31.5 in your new set, right?

MR. SANGER: They withdrew it. But before we get there, is the Court giving 3.31 with that modification? Was that the final ruling?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: All right.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, it occurs to me that --

THE COURT: Why wouldn’t you give 31 -- 3.31.5?

MR. SNEDDON: With regard to what crime?

It occurs to me that 3.30 needs to be given because of the general intent crime on the lesser, according to the use note.

THE COURT: I know we have to give a general intent instruction on the lesser and --

MR. SNEDDON: That would be 3.30, I think, which we didn't request because we didn't see the lesser at the time. But I agree with the Court, it has to be given, so --

THE COURT: Well, there's another place that the general intent applies, isn't there, in the false imprisonment, when we get to the definition describing the conspiracy?

MR. SNEDDON: You're correct. According to the use note, that's correct.

THE COURT: So when we are thinking of giving the 3.30, it seems to me maybe we should put that with the definition of the lesser-included at the time we give the instruction on the lesser-included. And then because of the complications of the specific intent in the conspiracy instructions and specific intent to commit -- this is similar to what you were just saying, the specific intent to commit a crime, specific intent to commit false imprisonment, which has a general intent, we need to be very cautious about how we instruct the jury on that issue. And I don't want to mix up the two. Even though we're dealing with a general intent on both of those crimes, they're going to treat the approach to the general intent separately on each crime.

So I think what we should do is give 3.30 separately at each point, at the right point. So --

MR. SNEDDON: I think that's the safest thing to do. That way it doesn't confuse it.

THE COURT: If we're careful, it won't. Even then we could. But we'll work on that.

MR. SANGER: There is a problem, I think, with conspiracy, getting that confused and saying --

THE COURT: I know.

MR. SANGER: Yeah.

THE COURT: That's what I was bringing up. That's why I want to be careful about how we deal with giving the general intent instruction here.

MR. SANGER: Okay. And, I mean, we all agree it has to be given with regard to the lesser.

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: But does it have to be given in conjunction with the underlying offense for conspiracy?

THE COURT: I think so. Because since it’s a general intent crime, all they have to do is intend to do the acts that, in effect, are false imprisonment.

MR. SANGER: I understand. I’m just thinking --

THE COURT: If they intend to do those acts and they agree to do those acts, specifically they intended to do those acts, they intended -- specifically intended to agree, then you have a conspiracy within the law.

MR. SANGER: So you have the specific intent to agree. We’ve got that. And then the next is a specific intent to commit the crime. And if you have a specific intent to commit a general intent crime, don’t you have to have a specific intent to commit that crime?

THE COURT: Yes. But -- but to get to committing the crime itself, that’s not enough. You know, the law is, you have to not only have the intent, you have to commit the crime. You have to do the act. And the act is a general intent --

MR. SANGER: I’m with you on all of that. What I was going to say is, in the instruction 9.60, it says, “In order to prove this crime, each of the following elements must be proven.” The first is, “A person intentionally restrained…,” dah-dah-dah-dah-dah. Isn’t that enough? The reason you give a general intent instruction is to eliminate -- seems to me, is to eliminate the situation where somebody, for instance, would be convicted of breaking and entering when somebody -- they’re walking down the sidewalk and somebody pushed them through the door. They didn’t have the general intent to commit the act. Otherwise, I mean, the instruction protects defendants against being convicted of an act that was not -- was not intentional in a general sense. Okay? How would the defendant be protected here where you have to have the specific intent to commit the crime and the crime is to intentionally do something? In other words, I don’t know that you’re -- that we’re furthering the purpose of the general intent instruction. It doesn’t really help or hurt the prosecution. Generally an instruction that would give a defense to the defense. But my concern is, in giving -- in talking about this, if it’s not necessary, and I understand the Court thinks it is --

THE COURT: It could hurt the prosecution if the jury thinks that they have to have the specific intent to have false imprisonment. In fact, it --

MR. SANGER: But you do. You have to have the specific intent.

THE COURT: No, you can just have specific intent to do the acts.

MR. SANGER: Right. Specific intent to do the act.

MR. SNEDDON: Intent to do the act.

THE COURT: What are you saying?

MR. SNEDDON: It’s the intent to do the act. I think it needs to be given.

THE COURT: I think it needs to be given, too. It was the question of giving it correctly in a way that’s not -- you know, that is helpful and not confusing.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, it seems to me the only logical place to give it would be when you give the other instructions on defining false imprisonment. If you do it anywhere else, I think it could be misleading.

THE COURT: Right. That’s what I think, too. And I think that we should give 3.30 probably twice, at two different places, so that we’re careful as to how it relates to each of those two crimes.

MR. SNEDDON: Exactly.

MR. SANGER: I would agree -- if you're going to do it, I would agree that that's -- that would be the way to do it.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: My only objection is to the second one, which is giving it in conjunction with the --

THE COURT: Well, when we get to that, we'll try to work through that.

So we are now -- we're at 3.30, so we need a 3.30 prepared, but we're not going to give it at this point.

MR. SANGER: And you need two 3.30s prepared based on what the Court just said.

THE COURT: Yeah, but we may tie -- yeah.

MR. SANGER: I'd ask, just while we're on that subject, perhaps the second 3.30 could be worded to the effect that, "You were already instructed that conspiracy requires the specific intent to agree and the specific intent to commit an underlying offense. One of those underlying offenses is a general intent crime," something like that. So it makes sense otherwise.

THE COURT: I think so.

MR. SANGER: It's going to be a sea of words and they're never going to figure it out.

THE COURT: Yeah. I think so. So we can....

The next one we're on here is 4 --

MR. SANGER: 3.31.5. Did you rule on that?

MR. SNEDDON: No. And I have a -- oh, go ahead.

THE COURT: I think what we should do with 3.31 -- 3.31.5 is to say, "In the crimes charged in Counts 1 through 10," and for --

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, could I be heard on that?

THE COURT: Yes. Just a second.

I think it should say, "In the crimes charged in Counts 1 through 10, and in the lesser crimes, there must exist a union or joint operation of act or conduct and a certain mental state in the mind of the perpetrator. Unless the mental state exists, the crime to which it relates is not committed. The mental states required are included in the definitions of the crimes set forth elsewhere.”

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I believe that this instruction is actually directed when there’s a mental state other than specific intent. And I believe that this instruction ought to be limited to those portions of the child molestations that requires the mental state of the arousal part of it. This is like for second-degree murder, where you have malice and some of the other mental state degrees, like if it was knowingly and things like that.

So I think it would -- that the part that you just talked about really is covered by 3.31. And this is when there’s a special mental state that’s different from the specific intent. And the only one I can think of here would be the arousal part of the 288 offense. Now, there could be others, but --

THE COURT: Do you agree with that?

MR. SANGER: No. I was just reading the use note, which is singularly unhelpful. It seems to me that there are other mental states. I think the arousal, that’s a specific intent. So I disagree with Mr. Sneddon, respectfully, that that is a mental state other than specific intent. But there are references to “willful, knowing, malicious.” Those are mental states, I suppose.

THE COURT: Mr. Dunkle, what do you think?

MR. DUNKLE: I agree with Mr. Sanger on that.

MR. SNEDDON: Just for the record, to make it complete, Mr. Franklin disagrees with me and he agrees with Mr. Sanger, so it looks like I’m on the short end of this one.

MR. DUNKLE: It does say, “specific intent for 288, to arouse.” It says “specific intent.”

MR. SNEDDON: Then it shouldn’t be given.

MR. SANGER: I think it should be given. I think it should be given the way the Court indicated.

THE COURT: All right. We’ll give it that way.

I think, though, Mr. Dunkle, the first time you ever spoke in here, you conceded to your boss. That was a bad start right there.

The next one is 4.51. The D.A. doesn’t have that. Let’s see, “Alibi.” We don’t need that.

MR. SANGER: That’s withdrawn.

THE COURT: Do you agree?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes.

THE COURT: 4.71, “Proof need not show exact time of crime.”

MR. SANGER: I think both sides would withdraw that. The prosecutor has withdrawn it, and we would also.

THE COURT: Withdrawn.

4.71.5, “When proof must show specific act or acts within time alleged.”

MR. SANGER: This was a new instruction that was presented this morning by the prosecution. We do not object to it, except for the last sentence. And as to that last sentence, perhaps the Court could just put a Post-it on that, because we do have a special.

THE COURT: That you submitted for the first time this morning.

MR. SANGER: Yes. Yes. I’m not faulting the D.A.

MR. DUNKLE: That one we submitted on the 28th.

MR. SANGER: Wait a second. Mr. Dunkle has something to say.

MR. DUNKLE: I think that one was submitted on the initial proposed jury instructions on the 28th of February.

MR. SANGER: There you go. That’s why he’s here.

So if we could, we would agree with all of it except for the last sentence, and if the Court could just hold up on the last sentence until we determine what we are doing on that subject.

THE COURT: Okay. I do think that this correctly states the law in that regard, though.

MR. SANGER: Well, there’s an issue under Blakely as to whether or not there has to be unanimity on the specific acts, and there is a question as to whether or not it has to be reflected in the verdict forms. So we aren’t there yet and I think we need to discuss that, because I don’t necessarily think everything has to be put -- specified in the verdict forms, but it does have to be dealt with.

THE COURT: Okay. So it may be that this last sentence is just fine, but it just depends on how we handle the Blakely issue.

THE COURT: Okay. The next one is 6.00, “Attempt.”

MR. SANGER: Don’t have an objection to it. However, I think it should be given just before the instruction on the count, whatever count it is that’s the attempt count.

THE COURT: Put it in a different order.

6.01, “Conspiracy and overt act defined.” Looks like the same. You didn’t change it. You just put it double-spaced, in a different format.

MR. SANGER: Look the same to me, but I don’t know. I read it quickly.

THE COURT: It looks the same. Is it the same?

MR. SNEDDON: As far as I know it is.

THE COURT: Okay. I’ll give that one.

And 6.11, any problem with that? Just took out the parentheticals. Left the words in.

MR. FRANKLIN: Added “Count 1.”

THE COURT: Added “Count 1.”

MR. SANGER: Actually, it just said “count” in the other one.

THE COURT: Okay. We'll give that one.

MR. SANGER: Can I -- before you do that -- I'm sorry, I didn't speak quickly enough, I suppose, on the substance.

What "natural and probable" consequences are involved here, other than what is alleged to have been agreed to to start with? I suppose in giving a full definition of conspiracy to the jury, this does it. But this isn't a typical thing where a bank robbery goes wrong and somebody gets shot, and then the question is, is that a natural and probable consequence of agreeing to do a bank robbery? The People's theory is Michael Jackson intended all of this. Obviously we dispute that, but that's their theory.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, that they intended to isolate and control the family, and it's a natural and probable consequence of that that they took them to the Calabasas Inn and held them there against their will. And that would be something that, even though he didn't know about it, the jury could construe as being a natural and probable consequence from the agreement to control and isolate them, or to falsely imprison them.

MR. SANGER: But -- sorry.

MR. SNEDDON: So it should be given.

MR. SANGER: An agreement to control and isolate is not --

MR. SNEDDON: I used the wrong words, Counsel.

MR. SANGER: Yeah, it would have to be the agreement to -- the specific intent to commit these crimes.

THE COURT: Okay. I'll give it as prepared.

6.12.

MR. SANGER: And we would withdraw our request for that, for 6.12, and object.

THE COURT: On what basis do you object?

MR. SANGER: I think it's -- it unduly emphasizes one aspect of the People's case. It's already covered in general terms. I understand it's a CALJIC instruction, and I’ll submit it.

THE COURT: All right. I’ll give 6.12.

THE COURT: 6.13, “Association alone does not prove membership in the conspiracy.”

MR. SANGER: That’s requested by both sides.

THE COURT: I’ll give that. 6.14, “Acquaintance with all co-conspirators not necessary,” I’ll give that.

MR. SANGER: We would withdraw our consent to that and object. I’m speaking a little bit behind here. Your Honor already ruled, but --

THE COURT: 6.16, “When conspirators not liable for act or a declaration of co-conspirator,” I’ll give that. 6.17, “Conspirators not bound by act or declaration of non-conspirator,” I’ll give that. 6.18, “Commission of act in furtherance of a conspiracy does not itself prove membership in the conspiracy,” I’ll give that. 6.19, “Joining conspiracy after its formation,” I’ll give that. Oh, wait. I don’t have that in the new form.

MR. SANGER: That was apparently withdrawn by the prosecution, but I think it’s -- I think it’s appropriate. We requested it.

THE COURT: Okay. I’ll give that. 6.20, “Withdrawal from a conspiracy,” I’ll give that. 6.21. 6.21, “Liability for acts committed after termination of conspiracy,” I’ll give that. 6.22, “Conspiracy” --

MR. SANGER: There’s a revised version.

THE COURT: Yeah, “Case must be considered as to each defendant.”

MR. SANGER: Okay. I have two objections to 6.22. And I do not object to the amendment at the beginning to say “the defendant” rather than “each defendant,” since we only have one person accused of this conspiracy, or accused in the indictment of this conspiracy. So that’s okay.

The two problems I have are, one, this misstates the elements of the offense. And it’s somewhat beyond me. I know this is CALJIC once again, but why it’s being restated and why “conspiracy” is being restated in different terms. It says, “There was a conspiracy to commit one or more of the crimes of…,” and this leaves out the specific intent to agree.

And the second part of that, or the second objection to this, is that the last two sentences violate Blakely, that there has to be a jury determination as to the underlying facts, and it has to be unanimous, beyond a reasonable doubt. And I think we’ve addressed that in a special.

I would take the position that, under Blakely and the U.S. Supreme Court decisions following that, that any instruction that says that you are not required to unanimously agree as to who committed an overt act or which overt act was committed so long as each of you finds beyond a reasonable a doubt that one of the conspirators committed one of the acts, that would violate the unanimity and proof-beyond-a-reasonable-doubt requirements of Blakely.

THE COURT: Do you want to say anything?

MR. SNEDDON: Well, we’re going to take this up, I guess, later, but Blakely doesn’t have anything to do with this case. Blakely is a sentencing allegation finding. This is not a sentencing allegation finding. This is the law of conspiracy that’s been in effect for years and years and years in California. It doesn’t have anything to do with Blakely.

MR. SANGER: It obviously does. I mean, Blakely doesn’t just talk about sentencing. And the cases that have construed Blakely since it came down make it clear that it applies to anything that has to do with imposing criminal liability on a defendant.

THE COURT: Okay. I’ll accept it as it is at this point. We’ll see if it changes as we discuss the others. But I have read the others.

6.23 --

MR. FRANKLIN: Judge, our version on 6.22, I see that I, down -- in the fourth line down on the second paragraph, I spelled “false imprisonment” and left off the “ment,” if that could be noted.

MR. SANGER: Where?

MR. FRANKLIN: On 6.22, the fourth line down in the second paragraph, where it lists the crime. “Extortion, child abduction, and false” -- it says “false imprison.”

THE COURT: Not mine.

MR. SANGER: Not on mine.

MR. FRANKLIN: Then I’ve got an earlier version and I do apologize.

THE COURT: You’ve got -- you’ve got an erratic computer.

6.23.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Now we have -- this is the brand-new one.

THE COURT: Ahh, yes. Now I need to put this in and take this out.

Is there any problem with that that you see, Mr. Sanger?

MR. SANGER: I haven’t had a chance to really look at it. This was more recent, so could I have just a moment, please?

The only thing I would object to so far, and I’m up to Overt Act No. 9, is that they’ve capitalized all of the names of the people they chose to capitalize and not capitalized the other people. And I looked up and Your Honor was gone, and I’m glad to see you’ve returned.

THE COURT: I’ve got all this trash I was throwing on the floor. I was taking an opportunity --

MR. SANGER: I thought it was something I said. All of a sudden you were gone.

In other words, they capitalize Ronald Konitzer, Dieter Weizner. They capitalize Frank Tyson and Marc Schaffel, Vinnie Amen, but they don’t capitalize Janet Arvizo or anybody else ‘s name.

MR. FRANKLIN: Judge, there was a reason.

This language was simply copied from the language of the indictment itself. And it was thought appropriate in the indictment to capitalize the names of -- the person's name as conspirators, or co-conspirators.

MR. SANGER: That doesn't mean it's right in a jury instruction. Seems to me you capitalize everybody's names or you don't capitalize anybody's names. This is an instruction by the Court. And to make it look like the Court is emphasizing one group of people over another I think would be inappropriate. And I'm sure, as Mr. Franklin mentioned, due to whatever he called it, the modern wonders of the computer, you can search these names and you can change them fairly instantaneously.

THE COURT: Well, since we are going to give all the jurors copies of it, I think they should be the same.

MR. FRANKLIN: I'll do that.

THE COURT: Just let me finish picking up this paper.

Okay. The next one is 6.24.

MR. SANGER: I'm sorry, I'm still reading this instruction. Can I have just another minute?

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Maybe one way to do this, I was just conferring with Mr. Dunkle on this, Overt Acts 19, 21 and 22, let's just stick with those three for the moment, we would renew our 1118.1 motion, I think is procedurally the way to get to it.

And we could renew our 1118.1 motion as to all matters, but just specifically looking at those overt acts, based on the evidence in this case, they don't seem to have anything to do with the alleged conspiracy. They may or may not have something to do with the alleged other acts, and so under whatever appropriate code section, 1118.1 or some other code section or some other procedure, we would move to strike those from the jury instructions and to have the Court, as a matter of law, finding that those are not relevant to the conspiracy count.

THE COURT: I'm not really willing to entertain such a motion while we're trying to do jury instructions. It's untimely, and it's not -- doesn't really solve problems. It just creates them, so --

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: But have you read the rest of the --

MR. SANGER: I was going to say, based on the Court's ruling on that, other than correcting the font or the caps, the lower case, whatever we're doing, I don't have any further objection to 6.23.

THE COURT: Okay. So there's no misunderstanding, I think what you should do is leave the "Michael Joe Jackson" in all caps, and then put the rest of the names that are involved other than Mr. Jackson's in lower cap, you know, with the proper capitalization.

MR. SANGER: Could I be heard on that? There's no other instruction where "Michael Joe Jackson" is in all caps. This is a jury instruction. I think it should just be regular lower case.

THE COURT: No, I think it puts the right emphasis on each of the allegations, so you understand, when you read the allegation, it's "Michael Joe Jackson did this," and "Michael Joe Jackson..." I don't think it's at all harmful to you as you think.

The 6.24. Okay. No objection? I'll give that.

MR. SANGER: I'm just looking at it quickly here in the book. Just one more second, please. All right. Thank you.

THE COURT: 6.25.

MR. SANGER: The revised version. Subject to the verdict forms, working that out, if that's the way the Court ultimately rules the verdict form should look, then this will be acceptable.

THE COURT: Okay. And then the next one, let's see, I have in the old stack is 6.26.

MR. FRANKLIN: That's the -- essentially it's a guide for the jury verdict form.
THE COURT: So we don't need that.
MR. FRANKLIN: No.
THE COURT: And then 9.60, "False imprisonment."
MR. SANGER: And this is the one general intent underlying offense.
THE COURT: Yes. And the question, I guess, is the 9.60 -- CALJIC 9.60 is what? Is it a felony that they're reporting?
MR. SNEDDON: Yes.
MR. SANGER: False imprisonment, 236.
MR. SNEDDON: The misdemeanor instruction for false imprisonment is back in the 10.00 series, I believe.
THE COURT: 16.00.
MR. SNEDDON: Or 16.00 series, yeah. This is the felony one, which is the appropriate one.
THE COURT: And do you agree with that?
MR. SANGER: That the felony instruction should be given rather than the misdemeanor? Yes.
THE COURT: You said "yes"?
MR. SANGER: Yes, sir. I was just clarifying the question, but --
THE COURT: Okay. Have you looked at this one, 9.60? Is that okay?
MR. SANGER: Yes, that seems to be the 9.60 from the book.

THE COURT: Okay.
MR. SANGER: And I hear Mr. Franklin saying something. Is it not?
MR. FRANKLIN: There's only an introductory phrase indicating that he is accused of that in the conspiracy count. Otherwise, it's from the book.
THE COURT: Where it says, "Defendant is accused in Count 1"?
MR. FRANKLIN: Yes.
THE COURT: That's the introductory phrase?

MR. FRANKLIN: “Of having conspired to commit.”

MR. SANGER: That’s fine.

THE COURT: And then the next one is 9.70.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, can we hold on for a second, raise an issue with the Court that just occurred to me?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: I’m wondering if we need to give -- probably not, but I just want to bring it up. Inasmuch as this is not a lesser-included, it doesn’t seem like we need to give the misdemeanor false imprisonment instruction, because -- although conspiring to commit a misdemeanor is a felony.

THE COURT: Right.

MR. SNEDDON: So maybe it needs to be stated in the alternative. Misdemeanor is no force or violence. In other words, the -- as alleged in the indictment, it’s alleged as a felony. I think it’s pretty clear.

THE COURT: Well, it says “a felony” in the indictment.

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: But the language is not felony language in the indictment.

MR. SNEDDON: Oh.

THE COURT: So it’s not pretty clear.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. I think the working assumption has been, from both sides, that it was a felony. But I understand what the Court’s saying, and it occurs to me that perhaps they need to be instructed under both theories and --

MR. SANGER: Well, the indictment is a felony and the language of “by violence or menace” is the language of the felony. I mean, whether you say it’s a felony or you say why it’s a felony, he was indicted for --

THE COURT: A felony.

MR. SANGER: -- conspiracy to commit this felony. I don’t think that --

THE COURT: You just think the language of the felony would be sufficient.

MR. SANGER: Yes, I think it would be probably required, but it would certainly be sufficient.

THE COURT: Well, let's see. A misdemeanor is not a necessarily-included of the felony, so I guess we'll go with the felony instruction.

That being the case, then that language is okay.

And then 9.70 is "Child abduction."

MR. SANGER: They've changed 9.70 to put in an introductory paragraph in the latest version, and I think that's probably a good addition.

THE COURT: All right.

9.72?

MR. SANGER: That appears to be a correct statement directly from CALJIC. And the bracketed material that was removed is appropriately removed.

THE COURT: That they took out "right to custody" and "abduct." "Abandonment," I mean.

MR. SANGER: That's correct.

THE COURT: And that's good. You agree with that?

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: Okay.

And then 9.73? Okay. I'll give that.

MR. SANGER: That is according to CALJIC, 9.73. I withdraw any consent to it if we did, and I would object to it on the grounds that it's misleading. And it's misleading because it doesn't say it's not a defense if the other elements are met.

THE COURT: Okay. I'll give that.

10.41, "Lewd act with a child under 14."

That looks like it's the same, doesn't it? You didn't change that, Mr. Franklin?

MR. FRANKLIN: No, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: Just removed the brackets.

THE COURT: Okay. I'll give that.

10.60 -- did you take out 10.43 for some reason?

MR. SANGER: They withdrew .43 and .44.

THE COURT: So they're withdrawn.

MR. SNEDDON: May I have a second, Your Honor?

Right, those don't apply to the facts of our case. I'm sorry. Those don't apply to the facts of our case.

THE COURT: 10.43 and 10.44 are withdrawn.

10.60, "Sexual crimes - Corroboration not necessary," I'll give that.

10 --

MR. SANGER: Can I indicate that we withdraw -- I'm sorry to be just a step behind you, but it's hard to keep up. I'm trying to compare both of these.

On 10.60, we would withdraw our request and object to that.

THE COURT: 10.61, I don't have that. Did I have that?

MR. SANGER: It was withdrawn by the prosecution in the latest set.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: And we would object to it.

THE COURT: So I won't give that.

MR. SNEDDON: Yeah, I don't think it applies.

THE COURT: 10.64, "Cautionary instruction - Child abuse/rape trauma syndrome," I'll give that.

MR. FRANKLIN: Your Honor, we don't remove the "rape trauma syndrome" language in the heading. The Court might want to consider doing that.

THE COURT: All right. Would you do that?

MR. SANGER: And we do object -- I'm just trying to keep track, Your Honor, I'm sorry, here. We would -- no, never mind. We'll submit it.

THE COURT: Okay. I'll give that.

And it's in the heading, just what they're talking about.

MR. BEEBE: All right.

THE COURT: 10. -- or 14.70, "Extortion."

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I think the Court needs to know ahead of time that the last paragraph of that instruction was added. It's language that was similar to an instruction given to the grand jury defining what a thing of value is, but that is not part of the standard instruction in 14.70.

MR. FRANKLIN: Your Honor, I believe that part of the grand jury record includes not only that instruction, but also the authority that we had mustered for that particular language. If that's not a part of it or not available to you, I can make that available to you promptly.

MR. SANGER: Well, we'd object to the addition of the paragraph. As I'm reading it here --

THE COURT: Well, let's do this: I'll give 14.70 on -- No. 2, "In order to prove this crime, the following elements must be proved: One, a person obtained property from the alleged victim. And two, the property" -- let's put "the thing of value" or "something of value." Let's put "something of value" there. The "something of value" -- well, let's see. "A person obtained something of value from the alleged victim." And then the second one, "The something of value was obtained with the consent of the alleged victim." And then the final sentence, No. 4, "Victim to consent to the giving up of his or her thing of value."

Then if you want to submit a special on that other issue, with authorities attached, we're going to take a break now, and I'll give you ten minutes to go do that. But I won't put it in as part of this instruction. Okay?

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Okay. 16 point -- or 10.64, I think we agreed to give that one, right?

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: I changed it. Yeah, I just changed it, and then there was going to be a possible addition.

MR. SANGER: I'm sorry, I'm completely lost.

We’re on 14.70, and you went back to 10-something.

THE COURT: No, I misspoke, and then I said 14.70.

MR. SANGER: I’m sorry, I didn’t hear you.

THE COURT: I did go -- I mis...
All right. 14.71, I’ll give that.

MR. SANGER: That’s the new one?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: The one line. The one sentence.

THE COURT: Yes. I’m going by his new ones as best I can.
14.72, “Unlawful injury,” I’ll give that.
And now I have 14.73.

MR. SANGER: Submit it.

THE COURT: Which I didn’t have before, I guess.

MR. SANGER: We did.

THE COURT: Did you?

MR. SANGER: But the new one looks appropriate.

THE COURT: Is it okay?

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: All right. And then I have 14.74.

MR. SANGER: I can see there’s a typo. There’s a number of brackets eliminated and so forth. We need a minute to figure that out, if we could, please.

THE COURT: Yeah. “...threatened ora third person”?

MR. SANGER: “Ora.”

THE COURT: “Ora.”

MR. SANGER: And I guess the number “1” should be removed, since --

THE COURT: Yeah. So take out the number “1” and the -- put a space in, “...or a third person.” And then it appears to be all right. I’ll give that with those corrections.
16.135?

MR. SNEDDON: That’s withdrawn.

THE COURT: Withdrawn.

17.02.

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: That's withdrawn? Or that's the new one. There was a 17.03.

MR. SANGER: Well, 17.02 was not requested originally, but --

THE COURT: Right.

MR. SANGER: -- but it is now.

MR. SNEDDON: It needs to be given.

MR. SANGER: It is now and it should be given, right.

THE COURT: Okay. And 17.03 should not be given, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Correct.

MR. SANGER: I believe that's true, yes.

THE COURT: So that's withdrawn.

MR. SANGER: 17.10, do we have a -- 17.10 was submitted originally and then it's been withdrawn.

THE COURT: Is that correct?

MR. SNEDDON: It should be given, though.

MR. SANGER: But I think it should be given, and it should be tailored to meet the particular lesser.

THE COURT: Okay. What we'll put on that, 17.10, is - and this has to be filled out - "If you are not satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty of the crime charged, you may nevertheless convict him of any lesser crime if you are convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty of the lesser crime."

MR. SANGER: It should say "a" lesser crime. But it's not a big deal. Oops.

THE COURT: "The crime of furnishing alcohol to a minor is lesser to that of administering an intoxicating agent to a minor charged in Counts 7 through 10."

And then down at the bottom, we'll reiterate the Counts 7 through 10.

The next one is --

MR. SANGER: And we agree to that, without waiving the objection to the lesser, but we agree that that’s otherwise correct.

THE COURT: 17.12, that hasn’t been filled in. Does that have to be given now?

Mr. Sneddon, does 17.12 have to be given now?

MR. SNEDDON: I think it does, Your Honor. And I do not believe, in the packet of the verdict forms, there was a lesser-included, so I’ll have to do that.

THE COURT: Okay. Do you want to get somebody working on that?

MR. SNEDDON: Well, as soon as Mr. Franklin comes back from the other thing, I’ll send him up to start on that one.

THE COURT: Okay. And then there’s 17.24.1. 17.24.1 is the enhancement allegation, substantial sexual conduct.

MR. SANGER: That’s under 1203.066 --

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: -- I take it.

THE COURT: I think that’s the proper -- but there will be a finding included in the form for that.

Then 17.30, “Jury not to take a cue from the judge,” we’ll give that.

17.31, “All instructions not necessarily applicable,” we’ll give that.

17.32 --

MR. SANGER: That should not be given. I guess both sides thought Your Honor was going to be more vociferous.

THE COURT: Don’t you think this would be a good case for me to --

MR. SANGER: Maybe.

THE COURT: All right. I’ll reject that.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, you realize we’re all speaking in code to the extent that nobody in the court knows what we’re talking about.

THE COURT: Oh, yes. The instruction 17.32 is an instruction that the judge may comment on the evidence, which in England is done regularly by judges, and in the United States is not done very often by judges. In fact, in my career I only had one judge do that, and he was reversed for doing it. So it’s not something I would have ever done or intend to do this time.

MR. SANGER: I did remark, Your Honor, that if we had televised today’s proceedings, we could have deterred an entire generation of kids from going to law school.

THE COURT: Okay. And 17.31, “All instructions” -- oh, 17. -- 17.31, “All instructions not necessarily applicable.”

MR. SANGER: That was already in there.

THE COURT: Okay. And then 17.40.

MR. SANGER: 17.40.

Oh, wait, 17.32 we did do, which is --

MR. SANGER: That’s the one you’re not giving.

THE COURT: When the judge does not comment on the evidence. And then --

MR. SANGER: I’m sorry, Your Honor, maybe I’m losing it, here.

THE COURT: They didn’t put it in their new --

MR. SNEDDON: Which one, Judge?

MR. SANGER: .30 you gave. .31 you gave. .32 you’re not giving, I believe.

THE COURT: No. .31 I’m giving.

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: 17.32 is -- I have not --

MR. SANGER: This is the one you’re not giving.

THE COURT: All right. You’re right.

17.40. There is one that I did that says I am not --

MR. SANGER: That’s .30.

THE COURT: That’s .30. Okay.

17.40 --

MR. SANGER: I think that’s correct.

THE COURT: -- I’m giving. 17.41 I’m giving. 17.42 I’m giving. 17.43 I’m giving.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, we didn’t know -- on the second paragraph there, on 17.45, we didn’t know exactly what format the Court was going to be giving these in, but that may be that that should be deleted, because it looks like the Court’s going to be giving clean copies to all the jurors.

MR. SANGER: Well, actually, the whole thing should be changed, given the Court’s proposed course of action.

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: I think we should say the jurors will each be given their own copy of the jury instructions which they may mark on if they wish. There will be one official copy of the jury instructions which shall not be defaced in any way. That’s what you have to tell them, I think.

THE COURT: Yeah, I think you’re right. This we should give at the beginning of the instructions, though, instead of the end.

MR. SANGER: Yes, that’s a good idea.

THE COURT: Let’s come back. We’ll modify that a little bit.

And 17.47, “Admonition against disclosure of jury balloting.”

Are they going to receive a separate verdict form on each of the crimes? I guess. So I’ll give 17.49.

And 17.50 I’ll give, “Concluding instruction on selecting a jury foreperson.”

MR. SANGER: 17.49, I didn’t see -- where’s .49? Let me just see, here.

I’m sorry to go backwards, Your Honor, but on 17.49, the one currently submitted by the prosecution does not take into account the lesser-included, and I think that language has to be put back in there.

THE COURT: I think it’s all right, though, as long as the return of the -- the one we still have to have, the partial verdict form instruction, is complete.

MR. SANGER: Maybe it’s because it’s the end of the day, but does that cover --

MR. SNEDDON: I think this needs to be given, because what will happen is if, on the lesser part, if you don’t give it, they may sign it thinking that if they’ve convicted on the larger, they’re supposed to sign on the smaller also, and it’s a matter of clarification for them in terms of what their role is in terms of the lesser and the larger.

THE COURT: Do you mean -- you’re talking about 17 --

MR. SNEDDON: .49. I thought that’s what Mr. Sanger was talking about.

MR. SANGER: Yeah, 17.49.

THE COURT: He just wondered if there should be a statement of the lesser-included in that paragraph. It says, “You’ve been charged with one count of conspiracy, four counts of lewd act upon a child, one count of attempted lewd act and four counts of administering an intoxicating agent.”

MR. SNEDDON: Well, I understood that he was also suggesting that the second larger paragraph be reinserted, because it was not in there.

THE COURT: Oh. I don’t have that.

MR. SNEDDON: No, sir. That’s because we didn’t envision lessers at the point in time.

THE COURT: So you think it should go in now?

MR. SNEDDON: I do, Your Honor. I think that’s what counsel was talking about, and I do agree with him. The language is, “Since a lesser offense is included in the greater, you are instructed that if you find the defendant guilty of the greater offense, you should not complete the verdicts on the corresponding lesser offense.”

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SNEDDON: “And those should be returned to the Court unsigned.” I think that’s important. Otherwise, they may misconstrue the way the verdicts operate.

And I'm not suggesting the last paragraph be left out. I'm just trying to direct them where --

MR. SANGER: The last paragraph would be more beneficial to the defendant, so there's one for each side there, and both should be in.

MR. SNEDDON: I agree. I just wasn't going to read the whole thing.

THE COURT: So now you want us to put in the entire instruction as it appears in the book?

MR. SANGER: I think if we have a lesser, I think you should do that. That's what he's saying.

THE COURT: "Separation admonition."

"The admonition to alternate jurors" I'll give, 17.53.

MR. SANGER: You're way ahead. You said 17.50?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: That's where I was, 17.50. Did you go beyond that, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes. 17.52.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: And 17.53. And then there's this post-verdict admonition, which I won't give to them in their package now.

MR. SANGER: Right.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, this is sort of a new CALJIC, CALJIC 17.54. I didn't request it. I just happened to notice it, but the basics of it is that people not take cell phones into the jury deliberation room.

THE COURT: They're not allowed to bring in cell phones now.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. This is a new instruction. I mean, I just didn't know whether -- it looks like the problem's taken care of. We don't need to give it.

THE COURT: What number is it?

MR. SNEDDON: 17.54. And they cite a case, but --

MR. SANGER: It replaced the old one that had to do with bringing Ouija boards in.

I don't think it's mandatory. In fact, it says if you're going to do it, you should do it as part of the preinstruction back in the beginning of the case under 0.50. But if the court staff and the bailiffs are not allowing the jurors to have cell phones to start with I think saves the problem. Whatever the Court wants to do.

THE COURT: That's the case, isn't it, Leslie?

THE BAILIFF: It is. They do not have cell phones.

THE COURT: I should give 17.47, too. Did I give that? Yeah, I did. Okay. CALJIC 16.0.10 -- .010?

MR. SNEDDON: We withdrew that.

THE COURT: Well, but where we were -- where are we going to put it in the --

MR. SNEDDON: Oh, is that the B&P one?

THE COURT: I read it earlier.

MR. SNEDDON: Is that the B&P one, Your Honor?

MR. SANGER: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Oh, I'm sorry. I was thinking of another one.

THE COURT: I read to you what I would do, and then we needed the -- that should go, what, right next to the other charges? What number are they?

MR. SNEDDON: Well, you could put it right after your instruction on the lesser-included offense.

MR. SANGER: Do you mention --

THE COURT: Well, we had -- there's 222, which is a special also.

MR. SANGER: Yeah, I'm not seeing 222. That's the problem.

THE COURT: That's where it goes. Did you see it? Did you not get it?

MR. SANGER: I can't say I didn't. I cannot say I did not get it, but I do not have it.

THE COURT: It was in your original package, but it's not in your new package, Mr. Sneddon.

MR. SNEDDON: I’m sorry, Your Honor, what section is that?

THE COURT: 222, which is the Penal Code Section 222 special, “...administers to another any intoxicating agent with intent to...,” and that’s the one that this lesser should be with.

I’m going to put it right after -- both of those right after the extortion, but I don’t understand. Your instruction has “Elements,” and then nothing after that. Have you seen it?

Do you both want to approach?

MR. SANGER: Yes.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: Tracy?

And then the furnishing, that goes behind it.

MR. SANGER: In between those two, would you not put 17.10?

THE COURT: Put what?

MR. SANGER: 17.10, in between the --

THE COURT: Do you mean 17.12?

MR. SANGER: No, 17.10.

THE COURT: Lesser-included. Okay.

MR. SANGER: Now, did that 222 start out with, “In the crimes charged in Counts 7 to 10”?

THE COURT: No, it says, “Any person who administers to another any” --

MR. SANGER: I think it should start out -- because that was the typical introductory paragraph. Just a paragraph that says, “In the crimes charged....” How does it start out in the other ones? Not the conspiracy ones, but the others?

THE COURT: No, it doesn’t.

MR. SANGER: Well, for instance, 10.41, “The defendant’s accused in Counts so and so” --

THE COURT: 9.70 just says, “Defendant is accused in Count 1 of....” Is that what you’re talking about?

MR. SANGER: Yeah. So we need to say, “The defendant is accused in Counts 7 through 10 of” --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: -- whatever it’s called.

THE COURT: Did you get that?

Look at the extortion one, or the child abduction one, and you’ll get the opening sentence to it.

MR. SANGER: Not quite, because that says “conspiracy to commit,” I think.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: So it should just be “the crime of.” I was looking at 10.41 as being a good example. “The defendant’s accused in Counts 2, 3, 4 and 5.” Here it should be, “The defendant’s accused in Counts 7, 8, 9 and 10.”

THE COURT: Now, I think what we have left are the specials; is that right?

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir. And then also -- those also may or may not have an impact on a few of the instructions we tabbed.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: We have Special No. 1.

MR. SNEDDON: Which ones?

MR. SANGER: Those are your original instructions, and I think the Court considered that way back when, when the thing was played.

THE COURT: And we did a -- do you have the transcript, Tracy or Jed, of the instruction I actually gave when it was played?

MR. BEEBE: Yes.

THE COURT: I had it this morning. Because we took part of yours and part of the district attorney’s at that time.

MR. SANGER: When the Court’s ready, I would like to be heard briefly on this theory that I think Your Honor was rejecting, but we --

THE COURT: Wait till we get to it. We haven’t done it. I was just indicating my feelings.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: Okay. On Special Jury Instruction No. 1, I’m willing to give that instruction, without the middle paragraph, in this form: “The video of ‘Living with Michael Jackson’ is not offered for the truth of anything said or shown in the program, with the exception of certain identified passages. You will receive additional instructions with regard to those identified passages. The rest of the contents of the video is hearsay and cannot be considered by you to prove anything other than the fact that the program aired in February of 2003 and its likely impact on Mr. Jackson’s state of mind.”

And then skip the middle paragraph, and then, “You should not be biased, prejudiced or influenced in any way by the content of the video or by its commercial packaging. Except for the limited specific statements that the Court will instruct you” -- “Except for the limited specific statements that the Court will instruct you may be considered, the remainder of the program should only be considered for the fact that it aired and its impact on Mr. Jackson.”

MR. SANGER: Can we say “its impact, if any,” on Mr. Jackson?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, may I make a comment?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: I thought the additional circumstantial basis for the admission of it was to show the motive for the crime, of the conspiracy. And that goes a little bit beyond merely Mr. Jackson’s -- any impact, if any, on Mr. Jackson’s state of mind. It goes to the actual motive for forming or need to form the conspiracy. So maybe something like “any relevance it may provide, if any, on the motive for the conspiracy,” or something like that.

MR. SANGER: Well, one way to accommodate it, just to try to accommodate it at the end of the day here, you could say, “its impact, if any, on Mr. Jackson or on other individuals mentioned in the course of the trial.”

But then if you say that, then we should say, “It is up to you to determine what significance, if any, to place on this evidence.”

THE COURT: Isn’t there somewhere else in the instructions that we discussed the motive as --

MR. SNEDDON: Yeah, there’s a general instruction on motive, which is, I think, 2.51, but you’re actually -- in this one, you’re being very specific about this piece of evidence and what the limited purpose of it is.

THE COURT: When I say “its likely impact on Mr. Jackson’s state of mind,” aren’t we saying that then you can argue that the impact is motive? I mean, should I have “motive” in the instruction if I’m saying that it was introduced to show the impact on him?

MR. SNEDDON: I just didn’t want to get in the position, Your Honor, of having someone stand up and make an argument and start talking about motive in this connection and then saying, you know, it’s really for his state of mind in terms of whether he was angry or upset about the production.

THE COURT: No, I think that’s one of the states of mind. That’s what we’re talking about is in his state of mind of whether or not that was a motive to do certain things that you allege he did based on that video.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, I’m comfortable with what the Court’s saying as long as everybody understands that. I just didn’t want to have to argue an objection on that, because I think that was one of the underlying reasons.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: All right. I under -- I think that -- I think that’s sufficient and it can be argued.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Do you want to have our office retype this?

THE COURT: No, I think we’ll do it. (To Mr. Beebe) Do you have a problem?

MR. BEEBE: We’re not clear what the language is now.

THE COURT: It’s exactly what’s here except where I wrote in “if any” in red.

MS. SPLITGERBER: Okay.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, when you say “exactly what’s here,” that’s different from the defense instruction, correct?

THE COURT: Right. It’s what I just read.

MR. SNEDDON: Yeah. Thank you.

THE COURT: Now, the second instruction was --

MR. SANGER: It might be helpful to look at proposed Instruction No. 5 because I think that -- Special Instruction No. 5 would follow this instruction.

THE COURT: Well, okay. I’m just going to reject Special Instruction No. 2. So I’m giving No. 1. as modified. Reject 2. Refuse 2.

And then we go to the ones you filed this morning. No. 3, I’ll give No. 3.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, may I be heard on that?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I think that’s a misstatement of the law. And I’ll tell you -- first of all, I object to the use of the word “government.” Second of all -- I mean, I don’t see one CALJIC instruction that uses the word “government” anywhere in it.

But second of all, I don’t believe that it’s the law that the jury necessarily has to agree to the particular set of facts that make up the charges. For instance, let me just give you an example. If all the jurors agree that Mr. Jackson placed his hands inside of the child’s pants, it’s not necessary for the jury to agree that he had underpants on at that time or he had pajamas on at that time, or he had a shirt on at that time or he didn’t have a shirt on at that time, or that Mr. Jackson had his socks on at that time or he didn’t have his socks on at that time.

And I think that’s what’s misleading about this, and that’s what happens when you stray from the standard instructions, and this is a very misleading instruction.

MR. SANGER: Well, nothing happens if you stray from the standard instructions if they don’t cover the law. If they don’t cover the law it’s reversible, so we have to do something in light of Blakely and Aprendi and the cases after it that there has to be unanimity, particularly when the charges are alleged in such a broad fashion. So the prosecution has to, in essence, opt for a set of facts.

I would agree with Mr. Sneddon, of course, it doesn’t, you know, matter -- the details don’t matter as to whether or not the jury agrees on the set of facts that make up the elements. But you can’t have one -- you know, six jurors agreeing to one occurrence, and another six jurors agreeing to another occurrence, and particularly in a case like this where you’ve had a lot of descriptions. You haven’t had consistent descriptions for these various offenses. You can’t have, say, one set of jurors saying, “Well, let’s see, I believe that Star’s story was correct and I don’t believe Gavin’s,” and the other saying the other way around. Either it’s -- so we have to accommodate that somehow.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, I think the standard instruction does that. It tells them they have to deliberate on each -- each count separately and arrive at a decision on each count separately.

MR. SANGER: It says, “...particular set of facts as alleged in a particular count,” so, I mean, that is saying it’s the facts alleged in the count.

THE COURT: Let me -- no one say anything. We’re off the record.

MR. SNEDDON: Oh, okay.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar between the Court and the court reporter.)

THE COURT: Where’s a -- Commander? If I take a ten-minute break and go for another half hour after that, what’s it going to do to you?

COMMANDER MEYER: No problem.

THE COURT: We can do it?

Okay. I just want to take ten minutes. And this is a pretty serious part where we are, the last six instructions. I don't want to rush them, and the court reporter's consented to work. She's the one that's the most affected by this, next to security. So let's take ten, and a short break, and then we'll come back and deal with the -- and maybe you'll have your things by then.

MR. SNEDDON: I've got the verdicts already. I'll give them to you.

THE COURT: And the changed instructions?

MR. SNEDDON: Jerry's working on it.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: What I'm feeling is I can't really finish the instructions the way I want to do it, and I don't like working under the pressure of worrying about other people here and myself. I'm not satisfied with any of the specials proffered by the defense. But I feel that we have not -- none of us have put together a good jury instruction on the tapes, all of the tapes.

We have four tapes that they have watched, and there's some very limited uses that each of those tapes can be used for, and there's no instruction here that adequately guards against misuse. So I'm not -- I'm not going to proceed. I'm not going to go all this distance and then try to rush, in half an hour, to get something done that needs to be done.

MR. SANGER: Can I add something to the Court's concern?

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: And I hate to be the bearer of these tidings. We were looking at the lesser-included, which we objected to. And since we objected, I suppose I could just leave it on the record like that, but as I was talking to Mr. Dunkle, he had the added observation that actually 222 doesn't have the same elements, because 222 doesn't require a minor.

And remembering case law on lessers, where it has to be exactly the same elements, minus one or two, it's -- that's an issue. And then furnishing is not the same as administering.

So I want to give the Court a fair opportunity on that. I didn't want to not mention it, but if we are going to have to change that, that's something that's going to be more than a two-minute change to go back.

THE COURT: Yeah. Well, and I haven't also got to review the materials that you typed in a hurry and brought down, and the verdict forms, and since I'm putting packages together for the whole jury, I don't want to be doing it at the last minute.

I think what I should do is continue the jury instruction conference until tomorrow morning at our regular time. Then the question becomes, when do I have the jury come back in? And I could have them come in at noon, at our normal noon recess. That would give me an hour. If I instructed from, you know, around 10:00 to 12:00 till -- reading these instructions is probably going to take over an hour. So that would put me at one o'clock or so.

And then that would start Mr. Sneddon with his argument. Or I could have you come back in and do your argument on Thursday morning. But it seems to me even bringing the jury in just to instruct them is worth it, considering trying to get the case out by Friday, late Friday, that it would be a wise thing for me to at least instruct tomorrow.

MR. SANGER: That seems like a good idea, and it does seem that there's probably nothing wrong with the jury just getting the instructions on the law one day. It has --

THE COURT: It's not a very good use of time, but considering that we want to do this right and not be rushed into decisions that are not good ones, I think that's what we'll do.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, my preference would be to have us not start argument after you give the jury instructions tomorrow, and I guess part of that still has to do with what -- whether there is or is not any time limitations that might drive that decision, too, which we have not decided, and which we really need to come to grips on, but I don't think we need to keep all the staff here to do that.

THE COURT: No.

Well, we can -- I think what we'll do is recess and let everyone go. I'll have one attorney from each side come back and we'll discuss time limitations on your argument, and then I'll work on the rest of these instructions. And we'll start at 8:30 tomorrow morning.

MR. SANGER: Just before you break, on the issue of the -- what comes in for the truth of the matter on the tapes --

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: -- could I just be heard on that very briefly? And I know it's keeping staff. I'm sorry.

But we did try to go through and outline what would be relevant. The problem with doing that is that even if we were to agree - or it doesn't matter if we don't agree, the Court decides - then the Court has to sit there and read that to the jury, which then has the effect of unduly emphasizing both sides. I mean, it's -- you know, you're reading specific statements of Mr. Jackson either from the Bashir tape or from the outtakes.

And that's why -- it was not out of laziness. It was after reflecting on it, that if you can do it generically, what ultimately in this case would be the harm? I mean, there's very limited statements in the Bashir tape that pertain to Mr. Jackson's relationship with children, which is what the prosecution wants to bring in, and it has to be statements of Mr. Jackson and relating to children, and there are pretty much identifying statements in the outtakes.

I don’t think there’s a big danger in doing it that way, and what it really avoids is the Court, you know, having to read from both tapes and unduly emphasizing the text. So I just wanted the Court to understand that was our theory behind it.

Now, if the Court wanted to have the parts that we believe should be read by the Court from the outtakes, we could --

THE COURT: I never asked to have the material given to me so that I could read it to anybody.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: It never was my intent. It was so that I could see what the District Attorney was going to argue were admissions so that I would have a sense of what I could allow you to put in, to show the complete context of those statements, which is what you’re -- I think you’re allowed to do, but I never thought you were lazy either. I thought you were -- you thought it over and you thought, “Well, it would be good if everything he ever said about children could be taken for the truth of the matter asserted,” and I just didn’t think that was a good way to approach it.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge -- well, I do need to make a statement about that. The reason I think it’s very important for us to have some agreement and consensus on what statements do constitute the admissions part is that so, during the course of the arguments, if the defense attempts to use something for the truth of the matter, there is some guidelines as to what it is the Court recognizes is hearsay and not hearsay.

So there’s another reason for us -- for you to decide that, not to read to the jury, but that both sides know what the boundaries are, so --

THE COURT: I agree.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Thank you.

THE COURT: There’s a preliminary determination that is not binding on the jury, because ultimately whether something is an admission or not is up to them.

MR. SNEDDON: Correct.

THE COURT: But the Court has the duty of making a preliminary look at the material and not allow them to be considering admissions that aren't admissions.

So then we'll see -- well, first of all, two of you come back on the time issue, and other than that, we're through for the day.

THE BAILIFF: 12:00 for the jury.

THE COURT: That's what time they're in the courtroom, not when they're supposed to get there. So having them here at 11:30 might be the right time to have them.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:55 p.m.)

910	Portions of Bashir documentary that the Court found to be admissible as admissions	12624	12624

Santa Maria, California
Wednesday, June 1, 2005
8:40 a.m.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning.

MR. SANGER: Good morning, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: Good morning.

THE COURT: Let's see, would you -- would counsel approach, here?

I'll just give you a couple minutes to read the instructions I just handed you.

Have you had time to read those?

MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Sneddon?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes.

THE COURT: Well, I'm sure glad we stopped yesterday. That was exhausting. It's amazing how things look different the next morning, huh?

Okay. Number one, I'm going to take some items up that are hanging loose here. Number one is that the special instruction requested by the District Attorney re the definition of "property" as being "something of value," I'm going to give that instruction.

For your purposes, I'm placing the instruction in the package to the jurors following CALJIC 14.70.

Number two --

MR. SANGER: And, Your Honor, just so the record is clear, I think we objected to this yesterday, but we definitely object to it.

THE COURT: Okay. The record's clear. You definitely object to it.

MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you.

THE COURT: Number two, D.A.'s proposed CALJIC 3.30 re general criminal intent, it appears that the D.A.'s proposed 3.30 is adequate, furnishing alcoholic beverage as a lesser-included. I'm going to give that and place it after 16.010. That's in the package I -- the next one is in the package that I gave you on false imprisonment.

MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor. I don't think we got the 3.30 for furnishing, the one you just referred to. We do have the one on false imprisonment. Maybe I'm wrong on that.

THE COURT: It came down -- the District Attorney -- I had ordered them to prepare it and bring it to my office. And they did. I assumed they would give you a copy of it.

Did you give them a copy of it?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I can't tell you that, because Mr. Franklin did all that, and when he left, he went directly back to Santa Barbara. So I guess if they didn't get it, I would assume that he did not do that.

THE COURT: Well, he gave me three or four instructions yesterday afternoon.

MR. SNEDDON: I'm -- I know he did, because he was called back. And -- but I was not in communication with Mr. Franklin after that. And I know he went back to Santa Barbara.

THE COURT: Why isn't he here today?

MR. SNEDDON: Because he has a brief due with the California Supreme Court.

THE COURT: Oh. You got him here as being your representative on instructions, you know.

MR. SNEDDON: I got him here to carry my briefcase. But I apologize, Judge, I just didn't know. These are not --

THE COURT: How do I know what ones you --

MR. SNEDDON: I think you should assume that whatever Mr. Franklin did for the Court and gave extra copies of did not get to Mr. Sanger. I think that would be a fair assumption.

MR. BEEBE: Here's another copy.

MR. SNEDDON: I understood there was only two, perhaps three.

THE COURT: What’s the another one?

MR. SANGER: The only one that we received, Your Honor, was the “property” or “something” -- and “something of value” defined.

MR. SNEDDON: I know he did 3.31. The mental state one he came back and did. And there was one other that the Court requested he come back and do.

MR. SANGER: I think we got “property” and “something of value” yesterday. I think he brought this back yesterday before the end of the day while we were still in court. But we did not receive anything else.

I don’t want to pick on Mr. Franklin. He was, I’m sure, trying to do his best, but we just haven’t seen them. So if we could have a copy, I’d appreciate it.

THE COURT: What were the other ones? He did 17.01.

MR. BEEBE: 3.31 and 3.31.5, and the property one.

MR. SNEDDON: I think it’s the mental state one.

MR. BEEBE: Yeah.

THE COURT: And what number was that; do you know?

MR. BEEBE: I think it’s 3.31.5.

MR. SNEDDON: So that would be 3.31.5.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SNEDDON: I know that one for sure. And I think there was one other, which may have been the lesser-included, 17.00.

THE COURT: What was the long one we had him filling in all those blanks? Do you remember?

MR. BEEBE: That was 6.23.

THE COURT: And give it to Mr. Sanger and then give it back to me.

What was the other one?

MR. BEEBE: 6.23.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SNEDDON: I believe that one was actually delivered to the Court and I think Mr. Sanger has a copy of that one.

MR. SANGER: Yeah.

MR. SNEDDON: It was delivered before we left yesterday.

MR. SANGER: That was delivered yesterday during the day while we were in session, changing the --

MR. SNEDDON: Font.

MR. SANGER: Changing whether it was capped or not capped. We got the final version of that, so we're okay on that one.

Okay. So we now have 3.30 on the furnishing, misdemeanor. And I think the Court's ruled that comes in.

And we have 3.31.5 on mental states, and we will submit on that.

And then we have the "property" and 12616 "something of value," which we got yesterday, to which we objected and the Court accepted it.

And then we have 6.23, which changed the capitalization.

So are there any others that we're missing?

THE COURT: Probably, but I don't know. I have a feeling there's one more, and I'm trying to remember which one it was.

MR. SANGER: I heard somebody say 17-something.

THE COURT: I said that.

MR. BEEBE: 17.12.

THE COURT: I'm thinking of the one that had all of the blanks in it that we asked them to prepare. Maybe Tracy remembers.

MS. SPLITGERBER: That was, I think, 17.12.

THE COURT: 17.12.

MR. SNEDDON: That's my recollection. It was something in the 17.00 series, and I think that's the one.

MS. SPLITGERBER: And they did do it, and I think the copy was in the packet that you handed out, the copy of what the D.A. prepared.

THE COURT: You got that copy?

MR. SANGER: You gave us that this morning, 17.12.

THE COURT: Okay. What I want you to do, then, is come up and get these. There's two more here. These are minor changes.

On that, I just changed the heading. I took the heading off. I'll show you the -- this is what it said before.

MR. SANGER: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay.

THE COURT: Then the next one, I gave you a proposed C, and now I'm giving you a different proposed C. And the only difference is in this line here, "identified as People's Exhibit 910," instead of "as an addendum," which it previously said.

MR. SANGER: Very well. Thank you.

THE COURT: That's in the package I gave you this morning.

MR. SANGER: And we do want to be heard on that.

THE COURT: We're going to go through all this. I'm just -- we were starting to go through all of this.

MR. SANGER: All right.

THE COURT: All right. The next thing, we had just finished discussing 3.30 on the furnishing alcoholic beverage lesser, and I told you I would put it behind -- well, following CALJIC 16.010.

The next one is the instruction as it relates to false imprisonment.

MR. SANGER: Yes. Could I be heard on that, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: I'll stand up so I get a little exercise here this morning.

I have a suggestion on that one that I think will help, and we'll see.

I would propose that there be a second paragraph added to that that says, “However, before a person can be convicted of conspiracy to commit false imprisonment, the specific intents to commit conspiracy must be proved.”

And I think that’s -- I could have made it more elaborate, but I think that would help the jury not to get confused when they’re being told “specific intent,” “specific intent,” and then all of a sudden “general” on one of the conspiracy counts. And I wrote it out, if the Court would like to have what I just read.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Mr. Sneddon?

THE COURT: Do you have it? This is that area that’s -- it’s a difficult area. So that repeats another instruction, but I don’t see any problem with giving it at that point, just to -- because it is a tricky area.

MR. SNEDDON: I don’t have a problem with that, Judge.

MR. SANGER: May I approach? Or just --

THE COURT: Would you just give it to --

MS. SPLITGERBER: Thank you.

THE COURT: I think if you send that over to Carrie....

MS. SPLITGERBER: I’ll take it.

THE COURT: Then the -- number three, 17.12, as it has been prepared, seems -- this is the one that the District Attorney -- it’s a standard CALJIC instruction, but there were a lot of blanks in it, so I had them fill in the blanks for us. It looks all right to me.

Have you looked at it?

MR. SANGER: I have looked at it. Obviously I haven’t compared every word, but it looks correct.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: However, could I just briefly be heard --

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: -- on that?

I don’t want to -- it seems the Court is committed to giving the lessers, but having done a little more research on it last night, it does appear that the standard would be that you cannot commit the greater without committing the lesser. And the greater involves anyone. The lesser involves a minor. So you can commit the greater without committing the lesser.

And of course there’s the issue of furnishing versus administering. I believe that Mr. Sneddon yesterday -- and I don’t know if he actually said it loud enough to be on the record, but said something to the effect that if it’s substantially the same, it’s acceptable. And whether he said it on the record or not, that seems to be the Geiger standard for lesser-relateds.

THE COURT: You mean you listen to what he whispers to his colleagues?

MR. SANGER: He wasn’t whispering. It was, at the very least, a stage whisper, if it wasn’t said loud enough for the record. I don’t know if it got on, but I couldn’t help but hear it. The point being -- whether the Court heard it or not, the point being the Geiger case was overruled. That was the lesser-related standard. And that was only at the request of the defense. So I’m not going to argue it further.

I think the Court has in mind what the law is, but I do think that it would be incorrect to let in the lesser. I realize that would result in some revision of jury instructions at the last second, but --

THE COURT: Well, that’s not the issue, but, you know, we’re here. As you see, we’re changing jury instructions as we speak. So it’s not a hardship on the Court to change the language in a jury instruction.

MR. SANGER: Especially if you’re deleting some of them. I suppose that would be a good thing.

THE COURT: Well, getting to the point, there’s two mandatory -- I’m sure you’ve read this Mandatory Criminal Jury Instruction Handbook. And on page III, D.[1.7], “Lesser Offenses to Offense Charged,” there’s two approaches that you have to look at. One is the legal elements test, which you’ve been discussing, and the other one is the accusatory pleading test.

And when you look at the language in the indictment, you find that the accusatory pleading test, if you follow that, is the test that mandates that I give the lesser-included.

MR. SANGER: I think that would answer the second part, which is minor versus anyone, because the accusatory pleading would give notice of a minor.

THE COURT: Right.

MR. SANGER: And I think that’s what the Court’s referring to. But the furnishing versus administering I think is still an issue.

THE COURT: It seems that you would have to furnish to administer or -- it doesn’t seem, to me, to be a --

MR. SANGER: There’s --

THE COURT: Anyway, yes, I’ve decided to give the lesser-included.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: And here’s the changed 330, 3.30.

MR. SANGER: I’ll bring it back if you want.

THE COURT: And that should go in the material -- what’s the number of the instruction on false imprisonment?

MR. BEEBE: 9.70?

THE COURT: Yeah, here it is, 9.60. 9. -- so I’m going to put it right behind 9.60.

Then I do not have a clean copy of 17.12.

Does someone have a --

MS. SPLITGERBER: Yes, Carrie does.

THE COURT: Okay. I need that.

MS. SPLITGERBER: All right.

THE COURT: Number four, let’s see, we covered that, the furnishing alcohol to a minor.

Number five, the Court’s proposed instruction C and C-1 on the various use of the videos. What I’m proposing to do here is to instruct with the Court’s proposed C and put that after 2.09, “Evidence limited as to purpose.”

The thing that’s -- and I did receive your points and authorities this morning. And I agree with your points and authorities on use of the outtake language. You know, it’s clear that -- that’s why I admitted the outtake footage was to give a complete context of everything that was said. But the case you cited doesn’t stand for admitting it for the truth of the matter asserted. I think it stands for what we thought, is that you admit that for what other purpose you admitted the main body of material.

So it’s a good citation, but it’s -- it doesn’t change my approach. My approach is outlined in Instruction C.

MR. SANGER: I do have a comment on that whenever the Court’s ready.

THE COURT: Yes. Before you comment, let me explain something so you get -- maybe you have the complete picture, maybe not, but I want to be sure you do.

So, initially the -- well, I’m beginning to think like you. I was going to explain all of the side stuff before I got to the point. It’s time we end this, you know.

I’m going to go to using an exhibit, which I’ve marked as People’s 910, and that contains the material that they prepared at my request, which is the material that they are going to maintain to the jury is an admission.

And by using an exhibit of the People -- I had originally placed it as an appendix to the instruction, but I think that makes the connection to the Court that I don’t want to make; that it’s not me that’s proposing that these are admissions. I have to make some preliminary determination, but not final, and I don’t think they need to know that I have to make some preliminary determination.

So the D.A. needs to say, “These are” -- in his argument, he’ll say, “These are things that we urge you to believe are admissions by the defendant.” Then I have -- the exhibit is referenced, so that the jury can, if they choose to, look at it, or if the D.A. chooses to, can show the jury this exhibit, which is the admissions you are claiming. But at any rate, they have something specific to relate this instruction to.

And on Instruction C-1, it’s really the standard admission instruction, but I have pinpointed it to -- with the paragraph in the middle that refers them to Exhibit 910, and then reiterates again that they are the exclusive judges as to whether or not there are admissions.

So that’s my proposal for covering the admission part of this video.

Now you may speak.

MR. SANGER: At my peril, evidently, but I will.

On Exhibit C, first of all, I would propose to modify it in paragraph four that says “the outtakes video.” If you go to the second sentence -- let me tell the Court what I propose to modify and then explain why.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: I propose to say -- instead of

“none of,” take that out and say, “The statements in the outtakes video may be considered for their truth,” and then strike the rest of it and say, “If they are on the same subject matter as the statements offered by the People in Exhibit 910.”

And conveniently, your modification to put the reference to Exhibit 910 in the very latest version makes that work conveniently.

Now, having said that, the argument is --

THE COURT: Just a moment. Let me make sure I understand that.

MR. SANGER: I can say it again, if that helps.

THE COURT: Well, I’m reading it.

Okay. So the proposal is, instead of “none of,” it will say -- it will start out with, “The statements in the outtakes video may be considered for their truth.”

I see. It’s covering -- there’s actually -- I’ve taken a sentence that was covering another subject, which is that in any of -- either the outtake or the Bashir video, if the same -- they show the same scenes. Some of the scenes are the same. Some of the outtakes are the parts that the Bashir video uses, so the words are the same. So to the extent that those are the same words in both videos, if those -- then that’s what that sentence is meant to say, that they would be admitted for the truth of the matter asserted, if they’re on this list.

Now you want to cover the second problem, which is, “What parts of my statement that I want to introduce can be taken for the truth of the matter asserted”?

MR. SANGER: That’s correct. And I think, given Evidence Code Section 356 that says “on the same subject,” so we’ve taken the same language there, “If they are on the same subject as the statements offered by the People in 910.”

Now, I understood, from the Court’s comments earlier, that the Court apparently is not reading 356 to say that statements on the same subject come in for the truth of the matter. In the Douglas case that we cited, where it says --

THE COURT: No, they would be -- you’re not understanding what I said.

356 and the Douglas case do not stand for the proposition that if I admit statements not for the truth of the matter asserted, and you want to connect statements to that, that they get to go in for the truth of the matter asserted.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: You are not maintaining that --

MR. SANGER: I would agree with what the Court said. I’m talking about the statements in Exhibit 910. So if --

THE COURT: Okay. So I’m not saying what you thought -- what you accused me of saying.
MR. SANGER: All right. Good.
THE COURT: All right. So the issue is -- I agree with you that if part of the admission is not given, if the part of the statement, the context of the statement is not given by the District Attorney and there’s more to that statement, then that should be considered for the truth of the matter asserted also as part of the statement. If there’s an admission there and it comes in for the truth of the matter asserted, then any part of that statement that was excluded by the D.A. should also come in with the same understanding.
MR. SANGER: If it’s on the same subject matter.
THE COURT: If it’s part of that statement. See, what --
MR. SANGER: The way I look at it -- I understand what the Court’s saying.
THE COURT: Here’s the problem that I see with your position, is that there’s a whole lot of discussion about children by Mr. Jackson. And if the subject matter you’re saying is “children,” then my answer to you is no, that’s too broad of a subject matter.
MR. SANGER: Well, okay. And I understand that’s the answer. If that’s the ruling, I won’t argue with it, but if you’re inviting discussion on it --

THE COURT: I’m inviting discussion.
MR. SANGER: -- it seems to me this comes up all the time, and you’ll have typically a letter or a writing or a statement made to the -- to the police by a defendant. Somebody’s arrested, they’re given the Miranda rights, and they sit down and they talk about the case, and the prosecution comes in and says, “Ahh, we want to take this statement and that statement and we want to say that’s an admission.”
You’re allowed to play the entire tape and the jury’s entitled to consider the entire tape. It happens all the time. The entire tape of the police interview. And they can consider it for the truth of the matter asserted.

Now, I suppose -- and I must say, I can’t remember anybody ever doing this, but I suppose it could happen that there could be a discussion on the tape about something that’s totally irrelevant, and the prosecution could say, “Well,” you know, “you can’t have that,” because they’re talking about,” you know, another event or something totally unrelated to the case, but otherwise the whole -- the whole tape comes in, and it happens all the time. Same thing with a letter. The whole letter comes in as long as it’s the same subject matter.

And so what you have here is you have a series of tapings and interviews by Bashir that take place during the latter part of 2002, on into the early part of 2003, in January 2003, and Bashir clips from these various interviews snippets that he puts into his production.

Some of those actual conversations Mr. Moslehi did not have -- he wasn’t there, nor did he have a camera running to tape-record the rest of what was said during that period of time. We’re stuck with what Mr. Bashir has pulled out to put in his video. However, the rest of it is one big ongoing conversation with Michael Jackson, and he does take clips from the other -- from the other tapes.

So I believe that -- and I’m disagreeing with the Court directly, but I believe that anything that’s in 910 that is put in context or involves the same subject matter that’s on these tapes is fair game for the jury. Now --

THE COURT: And the Bashir tape should come in for the truth of the matter asserted because it’s all on the same subject matter.

MR. SANGER: Well, no, actually there’s an argument -- there would be an argument by the District Attorney that anything that Michael Jackson said on the same subject matter on that tape could come in. And I think that that's true. If Michael Jackson said it on the Bashir tape, and it pertained to the subject matter of children, it could be considered. I think that that's basically the -- I suppose you could put a sentence in to that effect as well.

And it really takes us back -- I hate to say, but it does take us back to the initial approach where I suggested that on both the Bashir tape and the outtakes, that any statements -- I don't have it in front of me here, but I provided in writing, any statements by Mr. Jackson on the subject matter of his relationship with children can be considered by the jury for the purpose of determining whether or not it's an admission, and it can be considered for the context of any such alleged admissions.

See, if we try to parse it -- I mean, I do agree with the Court --

THE COURT: I understand your argument.

MR. SANGER: I do agree with the Court that the other statements by Mr. Jackson would come in, but not the whole Bashir tape.

THE COURT: All right.

Do you want to be heard, Mr. Sneddon, on this?

MR. SNEDDON: Only if the Court's going to entertain this change, because I think it substantially changes the situation that we all operated on from the very first day that this trial started.

THE COURT: The --

MR. SNEDDON: I believe Mr. Sanger is wrong, I believe the Court's analysis is correct, and I think the instruction correctly states the state of the law and the state of the evidence in this case and should be given just as you proposed it.

THE COURT: I'm going to give it as I proposed it, with this caveat, and I've invited you to do this before: If there is specific -- that's why, by the way, I asked him in the beginning to provide us with the statements that he asserted were admissions, was so that you could look at those areas and see if you wanted to show me, and then the jury, that, “Wait a minute, he’s taken this out of context. What was being discussed at that moment, here’s the whole discussion at that moment, at that minute,” not at that day or hour or -- you know. So I feel I’ve given you the opportunity to do that. And that was specifically the reason I --

MR. SANGER: As I indicated yesterday, we had marked the transcripts of the outtakes to show the portions that we believe are --

THE COURT: You --

MR. SANGER: But I’ll tell the Court in advance, they are substantial. So if the Court’s saying limit it to the minute --

THE COURT: Yeah, it’s the same thing you’re saying, and that’s not what I’m willing to accept. I know you’re not missing my point.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I was just going to make a comment about that. It’s my recollection -- and Mr. Sanger and I disagree on this, but you have the transcript. It’s my recollection that the outtakes end before the substantial part of the discussion that are the subject of what would be People’s Exhibit --

THE COURT: I know you asserted that before, and I don’t have to make that determination because it’s up to Mr. Sanger to bring up those points and, if he wants to bring them to my attention, to do so.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay.

THE COURT: So as -- with your noted objection and reasoned argument, I will go ahead and give Instruction No. C and C-1, and I’m going to put the limiting instruction after 2.09 in the total package.

And then 17.12 --

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, where did you say C and C-1 go, if you recall?

THE COURT: It goes after 2.09.

MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you.

THE COURT: And did I tell you I placed 17.12 in front of 16.010?

Now, the next item will be should 17.01 be given when you consider 4.71.5 and 17.02?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, what was the first one, 4 what?

THE COURT: 4.71.5.

17.02 says, “Each count charges a distinct crime. You must decide each count separately.”

17.01 says, “The defendant is accused of having committed the crime of lewd act upon a child under 14 in Counts 2 through 5,” and then it goes on with the others. “The prosecution has introduced evidence for the purpose of showing that there is more than one act upon which a conviction may be based.”

So I’m asking you, do you need both of those instructions?

MR. SANGER: Well, 17.02 does not cover the subject matter in 17.01. And I’m looking at 4.71.5, and the problem with 17 -- I’m sorry, the problem with 4.71.5 is that that’s really related to a time period.

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. SANGER: And it’s not related to the actual proof of the particular acts, and I think 17.01 does in fact address --

THE COURT: Different --

MR. SANGER: -- the issue.

Now, we submitted Special No. 3, which the Court was thinking about giving, and then -- which attempted to cover the same issue.

THE COURT: Uh-huh.

MR. SANGER: And I think that issue has to be covered directly. 17.01 seems to be a more direct instruction on that subject matter. I don’t think the others really are -- really address it.

The only thing I’d add is I think Count 6 has to be in there, too, because even the Court had to ask the prosecutor, “What was your contention as to Count 6?”

THE COURT: Well, I guess the question I would have is -- to the District Attorney is, under 17.01, we have Counts 2 through 5, lewd acts, and Count 7 through 10, administering an intoxicating agent. And then we say that the -- all jurors must agree upon the same act or acts, which is what was covered in No. 3 Special, somewhat, that Mr. Sanger submitted.

And I guess I would ask the District Attorney, what are the acts in Counts 2 through 5 that you’re depending on, if you care to tell me?

MR. SNEDDON: Well, sure.

THE COURT: And -- okay.

MR. SNEDDON: I mean, I don’t think there’s any mystery as to this. The -- two of the counts are the incidents as viewed by Star Arvizo.

THE COURT: Right.

MR. SNEDDON: And the other two counts are the two counts that were testified to by Gavin Arvizo.

THE COURT: I agree. That’s what I -- I don’t think there’s a mystery about that either. But which one is on which count?

MR. SNEDDON: Which -- as to which count? Well, that’s --

THE COURT: That’s the mystery.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, it’s not a mystery, but it’s not delineated, that’s correct.

In reading the use notes under 17.01, it does look that 17.01 is directed to those situations where there is a singular count but multiple acts upon which the jury could derive a verdict of guilty on the singular count. I think that’s somewhat different than the situation that we have here.

THE COURT: I don’t think so.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, I was going to say, I don’t see -- I don’t see a particular problem in giving both, if the Court wants to give both.

THE COURT: The reason I don’t think it’s different is as to each count there are multiple acts that could be attributed to that count.

MR. SNEDDON: Because they’re not delineated.

THE COURT: Because they’re not delineated.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. I -- I think that’s correct. I think perhaps -- yeah. I mean, I don’t have a problem with giving the instruction. I just think that our problem with the special given by the defense was the particular set of facts, and I indicated to the Court yesterday where I saw that to be a problem. So --

THE COURT: Well, it actually -- their language isn’t much different, when you look at it, than 17.01. “All jurors must agree that he committed the same act or acts.”

MR. SNEDDON: To me, that’s substantially different than a particular set of acts, but it encompasses the entire -- it encompasses more than the commission of the crime as defined by the Court. And to me, that’s -- to me, that’s substantially different, and particularly it’s -- it eliminates the mischief that can be made from arguing the kind of thing that I pointed out to the Court. So if you’re asking me whether I think we should give 17.01, I see no problem in giving both of them.

THE COURT: I guess I’m asking you one thing further, and that is, are you going to tell the jury that Count 2 is when Star saw him the first time, Count 3 is when Star saw him the second time, and Count 4 is when Gavin said he was first touched, and Count 5 is when he was -- you know, I don’t want to --

MR. SNEDDON: I have -- let me put it this way, Your Honor: I don’t think we specifically intended to do that in relating one to the other, only because they’re not mentioned. However, if the Court is inviting us to make that election, and there’s no -- there’s no objection from the defense, we have no problem doing that. I just think to do that in the middle of the argument, without prior approval of the Court or counsel for the defense, would be not right.

But if you’re asking me to make an election, that’s a very simple thing for us to do, and if counsel for the defense wants us to do that, and I believe it would probably help the jury in their deliberations, I’m more than glad to make that election right now.

THE COURT: And --

MR. SNEDDON: And you can put that in the verdict forms if you wanted.

THE COURT: And the same would be true on the Count 7 through 10.

MR. SNEDDON: On the alcohol.

THE COURT: The alcohol.

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Do you wish to be heard, Mr. Sanger?

MR. SANGER: Yes. That is a point I wanted to raise before we are through, so -- I think the election should be made, and the problem we have is there is a good instruction, 6.23, on conspiracy that lays out exactly what the charges are there, and then there’s really nothing else. There’s the introductory -- well, it’s one -- I don’t have the number right here, but it’s one of the first few where you talk about what the charges are, and they just list the charge by name. And then when you have the actual substantive charges on lewd act, 10.41, for instance, and the other substance, it simply says the defendant’s charged. Nothing ties it to particular acts.

THE COURT: But if we make him -- accept his --

MR. SNEDDON: Offer.

THE COURT: -- offer to make an election, then -- and to tell the jury in his argument the election, then I think we -- that takes care of that problem.

MR. SANGER: I think that that would take care of it. The other way to do it would be to instruct on it, or --

THE COURT: I think I'll -- because we're pushing this, I think I'll go with the election.

MR. SANGER: We want to make sure we know exactly what the election is.

THE COURT: He's going to do that right now.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

THE COURT: And then we can discuss -- he is willing to have it as a finding in the verdict also. Would you like that?

MR. SANGER: I'd have to see what it looks like. I get concerned about verdicts being too factual.

THE COURT: We can discuss that. And it doesn't have to be in the argument.

MR. SANGER: That's correct.

THE COURT: All right. Would you make your election and --

MR. SNEDDON: Count 2 would be as to Gavin Arvizo. Count 3 would be as to Gavin Arvizo. Count 4 would be the same victim, but the observations made by Star Arvizo. And Count 5 would be the same victim, but the observations made by Star Arvizo.

With regard to the intoxicating -- the violations of 222, they would just mirror them. So the first two would be as to -- well, the first two would be as to those incidents, as to Count 2 and to Count 3, and the last two would be as to Count 4 and to Count 5.

THE COURT: Can you define the two -- you've -- now you've got it down to two. You still have an ambiguity, which -- is there something you can say further to select that Count 2 is as to Arvizo -- as to Gavin is this, and Count 3 is that? Is there some language?

MR. SANGER: First in time and second in time.

THE COURT: First in time, second in time?

MR. SNEDDON: I would not be willing to go that way. Because I don't think there's any -- the state of the evidence at this particular point is open to the jury to make that decision on their own basis.

THE COURT: But if they decide --

MR. SNEDDON: I don’t think that’s why we alleged --

THE COURT: That’s not that clear. Is that what you’re saying?

MR. SNEDDON: I’m saying the jury has the option. His statement over and over again has been it was towards the end, and so I’m not prepared to say that one was before the other, and I don’t think we even have to.

And I am willing to say that, you know, the first two were based upon -- solely upon -- or based upon the testimony of Gavin Arvizo and the last two were based upon the testimony of Star Arvizo, and I think that makes it very clear for the jury during that time period that that’s exactly what we’re talking about.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SNEDDON: And if --

THE COURT: And will you have the person arguing your case --

MR. SNEDDON: State that?

THE COURT: -- state that at some point in their argument?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir. I think -- I think it’s also important, however, at some point in either in the verdict forms or in the instructions that that also come from the Court.

MR. SANGER: Before we get to that -- go ahead.

MR. SNEDDON: And I really feel that it ought to be in the verdict forms. I really feel that if we’re going to make this kind of election and we’re going to tell this jury, “This count applies to this and this count applies to this,” that to simply have somebody get up and state in final argument, “This is our election,” doesn’t help the jury.

THE COURT: You don’t have to say it’s your election. You can say, “This is what we’re maintaining."

MR. SNEDDON: I understand that. But what I'm saying is, I think the jury needs the direction that that is, in fact, what the verdict forms reflect.

MR. SANGER: I do have a suggestion on this when we get --

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: I don't want to cut off Mr.

Sneddon.

THE COURT: Yes. Let me hear your suggestion.

MR. SANGER: My suggestion, first of all, is if you take 1.06, that's where it's the identification of the parties and the crimes charged, and we use that instruction to simply add some language after the description of the crime charged -- in other words, it says, "Lewd act upon a child," and you can say "to wit," if you want to be archaic about it, but something to that effect, and then indicate in brief form what Mr. Sneddon said.

Now, I do have a problem with the concept that the jury can pick and choose even between the two sets of -- or within the two sets of charges.

So I want to be heard on that --

THE COURT: No, go ahead now.

MR. SANGER: Just procedurally, first of all, I think we can add the words right there in that 1.06 and that should clarify for the jury entirely. They have 6.23 to clarify the conspiracy, and then they would have this to clarify the rest.

Now, on the substantive part, I don't believe that, consistent with the case law that we've been discussing, that the prosecution can say, "Well, we have" -- "We have two or more acts, and they could have occurred, and we don't know which one is which." And if the prosecution can't even tell the jury which one is which, the jury certainly can't discharge its duties, under Blakely, to determine beyond a reasonable doubt whether or not a person is guilty of that offense.

So if we’re going to honor the commitment which I think is reflected in 17.01, that the jury has to actually decide on a -- on an act or acts for a particular count, somebody’s got to delineate what those acts are. And it’s not close enough to say, “Well, there are two things that Gavin may have testified to, two or more, and there’s two or more that Star may have testified to seeing, and that’s close enough for government work.”

I think we have to make it very clear.

My recollection of the testimony was that there was an effort on the part of the prosecution to bring out from Gavin that there was a first instance and a second instance. He was vague about it. Clearly -- I’m clear in my recollection with regard to Star’s testimony, that he testified there was a first instance and a second instance. So I don’t see why the prosecution should not be held to that. I mean, the jury can’t simply say, “Well, we kind of think something may have happened on some day or another.” That’s exactly what the problem is that we’re addressing.

THE COURT: What was the language --

MR. SNEDDON: I think my remarks were misconstrued.

THE COURT: What was the language that you thought you could add in 1.06 that --

MR. SANGER: I would say, for instance, if you go down 1.06 where it says, “In Count 2, the crime alleged is lewd act upon a child,” and then you -- I said, “to wit,” but you could say instead, “The act alleged is the first act alleged to have occurred in the testimony of Gavin Arvizo.” I think we have to also say Gavin Arvizo is the “alleged” victim.

And then Count 3 would be the second act alleged in the testimony of Gavin Arvizo. 4 would be the first act alleged in the testimony of Star Arvizo regarding Gavin, or however the Court wants to put it. I’m trying to keep it short.

THE COURT: I understand. That’s right.

MR. SANGER: And then 6 should also be identified as the attempt. The Court asked about it should be at least the attempt alleged with regard to Gavin Arvizo. And then 7, 8, 9 and 10 would be the same language.

THE COURT: Okay. What did you want to say, Mr. Sneddon?

MR. SNEDDON: I have no problem with that. That's what I was telling the Court.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SNEDDON: I have no problem telling -- making an election. In fact, if you want to be more specific about it, you can say, with regard to Star Arvizo, that the first incident involves the one where the doors were locked, and the second one involves the incident where the door was closed but not locked.

THE COURT: That's --

MR. SNEDDON: I wasn't trying to not be definitive. I mean, we made an election. There's no secret here about what happened and I think that's -- I was misconstrued, what I was offering to do for the Court. Seems like the more I offer, the worse it gets for me, so I'm willing to do that.

THE COURT: I misunderstood what you were saying.

MR. SNEDDON: Well --

THE COURT: And I don't think it's getting worse for you.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, okay. I'll just let it go.

THE COURT: I think we're working out a problem that exists in all of these cases. I've never had a case involving a child molestation allegation that didn't involve the same problem, the children don't give dates and times, and you work with a difficult scenario of trying to determine when these things happened and to plead those items in a good way, a way that's productive. So I sympathize with the problems the prosecution has.

And I think your agreement to elect is very helpful to the Court. It would be very helpful to the jury.

MR. SNEDDON: I agree. I agree.

THE COURT: And, you know, I just don’t see this as a bad thing for anybody.

MR. SANGER: Maybe what the Court could do --

THE COURT: I was thinking of taking the break.

MR. SANGER: Maybe what the Court could do is take a break.

THE COURT: But before you do, what was your last suggestion?

MR. SANGER: I was just thinking that the way to word this might be, “In Count 2, the crime alleged is lewd act upon Gavin Arvizo,” so you don’t have to repeat it.

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: And then say, “alleged in the testimony” -- “the first event alleged in the testimony of Gavin Arvizo,” words to that effect.

THE COURT: Well, I think I -- I would go with the language the D.A. is suggesting, so that -- “the first” is still a vague statement in terms of the child’s testimony, I think.

MR. SANGER: There are two --

THE COURT: If he wants to identify -- you know, put some identifying factor, “The door is locked,” “The door is unlocked,” that’s -- something that clarifies each issue is fine with me.

MR. SANGER: He could do that in argument.

THE COURT: He could.

MR. SANGER: And I was just trying to think of a generic way to address it, because these are the Court’s instructions, obviously.

THE COURT: Right.

MR. SANGER: And rather than have the Court talk about too many facts, because you have to keep saying “alleged,” “alleged,” “alleged,” otherwise it has the impression --

THE COURT: If you’re satisfied with just identifying that Gavin is the -- the first two are Gavin’s testimony and the second two are Star’s, and the District Attorney delineating which those acts are in argument, I’m satisfied with that.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Well, I still think it should be some delineation like the first and the second. I thought --

THE COURT: If the D.A. opposes that, and I understand why he opposes that, so considering that that’s not going to work, are you satisfied with the way I’ve presented it just now?

MR. SANGER: Well, then -- no. Because I think we do have to distinguish -- the problem is we have to distinguish between Count 2 and Count 3. And I understand the District Attorney’s saying he’s going to argue it that way, but I think there should be something in the allegations so that the jury can look at it and say, “This is what we’re asked to decide.”

THE COURT: All right. We’ll take a break.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: May I address the Court on that issue?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Well, let me get to the point, Your Honor: I’m right. How’s that?

THE COURT: Good. We got all of that.

MR. SANGER: Here’s why I’m right.

If you look at Counts 2, 3, 4 and 5 in the indictment, they specifically refer to the first and second incident testified to by the witness. The first two say testified to by the witness. It says “John Doe,” but that referred to Gavin Arvizo. And 4 and 5 refer to the first and second incidents testified to by Star Arvizo.

So I think the election has been made in the indictment, and that’s what he was indicted on. I think the jury’s entitled to be told that there’s -- just that.

If you look at -- actually, the Count 2 does not say “first,” but Count 3 says, “The second molestation concerning which John Doe testified."

And then Count 4 says, "The first witnessed by James Doe." And Count 5 says, "The second witnessed by James Doe."

So it's been delineated that way, and what I would say -- what I'd suggest the Court do, because I think we're -- the defendant's entitled to have this kind of certainty. That's what he was indicted on. That's what we --

THE COURT: I think you have a very good point.

Mr. Sneddon, do you want to say anything about that? It seems like we could just take the language from the indictment and attach it to the counts, and that -- that's pretty close to what you were saying anyway.

Do you have the indictment?

MR. SNEDDON: I do, and I'm reading it, and either -- either I have a different copy of the indictment than Mr. Sanger does or the Court, but my indictment -- I was not present when the indictment was returned, and --

THE COURT: It does. I have -- it does say that.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, that's what I said.

They must have given me a different copy than the copy --

THE COURT: Would you like to approach and look at --

MR. SANGER: It's up to you. I've got it.

This is a copy.

MR. SNEDDON: The copy that Mr. Sanger is showing me is not the copy that I have.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SNEDDON: So it is not -- I have special findings as to the -- as to the conspiracy, but my copy has no special findings as to allegations. But if that is what the Court has, and if those elections have already been made, I don't have a problem with them.

THE COURT: Okay. That's what I have, and --

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. And that's the indictment that's filed with the Court?

THE COURT: Yes. This is --

MR. SNEDDON: All right

THE COURT: This is filed April 21st, 2004.

MR. SNEDDON: Then that should take care of the problem.

THE COURT: I just had this printed off this morning so I could deal with the lesser-included issue.

MR. SNEDDON: All right.

MR. SANGER: One way to handle it, to keep the number of words down to a minimum, would be to indicate in the paragraph that immediately precedes the list of Count 2, 3, 4, 5, where it starts, "The accusatory pleading also alleged the following crimes to have been committed by the defendant," and then put "against Gavin Arvizo," or some words to that effect, so you don't have to say he's the alleged victim in all --

THE COURT: That's a good point. Yes, let's do it that way. And then as to each one, you just use the indictment language.

MR. SANGER: So simply say, I think, to economize on words, "The first alleged incident testified to by Gavin Arvizo," and then the same language, "the second," and then Count 4 would be, "The first alleged incident testified to by Star Arvizo," and "the second."

THE COURT: Okay. That's what we'll do. Now, on --

MR. BEEBE: As to 7 through 10 --

THE COURT: 7 through 10 is the same language there?

MR. SANGER: That should be -- my understanding is those mirror the other counts, so it would be the same language, I would take it.

THE COURT: Is that -- I agree.

MR. SNEDDON: (Nods head up and down.)

THE COURT: Yeah, okay. Same language.

MR. BEEBE: And do you want that language spelled out, or would it be enough to refer to "as described in Count 2," "as described in Count 3"?

THE COURT: Yeah, I think that would be fine.

MR. SANGER: I think that would be good, yes.

THE COURT: And then on 17.01, you suggested that we should add Count 6, the attempt, the language in there; is that right?

MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: So, did you get that, Jed?

MR. BEEBE: I'm sorry?

THE COURT: 17.01, we're going to add the Count 6 language, a sentence involving Count 6.

MR. BEEBE: All right.

THE COURT: Between --

MR. BEEBE: Well, if we -- if we have these identified, we could actually use 17.02.

THE COURT: Just use 17.02?

MR. SNEDDON: That's what I think. I don't think you should be using 17.01.

THE COURT: All right. Then we don't need 17.01?

MR. SANGER: I still think we need 17.01. Let me look at 17.02 again, but I don't think it covers the same subject matter. 17.01 makes it clear --

THE COURT: Yeah, I agree with Mr. Sanger. We need both. So put in the language on 6, just a sentence after, the same sentence after. Okay. Now what I propose to do is give you my rulings on your specials. I really think I've taken care of all of the problems and issues that you raised through your specials, and what I want to do is give you my rulings and -- and then we need to get these instructions printed so that when the jury comes in, I can give them all copies.

MR. SANGER: One housekeeping matter.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: If the Court is inclined to do it, based on prior experience, it would be very nice if the pages could be numbered.

THE COURT: I’m not able to do that at this point. We’ve pushed ourselves to the limit here, so I’m going to take my package to be printed, with my greasy prints on them and everything.

MR. SANGER: I was thinking maybe a handwritten number on the bottom. It’s up to the Court.

THE COURT: Well, if we can do it, I will, I’ve got staff standing by ready to make these copies, and it’s going to take a while.

The defense has submitted special instructions, and basically I’m telling you that I considered all of those in revamping the instructions that we’ve all gone through up until today, up until now, today.

But for the record, I will -- I reject Special Instruction No. 1, because it’s incorporated in the Court’s Instruction C and C-1.

I will reject No. 2. I’ve already made a ruling on that.

The next one, No. 3, I reject that, because I now believe that it’s covered by 17.01 and 4.71.5.

Special Instruction No. 4 I reject, as it is adequately covered by CALJIC 2.50.01.

On Special Instruction No. 6, this is the one about the sheriff’s interview of Gavin, is adequately covered by the Court’s proposed -- or the Court’s Instruction C.

On Special Instruction No. 7 re Janet’s assertion of the Fifth Amendment, I am using CALJIC 2.25, and your proposal is contrary to that. So I reject your special instruction and I will give CALJIC 2.25.

As to Special Instruction No. 8 re evidence of Janet’s purported welfare fraud, I reject, because that is covered under both CALJIC 2.20 and 2.23.1. The effect of using No. 8, if I did, which I reject, would be to put an undue emphasis on this evidence.

Special Instruction No. 9, the Court -- this is the instruction considering Mrs. Montgomery’s grant of -- Miss Montgomery’s grant of immunity.

This is adequately covered by CALJIC 2.20 and 2.23.1. Again, I reject this because it puts an undue emphasis on this evidence.

Special Instruction No. 10, which was a request to have the jury not consider the invocation of the attorney-client privilege by Geragos, I reject that because CALJIC 2.26 is a better instruction and does not unduly emphasize that evidence.

And finally, Special Instruction No. 11 instructs -- is concerning possible discussion by witnesses of their testimony out of court. And I think that 2.20 instructs the jury to take into account the attitude of the witness toward this action or towards the giving of testimony, and I therefore refuse No. 11.

Those are my rulings. And we're -- we will now recess, print the instructions, and if the attorneys will stand by, be available, let's say at 11:15, we have to get you copies and get a final look at what we've got.

MR. SNEDDON: Are you deferring, for now, the motion that we filed on the comment during argument?

THE COURT: Oh.

MR. SNEDDON: I mean, we can take it up after you instruct, when the jury's done. We're probably going to have time.

THE COURT: That's a good thing, because I need to get these instructions.

MR. SNEDDON: That's what I figured.

MR. SANGER: I was going to say, I can make it easy. The motion we're talking about is the limitation on the instruction on arguing why --

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: -- the defendant did not take the stand. And I don't think we disagree that it's inappropriate to give specific reasons.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: I don't think we disagree with that, and that could be handled by an objection. It's been briefed.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SNEDDON: I'm trying to avoid that objection, so --

MR. SANGER: I don't think it's going to happen is what I'm saying.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. I'll let you get --

THE COURT: There's an agreement that your statement of the law is correct, and I will confirm and they agree, and if something happens, object.

MR. SNEDDON: Sounds good.

THE COURT: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: I'm sorry, we're back -- we can be off the record, but we're back at 11:15 to get the instructions, and the jury's coming in at ten minutes of 12:00?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you.

THE COURT: And if I need something -- I'll call you if something comes up, but I think we're ready to go.

MR. SANGER: We're right here. We'll be available.

(Recess taken.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good afternoon.

MR. MESEREAU: Good afternoon, Your Honor.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Good afternoon.

THE COURT: (To the jury) Today I'm going to instruct you on the law, and tomorrow and Friday you will hear the arguments of counsel.

I'm giving you copies of the instructions.

There's one thing that is not in the instructions, and I want to tell you now, and that is that during -- from now and through the deliberations, to the reaching of a verdict, you must leave your notes and your instructions here at court when you go home in the evening.

At the end of the trial, I will allow you to take your notes and the instructions with you, but you just can’t take them home during deliberations.

Everyone got that?

THE BAILIFF: You’re going to have to talk louder for --

THE COURT: Are you having trouble hearing that? Why didn’t I know that?

THE BAILIFF: This one picks up better.

THE COURT: I’ll get my voice here in a minute.

THE BAILIFF: Also, they have instructions, but they’re turned face down, so when you want them to, you need to tell them to turn them over.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

You have your -- a copy of your instructions, and so you can follow along and keep them during your deliberations. You can look at them as we go along.

Members of the jury:

You have heard all of the evidence and you will hear the arguments of the attorneys, and it is now my duty to instruct you on the law that applies to this case. The law requires that I read the instructions to you. You will have these instructions in their written form in the jury room to refer to during your deliberations.

You must base your decision on the facts and the law.

You have two duties to perform. First, you must determine what facts have been proved from the evidence received in the trial and not from any other source. A fact is something proved by the evidence or by stipulation. A stipulation is an agreement between attorneys regarding the facts.

Second, you must apply the law that I state to you to the facts, as you determine them, and in this way arrive at your verdict and any finding you are instructed to include in your verdict.

You must accept and follow the law as I state it to you, regardless of whether you agree with it. If anything concerning the law said by the attorneys in their arguments or at any other time during the trial conflicts with my instructions on the law, you must follow my instructions.

You must not be influenced by pity for or prejudice against a defendant. You must not be biased against a defendant because he has been arrested for the offense, charged with a crime, or brought to trial. None of these circumstances is evidence of guilt and you must not infer or assume from any or all of them that a defendant is more likely to be guilty than not guilty. You must not be influenced by sentiment, conjecture, sympathy, passion, prejudice, public opinion or public feeling. Both the People and the defendant have a right to expect that you will conscientiously consider and weigh the evidence, apply the law, and reach a just verdict regardless of the consequences.

You each have a copy of the instructions that I am now reading to you. You may take notes on your copy, if you wish. An official copy of the instructions will be provided to the jury for use during deliberations. You should not make notes or deface the official copy in any way.

If any rule, direction or idea is repeated or stated in different ways in these instructions, no emphasis is intended and you must not draw any inference because of its repetition. Do not single out any particular sentence or any individual point or instruction and ignore the others. Consider the instructions as a whole and each in light of all the others.

The order in which the instructions are given has no significance as to their relative importance.

Statements made by the attorneys during the trial are not evidence. However, if the attorneys have stipulated or agreed to a fact, you must regard that fact as proven as to the party or parties making the stipulation.

If an objection was sustained to a question, do not guess what the answer might have been. Do not speculate as to the reason for the objection. Do not assume to be true any insinuation suggested by a question asked a witness. A question is not evidence and may be considered only as it helps you to understand the answer. Do not consider for any purpose any offer of evidence that was rejected, or any evidence that was stricken by the Court; treat it as though you had never heard of it.

You must decide all questions of fact in this case from the evidence received in this trial and not from any other source. When a witness has testified through a Certified Court Interpreter, you must accept the English interpretation of that testimony even if you would have translated the foreign language differently.

You must not independently investigate the facts or the law or consider or discuss facts as to which there is no evidence. This means, for example, that you must not on your own visit the scene, conduct experiments, or consult reference works or persons for additional information.

You must not discuss this case with any other person, including, but not limited to spouses, spiritual leaders or advisors, or therapists, except a fellow juror during deliberations when all 12 of you are together in the jury room, and then only after the case is submitted to you for your decision and only when all 12 jurors are present in the jury room.

Notes are only an aid to memory and should not take precedence over recollection. A juror who does not take notes should rely on his or her recollection of the evidence and not be influenced by the fact that other jurors do take notes. Notes are for the note-taker's own personal use in refreshing his or her recollection of the evidence.

Finally, should any discrepancy exist between a juror’s recollection of the evidence and a juror’s notes, or between one juror’s recollection and that of another, you may request that the court reporter read back the relevant testimony, which must prevail.

The plaintiff in this matter is the People of the State of California. The defendant is Michael Joe Jackson.

The defendant is accused of having committed the following crimes:

In Count 1, the crime alleged is conspiracy to commit the crimes of extortion, false imprisonment or child abduction;

The date of the alleged crime is between February 1, 2003, and March 31, 2003;

The accusatory pleading also alleges the following crimes to have been committed by the defendant against Gavin Arvizo on or about and between February 20th, 2003, and March 12th, 2003:

In Count 2, the crime alleged is lewd act upon a child, the first alleged molestation testified to by Gavin Arvizo;

In Count 2, the crime alleged is lewd act upon a child -- excuse me.

In Count 3, the crime alleged is lewd act upon a child, the second alleged molestation testified to by Gavin Arvizo;

In Count 4, the crime alleged is lewd act upon a child, the first alleged molestation witnessed by Star Arvizo;

In Count 5, the crime alleged is lewd act upon a child, the second alleged molestation witnessed by Star Arvizo;

In Count 6, the crime alleged is attempt to commit a lewd act upon a child;

In Count 7, the crime alleged is administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony, as alleged in Count 2;

In Count 8, the crime alleged is administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony, as alleged in Count 3;

In Count 9, the crime alleged is administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony, as alleged in Count 4;

In Count 10, the crime alleged is administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony, as alleged in Count 5.

In addition to deciding if a defendant is guilty of the crime or crimes with which he is accused, you must also consider whether a defendant is guilty of any crime that is lesser to that charged. You will be more fully instructed on this subject later. However, in general, a defendant may be found guilty of a lesser crime if the jury unanimously concludes that the defendant, while not guilty of the crime charged, is guilty of a lesser crime.

In this case, the counts with lesser charges are:

One: In the Counts 7 through 10, namely, administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony, the lesser crime is furnishing alcohol to a minor, a misdemeanor.

The word “willfully” when applied to the intent with which an act is done or omitted means with a purpose or willingness to commit the act or to make the omission in question. The word “willfully” does not require any intent to violate the law, or to injure another, or to acquire any advantage.

The word “knowingly,” means with knowledge of the existence of the facts in question. Knowledge of the unlawfulness of any act or omission is not required.

To consent to an act or transaction, a person, one, must act freely and voluntarily and not under the influence of threats, force or duress; two, must have knowledge of the true nature of the act or transaction involved; and, three, must possess the mental capacity to make an intelligent choice whether or not to do something proposed by another person.

Merely being passive does not amount to consent. Consent requires a free will and positive cooperation in act or attitude.

Evidence consists of testimony of witnesses, writings, material objects, or anything presented to the senses and offered to prove the existence or nonexistence of a fact.

Evidence is either direct or circumstantial.

Direct evidence is evidence that directly proves a fact. It is evidence which, by itself, if found to be true, establishes that fact.

Circumstantial evidence is evidence that, if found to be true, proves a fact from which an inference of the existence of another fact may be drawn.

An inference is a deduction of fact that may logically and reasonably be drawn from another fact or group of facts established by the evidence.

It is not necessary that facts be proved by direct evidence. They also may be proved by circumstantial evidence or by a combination of direct and circumstantial evidence. Both direct and circumstantial evidence are acceptable as a means of proof. Neither is entitled to any greater weight than the other.

However, a finding of guilt as to any crime may not be based on circumstantial evidence unless the proved circumstance are not only, one, consistent with the theory that the defendant is guilty of the crime, but, two, cannot be reconciled with any other rational conclusion.

Further, each fact which is essential to complete a set of circumstances necessary to establish the defendant’s guilt must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. In other words, before an inference essential to establish guilt may be found to have been proved beyond a reasonable doubt, each fact or circumstance on which the inference necessarily rests must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt.

Also, if the circumstantial evidence as to any particular count permits two reasonable interpretations, one of which points to the defendant's guilt and the other to his innocence, you must adopt that interpretation that points to the defendant's innocence, and reject that interpretation that points to his guilt.

If, on the other hand, one interpretation of this evidence appears to you to be reasonable and the other interpretation to be unreasonable, you must accept the reasonable interpretation and reject the unreasonable.

The specific intent or mental state with which an act is done may be shown by the circumstances surrounding the commission of the act.

However, you may not find the defendant guilty of the crimes charged unless the proved circumstances are not only, one, consistent with the theory that the defendant had the required specific intent or mental state, but, two, cannot be reconciled with any other rational conclusion.

Also, if the evidence as to any specific intent or mental state permits two reasonable interpretations, one of which points to the existence of the specific intent or mental state and the other to its absence, you must adopt that interpretation which points to its absence. If, on the other hand, one interpretation of the evidence as to the specific intent or mental state appears to you to be reasonable and the other interpretation to be unreasonable, you must accept the reasonable interpretation and reject the unreasonable.

Certain evidence was admitted for a limited purpose.

At the time this evidence was admitted, you were instructed that it could not be considered by you for any purpose other than the limited purpose for which it was admitted.

Do not consider this evidence for any purpose except the limited purpose for which it was admitted.

You have been shown four different videotapes during the course of this proceeding:

One, “Living with Michael Jackson,” which has also been referred to as the “Bashir video”; two, the “outtakes video,” comprised of footage taken by Hamid Moslehi, Mr. Jackson’s videographer; three, the “rebuttal video,” made in response to the Bashir video and including comments from the Arvizo family; and, four, the Sheriff’s July 2003 interview with Gavin Arvizo. These videos are offered for limited purposes.

The video of “Living with Michael Jackson” is not offered for the truth of anything said or shown in the program, with the exception of certain identified passages. You will receive additional instruction with regard to these identified passages. The rest of the video is hearsay and cannot be considered by you to prove anything other than the fact the program aired in February of 2003 and its likely impact, if any, on Mr. Jackson’s state of mind.

You should not be biased, prejudiced or influenced in any way by the content of the video or its commercial packaging. Except for the limited specific statements that will be identified in People’s Exhibit 910, the remainder of the program should only be considered for the fact that it aired and its impact, if any, on Mr. Jackson.

The “outtakes video” was offered to provide context for the statements made in the Bashir video. None of the statements in the outtakes video may be considered for their truth, unless they are identical to the identified passages you may consider from the Bashir video.

The “rebuttal video” was offered by the Defense to dispute the claim that Mr. Jackson or his co-conspirators scripted the statements made by members of the Arvizo family in that video. The video was offered so that you could observe the demeanor of the members of the Arvizo family and determine whether their statements were scripted. None of the statements made in the rebuttal video may be considered for their truth.

The July 2003 interview of Gavin Arvizo was offered to rebut the claim that Gavin Arvizo's responses had been coached or scripted. The interview video was offered for the purpose of evaluating Gavin Arvizo's demeanor and assessing whether his responses were coached or scripted. None of the statements made in the interview video by Gavin Arvizo or the interviewers may be considered for their truth.

As I just told you, certain identified passages from the video "Living with Michael Jackson" have been offered for their truth as admissions.

An admission is a statement made by the defendant which does not, by itself, acknowledge his guilt of the crimes for which the defendant is on trial, but which statement tends to prove his guilt when considered with the rest of the evidence.

The statements that are being offered as admissions from the video "Living with Michael Jackson" will be identified for you as the People's Exhibit No. 910.

You are the exclusive judges as to whether the defendant made an admission, and if so, whether the statement is true in whole or in part.

Evidence of an oral admission of the defendant not made in court should be viewed with caution.

Neither side is required to call as witnesses all persons who may have been present at any of the events disclosed by the evidence or who may appear to have some knowledge of these events. Neither side is required to produce all objects or documents mentioned or suggested by the evidence.

There has been evidence in this case indicating that a person other than a defendant was or may have been involved in the crime for which the defendant is on trial.

There may be many reasons why that person is not here on trial. Therefore, do not speculate or guess as to why the other person is not being prosecuted in this trial or whether he has been or will be prosecuted. Your sole duty is to decide whether the People have proved the guilt of the defendant on trial.

Evidence that at some other time a witness made statements that are inconsistent or consistent with his or her testimony in this trial may be considered by you not only for the purpose of testing the credibility of the witness, but also as evidence of the truth of the facts as stated by the witness on that former occasion.

If you believe a witness's testimony that he or she no longer remembers a certain event, that testimony is inconsistent with a prior statement or statements by him or her describing that event.

Every person who testifies under oath or affirmation is a witness. You are the sole judges of the believability of a witness and the weight to be given the testimony of each witness.

In determining the believability of a witness, you may consider anything that has a tendency reasonably to prove or disprove the truthfulness of the testimony of the witness, including, but not limited to, any of the following:

The extent of the opportunity or ability of the witness to see or hear or otherwise become aware of any matter about which the witness has testified;

The ability of the witness to remember or to communicate any matter about which the witness has testified;

The character and quality of that testimony;

The demeanor and manner of the witness while testifying;

The existence or nonexistence of a bias, interest, or other motive;

The existence or nonexistence of any fact testified to by the witness;

The attitude of the witness toward this action or toward the giving of testimony;

A statement previously made by the witness that is consistent or inconsistent with his or her testimony;

The character of the witness for honesty or truthfulness or their opposites;

An admission by the witness of truthfulness;

Past criminal conduct of a witness;

Whether the witness is testifying under a grant of immunity.

Discrepancies in a witness's testimony, or between a witness's testimony and that of other witnesses, if there were any, do not necessarily mean that any witness should be discredited. Failure of recollection is common. Innocent misrecollection is not uncommon. Two persons witnessing an incident or a transaction often will see or hear it differently. You should consider whether a discrepancy relates to an important matter or only to something trivial.

A witness, who is willfully false in one material part of his or her testimony, is to be distrusted in others. You may reject the whole testimony of a witness who willfully has testified falsely as to a material point, unless, from all the evidence, you believe the probability of truth favors his or her testimony in other particulars.

You are not required to decide any issue of fact in accordance with the testimony of a number of witnesses, which does not convince you, as against the testimony of a lesser number or other evidence which you find more convincing. You may not disregard the testimony of the greater number of witnesses merely from caprice, whim or prejudice, or from a desire to favor one side against the other.

You must not decide an issue by the simple process of counting the number of witnesses who have testified on the opposite sides. The final test is not in the relative numbers of witnesses, but in the convincing force of the evidence.

Evidence has been introduced for the purpose of showing that a witness or witnesses engaged in past criminal conduct. This evidence may be considered by you only for the purpose of determining the believability of that witness. The fact that the witness engaged in past criminal conduct, if it is established, does not necessarily destroy or impair a witness’s believability. It is one of the circumstances that you may consider in weighing the testimony of that witness.

When a witness refuses to testify to any matter, relying on the constitutional privilege against self-incrimination, you must not draw from the exercise of this privilege any inference as to the believability of the witness or whether the defendant is guilty or not guilty or any other matter at issue in this trial.

When a witness refuses to testify to any matter, relying upon the exercise of a lawful privilege, you must not draw from that fact any inference as to the believability of the witness or whether the defendant is guilty or not guilty or any other matter at issue in this trial.

You should give the uncorroborated testimony of a single witness whatever weight you think it deserves. Testimony concerning any fact by one witness which you believe, whose testimony about that fact does not require corroboration, is sufficient for the proof of that fact. You should carefully review all the evidence upon which the proof of that fact depends.

Evidence has been introduced for the purpose of showing that the defendant committed crimes other than that for which he is on trial.

Except as you will otherwise be instructed, this evidence, if believed, may be considered by you only for the limited purpose of determining if it tends to show:

A characteristic method, plan or scheme in the commission of criminal acts similar to the method, plan or scheme used in the commission of the offense in this case which would further tend to show the existence of the intent which is a necessary element of the crime charged;

The existence of the intent which is a necessary element of the crime charged;

A motive for the commission of the crime charged;

For the limited purpose for which you may consider such evidence, you must weigh it in the same manner as you do all other evidence in this case.

Evidence has been introduced for the purpose of showing that the defendant engaged in a sexual offense on one or more occasions other than that charged in the case.

“Sexual offense” means a crime under the laws of a state or of the United States that involves:

Any conduct made criminal by Penal Code Section 288, and that should be a sub (a), with parentheses on the “a.” The elements of this crime is set forth elsewhere in these instructions.

If you find that the defendant committed a prior sexual offense, you may not -- excuse me.

If you find that the defendant committed a prior sexual offense, you may, but are not required to, infer that the defendant had a disposition to commit sexual offenses. If you find that the defendant had this disposition, you may, but are not required to, infer that he was likely to commit and did commit the crime or crimes of which he is accused.

However, if you find by a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant committed a prior sexual offense, or offenses, that is not sufficient by itself to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that he committed the crimes charged.

If you determine an inference properly can be drawn from this evidence, this inference is simply one item for you to consider, along with all other evidence, in determining whether the defendant has been proved guilty beyond a reasonable doubt of the charged crime.

Within the meaning of the preceding instructions, the prosecution has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that a defendant committed sexual offenses other than those for which he is on trial.

You must not consider this evidence for any purpose unless you find by a preponderance of the evidence that the defendant committed the other sexual offenses.

If you find other crimes were committed by a preponderance of the evidence, you are nevertheless cautioned and reminded that before a defendant can be found guilty of any crime charged in this trial, the evidence as a whole must persuade you beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty of that crime.

“Preponderance of the evidence” means evidence that has more convincing force than that opposed to it. If the evidence is so evenly balanced that you are unable to find that the evidence on either side of an issue preponderates, your finding on that issue must be against the party who had the burden of proving it.

You should consider all of the evidence bearing upon every issue regardless of who produced it.

Motive is not an element of the crime charged and need not be shown. However, you may consider motive or lack of motive as a circumstance in this case. Presence of motive may tend to establish the defendant is guilty. Absence of motive may tend to show the defendant is not guilty.

A defendant in a criminal trial has a constitutional right not to be compelled to testify. You must not draw any inference from the fact that a defendant does not testify. Further, you must neither discuss this matter nor permit it to enter into your deliberations in any way.

In deciding whether or not to testify, the defendant may choose to rely on the state of the evidence and upon the failure, if any, of the People to prove beyond a reasonable doubt every essential element of the charge against him. No lack of testimony on defendant’s part will make up for a failure of proof by the People so as to support a finding against him on any essential element.

An admission is a statement made by the defendant which does not, by itself, acknowledge his guilt of the crimes for which the defendant is on trial, but which statement tends to prove his guilt when considered with the rest of the evidence.

You are the exclusive judges as to whether the defendant made an admission, and if so, whether the statement is true in whole or in part.

Evidence of an oral admission of the defendant not made in court should be viewed with caution.

Evidence has been received from which you may find that an oral statement of intent was made by the defendant before the offense with which he is charged was committed.

It is for you to decide whether the statement was made by the defendant.

Evidence of an oral statement ought to be viewed with caution.

No person may be convicted of a criminal offense unless there is some proof of each element of the crime independent of any admission made by him outside the trial.

The identity of the person who is alleged to have committed a crime is not an element of the crime. The identity may be established by an admission.

Witnesses who have special knowledge, skill, experience, training or education in a particular subject have testified to certain opinions. This type of witness is referred to as an expert witness. In determining what weight to give to any opinion expressed by an expert witness, you should consider the qualifications and believability of the witness, the facts or materials upon which each opinion is based, and the reasons for each opinion.

An opinion is only as good as the facts and reasons on which it is based. If you find that any fact has not been proved, or has been disproved, you must consider that in determining the value of the opinion. Likewise, you must consider the strengths and weaknesses of the reasons on which it is based. You are not bound by an opinion. Give each opinion the weight you find it deserves. You may disregard any opinion if you find it to be unreasonable.

In determining the weight to be given to an opinion expressed by any witness who did not testify as an expert witness, you should consider his or her believability, the extent of his or her opportunity to perceive the matters upon which his or her opinion is based and the reasons, if any, given for it. You are not required to accept an opinion, but should give it the weight, if any, to which you find it entitled.

In examining an expert witness, counsel may ask a hypothetical question. This is a question in which the witness is asked to assume the truth of a set of facts, and to give an opinion based on that assumption.

In permitting this type of question, the Court does not rule and does not necessarily find that all of the assumed facts have been proved. It only determines that those assumed facts are within the possible range of the evidence. It is for you to decide from the evidence whether or not the facts assumed in a hypothetical question have been proved.

If you should decide that any assumption in a question has not been proved, you are to determine the effect of that failure of proof on the value and weight of the expert opinion based on the assumed facts.

In resolving any conflict that may exist in the testimony of expert witnesses, you should weigh the opinion of one expert against that of another.

In doing this, you should consider the qualifications and believability of each witness, the reasons for each opinion and the matter upon which it is based.

A defendant in a criminal action is presumed to be innocent until the contrary is proved, and in case of a reasonable doubt whether his guilt is satisfactorily shown, he is entitled to a verdict of not guilty. This presumption places upon the People the burden of proving him guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

“Reasonable doubt” is defined as follows:

It is not a mere possible doubt, because everything relating to human affairs is open to some possible or imaginary doubt. It is that state of the case which, after the entire comparison and consideration of all the evidence, leaves the minds of the jurors in that condition that they cannot say they feel an abiding conviction of the truth of the charge.

In the crimes charged in Counts 1 through 10, there must exist a union or joint operation of act or conduct and a certain specific intent in the mind of the perpetrator. Unless this specific intent exists, the crime to which it relates is not committed.

The specific intent required is included in the definitions of the crimes set forth elsewhere in these instructions.

The crime of conspiracy, as alleged in Count 1, requires the specific intent to agree to commit a crime and a further specific intent to commit that crime.

The crime of lewd act with a child under 14 years of age, as alleged in Counts 2, 3, 4 and 5, requires the specific intent to arouse, appeal to, or gratify the lusts or passions or sexual desires of the perpetrator or the child.

The crime of attempted lewd act with a child under 14 years of age, as alleged in Count 6, requires the specific intent to commit a lewd act with a child under 14 years of age and the specific intent to arouse, appeal to, or gratify the lusts or passions or sexual desires of the perpetrator or the child.

The crime of administering an intoxicating agent to another, as alleged in Count 7, 8, 9 and 10, requires the specific intent thereby to enable or assist the perpetrator to commit a felony.

In the crimes charged in Counts 1 through 10, or lesser crimes thereto, there must exist a union or joint operation of act or conduct and a certain mental state in the mind of the perpetrator. Unless this mental state exists, the crime to which it relates is not committed.

The mental states required are included in the definitions of the crimes set forth elsewhere in these instructions.

Defendant is accused in Count 1 of having committed the crime of conspiracy, a violation of Section 182 of the Penal Code, on or about a period of time between February 1, 2003, and March 31, 2003.

Defendant is accused in Counts 2 through 5 of having committed the crime of lewd act upon a child, a violation of Penal Code Section 288, Subdivision (a), on or about a period of time between February 20, 2003, and March 12, 2003.

Defendant is accused in Count 6 of having attempted to commit the crime of lewd act upon a child, a violation of Penal Code Section 664 and 288, Subdivision (a), on or about a period of time between February 20, 2003, and March 12th, 2003.

Defendant is accused in Count 7 through 10 of administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony, in violation of Penal Code Section 222, on or about a period of time between February 20, 2003, and March 12th, 2003.

In order to find the defendant guilty of the crime charged against him in a particular count, it is necessary for the prosecution to prove beyond a reasonable doubt the commission of a specific act or acts constituting that crime within the period alleged.

And, in order to find the defendant guilty of the crime charged against him in a particular count, you must unanimously agree upon the commission of the same specific act or acts constituting that crime within the period alleged.

It is not necessary that the particular act or acts committed, so agreed upon, be stated in the verdict.

An attempt to commit a crime consists of two elements; namely, a specific intent to commit the crime, and a direct but ineffectual act done toward its commission.

In determining whether this act was done, it is necessary to distinguish between mere preparation on the one hand, and the actual commencement of the doing of the criminal deed on the other. Mere preparation, which may consist of planning the offense or of devising, obtaining or arranging the means for its commission, is not sufficient to constitute an attempt. However, acts of a person who intends to commit a crime will constitute an attempt where those acts clearly indicate a certain, unambiguous intent to commit that specific crime. These acts must be an immediate step in the present execution of the criminal design, the progress of which would be completed unless interrupted by some circumstance not intended in the original design.

You know, I read to my wife at night so she'll go to sleep. I'm not having that effect here, huh?

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Okay. A conspiracy, as charged in Count 1 of the Indictment, is an agreement entered into between two or more persons with the specific intent to agree to commit the crime of child abduction, false imprisonment, or extortion, and with the further specific intent to commit that crime or crimes, followed by an overt act committed in this state by one or more of the parties for the purpose of accomplishing the object of the agreement.

Conspiracy is a crime.

In order to find a defendant guilty of conspiracy, in addition to proof of the unlawful agreement and specific intent, there must be proof of the commission of at least one of the acts alleged in the Indictment to be an overt act and that the act found to have been committed was an overt act. It is not necessary to the guilt of the defendant that he personally committed an overt act if he was one of the conspirators when the alleged overt act was committed.

The term “overt act” means any step taken or act committed by one or more of the conspirators which goes beyond mere planning or agreement to commit a crime and which step or act is done in furtherance of the accomplishment of the object of the conspiracy.

To be an “overt act,” the step taken or act committed need not, in and of itself, constitute the crime or even an attempt to commit the crime which is the ultimate object of the conspiracy. Nor is it required that the step or act, in and of itself, be criminal or an unlawful act.

Each member of a criminal conspiracy is liable for each act and bound by each declaration of every other member of the conspiracy if that act or declaration is in furtherance of the object of the conspiracy.

The act of one conspirator pursuant to or in furtherance of the common design of the conspiracy is the act of all conspirators.

A member of a conspiracy is not only guilty of the particular crime that to his knowledge his confederates agreed to and did commit, but is also liable for the natural and probable consequences of any crime or act of a co-conspirator to further the object of the conspiracy, even though that crime or act was not intended as a part of the agreed-upon objective and even though he was not present at the time of the commission of that crime or act.

You must determine whether the defendant is guilty as a member of a conspiracy to commit the originally agreed-upon crime or crimes, and, if so, whether the crimes alleged in Count 1 was perpetrated by co-conspirators in furtherance of that conspiracy and was a natural and probable consequence of the agreed-upon criminal objective of that conspiracy.

In determining whether a consequence is "natural and probable," you must apply an objective test based on what the defendant actually intended -- excuse me.

In determining whether a consequence is "natural and probable," you must apply an objective test based not on what the defendant actually intended, but on what a person of reasonable and ordinary prudence would have expected would be likely to occur. The issue is to be decided in light of all of the circumstances surrounding the incident. A "natural consequence" is one which is within the normal range of outcomes that may be reasonably expected to occur if nothing unusual has intervened. "Probable" means likely to happen.

The formation and existence of a conspiracy may be inferred from all circumstances tending to show that -- the common intent and may be proved in the same way as any other fact may be proved, either by direct testimony of the fact or by circumstantial evidence, or by both direct and circumstantial evidence. It is not necessary to show a meeting of the alleged conspirators or the making of an express or formal agreement.

Evidence that a person was in the company of or associated with one or more other persons alleged or proved to have been members of a conspiracy is not, in itself, sufficient to prove that person was a member of the alleged conspiracy.

It is not a defense to the crime of conspiracy that an alleged conspirator did not know all the other conspirators. The members of a conspiracy may be widely separated geographically, and yet may be in agreement on a criminal design and may act in concert in pursuit of that design. The adoption by a person of the criminal design and criminal intent entertained in common by others and of its object and purposes is all that is necessary to make that person a co-conspirator when the required elements of a conspiracy are present.

Where a conspirator commits an act or makes a declaration which is neither in furtherance of the object of the conspiracy nor the natural and probable consequence of an attempt to attain that object, he alone is responsible for and bound by that act or declaration, and no criminal responsibility therefor attaches to any of his confederates.

The act or declaration of a person who is not a member of a conspiracy is not binding upon the members of the conspiracy, even if the act or declaration tended to promote the object of the conspiracy.

Evidence of the commission of an act which furthered the purpose of an alleged conspiracy is not, in itself, sufficient to prove that the person committing the act was a member of the alleged conspiracy.

Every person who joins a conspiracy after its formation is liable for and bound by the acts committed and declarations made by other members in pursuance and furtherance of the conspiracy during the time that he is a member of the conspiracy.

A person who joins a conspiracy after its formation is not liable or bound by the acts of the co-conspirators or for any crime committed by the co-conspirators before that person joins and becomes a member of the conspiracy.

Evidence of any acts done or declarations made by other conspirators prior to the time that person becomes a member of the conspiracy may be considered by you in determining the nature, objectives and purposes of the conspiracy, but for no other purpose.

A member of a conspiracy is liable for the acts and declarations of his co-conspirators until he effectively withdraws from the conspiracy or the conspiracy has terminated.

In order to effectively withdraw from a conspiracy, there must be an affirmative and good-faith rejection or repudiation of the conspiracy which must be communicated to the other conspirators of whom he has knowledge.

If a member of a conspiracy has effectively withdrawn from the conspiracy, he is not thereafter liable for any act of the co-conspirators committed after his withdrawal from the conspiracy, but he is not relieved of responsibility for the acts of his co-conspirators committed while he was a member.

No act or declaration of a conspirator committed or made after the conspiracy has been terminated is binding upon co-conspirators, and they are not criminally liable for that act.

The defendant in this case is entitled to, and must receive, your determination whether he was a member of the alleged conspiracy. You must determine whether he was a conspirator by deciding whether he willfully, intentionally and knowingly joined with any other or others in the alleged conspiracy.

Before you may return a guilty verdict of the crime of conspiracy as charged in Count 1, you must unanimously agree and find beyond a reasonable doubt that, one, there was a conspiracy to commit more -- excuse me -- there was a conspiracy to commit one or more of the crimes of extortion, child abuse and false imprisonment; and two, the defendant willfully, intentionally and knowingly joined with any other or others in the alleged conspiracy.

You must also unanimously agree and find beyond a reasonable doubt that an overt act was committed by one of the conspirators. You are not required to unanimously agree as to who committed an overt act, or which overt act was committed, so long as each of you finds beyond a reasonable doubt that one of the conspirators committed one of the acts alleged in the Indictment to be overt acts.

In this case the defendant is charged with conspiracy to commit the following public crimes:

One, a violation of Penal Code Section 278, child abduction, a felony; Two, a violation of Penal Code Section 236, false imprisonment, a felony; Three, a violation of Penal Code Section 518, extortion, a felony.

It is alleged that the following acts were committed in this state by one or more of the defendants and were overt acts and committed for the purpose of furthering the object of the conspiracy.

Overt Act No. 1: On or about February 4th, 2003, Michael Joe Jackson told Janet Arvizo that the lives of her children, Gavin, Star and Davellin Arvizo, were in danger due to the recent broadcast on British television of the documentary "Living with Michael Jackson," in which Gavin Arvizo appears with Michael Joe Jackson. Michael Joe Jackson did tell Janet Arvizo that she and her three children would be flown to Miami to participate in a press conference, which press conference never took place.

Overt Act No. 2: On and between February 4th, 2003, and February 5th, 2003, the documentary "Living with Michael Jackson," in which Gavin Arvizo appears, was broadcast in the United States. Michael Joe Jackson did personally prevent the Arvizo family from viewing the program while at the Turnberry Resort Hotel in Miami, Florida.

Overt Act No. 3: On and between February 7th, 2003, and February 8th, 2003, Michael Joe Jackson did return the Arvizo family to Santa Barbara in a private jet. On the flight, Michael Joe Jackson did sit with Gavin Arvizo and did give him an alcoholic beverage, concealed in a soft drink can. Michael Joe Jackson did then present Gavin Arvizo with a wristwatch. Michael Joe Jackson did tell Gavin Arvizo that the watch was worth $75,000. Michael Joe Jackson did tell Gavin Arvizo not to tell anyone about them drinking alcoholic beverages together.

Overt Act No. 4: On or about February 8th, 2003, Michael Joe Jackson brought the Arvizo family to Jackson's Neverland Ranch, where Gavin, Star, Davellin and Janet Arvizo remained for approximately five days.

Overt Act No. 5: On and between February 6, 2003, and February 12th, 2003, in both Miami, Florida, and at Neverland Ranch in Santa Barbara County, Ronald Konitzer and Dieter Weizner did tell Janet Arvizo that there were death threats made against her and her children by unknown individuals. They did further tell Janet Arvizo that the only way to assure the safety of her family was for the Arvizos to participate in the making of a “rebuttal” video favorable to Michael Joe Jackson.

Overt Act No. 6: On and between February 12th, 2003, and February 15th, 2003, after the Arvizo family had departed Neverland Ranch in the night, Frank Cascio, aka Frank Tyson, did telephone Janet Arvizo and urge her to return with her children to Neverland Ranch and did say, “I know Michael would love for you to come back to the ranch, for the safety of all concerned,” and “Now is not the right time to be out there alone,” and “Never turn your back on Michael,” and “Michael wants to see you and the family,” and “You need to go back to the ranch and see Michael, because he is very concerned,” and “Even staying another night alone is not safe.”

Frank Cascio, aka Frank Tyson, did tell Janet Arvizo that, “We would love for you to go on tape and just say something beautiful about Michael.” Frank Cascio did assure Janet Arvizo and Gavin Arvizo that Ronald Konitzer and Dieter Weizner would no longer be present at the ranch if they returned. He did state, “They are not there; I know that for a fact.”

Overt Act No. 7: On and between February 2003 and March 2003, at Neverland Ranch, Frank Cascio, aka Frank Tyson, did threaten Star Arvizo that Cascio did have ways to make Star Arvizo’s grandparents “disappear.” Frank Cascio did tell Gavin Arvizo, “I could have your mother killed.”

Overt Act No. 8: On or about February 14th, 2003, and February 15th, 2003, Michael Joe Jackson's personal chauffeur, Gary Hearn, did drive to Janet Arvizo's Los Angeles residence and did transport her and her children back to Neverland Ranch in Santa Barbara County.

Overt Act No. 9: On and between February 14th, 2003, and February 15th, 2003, upon the Arvizo family's return to Neverland Ranch, Ronald Konitzer and Dieter Weizner were, in fact, present; whereupon Janet Arvizo asked to leave with her children. Ronald Konitzer and Dieter Weizner did tell Janet Arvizo that she was free to depart; however, her children must remain at the ranch.

Overt Act No. 10: During the month of February 2003, in Santa Barbara County, California, Michael Joe Jackson's personal security staff was directed in writing not to allow Gavin Arvizo to leave Neverland Ranch.

Overt Act No. 11: During the month of February 2003, Frederic Marc Schaffel, Christian Robinson and an unknown attorney did prepare a script of questions to be asked of the Arvizo family during the filming of the "rebuttal" video by Hamid Moslehi.

Gee. I need a drink - of water.

I'll try that one again.

During the month of February 2003, Frederic Marc Schaffel, Christian Robinson, and an unknown attorney did prepare a script of questions to be asked of the Arvizo family during the filming of the "rebuttal" video by Hamid Moslehi, Michael Joe Jackson's personal videographer.

Overt Act No. 12: On or about February 19th, 2003, the Arvizo children were transported by Hamid Moslehi from Neverland Ranch to Moslehi's home in the San Fernando Valley, and on the same date, Vinnie Amen did transport Janet Arvizo to Hamid Moslehi's residence for the filming of the "rebuttal" video.

Overt Act No. 13: On or about February 19th, 2003, and February 20th, 2003, in Los Angeles County, between 11 p.m. and 1 a.m., the employees and associates of Michael Joe Jackson did tape the “rebuttal” video, an interview of the Arvizo family, in the presence of Vinnie Amen and Bradley Miller, a licensed private investigator. During the taping, previously scripted questions were asked of the Arvizo family.

Overt Act No. 14: On or about February 20th, 2003, Vinnie Amen did transport Janet Arvizo to Norwalk, in Los Angeles County, to obtain birth certificates of the Arvizo family for the purpose of obtaining passports and visas to travel to Brazil.

Overt Act No. 15: On and between February 25th, 2003, and March 2nd, 2003, Vinnie Amen did take the Arvizo family from Neverland Ranch to the Country Inn & Suites in Calabasas, Los Angeles County. Vinnie Amen did transport Janet Arvizo to public offices in Los Angeles County where passports showing the destinations of Italy and France and visas for the entrance to Brazil for the Arvizo family were obtained. Frederic Marc Schaffel, business partner of Michael Joe Jackson and president of Neverland Valley Entertainment, did pay expenses in connection with this activity.

Overt Act No. 16: On or about February 25, 2003, Frederic Marc Schaffel did make airline reservations for the Arvizo family to travel to Brazil on March 3rd, 2003.

Overt Act No. 17: On or about February 26th, 2003, Frederic Marc Schaffel paid Frank Cascio, aka Frank Tyson, $1,000 in connection with “vacation” expenses for the Arvizo family.

Overt Act No. 18: On or about February 27th, 2003, Frederic Marc Schaffel did pay Vinnie Amen the sum of $500 cash for costs related to the Brazilian visas of the Arvizo family.

Overt Act No. 19: On and between February 2003 and March 2003, at the Neverland Ranch, Michael Joe Jackson did have Gavin Arvizo sleep in his bedroom and in his bed.

Overt Act No. 20: On and between February

2003 and March 2003, at Neverland Ranch, Michael Joe Jackson did house Janet and Davellin Arvizo in a guest cottage on Neverland Ranch, where Janet and Davellin Arvizo slept.

Overt Act No. 21: On and between February 2003 and March 2003, at Neverland Ranch, Michael Joe Jackson did show sexually explicit materials to Gavin and Star Arvizo.

Overt Act No. 22: On and between February 2003 and March 2003, at Neverland Ranch, Michael Joe Jackson did drink alcoholic beverages in the presence of Gavin and Star Arvizo and provided alcoholic beverages to them.

Overt Act No. 23: On and between February 2003 and March 2003, Michael Joe Jackson did monitor and maintain control over the activities at Neverland Ranch by means of multiple interior door locks, proximity sensor alarm devices, and a keypad combination lock, as well as video and telephone surveillance equipment. Michael Joe Jackson did personally monitor telephone conversations of Janet Arvizo without her knowledge or permission.

Overt Act No. 24: On or about March 1, 2003, Vinnie Amen did pay the rent on the residence of the Arvizo family in Los Angeles County and moved their belongings into storage.

Overt Act No. 25: On or about March 6th, 2003, Vinnie Amen did go to John Burroughs Middle School in Los Angeles County and he did withdraw Gavin and Star Arvizo from their enrollment there, telling school authorities that the children were relocating to Phoenix, Arizona.

Overt Act No. 26: On or about March 9th, 2003, Michael Joe Jackson was told by Gavin Arvizo that Gavin Arvizo had a medical appointment the following day, at which time he was to give the medical staff a 24-hour-long urine collection specimen for laboratory analysis. Michael Joe Jackson, in Santa Barbara County, did tell Gavin Arvizo to cancel the appointment, because the sample would reveal that Gavin Arvizo had been consuming alcoholic beverages while staying at Neverland Ranch.

On or about March 10th, 2003, in Los Angeles County, after Janet Arvizo refused to cancel the medical appointment and while on the way to the medical appointment, Vinnie Amen did destroy most of Gavin Arvizo’s collected urine specimen, intended for laboratory analysis in connection with Gavin Arvizo’s follow-up treatment for the disease of cancer.

Overt Act No. 27: On and between February 2003 and March 2003, in Los Angeles County, and as revealed by a surveillance videotape located on November 18th, 2003, in the office of Private Investigator Bradley Miller, an unknown co-conspirator conducted video surveillance of Gavin Arvizo and various members of Gavin Arvizo’s family, including his grandmother and grandfather, his mother, his mother’s boyfriend, his brother and his sister, at and near their respective residences and elsewhere.

Overt Act No. 28: On or about March 31st, 2003, Michael Joe Jackson did direct Frederic Marc Schaffel to pay Frank Cascio, aka Frank Tyson, the sum of one million dollars from “Petty Cash” of Neverland Valley Entertainment on behalf of Michael Joe Jackson.

Evidence of a statement made by one alleged conspirator other than at this trial shall not be considered by you as against another alleged conspirator unless you determine by a preponderance of the evidence:

One, that from other independent evidence that at the time the statement was made a conspiracy to commit a crime existed;

Two, that the statement was made while the person making the statement was participating in the conspiracy and that the person against whom it was offered was participating in the conspiracy before or during that time;

And, three, that that statement was made in furtherance of the objective of the conspiracy.

The word “statement” as used in this instruction includes any oral or written verbal expression or the nonverbal conduct of a person intended by that person as a substitute for oral or written verbal expression.

Defendant is charged in Count 1 with conspiracy to commit the crime of extortion, in violation of Penal Code Section 518, the crime of child abduction, in violation of Penal Code Section 278, and the crime of false imprisonment, in violation of Penal Code Section 236.

In order to find the defendant guilty of the crime of conspiracy, you must find beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant conspired to commit one or more of the crimes, and you also must unanimously agree as to which particular crime or crimes he conspired to commit.

If you find the defendant guilty of conspiracy, you will then include a finding on the question as to which such alleged crimes you unanimously agree the defendant conspired to commit. A form will be supplied to you for that purpose.

Defendant is accused in Count 1 of having conspired to commit the crime of false imprisonment by violence or menace, a violation of Section 236 of the Penal Code.

Every person who, by violence or menace, violates the liberty of another person by intentionally and unlawfully restraining, confining or detaining that person and compelling that person to stay or go somewhere without his or her consent is guilty of the crime of false imprisonment by violence or menace, in violation of Penal Code Section 236.

“Violence” means the exercise of physical force used to restrain over and above the force reasonably necessary to effect the restraint.

“Menace” means a threat of harm, express or implied, by word or act.

False imprisonment does not require that there be confinement in a jail or prison.

In order to prove this crime, each of the following elements must be proved:

One, a person intentionally and unlawfully restrained, confined, or detained another person, compelling him or her to stay or go somewhere;

Two, the other person did not consent to the restraint, confinement, or detention;

And, three, the restraint, confinement or detention was accomplished by violence or menace.

In the crime of false imprisonment, there must exist a union or joint operation of act or conduct and general criminal intent. General criminal intent does not require an intent to violate the law. When a person intentionally does that which the law declares to be a crime, he is acting with general criminal intent, even though he may not know that his act or conduct is unlawful.

However, before a person can be convicted of conspiracy to commit false imprisonment, the specific intents to commit conspiracy must be proved.

Defendant is accused in Count 1 of having conspired to commit the crime of child abduction, a violation of Section 278 of the Penal Code.

Every person, not having a right of custody, who maliciously takes and entices away, keeps, withholds or conceals any child with the specific intent to detain or conceal the child from a lawful custodian is guilty of the crime of child abduction, in violation of Penal Code Section 278.

In order to prove this crime, each of the following elements must be proved:

One, a person took, enticed away, kept,

withheld, or concealed a child;

Two, that person did not have a right of custody of the child;

Three, that person acted maliciously;

And four, with the specific intent to detain or conceal the child from a lawful custodian.

As used in the crime of child abduction:

"Child" means a person under the age of 18.

"Maliciously" means with intent to vex, annoy or injure another person, or to do a wrongful act.

"Fraudulently" includes all surprise, trick, cunning, and unfair ways by which one person deceives or attempts to deceive another.

"Keeps" or "withholds" means retains physical possession of a child whether or not the child resists or objects.

"To entice" means to allure, to attract, to draw on, or to lead astray by exciting hope or desire. It does not necessarily include any domination over the child's will.

"Detain" means to delay, to hinder, or to retard. It does not necessarily include force or menace.

"Lawful custodian" means a person, guardian or public agency having a right to custody of a child.

"Abduct" means take, entice away, keep, withhold, or conceal.

The fact that a minor child decided to go, or to stay, or decided voluntarily to accompany an adult is not a defense to the crime of unlawfully taking, obtaining, concealing, or enticing away a minor child.

Defendant is accused in Counts 2, 3, 4 and 5 of having committed the crime of lewd act with a child, in violation of Section 288, Subdivision (a), of the Penal Code.

Every person who willfully commits any lewd or lascivious act upon or with the body, or any part or member thereof, of a child under the age of 14 years, with the specific intent of arousing, appealing to, or gratifying the lust or passions or sexual desires of that person or that child, is guilty of the crime of committing a lewd or lascivious act upon the body of a child, in violation of Penal Code Section 288, Subdivision (a).

A "lewd or lascivious act" is defined as any touching of the body of a child under the age of 14 years with the specific intent to arouse, appeal to, or gratify the sexual desires of either party. To constitute a lewd or lascivious act, it is not necessary that the bare skin be touched. The touching may be through the clothing of the child.

The law does not require as an essential element of the crime that the lust, passions, or sexual desires of either of such persons be actually aroused, appealed to, or gratified.

It is no defense to this charge that a child under the age of 14 years may have consented to the alleged lewd or lascivious act.

In order to prove this crime, each of the following elements must be proved:

A person touched the body of a child;

The child was under 14 years of age;

And, three, the touching was done with the specific intent to arouse, appeal to, or gratify the lust, passions or sexual desires of that person or the child.

It is not essential to a finding of guilt on a charge of lewd acts with a child under the age of 14 years that the testimony of the witness with whom the sexual relations is alleged to have been committed be corroborated by other evidence.

Is it time for a break? I think so. We’re very close, but let’s take a break.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: All right.

Evidence has been presented to you concerning Child Sexual Abuse Accommodation Syndrome. This evidence is not received and must not be considered by you as proof that the alleged victim’s molestation claim is true.

Child Sexual Abuse Accommodation Syndrome research is based upon an approach that is completely different from that which you must take to this case. The syndrome research begins with the assumption that a molestation has occurred and seeks to describe and explain common reactions of children to that experience. As distinguished from the research approach, you are to presume the defendant innocent. The People have the burden of proving guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

You should consider the evidence concerning the syndrome and its effect only for the limited purpose of showing, if it does, that the alleged victim's reactions, as demonstrated by the evidence, are not inconsistent with him having been molested.

Defendant is accused in Count 1 of having conspired to violate 518 of the Penal Code.

Every person who obtains property or other things of value from another with his or her consent, which consent has been induced by a wrongful use of fear, is guilty of the crime of extortion, in violation of Penal Code Section 518.

In order to prove this crime, each of the following elements must be proved:

One, a person obtained property or something of value from the alleged victim;

Two, the property or thing of value was obtained with the consent of the alleged victim;

Three, the alleged victim's consent was induced by the wrongful use of fear;

And, four, the person who wrongfully used fear did so with the specific intent to induce the alleged victim to consent to the giving up of his or her property or thing of value.

The terms "property" and "something of value," as used in the law of extortion, include both tangible and intangible property to which a monetary value can be found. Intangible property includes every benefit and legal right belonging to a person and susceptible of being enjoyed, exercised or disposed of by him or her. Examples include a person's personal identification number, PIN number, for access to his or her bank account, or a person's right to pursue available legal remedies, and a person's exclusive right to make use of his or her name or likeness for commercial purposes.

Fear may be induced by a threat to inflict an unlawful injury on the person threatened or a third person.

The words “unlawful injury” mean an injury which, if inflicted, would create civil liability against the person doing it and would support a civil action against the person. A threat to do that which one has a legal right to do is not a threat to do an unlawful injury.

To constitute extortion, the fear induced by the threat must be the operating or inducing cause which produces consent and results in the property or other thing of value being delivered to another.

If some other cause is the primary and controlling cause for the consent to the property or thing of value being delivered to another, the crime of extortion has not been proved.

As used in the law of extortion, “consent” is obtained from the person threatened when property or other thing of value is turned over to another with the understanding that the person threatened will be saved from injury to the person threatened or a third person.

The delivery of the property or other thing of value is the lesser of two unpleasant alternatives. Consent, as used in the law of extortion, exists under these circumstances notwithstanding the fact that the person threatened may violently protest in his or her own mind against the circumstances which compel the choice.

A coerced and unwilling consent compelled by the wrongful use of force or fear constitutes consent in extortion.

Defendant is accused in Count 7, 8, 9 and 10 of having committed the crime of administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony.

Any person who administers to another any intoxicating agent with the intent to enable or assist himself or any other person to commit a felony is guilty of the crime of administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony.

In order to prove this crime, each of the following elements must be proved:

One, administers to another any intoxicating agent;

Two, with the specific intent to enable or assist himself or any other person to commit a felony.

If you are not satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty of the crime charged, you may nevertheless convict him of any lesser crime if you are convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty of the lesser crime.

The crime of furnishing alcohol to a minor is lesser to that of administering an intoxicating agent as charged in Count 7 through 10.

Thus, you are to determine whether the defendant is guilty or not guilty of the crimes charged in 7 through 10 or of any lesser crimes. In doing so, you have discretion to choose the order in which you evaluate each crime and consider the evidence pertaining to it. You may find it productive to consider and reach a tentative conclusion on all charges and lesser crimes before reaching any final verdict. However, the Court cannot accept a guilty verdict on a lesser crime unless you have unanimously found the defendant not guilty of the charged greater crime.

If you are not satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty of the crime of which is he accused in Count 7, 8, 9 and 10, and you unanimously so find, you may convict him of any lesser crime provided you are satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that he is guilty of that crime.

You will be provided with guilty and not guilty verdict forms for the crime charged in Count 7, 8, 9 and 10, and the lesser crime thereto. The crime of furnishing an alcoholic beverage to a person under 21 years is a lesser crime to that of administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony.

Thus, you are to determine whether the defendant is guilty or not guilty of the crime charged in Count 7, 8, 9 or 10 or of any lesser crime. In doing so, you have discretion to choose the order in which you evaluate each crime and consider the evidence pertaining to it. You may find it to be productive to consider and reach tentative conclusions on all charged and lesser crimes before reaching any final verdicts.

Disregard the instructions previously given which requires that you return but one verdict form as to Counts 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10.

Before you return any final or formal verdict, you must be guided by the following:

One, if you unanimously find the defendant guilty of the crime of which he is accused in Count 7, 8, 9 and 10, your foreperson shall sign and date the corresponding verdict form. All other verdict forms as to Count 7, 8, 9 and 10 must be left unsigned;

Two, if you are unable to reach a unanimous verdict as to the crime of which the defendant is accused in Count 7, 8, 9 or 10, do not sign any verdict form as to the count or counts as to which you are in disagreement and report your disagreement to the Court;

Three, the Court cannot accept a guilty verdict on a lesser crime unless the jury also unanimously finds and returns a signed verdict form of not guilty as to the charged greater crime;

Four, if you unanimously agree and find the defendant not guilty of the crime with which he is charged in Count 7, 8, 9 or 10, but cannot reach a unanimous agreement as to the lesser crime, your foreperson should sign and date the not guilty verdict form as to the charged crime and report your disagreement as to the lesser crimes to the Court.

Every person who unlawfully sells, furnishes, gives or causes to be sold, furnished or given away any alcoholic beverage to any person under the age of 21 is guilty of a violation of Business & Professions Code Section 25658, Subdivision (a), a misdemeanor.

In order to prove this crime, each of the following elements must be proved:

One, Defendant Michael Jackson furnished, gave or caused to be furnished or given away an alcoholic beverage to Gavin Arvizo;

And, two, Gavin Arvizo was under the age of 21 years.

In the crime of furnishing an alcoholic beverage to a person under 21 years, which is a lesser crime of the crime charged in Count 7, 8, 9 and 10 of the Indictment, there must exist a union or joint operation of act or conduct and general criminal intent. General criminal intent does not require an intent to violate the law. When a person intentionally does that which the law declares to be a crime, he is acting with general criminal intent even though he may not know that his act or conduct is unlawful.

The defendant is accused of having committed the crime of a lewd act upon a child under 14 in Counts 2 through 5. Similarly, the defendant is accused in Count 6 of having attempted to commit the crime of a lewd act upon a child. Also, the defendant is accused in Count 7 through 10 of having committed the crime of administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony or the lesser-included offense of furnishing alcohol to a minor.

The prosecution has introduced evidence for the purpose of showing that there is more than one act upon which a conviction for each count may be based. Defendant may be found guilty if the proof shows beyond a reasonable doubt that he committed any one or more of the acts. However, in order to return a verdict of guilty as to any individual count, all jurors must agree that he committed the same act or acts. It is not necessary that the particular act agreed upon be stated in your verdict.

Each count charges a distinct crime. You must decide each count separately. The defendant may be found guilty or not guilty of any or all of the crimes charged in Counts 1 through 10. Your finding as to each count must be stated in a separate verdict.

It is further alleged that at the time of the commission of the crimes charged in Counts 2 through 5, that the victim in the above offenses, Gavin Arvizo, was under the age of 14 years and that the defendant had substantial sexual conduct with Gavin Arvizo. If you find the defendant guilty of the crimes charged in Counts 2 through 5, you must determine whether or not the truth of this allegation has been proved.

“Substantial sexual conduct” means masturbation of either the victim or the defendant.

The People have the burden of proving the truth of this allegation. If you have a reasonable doubt that it is true, you must find it to be not true. Include a special finding on that question using a form that will be supplied to you.

In your deliberations, do not discuss or consider the subject of penalty or punishment. That subject must not in any way affect your verdict.

The purpose of the Court’s instructions is to provide you with the applicable law so that you may arrive at a just and lawful verdict. Whether some of the instructions apply will depend upon what you find to be the facts. Disregard any instruction which applies to facts determined by you not to exist. Do not conclude that because an instruction has been given, I am expressing an opinion as to the facts.

All right. That’s all of the instructions you’re going to hear today. And after argument, I have just three or four or six, you know, a very small summary of concluding instructions, which I will provide you copies of at that time.

So I’m going to excuse you now, have you return at 8:30, and we will hear the final arguments. Have a good evening.

Is there any reason not to recess for today?
MR. MESEREAU: No, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. Court's in recess.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.
COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Mr. Zonen, you may proceed.
MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, ladies and gentlemen of the jury, good morning.

Am I turned on? I’m not turned on.

I’m now turned on. Everybody can hear. All right.

Ladies and gentlemen, good morning.

This is the closing argument. We expect that it will go through a few hours today. We will be covering quite a few areas of testimony and evidence that has been presented.

Ladies and gentlemen, this case is about the exploitation and sexual abuse of a 13-year-old cancer survivor at the hands of an international celebrity. The case is about a woman trying to protect her children from a collection of overpaid employees all determined to profit at the expense of her and her children.

Over this closing argument, I will discuss with you the evidence that proves that Michael Jackson molested Gavin Arvizo and numerous other boys. I will discuss with you the methods that he uses to seduce boys into his confidence, into his bedroom, and into his bed.

I will talk with you about the defense in this case. I will talk to you and tell you that the defense in this case is limited entirely to attacking the mother of this child, as well as the children. We will talk about how easy it is to say that Janet Arvizo concocted this entire story, and we will talk about how entirely impossible it would actually be to do so.

There are two themes that will run through this closing argument. One is that Michael Jackson inserted himself into the life of the Arvizo family, not the other way around.

It’s Michael Jackson who invited the Arvizo children to his home in September of 2002 so that he might benefit from their inclusion in a documentary that was designed to jump-start his career. It was Michael Jackson who called those kids to his house on that day. It was Michael Jackson who told Gavin Arvizo that, “This is an audition for you.” It was Michael Jackson who put those children in that documentary. It was Michael Jackson who exposed themselves, all of them, to the ordeal that came about when that documentary turned out to be something other than what he expected.

It was Michael Jackson who contacted the Arvizo family in early February. It was Michael Jackson who brought the Arvizo family to Florida. It was Michael Jackson who was oblivious of the consequences that would occur to the lives of these children and to the life of their mother by including them in his escapades.

It was Michael Jackson who decided that these children were necessary for him to be able to further his career, to be able to stem the flow of negative press that was occurring as a consequence of that documentary. It was Michael Jackson who brought them to Florida.

Now, the second thing is this: Janet Arvizo never asked for one penny from Michael Jackson. Janet Arvizo, in fact, had never had a conversation with Michael Jackson, other than the first time that she met him early in June of 2000 at the occasion that the whole family went to Neverland when Gavin Arvizo was sick with cancer.

At that time, they all had dinner together and she, as part of the family, had conversation with Mr. Jackson that I'm quite certain neither one of them remember the context of.

Beyond that visit in June of 2000, Janet Arvizo never went back, except for the occasion of Chris Tucker's child's birthday where she was there with a busload of other people. Michael Jackson was not there. She left at the end of the day.

During that three-year period of time up to the point where Michael Jackson called her, because he needed her, not the other way around, Janet Arvizo had never asked for one penny from Michael Jackson, and to this day has never asked for one penny from Michael Jackson, has never asked anything of him, has never desired anything from him, and there is absolutely no evidence whatsoever that she does today.

And those are the two concepts that you need to keep in mind during the balance of this closing argument.

Now, I'd like to read something to you, and this is something that you heard in the course of this trial. I'm not going to tell you right now when you heard it or who spoke it, but you might recognize it, and at the conclusion, I will tell you where it came from.

"I want to take it a step further and I want to let all of you know that I think an opening statement is a contract. You make promises in an opening statement, you better fulfill them. Because at the end of the trial, the jury's going to know whether you did or didn't. And I say to you right now, I’m going to make some promises in this case. I am going to fulfill them and I want you to judge me accordingly at the end.”

Do you remember who spoke those words?

That was Thomas Mesereau at the very beginning of his opening statement. He was making a contract with you, a contract that what he was representing in the course of his opening statement, he was going to prove, and he was inviting you to judge him on whether or not he did so.

Let’s begin that judgment.

Janet Arvizo staged a shakedown of George Lopez was one of the first things that he said in the course of his opening statement and went ahead and described this event of Janet Arvizo being involved in leaving a wallet behind in the actor/comedian’s home, George Lopez. That wallet was Gavin’s wallet and later there was a claim by Janet Arvizo that there was $300 missing from that wallet; that Janet Arvizo wanted George Lopez to pay $300 to her. A shakedown, as described by Thomas Mesereau.

What does the evidence reveal? We’re the ones who brought George Lopez into this courtroom, and George Lopez said there most certainly was something going on. There was definitely a wallet left at his home. It was definitely Gavin’s wallet. It was left in his home after Gavin and his father, David Arvizo, were at the house. There was a $50 bill in that wallet. He called David Arvizo and said, “What do you want me to do with it?” and the wallet was sent back to him.

It was David Arvizo who later told Jamie Masada that there was $300 in the wallet. It was Jamie Masada who gave $300 to David Arvizo on the representation that it had been taken from that wallet at George Lopez’s home.

Janet Arvizo had nothing to do with this. Janet Arvizo didn’t know about it. Janet Arvizo was not there. She had never been there. Janet Arvizo had never been in George Lopez’s home. The only time Janet Arvizo had ever seen George Lopez was during the period of time that George Lopez was mentoring her children at the comedy camp. On those occasions Janet would travel by bus, multiple buses, from East Los Angeles to the Sunset area in Los Angeles, to bring her kids to comedy camp. During the course of those mentorships, they would meet, he would work with the children, and sometimes he would take them out to lunch. That was it.

When Gavin became ill with cancer, Janet Arvizo called George Lopez very upset over the prospect of her child having cancer, and having cancer in such an advanced stage at the time that they discovered it.

George Lopez and his wife very graciously visited Gavin at the hospital on a number of occasions. They had a few conversations with Janet. Janet at no time asked for money from anyone. Both George and Ann Lopez testified in this courtroom she never asked for anything. And in fact -- in fact, the only time that there was any kind of a transfer of anything between the two of them was when Janet Arvizo gave a key chain to George Lopez, an amulet, a mustard seed amulet for good luck. It was right off her key chain.

It probably had not much value monetarily. It was sentimental and she wanted George Lopez to have that, and he appreciated that gift. She had nothing to do with any kind of a shakedown with George Lopez.

Now, Mr. Mesereau either knew it or should have known it before he made that representation to you. He asked to be judged. Go ahead and do so.

Janet Arvizo tried to get money from Fritz Coleman. We brought Fritz Coleman in here. Fritz Coleman never gave Janet Arvizo a penny. Fritz Coleman was never asked for a penny. Fritz Coleman was never the subject of a shakedown by Janet Arvizo or anybody else. What Fritz Coleman testified to was that he had met the Arvizo children when he did a benefit or participated in a benefit on behalf of Gavin while he was sick to raise funds and to raise blood for this very sick child.

He testified that at one point over

Christmas, probably Christmas ‘00, of 2000, that he wanted his children to understand that there were other children less fortunate than them. So he brought his children with Louise Palanker to the residence where Janet Arvizo lived on Soto Street in East Los Angeles. That residence was a single room. It was a studio apartment, and all five of them lived in that studio apartment.

They were not brought there for purposes of soliciting charitable contributions. The idea was Fritz Coleman’s idea. There was no conversation whatsoever with Janet Arvizo in advance of that idea.

Fritz Coleman contacted Louise Palanker. He thought it would be a good idea. She agreed. They went out and bought a few hundred dollars of gifts for the children. They then got in the car. They called 20 minutes in advance. I wanted you to hear that, 20 minutes in advance, so that there was no possible way that Janet Arvizo would set up this apartment in some fashion for purposes of encouraging some kind of a charitable donation.

They got to the apartment. It was neat. It was orderly. There were partitions in this one room to afford some measure of privacy for the family. The family were all, each and every one of them, were gracious in their acceptance of these gifts for Christmas. There was never a shakedown. There was never a request for money. There was never a request for anything else.

Mr. Mesereau either knew, or should have known, that what he said was simply not true. Janet Arvizo approached Mike Tyson, Adam Sandler, and Jim Carey for money. Did you see any of those three come in here? I didn’t. And I know what they all look like, and I think probably most of you know what most of the three of them look like, and I suspect you would have recognized them as well.

There was some testimony that one of them, I believe Jim Carey, or Adam Sandler I think it was, gave a gift to Gavin Arvizo. There’s absolutely no evidence that Janet Ventura -- that Janet Arvizo ever met any of the three of them. There’s no evidence she ever asked any of the three of them for anything. There’s no evidence she ever received anything from the three of them.

Janet Arvizo tried to shake down Jay Leno. Jay Leno testified. It couldn’t be further from the truth. There were a number of telephone calls that were placed by Gavin to Jay Leno. For a good reason. Gavin was in a bed, either in his cleanroom at his grandmother’s house or in a hospital, for the better part of a year. There were periods of time that he was well enough to move around, but for the most part, while he was undergoing the chemotherapy, he was either in a hospital or he was in a cleanroom in his grandmother’s house.

He had a lot of time on his hands. He loved comedians. He was a graduate of the comedy camp at The Laugh Factory. He had met quite a few comedians. His favorite was Jay Leno. He called him. He probably called him many times. He was a ten-year-old child afflicted with cancer and he probably didn’t have the social subtleties down. He probably didn’t understand that too many calls would be boorish, it wouldn’t be appropriate to do.

Jay Leno didn’t understand. He called Louise Palanker. He asked, “Who is this child? What’s going on?” She explained that he was a cancer patient. He then called. He called and may or may not have reached the hospital at the time that Janet was there.

He says he remembers talking to the child, he remembers talking to Star Arvizo, and he remembers talking to the person who he believes to be the mother. There was no shakedown at any time. Nobody asked for anything. No one asked for money. He never gave money.

He says that the person he spoke to who he believes to be the mother, Janet Arvizo, she was gracious, she was kind, she was appropriate, she was thankful, she was sincere. There was absolutely nothing that she said in this conversation that indicated that she was looking for money or anything else, other than a person to extend a moment of kindness to her sick child for which she was eternally grateful.

Now, let me point out that it is inconsistent with the testimony of both Gavin and the mother in the sense that neither remember that conversation. They remember certainly that Gavin had called Jay Leno but they don't remember actually talking with him. That's not necessarily inconsistent. If Gavin was in the hospital, then he was sick at that time. He was undergoing chemotherapy. He was probably receiving all manner of medications. He might not have known that the person that he was on the phone with was actually Jay Leno. That's certainly possible. There were probably plenty of people who were calling him and wishing him well, and it's entirely likely that he did not know who he was speaking to at what time. And he may not have remembered it, even if he did know it at that time. He certainly remembers calling him. He certainly remembers his admiration for Jay Leno.

Was that Janet Arvizo who was on the phone with him? It may have been. It may have been somebody else who was there at the time. It was a very brief conversation. She may not have remembered it either.

That's almost insignificant. The significant point is, Mr. Mesereau represented to you that it was a shakedown. And it clearly was nothing of the sort.

Janet Arvizo held her son's arm out at The Laugh Factory looking for money. Remember when he said that? Janet Arvizo was never at The Laugh Factory during the time of those fundraisers. Those fund-raisers were during the month of October of 2000. During that period of time she was working. She was waitressing at the St. Bonaventure Hotel in downtown Los Angeles.

It was David Arvizo who was organizing and pursuing and receiving the money from those fund-raisers. To the extent that any money came in, and some money did come in, it went to David Arvizo. How much of that he used for the family, how much of it he used for himself, how much he blew on drugs, was something that he will ultimately have to answer for.

But the question of whether or not it was Janet Arvizo at The Laugh Factory pushing her son’s arm out looking for donations is simply a statement that is not true. And there is no evidence to support it, and all the people who were at The Laugh Factory agree with that. Everyone who testified in this trial said they have no recollection of Janet Arvizo being there. They have a major recollection of David Arvizo being there, because he was at times obnoxious in his behavior. That statement was simply not true. Janet Arvizo was not there.

Janet Arvizo bought a car from Hollywood Ford. That’s come up quite a few times. And in fact, they even put a witness on the witness stand who told you, as the son rises in the morning, she purchased a car from Hollywood Ford.

What we found out, of course, when we brought the witness from Hollywood Ford, I think that was Gina Villegas, when she came from Hollywood Ford, testified, “No, no Janet Arvizo or Ventura ever purchased a car from here. And in fact, we notified the defense of that accordingly.”

Mr. Mesereau apparently knew that she never purchased that car. Now, incidentally, it’s an irrelevant point. She has a right to buy a car. She got a civil judgment of $32,000. She could have purchased a car with it. She intended to do so. She took out a cashier’s check. She changed her mind. It’s just that simple. And then she cancelled the check.

But why would they put a witness on, and why would Mr. Mesereau make the representation that she purchased a car, if in fact they knew all along that she didn’t?

Janet used the Soto Street apartment to get money from celebrities. Remember him saying that in the course of his opening statement? Janet Arvizo used the Soto Street apartment for sympathy ploys to get money from celebrities. Yes? Name one. Name one. Of all the witnesses who testified in this trial, one, name one who came in and said, “You know, I was brought to that apartment for purposes of looking at it, and I was so impressed with the miserable conditions that they live in, that I organized some kind of fund-raiser.” Nobody said that, because it never happened.

There were two people who actually came to the Soto Street apartment, and that was Fritz Coleman and Louise Palanker. There was no evidence that any other celebrity was ever brought there for any reason whatsoever. And the two of them went there on their own initiative for reasons that I’ve already explained. There was no other person who was ever brought to the Soto Street apartment for any reason.

Later, he says the Soto Street apartment was used as a grounds for some form of fraud against somebody or other, perhaps welfare fraud. No, that’s not true either. That was their apartment and they lived in that apartment for many years. And after David Arvizo finally left the family after years of a tumultuous relationship, a violent relationship, Janet Arvizo continued to live in that apartment with her children.

Finally at about November of ‘02, 2002, after she had met and became involved with a very decent man, Jay Jackson, Major Jackson from the Army, eventually started using his address at his apartment so that the kids could start attending John Burroughs Middle School, a much better school than the Hollenbeck District in East Los Angeles, where the kids were starting to be exposed to gang activity. That was with the understanding of the school, it was with the understanding of Jay Jackson, it was okay with them. They started living more and more at his apartment, but they maintained -- she maintained her own apartment. And that apartment was the same Soto Street studio apartment that they had had for years, and lived in. And at the time that Mr. Geragos’s employees moved all of their possessions out of that apartment to some unknown location, unknown to her, it was a truckload of possessions that filled two vaults. There was no question but that she was still living in that apartment and that was her residence. Yes, they were spending days during the week at Jay Jackson’s apartment while the kids attending school, but she still had that residence. She paid for it, she supported it, she paid utilities, and she paid rent, and they lived in it, and all of their possessions were in it.

And that was in November.

By March of 2003, they were finally in their own apartment -- in the apartment with Jay Jackson.

Janet told law enforcement that they needed money. No, she didn’t. No, she didn’t. That was one of his statements in opening statement. Janet Arvizo told law enforcement, the detectives who interviewed her. All of the interviews with law enforcement that were done back at that time were videotaped. There was transcripts of it. It would have been very easy to present that evidence, if she actually told them that she was in need of money. She didn’t. She never said that to law enforcement. They never presented it. He never proved it.

Janet Arvizo was negotiating for more money with an attorney during the rebuttal taping. Remember him saying that, that she was on the phone with an attorney negotiating for more money? No, she wasn’t. No, she wasn’t.

We’re going to show you the documents that were generated during the taping of that rebuttal video. That was in the Calabasas residence of Hamid Moslehi. That was taken -- they arrived at that place on the 19th. We’ll talk about it a little more. The taping was on the 20th. Who she was on the phone with was an attorney, talking about whether her children were going to be taken away from her the next morning. Taken away from her because there was an allegation that she was not a fit mother. Why was she not a fit mother? Because she allowed her children to spend time alone with Michael Jackson in his room, and in fact in his bed, something she didn’t even know about at that time.

That interview with the Department of Child & Family Services was a direct result of Michael Jackson’s intrusion into their life, not the other way around. And she was on the telephone with a lawyer by the name of Vicki Podberesky, and that was the extent of that conversation, and you have not heard one word of testimony to the contrary.

It was a conversation that was limited entirely to how she can hold on to her children and not have her children taken away from her because of what Michael Jackson did, not because of anything that she did. Other than perhaps the moment of neglect when she assumed that she could trust Michael Jackson, given his reputation.

There was no conversation with any lawyer looking for money. And in fact, what we will show you is that the only discussions that took place between lawyers were the lawyers who were drafting the release agreement for her to sign. And we will show you the release agreement that she had to revise during the course of that evening because the original one was simply too complicated for her. And the one that they ultimately signed, she ultimately signed, was simply a simplified version of the more complicated; smaller words, smaller sentences, smaller paragraphs, simpler to understand, and larger font, the print was bigger. That’s all that was. She never negotiated for one penny.

She did receive that money. She did receive money that night. Not from Michael Jackson or any employee of Michael Jackson. She got $2,000 from Hamid Moslehi. Why did he give her $2,000? It’s pretty obvious. Hamid Moslehi knew what was going on that night. He was well aware that he was going to get $250,000 for his efforts the very next day.

He knew that all of the people who were promoting this video were going to become very wealthy off of it, and he understood what was going on; that the only people who were to get nothing from this production were, in fact, the Arvizo family members. Not one penny were they going to get. And he reached into his pocket and he gave her

$2,000 because he recognized the injustice of what was going on. Did she ask for it? No. And he readily said that she did not ask for that. That was his own doing. That had nothing to do with Michael Jackson. It had nothing to do with any of Michael Jackson's employees. She was not negotiating for more money that night. And he either knew that or should have known that.

Michael Jackson -- Michael Jackson took a lot of time away from his career to help Gavin. Do you recall him saying that in the course of his opening statement?

There's no evidence that Michael Jackson took one minute away from his career to help Gavin. Michael Jackson was on the telephone with Gavin when he was sick, when he was in the hospital, and when he was at home. He had many, many, many long telephone conversations with Gavin, some in the middle of the night. Some that went on for hours.

But guess what? He did that with all the boys who ended up in his room. He would have long conversations with all of them. That's how Michael Jackson functioned. That's what Michael Jackson does. That had nothing to do with benevolence, that had nothing to do with him taking time away from his career. There's not one moment of testimony in this case that shows that he sacrificed his career on behalf of either Gavin or any member of Gavin's family.

Michael Jackson never once went to Los Angeles to visit. Never once went to the hospital during the time that he was ill at the hospital.

Janet Arvizo was soliciting funds while being supported by a man earning $80,000 a year? How many times did you hear that from Mr. Mesereau?

Janet Arvizo was soliciting funds while being supported by a man earning $80,000 a year?

No, she wasn't, nor is there any testimony that she did that. Presumably, at some point in time, she ended up living with Michael -- with Jay Jackson, and in fact they ended up married together, and it's certainly presumable that he's supporting her at this stage, and perhaps even before they actually got married.

But at the time that these solicitations were going on, which was very early, very early in the course of this testimony, and very early in a period of time, and we're going to look at a slide right now, that will give you a sense of the time periods that we're involved in, jumbling together all of these things together.

Would you do the first one.

The J.C. Penny's incident that ultimately resulted in a favorable judgment on behalf of Janet Arvizo and her children, that incident occurred on August 27th of 1998. It was in June of 2000 that Gavin was diagnosed with cancer and his first visit at Neverland was in August of 2000. The fund-raisers for Gavin were in October 2000. That's when all of those occurred. Every one of the witnesses who testified to whatever was going on was, for the most part, around October, was the fund-raiser at The Laugh Factory, and then into Christmas of 2000.

The turkey that supposedly she wasn't as appreciative of as she should have been. Think about that for a moment. When you think about Michael Jackson and the people who work for him, who expect to make millions of dollars off the exploitation of this family, think about them begrudging her for receiving a turkey and for not demonstrating the proper level of appreciation. Think about them begrudging her because she accepts a body wax for $100, or a leg wax, or wherever they wax.

And then he exploits this family to the extent of millions of dollars that they expect to profit off of this. Millions of dollars. Very careful to make sure that they don't get a penny of it.

The fund-raisers occurred in October of 2000. David and Janet were separated in June of 2001. She was on her own at that point. Married at 16, and pregnant at 16, for the first time in her adult life, she's now on her own in 2001, and raising three children. No child support until the child support starts coming in through the District Attorney’s Office, not until March 2003.

Did she make a false representation on an application with the Department of Social Services for welfare? Yes, she did. Yes, she did. She got a check for $32,000. A check for $32,000. From the disposition of that settlement, that check was received and cashed on November 5th, ‘01. The settlement was resolved on the 18th of October, ‘01. Fifteen days later she went on welfare, and she did not disclose that she had $32,000 from that.

This is a woman who was on her own, with three children. That was a mistake. It was fraud. She shouldn’t have done it. And she stood before you, at age 37, by the time that she was here as a witness in this case, and that is the only thing in her lifetime that she has done that she clearly should not have done. That was a bad mistake on her part. And she may yet have to deal with the consequences before all this is over with.

Go ahead to the next slide.

The summer visit to Neverland was in the year of 2002, with Chris Tucker. That was during the summertime. The kids stayed on. Janet and Jay went back. That was the time of Chris Tucker’s son’s birthday. Chris Tucker remained at Neverland for some period of time. When we came to September of 2003 was the Bashir filming. And then finally in January 2003 was the time that the transcript was received from a reporter by the name of Kathryn Milofsky. She sent that transcript to Rudy Provencio and to Marc Schaffel. I’ll talk about that a little bit in a moment.

On the 24th of January, Michael Jackson and his crew arrive at the Turnberry Resort Hotel and they stay there until the 7th of February at that hotel.

Much of the conversations that take place between Michael Jackson, between Dieter, between Ronald, between Marc Schaffel, some of the conversations overheard by Rudy Provencio, are with Michael Jackson at the Turnberry Resort. “Living with Michael Jackson” aired in England on the 3rd of February. And it was Jackson who called Gavin and asked him to come to Miami on the 5th of February.

Go ahead to the next slide.

Gavin met Michael Jackson, as I said, in August of 2000. At the time of that meeting, very early on, Gavin was taken into Michael Jackson’s room with his younger brother Star. Gavin at the time was ten years old. His brother was nine years old. At the time that they went in there, Michael Jackson and Frank Cascio showed them sexually explicit material.

Incidentally, the admonition is over for purposes of this argument. And I may, at my judgment, refer to any of this material as pornography, and I will be doing so. And I will show you what it is, and why it is.

Showed them sexually explicit material on the computer. That material was brought up by Frank Cascio. It was talked about at that time. And both of these kids, when they testified on the witness stand, already a number of years later, talked about the fact that Frank and Michael Jackson showed them pornographic images on the computer. At that age, Gavin was sick at the time with cancer, but they were being entertained with sexually explicit material.

Both of them remember two statements that Michael Jackson made at the time. The first was that parody of an ad that was popular back then, where he says, “Got milk?” in reference to a picture of a naked woman whose breasts were exposed. And the second statement was a statement that Michael Jackson said, as he mentioned to his young son, who was then four years old, who was asleep on the bed, and he says to him, “You’re missing some good pussy.”

Both of those statements were relayed to you as statements that came from Michael Jackson at that time. They were in the presence of Frank.

Now, I have to ask you this at the very beginning of this opening argument, and I wish you to recall this and think about this every time we talk about evidence of this nature. Their contention is Janet Arvizo made all of this up and had the children say it. So I ask you now, and you use your good judgment and decide whether common sense dictates that these are events that simply happened. That’s all, they happened. And these children are recalling these events with remarkable accuracy.

Why would they make up something like this and put a witness in? Why would they ever do that? Why would Janet Arvizo sit down with her three children and say, “This is how we can make a fortune sometime in the future, years in the future, but we will start with you talking about looking at sexually explicit pictures in the presence of a witness, and the witness that we’re going to select will be one favorable to Michael Jackson”?

Frank Cascio, also known as Frank Tyson, was very close to Michael Jackson and had been very close to him since he was 13 years old. Why would they make this up and put a witness in there? Someone who they have every reason to believe would come forward and say that never happened. They’re going to put a witness in, put a witness who would be favorable to them.

Now, your common sense, which you don’t leave at the doorway when you walk into this courtroom -- you were, in fact, selected for jury duty because of your ability to be able to exercise common sense and rely upon your experiences.

Your common sense tells you that when these children testified to that event, that they were accurate in that testimony. That, in fact, when they said that Michael Jackson made both of those statements, that it simply has the ring of truth to it. And if he made no statements, then what is he telling you? What he’s telling you, is that he was entirely happy to be sitting in a room with these two young boys and showing them sexually explicit material. Why? Because it excited him. That’s why. That’s why he has all of that material there.

We'll talk about that a little bit later.

The boys had a few visits thereafter. As we said, Janet Arvizo never went back again, not until the summer of 2002 for that one-day birthday party when Michael Jackson wasn't there.

They go back for the Martin Bashir taping. They're part of that taping. Of course Martin Bashir interviews the children. Janet Arvizo has nothing to do with it, doesn't know it's happening. Signs no releases.

January 2003, a script comes. The script is delivered by Kathryn Milofsky and it goes to Rudy Provencio, and to Marc Schaffel, and there is an absolute firestorm that begins, because many members of the press already have the script. And then finally the showing, which I believe is on the 3rd of February, and that showing is in England, and at this point it's madness.

Rudy Provencio testified that, as he said, "If I was an octopus, I could not have answered all the phones that were ringing at that time." The phones were ringing off the hook. They had all manner of concerns that they had. They were concerned about Michael Jackson as a parent. They were concerned about that scene, pushing the baby bottle into his baby's mouth. They were concerned about the incident that occurred in the zoo where there was too large of a crowd of people. They were concerned about his children being veiled. They were certainly concerned about the dangling incident, the baby over the rail. They were concerned about that ridiculous shopping spree in Las Vegas.

But mostly they were concerned about his admission in the course of this interview that he shares not just his room with young boys, but his bed with young boys. And that he has done that over and over and over again. As he said specifically, "I've slept with all of them."

They were particularly concerned about that image of a young boy sitting next to him, holding his hand and leaning his head on Michael Jackson's shoulder. Because anybody in the press who was familiar with the 1993 investigation, who knew about that civil suit against him by Jordie Chandler, who had information about the other resolution of the case involving Jason Francia, all of them knew that this was a very sensitive and very risky issue for Michael Jackson.

And as they watched that picture, their reaction was the very same reaction anybody would have of Michael Jackson talking about how wonderful and how loving it is to share your bed with a child. And gets asked over and over again by Martin Bashir, “But this isn’t right. I mean, what is wrong with this picture? You’re not related to these children. You’re a 45-year-old man. What are you doing in bed with a child?”

And his response over and over again is, “It’s loving. It’s wonderful. We have warm milk. We have cookies.” And they juxtapose this image of Gavin Arvizo, at that time 12 years old, sitting next to him with his head resting on his shoulder. And everybody who watches that has exactly the same reaction. The reaction is, “Get that child out of there. Somebody take that child and get that child away from him. And where are his parents?” That reaction is simply undeniable.

And so there was an immediate outcry, and there were problems and calls from the press, and it created chaos in the Michael Jackson camp, and a need to do something about it.

They immediately assemble a whole collection of people, most of whom have been working for Michael Jackson for some time and some were new who came into the picture at a later time. All of these people were activated to deal with this particular emergency that was coming along. Michael Jackson, of course, in the middle. The attorney, David LeGrand, who was handling the financial matters at the time. The Germans, who have been referred to in the course of this trial, Dieter Weizner and Ronald Konitzer. Marc Schaffel, who had been working for Michael Jackson for quite some time, held a very close position with Michael Jackson, was included as a credit in his production of “Invincible,” where I think the statement, “Marc, I love you very much. Thank you for all the work that you have helped to make this project possible.” The byline for Marc Schaffel was every bit as long as the byline for his own parents.

Mark Geragos, who testified in this trial, and Brad Miller, who did not testify in this trial. And we’ll be talking about that some more. Mr. Geragos was the attorney. Geragos was hired by Michael Jackson or more specifically by his employee, Mr. Konitzer, to take care of two particular issues. One issue was the question of whether or not his children would be taken from him, because of his remarks.

The second issue is the question of whether or not there would be pending criminal liability.

We’re going to talk about Mark Geragos, as you can imagine, in greater detail a little bit later in this argument.

Up here is Frank Cascio. This is the person who was in the room with Michael Jackson back in 2000 at the time. That he, Cascio, accessed graphic pornographic images on the computer for purposes of showing to these two kids, age ten and age nine. I want you to think about that in the course of this argument.

Because there is no question in your mind that Frank Cascio knows exactly what’s going on in Michael Jackson’s bedroom. And as we start to show you the evidence, particularly confirmed by the telephone calls you’ll see, that Frank Cascio was the closest person among all of these people to Michael Jackson. That Frank Cascio was, in fact, a close friend of Michael Jackson since he was a child. That Frank Cascio was the one who was the hub of all of the communications on all of these crucial dates. That Frank Cascio was very, very devoted to Michael Jackson.

And the suggestion that Michael Jackson was ignorant and kept in the dark about these events simply doesn’t hold water given the extent of their relationship, and the communication that Frank

Cascio had in the course of the days that took place following the publication of “Living with Michael Jackson.”

And the last person up here to the right, that’s Vinnie Amen, close friend of Frank Cascio, and who was brought in particularly from the time around the 20th to the time of the filming of the film.

Now, as I move on -- before I move on, let me talk a little bit to you about Rudy Provencio. Because Rudy is going to -- Rudy testified, Mr. Provencio testified to a number of conversations that took place between a variety of different people.

And before I get into the content of the conversations, let me mention something about Mr. Provencio. He’s an unusual person. He was a lively personality. Funny. Was very, very candid in the answers that he gave. I expect at some time during Mr. Mesereau’s closing argument that he will tell you that Mr. Provencio cannot be trusted. He might even say he lies. He might even say he committed perjury. Before we get to that discussion, let me point out something about Mr. Provencio.

Mr. Provencio accepted a contract for $225,000 with Neverland Valley Entertainment. Neverland Valley Entertainment was a corporate entity that effectively was Michael Jackson, the money that went in to create it was Michael Jackson’s money. The agreement in the creation of that entity was between Michael Jackson and Marc Schaffel. He was hired on to be the executive officer, to be able to manage it and run it. He had 20 years of experience in the music industry, something Marc Schaffel didn’t have. Marc Schaffel’s experiences were varied, but there was a great deal of it, frankly, in the porn industry. He was very good at promoting things, but he didn’t understand the music industry.

Rudy Provencio was brought in for that purpose. Rudy Provencio signed a contract for $225,000. It was expected that the project would be over in one year. It took longer than that and ultimately didn’t resolve for a variety of different reasons. But they worked hard at this project. The project was creating one song, “What More Can I Give?” It was supposed to be the sequel to “We are the World,” “We are the Children,” We are the Someone.” It was the first song that made a tremendous amount of money. This was expected to make money every bit as much, perhaps as much as or more than $100 million.

During the course of the dealings between Mr. Provencio and Michael Jackson, he was personally given a one point interest in the entire profits of “What More Can I Give?”

That one point means 1 percent. It’s 1 percent of the gross profits. That means that Rudy Provencio stood to make, in addition to his $225,000 salary, up to or even more than one million dollars, if this song was successful on the level of the last one.

And if this song raises the kind of money that he expected, it certainly would have brought in hundreds of thousands of dollars in addition to his salary. Rudy Provencio, at some point during the course of his work for Neverland Valley Entertainment and for Michael Jackson, came to the realization and conclusion that the work that he was doing did not justify the receipt of that percentage, and he gave it back to Michael Jackson.

He did it officially, used David LeGrand to put it in writing, and he returned it. He believed that, one, he returned it, and, two, he did not want to be involved with them particularly for the rest of his life, as that percentage might necessarily involve in terms of the giving of royalties, and frankly he didn’t believe that he earned it.

It was an entirely admirable thing to do.

It was an entirely unselfish thing to do. It was a sign of great integrity. He didn’t give it to Marc Schaffel. He didn’t sell it to somebody.

Schaffel, it turns out, sold his interest to somebody who died before they were be able to collect anything. Schaffel got the money from it, they died, that was the end of it. Even Rudy Provencio felt that was inappropriate; that Schaffel should have given that money back to that investor as well. Did not sell that percentage. He gave it, he gave it to Michael Jackson. Simply felt that he didn't deserve it. Didn't want to have it.

I want you to think about that when Mr. Mesereau stands up here and tells you that Rudy Provencio is lying. Think about that. What motive would he have? Rudy Provencio tells us that the conversations that took place as early as the first of February were conversations between one or both of the Germans, Michael Jackson, Marc Schaffel, and perhaps others. And it was early on in February, before the first screening of "Living with Michael Jackson" in England.

The purpose of those conversations -- the purpose of those conversations was to determine how to stem the problems that were created by the presentation of this documentary. It was decided at that time that there would be two goals in what they were about to do. One was to reverse the negative publicity, if that was at all possible, and the second was to raise money.

The second proposition was argued against by Ann Gabriel Kite, who was hired for public relations in New Orleans, who said, "You don't do both, because one compromises the effect of the other one. Either make it profitable or do it for reversing the negative publicity that he received, but don't do both." She was soon thereafter fired.

It was very clear that their goal was to look for a money-making venture, and they found one. But one of the things that was decided early on in this event was that they needed to have a second or third person involved. Early on, it was decided, and we know this from Rudy Provencio because of the calls that he monitored early on. And we're talking about the 1st or the 2nd of February, where it was decided at that time that they needed the assistance of Debbie Rowe, Michael Jackson's ex-wife and the mother of his two children, and they needed the assistance of Gavin Arvizo. Both of these people were going to come in and effectively say, “He’s normal. He’s normal. All of this publicity is” -- “bad publicity is inappropriately generated. He’s a normal human being.”

Debbie Rowe was going to say, “He’s a good father. He’s attentive to the children.” All of that business about, “Oh, the children don’t have a mother, they shouldn’t have a mother, they can’t have a mother,” all that stuff that came in that dealt with him raising children, “Where is the mother? Whether they have access.” Debbie Rowe was going to stem the publicity dealing with that issue. And then they had to deal with the issue of whether or not Michael Jackson had an appropriate or inappropriate relationship with Gavin Arvizo, and for that they needed Gavin.

As to the first, Debbie Rowe, they dangled the prospect -- and it was specifically Michael Jackson who did this, not one of his employees. They dangled the prospect of her being able to once again see her children. Quite unlike what he was representing, she did in fact want to see her children, and had not seen them for two and a half years.

And that representation was made specifically by Michael Jackson, that “If you do this, you’ll come” -- “you’ll come to Neverland, you’ll visit with the children.” And she was quite excited and quite willing to do so. In like fashion, Michael Jackson dangled Janet Arvizo’s children in front of her as well, but in a different manner.

Debbie Rowe wasn’t going to be convinced that her children were in danger. That wasn’t something that Debbie Rowe was going to be influenced by. For her incentive was to be able to see the children. For Janet Arvizo it was a different matter entirely.

There were a series of telephone calls that began. The first telephone call that we have from Michael Jackson at the Turnberry Hotel was on the 4th of February, 1635 is 4:35 in the afternoon. A second one at 1754, that’s 5:54, almost six o’clock in the afternoon. The duration of both of those phone calls was one minute in length, but this was on the 4th of February, in the late afternoon hours of the 4th of February.

And I bring this to your attention because I want you to understand that the defense contention is they’re going to be saying that it was actually Gavin who initiated this trip to Florida, not the other way around. And it’s simply not true. The first conversations and the first phone calls come from Michael Jackson. And that was at 4:35. That was to the Ventura residence in El Monte. It was for purposes of being able to locate Gavin and be able to make that arrangement. Obviously that happened, on the same day, at 6:11. And then a second phone call at 6:14, both for a duration of four minutes each, were from Jay Jackson’s residence in the west -- excuse me, in the mid-Wilshire area of Los Angeles to Chris Tucker at that point.

Now, obviously there was communication between Chris Tucker and Michael Jackson and Evvy Tavasci. And we’re going to go through a few more of these. Excuse me. You’ll be able to see what it is. But the original calls came from Michael Jackson at that time.

Now, let me suggest to you that two telephone calls of one minute each being placed three minutes apart, and only for a maximum duration of four minutes or less, that could be actually three minutes and one second, as Mr. Nicola was effective in pointing out with each of the telephone records people. It will show as four minutes, if it’s only one second beyond three.

But that could be a reflection of how long his answering machine is, at Chris Tucker’s home.

And in fact, when you look at Chris Tucker’s records of the phone records of his phone for that day, of the 4th of February of ‘03, you’ll see that there are no phone calls made by Chris Tucker. None whatsoever that go out, at least phone records that would have registered, phone calls that would have registered, which means, in all likelihood, Chris Tucker was not there.

Gavin Arvizo probably called Chris Tucker.

He left two messages, one back-to-back, which is what people do when they max out a message and they call right back and leave a second message for the same duration of time. That’s probably what happened. There was no actual conversation between Gavin Arvizo and Chris Tucker at that time.

There is then in the early morning, 6:58, this is Pacific Standard time, so that call was placed at 9:58 in the morning by Michael Jackson from the Turnberry Hotel in Florida. The duration of that conversation was 27 minutes. That was the call where Michael Jackson reached Gavin Arvizo and asked him to come and do a press conference. Gavin Arvizo, of course, was 13 years old at the time. He was not about to tell Michael Jackson, “Sure, I can come to Florida, no problem.” Janet Arvizo got on the phone and immediately said, “Of course he is not going to Florida by himself.” And that began a 27-minute conversation between Michael Jackson and Janet Arvizo. And it was in that conversation that Michael Jackson told Janet Arvizo, “This is necessary to protect your child. Your child is in danger.”

In that conversation, she talked with her about -- he talked with Janet Arvizo about her ex-husband. He told Janet Arvizo that she knew -- that he knew about the violent relationship that she had had with her ex-husband, David Arvizo, for that entire period of time. He knew exactly what he needed to be able to say to Janet Arvizo to be able to gain her cooperation. He told her that the child was in danger; that there were crazed people out there in response to the presentation of this video. And, “Please, you need to come to Florida.”

She agrees. That took 27 minutes, that conversation.

Immediately thereafter, as you can see, roughly that same period of time, Michael Jackson called Evvy Tavasci at her home. That’s his personal assistant and secretary. Immediately thereafter, there's a call to Jay Jackson's residence. Again, that's to set up the arrangements. There is a call soon thereafter, within an hour and a half or two hours thereafter to Air Apparent. Air Apparent was the travel agency at that time that Michael Jackson was using. That was to make the transportation arrangements. Those records are in evidence. They're there for you to see. In the course of those arrangements, transportation was arranged for a one-way passage to Florida. This was not a round trip. They had no intention on returning this family home as soon as the press conference occurred.

It was already decided early on, that once they had the family in their grips, they were going to keep them in their grips, and for good reason. They understood what was going to happen in terms of the press going after this family. And the last thing that they wanted was Gavin Arvizo standing up on some other reporter's television station talking about pornography and booze in that room. That's the last thing they needed.

They needed to be able to stem what might be coming out of the mouths of these children and out of the mouth of Janet Arvizo and they needed to be able to profit from it. And they weren't going to profit from it if, in fact, they were giving statements to some other reporter. Something that Janet Arvizo had no intention of doing anyway, and did not do at any time, never mind all the offers that ultimately came in.

A series of phone calls later in the afternoon, it's now noon, to MJJ Productions. That's the cell phone. Presumably that's the phone of the person that's going to be driving them, Gary Hearn. Another call a couple minutes later. Another call a couple minutes later to Jay Jackson's residence at 12:17. Again from the cell phone that they called, presumably Gary Hearn, the driver.

Another phone call from Evvy. Another phone call here to Chris Tucker.

Now, Chris Tucker is in the picture. This is on the 5th, and it’s at -- just after 12:30 in the afternoon. They are now making the arrangements that they’re going to be going with Chris Tucker. MJ -- and incidentally, Chris Tucker had a flight that was arranged for the day before. This was a flight that was going to take him. He left it there. That plane sat on the tarmac for nine hours, didn’t go anywhere. Chris Tucker was billed for the fact that the plane sat on the tarmac for nine hours ready to go. He paid the bill. It was not till the next day that plane left, Chris Tucker’s private flight for Miami.

Again, a series of phone calls from Chris Tucker to the Jackson limo service. Chris Tucker to, again, the driver. This is now at 3:17 in the afternoon. The driver presumably is Gary Hearn. A 12760 call from the Ventura residence to Michael Jackson Productions from Chris Tucker to again that cell phone, and again from Chris Tucker to that cell phone.

And they arrived in Florida.

And they arrived in Florida very late on the -- on the 6th, or very early on the 6th. They flew late into the early morning. And during the entirety of the 6th, they stayed in Michael Jackson’s suite. They did not leave that hotel room, excuse me, at all during that entire time. This was not a vacation for Janet Arvizo.

Mr. Mesereau says that she should be grateful because she was extended a vacation in Florida. And you need to understand that she stayed in her room, or in the room or suite of Michael Jackson.

When there was finally the presentation of “Living with Michael Jackson,” the American showing, Michael Jackson made it very clear that nobody was to watch that and they were all rounded up and taken up to the suite, and that’s where they all stayed during that showing. She has, to this day, never watched it. She’s seen clips of it on news. She’s seen that image that you saw, but she has never watched the entire presentation. Jay Jackson has, but she hasn’t.

They stayed that entire day. It was during that entire time that Janet was exposed to quite a few events that were taking place then. She met the two Germans, Dieter Weizner and Ronald Konitzer, and the two of them had her sign a release at that time, except it wasn't a release. The document that you're going to see soon was, in fact, a document that was a blank piece of paper that she signed and later there was an addition to it.

Michael Jackson told her very specifically that she was to do what the Germans told her to do. And once again, they asserted the fact that there were people out there who meant to harm her children; that they were in danger; that they had to do this press conference; that this was the only way to relieve the danger to her children.

The Germans became, very rapidly, very heavy-handed with her. They were not complimentary by any stretch of the imagination. They were dictating things that she had to do. They scared her from the very beginning and they were having her sign things as well.

Now, she was there voluntarily. She had nothing bad to say about Michael Jackson at all. She had never had anything bad to say about Michael Jackson. She believed that he was a good influence in the life of her child. She was appreciative of the generosity that he extended to her family over this period of time. She felt that he was kind to her child when her child was ill. She was very grateful for that. She never had a bad word to say about Michael Jackson at all.

The Germans scared her, Dieter and Ronald, and they did from the very beginning, and they did so for a reason. They wanted her cooperation and they believed that that was the way to do it. You need to understand that this was something that was agreed upon as a strategy from the very beginning.

They knew that they needed Janet Arvizo's cooperation and they knew that they were not going to get it unless there was a motivation, and they needed to scare her, and that's how they did it.

She signed those documents, but something else was going on in Florida at that time.

Michael Jackson was renewing a relationship with Gavin Arvizo during this period of time. They were in the room together. He gave him a gift. He gave him the jacket off his back. And he started drinking with him. It was during that time that Gavin had his first drink of alcohol with Michael Jackson. They were together during that entire time.

They finally went back on the 7th, in the early part of the 7th. They did not want Janet to be in the vehicle with them, in the plane. They were going to have her take a commercial flight back and she insisted otherwise. And in the course of that flight back, which was about seven or eight hours, in that flight going back, for about seven or eight hours --

You can move on.

This is a note -- I’m going to take a moment here before we move on.

This was a note that was shown to you, and I want you to take a look at it. This is in evidence. This exhibit right here. Look at the piece of paper and the writing on it, and look at the serration at the very top. This was obviously a piece of paper that was pulled from a small notebook, a spiral notebook. This is a note that was written by Gavin Arvizo to Michael Jackson. This note was discovered in Michael Jackson’s bedroom area in a black -- not exactly a briefcase, but more like a suitcase, a black suitcase. That suitcase also contained pornographic magazines, but it had this note. And this is a note that Gavin wrote to him. And in it, he says, “I’m your son. I love you and Prince, Paris and Blanket, but especially I love you. I love all of you a lot.” It’s three separate pieces of paper, and Gavin Arvizo indicated that he wrote that.

Go to the next one.

This was found in exactly the same place.

This is a note that he said was written by Michael Jackson. “You have to really be honest in your heart that I am your dad and will take good care of you. Signed, Dad." "I want you to have a great time in Florida. I'm very happy to be your daddy. Blanket, Prince and Paris are your brother and sisters" -- "brothers and sister. Love, Dad."

All those notes were found together. They were obviously written together at the same time. The notes were written by Gavin and given to Michael Jackson. That other note was written by Michael Jackson to Gavin. One of them brought all of the notes back to Neverland. Likely Michael Jackson. He kept that note, all of the notes. He kept the note from Gavin Arvizo. That note went into the briefcase, in that very briefcase that was in his bedroom, no place else. It was also found pornographic images, and you will see.

Now, what is significant about this note? Well, first of all, do you remember the testimony of Janet Arvizo? Do you remember Janet Arvizo telling you that when they were in Florida Michael Jackson said, "We are family. I am your family. I will take care of you. I will protect you. You need to believe that I am your family"? Have you heard that before from other witnesses? In fact, isn't it true that virtually all of the witnesses from the 1993 case who were in some way involved with Michael Jackson, whether it was the Barnes family or whether it was the other family, the Robson family, or whether it was the Chandler family, virtually all of those witnesses said the same thing? Michael Jackson would stress over and over again, "We are family. I am your father. We are family. You have to trust in me."

This note corroborates that testimony. When Janet Arvizo told everybody that that conversation had taken place, she had no way of knowing that one day we would do a search, nine months later, of Neverland and we would recover exactly this note from Michael Jackson. The note has two misspellings in it, "really" and "Blanket," his own child's name. But that is him. That's his note. It was in his room. And Gavin said that was written to him at the same time. It’s clearly from the same piece of paper or the same notepad. That corroborates Janet Arvizo. And once again, she had absolutely no way of knowing that we would eventually find this note at a later time.

They’re coming back on the plane. This was written obviously in Florida, because they were together. They hadn’t seen each other before Gavin arrived in Florida. They’re now on the plane and they’re heading back. And while they’re heading back, there is testimony before you from Gavin and from Janet Arvizo that there were two things that occurred during this flight, this four or five -- five or six hours, five-hours-plus flight heading back.

One of the things that occurred was the testimony of Janet Arvizo that she said she saw an unusual event. She saw the defendant lick the top of her son’s head. That was also testified to by Star, who said he saw it as well. Neither one told the other until a much later period of time, when they both discovered that the other had seen that particular event.

Now, this is in the category of something -- this is like Frank being in the room at the time that pornography is being shown. If they’re going to make up events, why would they make up something like this? This is an event that takes place in a public setting. There are plenty of other people in that plane. Dr. Farshshian is in that plane. Mr. Mesereau told you Dr. Farshshian would testify to what he did and did not see. He didn’t.

All right. There are other people in that plane. The nannies for the children are on that plane. Many other people are on that plane. Why would they make up something like this, and particularly a head-licking event? That is a bizarre activity, by anybody’s standard. I mean, the notion of licking the top of the head of a 13-year-old boy. Many of you have had 13-year-old boys living in your household. Some of you may currently have a 13-year-old boy in your household.

You would no sooner lick the head of a 13-year-old boy than you would lick the bottom of their shoe, all right?

And Janet Arvizo understands that. She understands that this is a pretty bizarre observation. She knew it was bizarre at the time she saw it, and she knew it was bizarre at the time she was saying it. And Janet Arvizo clearly understood that she is not necessarily the most credible person around. She knew that this would be the type of thing that would be hard to believe. That people would react to that observation by saying, “Come on, give me a break.”

And yet what happens months later, we come upon a person by the name of Bob Jones. Who is Bob Jones? Bob Jones was the publicist for Michael Jackson for over 30 years. Thirty years the publicist for Michael Jackson. Bob Jones knew Michael Jackson since he was a teenager. He worked with him throughout his entire career, as he was developing his career, when he was in the prime of his career, and up until fairly recently.

Bob Jones had a number of communications with a man by the name of Stacy Brown. Stacy Brown was co-writing a book with him about Michael Jackson, and other aspects of his long and distinguished career. Bob Jones came to court reluctantly. He was subpoenaed to come to court.

When he took the witness stand, he basically said he didn’t remember any such observation. And then we showed him an e-mail that he sent to Stacy Brown, where he says in this e-mail, “I saw Michael Jackson do exactly the same thing to Jordie Chandler ten years earlier, lick the top of his head.” And guess where they were at the time? On an airplane, with Jordie Chandler sitting right next to Michael Jackson in exactly the same fashion that we had on this particular airplane as well.

When Janet Arvizo told law enforcement about this event, as bizarre as it was, she had absolutely no way of knowing that we would ultimately produce an entirely credible witness, reluctant, but credible, who would come into court and say he saw him do exactly the same thing to another 13-year-old boy, who looks very much like him, seated next to him on an airplane ten years earlier.

Now, Bob Jones was as reluctant as a witness could probably be. He did not want to give testimony against Michael Jackson, the man he had worked for for over 30 years. Until he was shown that e-mail, and then he acknowledged, “If I wrote it in the e-mail, and if I wrote this, it’s my e-mail, it is true.”

And then, of course, we put Stacy Brown on the witness stand. And Stacy Brown said, “I had a number of conversations with Bob Jones where he told me about that exact observation,” because it’s so bizarre, for exactly the reason that we’re initially asked to view that event as incredible, it is for exactly that reason that he remembered it, because it is so bizarre, him licking the top of Jordie Chandler’s head.

Stacy Brown said, “He told me about that on a number of occasions. He sent me e-mails.” And in fact, it’s in the manuscript of the book that they are about to publish, exactly that observation.

What else happened in the course of that flight? Gavin Arvizo told us that they made crank telephone calls. Michael Jackson’s having them make crank telephone calls. Now, we’re going to learn a lot about it in the course of this argument as we go on, Michael Jackson encouraging bad behavior from kids who are entrusted to him, who are placed in his trust and in his custody. He wants them engaged in bad behavior. And this is the first instance, other than the drinking. But keep in mind, once again, that this is a statement that Gavin makes that his mother is making him make, because, after all, a shakedown, then why would he make a statement about an event that we can prove or not prove, because this is something that’s fairly easy to do.

This is Exhibit No. 850 that’s before you. This is the records of telephone calls. I suspect you’ve seen enough phone records probably to last you for a lifetime. But I want you to look at this one. Maybe a few more, but look particularly at this one. This is the Xtra Jet air-ground telephone calls that were coming through.

You don’t have many occasions to make a telephone call where each telephone call cost $12, okay? Plus a variety of other fees on there.

Some of these telephone calls are -- are very legitimate. I mean, the ones to El Monte is obviously the kids calling their home, their grandparents in El Monte. That air linkage time, you have AirLink. That’s simply the method of connecting that telephone call through the air. That’s all part of the same call. That’s -- in other words, 25 and 26 is all one phone call. 26 -- 27, 28, is one telephone call.

But look what happens at around number 42 on here. All the way from 42 through 50 -- there’s a second page we’re going to get to in a moment, but from 42 through 50 are on a series of telephone calls that are all one minute in length. Okay? We have a Santa Ynez one that’s probably a legitimate one. But all the rest of them, from 42 on, this is -- this notation right over here where it says, “NM,” that means New Mexico. That’s where they’re flying over at the time that these phone calls occur. And they begin from about 42 on, at about 8:43 p.m., and in rapid succession, as you see 8:44, 8:46, 8:49, 8:51, each of these telephone calls lasting one minute or less. One minute or less.

Go to the next one.

Los Angeles up here, once again. 8:52.

Then there’s a break to 9:03. Excuse me, 9:08. 9:09. Both of these, when it says “short term,” that means that telephone call is for 30 seconds or less. No more than 30 seconds. A prank telephone call. One to New Jersey here. Short term. Here’s three different phone calls that are so short they don’t even connect. Here’s one to New Jersey. California. The El Monte, California, is probably -- is probably a legitimate one. New Jersey. New Jersey.

There’s a whole bunch of them as they’re flying over Arizona now, and moving on. All of these calls are one minute or less. Some of them are 30 seconds or less. They're all different. As you look at these numbers, they're all different.

There's probably 18 or 19 telephone calls that are probably exactly what Gavin said they were, prank calls. There is no evidence before you that these are legitimate telephone calls. Dr. Farshshian didn't come in and say, "I made a bunch of prescription fill-in calls to patients while I was on that plane that took one minute or less." This is direct -- and it's all within a similar period of time. This is roughly a 40-minute period of time.

About 19 phone calls are made during that period of time, one minute or less. It is direct corroboration, direct corroboration of Gavin.

He had no way of knowing that we would be able to do that. And if these crank calls, in fact, were being made at the time that they were on the plane, then doesn't that really cast doubt as to the testimony of people like Cindy Bell, the stewardess, who says, "During that entire flight I always had an eye on Michael Jackson; that I could tell you exactly what Michael Jackson was doing; that I would have seen if there was any problem going on."

They're making crank calls from this telephone at $12 a shot. Gavin is sitting next to Michael Jackson at that point in time. It is direct corroboration of Gavin Arvizo. It is also corroboration that at a later time in Michael Jackson's bedroom, and in the presence of the younger brothers and sisters of Frank Cascio, Nicole Marie and Aldo Cascio, who they called Baby Rubba, that also they were doing that same game of playing -- of making crank telephone calls and taking drinks of alcohol during that period of time.

THE COURT: Counsel.

MR. ZONEN: Yes.

THE COURT: Let's take a break.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. Thank you.

THE COURT: Counsel, you may proceed.
MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

I had a moment of panic when I wondered if the microphone I walked into the rest room with was still on.

(Laughter.)

MR. ZONEN: It wasn’t.

February 8th, 2003, they’re in Neverland. They had arrived in Neverland on the 7th. Janet Arvizo was never told she was going to Neverland. She was never told anything in terms of what was going to be happening to her and her family from that point on.

On the 8th of February, they were joined by Mark Geragos, by the entire 60 Minutes news crew, including Ed Bradley. Janet Arvizo and the children were there. Dieter and Ronald were there. One of them was there at that time, the other one arrived later, I don’t remember which. Frank Cascio was there. Michael Jackson was there. The boys at that point were staying with Michael Jackson.

And that began five weeks of the boys staying with Michael Jackson, except for those periods of time that he was gone, the brief period of time that they were in Los Angeles when Janet finally grabbed them and left, and the period of time that they were at the Calabasas hotel, The Country Inn & Suites in Calabasas while they were getting all the arrangements done for their departure for Brazil.

Keep in mind, barely five days earlier, Janet Arvizo was minding her own business in her own home, with her children healthy, all healthy children, and in a new relationship that ultimately ended up in a marriage. At this point, five days later, they’re planning on sending her to Brazil.

She was at Neverland over the next five days. Did not return home during that time. During that period of time, she worked with the two Germans, Ronald and Dieter. They prepared for this video that they were going to be doing. They were briefing her on what she needed to be saying. They were coaching her on what she needed to be saying. The boys more and more were separated from her. They were staying with Michael Jackson in his room during that period of time.

Once again, she was being encouraged to believe that outside of Neverland was a danger situation for her children. And once again, the threats became more oppressive. They are now no longer against just Gavin, but they were threats against Gavin, his brother, his sister, and in fact the threats have extended to Janet herself and to her parents. They were no longer just threats that there were people out there who would cause her harm, crazed fans, sort of an obscure sort of person that nobody quite -- could quite describe. But, in fact, at this point there were threats that specifically were coming from the two Germans in terms of, “We know where your parents live. We can make people disappear.”

She had enough by the early morning hours of the 12th. She had enough by the early morning hours of the 12th.

At one or two o’clock in the morning, she finally went to Jesus Salas, who was the house manager at that time, and speaking in Spanish with him, she asked him to please take her home, and the kids home.

Janet Arvizo, for all of her shortcomings, for all of her shortcomings, understood that Neverland is not the place to have her children long-term. That might be nice for a day visit. But it’s not where you want to have children long-term. She grabbed her kids, they got in the car with Jesus Salas, and he drove them to her mother’s house in El Monte.

Now, that began a whole series of events that took place at that point. This was on the 12th when they finally took off. But there were immediately a whole collection of telephone calls that next day. Now, granted, understand this was the early morning hours of the 12th. By the time the 12th was done with, look what was going on in terms of telephone calls.

38 separate telephone calls between Frank Cascio and Marc Schaffel. 38 separate phone calls.

There are two calls between Mark Geragos and Brad Miller. And three between Brad Miller and Marc Schaffel. There were three phone calls between Frank Cascio and Mark Geragos. There was one three-way phone call between Mark Geragos, Brad Miller and Marc Schaffel. But look at the collection of calls, 19, between Frank Cascio and Vincent Amen. What is going on? 38 telephone conversations between Frank Cascio and Marc Schaffel. 38. What is going on at this point?

The answer is, they escaped. Literally escaped, as preposterous as that sounds. Who would want to escape from Neverland? But they did. She grabbed her kids, and at one or two o’clock in the morning, they got out of there. And immediately what this entire collection of people, all working for and around Mark Geragos and Frank Cascio and Marc Schaffel, all realized that this was a very difficult situation and even dangerous situation for them, because they needed to produce this video, because this video was going to be contained in the “Take 2” program that was going to be shown in just a few days. I believe it was on the 21st, late at night, that that performance was going to be shown on FOX television, FOX Studios.

There was a tremendous amount of money riding on all of this, and their expectation and their promotion was that Janet Arvizo was going to be part of this production, and now she left.

On the 13th, the very next day, a series, again, of phone calls. Four between Marc Schaffel and Mark Geragos. Four between Mark Geragos and Ann Kite. Mark Geragos’s answer to every question I asked him, every single one, about the content of any telephone conversation that he had with anyone was, “I don’t really recall. I was kind of in the dark on all of this.”

On the 19th, over that period of time, a whole collection of telephone calls as they lead to the filming. But before we get to this, let me talk a little bit about what happened in that in-between period of time.

Janet Arvizo was the recipient of many telephone calls from Frank Cascio. Many of them.

And in the course of one or more of those conversations, there was a tape-recording made. That tape-recording was made by Frank Cascio. Excuse me, that tape-recording was of a telephone call involving Frank Cascio, but it was made by Brad Miller. And we recovered it when we seized -- when we searched Brad Miller’s office and seized that tape-recording.

There was an expert who testified, a man who came from the Los Angeles area, works in the aerospace industry, and who also does work analyzing tape-recordings to determine authenticity. His testimony to you was that that tape, which goes over 20 minutes, it’s 20-plus minutes, that that tape was, in all likelihood, a second-generation tape, and in fact there were 34 breaks in that tape. In other words, somebody started and stopped that tape 34 times. Well, the “somebody” is Brad Miller. It’s not likely to be anybody else under the circumstances.

Mark Geragos told you that that telephone call was tape-recorded because they were certain at that point that Janet Arvizo was going to shake them down for money. In other words, it was going to be in that telephone conversation that there was going to be the demand by Janet Arvizo that they pay money.

That statement was not true. When he testified to that, he was not giving you truthful testimony. There was never the expectation by either Mark Geragos or Brad Miller or Frank Cascio that Janet Arvizo would ever ask for a penny in the course of that conversation. And you can tell by the nature of the conversation.

If this was a conversation where they were going to be talking about a shakedown, then that conversation would have begun with Frank Cascio saying to Janet Arvizo, “All right. You asked for a million dollars in a numbered account in the Cayman Islands, let’s talk about that. What do we get if we give you a million dollars in a numbered account in the Cayman Islands?" That's what that conversation would begin with. This conversation was very different. I'd like you to go to that. These are either a series of telephone conversations or a single telephone conversation that had been edited 34 times. It may be more than one conversation. It may be many. We don't know. Brad Miller didn't testify in this case. The first thing that she begins to talk about is the Germans:

Frank: "What happened?"

Janet: "It's just those German people. You don't imagine."

Janet: "Those people terrify me, Frank. They were threatening. They were terrifying."

Frank: "Like I said, you don't, like, like I said, I promise you, Janet, you don't have to talk to them anymore."

Janet: "Because they were trying to dictate to me exactly what to say."

Janet: "Are the German guys there?"

Frank: "No, don't worry. And if -- they're not there. And if they are -- they're not there, I know that for a fact. But if they are, you don't have to talk to them. You just talk -- it's unsafe."

This came up continuously in the course of this telephone conversation between the two of them.

Frank: "Let us take care of you. Let us protect you. Now is not the right time to be out there alone."

Frank: "No, no, that's not what I'm worried about. I'm worried because you and -- you and -- the protection, because there's a lot of evil people out there right now."

"Frank: That's why even staying another night alone is not safe, so I want to talk to Gavin and see if he's okay, but then I want to talk to you and we can make some arrangements."

"Frank: And when you left like that, it was just so dangerous, and we were so worried about you."

"Frank: I'm going to get you guys out of there into a safe place tonight. I need you to be safe, and I need your family to be safe."

Janet says, "Okay."

Frank says, "To you and to your family, because you know how vindictive people can be."

Now, Janet Arvizo came into this courtroom and told you that over and over and over they were telling her it was very dangerous outside of Neverland. And that she, in fact, had to be at Neverland. She had no way of knowing that this conversation was being tape-recorded. She was never told that. She had no way of knowing that we would some day recover that tape-recording. This corroborates her testimony 100 percent. Janet doesn't want money.

Remember, this was the whole purpose of tape-recording this telephone call, according to Mark Geragos. This was the telephone call where Janet was going to make a demand for money.

"Don't" -- "Don't worry, Frank, I can't be bought."

Remember when she says that in there? We have no idea what they cut out of this tape-recording, but this is the part that they left in. This is exactly the opposite of what is the pretense for them tape-recording this telephone call in the first place.

"Don't worry, Frank, I can't be bought."

Janet says, "Are, like, crazy here."

Frank says, "Who?"

Janet says, "The reporters and stuff. And we haven't talked to a single person, Frank."

She can talk to anybody she wants. This is America. If she wants to sell her story, she can sell her story. And what is she doing? She's not talking to anybody. She's not accepting any offer, and there are -- offers abound.

"And, you know, Frank, I have -- my mom's table is filled with offers and stuff like that. And I didn't take a single penny," is what she says to Frank. They're recording this conversation. There are parts that they are cutting out, but this they don’t cut out.

She goes on: “It’s like -- it’s like crazy. Can I read you one of the letters? It’s like all kinds of things and it’s of no interest to me, because family never leaves family behind, you know.”

This is Janet. This is Janet telling Frank that her biggest concern is friends and family. She has no interest at all in profiting off Michael Jackson. Once again, she has never asked for a penny from Michael Jackson.

Michael Jackson’s statements, now listen to this. This is all from Frank, the person who is quite possibly the closest person at Neverland. The closest person among Michael Jackson’s entire entourage is Frank Cascio, and look what he says:

“Michael would love to see you. He is so worried. Michael cares about you and your family, entire family, and we would not mislead you. Michael has been missing you. Michael wants to see you. He was almost -- he didn’t know what happened. He thought he did something and he was trying to get in touch with you. And I said, ‘Don’t worry, I’ll take care of this.’”

Frank: “We didn’t know that, where you went. Michael didn’t know. Nobody knew anything. I know Michael would love for you to come back to the ranch.”

Look at that. “I know Michael would love for you to come back to the ranch.”

Who is it who’s trying to get this family back at Neverland? Who is exploiting whom here?

“You need to go back up to the ranch and see Michael because he’s very concerned. He’s concerned about you and Gavin and Star and your daughter.”

The trip.

Now, this part is pretty interesting, because you get a sense here as to what exactly it is that they may have cut out. Understand that they don’t want anybody to know about this Brazil trip.

But look what the statements are here:

Frank: “Michael -- we were all going to go away.”

And this includes Michael Jackson, is his representation to her. Exactly consistent with her testimony, exactly consistent with what she said in the interviews. This is a trip to Brazil and Michael Jackson is personally coming as well.

“Michael -- we are all going to go away. We are gonna -- we are actually going to take you to a really great place that -- I was going to take you first, and Michael and the rest of them was going to come join us.”

“For the safety of everyone, and trust me, where are you going to go? You’re going to have an unbelievable time. I’m going to take you dancing every single night.”

Remember her response to that? She said, “Oh, that’s okay, Frank. I just want you guys’ hugs.”

Janet Arvizo has never asked for anything other than friendship and compassion. Ever.

Frank: “I’m going to just let you and Michael -- we’re all going to have to go someplace, including Michael, from what’s going on, and it’s going to be a fun trip. Even my brother and sister are going to be coming out.”

In the course of that telephone call, she never makes a demand for a single penny. In the course of that telephone call, there was never an offer of a single penny. And in the course of that telephone call she assures Frank she doesn’t want money, has never asked for money, is not going to sell her story, is not going to say anything bad about Michael Jackson at all.

They stayed together. She stays in Los Angeles until the 19th. She finally makes the determination that she is going to do the video.

They are desperate at this point with regards to the video. They are desperate because they want this thing prepared and done and completed in time for the production that’s going to take place.

Frank: “But one thing I would love for you to do, and this would really help Michael, if you could tell your story, because you know this whole documentary we’re dealing, and this is, like I said, you don’t have to talk to the Germans. You don’t have to do anything. We would love for you to go tape and just say something beautiful about Michael.

“Because they are trying to dictate....”

And here’s her answer. Listen to this:

“Because they are trying to dictate to me what exactly to say.”

That is exactly what she’s been complaining about all along. She has no trouble saying a few good words about Michael Jackson. Up to this point, she has had not one reason in the world to be angry or upset with him, other than what she saw on the plane of him licking the head, and she had no idea what that was all about.

Other than that, there was no reason to be upset with Michael Jackson, nor did she ever express it. When asked if she would say good words about him, she said, “Fine.” She was upset with the Germans and how they were behaving and what they were telling her about the danger to her and her children and what they were saying about what she had to say.

“But you know? I know there are things and the way” -- the way doing. They were going to take you down to see me, actually, because we were going to do the whole interview the next day, remember? But, listen, you don’t ever have to deal with them again.”

That was the conversation that took place.

She went back. She made the determination she still wasn’t going back to Neverland. She caused them to have to move that interview to Hamid Moslehi’s house in Calabasas. And at that point that interview took place there.

In the course of that interview, she had that conversation with Vicki Podberesky. That conversation was limited entirely to the concerns that she would have the following morning when she had to address Child Protective Services.

She gave that interview. It was well over the top. She was filled with praise for Michael Jackson, praise for things he never did, and praise for things he did do. That business of helping the kids with their homework and spending time and curing her son of cancer, stuff that he obviously didn’t do.

But she did what was asked of her, and she did it for a variety of different reasons. One, she liked Michael Jackson and was happy to do that for him. Two, she believed them when they said, “You have to do this to protect the well-being of your children.” And, three, she believed that there was a correlation between what she said in that interview and ultimately whether her children would be taken away from her. She understood that if she made sure the Child Protective workers understood that Michael Jackson was a decent and loving man who was protecting her children and helping her children, and not causing harm for her children, that she would be able to keep her children. And that was her motivation as she went through that next thing.

From the 21st to the 25th, they went about the efforts -- they went back to Neverland, the entire family. These kids have now been at Neverland or out of school or in the presence of Michael Jackson since the 5th of February. It is now between the 21st and the 25th, and all of them have been staying at Neverland. On the 25th, they go to Calabasas, they stay in Calabasas. And let me go back just one moment, and I’ll move back to Calabasas again.

What you see here is Exhibit 413, and this is the consent and release agreement. Remember Mr. Mesereau telling that you she was negotiating for more money? Well, this was the agreement that was originally furnished to her that she did not sign. This is the one that she did sign.

As you can see, there was no offer of money in any way. She has never asked for money. They never gave her money. This simply released her and allowed them to be able to use her image, to be able to profit from it. The second release is the one that waives rights on behalf of her children, as well. So that they can use the image of her children in this production. That she asked for no money in any of this; has never asked for any money in any of this at all.

During the period of time -- during the period of time between the 25th, the period of time between the 25th and the 2nd of March, Janet Arvizo and the kids stayed at a hotel in Calabasas. She had at this point reconciled herself to the fact that she was heading off to Brazil. She had had the interview with the Child Protective Services. That interview was tape-recorded. It was tape-recorded by -- until she turned the tape off, because she believed that the tape-recording was illegal. That tape-recording was done by an employee of Mark -- an employee of Brad Miller, the private investigator who worked for Mark Geragos.

Mark Geragos told you he knew nothing about it. That is probably unbelievable. Of course, he told you he knew nothing about anything, and we'll get to Mark Geragos a little bit further on.

That tape-recording was made and it eventually ended up on television. Ultimately we received a copy of that tape-recording from the defense, and that was the copy that was played for you, in its entirety, until she finally turned that tape-recording off.

Between the 25th and the 2nd, the 25th of February and the 2nd of March, they made the arrangements to go to Brazil. She obviously at this point agreed that she was going to go to Brazil.

She was never happy about it under any circumstances. And why would she be? She had a child who was sick and needed continuous medical attention. She was scared. She was worried. She was in a new relationship. She didn't trust the people who were dictating what was going on in her life at this point, but she was convinced that she needed to leave the country at that point.

They got passports, they got visas, they got her birth certificate. They got the court records that showed that she had sole custody of her children, custody having been taken away from her ex-husband, David Arvizo. They took them shopping. They got new clothes for this trip. They got luggage for her to be able to pack all of this stuff. And they were making the arrangements to go. They went back to Neverland on the 2nd of March, and guess who returned to Neverland at exactly that time? Michael Jackson. And you'll see from the Air Apparent records that he had actually flown his family from Neverland out to Florida the very day before, leaving the family behind in Florida. He then returned back to Neverland on the 2nd of March, as he was then reunited after this five-day absence with Gavin and Star. Gavin and Star both go back into his bedroom during that period of time.

During that period of time, they stayed in his bedroom the entire time from the 2nd of March to the 10th of March, with the exception of two nights. There were two nights that Michael Jackson went to a hotel in Los Angeles. Excuse me. That was the night of the 7th and the night of the 8th. Other than that, these boys were in Michael Jackson's bedroom the entire time. It was during this period of time that the behavior had turned to something horribly illegal.

On the 9th of March, Janet Arvizo had her child begin the collection of a 24-hour sample, urine sample, for a creatinine testing at Kaiser Hospital. Gavin was still under the care of a doctor, and receiving regular appointments and regular checkups. Once again, the reason why she would not pick up and simply move this family to Brazil. The urine collection was the 24-hour urine collection that was put in a large container and it would be taken to the hospital for the test.

In the morning hours of the 10th of March, she received a telephone call from her son Gavin, four o'clock in the morning. And he explained to her for the first time that Michael Jackson was giving them alcohol. And he was worried because this test, as he had told -- as Gavin had told Michael Jackson, Michael Jackson came to believe that this test would reveal that the children were given alcohol and could cause problems for him. Michael Jackson wanted Gavin to throw it away and cancel the test. And he, in fact, wouldn’t do that.

Janet Arvizo was very upset at hearing this, very concerned about hearing this. This is the first time that she had ever expressed anything negative about Michael Jackson, that he would give her child, who had suffered from cancer, who suffers still from an immune deficiency problem because of that. Alcohol was just unspeakable for her.

And she sent her daughter Davellin to the house at six o’clock in the morning to gain entry, to get Gavin, to get them out so that they could leave. Davellin pounded on the door. There was no response, no answer. Remember Macaulay Culkin talking about Michael Jackson has an open-door policy? Well, apparently not on that day. She wasn’t able to rouse anybody.

It wasn’t until much later that morning that she finally arranged with Vinnie and Gavin that they were going to go to the Kaiser Hospital. On the way to Kaiser Hospital there was a stop. She used a rest room. When she came back in, the urine had been spilled.

Vinnie spilled out the urine. Said it was an accident. Spilled out the urine. There wasn’t a sufficient quantity to test. There was no blood test that was done at that time either. But Janet at this point knew that there was a serious problem.

And I want you to think about something.

From the moment that Janet Arvizo understood that Michael Jackson posed a direct threat to her child -- and this was not molestation. That wasn’t what she was thinking. It was alcohol being furnished to a child who was sick and still undergoing medical attention. From the moment she learned that, 36 hours later, her children were out of Neverland and never went back. 36 hours.

Contrast that against Liz Barnes, who allowed her child to sleep in Michael Jackson’s bed for over a year.

Contrast that against Joy Robson, who took thousands of dollars from Michael Jackson and allowed her child to spend months at a time in that bedroom.

Contrast that even against June Chandler, who today understands what she did wrong. And today regrets the fact that she has even lost her child because of his association with Michael Jackson. But who also allowed Michael Jackson to spend months in bed -- in her own house, in bed with her son at age 13.

For all her shortcomings, for all her shortcomings, Janet Arvizo, within 36 hours of learning that Michael Jackson was giving her child alcohol, had all three of her kids out of Neverland and they never went back. And that was amid a great deal of pressure from a lot of very highly paid people during that period of time.

On the 10th, when she went to the hospital to furnish the sample of urine, she made this ruse about going to a beauty parlor in West L.A., and in that beauty parlor she called Jay Jackson. Jay Jackson came. She said she was not going back to the ranch. They took Gavin back to the ranch.

On the next day she had a court appearance, on the 11th. They went to that court appearance. Vinnie was supposed to bring the kids. Vinnie came. He never brought the kids.

That next day was the 11th. They understood very clearly that they had to get the kids out of there, and that began the process of doing so.

They then hatched a plot with her mother, Maria Ventura, who you met. You heard her testimony. Again, use common sense. Is she making all of that stuff up? You saw her, you saw her demeanor, you heard the words out of her mouth as it was translated to you. The testimony was in Spanish.

But they had to use a ploy to be able to get those kids delivered from Neverland over to their house. And they were delivered there. And they never went back.

And Maria Ventura’s testimony to you was that she did not even recognize these children by the time they got back. And certainly she did not recognize Gavin. Angry, hostile, confrontational, very upset that he had been taken away from Neverland during that period of time. Very upset. She testified to you that even today he is not the same child that he was before he met Michael Jackson.

What happened at Neverland during that period of time? I mean, what was going on at Neverland when they were there.

Well, you need to understand a little bit of what the grooming process is. What happens to a child who is exposed to a predator, and particularly a predator who has a great deal of money and a great deal of influence over children, and has the ability, because of his reputation and his position, not in the community, but the international community as a celebrity, to be able to work with children in ways that nobody else can possibly imagine?

The first thing that begins with children at Neverland is that they're separated from their parents, and they're separated from authority, and they are separated from discipline.

During the five weeks that these children were exposed to Michael Jackson, they've had no schooling. They had no homework. They had no discipline. Their mother, when she was there, basically stayed in her room. The kids stayed with Michael Jackson. They ran free. They did whatever they wanted to do. They played all of the games that are in Neverland. They rode on the rides. They drove the golf carts around. They drove the quads. They went to the zoo. They ate whatever they wanted, which for a 12- and 13-year-old means candy. They ate enormous amounts of sugar, candy, ice cream, soda pop, whenever they wanted. When they didn't want to eat, they didn't eat. There was no discipline, there was only fun.

They played with video games, and they were clearly the best video games that had ever been invented. They played with all manner of toys.

They watched movies. They did whatever they wanted to do during the course of the day.

And at night, they entered into the world of the forbidden. At night they went into Michael Jackson’s room, which is a veritable fortress. It is a room that nobody else has access to. It is a room that has codes and locks and multiple doors and alarm systems, and they knew all of those alarm systems and all of those codes, and they stayed there, and they knew all of that information because Michael Jackson wanted them to know all of that information. And inside that room, in the evening time, they entered the world of the forbidden and they learned about human sexuality from somebody who is only too willing to be their teacher.

And that discussion began with looking at magazines. Looking at pornography. Looking at a collection of sexually explicit material. It began with very frank discussions about sexuality designed to reduce their inhibitions. It began with discussions about masturbation. It began with discussions about nudity. It included a presentation by himself, nude, to them, to these children. It included an act of simulating a sex act on a mannequin that was up in the room.

Now, again, I ask you, Mr. Mesereau is going to say these kids made all of this up and they made all of this up at the behest of Janet Arvizo. And when he says that to you, you need to ask yourself, does common sense suggest that that’s how it happened, when we find a mannequin in that room, exactly the mannequin that they talked about nine months later? Janet was never up in that room. Does that make sense that they would find -- that they would find this thing that corroborates the testimony of these boys so well when they talk about him presenting himself nude? Who made that up?

It simply has the ring of truth to it. And as you apply your common sense to this evidence, you see that that’s true, particularly given the wealth of poverty -- of pornography that is found in that room. Not just that room but in other places at Neverland as well, something that clearly all of them understand.

The grooming process takes a while. It takes a while. Not a terribly long while, but a while. And it begins with the selection of a vulnerable child, because a child who comes from a healthy household with two parents, two loving parents who are watching carefully over their children, is a much harder hold, to get a foothold in for a predator than would be a child from a broken home with only one parent, and with one parent who deals with her own collection of disabilities. That is a much more vulnerable home.

And when you look at all the other kids, you will realize that there’s a common theme with all of them. There’s no father in the picture in virtually all of them. In the Barnes family, in the Robson family. There was no child (sic) in the Chandler family. There was no father in the picture. Jason Francia, there was no father in the picture. And at this point, there was no father in the picture for Gavin Arvizo either.

And in the case of their mother, as well meaning as she was, this is a person who had endured 16 or 17 years of domestic violence, and an additional year of watching her son almost die, and she simply lacked the emotional wherewithal to be able to deal with all that was going on at Neverland, as hard as she tried. And even given her limited sophistication and understanding, she still, more than any of the others, understood that Neverland was not the place for her children to be, and she battled valiantly to get those kids the heck out of there.

So what happened over that particular period of time? Well, the vulnerable child is the one who simply doesn’t have the protection. A colleague of mine uses the expression, he says, “The lion on the Serengeti doesn’t go after the strongest antelope. The lion on the Serengeti goes after the weakest antelope.”

All predators go after the weakest, not the strongest. To distinguish the weakest in terms of children is the level of protection their parents are able or unable to afford. And in this case, this was the vulnerable child.

Now, Gavin stood up here, at age 15, and he testified for you. This is why we thought it was so important that you see the actual disclosure in the tape when he was 13 years old, and for the first time disclosed to Steve Robel what had happened to him.

But as he stood up here at age 15, think about this for a moment. He stood before you at age 15 and in a room that’s filled with people. It was filled with people back then. There’s 20 jurors sitting in this box. There’s a collection of people sitting up here, and there’s Michael Jackson, the man that he once held in such high regard, the man that he loved, the man that he spent endless nights in bed with in the most intimate manner possible.

And he stood up here, at age 15, in a room filled with people, and there’s no question that the people out there, a good number of them, are press, national press. He knew that his words were going to be showing up everywhere. It is a large collection of people out there. That had to be intimidating for him. It’s intimidating for me. You look out there, there are faces out there you recognize. Some of them I even like.

(Laughter.)

MR. ZONEN: What would it have been like for a 15-year-old child? And talking about what? Talking about the most sensitive subject matter possible. The fact that he had been molested by a man he once loved, a man he held in very high regard.

And he plugged through it. And he talked about what happened. And he talked about this entire process of, over a period of weeks, being shown sexually graphic material, being talked to about intimate sexual matters, being oriented into the world of sexuality at age 13, and sharing a bed with him.

And finally he described to you an act of lying in bed, drinking, having been drinking on numerous occasions, drinking every night to a point of intoxication, and he described to you two events that he said he was sober enough to be able to give descriptions with some level of accuracy. He believed that there were more events, but those were two that he was able to describe to you.

And he described the defendant lying in bed with him and reaching his hand into his pajama bottoms and fondling his genitalia, and at least on one occasion to the point where he ejaculated. And he described that, a 15-year-old boy.

All of you have known or know a 15-year-old boy. And you have got to understand that that may be probably the second most difficult moment in his life. The first most difficult moment was that moment you saw on tape as he sat with Steve Robel and for the first time ever disclosed what happened to him.

That has got to be a difficult moment. And yet we are supposed to believe, we are supposed to believe that what he said was all made up, because there’s some expectation that in the future he would become a wealthy person. This is a 15-year-old child.

All of you have dealt with children at one time or the other. All of you understand that the expectation of telling a child, “Do this for me now, and in two weeks, something good will happen for you,” that the response that you get from that teenager is something along the line of, “Whatever.” That it is almost impossible to assure from a child that they will receive some expectation of gratitude or appreciation of something that will happen at sometime down the line.

The suggestion that this child should subject himself to the humiliation of this kind of an ordeal and the ordeal of going through that interview with Steve Robel that you watched, and you watched that twisted response of a small child having to disclose for the first time those kinds of words at age 13.

The suggestion that all of this was planned and plotted and it was simply nothing more than a shakedown, a good acting job, is nonsense. It's unmitigated rubbish. You cannot do that to a child. It would be impossible to do, even if he was motivated to do it, and he wasn't. And he wasn't.

Would you go to the experts, please, Katz?

Now, there were a number of witnesses who testified in this proceeding. And I'm going to be quoting Stan Katz at this moment, who is of course the person who was retained by Larry Feldman to evaluate these children at the time. These are questions that he answered:

"A pre-adolescent or adolescent boy is hypersensitive about his sexuality."

"It would be extremely unusual for a child who's developmentally at a stage where he's trying to figure out who he is, and to actually become a man, to make an allegation which would suggest that he's had inappropriate sexual relationships with a male."

This is somebody who has been doing this for many years and has the reputation of being conservative in his determinations that sexual molestation took place.

"It would be extremely rare, because these children are so protective and so guilt-ridden and shamed by any behavior that's extraordinary and ultra-normal."

"In my experience, a child who is going to lie and fabricate cannot be consistent and hold that very long, because children are impulsive. They can't delay gratification. You can't tell a child, 'Years from now, if you lie, something good will happen.'"

All right. Now, Stan Katz obviously was a witness who was hired by Mr. Feldman. There is every expectation that Mr. Mesereau will say, "Well, he's biased in his view. He was paid by Feldman. Obviously he's on one side." But let's look at some of the comments, if we could, by Dr. Esplin.

Dr. Esplin was, of course, the expert who was retained by the defense, who was called by Mr.

Sanger. And look at a number of the questions that he answered to.

"All right. Doctor, in terms of disclosures, you agree with Dr. Urquiza" -- Dr. Urquiza testified for the prosecution. "You agree with Dr. Urquiza that you really can't draw any conclusion from a child reporting late; isn't that true?"

"Yes."

"And you would agree with Dr. Urquiza when he says that the time and even the manner in which one discloses is not necessarily reflective of the truth of the allegation?"

And he says, "Yes."

"And in fact, children often report in piecemeal. They give a little information now, and a little information later, and more information after that; would that be true? That's not unusual?"

And his answer is: "I would agree with that, but you're talking about that they don't tell you everything there is to tell on the initial disclosure."

Dr. Esplin was the retained expert for the defense who testified, and as I started asking him questions about what might you logically see in the case of the consenting victim, the victim who's in a relationship with the offender, not one who's abducted off the street, but one who is in a consenting relationship with the defendant, with the suspect, one who has been groomed to be able to behave appropriately, because you need to understand, it's not that hard to molest a child. What's hard is getting away with it. In other words, you need to develop the relationship where you have the confidence that the child will not reveal what's going on, that the child will accept what's going on. Sometimes that the child will even enjoy engaging in acts that a 13-year-old would otherwise find repulsive, and you do that by developing a relationship. Befriending a nonrelated child. Spending a great deal of time with a nonrelated child. Providing the child with extravagant gifts or money.

In this case, that child had been given not just extravagant gifts or money, but gifts that are personal to the defendant: The jacket off of his back, a watch off of his wrist, a watch that he represents is worth $75,000. I don’t know anything about expensive watches. That one looks a lot less than that, but that’s what he represented to Gavin at the time, “That’s a watch worth $75,000.”

Taking the child to fun places. Doing fun things. This is Dr. Esplin, their own witness. What could be more fun than everything that is Neverland?

Bestowing special privileges. Shares intimate moments. What could be more intimate than going to bed with a person night after night after night, but staying in the same room, sequestered in his suite, locked away from the rest of the world, even locked away from the rest of Neverland?

I want to talk to you now about some of the corroboration that we’ve presented in this particular case.

There was a collection of testimony from different witnesses who came before you, and I’m going to start with Jason Francia. Jason Francia today is 24 years old.

I apologize, I have a bit of a cold. But I’ll get through this, okay?

Jason Francia today is 24 years old. He is very actively involved in his church. When he was 13 years -- excuse me, when he was ten years old, he was molested by Michael Jackson. In fact, he had been molested on two previous occasions by Michael Jackson.

On the first of those occasions, which could date back as young as age seven, Mr. Jackson fondled his genitalia on the outside of his clothing. That happened a second time. And then finally on the third occasion, when he was about ten years old, it was by putting his hand on the inside of his shorts up through the leg and fondling his genitalia, skin to skin. That event occurred when he was about ten. He was the son of a maid who worked for Michael Jackson.

Today, he’s 24 years old. This was disclosed when he was 13. It was disclosed in conjunction with the investigation that took place surrounding the allegations about Jordie Chandler in the civil suit that was filed by Larry Feldman on behalf of Jordan Chandler back in 1993 and 1994.

Jason Francia went through five years of therapy after the resolution of their civil case in his favor. Over five years, up until age of 18, and at the age of 18, he stopped his therapy, and he went and became involved with his church.

Over the next six years, he went through a program, an apprenticeship program to become a youth pastor at that church, and today is a youth pastor, but as well is the director of a youth mentorship program at that church. In other words, they take at-risk children, at-risk children, and they work with them to show them that there are alternatives to being involved with gangs, to being involved with drugs, to being involved with criminal behavior. And as he said it to you, one of the alternatives is the discovery of God.

There is absolutely no reason to believe that Jason Francia has anything to gain by coming into this courtroom and testifying about what happened to him when he was ten years old and when he was younger.

Not only does he have nothing personal to gain by it, he is not selling his story. He is not going to a tabloid. He has never sold his story. He has never gone to a tabloid. The civil claim that was settled back when he was 13 years old had nothing to do with him. Nobody asked his permission or his involvement. He had no idea that his mother had sold her story for $20,000 until just days before he walked into the courtroom.

Jason Francia appears to be the kind of young man you want living next door to you. He is an absolutely -- a delightful young person and there’s just no indication that there’s anything about his personality or character that could be defined in any way other than absolutely beyond reproach, a man of impeccable character and integrity. He came into this courtroom and he testified that he was molested by Michael Jackson. Michael Jackson paid money to his mother and to him to settle that claim against him, as did he do for Jordie Chandler. “Very favorably resolved,” as Mr. Feldman said.

If you believe that Jason Francia testified truthfully as he testified before you, then Michael Jackson is a child molester. If you believe that his testimony is truthful, and you have no reason in the world not to believe it, it’s corroborated by the fact that Michael Jackson paid this kid off, and the mother, and it’s corroborated by the fact that -- frankly, the testimony of Gavin himself.

But it is mostly corroborated by this child himself, whose presentation before you was absolutely sincere and painful. You watched him struggle through his testimony in very much the same way that Gavin struggled through his, both on that video and in court as well. This is not an easy subject for an adolescent boy, and it doesn’t get easier when they get into their 20s. He testified to you that he never told his mother. To this day he has never told his mother. Gavin told you exactly the same thing. He has never told his mother what happened.

Jason Francia told you on the witness stand that he never told his wife he had just married within the last month before the testimony; that she was hearing it for the first time sitting in the courtroom. This is not the type of thing that adolescent boys talk about or disclose. It is not easy.

The suggestion that his testimony was contrived and part of a plot to shake down a celebrity is nonsense. You’ll notice they never accused Chris Tucker of anything. They never accused George Lopez of anything. There were a variety of celebrities that they were exposed to when Gavin was sick. None of them have ever been the recipient of any accusation whatsoever.

June Chandler testified in this particular case. June Chandler testified that her child was saturated with telephone calls, many telephone calls over a long period of time, long calls going hours. Exactly what Gavin said. This is what he does. This is how he begins his relationship.

June Chandler testified that they went on trips together. They traveled to Las Vegas. They traveled to Monaco. They traveled to Paris. They traveled to New York. They traveled to Florida together. This whole family. He took them many, many places. June Chandler testified that he gave the mother a diamond Cartier bracelet. June Chandler testified that she got a gift certificate from Michael Jackson from Fred Siegel, a higher-end clothing store in Los Angeles. $7,000.

And what was his relationship with her child? While he was wining and dining the family, and again there was no father in the picture during this time, he was coming to June Chandler's home every day at about three o'clock after school let out, and he would spend the balance of that day and night - and night - with Jordie Chandler, the balance of the day and nights in his room, in his bed, until the next morning, when Jordie would go off to school and Michael Jackson would then leave and return at three o'clock the next day. This went on for weeks and weeks. It was at least 30 days that this was going on. And that doesn't count the period of time that they were traveling to places like Monaco and Paris and New York and Florida and Las Vegas during this period of time.

June Chandler has lost her son as a consequence of this. She hasn't had a conversation or seen her son since he was 13 years old. When all of this came to light, the investigation occurred, he went to live with his father.

There is no reason to disbelieve anything June Chandler said. In that lawsuit, she got a settlement as well, and that settlement was at the request of the defense, and it was at the request of the defense because it included within that settlement a provision that she not discuss any aspect of Michael Jackson or that settlement. That money that she got was to buy her silence, and it did until this came along.

Ralph Chacon testified in this trial. Ralph Chacon testified that he saw Michael Jackson in a shower with Jordie Chandler. He believed that Jordie Chandler was young at the time. Both of them were nude. He saw it through the window into the shower. He saw Michael Jackson caressing his hair, he saw him kissing his head, kissing his face, once against kissing his head. Again corroboration of what Janet saw on the plane. She saw him -- he saw him kissing his mouth. He saw Michael Jackson with his hands all over Jordie's body, kissing his nipples, and then finally putting Jordie Chandler's penis in his mouth. He said he went back to the house at that time.

He said he saw them leave the shower with the bathing suits left behind. He said he saw them leaving with Jordie Chandler up on Michael Jackson's shoulders wearing only a towel, obviously nothing else. The bathing suits had been left behind in the shower room.

You saw a separate occasion of them standing in front of the Peter Pan display as Michael Jackson kissed him and ran his hands down his crotch.

Ralph Chacon acknowledged that at a later time he was involved in a lawsuit. He lost that lawsuit. He declared bankruptcy. There was over a million-dollar judgment entered against him as a counterclaim by Michael Jackson, but you need to understand something.

The disclosure of what he saw that day was made under oath, in testimony under oath, a year prior to that lawsuit taking place. It was made under oath after he had been contacted by attorneys representing the defendant, including Robert Sanger.

And he refused, refused at that time, to give statements to them. That testimony was done under oath well in advance of that matter.

There was the testimony of Kassim Abdool. Kassim Abdool testified that he saw very much the same thing in terms of Jordie Chandler walking out of that shower on the shoulders wearing that towel.

There was the testimony of Adrian McManus. Adrian McManus gave testimony that she saw Wade Robson being kissed by Michael Jackson with his hand on his buttocks. That she saw Brett Barnes in bed together with Michael Jackson, something Brett Barnes readily acknowledged. That she saw Macaulay Culkin being kissed on the cheek with a hand on his rear end. And that she saw Jordie Chandler being kissed on the cheek and then on the mouth and then with his hand on his crotch.

She also filed a lawsuit against Michael Jackson. She was part of that one at a subsequent time. She lost that lawsuit. She's the only one who did not seek bankruptcy protection, and as a consequence, Michael Jackson has in the past garnished her salary. She comes here and she testified ten years later, says the same thing. She's not going to get anything from this. She's not going to get a story sold, none of that. The only risk she runs is that her salary could still be garnished at some time in the future.

Blanca Francia testified. She testified that she saw Wade Robson in the shower with Michael Jackson. His underwear was on the floor of the room. He was about eight years old. She saw Wade and -- Wade and Macaulay spending days on end in Michael Jackson's bedroom.

Phillip LeMarque testified. And Phillip LeMarque testified that they delivered french fries to the arcade, and while he was in there, he saw Michael Jackson holding up Macaulay Culkin. He saw his hand going underneath his shorts. And he saw his hand in the region of his crotch. Phillip LeMarque's testimony directly corroborates both Jason Francia, and it directly corroborates as well

Gavin Arvizo.

Now, what other corroboration do we have of the testimony of Jason Francia?

Could I have the pictures of the magazines?

There was a collection of material that was shown to you during the course of this trial. And, frankly, it took quite some time to show it to you, and I want to go through some of this material right now.

This book up here, entitled, “Man, A Sexual Study of Man,” was found inside Mr. Jackson’s bedroom. We had last night thought about presenting some of the photographs inside this book. And we decided -- and understand, as you’ve seen in the course of this trial, we’re not squeamish about showing photographs. We’ve done that. We could not find a photograph inside this manual that we felt could be projected on this wall.

This is a detailed study of what two men are able to do to one another sexually. The two men are depicted in numerous photographs. The photographs are divided in three categories. A series of photographs of two men masturbating one another, the second category of two men performing oral sex on one another, and then the final chapter is two men performing acts of sodomy or anal sex on one another. The pictures are absolutely graphic. This is not a publication that you’re going to find on anybody’s coffee -- anybody’s coffee table.

This is a publication that Michael Jackson had in his possession because it excites him. The content of this publication is sexual. And it is sexually exciting for him to have. That is the only reason somebody would have this type of publication. This is not appreciation of the content for its photographic sake. It is not appreciation of the content for its artistic sake. There is no artistic sake to it. It’s graphic depictions of two men performing sex acts on them. You need to look at that book. You need to look at the content of that book. This is not possessed by him for any reason other than the fact that he finds sexual excitement in looking at them.

And then you have to ask yourself, are you comfortable with a middle-aged man getting into bed with a 13-year-old boy as he possesses material like this that is, for him, sexually exciting? That's the question you have to deal with.

"The Boy, A Photographic Essay." This book was seized from Michael Jackson's possession in 1993. It is filled with photographs very much like this.

"Boys Will Be Boys" is the other publication. It is filled with photographs just like this. All of the photographs in this publication are very much like this.

Now, I will suggest again that there may be people who possess these because they find the photographs to be artistic. That's possible. But let me suggest to you that Michael Jackson possessed this book in 1993, at a time that he was sharing his bed, for months at a time, with one child after another. A succession of young boys going into his room for days and weeks and months at a time and sharing his bed in the most intimate manner possible. This was the kind of material that he had in his room at the time. He possessed this because it was sexually exciting for him, not because he thought that there was something good about the quality of the photography or because he considered that to be art.

This is a book called "Cronos" that was found in his room as well. That is a description or an example of the photography in that book.

Now, in his bedroom, when we went in there and we started opening drawers conducting our search, is a drawer that contains, as -- just as you open the drawer, that is the magazine that you see that's in there. In that drawer, the testimony to you was also found photographs of the Arvizo children. That picture of the Arvizo children, with Davellin in her uniform as an LAPD cadet and the other two boys, was found in that drawer at that time.

This was found in a box at the foot of the bed. Just like that. I mean, it may have been closed, but all you have to do is open it up. Remember the open-door policy that Mr. Culkin talked about? Anybody could walk in there. His children walk in there. The people -- the staff who walk in there and clean his room. It had to be the case that every single person who works at Neverland understands that he collects material like this.

This is his bathroom on the first floor.

Look at the -- I didn’t lose it. I didn’t lose it. It’s here.

Right down here, that is a suitcase. Right there is the black suitcase. This is in his bathroom on the first floor. Anybody can walk into that bathroom at that time. Inside that suitcase was a number of different documents, including these magazines. Also, there was a contract that you received in evidence, a contract, I believe it was the Neverland Valley Entertainment -- no, no. I don’t remember which one. There’s a contract that was in that suitcase at the time.

This is some magazines that was found on the first floor near the bathroom.

Go ahead.

This was found in the bathroom, simply sitting up on the counter, “Pimp Up, Ho’s Down,” and then copies of “Barely Legal.”

Go ahead to the next one.

Guess what this is? This is the suitcase that Gavin told you about. This is the suitcase, or the briefcase that Gavin told law enforcement about. And Star as well. Both of them said that there were magazines in there. They described some of the magazines. Some have been added to since then, some have been taken away. It is from this collection of magazines, from this collection, that we found all of the fingerprints.

Go ahead to the next one.

These are figurines that are found in his office. This is the office in the separate building that’s connected by a breezeway. You walk in there, and they are on the desk. Again, his open-door policy. Anybody in that ranch walks in there and sees this stuff, including his own children. He is simply not inhibited about hiding what he finds to be interesting sexually. Everybody on the ranch knows what's in there. His own witness, Maria, who testified, the maid, says she has seen the magazines.

Go on to the next one.

That's another one of the figurines.

Next.

This is inside the cabinet in the bathroom to the office. You just open the door, and that's what you see. Another copy of "Barely Legal." I'm going to be talking about that publication in a moment.

Next.

Here is another drawer in the bathroom to the office. You just open the door, a bottle of Vaseline on the left and another pornographic magazine on the right.

Go ahead to the next one.

All right. Now, the fingerprints that we presented over a great deal of time, I'm going resolve this in less than one minute - all right? - because you already heard days and days of that.

This is a collection of the magazines for which the fingerprints were found. You were exposed to hours of cross-examination of each of these witnesses as they talked about a fingerprint that was misidentified in Spain, okay? Or in Oregon, or in Philadelphia, or something like that. But the bottom line is that there were no experts who were presented by the defense to say that what we believed to be fingerprints of Star or Gavin were, in fact, mistakes. They didn't do that. And these prints were given to them to analyze separately.

So the bottom line is that these are their fingerprints. And by not producing evidence to the contrary is an acknowledgement that these are their fingerprints. As to Star in the green, there were fingerprints on one magazine called "Finally Legal."

Look at the topics of these things.

As to Gavin there are fingerprints on a title “Barely Legal - Hardcore.” And then there was another magazine, “Visions of Fantasy,” and another one’s “Al Goldsteins 100 Best Adult Videos.”

One of those magazines actually went to the grand jury, and it was that one. Remember Mr. Sanger asking Paul Zelis on the witness stand, “Detective Zelis, isn’t it true all of these magazines were handed to the boys during the grand jury?” And the answer is, “No.”

Of all the magazines that we found fingerprints on, only one of them actually went to the grand jury. All the rest of them were in the possession of Charlene Marie, who testified. Charlene Marie is the criminalist from the Department of Justice, and all of those magazines during the period of the grand jury hearings were, in fact, in her possession.

This is the mannequin that Janet testified to. The mannequin that -- not “Janet testified.” I’m sorry, that Gavin and Star testified that the defendant simulated a sex act against them at that time.

Let me take a moment to talk to you -- let me take a moment to talk to you about the sexually explicit material that was in his home. It was probably in three categories of material. There were the two books, and others, that depict nude children. There was the collection of material that was homoerotic. Some of it extraordinarily graphic. There are about five or six publications that he had that contain homoerotic material. Some just photographs and some depicting sex acts in the extreme. And it’s whatever two people, two men, can do to one another.

Then there was a collection of heterosexual material, mostly in the form of magazines. The greatest collection of that material had titles like “Just Legal” or “Barely Legal.” They are magazines that are selected -- for whom models are selected because they are presumably 18 years old, but frankly look 14. Okay? And for all we know, they’re 14 pretending to be 18 pretending to be 14, because there’s no way of knowing what their true age is. Identification is easy to get ahold of.

Why is he in possession of all of those magazines? Because he has 13-year-old boys in his room and 13-year-old boys who look at those magazines, and it’s not an accident that that’s where the fingerprints come up. It’s not an accident. They did not go through his drawers and find it in that room. It’s not an accident that that happened.

They’re going through that material because he’s showing them that material, and the selection of those particular magazines are designed to appeal to a 13-year-old boy, who is exactly at that stage in his life, and looking through those pictures, he sees images of -- what he sees are like girls that he knows and goes to school with. He’s 13 years old, and these models are selected because, frankly, they look that age, or 14, or 15, but girls that he would be familiar with. That is sexually exciting to a child and that reduces his inhibitions.

Why would he possess all of this material? Why would a man who has an interest in homoerotic material also have an interest in this kind of heterosexual material? And my answer to that question is, it’s not for him. It’s for the children who come into his room.

The third area of corroboration that we’re dealing with is the alcohol. There was a great deal of alcohol that was being poured at Neverland. He was drinking a lot of it, and the kids were drinking a lot of it. And we know it’s true. Michael Jackson has a drinking problem. There’s no other explanation to it. Jesus Salas described him as being intoxicated many nights a week. Not drinking many nights a week, intoxicated many nights a week. That corroborated the boys when they said he was intoxicated on a regular basis as well.

Let’s go to the jury instructions, if we can.

We found bottles of alcohol in his room. There’s no question but that he was drinking. We even have the testimony of his cousin, Rijo Jackson, who said that while the boys were in his room, a bottle of wine was delivered to his room.

I’m going to go through some of the instructions fairly rapidly and we’re going to move on quickly.

He’s charged with four counts of lewd act with a child. That’s Counts 2, 3, 4 and 5. Counts 2 and 3 deal with acts of molestation as described by Gavin Arvizo. Counts 4 and 5 deal with the acts of molestation as described by Star Arvizo.

Go ahead.

A lewd act with a child is -- there are three elements to this offense. We have to establish that a person touched the body of a child, a child was under 14 at the time; that the touching was done with the specific intent to arouse, appeal to, or gratify the lust, passions or sexual desires of either the person or the child.

If there’s any kind of touching of a child, it doesn’t matter whether it’s skin to skin, or skin on clothing, or otherwise. Any touching of a child under the age of 14 that is done because of the sexual interest, it’s done because he finds it sexually satisfying to do, or he wants it to be sexually satisfying to the child, that is an act of child molestation as defined under 288(a), which is the offense that we deal with. Four counts. Two counts separately as described by Gavin; two counts separately as described.

On Count 6, Count 6 was an attempt of child molest. That was described by Gavin, and that was the incident where Michael Jackson took his hand and brought his hand toward his crotch intending him to fondle Michael Jackson. Gavin was not ready to do that. The grooming process had not yet extended far enough. He pulled his hand away. It’s charged as an attempt, but that’s that count.

Attempt is a specific intent to commit the crime, and a direct but ineffectual act toward its commission. In other words, he took an act toward doing it, and he intended to do it at the time. That satisfies that crime.

The final four counts deal with administration of an intoxicant to aid the commission of a felony.

This is the final four counts, and each one reflects a correspondence with each of the child molestation counts. That the accused administered an intoxicating agent to another person. He did that every night while they were there. And, two, the accused administered the intoxicating agent with the specific comment to thereby enable or assist him in committing a lewd act with the child.

Conspiracy.

Move through this.

This conspiracy began as they were in Florida. This conspiracy began when they decided that they needed to get into the mind of Janet Arvizo that she was in danger. A conspiracy is an agreement to commit a crime, a specific intent to commit the crime, a specific intent to commit that crime, the specific intent to commit an overt act in furtherance of that crime, all right?

The agreement may be unspoken, and the agreement may be inferred from the circumstances.

Now, what does this mean?

Three men get together and decide that they're going to rob a liquor store. One goes out and buys a gun, one goes out and gases up the car, one goes out and selects which liquor store. All three of those acts are in furtherance of that conspiracy.

The three men get together and they specifically say they're going to do that. You now have a crime of conspiracy to rob a liquor store.

Does it matter that they did not rob the liquor store? No, not in the least. Conspiracy is what they call an inchoate crime, an incomplete crime.

The crime is sufficient --

There is something flying around. I'm not just doing that.

The crime is sufficient when they get into the agreement that they're going to do it and one of them takes one step in furtherance of the commission of that crime.

They are charged with conspiracy in this case.

There were overt acts - go ahead - “A step or act committed by one or more of the co-conspirators which goes beyond mere planning or agreement to commit a crime and which step or act is done in furtherance of the accomplishment of the object of the conspiracy.”

In other words, when the -- of the three men, the one who goes out and buys a gun, which is legal to do; one goes out and gases up the car, that’s legal to do; but it is the step in furtherance of the conspiracy. All you need is one.

In this case, there are 28 overt acts that are alleged in this conspiracy.

Go on.

“Overt act need not be criminal or unlawful.”

Go ahead.

It is, in this case, a conspiracy to commit any of three different crimes, and all you need to do is find one of them. Any of three different crimes that they agreed to do. One is child abduction. In other words, the separation of Janet Arvizo from her children.

Go ahead.

“A person took, enticed away, kept or withheld, or concealed a child.” “No right of custody.” “Malicious,” which means bad. That’s all that means.

And No. 4, “A specific intent to detain or conceal the child from the lawful custodian.”

This was what happened. And this actually -- remember, I said the crime doesn’t have to be completed at all? It’s simply that they intend to do it. This crime was completed when they told her she could leave Neverland, but her children are not leaving, and she was so scared that she felt the need to leave. This crime was actually committed at that time.

Go to the next one.

Definition of “keeps” or “withholds.”

“Retains physical possession whether or not the child resists or objects." In other words, these kids were happy to be at Neverland. That's not -- it's a question of whether the mother has the right to have these children.

"To entice," the -- the definition of that is, "To allure, to attract, to draw, or to lead away by exciting hope or desire." In other words, draws these kids away with the promise that there was something fun to do, but separating the kids from the mother. It does not necessarily include any domination.

"Detain" means to delay, to hinder, or to retard. It does not necessarily include force or menace."

The second crime that we're dealing with here is false imprisonment.

Now, there was a lot of cross-examination of witnesses by Mr. Mesereau and even Mr. Sanger, where they asked such questions of, "Well, did you hear any screaming? Did you hear anybody calling for help? As they walked from the car, did you hear anybody calling for help? As they walked from the car, did you hear anybody calling for help? As they went in the building, did you hear anybody calling for help?" That demonstrates a complete lack of understanding of what this case is all about, and this crime.

Nobody was falsely imprisoned, but there was the allegation that they conspired to do so; that they wanted that. They wanted to keep this family at Neverland, and they wanted to take them to Brazil. Now, the question is, did a number of people get together and decide that they were going to tell Janet that her life was in danger, and her children's lives were in danger, and they used that as a means to isolate her and keep her from moving about at will?

Whether or not it actually happened, we went through hours - hours - of cross-examination about all the opportunities she had to run away. That has nothing to do with this case. The ultimate was when we had that -- the orthodontist on the witness stand giving testimony with a road map of Solvang, talking about all the different escape routes out of Solvang, and all the questions about, “Did you hear any screaming out of the office? Did you hear any yelling for help in the orth” -- as if Janet Arvizo is going to leave her kids in the orthodontist seat with braces on and run through the streets of Solvang screaming. It simply has nothing to do with this case.

The question is, did a number of people get together and decide that they were going to frighten her into believing that her children were in danger for the purpose of keeping them isolated at Neverland? That is false imprisonment. It is the intent to commit that crime. Whether it actually happened or not is completely irrelevant.

“False imprisonment. Intentional or unlawfully confined or detained another.”

By the time we got to that stage of talking about whether the locks were on the inside of the door of the orthodontist office or on the outside of the door of the orthodontist office, I was ready to come screaming from the courtroom at that point.

Number two, that there was no consent in false imprisonment. That somebody was simply taken -- was required to stay at a particular location.

Number three, “Accomplished by force or threats that are either express or implied.”

These were express threats. They told her her children were in danger of dying; that there were killers out there. And that has been corroborated by that tape that we recovered from Brad Miller’s office.

Go ahead.

Extortion. This deals with taking from her a value, and it was under threat or fear.

Go ahead.

“A person obtained tangible or intangible property or other thing of value from a victim.”

Go ahead.

“With consent. Consent induced by wrongful use of fear.” Fear.

“Specific intent to wrongfully use fear to induce victim to give up their property.”

What constitutes fear?

Go ahead.

Definition of “property” in this case. What are we talking about? The use of fear to have them give up their own likeness, which in this case was a very valuable object. Everybody who testified in this case as to what went on in the early morning hours of the 20th of February for this video acknowledged that this was done for profit. That video was worth millions of dollars to somebody. But it was taken from the people who actually were entitled to it. And that was the Arvizo family, and that was done by means of fear.

The threat that there were people who would harm her and her children if they didn’t do this particular project, that is extortion.

In this particular case it was a crime that was actually accomplished. They certainly intended to do it, but in this case it was actually accomplished.

Go on to the next.

All right. I’d like to show you a couple of documents very quickly. This is an interesting one.

Go ahead and expand the sentence on here.

This is a letter that had been e-mailed, and I believe it was Marc Schaffel to one of the Germans, but look at this statement that’s on this letter: “There’s a possibility of a second show for the 25th or 26th for the same amount or more. As always, again, in my first plan, this would include Gavin and his mother, as well as a Michael Jackson interview.”

Go to the next page.

The next page is an accounting of the amount of money that was going to come from this production and that amount of money came to about $3.2 million. They were planning on using this production in a very profitable way. They were planning on using Gavin and his mother, Janet Arvizo, for their profit. They had no intention on giving them a penny.

Go to the next, please.

No.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Sorry.

MR. ZONEN: This is an exhibit of a document that was signed by Janet Arvizo on the 7th of February. This was while they were in Florida. That top line, as she said, it was a blank piece of paper when she signed it. When you take a look at this document, that makes sense. The writing is typed in, it’s well above the signature. It’s certainly consistent with the fact that she signed a document that had no paper (sic) on it.

If you look at the writing below it, “Mrs. Arvizo also learned that Davellin and Star may have been on T.V. without their consent. Please send it back accordingly.”

Do you know what this document does? This document gives Michael Jackson the authority to include Janet Arvizo in his lawsuit in England to take “Living with Michael Jackson” off the air, because she’s the one with standing to do it. She’s the one who has children for whom she did not give consent for them to be on it. Michael Jackson needs Janet Arvizo’s signature to effectively pursue that litigation. Not the other way around.

This is a fraudulent document. The signature on the bottom was transposed. In other words, a copy of her signature was made from another document, it was pasted on, and then a Xerox was made, and then somebody wrote -- and, look, it’s in the third person.

And in that bottom paragraph, “Miss Arvizo also learned,” whereas in the top paragraph, it’s “I confirm,” first person.

This is a fraudulent document, and it was used to be able to effect her inclusion in this lawsuit in England. And even David LeGrand on the witness stand has so acknowledged.

Go ahead.

This is a document containing the expenditures of money.

Can we see this? Can we blow it up? Go ahead.

This is incoming money from Fox Studios on the 13th. This is an advance on what this production was going to be, $750,000. On the 20th, the day before the production, it was 750,000. We’re up to 1.5 million. On the next one, an incoming wire, this is the day after the production, of 1.5 million. They’re now up to three million.

Go ahead.

And finally, Alfred Haber, this deals with the incoming money from overseas, another half million, and another half million five days later. Four million dollars they got on the production of the “Take 2,” the one that Michael Jackson was going to include the production of the Arvizos as well, but frankly, he couldn’t get it done in time because she refused to go back to Neverland.

Go ahead.

“Hale Lane” means that there was -- this is the money to David LeGrand. He gets $80,000.

Go ahead.

This is for Neverland Valley Entertainment. That means Marc Schaffel. He gets $150,000 for his involvement.

Joe Marcus gets $35,000. He’s the ranch manager. And this is on the 14th. This is before. You know, and this goes into his account. Joe Marcus is the one who put the notations, “Do not let Gavin leave the property.” Remember that? On the 19th?

Remember what they said about that? “Well, do not let Gavin leave the property was because he drives an SUV.”

That’s nonsense. That notation went on one-half hour after Hamid Moslehi arrived to do that video. They wanted to make sure that family was there to do that video.

Go to the next one.

Neverland Valley Ranch. That’s Michael Jackson. $60,000.

Go ahead.

Geragos & Geragos. Look at this. On the 14th, Geragos & Geragos. Mark Geragos worked for him for seven days and got $70,000. It's not over yet.

Go ahead.

Hale Lane, that's -- again, that's the attorney, LeGrand, $40,000.

Ken Finkelstein is the attorney in New York, represents Michael Jackson. He's managing the money. This is the account from Fire Mountain. This is the money that came into that account that had been created, a corporate structure that had been created to be able to deal with the money that came from the production of "Take 2." Ken Finkelstein is an attorney representing Michael Jackson. With Michael Jackson's knowledge and approval, two million dollars goes to him for his management on behalf of Michael Jackson of that production.

Go to the next one.

Hale Lane, another $30,000.

Go ahead.

Allan Whitman is his accountant, $150,000. That's what goes to pay the creditors. That's it. He owes ten million dollars to his creditors. That's what goes for that.

Go ahead.

Another document in here. This is the demonstration of the money, of the two million dollars that went to Finkelstein in New York.

Another $41,000 to Geragos & Geragos. At this point we're up to $110,000.

Another $70,000 to Geragos & Geragos. This is now $180,000 to Mark Geragos. This is all within the first three weeks of his representation of Michael Jackson.

Do you remember his testimony here? Do you remember when I asked him how many conversations he had with Michael Jackson? One that he had, on the first day he was there, he does not remember the content of that conversation. Remember that? When I asked him about conversations with anybody else, he had no recollection of any of them.

Conversations with Marc Schaffel, conversations with Dieter or conversations with Ronald Konitzer, conversations with Cascio. None of them did he remember, none of them did he take notes on, none of them did he keep notes on, none of them he could say in court.

He got $180,000 in his first three weeks of representation of Michael Jackson and can't sit up here and represent to you one single conversation he had and adamantly denies that he ever had a conversation with Michael Jackson. Adamantly denied that he ever knew that this family was staying at Neverland. Adequately denied that he knew anything about a trip to Brazil. Adamantly denied that he knew anything about passports. Mark Geragos, who stood up here and testified, "I" -- anything about ever being told by an attorney representing Janet Arvizo, that there was a demand for her passport, her birth certificate, original certified copies, and visas to New York.

She had an absolute right to be concerned about them being in possession of her passport. An absolute right. And Dickerman had an absolute right to demand it. And he sent six letters to Mark Geragos, and we presented them. And every one of those letters we corroborated and confirmed that they had been -- the first one delivered, hand-delivered to Mark Geragos, and five additional letters sent by fax, and we provided the proof that the facsimile had been delivered.

In all six of those letters he makes a demand that the passports be returned. Mark Geragos says, "I knew nothing of the passports. I knew nothing of the visas. I knew nothing of the trip to Brazil. I had no conversation with Michael Jackson, certainly not that I recall. I took no notes of anything. I don't remember anything of any conversation with anybody else. All I knew was that Janet Arvizo was trouble, and I said, 'You need to do something about that.'"

I said to him, "Well, when did you first learn that they were living there for the better part of five weeks, that these children were staying in his room, that these children were about the last of a succession of boys who had been living in his room, sharing his room and in fact sharing his bed?” And his answer, “I knew nothing about that.”

Even the production of “Living with Michael Jackson,” the reason that he had been retained, that production itself he said he didn’t watch for weeks and had never read the transcript. Did not know about the content of the phone conversation that was recorded by Brad Miller. Had never seen that transcript either.

What exactly was he paid $180,000 for over a three-week period? Because if you believe him in his testimony, he is both the most incompetent lawyer who ever occurred and the most uninformed. And that is not Mark Geragos. That’s not his reputation. And that means when he testified that he did not know anything about those passports, even though they were in his vault, and had been in his vault for over a year, in a law office that had a protocol set up to be able to deal with evidence being deposited into that vault, “I didn’t know it was there. I didn’t know who got it. I didn’t know who put it in there. Nobody signed for it. It just happened to be there.”

This is the case of The People versus Michael Jackson. This isn’t the case of John Doe being charged with drunk driving. This is the case of People versus Michael Jackson. There is nobody who is going to be able to convince you that when four passports, four birth certificates and four visas are delivered to Mark Geragos’ office involving who? The victim in this case and his mother, his brother and his sister, that he did not know about that.

Go ahead to the next one.

$180,000. Mark Geragos’ testimony before you was simply not true.

Now, why was Mark Geragos testifying there? He was there to testify that his investigator, Brad Miller, told him that Janet Arvizo asked for money. You have to simply not believe that.

Because Brad Miller, one thing he’s capable of doing is running a telephone wire and running a tape-recorder. And if, in fact, she had ever asked him for money, we would have a tape of that. They never even put Brad Miller on the witness stand.

And you have to disbelieve Mark Geragos when he says, “That’s what Brad Miller told me.” And that is the only testimony that came in, three months of trial, that actually has somebody saying Janet Arvizo asked Michael Jackson for money. Nobody else has said that at any time.

This is a document that was sent to Yolanda and Raymond Trujillo. They were the landlords of the Soto Street address. That document right there. The reason I’m showing it to you is, I want you to look at that signature.

Go to the next one.

Again, to Yolanda and Raymond Trujillo.

This is about moving them out of that apartment. Mr. Geragos said, “We paid for it because they wanted to keep tabs on her.” The answer to that is no, they didn’t. They moved them out of that apartment because they wanted to ship them off to Brazil and Mr. Geragos was part of that plan.

Again, look at the signature over “Janet Arvizo.”

Now go to the next one.

The two top are the two signatures you just looked at. The bottom one is actually her signature. She never signed those authorizations to have her property moved out of that apartment. Those are forgeries. Just like that document on the 7th of February that was done in Florida that included her in that civil suit.

Go to the next one.

This is a document, and as we blow up the portion in here that I want you to see, it shows Janet Arvizo at 11520 Trent. The “N” is obscured in this photograph, but you can actually see it in the document which is in evidence. 11520 Trent Avenue, Trent Court in Calabasas, is an address that does not exist. Does not exist.

Go to the next one.

All right. Before I get to that, let me talk a little bit more about what was going on in terms of Mark Geragos, Brad Miller and all of the others.

THE COURT: Counsel? Since you shifted, it’s time for a break.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. We’ll do that.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

They were erasing this family. Remember that movie that came out a few years ago starring our Governor? They were erasing this family. It began with that note that you just saw, the Trent Court address that doesn’t exist as the address that they used for the purchase of the tickets to Brazil. A one-way ticket was the testimony of what they wanted to do. Ultimately bought a round-trip, because that’s the only way they could do it and get into Brazil was to show that you have a ticket to get back out of the country, but that wasn’t one that they had to use. They had no intention of bringing this family back from Brazil at any time soon.

The furnishings that were taken out of the apartment were taken to an unknown location. Nobody knew where it was. And it took Mr. Dickerman two and a half months in order to get a response of where this property was. The property was put into the vault at this storage facility and it was put in the name of Brad Miller. Nobody else’s name was on it. There was no way to trace that stuff to them. There was no information that was given that reflected accurate information about where the family was going. Vinnie checked the kids out of John Burroughs Middle School. All debts were paid to John Burroughs Middle School with regard to the, excuse me, debts on the books. Whatever books weren’t returned, they were paid. At John Burroughs Middle School, they were told the kids were going to be going to Phoenix. They obviously weren’t going to Phoenix.

On the applications for the passports, they said that the family was going to be going to France and Italy. They obviously were not going to France or Italy. And finally, they got visas through the Brazilian embassy to go, in fact, to Brazil. Janet Arvizo told you that that decision was made to go to Brazil after they realized that any other country in South America would be a country where she would be able to speak the language, but couldn't do so in Brazil.

The family literally was being erased. There was no evidence where they were going to. There was no evidence of where they had been, the apartment being closed out, all debts having been paid. They were simply going to disappear in Brazil.

Now, why? Why were they doing that? Why was the surveillance going on? Why did the surveillance continue to go on even days after they had left?

And I think the answer to that, I want you to think about two things. When we showed you the surveillance tapes that we seized from Brad Miller's office, and again there's no reason to believe that was the sum total of them, because they were simply snippets of surveillances. They obviously did hours and hours and hours over a long period of time. Something had to justify $180,000 worth of billable hours in three weeks, so it was obviously more than seven minutes of surveillance. But one of them was particular -- two of them were particularly telling.

The first one was the surveillance camera from a car that was directly behind that Range Rover that had the Department of Social Services workers in it as they were having a conversation with Janet. This was the day after, the day after her interview with the DCFS at Jay Jackson's apartment. And it was being filmed as she talked with them through the window of the Range Rover, exactly as she had said.

Janet Arvizo had no way of knowing that, months later, we would do a search of Brad Miller's office and find a surveillance tape, but she kept telling everybody, "They're following us. They're filming us." And she told you that accordingly.

That film is corroboration of the fact that that happened.

That film actually captures Vinnie running up to the car at some point as they left and her walking with Vinnie. They're literally surveilling Janet while she's with Vinnie. And he knows it. They're still following behind and they're taking pictures. And yet we're supposed to believe she's nuts when she says they follow with a camera crew and take pictures. They do. And we seized some evidence of that.

But the other one that's the most telltale of all of the surveillance was the one that was done I believe on the 22nd of March. You can see it again, if you wish. It was the one in El Monte at the home of the Venturas, David and Maria Ventura. And it was while Davellin was walking home from school. And she had her book bag on her back. And what's telling about this is, she knew she was being followed and they knew that she was watching and that she knew. They knew she knew. She knew they knew.

She was scared to death. She looks back. She sees this car. She runs to her parents' backyard, closes the gate behind her, and once again looks back, and you can see that. And you can see the expression on her face. And they continue to film. They don't drive away. They don't engage in any kind of evasive behavior. They wanted her to know that she was being followed. They wanted her to be scared. They wanted this family to understand that there was still a threat to them. They wanted this family still back at Neverland.

If you would, please.

There was a note that was left on Maria and David Ventura's house. That note is this one right here. The note that was left and the testimony that they had, it was this person Johnny, whose, frankly, level of education is comparable to the photograph that he took. Johnny misspells "Vinnie" in here.

But think about this for a second: This is ten days after they had left Neverland. And you have this adult man misbehaving, throwing stones at the house, who leaves a note to a 13-year-old boy and to a 12-year-old boy to, “Please call Frank or Vinnie” That, I’m assuming, should be “Vinnie,” V-i-e-n-n-y, at -- and that’s the number. And that’s of course in -- up in Santa Barbara County. That’s at Neverland. Now, they add -- and on the other side it says, “To Star or Gavin.”

Now, imagine that you’re the parent for a moment and some man is throwing stones at the house and leaving a note on the door to your children to call for an emergency.

There was a real concerted effort to get this family back to Neverland. Why? Why would they do that? Why can’t they just leave this family alone?

And the answer to that is that they were profitable to them, and they were a potential liability against them. If they were out wandering about and doing what they wanted to do, there was always the possibility that at some point in time this family would end up on a television station, of some other station, talking about all the pornography and all the drinking, all the problems that is Neverland. That was their fear.

There was a second fear that they had. And let me suggest to you that that fear was even more paramount.

Aside from the fact that they were exploiting this family for just simply money, the very thing that Mr. Mesereau tells you was the motivation for Janet Arvizo, in fact was their motivation all along. This family was profitable. The press wanted to know all about them, who they were. Frankly, they wanted to know who Michael Jackson’s new boyfriend was, the truth being very simple in this regard. This family was profitable. And they wanted to capitalize off that profit, not allow them to do so.

But I think another issue that you need to take into consideration is this: All of the sexually explicit material that we showed you during the course of this trial, and during this closing argument, was found in a number of different locations in Neverland. It was in the bathroom, it was in the office, it was in the cabinets, it was out of the cabinets, it was on the counters. It was readily visible and a lot of people knew about it. The maids, certainly, who cleaned, they knew about it. The kids who were around there, they knew about it. The staff, they knew about it. The person who bought this material for Mr. Jackson, they knew about it.

They all knew about the drinking. They all knew that Michael Jackson drinks entirely too much and achieves levels of intoxication on a regular basis. They also knew that Gavin was not the first of a succession of young boys who have disappeared into his room for long periods of time. Not just hours, but days, weeks, and even months. Everybody understood what was going on at Neverland, and for anybody to say otherwise is simply not being honest. They understood.

And the realization, particularly from Frank, who was there back in the year 2000, at the time the sexually explicit materials and images were shown to these boys, who were then only nine or ten years old, he particularly understands. And that's why, when you look at those phone record charts, you realize that he is the center of attention.

There is the very real fear that at some point in time, a Sergeant Steve Robel, or a Detective Craig Bonner, or a Lieutenant Jeff Klapakis, or a Detective Vic Alvarez is going to show up at that door with a search warrant, because they know what's going on at Neverland. And that effort to isolate this family, not just from the public and not just from the press, but from the police, was one of the incentives to get this family into Brazil where they might stay for any length, period of time.

Among the documentation that you have in evidence is documentation that came back and forth between Marc Schaffel and others that refer to this "vacation" that they were going to be taking. And in a number of those documents, whenever you see the word "vacation for Janet and boys," "vacation" is in quotes, which of course means it's anything but a vacation.

The incentive in this case by Michael Jackson and all of his employees was, first of all, to exploit this family financially so that he might be able to salvage a second career financially and bring some much needed funds into that business enterprise, and secondly, to salvage his career. And that was done at the expense of this family.

It is also the case that Gavin Arvizo, demonstrating remarkable courage in coming into this courtroom, gave testimony to you about a series of events that took place in Michael Jackson's bedroom when Michael Jackson, not for the first time, took sexual liberties with a 13-year-old boy. That information and testimony is entirely credible, entirely accurate, and entirely truthful. It should be believed, and Michael Jackson should be held responsible for what he did.

Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Counsel.

Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: We need some time to set up, if we may, Your Honor.

THE COURT: You may.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you. Miss Yu went upstairs. I have to find her. She's doing computer type of things.

May I just --

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Thank you.

(Discussion off the record.)

MS. YU: I'm having some computer problems. I'm sorry, Your Honor.

THE COURT: It's okay.

MR. MESEREAU: Still having a computer problem.

THE COURT: Take your time.

MR. MESEREAU: Thanks.

It may take five or ten minutes. Something happened to the computer. Apologize.

THE COURT: That's okay.

THE BAILIFF: Judge, I.T. is on their way, too.
MR. MESEREAU: We’re going to be just a couple of minutes. Thanks.
I think we’re almost there, Your Honor.
MS. YU: I’m sorry.
THE COURT: (To the jury) I should tell you, everything was tested yesterday and it all worked. So it’s not that this is the first time they’re trying to do this.
THE BAILIFF: This computer gremlin came and....
MR. MESEREAU: I think we’re ready, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right, Counsel.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you.
Thank you, Your Honor. Like in the age of computers, right?
Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I’d like to begin my closing argument by thanking each and every one of you on behalf of Michael Jackson, his family, and everyone at the defense table for all the time you’ve spent on this case. It’s been a long trial. You’ve spent many months. You spent a lot of time looking at some testimony that was interesting and some that was not, some that was dull and some that was exciting, but you’ve had to work very, very hard, and we all appreciate it very much. Thank you very much.
Ladies and gentlemen, I just heard a prosecutor get up, start his closing argument with an attack on me. And whenever a prosecutor does that, you know they’re in trouble.
Now, I can look at you and say, “Mr. Sneddon said that Debbie Rowe would testify that the outtakes were scripted.” She did not. She said the opposite.
I can tell you that Mr. Sneddon said that Chris Carter would testify to acts at Neverland. He never showed up.
I can tell you that Christian Robinson was supposed to come for the prosecution and say things were scripted. He did not. We called him. He said they were not scripted.

That's not the point. This is not a popularity contest between lawyers.

The issue in this case is the life, the future, the freedom and the reputation of Michael Jackson. That's what's about to be placed in your hands. And the question you have before you is very simple. Do you believe the Arvizos beyond a reasonable doubt, or not?

If you don't, Mr. Jackson must go free.

I submit, based upon the testimony you've heard, the witnesses you've seen, the issues you've seen addressed, there is no way in the world you can find that the Arvizos are trustworthy beyond a reasonable doubt.

And if you can't do that, if anything they said to you, if anything they presented to you causes you to pause and wonder or suspect what really happened, Mr. Jackson must be acquitted under our legal system.

You have heard so much testimony about the scams of Mrs. Arvizo. The prosecutor gets up and tries to prop her up, justify her actions, explain her as a nice person, tell you you can trust her, tell you everyone should trust her. And he especially looks at you in the eye and says, "She never asked for money."

Well, I have some questions for the jury.

When she took her children to The Laugh Factory, placed them on stage, had them do skits and plays about their poverty, about how poor they were, about the part of town they came from in front of George Lopez; when she told George Lopez a story about how her children used to dive for coins in a fountain; when the fund-raisers took place and money was raised, and Janet Arvizo called George Lopez and wanted to give him a gift to thank him, was she asking for money?

When Janet Arvizo and Davellin kept hounding Chris Tucker, "When are we getting the truck? When are we getting the truck? When are we getting the truck?" was she asking for money?

When Janet Arvizo went to Miss Kennedy, who owned the dance class and said, “You know, we settled the J.C. Penney case. We got some money out of it, but all we ended up with were two bicycles. Please continue to give my children free lessons,” was she asking for money?

When Janet Arvizo concocted the J.C. Penney fraud, when her lawyer was shocked, after 25 meetings with her, to hear her say at a deposition how she’d been fondled 25 times by J.C. Penney security guards, was she asking for money?

When Janet Arvizo had her children call celebrities, constantly hounding celebrities, trying to get money, with her in the background scripting them and coaching them, do you think she was asking for money?

When Janet Arvizo went to the editor of the local newspaper in El Monte and said, “We have no insurance. Chemotherapy costs $12,000 per injection. Please put the bank account number in your article. Please do an article. I know it’s against your policy to do things like this, but please do it for us, because we can’t pay our medical bills,” was she asking anyone for money?

When the calls went to Jay Leno, repeated messages, “You’re my favorite comedian,” messages he thought were awfully effusive, sounded scripted, sounded contrived, didn’t sound like the appropriate message from a child of that age, when he called the hospital and a woman was in the background telling her son to be effusive, to be wordy, to continue to tell him, “You’re my favorite comedian,” when he thought they might be asking for money but they actually didn’t, what was Janet Arvizo doing?

Ask yourself, “Do I have any problem believing what Janet Arvizo says?” Because if you have the slightest problem that’s a reasonable one, the slightest doubt that’s a reasonable one, the slightest suspicion, Mr. Jackson must go home and he must be free.

Now, the list of people she hustled is endless. You know that ten days after the J.C.

Penney settlement -- the prosecutor wants you to think she just got $32,000. The fact of the matter is, she put 25,000 in an account for Gavin, she put 8,000 in an account for Star, and she set that up so that she can't touch it, which I commend her for. She got much more than $32,000, and yes, she had to pay legal fees and costs, and that's what you normally do when you file a lawsuit and take it to settlement. But when she filed for emergency welfare ten days after getting that money, was she asking for money?

In the J.C. Penney case, in her deposition when she admitted that she had filed a state disability claim because she was depressed, and when she was asked, "Why are you depressed?" she said, "Because I'm a nobody," was Janet Arvizo asking for money?

When she fraudulently sought food stamps, when she fraudulently sought disability, when she fraudulently sought every state benefit she could get her hands on by perjuring herself and perjuring herself and perjuring herself through constant welfare applications, where she disguised settlements, disguised bank accounts, disguised benefits, was Janet Arvizo seeking money?

Because if you think she was, the prosecution falls.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, the issue is very, very simple. If you do not believe the Arvizos beyond a reasonable doubt, Michael Jackson must be acquitted. That's the law.

And these claims are completely based upon your having to believe the Arvizos every which way but Sunday. You've got to believe them.

Now, I submit that the witnesses we have called and the cross-examination we have elicited in this case proves the Arvizos are con artists, actors and liars.

What do I mean?

Janet Arvizo is a very interesting individual in some ways. Janet Arvizo sometimes directly asks for money. She directly asked her lawyer, Mr. Ranieri, for a contribution. He said no.

More often than not, Janet Arvizo does not directly ask for money. But she’s so skilled at what she does in articulating her tales of woe, her family’s poverty, her abuse, all the problems, that invariably the person she’s talking to decides on their own to write her a check.

Isn’t that what happened to Hamid Moslehi at the home during the rebuttal video? He saw her giving an acting lesson, as she describes it, about her state of affairs. “Everybody abandoned us. DCFS. My husband. Everyone. Nobody would come. I couldn’t -- I couldn’t feed my children. I had no cereal to give them. We had no money. We had no means of transportation. We couldn’t get anywhere.”

She tells all of this in the rebuttal. Then she has a 25-minute discussion with Hamid, and what does he do? He writes her a $2,000 check.

I ask you, was she asking for money?

When she was on the phone with Jamie Masada and Jay Jackson -- and she was living with Jay Jackson at the time. He was making $80,000 a year. And Jay Jackson asked if Masada would pay the costs of the karate school with Janet on the phone, do you think she was asking for something?

See, Janet Arvizo is much smarter than her ex-husband David. David was like a bull in a china shop. He would just come out and say, “Give us money,” or he’d send Gavin out to say, “Give us money.”

Janet develops a relationship first. She hardly knows you and she’s hugging you. She’s loving you. She’s saying, “You’re our family. You’re my brother. You’re my father. We’re all part of your family and you’re part of ours.”

She starts sending letters to Michael Jackson in 2002, when Mr. Zonen told you there was no contact. Every letter, “Daddy Michael, you’re our family. We love you. We can’t live without you,” words to that effect.

Janet Arvizo waits and develops a relationship before she looks you in the eye and gives you a tale of woe about why you should give something to her. And it’s happened time again, time again, time again.

Now, you know that Janet Arvizo wanted her children to be actors. You know that, because they went to various schools to be actors. Every time they went to a school about how to act, she told the teachers how poor they were. You know her children wanted to be actors. They said they wanted to be actors. And you know that she had an almost compulsive addiction to celebrities. I submit it wasn’t just about getting money. It was almost a thrill. It was almost an excitement. They called every celebrity in town they could get their hands on. Chris Tucker said, “They made me think I was the only comedian in their life. I later learned they were calling every comedian in Los Angeles.” It’s a very unusual story. It’s hard to believe that it’s true when you really step back and look at the MO of the Arvizos. But it is true and we proved it.

Now, are they liars? I’m going to show you pages of this transcript from this trial, their testimony to you, and I’m going to show you where they have repeatedly committed perjury in this trial. But that’s nothing new. Look at the J.C. Penney lawsuit. How did that suit originate?

Eight-year-old Gavin shoplifted, ran into a parking lot and was followed by security guards. David followed, Janet came out from another location, and an altercation developed. Janet and David were arrested.

You saw Janet’s booking photo at the police department. Not only is there not a bruise on her face, her hair is very neat. It couldn’t be neater. She filled out documents, “I have no medical problems. I have no injuries. I don’t need attention.” She left the jail at approximately twelve o’clock, went to a hospital that evening, and had photos taken within the next couple of weeks at the request of her attorney, and lo and behold, she was bruised, lo and behold she was injured, and lo and behold a lawsuit was filed.

Very interesting the way that lawsuit developed, because Janet Arvizo had Gavin testify for her in a sworn deposition at the age of approximately nine or ten. And Janet Arvizo initially did not allege sexual assault. Initially she alleged assault and false imprisonment. As her thoughts about how to get money from J.C. Penney and Tower Records developed, the sexual assault claims developed as well. She amended her complaint, and suddenly, to the surprise of her own lawyer, who couldn't believe what he was hearing at a deposition, she had been fondled 25 times in a parking lot, after security guards did belly flops on top of her, after they spit on her children, after they spit pumpkin seeds at them, after they hit them all with closed fists, after they hit them with handcuffs, after they bruised every part of her body. The claims went through an evolutionary process. They developed and got bigger and bigger and bigger.

And she used her son's illness, his cancer, to get damages. She claimed that Star had a cyst on his brain. That was to get damages. Eventually J.C. Penney settled in a fraudulent lawsuit for $152,000.

This is a pattern that serves as a looking glass for everything that followed. And I repeat: Ten days after she gets the money, she doesn't just seek welfare under penalty of perjury, she seeks emergency welfare assistance using violence in the home as a reason.

Now, I have some graphs we're going to show you that plot out these evolutionary claims, but I have to tell you, it's a pattern and it does not stop, and it's going to right in this courtroom today.

You know that Gavin Arvizo, at a very young age, made a false claim of abuse against his mother in the 1990s to the Department of Children & Family Services. He then withdrew the claim. He was very young. He was very street smart. He'd been schooled by his parents, David and Janet.

You note in the middle of Janet's spousal abuse case with her ex-husband David, suddenly the claim that David had molested Davellin surfaced. I'm going to show you her testimony in this courtroom. She doesn't remember it. She didn't know it happened. She said she was too young. Janet told her it happened. The slow evolution of a claim of molestation.

Just like what happened in this case. And I will chart it out for you, the meetings with lawyers, the meetings with Masada, the development of claims, starting off with claims about, "We don't want to be in the lawsuit in England. We don't -- we want our stored materials back," evolving into harassment, evolving into false imprisonment, evolving into molestation. I will chart that out for you in my closing argument.

Whenever you see a legal claim from Janet Arvizo or Gavin Arvizo, you have cause to be suspicious. The history is clear. The manipulation is absolute.

Janet Arvizo and lawyers.

Have any of you tried to count how many lawyers she's seen in her short life? I'll give you some ideas. She said she had a lawyer in her civil divorce action with David and her criminal proceedings with David for all these years named Manning. She had lawyers represent her in the J.C. Penney case against J.C. Penney and Tower Records. She had a criminal defense attorney represent her when they were arrested at J.C. Penney. She went to Bill Dickerman while she allegedly was being falsely imprisoned.

And by the way, she first went to Bill Dickerman on the 21st of February, 2003. Two days after that, they were continuing to go after their visas and passports at various federal buildings. And the prosecution tells you she was not trying to develop a lawsuit against Michael Jackson? You have in evidence the visa applications. You have the passport applications. You have documents showing they're going to the Brazilian consulate, they're going to the federal building in Los Angeles. She's already been to Bill Dickerman. What do you think is going on?

Bill Dickerman represents her for a period of time and then shuttles her off to Larry Feldman, who is a very well-known attorney in Los Angeles who had represented the Chandlers against Mr. Jackson in 1993. Why do you think he sends her to Larry Feldman? Why do you think he has a profit-sharing arrangement with Larry Feldman? Why do you think Mr. Feldman gets ahold of Stanley Katz, a psychologist he used against Mr. Jackson in the early '90s? Why do you think Mr. Masada is bringing her to all these meetings? Doesn't it suggest everybody's looking for a big payday against Michael Jackson? There's only one thing they need. A conviction, by you.

There's going to be great celebration in Los Angeles among this group if he is convicted of one single count in this case.

You heard Mr. Feldman testify. He spent an enormous amount of money in the early '90s litigating and getting a settlement against Mr. Jackson. He didn't want to do it again. He told the grand jury in Santa Barbara he didn't want to spend that money again. He grudgingly admitted that if Mr. Jackson is convicted in this courtroom, he will not have to spend huge sums of money establishing liability in a civil courtroom. It will be established.

Now, he tried to fudge his way around this by suggesting that once liability is established, if you want to prove punitive damages, you still have to prove malice and you still have to go into court.

That's true. But isn't liability the big hurdle?

Aren't they all after millions from Mr. Jackson? Haven't you seen one witness after another come into this courtroom having sued Mr. Jackson, having tried to get a settlement out of Mr. Jackson? Every one, Ralph Chacon, McManus, Abdool, Cindy Montgomery. They're all lined up.

He has a reputation for being a very childlike person, very naive, very idealistic, a musical genius. A person who likes to sit in trees and compose. A person who likes to spend time in the studio. A person who, from an early age, was such a genius at what he did that he attracted millions of dollars before he even knew what it meant. A person who has not managed his money terribly well. Has allowed people to use his signature. Has trusted the wrong people. They've emptied out accounts. They've diverted funds. Mr. LeGrand even had the people around him investigated for stealing from Mr. Jackson, the very people the prosecution claims were his co-conspirators.

And he has been a target for years, particularly after he settled with Chandler and Francia, because he doesn't like courtrooms, he doesn't like lawyers particularly, he doesn't like litigation. He's known to be childlike, and different, and creative, and offbeat. He's known not to trust adults.

He's known to have developed Neverland as a Disney-like environment to bring inner city children so they can have some fun. He's known to have developed his own lifestyle in a very idealistic and naive kind of way. And he is an unbelievable target because he's attracted millions and millions and millions of dollars through the years because of his genius and his talent and through his hard work.

This case is no different.

You saw Mr. Robel in that taped interview with Gavin in July, the first interview, before any investigation had ever taken place, he looked at him and he said, "We're going to bring a criminal case. You and your mother are victims. Mr. Jackson is wrong. The people around him are wrong."

He hadn't even investigated the case and the train started rolling and nobody would put the brakes on. They didn't know anything about the Arvizos on that date. They didn't want to know.

They didn't want to know about welfare fraud and perjury and lying under oath, and J.C. Penney, and hustling celebrities, and bank accounts, putting checks into her mother's account to hide it from welfare and everybody else. Nobody knew about that on this side of the table. The problem is when they began to learn, nobody wanted to say “Stop,” and that’s why we’re here.

And I submit, you cannot let injustice happen in this courtroom. You cannot let these people prevail. They’re all just ready to pounce with a conviction.

I don’t have to say much about welfare fraud and perjury. We proved it. The applications prove it. They’re all signed under penalty of perjury. They’re all manipulative. Not only what’s said and what’s not said, but what she does. She takes her welfare checks and puts them through Jay Jackson’s account, a person in the United States Army making $80,000 a year.

She doesn’t want a record of where she’s depositing them. She doesn’t want them to be traced. She lies about settlements. She lies about where she’s living. She lies about who’s helping support her. She lies to get food stamps. She lies to get disability. Everything she can get her hands on, we have proven is true.

And perjury is meaningless to her. She lied in the J.C. Penney depositions. She lied on the applications. Perjury is a habit. And she committed perjury right in this courtroom. We’re going to show you some transcripts to show it.

I submit, ladies and gentlemen, the biggest red flag in these claims is Janet Arvizo and Gavin Arvizo and Star Arvizo and Davellin Arvizo going to lawyers before they go to the police.

The visits to lawyers start on February 21st, 2003, when they meet Attorney Bill Dickerman. As I said before, they have more meetings with him. He refers them to Larry Feldman. Feldman brings in Stan Katz. Feldman has a profit-sharing arrangement with Dickerman. They’re having all of these meetings, developing their claims, and they don’t go to the police until June 13th, 2003, four months later.

If you truly believe you’ve been falsely imprisoned, you've been extorted, your children have been abducted, your children have been molested, they've been plied with alcohol to take advantage of illness, why are you going to all these lawyers first?

This is not the first time civil lawyers have tried to manipulate the criminal process to get their work done for them, by the way. Think about it. You don't have to hire experts. You don't have to hire investigation. You don't have to go through months of trial. Because if somebody is convicted and found guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, the civil burden of proof, preponderance of the evidence, is already established.

They want the taxpayers of this county to establish liability for them. And it's crystal clear that that has been their plan from day one.

And I'm asking you not to let it happen.

To let it happen, you have to strip Mr. Jackson of his freedom and reputation. You have to label him a convict. You have to label him a sex offender. You have to label him all of the things he is not and they have not proven he is.

This is a case, a prosecution, based on the Arvizos' lies and innuendo and exaggerations only.

Do any of you really think, from what you've learned about Mr. Jackson, that he would even be capable of running a conspiracy to abduct children, falsely imprison a family, ship them off to Brazil? For what purpose? To make a documentary that they didn't even appear in? For what purpose?

I want you to think carefully, ladies and gentlemen, I beg you to think carefully about the dates of the alleged molestation. The charge says the molestations occurred February 20th, 2003, through March 12th, 2003. They claim the molestations begin right after the filming of the rebuttal and the DCFS interview.

Now, why do they pick those dates? Because Janet and her family were so laudatory, so effusive about Michael Jackson, praising him every which way they could. "He's a father figure. He's generous. He's caring. He's sensitive. He's always there for them. He helped Gavin with his illness.”

The dates were carefully chosen to follow those statements. They couldn’t get away from those statements. They had to do something about them.

But think about this, ladies and gentlemen: How absurd is it to say molestation by Michael Jackson occurred on Gavin Arvizo between February 20th and March 12th? What’s going on at that point in time? And I will show you a timeline as well.

You’ve got international media scrutiny of Michael Jackson. He’s under a microscope, the Arvizos are under a microscope, because of the Bashir documentary. Everyone’s talking about it. All sorts of media are buzzing around. They’re following the Arvizos. They’re trying to follow Michael Jackson. There’s ample evidence to suggest that. The Arvizos don’t like it. Mr. Jackson, of course, is used to it. He seems to have generated publicity his whole career.

But to make a long story short, there is no question you have a media frenzy going on internationally.

You have a Department of Children & Family Services investigation going on as well. Mr. Jackson knows it, Janet Arvizo knows it, everyone knows it. Remember the evidence of leaks from DCFS that the prosecution didn’t care for? Everyone knows about the investigation.

Mr. Geragos is doing his own investigation into the Arvizos because he’s concerned about who they are, who they meet with, what their motives are, what they’re up to. He told you that he did a quick litigation search. He saw the J.C. Penney suit. It raised some red flags, as it should have for any lawyer pledged to protect a client, and he started his own investigation with Brad Miller, a licensed private investigator. So that’s going on.

The evidence has shown and proven that the effort to produce a rebuttal show was monumental. You had producers, you had distributors, you had agents, you had lawyers, you had different networks vying to do it. You’ve already heard about CBS being at Neverland. Janet Arvizo was there on that particular day. Mr. Geragos was there on that particular day. To make a long story short, you have an intense effort to produce this rebuttal that the Arvizos never appeared in and didn't have to appear in.

According to the prosecution, this criminal conspiracy is beginning on February 1st, 19 days before the alleged molestation. Put all this together, what does it say to you about the dates the so-called molestation occurred? It's absurd. It's unrealistic. And it makes no sense. Because the whole case makes no sense.

You know, these molestation counts and this attempted molestation count, they are completely based on the testimony of Gavin and Star Arvizo. There is no independent witness who allegedly sees any of this. Star changed his story a bunch of times, as I will show you through transcript. But he's the one who says he saw molestation one night, when all the lights were out except the light on the stairwell. The lights in the room were out, he looked for a couple of seconds, and he says he saw Mr. Jackson, lying in bed, touch his brother, who's out like a light. He's asleep. He says he saw that twice.

Gavin Arvizo says he was touched a couple of times as well. There is no independent witness to any of this. You have to believe Star beyond a reasonable doubt, you have to believe Gavin beyond a reasonable doubt, and look at the lies they told in court.

I am going to go through transcripts of their testimony, but just to whet your appetite a little bit, they are profuse in their testimony that they only had alcohol with Mr. Jackson. And you know Shane Meridith caught them with alcohol. You know Simone caught them with alcohol. You know Angel Vivanco caught them with alcohol. They were profuse in their testimony that they didn't know anything about sexuality till Mr. Jackson showed them a "Hustler"-type magazine. And we know that's false, because they were caught.

You know that Gavin looked at you, under oath, and said, “Mr. Jackson told me that if men don’t masturbate, they’ll go out and rape,” forgetting that he had told the grand jury, “My grandmother told me that.”

We will go through a transcript as well about these particular witnesses, but you have to understand there’s no independent witness allegedly watching any of this. You got to believe them beyond a reasonable doubt. You got to believe them all the way. It’s impossible.

The prosecution doesn’t like to focus on the fact there is no forensic evidence supporting any of these alleged molestation claims. No DNA supports it. There’s no semen stain or sample that supports it. No evidence of bodily fluids support it that you can link to Gavin. No hair, no fibers. They didn’t fingerprint the bottles or any of the area where he’s supposed to have been molested. No forensic evidence. No independent witness to any of this.

Conspiracy.

They have to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Michael Jackson had a specific intent to enter into an agreement to falsely imprison, abduct children and extort.

There is no evidence that he did anything like that whatsoever. They don’t put him at meetings. They don’t record his phone calls. They don’t have anything that suggests he wanted to enter into a felony conspiracy to commit these crimes on a family. They have to prove that he wanted to abduct these children to Brazil, I guess.

How absurd is that? No plane tickets were ever purchased for the trip to Brazil. When they didn’t want to go to Brazil, they went home. And they went home when they realized Michael Jackson was not going to Brazil, because Janet was playing all sides, like so many other people around Michael Jackson. She wanted to be part of Michael Jackson’s world. She wanted to benefit from the financial, the celebrity, the public relations advantages she had with Michael Jackson.

And everybody's playing everybody to see if they can gain advantage and be with Michael Jackson. It's been the story of his life. It's why his finances have had problems despite all these millions generated.

The Arvizos were no different. Once she found the most popular celebrity in the world, who happened to be that childlike and that naive, who, unlike Jay Leno, didn't see the signs, unlike Chris Tucker, who eventually saw the signs, unlike others that got taken and disappeared, Michael brought this family into Neverland and took care of them.

Can you imagine, based upon what you've seen in this courtroom, Michael Jackson conspiring to abduct children, falsely imprison or commit extortion? Does he look like the kind of person who would do that? You saw a tape. He wants to have celebrity animal parties. He wants an international day for children. He likes to sit in a tree and do music. He says, "Other people go to baseball games and football games. I like to sit in my tree." He likes to create. He lets children visit Neverland who are ill and sick.

Does he look like the kind of person who is even capable of masterminding a criminal conspiracy of this magnitude? It's absurd.

And to even consider it, you have to believe Janet Arvizo beyond a reasonable doubt that she escaped from Neverland, went back, escaped from Neverland, went back, escaped from Neverland, went back.

It's absurd on its face. And, ladies and gentlemen, you have to shake your head to think they would even bring a claim like that against Mr. Jackson, who, by the way, is the only person charged with it.

Have one of these other alleged co-conspirators even been charged with a misdemeanor? No. No. It was done to keep them away from this courtroom, scare them.

If you really think there was a conspiracy of this magnitude, if you really think the actions were this serious, if you really think a family was being abducted and hidden and spirited away to their doom, why do you only charge Michael Jackson? Because he's a mega celebrity and that's what this case is about. Seventy officers search his home. They don't do that in homicide cases. Seventy officers invade his privacy.

Yes, he's a human being. They find a lot of girlie magazines; "Hustler," "Playboy," "Penthouse." He does read them. Did he want the world to know that? No, that's his private life. Did he think they were going to bring it all into a courtroom and just flash it for the world? No.

They went all around his house trying to find something. And I'm going to tell you in a little while what they didn't find. But let me just go through this general outline first.

There is no incriminating statement by Mr. Jackson of any kind that, "I want these people spirited to Brazil. I want them held against their will. I want these children abducted, separate them from their mother"; nothing. In fact, throughout all of this elaborate evidence of a conspiracy, you hardly hear of him. He's not at meetings. He doesn't have a cell phone. They can do all this, you know, fancy arrows going every which way but Sunday, but where is Michael Jackson in the middle of this?

In fact, the evidence is that Janet complained to Azja Pryor and others, including Maria Gomez, that "These people are separating me from Michael Jackson." She felt she was a victim of their efforts to monopolize Michael Jackson and keep her away. And indeed, Mr. LeGrand did testify Dieter and Konitzer were intending to take over all of his affairs, all of his business matters, and Dieter and Konitzer didn't want Michael Jackson involved in their discussions.

What significant events in this so-called conspiracy is he even at? Where is he? You don't know where he is. You don't hear from him. He's at Neverland. He's in his studio. He's traveling.

Where is he when this so-called conspiracy is being hatched and operated?

Janet’s statements refute this whole idea of a conspiracy. Her actions refute the idea of a conspiracy, as you heard me say ad nauseam in my examination of witnesses: “Did you call the police? Did you call the police? Did you call the police.”

No.

The conspiracy’s happening at Jay Jackson’s apartment, a major in the U.S. Army. That’s where the interviews with Brad Miller take place. That’s where the Department of Children & Family Services interview take place. What kind of a conspiracy is going to want to meet at Jay Jackson’s apartment? What kind of a conspiracy goes on with all of these hotels, and all of these shopping sprees and all of this stuff in full view? What kind of conspiracy goes on when you’ve got a licensed, bonded mover to move her stuff into storage and put it in Brad Miller’s name?

This is not a conspiracy. There’s no conspiracy at all involving Mr. Jackson.

Now, what some of these other guys may have done on occasion is unclear, because they weren’t in the courtroom and Mr. Jackson wasn’t with them. They’re all trying to make a buck off of him, that’s clear. They’re all angling for advantage. That’s clear. The testimony that Schaffel was trying to make a buck off Mr. Jackson is clear. The testimony that Konitzer and Dieter wanted to take over his affairs is clear.

Where is Mr. Jackson in this conspiracy?

You can put him in the center of a nice photograph and you can have all these faces around him, but that’s not evidence. That’s a substitute for evidence.

Now, Mr. Jackson got himself in trouble by very innocently and naively telling Bashir, “I have allowed children into my bed. I have allowed children into my room. What do you do with a child that has no parents? What do you do? Children flock to me all over the world. I’m a childlike figure. And I see nothing wrong with it because nothing sexual happens. And the world needs more love, and children need more caring, and this is, like, kids are bringing guns to schools.”

Idealistic, naive, in light of the target he is, but not criminal in nature. And if he really were out to commit crimes, why would he go on an international documentary and make these statements? Because he hasn’t been committing crimes.

But he has naively and idealistically and in a childlike way let people run roughshod through his home, let them sleep in his bedroom. He has opened his gates to all kinds of people. And it’s a naive way to look at the world because he is such a target. He is.

Say to yourself, why would he say these things to Bashir if he were a criminal? Why? Because he’s not.

Now, because their case is so weak, because of their concern that you’re not going to believe the Arvizos beyond a reasonable doubt, this prosecution has engaged in a mean-spirited, nasty attempt, a barbaric attempt to dehumanize and degrade Mr. Jackson. It started during jury selection when Mr. Zonen talked about his sagging music career. It continued as they flashed magazines to you throughout the trial. It continued with efforts to show you his finances to show he’s had some financial problems through mismanagement and misguided motives.

And what am I talking about?

The guy’s millions in debt and he gives a million dollars to Marlon Brando because he feels bad about his friend. He pays for everybody. Shopping sprees, hotels. He has all these sharks around him getting power of attorney so they can sign documents for him. His generosity, his lax behavior knows no bounds because the man has a wonderful, kind heart.

But they do it thinking somehow he’ll be embarrassed, or they’ll embarrass him by this preposterous claim that because Mr. Jackson had some financial difficulties with cash flow, that he would want to abduct a family to do a broadcast that didn’t even include them, a broadcast that generated money that isn’t even close to fulfilling the debt obligations that they tried to establish.

They didn’t really do it because they think you’re going to buy that it’s a motive for a conspiracy. They did it to embarrass him and dehumanize him in your eyes because they’re worried you just might like Michael Jackson. You just might admire Michael Jackson. You just might have pity for Mr. Jackson for being treated the way they’ve treated him and for being the target of Mr. Sneddon’s actions for many years.

They’re worried, and the only way they can handle it is through dirt everywhere. To take everything he has tried to build and create and accomplish and try and degrade it and dehumanize it, and I submit it’s wrong.

And I submit it’s no substitute for evidence. It is absolute misconduct by them.

He’s not charged with possessing any illegal pornography, because no illegal pornography was found. Everything they found in his home was lawful. That was clear. He’s not charged with showing adult material to children. That’s not one of the charges here. They’re doing that to dirty him up, and try to get you to somehow make it easier for you to convict him.

He’s not charged with lax supervision. How many times in this trial have we heard that kids get all the candy they want, all the ice cream they want; that kids can run around Neverland and have fun with the animals; that they’re not supervised well enough; that the doors are open; that they run in and out of his room, in and out of his house? How often have we heard that? That they can jump on ATVs and drive everywhere.

They tried to make it look like a crime.

He’s not charged with lax supervision. Kiki Fournier said he’s too nice to people. He lets people into his house too often. He lets them run around.

And of course you know the Arvizo kids, what they were doing, in and out of everything, like they were at every house they were able to get into.

The prosecutor mentioned Dr. Esplin, our expert. Dr. Esplin said most false claims of molestation come from children ten and up and usually the motive is financial gain. And he talked specifically about a long history of deceptive behavior by the parents.

Could you have parents with more of a pattern of deceptive behavior than David and Janet?

The prosecution did us a favor. They focused on David, how he just hustled Mr. Lopez for money, and irritated people at The Laugh Factory, and irritated people at the hospital, and kept trying to get money, and concocted this scheme with Gavin, his young son, about George Lopez stealing money from a wallet.

They painted him as the bad guy, not realizing that there was no way in the world they were going to make Janet look good. And what they did was they added all the pieces to the puzzle.

This is a family where children have been taught to con, and children have been taught to lie, and children have been taught to very brashly and brazenly, and with no embarrassment or any type of restraint, call one celebrity after another, and keep bombarding them with calls, like they did to Jay Leno, like they did to Chris Tucker, like they did to Michael Jackson. This is the way they've been taught.

It doesn't mean they're irredeemable. It doesn't mean they don't have some good qualities. Azja Pryor, a very nice person, fell in love with the kids. But she wasn't street smart like Mr. Leno. She didn't see what was coming until eventually they hounded her for a truck, hounded her for money. Janet told her her tale of woe and she gave her 600 bucks, and the pattern continued.

The prosecutor mentioned Stanley Katz. He quoted Stanley Katz, Larry Feldman's good friend, who he hired in '93 to go after Mr. Jackson, who he brought into this case to take the same type of approach with the Arvizos.

Do you remember Stanley Katz, a psychologist with the Ph.D., looked at you and said, “I’ve never heard of a false claim by a teenager”? Remember he said that? Remember he said that? Did anyone on this jury believe that?

Of course you didn’t. It was self-serving, it was manipulative and it was dishonest.

Dr. Esplin is the leading authority on false claims. He’s done studies with law enforcement all around the world. He told you children ten and up are the biggest group for making false claims like this. And if you see a pattern and a history of bad behavior by parents, it raises a red flag.

Could you ever have imagined more of a history than what you’ve seen here?

I want to clarify some of the issues in the case, ladies and gentlemen, because I really believe the prosecution, with their scattered claims of too much candy and too much girlie magazines and too much ice cream, and here, there and everywhere, are muddying the waters so you will not focus on what the real claim is.

First of all, the only alleged victim of child molestation in this case is Gavin Arvizo. The counts only relate to Gavin Arvizo. They brought in alleged victims from the ‘90s - three of them came in and said nothing happened - because they’re desperate. They are absolutely desperate. The only claims here relate to Gavin. If you don’t believe Gavin and Star beyond a reasonable doubt, acquittal is necessary.

As I said before, they’re the only witnesses to the molestation counts. Nobody else. I told you they repeatedly lied under oath and I told you there’s no independent witnesses to support their claims.

What are you left with? What are you left with? What kind of a system do we have if these kinds of witnesses can convict someone and destroy their life, with all you know about them at this point.

I talked about there not being forensic evidence. There’s none.

You know that he went to his teacher and was questioned twice. “Did Mr. Jackson ever molest you?” And the answer was, “No.”

And that’s when the prosecution started to backpedal. “Well, we have evidence that people delay reporting, and we have evidence that young men get embarrassed about being sexually handled in a way like this.”

Some of that may be true, but how do you know it’s true here? How do you know it’s true here?

And if the prosecution has the burden to prove a case beyond a reasonable doubt, how can they come to you and respond to the fact that he told this teacher on two occasions, “Mr. Jackson never touched me,” by saying, “Well, studies show that sometimes people delay their reports”?

Is that proof beyond a reasonable doubt or is it just a wishy-washy type of explanation for something they know is devastating to their case because the problems continue: The lack of forensics, the lack of an independent witness, the lies under oath, the history of the family. Now you got a witness who Gavin Arvizo said it never happened to.

And as I said before, he’s the only alleged victim in the case.

As I said before, he made a false claim about his mother abusing him in the ‘90s. He made false claims as a child in the J.C. Penney case where he was deposed under oath. He supported his mother in everything she wanted to do.

I’m going to go through their transcripts, their testimony, and show you where Gavin and Star kept changing their stories, kept telling lies. And as I said before, the timing is outrageous that molestation is going to occur starting February 20th.

THE COURT: Is this a good place for a break?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, sir.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

Ladies and gentlemen, the prosecution would like the defense to focus only on Janet Arvizo. That is their dream. Their dream is that we will focus on her and somehow the children will look clean and honest and truthful. And I want to make sure that’s not what our thrust is.

You may recall that Gavin Arvizo met Chris Tucker at his home and lied. He told him, “We made no money at the fund-raiser,” and that’s when Chris Tucker wrote a check. Chris Tucker described him as cunning, smart. He didn’t trust him.

Even at a young age, Star Arvizo told Louise Palanker, “All we got was love for Christmas,” and she began to write the $10,000 checks.

Davellin kept hassling Azja Pryor for Chris Tucker’s truck. It was relentless. She finally had to stop talking to Davellin, and she actually liked Davellin.

I don’t want to suggest, in any shape or form, this is just a target of Janet. The whole family has difficulties with the truth, difficulties with honesty, difficulties with money, and the children have been raised this way.

Now, I want to make a couple of things clear that I talked about earlier.

In the J.C. Penney fraud, which Gavin was very much a part of at a young age, Janet was arrested and got out of jail at 9:15. David got out of jail at 12:03. Janet checked into the ER at 1:11 that day claiming she’d be injured.

The family has been part of these fraud scams, not someone alone.

When David was in the picture and manipulating celebrities, he used Gavin.

Do you remember George Lopez said, “We’d go to a mall, and David would be standing there, and Gavin would be asking me to buy all these things. And I thought it was strange that the father would simply stand there, not say anything, and let his child just keep asking me to buy and buy and buy.”

But that’s the way it’s worked. Mrs. Watson

Johnson said that Star would call her asking for money and she could hear Janet in the background coaching him.

Mary Holzer said that Janet bragged to her that her kids were good actors, that Gavin knew his lines well, but Star used to falter. He wasn’t quite as smart, wasn’t quite up to it.

Could you believe how many witnesses came in to establish this MO of scamming and manipulating and lying? Can you believe that many people would come in to testify that this family has gotten in a rhythm, a pattern of going after celebrities? Because it’s worked and worked and worked. It’s a family program. It’s not just Janet’s problems.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, the prosecution has tried to focus your attention on what they now call pornography at Neverland. And they found for the last ten years’ worth of “Hustler,” “Playboy,” “Penthouse,” things of that sort. All legal. All heterosexual.

In a library of thousands and thousands of books, they found a couple of books that focused on men. And they wanted you to think that somehow Mr. Jackson was some -- I don’t know whether they’re trying to say he’s a gay man, or, as Mr. Zonen in his mean questioning, try to suggest he’s asexual. They’re not sure which way they’re going. But basically they went through this home where thousands and thousands of books have accumulated, where the evidence was, that when fans around the world sent things to Mr. Jackson, he keeps everything like a pack rat.

And what do they find? They found this book, “Boys Will Be Boys” - okay? - published in New York in 1966. Yes, it has some naked pictures of boys. It also has pictures that are not naked, okay?

And what does it say, what is inscribed in the book? It says, “Look at the true spirit of happiness and joy in these boys’ faces. This is the spirit of boyhood, a life I never had and will always dream of. This is the life I want for my children, MJ.”

Now, you’ve already seen the outtakes where Mr. Jackson talks about his not having a childhood. He was working clubs at a young age at 3:00 in the morning --

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I’ll object to this matter as exceeding the scope of the Court ruling.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, the prosecution talked similarly about Bashir.

MR. ZONEN: It’s the outtakes.

THE COURT: The objection is sustained on that.

MR. MESEREAU: Is this the sign of a pedophile? To write an inscription in a published book of this sort?

The other book, “The Boy: A Photographic Essay,” says, “To Michael: From your fan, Rhonda,” with a little heart. “1983, Chicago,” it says in it.

Now, Mr. Zonen didn’t know what to do with that so he suggested through his questioning on cross-examination that maybe somebody had faked it. But there’s no evidence anybody faked that. They seized these things in the early ‘90s.

And was there any evidence that these books were ever shown to any witness? No. Not one witness came into this courtroom and said, “Michael Jackson showed me books of men.” Not one.

Now, we’re asking you to use your common sense in this area of alleged pedophilia.

First of all, they never put a pedophilia expert on the stand, because they were afraid. Having all of these heterosexual books and magazines doesn’t add up to pedophilia, okay?

What do you typically find? You find illegal child pornography, websites galore, pictures. None of that came in. And, yes, the prosecution suggested they would prove that, and none of it was found at Neverland. No websites of pedophilia. No child sex pictures on websites. No photographs. None of the things you typically associate with a pedophile.

And their biggest problem is repeated editions of "Hustler" and "Playboy" and "Penthouse" and "Barely Legal" do not equate with what they're trying to prove. I'm not saying it's necessarily commendable that you have all these magazines, but you can get them at any newsstand and there's been no evidence that anything was illegal.

And if Mr. Jackson has been proven to like to read these magazines for years and years and years, how does that equate to their theory that he wanted to sexually touch a male child?

It doesn't. There's a problem with their case. And as I said before, not one of these books they found, among thousands, of males was shown to a single witness. No illegal child pornography, either in a website or anywhere else. No websites where you try to meet children, like pedophiles often do, and the rest.

This is nothing but a mean-spirited attempt to damage his reputation and embarrass him by digging into his private life through repeated searches, with 70 officers, trying to find something to dirty him up with.

They have dirtied him up, because he's human. But they haven't proved their case. They can't.

Now, you know that Gavin and Star tried to act like they're very naive on sexual matters. Do you remember that last police interview which they showed you so you would understand Gavin's demeanor? Well, you can certainly study his demeanor in conjunction with what's said, because they played for you what was said. It wasn't offered for the truth. The tape was offered to show his demeanor, but you can consider his demeanor in terms of what is said.

Do you remember, after Mr. Robel said, "We're going to bring a criminal case against Mr. Jackson, and you're the victims, you and your mom," before they'd even investigated? Do you remember he started off by looking at Gavin and saying, "Tell me something that's wrong. Give me an example of something that's wrong."

And Gavin hesitated. And you study his demeanor. He's sort of stymied. He doesn't quite know what to say. He comes up with, "Staying out late at night."

MR. ZONEN: I'll object to the content as exceeding the scope of the court ruling.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. MESEREAU: And then they ask him, "Come up with something else."

And he hesitates. He has this guilty look on his face. He doesn't know what to say. He says, "Break things."

And then Mr. Robel says, "How about something else?"

He hesitates. He looks stymied. He looks confused, and he says, "Kill somebody."

Did he ever say lie, cheat, or steal? Do most children his age, if you ask them, "Give me an example of something that's wrong," say, "Don't lie; don't tell the truth"?

No. And if you have time in the jury room, just take a look at the beginning of that interview.

By the way, that's the same interview where his mother's outside the door, and he says, "I haven't told my mother any of this," after they met for months with lawyers, okay?

That's the same interview where you can study his demeanor as he lies about wanting to leave Neverland because he was scared.

Didn't he testify to you that he loved Neverland, wanted to be there? Didn't he tell various witnesses he loved Neverland, wanted to be there?

Study his demeanor. That's why they asked you to look at it. Study it. And study this sort of fake notion that he's unsophisticated in sexual matters. He acts like he doesn't know what an erection is.

He's 13. His brother's been caught with girlie magazines at Neverland. He acts like he doesn't know what an ejaculation is. He acts so innocent.

They've been meeting with Feldman and Dickerman and Masada and Katz for months. He's been talking to his mother about this stuff for months.

Do you believe for a second they went to Feldman without thinking there was some type of molestation they could pull off? Why else do you go to Feldman? Why else? Do you really believe his mother was outside the door and they never talked about it? Study his demeanor. You don't see much emotion.

You know, one of the most important moments in this trial was, I submit that when you get in the jury room, discuss this occurrence: He's on the witness stand. He describes the alleged sexual touching, the alleged molestation. You saw no emotion whatsoever.

When did you see him really get mad? When he talked about Michael Jackson abandoning his family.

Do you remember? Do you remember the emotion, the anger? Do you remember how he reacted? You can't look at a transcript and see it. You have to see it in person. He was angry because he felt that Michael Jackson had abandoned his family. They were not part of his world. And he wanted to be part of his world. That was clear.

No emotion about the alleged touching.

Plenty of emotion about, "Why did Michael do that to us?"

That happened on cross-examination. And that sums up this case when it comes to Gavin Arvizo.

Put all of this together, what do you get?

The Arvizos, Gavin and Star, tried to suggest that Michael Jackson corrupted them with these magazines. Yet Star was caught twice with his own magazines. Julio Avila caught him with a magazine in his backpack. He said, "I got it at home," when he was caught writing "Suck dick" on the wall.

That is not a naive kid on sexual matters, but they'd like you to think it was all Michael Jackson taking these innocent little lambs and corrupting their minds. And it's baloney.

They tried to tell you that Michael Jackson taught them masturbation and taught them the facts of life and, again, they were just these innocent little kids. But they were caught masturbating by Rijo, who took the stand and was as honest as can be and thoroughly abused by Mr. Zonen. Do you remember he started to wipe his eyes he was so scared about this whole event?

Gavin and Star are not what they’re trying to make you think they are.

I’ve already talked about the financial motive. It’s clear as day. You don’t keep going to all these lawyers and changing your claims unless you have a financial motive.

Demeanor? Well, in that police interview that they ended their case with, do you remember Gavin begins with, “How long is this going to take?” Do you remember that?

You’ve got a police officer stroking him along, “You’re the victim. You’re the victim. We’re going after Michael Jackson. We’re going after his people. We’re on your side. Don’t be afraid,” encouraging him to make these accusations that conflict with things that he said to the police on other occasions.

He didn’t show emotion. Remember, he’s trained as an actor. His mother’s proud of it. He’s proud of it.

Does it complicate your job?

Yes. But you have to deal with the facts.

Does it make it harder to believe him beyond a reasonable doubt?

It does. But the facts are the facts are the facts.

These are the same kids that were dancing on the stage at The Laugh Factory about their poverty so celebrities would feel sorry for them.

Now, as I said before, we’re going to get into some transcript, because transcripts don’t lie. I want to show you what they said in this courtroom so the prosecution can’t get up and just misinterpret what they said or did.

Let me cover a few more points first.

The alcohol counts. I want to be clear on what you're being asked to do. The felony alcohol counts require proof beyond a reasonable doubt that alcohol was given to molest Gavin Arvizo. He's the only alleged victim of those counts.

What they're saying is Michael Jackson, with all you know about him through this trial, would look at a cancer patient, a child, and say, "Ah-hah, I'm going to ply him with alcohol so I can disable him and molest him."

Michael Jackson couldn't even conceive of such a thing. He couldn't.

The same problems with the molestation counts exist for the felony alcohol counts, because it's allegedly giving alcohol for the purpose of molesting.

Now, Judge Melville read you the jury instructions yesterday, and there is the option of a misdemeanor count on alcohol. It's called a lesser-included. But it still requires that you believe Gavin Arvizo beyond a reasonable doubt, okay? And it still requires that the time period for the alleged molestation be the time period for that misdemeanor count.

And you can't believe Gavin Arvizo on alcohol beyond a reasonable doubt. Why?

He and Star claim they only drank with Michael Jackson. Remember that? They repeatedly say that under oath. Shane Meridith caught the two of them in the wine cellar with a half-empty bottle of wine. Michael Jackson was nowhere around. So they lied under oath.

Rijo Jackson. He says he was in Michael Jackson's bedroom. Michael Jackson was in the bathroom. A glass and a bottle of alcohol was brought in while Michael Jackson was in the bathroom. Gavin and Star ran upstairs and then ran out of the room, and after they'd run out of the room alcohol was missing from the bottle.

Now, I ask you this: If Michael was so freely giving them alcohol, why did they have to run out of the room behind his back? Why?

Simone Jackson was in the kitchen area. Saw them come in and go to the refrigerator and take alcohol. They didn't see her.

Michael Jackson was nowhere near where they were that night. They've lied under oath about alcohol.

Angel Vivanco. He says that Star told him, "You either put this liqueur in my milkshake or I'll get you fired." Michael Jackson isn't there.

Now, the alcohol allegations don't relate to the air flight, okay? That's not the time period.

As I said before, the time period for the alcohol allegations is the same time period for the molestation allegations, which allegedly start February 20th, and I've talked to you about how weird that is and how ridiculous it is.

But the Arvizos came up with this story on the plane about drinking alcohol, but Cynthia Bell saw none of this. And she didn't have credibility problems. They did.

Michael Jackson wanted alcohol in cans so kids couldn't see it, because he does drink alcohol on occasion and he doesn't like to advertise it. Of course, with this investigation, his personal life has been turned topsy-turvy, and they're trying to make a criminal out of him because he gets intoxicated from time to time.

You have to look at this with a human lens. You have to look at him as a human being. He's been put under this microscope his whole life as this megastar. Some say he's better known than Elvis around the world, but that has a price attached to it. And the price sometimes is loneliness and confusion and not knowing who your friends even are. And he is a human being, but he's not a criminal.

Jesus Salas. They thought he was going to be their star witness on alcohol. They put him on the stand. He said he came into Michael's room with wine, glasses and soda.

They got upset that he mentioned soda. He said, "You never asked me about it before."

Now, if Michael Jackson is giving alcohol to the Arvizos, then why is he coming into his room with soda cans for them? Why?

When the Arvizos testified that they only had alcohol with Michael Jackson, they lied, and they lied and they lied. You cannot believe them beyond a reasonable doubt. You cannot convict on those counts.

I just want to refer you to the end of this. Some of this is a little repetitive, but he's not charged with negligent or lax supervision. That's not a crime. It's not in this case. If they were running wild around Neverland because their parents let them do it or Michael let them do it, if they get ahold of the key, if they did kitchen raids, as they testified to, in the house and grabbed alcohol from the refrigerator, that's not a crime he's charged with.

He's not charged with being negligent, okay? They've got to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that he intended to furnish stuff to these kids.

I want to refer you to the third one, because, you know, in their efforts to say there's a conspiracy by Michael Jackson to abduct children, extort, falsely imprison, that because he was having a cash flow problem, despite the millions he makes every year, that he was going to engage in this scam to whisk this family off to Brazil, I'd like to refer you to the third item.

Ladies and gentlemen, turn on the television any night of the week. Don't celebrities have public relations problems? Don't celebrities get arrested, get charged, get videotaped in compromising positions, get audiotaped, get photographed? Don't people who've known them with an axe to grind come forward and tell stories? When they have public relations problems, they deal with them.

The public relations problems associated with Bashir were dealt with. You had a Maury Povich documentary to deal with it. It was a successful documentary. All of these various factors came together to produce it on the 20th. This is the way celebrities deal with PR problems. They're always faced with them, and their public relations spokespeople always tell them, “This is a crisis. This is the biggest problem of your life. We’ll deal with it. Here’s how we deal with it.”

The idea that the Bashir documentary was such a public relations problem that he would commit felonies like this is ridiculous. Is ridiculous.

Now, if some of the people around them are excessive -- I don’t know if they were or not. I mean, they brought in evidence there was a rock thrown at the Arvizo house. I mean, Michael Jackson is nowhere near that if it happened.

They brought in testimony that the Germans, so to speak, were mean to Janet, although Angel Vivanco says she was having champagne with Dieter, and they appeared to be getting along the first time and the next time they weren’t.

If anybody acted excessively, Michael Jackson didn’t. He’s nowhere to be seen. And he had no intention and would never deal with a PR crisis -- it wasn’t the first PR crisis in his career, by the way. He’s been under a microscope, a looking glass, since he was a child. He doesn’t engage in a conspiracy to kidnap a family to Brazil.

The response was the documentary, which was successful.

Okay. Now -- okay. All right.

You know, and I will show you Janet’s transcripts, you know, that she knew a lot of police officers. Do you remember I asked her all these questions about Andrew Lassak, a police officer that she knew, police officers from the MTA, the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, that she knew, and she was gladly describing how the police station was constructed? I’ll show you the transcript.

And Lassak was in touch with them. She had his cell phone number. She knew other police in the area and never went to any of them and said, “We’re in trouble. We’re being falsely imprisoned. We’re being held against our will. We’re victims.”

Nothing of this.

She told Azja Pryor she was hoping to go to Brazil and she hoped Azja would come with her.

Now, you know that David LeGrand was concerned that Dieter and Konitzer and Schaffel, he even investigated Vinnie and Frank, who were like really young kids, he was concerned they were all engaged in self-dealing and they were taking advantage of Michael Jackson. And he hired an investigative firm in New York to investigate. Do you remember the testimony about finding an offshore account that he thought Sony had set up, et cetera? And he approached Dieter and Konitzer and said, “Where did this $900,000 go? You’ve just withdrawn it. Justify it.”

And of course Mr. Auchincloss, in a remarkable shift of position, got up and tried to prove they hadn’t stolen anything.

If LeGrand was concerned about these alleged co-conspirators and what they were doing to Michael, does that suggest Michael is involved in a conspiracy with them? Or does it suggest the same old pattern of Michael Jackson, the creative genius, generating hundreds of millions of dollars in his lifetime, and letting people sign his name, and letting people steal money, and letting people get away with all sorts of financial things? Otherwise, with what you’ve seen of his finances, why would he have cash flow problems? Why would that Beatles catalog be leveraged?

He hasn’t always managed money well, but he’s not a criminal, and he doesn’t commit crimes because of it.

You know that Weizner and Konitzer tried to take over his business, because LeGrand said so. He saw documents where they said, “We’re going to take over Michael Jackson’s affairs.” You know that Schaffel was stealing from Michael Jackson. Their star witness, Rudy Provencio, who none of you would buy a used car from, believe me, he said Schaffel was stealing from Michael Jackson.

Remember Provencio, who suddenly came up with a diary at the last minute, who was recording people’s phone calls not knowing he was being recorded as well, and in one classic comment said, "I'm not even giving my lawyer information. This is for the book, honey." Remember the word "honey"? This is the guy they want you to think you can trust, their star witness on conspiracy, who couldn't put Michael Jackson anywhere either, except in a recording studio.

They did nothing to refute the notion that Geragos, as any lawyer would in his position, put the Arvizos under surveillance. You're allowed to do that. It's done in cases all the time. People do in divorce cases. They do it in criminal cases, and they have private investigators who are licensed, like Miller was, follow people around to see where they're going.

And based on what you knew of the Arvizos, you can see why. It's not part of a conspiracy. It was a lawyer representing a celebrity client who he feared was about to be shaken down, about to be taken advantage of, who had a history of being taken advantage of, and he did exactly what he should have done. He investigated. And he was very open about what he did.

As I said before, if this was a conspiracy to hide a family, or worse, whatever they're saying, why is Miller using a bonded, licensed mover, who had pretty good record-keeping procedures, to move their stuff into storage and put it under his name?

Dickerman and Janet and Masada meet at The Laugh Factory on the 21st. Dickerman never calls the police. And as I said before, after the 21st, she continues to go to these various embassies and get her visas and her passport stuff done.

Does that suggest there's a conspiracy going on? Does that suggest she's worried? Or does it suggest, "Hey," you know, "We wanted Michael to be our family. We wanted to be included. There's nobody left now. Gavin's healed. Star's healed. We're not going to use illness to generate money anymore through any lies or manipulations. We're slipping away from Mr. Jackson. These guys are taking over his affairs. They're keeping us away from him. Now how do we get something out of this?"

Go to a lawyer.

That's what she did, and that's what she's still doing.

You've heard a lot about the body wax, the shopping sprees, the hair appointment. She had an excuse for everything, that somehow she was being forced to the orthodontist against her will, that somehow she was being forced to get a body wax against her will.

The woman from the salon came in, and it was interesting. She said Janet looked at her and said, "I'm from South America." A little strange. Sounds like she might have Brazil on her mind, and it sounds like it may not be something she's particularly concerned about.

But she was left there alone. She could have done whatever she wanted. She could have called 9-1-1 at any time. She wanted a hair appointment for the next day.

I mean, all of these witnesses came in. No one detected any concern by Janet that she was being held against her will. Nobody saw a PR crew following. Nobody substantiated any of the things Janet said to you under oath, because they're false.

Her problem, as I said before was, she figured out, "At some point Michael's not going to be our family/father soon. Now what do we do to gain?"

And here we are.

Now, the prosecutor talked about these alleged prior bad acts.

A prosecutor once told me, "Prior bad acts are a band-aid for a bad case," because none of these alleged victims are alleged victims in this case. So why do they bring them in? If they've got such a great case for Gavin being a victim, why are they bringing these people in and why are they trying to sell you false claims of molestation? And I do mean false.

Macaulay Culkin says he was never molested. He called it absolutely ridiculous. And they tried to attack Macaulay like he was trying to lie on the stand.

They want you to believe people like Ralph Chacon, Adrian McManus and Kassim Abdool rather than Macaulay Culkin or Wade Robson or Brett Barnes.

Why does a prosecution come into this courtroom and tell you these three people are victims of molestation when they are absolutely adamant they’re not? Why? If they’re trying to tell you the truth.

Adrian McManus said in a deposition under oath that Mr. Jackson never did anything to any child. Then changes her story; goes to the tabloids. She and Chacon and Abdool find out that Blanca Francia and Jordan Chandler got money, and they want money, too. They don’t want to work. They want to be millionaires at Mr. Jackson’s expense.

Ladies and gentlemen, when he settled those two cases in the early ‘90s, he became a real target for people who don’t want to work. And he still is.

McManus, a Judge in this courthouse, in this county, finds that she stole from a child’s trust. A Judge in this courthouse finds that she acted with malice against Michael Jackson. She sues Michael Jackson. He cross-complains and decides not to settle that case, just to fight it. It’s the longest trial in the history of -- civil trial in the history of this courthouse, six months. And he prevails, and he wins his cross-complaint, and there’s a judgment against McManus and Chacon and Kassim for over a million dollars.

McManus is found with materials from Neverland stored in her house. She steals from a children’s trust. She steals from Mr. Jackson. She has judgments against her. They want you to believe her over these alleged victims who come in and say, “He didn’t do anything to us.”

What does that tell you about their case? What does that tell you about how desperate they are to do something to win?

Wade Robson got on the stand and he said, “These claims that I was molested are ridiculous,” were his words.

What does Mr. Zonen do? He starts grabbing these books and shoving them in his face, books he's never seen before, and asking him to describe sex acts to you. That's his response. Abusive, mean-spirited, and having nothing to do with seeking the truth. Nothing.

Brett Barnes came in and was angry. He said, "It absolutely never happened. I wouldn't stand for it." He was angry. He flew from Australia, he gave up his job, to come here and testify that this stuff is false.

Do they want you to believe him?

No. No, put your faith and trust in Ralph Chacon, who said he wanted to be a millionaire in his deposition in that case. Put your faith and trust in Kassim Abdool, who forgot that he had signed a statement saying he never saw anything improper happen at Neverland and admitted he wanted to be a millionaire. Put your faith and trust in Adrian McManus. Put your faith and trust in all the trips to the tabloids they made through that agent they hired, who they claim their lawyer was responsible for. Don't believe these three young men who say, "We were never touched."

It's the story of this case.

Jordan Chandler never testified. He filed a lawsuit with Larry Feldman and got money. Mr. Jackson settled that case in the early '90s. He didn't even come into court, say one way or the other. His mother hasn't seen him.

June Chandler, his mother, never testified she saw any molestation. What she testified to was that Michael became essentially a member of their family and stayed at their home in his room. She also said he stayed at her ex-husband's home in the room with Jordan, but she never saw any molestation and never testified to any.

And that's a strange story, too, because Joy Robson said, "She's a gold digger." She made a statement in an interview that men had disappointed her in her life and she didn't know if she wanted another man in her life, meaning Michael.

Joy was correct. She was out for fame and fortune, and that's what she's all about.

Blanca Francia took 20,000 from a tabloid, talked to Larry Feldman and ended up with another lawyer and settled.

Jason Francia says tickling went too far after he initially denied anything had happened. He said, "At the age of 16, money became important to me," and he settled.

And guess what? No criminal case was ever filed against Michael Jackson for any of these alleged victims.

Now, let me ask you this, ladies and gentlemen: If Jason Francia cooperated with Mr. Sneddon, and indeed he said Mr. Sneddon was there for the first meeting with his counselor, I wonder what Mr. Sneddon was trying to do? If he cooperated with the sheriffs, if he allowed himself to be interviewed -- although in his last interview, he said, "Don't tape-record it." Do you remember that? That was an interview having to do with this trial. He and his lawyer showed up at the sheriff's office and said they didn't want it tape-recorded, all right?

But let's assume, and it seems pretty clear, that he cooperated with law enforcement from day one. Remember the cross-examination on his interviews? He first denied anything happened. Then these police were leaning on him with curse words, et cetera, and he said, "Well, he tickled me," and then he started remembering it went too far, et cetera, said his genitals were touched.

Let's assume all of that's true. He cooperates. He works with Mr. Sneddon. He works with the sheriffs. Why was a case not filed? Why?

Because they didn't think they could win one with him. He took money. His mom took money. His mom went to a tabloid. He came into court and said, "Gee, I didn't even know my mom went to a tabloid."

Mr. Zonen said that to you in his closing argument a little while ago like you're supposed to believe it. He didn't tell you he didn't want his interview with the police tape-recorded, did he?

No criminal case for any of these people.

Phillip LeMarque. I've already talked Chacon, McManus, Abdool. They were all part of that group that did the same thing.

Phillip LeMarque, he was the chef that claims that Macaulay Culkin was being touched, when Macaulay Culkin says he wasn't being touched.

Remember, he was the one who tried to up his price to $500,000 for a story and said, "I was just kidding around." He had that agent representing him. He kept upping the price, and eventually he found out the agent sold the story himself.

You're going to trust him over Macaulay Culkin?

They want you to. That's what they want.

If you listen to them, Macaulay, Wade, Brett, all came here to lie under oath and say they weren't molested. Do you buy any of that?

I want to mention one other thing about these families.

The prosecution would like you to think that Michael Jackson, the manipulative monster, sort of befriends families and just uses them and discards them, and that he somehow has a pattern of doing this, and he did it to the Arvizos, those poor souls.

These families have been friends of Michael Jackson, in one case almost 20 years. They consider Michael to be in their family. They love him as a family member. They trust him. They have stayed friends all these years, and if they wanted to develop false claims, like others, they could have. And they could have stood in line for millions, the Robsons, the Barneses, Macaulay.

They didn't.

And when their family member, their friend, was in trouble in this courtroom, they came here to testify, and they didn't have to.

Macaulay Culkin is 24 years old. He is very wealthy and very successful. He's on top of the world. He's in his 20s. You're immortal in your 20s. He didn't have to come here and testify for his friend. He did it because he wanted to do the right thing.

And the same with Brett Barnes flying from Australia.

The same with Wade Robson. He’s a successful choreographer now.

They came here to stand up for their friend in a time of need and tell the truth.

And they want you to believe Chacon, Abdool and McManus and LeMarque rather than these three individuals and their families, sisters, mothers, et cetera.

What does it tell you about their motives?

What does it tell you about their case? What does it tell you about what they’re willing to do to try and win in this courtroom?

I have some timelines I just want to quickly go through with you before we get into transcript, if I may.

J.C. Penney suit. All right. August 27th, ‘98, the arrest. Then you have the lawsuit filed in ‘99, okay?

Janet files for divorce in October of 2001, right before the settlement. The settlement checks are received, and ten days later she wants emergency welfare assistance.

And as I said to you before, this provides a lens through which you can look at this case, because the sexual assault claims evolved later on. That’s why her lawyer was so shocked at the deposition.

Janet Arvizo versus David Arvizo. 9-29-01, she tells the Los Angeles Police Department her husband assaulted her. Later on, as things evolve, she claims false imprisonment and child molestation on Davellin, where Davellin says she doesn’t remember it. Her mother told her about it.

Now, I’m not saying David is some prize character. Apparently he’s not. Sounds bad news to me and probably to you. But did he really molest Davellin? Or did Janet concoct it? And would Janet concoct false claims of sexual touching? Ask yourselves that question.

Here's the lawsuit developing against Michael Jackson.

February 21st, she meets with Attorney Bill Dickerman at The Laugh Factory. They have a number of meetings with Masada. She meets Attorney Larry Feldman April 3rd. He has her meet with Stan Katz, his business associate, on May 15th. Feldman goes to the police in June. Gavin's first interview is July. And all the while she's having meetings with Masada, Dickerman, Feldman and Katz, and the claims get bigger and bigger and bigger.

Remember the correspondence that Dickerman sent Geragos? Nothing about false imprisonment, nothing about alcohol, nothing about molestation. Begins with, "Make sure nobody has the rights to our film footage. Give us our stored materials back. Stop harassing us." Evolves, evolves, evolves.

And you got to ask yourself this question: Gavin says he never told his mother, and he went to the police and finally said, "I was molested" in July. Why did they go to Feldman in April? Why does anybody go to Feldman in a situation like this? Do any of you really think they didn't have in mind a molestation case when they went to Feldman?

And you know something? Three lawyers in this courtroom, Feldman, Dickerman and a lawyer for Blanca Francia, all told you Gavin, Star, Davellin, they have till the age of 18 before the clock starts ticking on a civil suit. Feldman told you there's still time for Janet to sue Michael Jackson. And he told you he filed a Notice of Claim against Los Angeles County, and there's still time for Star and Gavin to file a claim against Los Angeles County.

And Janet on the stand tried to hesitate about whether he still represents her. They were playing all these games. But the fact is, he'd been on the phone with her recently, he'd been on the phone with Jay Jackson, he had been helping her with subpoenas. What do you think is going on?

If the time hasn't run to file a civil case, and if a conviction here allows you to automatically win it, and the lawyer's still in touch with these alleged victims, what do you think is going on?

And by the way, remember in the J.C. Penney case, in her deposition Janet said, “Initially I only wanted an apology, and I said there would be no civil suit.” Do you remember that?

Did she keep her word? Did she file a civil suit eventually when she realized, “I can get some money out of this deal?” Did sexual assault claims then evolve later on?

Yes. Same pattern. Same motives. Same lies.

Just like here. Just like here. She just needs one more thing: You to convict Michael. All this group wants. Masada, Dickerman, Feldman, Katz and the Arvizos. That’s all they need. And you have that power in your hands to make them rich, and they’ll never have to work a day in their life. You have the power.

I talked about the questionable timing of this so-called molestation. February 6th, airing of the Bashir documentary. There’s a suspected child abuse report filed with DCFS February 10th. You have the rebuttal taping and the DCFS interview on the 19th and 20th. You got all these things going on.

Look when they say the alleged molestation takes place. Does it make sense to any of you? How can it?

Their problem was what they did on the 19th and 20th.

Ladies and gentlemen, remember when Janet was asked questions about the Brad Miller interview on the 16th of February where she praised Michael Jackson as a father figure, someone who came into their life, mentored her children, kind, considerate, and she said it was all true. I’ll show you the transcript. She said it was all true.

But then she got there on the 20th and said it was all scripted, and she said essentially the same things.

They had to allege molestation after the 20th because of all the statements they’d been making before that date. It’s purely a manipulative gesture. And you’re going to see through it, I believe.

At this point I’d like to go into some of the trial testimony of Gavin Arvizo, because I think you’ll find it quite revealing, especially in light of what Mr. Zonen said to you today.

“Did you ever go down there and drink any alcohol without Mr. Jackson being present?

“No.”

Under oath.

“And did you have -- don’t tell us what she said, just tell us - I want to know - did you have any conversations with her?

“Yes.

“Did you have any conversation with her about leaving?

“Yes.

“Did you want to leave, you personally?

“Not really, because I was kinda having fun.”

This is about leaving Neverland.

Remember the police interview they showed you at the end of their case?

“I was scared. I wanted to leave.”

He’s asked about the Bashir documentary where, as you know, he said nothing bad happens in Mr. Jackson’s bed. Remember that?

Well, as I said before, when all the furor starts and all the pressures from every side begin and the storm starts building is when they now claim molestation happens.

He’s asked about Mr. Jackson:

“Did Mr. Jackson ever say anything to you about going to Brazil?

“Yeah.

“What did he say?

“He said that we were going to go to Brazil, that we were going to have a good time.

“Do you remember anything else Mr. Jackson said to you about the trip?

“That he was going to come a week later after we got there.”

Now, assuming that’s true and assuming they are planning a trip to Brazil, all of them, why can’t you cancel it? And wasn’t it cancelled? The tickets weren’t purchased. The trip was cancelled. Nobody went out of the country. The Arvizos went home.

Where’s the crime? Please tell me. Where’s the crime? Is it a crime to plan a trip abroad and cancel it?

If you listen to the prosecution, it was a crime when Mr. Jackson thought of having a press conference in Florida and then cancelled it. Big nefarious part of a conspiracy. Nonsense.

“We would only drink with Michael.”

“So -- all right. So when you came back from Calabasas and Mr. Jackson was there, did you drink with him?

“Yes.”

He keeps saying they only drank with Michael, but the witnesses have proven that’s a lie. A lie under oath. Repeatedly he says it. Why? Because it’s to their advantage to say it. And you’re supposed to believe him beyond a reasonable doubt on alcohol. He’s the only alleged victim with alcohol.

This is Mr. Sneddon’s questions:

“And where were you when you saw Mr. Jackson coming up the stairs?”

Do you remember the testimony of Star and Gavin about Mr. Jackson coming up the stairs of his room naked? I’d like you to look carefully what happens here.

Mr. Sneddon: “And where were you when you saw Mr. Jackson coming up the stairs?

“Me and my brother were laying on the bed.

“Q. And what were you doing?

“I think we were just laying there.

“Q. All right. And Mr. Jackson came up the stairs. Did you notice anything?

“Yeah, he was naked.

“Q. When you say ‘naked,’ what do you mean by that?

“A. Like not clothes on.

“Q. Did Mr. Jackson do or say anything at that point in time?

“No, he just ran up and just got something and went back down.”

“Q. By Mr. Sneddon: I’m sorry?

“A. I think he just ran up there and got something and went back downstairs.

“Q. Do you recall him saying anything at that point?

“A. No.

“Q. And what was your reaction to what you saw?

“A. Nothing. It was just kind of like -- me and my brother were kind of like, ‘Eeuuww,’ you know what I mean.

“Q. Kind of like what?

“’Eeuuww,’ like we never really saw a grown man, like, naked before.”

Which, of course, is baloney, but....

Here we go again. At some point -- now, they’re trying to make that look like some kind of a molester or something, that Mr. Jackson was in his room, came out of the bathroom, came up the stairs, saw them, and ran back down again. Nothing nefarious happened at all.

“Q. At some point did you tell somebody else that you’d been drinking alcohol in connection with the fact that you had to collect your pee in that bottle?

“Yes.”

Now -- keep going.

“Who was that?

“It was my mom.”

I want to present something to you. He admits at 4:00 in the morning telling his mother that he had wine. His mother admits on the stand that that happened, that she knew he had wine. They have an appointment at Kaiser Hospital that morning. Janet takes possession of the urine sample. Vinnie’s driving. Now, does Gavin want that test if he’s been drinking wine? Does Janet want that test if she knows he’s been drinking wine? Do they really want to go to Kaiser and have him fail that test?

What she came in here and said to you was, “I noticed suddenly urine was missing and we never had the test.”

Do you believe her? Do you believe Gavin?

Should you believe them? Is it possible the two of them didn’t want to have the test? They wanted to make their appointment, because this was their treating physician. Do you necessarily believe Vinnie had something to do with this?

Think about their lack of credibility, their lies under oath, their manipulative scams and schemes. Are you sure they’re victims when it comes to this urine sample and lack of test? What do you think?

Let me go back:

“What did you say to your mother?

“Well, I called her and I told her, ‘Well, Mom, you know how Jesus drank juice? I mean, Jesus drank wine?’

“And then she told me -- I don’t know. I don’t remember what exactly she said. She said like, ‘Yeah.’

“And then, like, I just tried to tell her that -- I’m not really too sure what happened in that conversation. I know I called my mom and I told her.”

Their assumption is you must believe everything Janet said about suddenly finding urine missing, that they’re victims. Why should you believe it?

I know this: Michael Jackson’s nowhere near any of this.

I actually thought this was going to appear a little earlier, but we’re back on that subject of Mr. Jackson going up naked, seeing them and running down the stairs. This is Mr. Sneddon:

“And the time you said he was naked --

“Yes.

“-- and I asked you whether or not he said anything to you at that particular point in time --

“Uh-huh.”

“--and you said you didn’t recall anything?

“I do not.

“Do you recall testifying at the grand jury?

“Yes.

“You testified there a couple of times, did you not?

“Yes.

“One time that I asked you questions and one time Mr. Zonen did?

“Yes.

“Would it refresh your recollection if I showed you what you said to the grand jury about that incident?

“Probably.”

And in other words, Mr. Sneddon didn’t like the answer when he said nothing happened. Mr. Jackson did nothing untoward or improper. Mr. Jackson ran up the stairs, saw them, and ran down. That wasn’t enough for Mr. Sneddon, so he wanted to give a transcript to his own witness to remind him of what he should say.

Okay. So he does it. He does it, right in front of you:

“Gavin, with regard to that portion of your testimony when you indicated to this jury just a little while ago that you had no recollection of what Mr. Jackson said when he walked in front of you naked; do you recall that?

“Yes, well, he didn’t really walk. He just came up the stairs.

“He came up the stairs?

“Yes.

“And you saw that he was naked?

“Yes.

“And I asked you if you recall whether he said anything to you, do you recall that, in front of this jury here?

“Yes.

“And you said you did not?

“Yes.”

And it goes on and on. It’s the story of this case. Anything to win.

THE COURT: All right. We'll stop for the afternoon. See you tomorrow morning at 8:30.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:30 p.m.)

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor. Good morning.

THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.

MR. MESEREAU: Ladies and gentlemen, yesterday I summed up for you a history of con artists, actors and liars in the Arvizo family. I talked about welfare fraud. I talked about perjury. I talked about the J.C. Penney case. I talked about fake disability claims. Fake food stamp claims. Fake unemployment claims. Signing documents under penalty of perjury that are false. I talked about fake bank accounts.

I talked about Janet Arvizo putting her children on stage to do plays about their poverty.

I talked about Gavin being an actor.

Chris Tucker telling you that he was cunning and smart; that he didn’t trust him; that he warned

Michael Jackson, “Stay away. Something is wrong with these people.”

And unfortunately, Michael didn’t listen.

With respect to the issue of actors, please consider, additionally, the following:

Gavin Arvizo testified that when he went to Neverland to do the Bashir documentary, he thought it was an audition. Janet Arvizo in the rebuttal video testified her children wanted to be in movies.

There is evidence that Star wanted to be in a documentary and that’s why Michael Jackson did the Neverland documentary that Star narrated.

These people wanted to be actors. They wanted to be around celebrities. They are actors.

And Paralegal Mary Holzer told you that Janet admitted to her that Gavin knew his lines, Star had trouble, and she was coaching these kids in the J.C. Penney case.

I told you that the J.C. Penney case had two primary players, Janet and Gavin. It began with Gavin shoplifting, and his testimony under oath at a very young age buttressed Janet’s fraudulent claims.

You can’t just look at the Arvizo family in terms of Janet’s misdeeds. You’ve got to look at the whole group. You’ve got to look at broad scams.

David, as I said yesterday, was more like a bull in a china shop. He just comes out and says, “Give me money.”

Janet’s much more sophisticated. She gets to know you. She hugs you. She loves you. You’re part of her family. And then she tells you a tale of woe and she gets money.

Hamid was the classic example. She tells him her tales of woe, and he writes her a $2,000 check, and he hardly knows her.

Now, Mr. Zonen yesterday made a broad statement to you, and you have to take his broad statements and put them under a microscope in the jury room. He said, “Michael Jackson shows adult material to kids.”

My question to you is, who?

Macaulay Culkin never said he showed him anything. Wade Robson never said he showed him anything. Brett Barnes never said he showed him anything. Jordie Chandler didn’t testify. And even Jason Francia, who said he was improperly tickled, never testified that Mr. Jackson showed him any adult material.

The only people who have come before you to say they were shown adult material by Mr. Jackson are con artists, actors and liars.

And the only forensic evidence they had to hang their hat on are fingerprints on some girlie magazines that were owned by Michael Jackson. And you know that everywhere the Arvizo children went, they would rummage through drawers, rummage through the house. They did it at the dentist’s office. They did it in Vernee Watson Johnson’s home. This is the way they behave.

And unfortunately, Michael was rather lax and generous, as Kiki Fournier said, too generous in letting people run through his room, run through his house, run through Neverland. And he’s paying a price for it right now.

But it’s not a crime.

There is a piece of evidence lacking in the prosecution’s case that is very significant, particularly with allegations like this. And let me explain what I’m talking about.

Typically, in a sex-crimes-type investigation -- and let’s face it, in this case, you’ve had at least 70 officers running everywhere trying to find anything they can on Michael Jackson because he’s a mega celebrity.

But typically in this kind of investigation, you have what is called a pretext phone call.

Typically, the police will get the alleged victim, they will sit with the alleged victim, and they will talk about making a phone call to the person who’s suspected of committing the crime. And I’m sure you’re familiar with this from television. They will make the phone call. The so-called victim makes the call, and the so-called victim is told to ask certain questions that are incriminating in nature.

For example, Gavin could have called Michael Jackson and said, “Why did you improperly touch me? Why did you do that to me in bed? Why did you touch me that day we were together? Why, when we were in the wine cellar drinking, did you do this or do that?” And typically the police are listening in, and they’re recording it, and that becomes their primary evidence.

Now, particularly in a case like this, where you have no independent witnesses, with credibility, watching the alleged molestation, and you have no forensic evidence to support it, you would think, if they did anything, it would have been a phone call like that.

You know why they didn’t do it?

Look at that police interview. Gavin refuses. Doesn’t want to make a call to Michael Jackson. And Gavin is someone who has been schooled by his parents to very effortlessly call celebrities, one after another, after another, after another. He’s not shy about phone calls. He’s not shy about contacting Jay Leno, Chris Tucker, Michael Jackson, Suli McCullough, you name it.

Why no recorded phone conversation with an incriminating statement from Michael Jackson?

Because he knew if he did that, he wouldn’t get an incriminating statement, because it didn’t happen.

Now, they’ll probably tell you he was terrified, he was scared, he was traumatized to be on the phone. That’s a bunch of baloney.

I’m going to show you Gavin testified on the witness stand that Michael is a nice person, even in this courtroom. He’s not afraid of Michael. He’s angry that Michael abandoned his family and didn’t take care of them for the rest of their life.

And as I said yesterday, they put demeanor in issue. The only time you ever saw him get angry was when we talked about what Michael really had done for he and his family and what had happened. And his anger came out when he made the false statement that Michael had done nothing for his family.

Remember, he started using this scripted phrase, “In my 11-year-old mind, I believed George Lopez had done more, because he went to the hospital and bought me clothes. In my 11-year-old mind, I thought others had done more because they were at the hospital. In my 11-year-old mind, Michael Jackson hadn’t done much for me at all.”

And I went through all the things he had done. The visits to Neverland, the plane flights, the hotel, the truck, all the blood drives, you name it. The gifts, the watch, the jacket. I’ve probably forgotten half of them.

Michael did all sorts of things for this family. The problem was, they wanted it to continue, and they realized at some point it would not continue. Michael was not going to be their benefactor for the rest of their life, and that’s when all the trouble started.

In that police interview, where the prosecution says you watch the demeanor of a victim, you see a victim of molestation act in an inappropriate way, the way you would expect, you will also see someone who’s an actor. You see someone who is acting. And you see someone who’s hesitant about condemning Michael Jackson, who fundamentally he likes, because he said he liked him right on the witness stand. I’m going to show you.

So you’ve got to look at that tape with skepticism. You’ve got to look at it and be very careful with what conclusions you draw, because as I said before, Mr. Robel had already decided he wanted a criminal case. He already decided the Arvizos were victims. He knew nothing about their background as con artists, actors and liars.

I also said to you, when asked, “What’s a bad thing?” Gavin never said, “Lie.” Never said, “Cheat.” Never said, “Steal.” He had to struggle.

And he talked about killing people, he talked about breaking things. I went back to the transcript. He talks about breaking a window. He talks about staying awake at night.

Now, isn't it normal for a child, when pressed to that extent, "Tell me something else that's wrong. Tell me something else that's wrong. Tell me something else that's wrong," to say, "Not tell the truth? To lie"?

He can't say it, because that's the way he's been raised. And even when he was asked, "How did you learn right from wrong?" he never really had an answer to that. He said, "I kind of figured it out myself." Just look at the tape.

Gavin, as Chris Tucker said, cunning, smart. He worried him.

And he and Star tried to make it look as if they were innocent little lambs and Michael taught them everything about sex. They didn't know what an erection was until they met Michael. They didn't know what ejaculation was until they met Michael. It's all Michael, Michael, Michael.

And I said yesterday, if you convict him of anything, they are going to be multi-millionaires through Attorneys Feldman and Dickerman. It's all set up. They're just waiting. Waiting to celebrate. Waiting to walk into court. Waiting for the biggest con of their careers, right here. They just need you to help them. That's all.

You have to look at the changing stories. You have to look at the inconsistent statements by Gavin and Star, because they're the only witnesses to this so-called molestation.

And as I said to you yesterday, look at that tape. Gavin says he's being molested after they get back from Florida. That only changes when they realize what the import, what the effect of the rebuttal tape and the DCFS interview is, where they praise Michael to the hilt, where they say he's wonderful, he never would touch them.

They don't change the dates till they realize they told the social workers, in Jay Jackson's apartment, from the DCFS that they were angry about these accusations. Gavin said he was angry about this claim that Michael had touched him. It's only when they realized what this all does that the dates change.

He says in that police interview, "I think he touched me five times." He says here it was twice. Everything starts changing.

And I'm about to show you some transcript testimony of him which I think will raise even more red flags:

"Q. You went to two lawyers and a psychologist, who Larry Feldman referred you to, before you went to any police officer, right?

"Yes.

"Now, these weren't the first attorneys you ever talked to, correct?

"I've talked to other people, other attorneys before."

This is a 15-year-old alleged victim whose family has been swimming around lawyers and swimming around manipulations and swimming around false claims for years.

Officer Robel said that Gavin told him that his grandmother made the statement of, "If men don't masturbate, they'll rape a female." But he came into court and said, "Michael Jackson told that to me." He was confronted with that lie. And what was his explanation?

"Q. But your grandmother said to you, 'If men don't do it, men might get to a point where they might go ahead and rape a woman,' correct?

"Yes. Michael also told me that."

Now, what are the chances of his grandmother and Michael telling him, word for word, that identical statement? He's a liar, he's a perjurer, and that's an excuse.

This is where he has the discussion with the teacher, where he says, "Michael never touched me," okay? And I want you not just to look at what he says, okay? I want you to envision and recall how he tried to finesse it on the witness stand:

“Okay. And the purpose of the discussion was what, if you know?
“A. It was probably about Michael.
“Q. Okay. You say ‘probably about Michael’?
“Uh-huh.
“But you’re not sure?

“A. I’m not sure that the whole conversation was about....”
“Okay. But sometime in that conversation, Dean Albert looked at you in the eye and said, ‘Are these allegations that Mr. Jackson sexually abused you true,’ right?
“Uh-huh.
“And you said they were not true, right?
“Yeah. I told them that Michael didn’t do anything to me.
“And the second time he asked you, you said to him, ‘No, he did not touch me in any sexually inappropriate way,’ correct?
“A. I don’t know.
“You don’t know?
“A. I’m pretty sure I told him that.
“Okay.
“But, I mean, I don’t know how exactly it happened.”

That’s Gavin, in this courtroom on the witness stand, fudging around, finessing how he’s going to handle the fact that he went to a teacher and twice said, “Michael Jackson never touched me.”

Okay. Now, I only put this statement up here because you may recall Davellin got up and said, “All my brother ever did in class was talk when he shouldn’t have,” okay?

And what they were trying to do, because they’ve all been scripted by their attorneys, they want you to think that he’s a molestation victim, and suddenly became aggressive, and combative, and had disciplinary problems because of the molestation.

And Davellin kept saying, “The only problem he had at school was speaking when he shouldn’t.”

We went through a litany of problems with all these teachers. Getting up and singing in the middle of class. Fighting. Remember, he said, “One teacher, I lost respect for him. He sunk down to my level.”

This is a very precocious disciplinary problem, this person Gavin, not the little lamb they want you to think he is.

“Okay. And in summary, you’ve had some disciplinary problems with Mr. Geraldt, right?

“A. I had a lot of disciplinary problems.

“Q. What disciplinary problems did you have?

“A. I would get into fights sometimes at school.”

I only put that there because Davellin testified under oath he never got in fights.

You know what’s interesting? Do you remember, every Arvizo witness said they’ve never discussed the case with each other. All these Arvizo witnesses said, “We don’t talk about Bashir together.”

And I looked at Davellin and I said, “Well, how come on that rebuttal video your mother looks at Gavin and says, ‘Let’s hold hands like you did in Bashir’? How could that happen if she didn’t look at the Bashir documentary?”

And she had no answer.

“Q. Do you remember telling the Santa Barbara sheriffs that Michael Jackson first touched you inappropriately during your last days at Neverland?

“Yes.”

But hasn’t he made statements that he was inappropriately touched right after the Miami trip?

When did this change? I just told you when it changed. When they realized that these statements were going to haunt them: Brad Miller, the rebuttal video, and the DCFS interview.

“Okay. Were you ever personally threatened by anyone associated with Mr. Jackson?

“No.

That’s testimony in this courtroom. Look at the police interview they showed you last week. He says Frank said his mother would be killed. He flip-flops all over the place, because he’s a liar.

“Q. Do you recall telling them the following, ‘We didn’t drink a lot’?

“A. No.

“Would it refresh your recollection if I show you a transcript from that interview?

“Yes.”

I’m talking about the police interview. Gavin and the Santa Barbara sheriffs.

“Q. Mr. Arvizo, have you had a chance to look at that page?

“A. Yes.

“Q. Does it refresh your recollection about what you told the Santa Barbara sheriffs?

“A. Not really.

“Q. You told them, “We didn’t drink a lot,’ right?

“A. I don’t know. It says it on there.”

Didn’t he tell you they drank night after night after night? How many lies does this guy have to tell for you to see what’s really going on?

“Q. You initially told them you didn’t drink a lot?

“A. That’s true.

“Q. So you are saying that at different times you gave Mr. Sneddon different accounts of when the molestation supposedly happened?

Witness: “Yes.”

That’s Gavin admitting all the flip-flops, the different stories, the fabrications, the inconsistent ways of describing what happened. He’s not truthful.

And as I said yesterday, if you don’t believe him beyond a reasonable doubt, if you don’t believe Star beyond a reasonable doubt - and wait till you see what’s coming up on Star - they’re out of the box. It’s over.

“Q. Until you realized that you were not going to be part of Michael Jackson’s family, you never made any allegation of child molestation, correct?

“A. I didn’t want to be part of his family. I just saw him as a father figure.

“Q. Until you left Neverland for the last time, you never made any allegation of child molestation, correct?

“A. I didn’t tell anyone until I left for the last time, correct.

“Q. And you never called the police until after you’d seen two lawyers, right?

Witness: “Yes, it wasn’t until I saw two lawyers until I told the police what really happened.”

When you’re molested, when your family thinks you’re molested, when parents think their child is molested, who do they go to? The police or lawyers?

“Q. Let me ask you what you’re talking about. Do you think when your mother said Michael Jackson was honest and told the truth that she was being truthful?

“A. Yes. He’s a nice man.”

He said Michael’s a nice man right in the courtroom to you under oath.

“Q. Mr. Arvizo, you were caught masturbating at Neverland when Michael Jackson wasn’t even around, weren’t you?

“A. No.

“Q. You were caught masturbating in a guest quarters, weren’t you?

“A. No.

“Q. No one ever saw you do that?

“No.

“No one ever talked to you about that?

“No one ever talked to me about it.”

That’s false. Rijo didn’t come in here and lie under oath. Rijo told the truth.

“Q. Was Rijo ever in a guest room with you when you were watching T.V. at Neverland?

“A. Um, no. I don’t remember really. I mean, I might have hung out with him in a guest room for a minute, but, I mean, I don’t remember watching T.V. with him.”

Lying.

“You don’t?

“No.

“Are you saying you don’t remember or are you saying it just didn’t happen?

“A. I don’t think it happened.

“Q. Okay. Do you recall ever telling Rijo you wanted to look at adult movies on television at Neverland?

“No, I don’t remember that.

“Ever remember stealing alcohol from Michael Jackson’s bedroom when Rijo was present?

“No.

“Ever remember masturbating in front of Rijo?

“No.

“Now, earlier in your testimony, you said the only time you ever tasted wine was in church. Do you remember that?

“Yes.”

Does anybody believe that? Do you think he never had had wine except in church? Based upon what you’ve seen about this family and what they say, and what they do, and how they change their stories, and how they lie under oath with no respect for the oath whatsoever, do you believe that?

“Q. Are you telling the jury the only time you tasted wine before you went to Neverland was in a church?

“Yes.

“Did you ever tell Rijo or anyone else at Neverland that you knew what wine tasted like?

"No, I don't remember telling them that."

Does Rijo have a history of fraud and acting and lying? No.

Does Gavin Arvizo? You bet.

"Q. Mr. Arvizo, when you claim you were inappropriately touched by Mr. Jackson, you claim there were no witnesses watching, correct?

"Yes."

And I identified that problem yesterday.

You got a lying witness, no independent witness supporting it, and no forensics.

And by the way, they want you to think these fingerprints on a couple of magazines are bombshell forensic evidence.

What are they evidence of? That he looked at Michael's magazines.

Are they evidence of any of these crimes?

No.

No DNA, no semen, no hair, no fiber.

Nothing.

"Q. Never knew an employee named Shane Meridith at Neverland?

"A. If I did, I don't remember that.

"Q. He caught you with an open bottle of alcohol at Neverland, didn't he, when Michael Jackson wasn't even around?

"A. No."

Do you trust him or do you trust Shane Meridith, who was an impeccable witness? He works at Lompoc. He was a truthful witness, and he had no reason to come in and lie. He doesn't even work at Neverland anymore.

"Q. Do you remember ever telling Chris Tucker that you didn't make any money from the fund-raiser?

"A. No. Well, what fund-raising?"

Look at that.

"Q. A fund-raiser for you at The Laugh Factory.

"No, no, because we did make money at the Laugh Factory.

"Q. Yes. So you never told Chris Tucker, 'We didn't make any money from the fund-raiser'?

"A. Why would I say that when we did? No, I never said that.

"Okay. Do you recall yourself asking Chris Tucker for money?

"No."

Who do you believe, Chris Tucker or Gavin Arvizo? Why would Chris Tucker come in here to testify and lie? He's one of the most successful actors in the world. He is flying high. He is popular all over the planet. Why does he need to come in here and testify and lie?

Do you believe him or do you believe Gavin? Because you got to make a choice.

Now, I want you to watch all of this. This is Star's testimony from the courtroom in front of you, under oath, about these claims:

"Okay. Before you testified yesterday, had you ever discussed what you were going to say with your mom?

"No.

"Before you testified yesterday, had you ever discussed with Gavin what you're going to say?

"No.

"Before you testified yesterday, had you ever discussed with your sister Davellin what you were going to say?

"No.

"Have you ever discussed this case with your mom?

"No.

"Ever discussed this case with Gavin?

"No.

"Have you ever discussed this case with Davellin?

"No.

"Never discussed it with your mom before you went" --

This is about the J.C. Penney case, by the way.

“Never discussed it with your mom before you went into the deposition, right?

“Yes.

“Just like you’ve never discussed the facts of this case with your mom at any time, right?

“Yes.

“And didn’t you say under oath that your mother and dad never fight? That’s in the J.C. Penney deposition.

“Yes.

“Was that true?

“Um, I really don’t -- sometimes.

“I’m sorry. I didn’t understand your answer. When you told -- excuse me, let me rephrase. When you stated under oath in the J.C. Penney deposition in the year 2000 that your mom and dad never fight, were you telling the truth?

“No.

“Did someone tell you to lie in that deposition?

“A. I don’t remember.

“Q. You don’t remember at all?

“No, it happened a long time ago.”

Now, this kid’s lying at the age of what, nine, ten? He never discussed it with his mother? Nobody told him to lie? Nobody told him what the case is about? It starts with him shoplifting.

“Q. You also said in that deposition, under oath, that your dad never hit you. Do you remember that?

“A. Not really.

“Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I show you that page?

“Sure.

“You were asked if your dad ever hit you, and you said, ‘Never,’ right?

“Yes.

“Was that the truth?

“No.

“Did someone ever tell you to lie about that under oath in your deposition in the J.C. Penney case?

“A. I really don’t remember.

“Q. Don’t remember at all?

“A. No. I don’t remember nothing from there.”

Is he telling you the truth? Do you trust him? Do you trust him beyond a reasonable doubt? Do you trust him to the point where you’re going to convict Michael Jackson, take away his freedom and reputation? I don’t think so, ladies and gentlemen. These are terrible witnesses.

“Q. Have your -- excuse me. Did your father ever coach you about what to say in the J.C. Penney deposition?

“No.

“Did your mother ever coach you about what to say in the J.C. Penney deposition?

“No.”

Then who told them to lie? Who told them to lie to get money from J.C. Penney? He’s a young kid.

“Please tell the jury why you lied under oath.

“I don’t remember. It was like five years ago. I don’t remember nothing.

“By the way, do you remember yesterday when you told the jury that on that plane you looked at a soda can that Michael Jackson had, and you saw a red ring around it?

“A. Yes.”

Remember that testimony?

“Q. You told that to the police in one of your interviews also, didn’t you?

“I think so.

“Q. You also told the police that you looked in the can and saw white wine, correct?

“A. When?

“Q. When you told them there was a red ring around the can, you then told them that you looked in the can and saw white wine, remember?

“A. I don’t remember saying that.

“Would it refresh your recollection if I show you a transcript from a police interview?

“Sure.”

Look what he says:

“The lady might have misheard me.

“Excuse me, what did you just say?

“A. I never looked into the can.

“Q. You said a lady might have misheard you?

“A. The -- I don’t know what her -- what the --

“The court reporter?

“Yes.

“Oh, you think the court reporter made a mistake?

“Yes.”

Any of you believe that?

“Q. Do you recall ever being caught in the wine cellar?

“A. The wine cellar doesn’t have a combination lock.”

Look at that answer.

“Do you recall ever being caught in the wine cellar drinking wine when Michael Jackson wasn’t present?

“A. Never.”

Flat-out lie. Shane Meridith caught them.

“Q. Never happened?

“A. It -- it’s always locked, and it always -- it -- to unlock it, you need a key. There’s no combination to get in there.

“Let me repeat my question. Do you recall ever being caught in the wine cellar at Neverland with Gavin drinking wine when Michael Jackson wasn’t even there?

“No.

“Are you saying that never happened?

“Yes.

“Do you recall ever being caught at any other location in Neverland drinking wine when Michael Jackson wasn't there?

"No."

And you already heard the witnesses that contradict them. Lies under oath about a fundamental issue in this case. Reasonable doubt all over the place when lying witnesses come in and make these claims.

"Okay. That never happened?

"A. Yes.

"Okay. Now, you just told the jury voluntarily where the key is to get in the wine cellar, right?

"A. No, I said that the door -- the wine cellar needed a key to get in there.

"And you knew where the key was, correct?

"I knew it was in the lounge.

"You knew where it was hanging in the lounge, right?

"Not exactly. I didn't know where it was hanging. I just knew it was in the lounge."

He always has an out.

These kids knew exactly how to get in the wine cellar, and they were caught repeatedly all around Neverland getting into everything.

Okay. Another subject:

"Had you ever seen any girlie magazines in your life before you say Michael Jackson showed them to you?

"Um, no.

"Never?

"Well, I was only like 11 or 12.

"Weren't you caught at Neverland looking in girlie magazines?

"I said no.

"No one ever caught you and your brother looking at girlie magazines at Neverland?

"Never."

He was caught by Julio Avila with a girlie magazine in his backpack and said it was from his own home.

"Okay. Okay. And your testimony is, until you got to Neverland, you and your brother had never looked at girlie magazines at any time; is that right?

“Yes.”

Flat-out lies. Con artists, actors, liars.

Look at this, Star’s testimony here:

“You told the police in your first interview you looked at www.pussy.com?

“No, I was making an example that I was trying to say. That wasn’t the exact site. I’m just saying I was just making an example.

“Okay. You also told the police you might have looked at www.teenpussy.com, right?

“A. No, I never said that.

“You never said that to the sheriffs?”

All right. But this is a guy who never learned anything about sex until he met Michael Jackson. You’re supposed to buy that beyond a reasonable doubt.

This is that stairwell incident, okay?

Now, do you remember Gavin said Michael Jackson came out of the bathroom, ran up the stairs, saw the two of them there and ran down and nothing happened? And that’s what Mr. Sneddon kept trying to get him to say, something bad happened, and he couldn’t remember anything bad happening. He said he barely saw Michael Jackson.

But this is what Star says:

“And you claim you went up the stairwell” --

Excuse me, this is the -- pardon me. This is when he says he saw molestation. This is when he says he saw molestation, and he’s the only witness to it, there’s nobody else. And he sees his brother touched in bed, and his brother doesn’t know what’s going on because he’s asleep, remember?

“And you claim you went up the stairwell and saw Mr. Jackson and your brother on that bed on two occasions, right?

“Yes.

“You also told the jury that those lights were off, correct?

“Yes.
“You told the jury there was a light in the stairwell that was on, but those lights over the bed were off.
“Yes.
“You’ve also told the grand jury that you only watched for a couple seconds.
“Yes.
“So those lights are off. A light on the stairwell is on. You see it for a few seconds, and you run, correct?
“A. Yes.
“Okay. Both occasions?
“Yes.”
All right. You have a lying witness. He says there’s no lighting in the bedroom. He says it happened for a few seconds, and he ran. Nobody corroborates it. And no forensics prove it. And you’re supposed to convict Michael Jackson of serious felonies beyond a reasonable doubt on the basis of this guy alone. It’s ridiculous. 12959

“Q. Do you remember telling the Santa Barbara Grand Jury when you were asked the question, ‘Star, while you were at the ranch, did you have any discussions with your mother about the subject of her wanting to leave the ranch,’ and your answer was, ‘No’?
“A. I remember her saying it to me. Probably don’t even remember -- probably didn’t even remember at that time.
“Would it refresh your recollection if I show you what you told the Santa Barbara Grand Jury?
“A. You told me what I said.
“Q. Would it refresh your recollection to show you the transcript?
“Okay.
“May I approach, Your Honor?”
And I do.
“Does it refresh your recollection about what you told the Santa Barbara Grand Jury under oath?

“Yes.

“Your answer to the question was, ‘No,’ correct?

“Yes, but probably at the time I didn’t remember.

“At that time you didn’t remember?

“Yes. Probably, yes.

“Did you ever talk to your brother or sister about leaving the ranch?

“No.”

Now, they have this conspiracy claim, which I submit is ridiculous. The mother is claiming she was held against her will, the family was falsely imprisoned, they were extorted, they were abducted, they were kidnapped, it was a conspiracy engineered by Michael Jackson. And Star tells the grand jury, “She never talked about anything like that to me,” and then comes into court and tries to tell you the opposite.

Why? Do you believe him?

Remember this?

“You don’t recall threatening Kiki with a knife when she confronted you in the kitchen?

“No.

“Never happened?

“No.”

He pulled a knife on Kiki, and he pulled a knife on Angel Vivanco.

Lies under oath.

“Now, Prosecutor Sneddon asked you what you meant when you told the grand jury you hadn’t seen Michael Jackson touch Gavin’s genitals or penis. Do you remember that?

“Yes.

“And your response to Mr. Sneddon was, ‘Well, I was just talking about the dinner table,’ right?

“Yes.

“How come you never mentioned ‘dinner table’ to the grand jury when you made that statement?

“I don’t know if they asked me.
“Q. Well, let me just go through what you said, okay?
“Okay.
“’Q. What kind of things?
“’Fix his shirt.
“’What else?
“’He looked like from -- if you are standing in front him, it looked like he’s trying to fix his shirt.’”

He is talking about Michael Jackson.

“’But it’s hard to explain. But he would fix it, like he would touch -- well, it was weird.
“He would be touching him a lot?
“’Yeah.
“Not his genitals, not his penis?
“’I never saw that, but I saw it in the paper.’
“A. I don’t know what I meant by ‘paper,’ but I was trying to say that I didn’t see it that time.
“But you never mentioned any kitchen table, right?

“But it wasn’t the kitchen table.
“But you never mentioned any table at all, correct?
“I know.”

So he says, “I’ve never seen Michael Jackson touch his genitals or penis.” He gets caught. He makes up a story that, “I was only talking about the dinner table,” and then he contradicts that story. Are you going to believe this guy?

“Q. And in none of your police interviews do you limit that statement about not seeing genitals or penis touched at any table, right?
“No.
“Q. Today is the first time you ever limited that statement to what you saw at a table, correct?
“I don’t -- yes.

“Q. Now, you’ve indicated the first time you ever discussed any alleged inappropriate touching by Michael Jackson was with Psychologist Stanley Katz, right?
“Yes.
“And you have admitted that you gave Stanley Katz a different description than you’ve given in this courtroom, right?
“Yes.”

He admits to inconsistent statements about what happened. And of course he went to Stanley Katz because they first went to Larry Feldman to try and build a molestation case against Michael Jackson, because Larry Feldman had done it many years ago.

Now we have Davellin:

“Okay. Have you discussed what you were going to say in court with your mother?
“No.
“Not at all?
“A. Not at all.
“Did you ever discuss what you were going to say before the Santa Barbara Grand Jury with your mother?
“Never.
“Never talked about it once?
“Never.
“Did you discuss what you were going to say in court with either of your brothers?
“No.
“Just didn’t talk to one of them?
“No.
“At any time?
“No.

Do you believe any of this?

“Did you ever discuss what you were going to say before the Santa Barbara Grand Jury with any of your brothers?
“No.
“Not once?

“Never.
“Did your mother ever call you to talk about what you were going to say?
“No.
“So are you in contact with your brothers?
“Yes.
“Regular contact?
“Of course.
“Are you in contact with your mother?
“Of course.
“Is it regular contact?
“Yes, of course.
“And yet during all of this regular contact, nobody has even discussed what was going to happen in this courtroom?
“What’s more important to us is our feelings and if we’re okay. That’s what’s important to us.
“So no one ever has even discussed it, right?
“No.
“Not once?
“Never.
“How often do you talk to your mom?
“Every day. More than -- probably like every hour. We talk a lot.

“Every hour?
“Yeah, we talk a lot. We’re very close.
“Okay. Would it be accurate to say you talk to her maybe 12 to 15 times a day?
“Probably a little less, but yeah.”
Do any of you believe she’s never discussed the facts of this case with her mother or her brothers? Do any of you buy that for a second? Does it make any sense whatsoever? It does not.
“Ever discuss this case with your mother?
“No.
“Ever discuss this case with Gavin?
“No.
“Ever discuss this case with Star?
“No. At the home that you share with your mom, Gavin and Star, have you ever seen any documents about this case?

“No.

“None?

“Well, just what was given to us for us to think, but we’ve never seen them. We just saw what they came in, but we’ve never read through each other’s stuff.

“Okay. Let me just explore that, if I can. You saw documents come in some type of package; is that correct?

“We all got separate packages, yes.

“Okay. Now, did you testify before that no one in your family watched the Bashir documentary?

“Yes.

“Do you recall in the videotape your mother talking about her holding her hand with Gavin like they did in the Bashir documentary?

“Yes.

“She must have learned that by watching the Bashir documentary, right?

“A. No.

Do you believe any of this?

“Do you know for sure your mother’s never seen it?

“I don’t think so. I’m with my mom always.

“Well, there are times you’ve lived separately from your mother, right?

“Yeah, but I would visit almost every day.

“Have you ever discussed the Bashir documentary with your mom?

“No.

“Ever discussed the Bashir documentary with Gavin?

“No.

“Ever discussed the Bashir documentary with Star?

“No.

Do any of you believe this? If you lie under oath about something like that, you cannot be trusted.

There is a jury instruction about willfully false testimony that I will show you in a little while. It was read to you yesterday by Judge Melville. And it says, basically, someone who will lie about something significant can be totally discounted in a trial.

Okay. Now, this has to do with the molestation claim that Janet Arvizo made against David Arvizo when she told the police, not initially, that David Arvizo molested Davellin:

“Okay. Okay. But were you present when your mother told the LAPD that your father had molested you?

“A. No, but I had heard when he had asked her, ‘If you want to get anything off your chest,’ and she said, ‘Yes,’ and that’s when they went to the kitchen area of the East L.A. apartment.

“Q. But when you were interviewed by the police, you never told them your father had molested you, did you?

“A. Because they weren’t asking me about that, and I didn’t know. I was very young.

“Okay. Okay. Have you ever discussed with your mother what your father did to you?”

“They were both present that day.

“Okay. He had -- she had said, ‘Well, I never told Davellin that.’ And he says, ‘Well’ -- he said, ‘Well, she doesn’t need to know anyways.’ It was just a horrible experience for me to find out that he did that to me when I was young.

“And you found that out through your mother?

“From both of them, because he had agreed to it when I was standing right there, because they were having an argument, and my mom screamed it out at him.

“And your father agreed he had done that?

“Yeah.

“Do you want a second?

“I’m fine.”

I’ve already told you that Gavin told the

DCFS in the 1990s his mother had abused him, so what I'm pointing out to you is, there is a history, proven history, of making molestation and abuse allegations against all kinds of people by this family.

We're talking about the Brazil trip:

“And your position is that you've never told any other witness that your mother wanted to go to Brazil, but your brothers wanted to stay, right?

“My brothers wanted to stay and be with Michael, yes.

Didn't Gavin, in that police interview, say he was scared at Neverland and wanted to leave?

He flip-flops all over the place, depending on what he wants to accomplish.

Now, before we move further, the photo on your left, that's Janet's booking photo, where she says she was beaten up all over the place by J.C. Penney guards. That's the booking photo. Look at her face and look at her hair. And you already know that all the booking documents indicate there's no medical problem. There's no injury. She doesn't need medical attention. And Mary Holzer told you that Janet confided in her that after she got released, she was beaten by David before she went to the hospital. And of course they had photos taken weeks later and blamed it all on J.C. Penney and Tower Records' employees to get money.

And remember some of the testimony about what's been said about J.C. Penney? Janet told Azja Pryor some white boys beat them up in the mall. Janet told Mrs. Kennedy that black guys beat them up in an alley.

You trust her?

“Q. You were investigated by the Department of Children & Family Services in the 1990s when Gavin alleged you had abused him. Remember that?

“Yes, I do.

“Okay. Did you have a good relationship with the Department of Children & Family Services at that time?

“Yes, I did.”

So she confirms Gavin. How old could Gavin have been? He was like a little kid. These kids are being raised to make allegations.

Now, I’m not saying that a kid can’t make a true allegation. But put it all together. Look what’s going on. Allegations come easily and quickly to authorities.

All right. Mr. Zonen talked about Janet’s conversations with Frank Tyson:

“Q. You say here, ‘I know we’re family, Frank. Me, you, me, my kids are family. You, Marie Nicole, my kids, Baby Rubba are family. Michael, Marie Nicole, Frank Cascio, you, me, are family, and my parents. That’s all I got. So that’s why when these German people,’ and then it’s inaudible. Do you see that?

“That’s correct.”

Now, the point I’m making is this: They had decided Michael is their family. And Prosecutor Zonen said to you yesterday, there was a year period where there was no contact between Gavin and Michael, and that’s baloney. There were cards going everywhere. Every member of the family is sending cards calling him “Daddy.” “We love you. We’re family.”

They do this with everybody. They did it with Chris Tucker. “You’re our brother. We’re your family.” This is one of their MOs. And before Janet really starts telling you about her poverty, she tells you you’re her family.

Now, Mr. Sneddon, in his opening statement, tried to neutralize that by saying this is an overly affectionate family.

They’re affectionate all right.

“Now, this conversation is taking place after you say you escaped from Neverland with Jesus, true?

“Correct.

“You are still calling Michael your family, correct?

“That’s correct.

If she had to escape false imprisonment at Neverland, and if Michael is the leader of this big scheme to abduct and kidnap, why is she still calling him family?

What is her goal?

Her goal is to be with Michael. And all the legal stuff, and all the talk with the police, all of it follows her conclusion, “We’re out. We’re not going to be part of his family anymore.”

“How many times did you escape from Neverland, Miss Arvizo? 12972

“With Jesus, with Chris, and then the last time, and that’s the best I can remember.”

Three escapes from Neverland. What does that sound like to you?

And they always go back. And in the end, they go home.

“In the J.C. Penney case, you waited till after a criminal investigation was over to file your civil claims, true?

Doesn’t want to answer it.

She says, “I want an apology.”

“Q. You wanted over 100,000, didn’t you?

“A. I didn’t get over 100,000.

“Q. You got 152,000 in the settlement, Miss Arvizo, didn’t you?

“A. In my hand? I did not get 150,000.”

Now, look at these answers.

“The Witness: In my hand I received only $32,000. That’s it. In my hand. And that’s my best approximation.

“Miss Arvizo, what did Gavin get in his hand from that settlement?

“A. I don’t remember, because it’s been put away where it’s to be untouched by me.

“What did Star get in his hand in that settlement?

Still nothing.

"I don't know, because it's -- it's something that's untouched by me. It's for them."

Do you think she really doesn't know the amounts? She's under oath in this courtroom making these statements.

"Q. The total was over 152,000 that your family was given in a settlement, true?

"That you have to ask my civil attorneys.

And I think this statement may be correct.

"Q. During the time you had your deposition taken in the J.C. Penney lawsuit --

"Yes.

"-- did you consider David to be an honest person?

"No.

"Do you remember testifying under oath in the J.C. Penney lawsuit that David is extremely honest, he's too honest?

"A. If that's on there, then that's correct. Whatever is on the deposition is correct.

"Q. How many lies under oath do you think you told in your depositions in the J.C. Penney case?"

She was deposed twice.

"Like I said, I tried -- after David was arrested, I went to the Rothstein office, and I pointed out to them prior to a settlement agreement that I would like to correct the statements that were inaccurate, because finally David was arrested. Finally we and my children could speak. And Rothstein, including with Mary Holzer, said, 'Don't worry. We'll take care of it.' And they didn't, so I considered their firm liars."

She's always blaming someone else.

"The lawyers are liars. The lawyers made me do it."

Has she turned over the money? Has she gone to J.C. Penney or Tower Records and said, "What we did was wrong. We lied under oath. We collected money that we are not entitled to. My injuries were fake. I had Gavin lie under oath. I had Star lie under oath. David lied under oath”? No.

Do you remember in the rebuttal video they talk about gang signs, and she’s acting very spontaneously and she’s laughing? And it’s not a rehearsed, memorized type of response. It’s spontaneous, and she’s having fun.

“Q. So when you said about Gavin he was doing gang signs, that was what he was doing, he’s -- he showed out to his friends on the west side, was that all scripted?

“Everything. Everything was scripted.”

Now, you’ve seen that video four times. Was everything memorized, rehearsed, to the word? Was she ever spontaneous? Did she ever seem to be enjoying herself? Did she seem like she liked being on camera? Remember she looked at it, and she said, “Oh, my God, we’re on camera,” and she had a big grin on her face?

And now it’s part of some evil plot by Michael Jackson. And yet everything they said, they had said before, particularly to Brad Miller, when she says she was talking honestly about Michael Jackson.

Everybody’s a liar but Janet Arvizo. Have you noticed that? The social workers are liars. The lawyers are liars. Everybody’s a liar but her.

“Did you ever ask Azja Pryor for the keys to Chris Tucker’s car?

“No.

“To your knowledge, did Davellin ever do that?

“No.

“Do you recall ever being in a call with Davellin where you and Davellin asked Azja Pryor for the keys to Chris Tucker’s automobile?

“No.”

Now Azja’s a liar.

“Do you recall discussing going to Brazil with Azja Pryor?

“Like I had told you, remember those conversations that I would have and try to slip something in? So at the end of the -- all of these people could put this puzzle together as to where me and my children were finally at.

“Do you recall telling Azja Pryor that you were excited to go to Brazil?

“No.

“Do you recall inviting Azja Pryor to go to Carnivale in Brazil with you?

“No.

Who do you trust based on what you saw on this witness stand? Janet Arvizo or Azja Pryor?

“Did you ever tell Azja Pryor that your family was being held against their will?

She says, “Yes.”

“When was this?

“I think -- I think it was during the hotel period. That’s the best I can remember. I -- I tried to reach different people.”

Azja Pryor told you that she never said anything like that. She wanted to go to Brazil; that she invited Azja to go to Carnivale and that she was excited. And Azja was as honest as you can be.

“And you specifically remember telling her that you were being held against your will?

“Yes.

“Do you remember ever asking her to call the police?

“No, that was another thing I slipped in. And I was always hoping that these people would call themselves. This way the call didn’t come from me.”

What is that supposed to mean?

She’s staying at Jay Jackson’s. She’s in hotels. She’s in shopping centers. You can call 9-1-1 at Neverland. She has a million different places she can get a phone and call 9-1-1 if a crime was being committed against she and her children.

The dentist’s office, the salon, you name it.

Nothing.

“Q. Do you remember telling Azja Pryor that you had learned that Michael Jackson was not going on the Brazil trip?

“A. No.

“Do you remember ever telling Azja Pryor that once you learned Michael Jackson was not going on the Brazil trip, you didn’t want to go?

“No.

“It’s your testimony you never discussed the Brazil trip at any time with Azja?

“I’m -- like I said to different people in the midst of the conversation, I tried to slip something in as to what was happening.

“Do you recall complaining to Azja Pryor that Michael Jackson was making money on the Maury Povich show and your family was getting nothing?

“Never.

“Do you recall commenting to Miss Pryor that a college fund was being set up for Gavin by Michael Jackson?

“No.

“Do you remember telling Azja Pryor, ‘What good will a college fund do for my son? He may not be alive in ten years’? Do you remember saying that?

“No. All of that --

“And did you ever discuss the rebuttal video with Azja Pryor?

“No.”

All of that directly contradicted by Azja Pryor, who, I repeat, was a very honest witness. Are you going to believe Janet or are you going to believe Azja? I think I know who you’re going to believe when you put all this stuff together, ladies and gentlemen.

She is a complete liar and fabricator. She is a con artist. She’s conned people for years.

This is a great one:

“Miss Arvizo, did you ever tell anyone that you were living in a stable with hay and horses in Bakersfield?

“No.
“Ever say anything to that effect to anyone?

“No.
“Did you ever hear or learn that you were quoted as saying that?
“Yeah, I came to find out a lot of things.
“When did you find out that you were quoted as saying that you and your family were so poor you were living in a stable with hay in Bakersfield?
“Just recently. I’ve never lived in Bakersfield.”

Did somebody make that up? Remember, she said she was homeless to get free lessons at the dance school for her kids. She’ll say anything. Absolutely anything.

“You claim you first learned about any alleged molestation in September of 2003, correct?
“A. I don’t understand what he’s saying, but I was becoming aware of things through Gavin and Star little by little.
“Q. You claim that you learned about any alleged molestation in September of 2003 from Prosecutor Sneddon, Sheriff Klapakis and Sheriff Robel, right?
“Yes.”

Then my question to you is, why did they go to Larry Feldman? Why?

Moving along:

“Okay. Did you learn at some point about some fund-raisers that went on at The Laugh Factory for the benefit of Gavin?
“A. I came to find out everything afterwards.
“Q. Did you know those fund-raisers were going on when they actually happened?

“A. I don’t think so. We’re talking five years ago.”

Do you really think, based on everything you know about Janet Arvizo, that she didn’t know fund-raisers were going on?

This is under oath in front of you. Put it all together.

“Q. So you’re not sure whether you knew they were even going when they happened, right?

“No, I would find out afterwards.

“Now, were you in touch with Jamie Masada at this point in time?

“Just a little bit.”

They’re trying to raise money for her son’s illness. They’re going everywhere they can to raise money. Do you think she doesn’t know?

“Q. Were you ever standing in the background during a phone call that Gavin made to Jay Leno?

“A. No.

“Have you ever spoken to Jay Leno?

“I’ve never spoken to Jay Leno.

“Were you aware of Gavin making any attempt to contact celebrities by phone?

“No.”

Do you believe that for a second?

Okay. Ladies and gentlemen, it only takes one lie under oath to throw this case out of court by you. Just one.

You can’t count the number of lies under oath by all of the Arvizo witnesses. You can’t count them. They lie directly. They lie to your face. They lie under oath. They exaggerate. They give run-around answers to try to avoid the question. How many does it take to let you know this case is a fraud?

They are trying to take advantage of Michael Jackson. They are trying to profit from Michael Jackson. They think they’ve pulled it off. They’re just waiting for one thing, and that is your verdict.

At this point, I’d like to talk to you a little bit about some jury instructions, some of the instructions that were read to you yesterday.

Now, we’ve talked about reasonable doubt. You’ve heard me mention that a lot. And as I have been saying throughout my closing argument, if you have a reasonable doubt about the Arvizos, the case is over, because the whole case hinges on them. They have come together. They have compared notes. They have made up stories. They’ve lied under oath, like they’ve done for years, and they’ve been caught at it. You have caught them at it.

The instruction reads as follows:

“A defendant in a criminal action is presumed to be innocent until the contrary is proved. And in a case of reasonable doubt whether his guilt is satisfactorily shown, he is entitled to a verdict of not guilty. This presumption places upon the People the burden of proving him guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.”

Why the standard of proof called “reasonable doubt”? Why?

Many legal systems around the world don’t have it. Many legal systems around the world don’t use juries. They use judges. One, two, three, or more. But our country has a philosophy, and that is we cannot convict people who are innocent. We cannot run the risk, because what happens to them is so harmful, so brutal, so devastating.

And what they’re trying to do to Michael Jackson is so harmful, so brutal, so potentially devastating to him, that we have a very high standard. It’s higher than you find in civil cases where you have disputes over money or over property.

If you have any reasonable doubt about this case, about the testimony, about the double-talk, the lies, about their past, about their motives, it’s over. You must acquit Michael Jackson to follow the law. It’s that strict.

And you know something? Our system still isn’t perfect. You still have examples where, years later, DNA exonerates people who were convicted.

They've added up like 130 people the last ten years who were actually convicted, by juries who meant well, wrongfully, because DNA exonerated them.

But nevertheless, we have to have a system.

It's the best system in the world. It can't be perfect, because human beings aren't perfect. But it's the best system in the world.

And ladies and gentlemen, I'm begging you to honor that principle. Honor that principle of proof beyond a reasonable doubt. He must be acquitted under that standard, with all the problems and falsehoods and issues that I have addressed.

They can't overcome them. They can exaggerate. They can dirty up Michael's background. They can fling dirt everywhere. They can expose the fact that he's a human being who has had his problems. They can do whatever they want. But they can't prove this case beyond a reasonable doubt, and they never should have brought it to begin with once they learned who the Arvizos were.

These are what we call burdens of proof in our legal system.

In a civil case, which is a dispute over money or property, if one side proves by a preponderance of the evidence, that's the standard, that they should prevail, and it's often described in very simple terms. If you have a scale of justice and one side is stronger, is heavier, that side wins. It's called a mere preponderance of evidence.

That's enough to bankrupt somebody. That's enough to take away their business. That's enough to leave them penniless. But it's not enough to convict of a crime.

We have a higher standard called clear and convincing evidence.

I'll give you an example: In some custody disputes, you can take a child away from a parent if you prove, by clear and convincing evidence, that that parent should not have custody, that they have not met the standards our legal system requires for parenting.

Clear and convincing evidence alone is not enough to convict in our system.

And let me ask you this: Do you think you’ve seen clear and convincing evidence that the Arvizos are truthful? Are believable? Are honest? Are honorable? Don’t have financial motives in this case? Are to be believed and trusted?

No. They can’t even meet that standard, let alone the highest in our legal system, which is beyond a reasonable doubt. They’re not even close. The case shouldn’t have been brought.

This is just an illustrative aid to further explain reasonable doubt to you and what a high standard it is. If you think somebody may be guilty, it’s not enough. If you think perhaps they’re guilty, it’s not enough. If you suspect they might be guilty, it’s not enough. Possibly guilty is not enough. Probably guilty, not enough. Guilty likely, not enough. Guilt highly likely, not enough. It’s got to be guilty beyond any reasonable doubt.

And ladies and gentlemen, when you get in the jury room, ask yourselves, “Do we have any reasonable doubts about this family and this case?” Any. All it takes is one.

The prosecutor has talked to you about circumstantial evidence, okay? There’s what is called direct evidence, someone actually watches something. And there’s circumstantial evidence, where you’re to put the circumstances together and decide what you can infer from the circumstances.

Of course, I’m coming to you and saying the same thing. Look at the circumstances of the Arvizos and their past history and their lies and their motives, and I’m saying put those circumstances together to find a reasonable doubt in this case.

So what does the instruction say? “A finding of guilt as to any crime may not be based on circumstantial evidence unless the proved circumstances are not only, one, consistent with the theory that the defendant is guilty of the crime, but, two, cannot be reconciled with any other rational conclusion.”

Can any of you imagine, within reason, the Arvizos doing what I’ve told you they’re trying to do here? Does it seem rational to you? Does it seem realistic? Is it plausible? Is it likely?

Of course it is.

Would it be rational to assume, based on all you’ve heard, that this is a scam by them, and that they are, in fact, con artists, actors and liars?

The answer is yes. And if you agree with what I just told you, out the door.

“If the circumstantial evidence as to any particular count permits two reasonable interpretations, one of which points to the defendant’s guilt and the other to his innocence, you must adopt that interpretation that points to the defendant’s innocence and reject that interpretation that points to his guilt.”

This all works in tandem with the proof beyond a reasonable doubt standard. It all works in tandem with the proof beyond a reasonable doubt objective of our system that we protect freedom and liberty and reputation more than we protect money, more than we protect property. It’s a strict system of values built into the system, and you must, under this legal standard, throw this case where it belongs: Out the door.

Now, you were instructed that these alleged crimes by Michael Jackson require that they prove what is called specific intent. In plain language, that he specifically intended to commit certain crimes. I’m going to show you some conspiracy instructions where he has to specifically intend, and they must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that he specifically intended, one, to enter into a conspiracy agreement, and, two, to commit false imprisonment, child abduction or extortion on the Arvizos. Okay? So that’s what this idea of specific intent essentially means.

This is a similar instruction to the ones you just saw: “You may not find the defendant guilty of the crimes charged unless the proved circumstances are not only, one, consistent with the theory that the defendant had the required specific intent or mental state, but, two, cannot be reconciled with any other rational conclusion.”

It’s a protective mechanism to protect our freedom and our liberty and our reputation from false claims.

You’ve been instructed by Judge Melville.

You must follow this to the T. You cannot run roughshod over these instructions. You cannot treat them lightly. If you have another rational explanation for what these people are doing based on their past and their behavior, it’s out, all of it.

Michael Jackson goes home - where he belongs. Not here.

“Evidence as to any specific intent or mental state, if it permits two reasonable interpretations, one of which points to the existence of a specific intent or mental state and the other to its absence, you must adopt that interpretation which points to its absence.”

And as I said to you yesterday, show me any evidence anywhere that Michael Jackson wanted to be in a conspiracy with other alleged felons, none of whom have been charged. None. With all they tell you about Schaffel, Konitzer, Dieter, Geragos, whatever it is, have any of them been charged with anything? Even a misdemeanor? If not, why did they bring this case against him? Why? Where is the justice? Where is the fairness? Where is it?

With these instructions that you’re bound to follow, with the instruction that you have another rational explanation, another rational conclusion as to why someone acted a certain way that goes against the concept of guilt, the concept of convicting someone of a crime, with these instructions, which they know about - they know about them - why did they bring this case against Michael Jackson? Because he’s a mega celebrity, and they hope they can get away with it. They only have one obstacle left: You. They’re hoping you won’t follow these instructions, you won’t understand these instructions, they won’t have any meaning in the jury room, you just won’t get it. I don’t know what they’re thinking.

How, with these instructions on the table, in your hands -- you’ve already gotten packets of them. How, if you look at these carefully and look at this evidence, can you convict Michael Jackson of anything?

Ladies and gentlemen, you can’t. You just can’t. The witnesses are preposterous. The perjury is everywhere. The claims are preposterous. None of it works. The only thing they have left is throwing dirt all over the place to see if something sticks.

Girlie magazines. He’s had problems in his personal life. He’s been immature, and naive, childlike. But remember, their basic claims are that he’s akin to a monster, that he would take a cancer-stricken child and look at that person as a target and ply him with alcohol so he can molest him.

From what you’ve seen about Michael Jackson in this trial, does that make sense? If you look deep into your heart, do you think it’s even remotely possible that Michael Jackson is constructed that way, is evil in that particular way? Has no conscience? Has no feeling for children? Has no idealism? Isn’t childlike? He’s really just -- it’s all -- Neverland’s a ruse for criminal activity? Does what you’ve seen in this trial reflect that? Is it even possible?

It’s not. It really is not.

And no matter what Mr. Zonen throws around the courtroom, you know what I’m saying is true. And I’m sure it will be a real topic of discussion in the jury room. What is Neverland? Why the music? Why the Disney-like environment? Why the animals? Why do children come from the inner city? Why do sick children come by bus? What goes on? What are his goals? What did he want to accomplish? Is it all just a lure for criminal conduct, a veneer, a big fantasy to lure people in because he’s a monster?

No. Not even close.

Might be a good time to stop, Your Honor.

Is that all right?

THE COURT: All right. We’ll a break.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

Ladies and gentlemen, I have two more instructions to show you. I can’t show you every one, they’re pretty voluminous, but I’d like you to just give careful consideration to these particular instructions, particularly this “Witness Willfully False” instruction:

It says, “A witness who is willfully false in one material part of his or her testimony is to be distrusted in others. You may reject the whole testimony of a witness who willfully has testified falsely as to a material point unless, from all the evidence, you believe the probability of truth favors his or her testimony in other particulars.”

And when you go into the jury room and talk about the Arvizos, please give careful consideration to this instruction.

This is the last one I’m going to point out:

It says, “Association alone does not prove membership in a conspiracy. Evidence that a person was in the company of, or associated with, one or more other persons alleged or proved to have been members of a conspiracy is not, in itself, sufficient to prove that person was a member of the alleged conspiracy.”

So when the prosecutor gets up and tries to tell you that somehow knowing Marc Schaffel or knowing Konitzer or Dieter is proof that Michael Jackson engineered -- remember, they’re saying he engineered a criminal conspiracy as a response to the Bashir documentary. If they try and suggest that through documents showing people are in business together, or associated together, or might be seen together, that's not proof.

They have to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Michael Jackson, one, specifically intended to form an agreement to conspire, and, two, wanted to falsely prison, abduct kids, or commit extortion.

And it's nonsense.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, the prosecution claims that Mr. Jackson had a response to the Bashir documentary, and the response was to commit crimes.

And the prosecutor wants you to think that after February 20th, through all those interviews, that somehow molestation began. And now I want to show you what was available at the time.

MR. SANGER: "Input 4," please, Your Honor.

(Whereupon, portions of DVDs, People's Exhibit 2 and Defendant's Exhibits 5000-A, B and C, were played for the Court and jury.)

MR. MESEREAU: Ladies and gentlemen, this has been a nightmare for Mr. Jackson. He has been lax with his money. He has let the wrong people sometimes associate around him. He was naive to allow the Arvizos anywhere near him. But under the law and the facts in this courtroom, you must return a verdict of not guilty on all counts. It's the only right verdict.

Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Mesereau.

Mr. Zonen, did you need a couple of minutes to set up?

MR. ZONEN: Just a minute, Your Honor.

Yes, please.

Leslie? I'm going to use that one.

THE BAILIFF: I don't need a minute.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, an hour and 14 minutes?

THE CLERK: 1/14.

MR. ZONEN: 1/14, thank you.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Can we go back to “Input 1,” Your Honor?

MR. ZONEN: Ladies and gentlemen, good morning.

This responding argument is going to be in response to the argument delivered by Mr. Mesereau over the last four hours of court time and it will be limited to those issues that he has presented.

I would like to begin by talking to you about a statement that had been projected up on the board by Mr. Mesereau yesterday, and that statement that had been projected up on the board referred to this comment: He said, “Prosecutor” -- he was quoting a prosecutor. He said, “A prosecutor said that it was like a band-aid for a bad case.” What he was referring to, of course, was the propensity evidence that had been presented by the prosecution. The propensity evidence was the evidence of all of the witnesses who testified to the 1993 investigation. That, of course, included the testimony of June Chandler, and Jason Francia, and Jason Francia’s mother, and the other people who had previously been employed at Neverland.

That statement -- prosecutor said, “like a band-aid for a bad case.”

Let me suggest that that probably was not said. Let me suggest that that’s not the first time that Mr. Mesereau has referred to a prosecutor who has made a quote improperly.

Let me remind you of the time that Mr. -- that Mr. Mesereau was cross-examining Dr. Katz and kept referring to a statement from a prosecutor in a book that Mr. Katz had written, until we finally asked to see the book and discovered that the real word was “lawyer.”

Now, that statement would make more sense if it was in fact “lawyer,” “A lawyer said that this is like a band-aid for a bad case,” because no prosecutor will ever stand up here and tell you that giving too much information to a jury is bad. In fact, in this particular case, it’s highly appropriate. The information about the use of propensity evidence is what gives you a clear and concise understanding about the type of people who commit these -- about the type of people who commit these types of crimes.

Let me read something to you: “By their very nature, sex crimes are usually committed in seclusion, without third-party witnesses or substantial corroborating evidence. The need for this evidence is critical, given the serious and secretive nature of sex crimes, and the often resulting credibility contest at trial. The willingness to commit sexual offenses is not common to most individuals, thus, evidence of any prior sexual offense is particularly probative and necessary for determining the credibility of the witness.”

What I’ve been quoting to you is the legislative text that accompanied the enactment of that statute that allows us to be able to bring in evidence of prior sexual misconduct by the defendant charged with a child molestation. Why? Because these types of crimes take place in private. They don’t take place in public.

And in this particular case, we’re talking about the privacy of literally a fortress, behind multiple locked doors, and multiple alarm systems, where the defendant, after much effort, after much seduction, after much grooming, has the advantage of having a child in his room, and not the first one, in this case for long periods of time, subject to the intimacy that he dictates. And that’s why it’s so important so that a jury is not left with the belief, why, at age 45, does this man suddenly act out with a 13-year-old child? And when you see the total picture, you realize it was anything but suddenly acting out with a 13-year-old child.

Now, look at the evidence that was presented even by the defense in the course of this case.

Think about the testimony of Mr. Barnes, Brett Barnes, who, while on the witness stand, was extraordinarily evasive on the question of, “Tell me how much time you actually spent with Michael Jackson. Was it one night? Was it two nights? Was it a week?”

And his answer was, “I, you know, really don’t recall. I can’t recall when it was. Some nights it was here; some nights it was there. I was” -- he just did not answer the question.

And when his mother was on the witness stand, she wouldn’t answer that question either. “Sometimes he stayed with us. Sometimes we were traveling. Sometimes he would be with Mr. Jackson.” And again, very evasive in terms of committing to any kind of detail about Brett Barnes’ relationship with Michael Jackson.

Not until his sister was on the witness stand, and not until cross-examination by Mr. Auchincloss, when all of a sudden he started asking her, in all her jubilance -- I mean, she was an excited witness up there, very happy, filled with glee and a big smile, and very happy to be here on behalf of Mr. Jackson, until Mr. Auchincloss started asking questions, “Tell us how long we’re talking about. What period of time exactly was it that your brother was in the accompaniment of Mr. Jackson and specifically in his room.”

And suddenly it came out. She says, “A year.” She said it in terms of, “Well, there was a six-month tour, and another six-month tour.” It was the entirety of those two combined tours, which meant over one year.

And it was like a ton of bricks landed in the middle of the floor. All of a sudden, everybody got it. All of a sudden everybody is sitting and thinking, one year, one continuous year this child, who at the time was either 11 to 12, or 12 to 13 years old, was sleeping in Mr. Jackson’s bedroom continuously.

This man has never had adult companionship to that extent that any of us have heard of at any stage during the testimony in this case. One consecutive year. This man went to bed every night with a 12-year-old boy the entire time. As they traveled from one European capital to another, as they traveled from one South American capital to another, as they ventured even into Africa.

And it was confirmed by a second witness called by the defense, when James -- James Van Norman, the security chief at that time, was called as a witness and testified entirely on direct examination without any reference whatsoever to Brett Barnes.

And then on cross-examination by Mr. Sneddon was asked exactly the same question. And he also acknowledged exactly the same thing.

That witness had the nerve to sit on the witness stand and tell you that nothing improper happened at Neverland while he was head of security there. And then on cross-examination acknowledged to you that at the end of each day, this child, maybe 12 years old, went into Mr. Jackson’s hotel room, each hotel room throughout Europe and South America, went into his bedroom and stayed there. He was his constant and continuous companion for the better part of 12 months.

That is not a friendship. That’s a relationship.

Mr. Jackson loved that child not as one loves a child, but as one loves a companion, an adult, a sexual relationship. It’s the only explanation for that. In your entire lifetime, you have never heard of another middle-aged man doing that with a child. In your entire lifetime you never will hear of another middle-aged man doing that with a child. You would be outraged if you were to find out that there was somebody who lived in your neighborhood who was taking young boys into his bedroom amidst a sea of pornography and alcohol. You’d be on the phone with the police in a second.

And yet in this case, we’re expected to say that that is normal. It is loving, it is kind, it is nurturing, and it is nonsexual.

Why is that? How exactly was he nonsexual with this child in his bed for over a year? Over a year. Are we expected to believe that he’s simply nonsexual?

When we look at the collection of materials that he has in his house, in his own home, and the distinction between the thousands of books that Mr. Mesereau was talking about is the fact that -- which was a million books in his opening statement. It’s now down to thousands of books, and, it’s probably substantially less than that, and frankly, probably came with the house. Most of the books depicted in the video that he showed you looked like they’ve never been opened.

But as to those books, they’re in a library.

As to the books that we seized, they’re in his bedroom. And that included the entire collection of homoerotic material, some of which was so extreme in its nature we simply couldn’t open that book in this courtroom.

But what, then, do we say about him? How do you explain that? How do you explain child after child after child, Mr. Robson for an extended period of time as a child, was in his bed going back to age seven. Seven.

Think about your children when they were seven years old, what they looked like and how big they were. Eight years old.

He was in his bedroom. Not just bedroom, but in his bed.

Macaulay Culkin, he flew across the country to spend a week with Macaulay Culkin alone.

Where is the adult companionship in this case? Where has he ever had that kind of trip to be with an adult, a special relationship? No words about that at all in the course of this trial.

Nothing.

It is because we have heard that testimony that we have an understanding of Michael Jackson that we never would have had had that testimony not been presented to you in the first place.

So let me suggest to you that the testimony of Brett Barnes, particularly his sister, Wade Robson, Robson, Macaulay Culkin, who spent an entire vacation with Michael Jackson, who invited himself so he could be there with an 11-year-old boy. And then June Chandler.

June Chandler, who was described by -- in Mr. Mesereau’s closing argument as a gold digger, and of course was a quote from Joy Robson. Joy Robson, who received over $20,000 from Mr. Jackson, a car, immigration to the United States, and a job, as well as an apartment, describes her, June Chandler, as a gold digger.

June Chandler said in her testimony, about an event that took place in New York, that Mr. Jackson was so upset and so angry during the course of their being in New York, because she was protesting the fact that Jordie Chandler was spending all of his time with her, a statement that was shared with Joy Robson in her deposition ten years ago in the -- in the Jordie Chandler lawsuit - he simply grabs up the time of whichever child he is with - he broke a lamp. He tried to get Lily to say that it was broken by accident. He was crying. He was upset. He was pleading with her to allow him to have access to her son, Jordie Chandler.

He slept with Jordie Chandler for well over a month, closer to two, and particularly -- and this was in his own home, in his own bedroom, in his own room, between the times that he would come from school and go to school during that period of time.

What kind of answer is there to that? How do you possibly come to grasp with that kind of information except to conclude that they had a relationship? He was in love with that child. In love with that child the way that an adult would fall in love with another person, and it wasn’t the only child.

And it was happening with Gavin during this period of time. Gavin went right into it. It began with long phone calls, long periods of conversations in the middle of the night. They'd go for hours.

It began with him coming to Neverland. It was the same kind of run-around-and-do-anything-you-want on Neverland and end up in his room from the very beginning.

Understand something about Mr. Jackson and his relationship with his family and his relationship with Gavin Arvizo.

On the 2nd of March, while he was there, on the 2nd of March while he was in Florida with his family, he came back to Santa Barbara, leaving the family behind. And who happened to be back at Neverland on the 2nd of March? Was exactly the day that Gavin and his brother and sister and mother returned back to Neverland.

And at that point the boys returned back into his room, and eventually Star left that room.

And during that period of time they stayed there forever, until they finally left at Janet Arvizo's behest on the 12th of March.

Exactly the same kind of relationship that he had with Jordie Chandler. Exactly the same kind of relationship he had with Brett Barnes. It simply didn't go long enough because his mother had the sense and foresight to get them out of there.

A couple issues dealing with the jury instructions.

There was an instruction that was read to you. It was the very, very first instruction that was read to you, and it's one that's probably worth reading again. I'm not going to read it to you, I'm just going to tell you.

It is an instruction that says that you are not to consider sympathy, pity, punishment or consequences of the crime in your deliberations in this case. You cannot consider what will happen, what won't happen, and you can't sit back and say, "I feel sympathy for or against the defendant in this case." You can't be sympathetic on behalf of the victims. You can't be sympathetic on behalf of the defendant. You simply have to judge the evidence dispassionately and impartially.

Counsel has talked repeatedly about the question of why aren’t the co-defendants, the unindicted co-defendants, included in here? There is an instruction that was read to you, you are not to consider that either.

Those are two instructions that Mr. Mesereau violated within the first half hour of his opening -- of his closing argument.

You cannot consider the question of whether others were included or not included, will be included, won’t be included. That is simply not part of your deliberation process. You’re to decide this case singularly. I would think Mr. Mesereau would be happy after four months of trial, over four months of trial, not to have to have dealt with five more lawyers in this courtroom, frankly.

The J.C. Penney litigation that took place, let me suggest -- I’m not going to go over this at length, but let me suggest to you that that was a case that was in no way fraudulent based on the evidence that’s before you and reasonably resolved by everybody.

Janet Arvizo was never in that store. She had nothing to do with that theft. She went out and she came from a different place where she was applying for a job. She saw an altercation involving her husband. She went to his rescue. She got beat up. Not horribly, but got beat up. Had bruises up and down her legs, up and down her arms.

Those photographs were not taken weeks later. Those were taken days later, as black and blue marks do tend to surface days later. Those injuries that she had were reflective of the kinds of restraint that she was subjected to with her being down on the ground and people on top of her legs, people on top of her arms, so that both -- the arms on both sides and legs on both sides were subjected to those kinds of contusions.

She did go to jail. She was there for less than two hours. She did not make a claim of injuries at that time. Those are not the kind of injuries that would surface initially. They're black and blue contusions. They would come up later. She had no interest in staying in jail, as would anybody have any interest in staying in jail. Did not make any claims. Was out of jail in an hour and 45 minutes. And within one hour and six minutes after her husband was released from jail, she went into the clinic.

Now, we're supposed to believe that it was during that period of time that her husband beat her up. That he would beat her up on the front of her legs, the front of her arms, the back of her legs, the back of her arms in that period of time, and then take her to a clinic.

Let me suggest to you that in the history of the world, no batterer has ever beat up his wife and then rushed her to a clinic. That is a one-way ticket to jail. Because the first thing they do is ask what happened and how did it happen. And those injuries were not that bad that he would have been compelled to take her during that time.

Mary Holzer not only said that Janet Arvizo said that that's what happened, but Mary Holzer said that the kids were there, and the kids were injured in like fashion. We know that didn't happen.

Excuse me.

We know that both children stayed at the scene at the time of the arrest of the father, in the presence of the mother, until the grandmother got there, Maria Ventura. When she got there, the father was already in custody and had been taken away. The police were there and had been there for the entire time.

She took the children and took them home.

The kids complained of pain. Star complained of pain to his head, and in fact he had a concussion. Gavin complained of pain to his arm, and in fact he had a fracture in his elbow. They had not had any contact with their father at all. It wasn't until the next day that they went to the hospital by the parents, were taken, and the injuries were diagnosed.

Mr. Mesereau said that Janet Arvizo complained that the cyst that was discovered in Gavin’s (sic) head she credited to the beating that was -- occurred at J.C. Penney’s. No, she never did. She never said that at all.

What she said was it was discovered at that time when they were trying to determine the cause of the headaches that he had. They discovered he had a cyst, benign, benign, and hopefully will remain that way.

There was a lawsuit at that time. There was a deposition that was taken at that time. She did lie in that deposition. About what? She said she was not a victim of violence at home. She was still living with him. What is she going to do? Say otherwise? The kids also were asked that question. Mr. Mesereau is mystified that they would say that they were not coached to lie. No, they weren’t coached to lie. They don’t have to do that. Children in a violent household intuitively know not to discuss that sort of thing. That is just not discussed. There was no lying in that regard.

Yes, it’s true, she said she was not a victim of domestic violence. That’s pretty understandable under the circumstances. She said she had asked the law firm to change it later.

Now, the question of whether or not, given that period of time, could her husband have inflicted those injuries on her, and on the children, who were not even in his presence, does that necessarily mean, then, that there was a fraudulent lawsuit? And the answer is, there was no fraudulent lawsuit, notwithstanding Mary Holzer’s desire to be a witness in this case.

And as evidence of that is the fact that the lawyers that she works for have kept the money that they got, all $85,000 of it. They’ve known about her accusations for some time, and they haven’t seen fit to return that money. Nor has J.C. Penney's seen fit to go after it. So everybody seems to think that this was an entirely reasonable resolution of this case, for being beaten up and for being falsely arrested and falsely charged, until ultimately the charges were dismissed.

She got $32,000. That is not unreasonable. Gavin had a fractured arm, and he got $25,000. It's sitting in a bank account. Star had a concussion. He got $5,000. It's sitting in a bank account for when he turns 18. And the father, David, got $5,000, approximately. I don't know what he did with his, nor do I care. That comes to about $65,000 total. The balance of $85,000 went to the law firm. They've kept it.

The resolution of that case was fair. It was appropriate. The disposition was appropriate.

Lawyers.

There was a lot of discussion about Janet Arvizo going to lawyers and having had many lawyers. She had a lawyer who represented her in J.C. Penney's. She had a lawyer who represented her in the J.C. Penney's case. She had a lawyer who represented her in her divorce and family law matter.

And after she was -- she stayed at Neverland for that period of time and finally got out, she went to see a lawyer by the name of Mr. Dickerman.

She went to see Bill Dickerman after being told by two different people, "You need to go see a lawyer." One of them was Azja Pryor, who testified to that in court during the course of this trial. The other one was Jamie Masada, and he was the one who suggested Bill Dickerman, who was his personal lawyer.

She went to Bill Dickerman. And what did he do? He made demands for the return of all of her property, two and a half months of demands, without being told where the property was and without having any of it returned. And he made demands that the kids be taken off television through Granada Productions. In other words, his pursuit was in two directions, and he at no time filed any kind of a lawsuit against Michael Jackson.

How did he get to -- how did the family get to Larry Feldman, was the question was Mr. Mesereau asked.

Well, the answer to that question is Bill Dickerman took them to Larry Feldman, because he knew that Michael Jackson was involved in all of this, and he was not about to take on Michael Jackson and his minion of lawyers. As you recall, Michael Jackson pays four million dollars a year in legal fees. He has plenty of lawyers.

Bill Dickerman, who was a sole practitioner, was not about to take on Michael Jackson by himself. He knew that Larry Feldman had taken on Michael Jackson in the past, and he went to Larry Feldman. Larry Feldman is senior counsel in a 600-lawyer law firm. Six hundred lawyers is exactly the opposite of Bill Dickerman as a sole practitioner.

Larry Feldman sees this family walk in the door, and he looks at Jordie Chandler -- excuse me, he looks at Gavin Arvizo, who is literally a Jordie Chandler clone, like these other boys, and he takes a look at him, and he immediately sends the family to Stan Katz, Dr. Katz.

Mr. Mesereau described Katz as Larry Feldman’s good friend, Dr. Katz. In fact, the evidence is exactly the opposite. Stan Katz has worked with Mr. Feldman on one other case, and that was the Chandler case and that was ten years earlier. And in his 25-plus years has never worked on any other matter with Larry Feldman, has never been to his home. Feldman’s never been to Katz’s home. They know to say hello to one another when they meet one another in court or in other places. But they certainly are not close friends or even friends at all. They are simply acquaintances and associates in terms of professional associates.

That statement was designed to cast some aspersion upon the both of them that they’re in league together. And in fact, there’s no evidence of either one of those.

Stan Katz interviewed the children, interviewed the mother, interviewed the sister, and decided that this matter needed to be reported to Child Protective Services, and did so. From there, it went to the sheriff’s office in Santa Barbara.

There was no disclosure by Gavin at any time to anybody until he did so to the police, when he sat in an interview. And you watched that interview, and you’re going to watch a portion of it before we leave.

That disclosure did not -- or at any time has Gavin varied in the contents of the description of what happened to him. And the only extent of the variance that Mr. Mesereau was able to talk about is the timing. And now we’re going to talk about the timing a little bit, because I think that is appropriate for you to understand.

The question posed by Mr. Mesereau is, why would he do it then? Why would he begin a molestation just after this child has been interviewed about exactly that? Why would he do it after the publication of this thing on television? Why would he do it after he spends time in this video presentation?

The answer simply is: Because he could.

It’s really not much more complicated than that. Because he has no restraints on his impulses. Because he had been working with this child for some time. Because this child had been in his bed for some time.

And it may not have begun after the video was produced. Gavin testified to you that he had a recollection of two specific events. He believed it happened after the video was produced, and that would mean after the interview with the Department of Child & Family Services simply because they are closely aligned. He went from one to the next. And at some time after that, which would have been on the 20th of February and sometime thereafter, before the time he left.

He also said, and has consistently said, he thought it was closer to the time when he actually left. And that would be consistent, too.

Why would Mr. Jackson do it? Because he could. Because he had this child in his room. Because he had been working with this child for some time. Because this child was in love with him. Because this child would do anything that he wanted him to do. Because this child was already in his bed and already sharing the intimacies of his affection. Because this child already was viewing the pornographic materials that were there. Because this child was already freely drinking. Because Star had started leaving the room and was no longer there at that particular time. And his opportunity was there and the child was ripe.

And Mr. Jackson frankly was completely indifferent to the question of whether or not this was in close proximity to a televised production of one nature or another. In fact, he was more confident because he knew that by virtue of the fact that this child had gone on tape saying nothing had happened, that he was probably pretty safe at exactly that moment.

When did the molestations begin? We don’t know. We don’t know. The best estimate was at some time after the meeting with the Department of Child & Family Services. Certainly could have been before.

Gavin initially said he had been molested five times. By the time he got before the grand jury, which was some number of months later, his testimony was, “I remember two in specific particularly I can give you details of. There may have been more. There probably were more. I just can’t give you the kinds of details. We were drinking a lot during that period of time.” A 13-year-old boy.

Now, Dr. -- Dr. Esplin was quoted yesterday in one of the displays by Mr. Mesereau as saying something to the effect that there are many allegations, false allegations, that are motivated or spurred by profit.

I didn't remember Dr. Esplin saying that.

And I can -- and certainly Dr. Katz did not say that. And Dr. Urquiza did not say that. In fact, both of them said that there was no recollection whatsoever of any event. They just were unfamiliar with any occasion at all involving an adolescent boy who had been molested and that -- or, rather, an adolescent boy making a false accusation of molestation for purposes of financial gain. Neither one of them had any recollection of any case like that at all.

So when I hear or when I see Dr. Esplin being quoted as saying, "Yes, that's a common feature," I went back to his testimony to see exactly what it was.

This is a question by Mr. Sanger: "And would financial gain be a potential motive for -- on the part of the influential adult?"

And his answer was, "Could be."

"Could be."

Suddenly, being told, "Could be," that there could be a financial motive on the part of the influential parent, has translated to multiple accusations of child -- false accusations of child molest motivated by finances. As you can see, his testimony in this regard was nothing akin to what was presented to you yesterday.

None of these doctors who testified, three of them, two for the prosecution, one for the defense, not one of them stood up and told you that this is a common occurrence at all. And in fact, all three of them told you that adolescent boys making accusations of being molested at the hands of an adult male is probably the single most difficult accusation for a child to make in terms of disclosure of molestation. That is the toughest, because no other victim endures the hardships of wondering whether they're going to be tormented at any particular time.

Now, one of the pieces of information that was said to you by Mr. Mesereau in his closing argument was the fact that Gavin had twice been interviewed by Dean Alpert and had not disclosed the molestation to him.

Keep in mind that all of the experts who had testified, including the defense expert, Dr. Esplin, said, “These are very difficult disclosures, and piecemeal disclosures are not unusual and in no way bear on the validity or integrity of the disclosure in any way.”

But let’s look particularly at that statement of not disclosing to Dean Alpert.

Gavin Arvizo was in Dean Alpert’s office because he was acting out. Okay? He was acting out because he was being tormented by other kids in the school, and he was being tormented because they were accusing him of having had some kind of sexual connection with Michael Jackson. He was a 13-year-old boy in middle school. And he was getting in fights because of those accusations. And kids were teasing him about it.

And suddenly he finds himself in a principal’s office or a dean’s office, someone with no ability whatsoever to be able to deal with this kind of situation, who simply says, “Is it true?”

And he says, “No, it’s not true.”

Would any 13-year-old boy that you know say anything other than that under those circumstances?

That, my friends, is not a reflection of his integrity in any way whatsoever. Nor is it a reflection on whether or not his ultimate testimony here is anything but completely truthful.

It’s a 13-year-old boy out there alone, by himself, harboring this horrible secret about what had happened to him, having been outed, effectively, by this nationally televised production, who is now trying to protect himself as best he can. You can’t conclude anything from that at all.

Dr. Katz said, “In addition to all the cases that I’ve seen, I’ve supervised numerous interns and other professionals. I don’t recall seeing any adolescents or preadolescents who are making allegations to profit.”

Mr. Mesereau told you yesterday that he said that Mr. Katz, Dr. Katz, had said to you that he had never seen a false accusation of sexual assault, of child molestation.

In fact, Dr. Katz said nothing of the kind. He said that there are many false accusations when children are very, very young, often pre-verbal, and those accusations are usually in conjunction with a divorce proceeding where one parent wants to keep the child away from the other parent. He says, as children get older, those instances reduce substantially. He says he had some familiarity with teenagers who made false accusations. He said they were all girls attempting to get out of a household situation. In other words, a parent that they did not want to be living with. Those circumstances that he believed to be false.

He said he had no familiarity at all involving an adolescent boy who had made a false accusation. And particularly an adolescent boy who had made a false accusation motivated by profit.

The suggestion that you can tell a 13-year-old boy, “You need to humiliate yourself, you need to stand up and give testimony that’s going to be demeaning, it’s going to be tormenting, you’re going to be in front of a roomful of people, you’re going to be harassed by your friends, you’re going to be tormented by a defense attorney, you’re going to be cross-examined at length, but don’t worry, we will be rich some years down the line,” a 13-year-old boy? Not likely. And not given what we know about Mr. Jackson and what we know about his history.

Excuse me.

Mr. Mesereau said that Gavin Arvizo had told you that he was touched right after the Miami trip.

No, he didn’t. He never said that at all. That is not part of the testimony. And you will not be able to find that in the transcript anyway. He never said that. His statements about when this happened were all fairly consistent in terms of being toward the end of his stay at Neverland, which covered about a five-week period of time.

There was a lot of commentary by Mr. Mesereau about the bad conduct of the children while they were -- not just while they were at Neverland, but also Gavin’s conduct while he was a child at John Burroughs Middle School, and it was documented and there was a lot of evidence and the teacher talked of that. It went on for hours in terms of, you know, “Were you acting out? Were you getting in fights? Were you talking in class? Were you singing in class?”

There’s really not anything that’s all that bad. It showed a child who was disrespectful to a teacher, and a child who was acting out.

Let’s begin this discussion with my saying something about his testimony, what he told you.

Gavin today is an honor student. He’s an honor student at his high school. He plays on the football team. He is a graduate of three years of military cadet training, which is the equivalent of scouting. Three years he’s been doing that.

All of you who have children who have been in scouting, I think you understand the commitment that a child makes to stay in scouting for three years, and the progress that they make as they go along through three years of scouting. And I think that you see, for those of you who have children or who have been in scouting or know children who have been in scouting, the change and the transformation that takes place with a child who stays committed to that kind of a program over that long a period.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. ZONEN: Let me suggest to you that the child that you see testifying here today, or over this trial, who is a child who is an accomplished -- a child who is an honor student, and a child who’s doing entirely --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.
MR. ZONEN: This is not inappropriate. This is in evidence.

MR. MESEREAU: It's not.
MR. ZONEN: Gavin testified to it.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may proceed.
MR. ZONEN: That the testimony, when Gavin told you about his state of affairs today, means a decent and a quality of life, a good child.
What is consistent in his life and what is inconsistent in his life today?
He no longer has David Arvizo in his life, and he no longer has Michael Jackson in his life. And Jay Jackson's in his life. And today he's thriving. So now let's talk about what happened back at Neverland and what was going on even before Neverland.
At Neverland, the accusation as to -- as to Gavin, the accusation as to Gavin, both Gavin and Star, that they were stealing, that they were drinking, that they were misbehaving, that they were cursing, that they were behaving inappropriately with other people, that they were sexually inappropriate, at one point that they were caught masturbating, at one point they were caught in possession of sexually explicit materials, that Star at one point threatened somebody with a knife -- incidentally, both of those people who talked about that incident said it was a joke, that they never took it seriously. They understood it to be a joke.

That Gavin used to like to cook in the -- excuse me, Star used to like to cook in the kitchen. Neither one of them took it seriously.
All of those accusations that were made about the boys, let me also tell you that virtually all of the witnesses who testified to their bad conduct also said that they were quite well-behaved at the beginning, or certainly better behaved, and got worse as time went on. Five weeks. Five weeks of a lack of discipline certainly would explain it.

Before I get into too much of a discussion about this issue, let me say something that would govern -- and, I mean, the whole question of whether or not these allegations are true or not true, let me start with one basic observation:

Any adolescent male, any adolescent boy in America, delivered at Neverland and left to Mr. Jackson's agenda, will eventually do just about every single thing that these two boys have been accused of doing. Doesn't matter how good of a child initially. Doesn't matter how good the family is. It doesn't matter how good the parents are. The most religious, the most conservative, the kindest, the best parents.

You take that child away from his parents, and you subject him to the ordeal that is Neverland, play all day, do anything you want, no discipline, no school, no homework, eat whatever you want, do whatever you want, pornography, and alcohol, stay up all day, up all night, sleep when you want, do what you want, it will not take long before any adolescent boy in America would ultimately end up doing any of those things.

So I begin that comment to you because I want to be able to say, as I sit here and talk about some of these things, that I'm not going to put myself in a situation of saying, "This didn't happen. This did happen. This didn't happen." We don't know. But let me say, just as an observation on the testimony of those witnesses, nobody ever wrote that stuff down. There is not a log anywhere that reflects any of the things that they're accused of doing, including driving an SUV. There is no observation of any single person who came into this court and testified that they ever saw Gavin or Star, these 12- and 13-year-old kids, who are barely five feet tall, if that much, driving a Navigator around this property. And they now say that was the reason for a sign that said, "Don't let them leave the property"?

How about a notation that says, "Don't let them get in the SUV"? Or even better, "Deliver them back to their home in East Los Angeles."

The notion that these kids are misbehaving to that extent, and yet what are they doing about it? Their keeping them there and trying to get them back there is simply inconsistent. It's simply inconsistent, unless the people who work for Michael Jackson were motivated by two things: One, the profit that would go along with having that family there to be able to capitalize on their statements, and their videos, and their image; and, two, that that child was needed in Michael Jackson's bedroom. There is no other explanation for it. Simply not.

Now, some of these witnesses would come into court and testify to stuff, and you'd immediately say, "Who did you talk to about this? Who did you tell?"

I was described as being barbaric, and, gosh, I don't even remember all the language that he called. My cross-examination of Rijo Jackson, I think I was called abusive and barbaric, and one other adjective that was used to describe it, in 15 minutes of cross-examination, which is all I did. I really didn't ask him anything about what occurred in the bedroom. And I pretty much asked him only what occurred in Michael Jackson's room and what he told Michael Jackson.

Virtually all of the witnesses who were asked questions about, "Okay, you saw this thing, you saw graffiti, you saw Star writing graffiti on a wall, what did you do about it? Who did you tell? Where did you note it? Where did you write it down?" None of them ever wrote any of this stuff down, ever.

So let me suggest -- and this is a place where they write everything down and they write it down constantly and all the time. So let me suggest to you that the absence of any kind of documentation of any of these instances should cause you pause to believe that they're probably exaggerated and some of them are probably made up. And probably the most egregious of all of that would have been Rijo's testimony about the boys in a bed under the blankets and what he said was masturbation.

Now, you wonder how he would know that, necessarily, if they're under the blankets. And you might wonder exactly why a 12-year-old and a 13-year-old brother would be doing such a thing in the presence of each other. And you would wonder why the two of them would do such a thing as a door would open and somebody would walk into the room and they would have no idea who that somebody would be, but they would continue doing that.

That is simply not consistent with common sense. That's not consistent with your understanding as to how adolescent boys function.

If it is true, then it's evidence of two boys who have been significantly sexualized. And that would be consistent with their testimony as to what took place in Michael Jackson's bedroom. In other words, his constant talking with them about masturbation, and his constant talking about -- with them about adult sexuality, and his constant introduction to them of sexually explicit material.

If you believe Rijo Jackson's testimony is truthful and accurate in its entirety, then you have to ask yourself, "Why are these kids doing that?"

What is going on at Neverland? If you believe the testimony about Star walking around with explicit magazines, then you have to ask yourself, "Why does this child feel so uninhibited that he can do that?" Because it's certainly not the child that you saw on the witness stand.

And then the question of where did he get it? He did not -- if it's true that he had such a magazine, he did not get it from home.

He would not have said to his mother, as they were preparing to go back to Neverland from one of their trips at home, "Hold on a second while I get my copy of Hustler." That's not what a 12-year-old would say. And it's not what a 12-year-old would do. And he would not have such a thing in his back pocket as he walks around Neverland. And it wouldn’t be necessary to do so, because there was plenty of that material in Michael Jackson’s bedroom and they had the run of that bedroom.

So you have to sit back and say, how much of this testimony is exaggeration? How much of it is just plain false? And how much of it is true.

And if it’s true, why is it true? Why are these boys behaving in such a fashion? And why are so many of the witnesses from Neverland saying all of the boys eventually start misbehaving? Why is that true as well?

Counsel made a number of remarks about Janet Arvizo hounding celebrities for money. Calling them constantly. Hounding them for money. Causing the children to hound them for money.

Now, my answer to that is, “Who?” I mean, we dealt with all of the celebrities who were called in this particular case. None of them testified to that.

And even the testimony of Jay Leno is entirely inconsistent with Mr. Mesereau’s description of Jay Leno’s testimony. At the beginning of this case, in his opening statement, Mr. Mesereau said that Janet was in the background telling Gavin what to say on the phone in the conversation with Mr. Leno.

In his closing argument, his testimony was Janet Arvizo was in the background telling Gavin what to say in his conversation with Jay Leno. The problem was that’s not what Jay Leno said. And his testimony was very different.

“Did you ever get any messages from anyone who claimed to be Gavin’s mother?

“No.”

“And then I spoke to someone else, and then I believe I spoke to the mother, who seemed very pleased that I called.

“Do you recall what the mother said to you?

"A. No. Very general. 'Thank you very much,'" quote, end quote.

And that's the extent of it. There was never any testimony of Jay Leno whatsoever about a mother in the background trying to get her child to say things to a comedian who would then give them money. And furthermore, none of these comedians did give them money.

Now, the one exception is Chris Tucker, who had a close relationship with this family, although he denies it today. He simply has taken sides in this lawsuit. That's all. But before that, he took these kids up to Oakland to go to a Raiders game, he took these kids to the Lakers -- Staples Center to see a Lakers game. They had Gavin's name up on the wall at some time during the half time. Excuse me. He was sick at that time.

He took them to a wedding that was in Pasadena. Today he denies that he knows anything about how they got there. That's simply not credible. That's simply not credible. That whole business about not knowing how they got to a wedding, that he didn't invite them there, and that they just somehow showed up on their own. That these kids are going to show up at a wedding in Pasadena without even knowing where it is, is really just not credible.

But when you look at this collection of witnesses who have testified, I mean, whether it was Jamie Masada, or whether it was Louise Palanker, whether it was Jay Leno, whether it was Fritz Coleman, whether it was George Lopez -- George Lopez' testimony about Gavin was that he was a great kid. Said, "A lot like me when I was that age." And none of them say they were ever asked for money by Janet Arvizo. None of them say they ever gave money to Janet Arvizo. None of them do that. And then he comes back in his closing argument and he says, "Constantly calling celebrities, constantly hounding them for money."

Well, when you go back in your deliberations, sit back and ask yourself, okay, which one? Which one was actually called by me? Which one was actually called by Janet Arvizo and hounded for money?

That statement about Davellin's testimony on the witness stand about what her father did to her when she was a toddler, she has no recollection of it. That statement was pretty remarkable when she testified to it in court.

And you saw her reaction to it. And you saw her start crying during the course of that. She came to find out that her father had molested her when she was very small. Her father was in the room at the time, and it came out in the course of an argument between her parents. Her father acknowledged that it happened.

Now, are we supposed to believe today that it didn't happen? What testimony is there today that it didn't happen? And the answer? None. The answer is none. Nobody came in. They certainly could have called David Arvizo to say it didn't happen. They didn't do that.

Alcohol. There was testimony by both of the boys that they drank with Michael Jackson. There was a drinking game with Michael Jackson. It was in the presence of two witnesses. In the presence of Simone and in the presence of Aldo, the younger sister and younger brother of Frank Cascio. They weren't called to say it didn't happen. And both of these boys knew certainly at the time that they gave this information to law enforcement that this is information that could be contradicted by these three witnesses, who certainly have no loyalty to them, and have quite a loyalty to their older brother Frank, who is one of Michael Jackson's closest friends again.

Why would they include the presence of witnesses who would be able to say that it didn't happen? And more significantly, why didn't they come to court to say it didn't happen? That information is not contested.

DNA evidence.

Let me talk to you a little bit about that, because you need to understand the extent to which this really is a red herring in this case.

He says we didn’t look for hairs or fibers.

Hairs or fibers would reveal nothing.

Fibers, they talk about. They call that trace evidence. And what they mean is it traces back to a particular source. Fibers would be things like unusual fiber from clothing found at a location which would tend to suggest that that person had been at that location, if it’s unusual fiber from clothing.

We know these boys were inside that house. Everybody says they were inside that house. Fibers would lend no relevance to this case whatsoever.

Not only do we know they were inside this house, but they can describe every foot of his residence. They spent the better part of five weeks at that residence.

Hair, same thing. The presence of hair wouldn’t be particularly interesting to you, because all that means is that they were in the room and they left hair behind. We already know they were in the room.

DNA. DNA isn’t going to be particularly interesting for you unless it’s DNA from his semen. Because then what we’re saying is that they ejaculated in that room, or one of them did. And now that tells us that there’s sexual activity in the room, and that would be relevant, and that’s what we were looking for when we took the mattress and looked to see if we could find his DNA on the mattress.

Now, given his statement, what’s the likelihood of that happening? His statement as to when he ejaculated, if at all, was lying on top of the bed and he was being masturbated inside his clothing, which means the ejaculation would have occurred inside his clothing. To find it on the mattress, we would have to have had a liquid seepage through his clothing, through the blankets, and through the sheets, through the mattress pad and into the mattress, nine months earlier.

In other words, that there wouldn't have been any sheets washed in nine months. There wouldn't have been blankets changed or washed in nine months. And in fact, it would have escaped his own clothing in that particular period of time.

That is a long shot. That is a long shot.

I guess the equivalent would be to say if any adult couple had sex in a hotel room, what is the likelihood that there would be DNA found from that activity nine months later in that hotel bed? And the answer is not likely. Not likely.

But we looked anyway.

So the question is, does that mean that there wasn't a molestation? The answer is no. It simply means we didn't find ejaculate at that time. He either did or didn't get to that stage.

Let me just say a word about Mr. Jackson's finances, because that was brought to your attention by Mr. Jackson (sic). He said that there were people who took advantage of him and that was why his finances were in trouble.

No, that's not why. His finances were in trouble because he was living a much too extravagant lifestyle that he couldn't afford. He had been going on -- he had been going on with a loss of $20 to $30 million a year that our forensic accountant was able to trace back to 1999, and likely earlier behind that, because you don't start $20 to $30 million a year deficit.

He was running on a credit card, effectively, through a bank. And it was getting larger and larger and larger and larger. And as of the time of the filming of "Living with Michael Jackson," he was $270 million in debt. Mortgaged -- Neverland was mortgaged to the tune of $18 million, and he owed $10 million to his vendors. In other words, the people who supply services and products for Mr. Jackson and to his family, he owed them $10 million.

This had nothing to do with people taking advantage of him. This had to do with him living an extravagant lifestyle that he couldn’t afford. One that he could afford 20 years earlier but can’t afford today and couldn’t afford in 2003.

And then all of a sudden, this disaster comes along. And Mr. Mesereau says all celebrities deal with public affairs disasters. They take care of it. They deal with it. They do some kind of something. They hire a PR person and everything is just fine.

And the answer is, no, it doesn’t really work that way.

Because in this case, what he is accused of is child sexual abuse. And that is a disaster for any performer. That’s not the equivalent of a disaster that includes getting caught with drugs, as many of them are. Or getting caught drunk driving, as many of them are. Or getting caught having an affair, as many of them are, which sometimes actually enhances their career. Nobody benefits from being accused of molesting a child. Nobody benefits from that.

He said that there were people who were stealing from him. Marc Schaffel. Marc Schaffel is not somebody that you would want to admire. Nobody who works in the sex trade business or industry should be admired, frankly.

But there’s no evidence that anybody stold from Michael Jackson. And we have the accounting of all the funds that came in, and all the funds are accounted for and distributed appropriately.

Two million dollars of that goes to an attorney by the name of Mr. Finkelstein in New York, who set up an account on behalf of Michael Jackson. That is his share of all of that. All of the other money is properly accounted for.

If they had a question about it, they could have brought a forensic accountant in here to tell you that, in fact, somebody was stealing. There’s no evidence that anybody was ever stealing from Michael Jackson. Not the Germans, not Marc Schaffel, not anybody else who was associated with him, Frank or Vinnie.

Now, with one exception.

There's an inventory that you have in evidence, and that inventory of expenses that are credited to Janet Arvizo, which she says she did not incur all of that, as you look at that interview, go to the very last page of -- the inventory, excuse me. Go to the very last page of the inventory and look at the last few dates and notations. You will find that Janet Arvizo and her family were taken out to dinner. They were taken out -- there were a couple different dinners. I don't remember the restaurants at this time. But you will -- as soon as you see it, you'll understand; that those dinners were at a time that Janet Arvizo was in Los Angeles back with Jay, and the kids were at Neverland. In other words, they never took anybody out to dinner. So they were obviously padding the expense account on that. You'll be able to see that as soon as you look at it. That's really the only indication, a few hundred dollars that may have gone to Vinnie or Frank, that they thought would have otherwise been Marc Schaffel's. I don't think they would have stolen from Michael Jackson. Frank was very close to him and very akin to him.

Did you want to take a break at this time? This would be a good time.

THE COURT: All right. We'll do that.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Go ahead, Counsel.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you, Your Honor.

Ladies and gentlemen, we left off before the break, we were talking about Mr. Jackson's finances, his state of financial peril, what was going on at the time on the 3rd, and then what happened thereafter and the fact that there was a great deal of money that had been generated. None of that money went to pay any of his creditors. That money was deposited on his behalf. There was over two million dollars that went to an account in New York on his behalf. There was an additional one-million-dollar check that was cashed for cash. And that was done on the 2nd of April and that was for Michael Jackson as well.

There was all indication that he was in no way being victimized by anybody who was working for him. There were probably plenty of people who were working for him who are vying for higher positions on that ladder and who wanted to be a little closer to Michael Jackson, because that’s a profitable place to be, certainly. But there’s no indication, no evidence, when there could have been, that there was thievery going on or any stealing from Michael Jackson at all.

Jason Francia. Jason Francia, as we had talked about earlier, young man, deeply religious young man, with a great deal of difficulty testifying on the witness stand, questioned on many occasions by Mr. Mesereau asking about “inappropriate tickling,” much in the same way that he referred to the conduct with Jason Francia as “inappropriate tickling” in his closing argument.

Jason, you will remember eventually on cross-examination in some degree of exasperation, finally said, “You mean when he played with my balls?” was the answer.

This was, to Jason Francia, not inappropriate tickling. It was child molestation. He may not have understood that at age ten, but he most assuredly understands it at age 24, and I believe all of you do as well.

There was a lot of commentary, of course, about Janet Arvizo and the kids all lying, because they said they had not talked with one another about this case, and particularly that Janet Arvizo was lying when she talked about holding hands, her son holding hands with Michael Jackson.

That’s not inconsistent. Janet Arvizo testified that she had seen clips on television, on the news, of that documentary. She never watched the documentary, but she had seen clips. And many of those clips featured her son, who she said she recognized, and depicted particularly that one scene of him resting the head on the shoulder and holding the hands of Michael Jackson. She certainly would have known about that without having watched the actual documentary.

As well, the kids having testified that they did not discuss their testimony with one another, they've been instructed not to discuss their testimony with one another. That is not unusual either. And in fact, is consistent with everything that you had heard, that kids don't like talking about such things. Rarely tell their family, rarely tell their parents. Rarely discuss the intimacies of those kinds of details.

Now, it's a rather vague question, but the question is, "Did you discuss the case with other people?" Does that mean did you discuss what you were going to wear for court, or whether you had to be in court, or whether you had to be in Santa Maria, or whether you could be back at home? That's discussing the case on some level. And certainly to that extent, they probably had discussions. It's a very vague question.

But the question of whether or not they actually sat down and talked about their testimony, what they were asked or what they said, they were asked not to do that, and in all likelihood they didn't. That's not necessarily the type of thing they want to rush into.

Janet Arvizo is not the sophisticate that Mr. Mesereau would like you to believe. She's a person who's not well educated, does not speak well, does not present well, does not function necessarily well in the workplace, as a victim of 16 years of domestic abuse. And you see it. You see it in how she presents. You see it in her personality.

The notion that she is sophisticated enough that she would be able to come into court and stage this kind of vast fraud, including all of the details that we've talked about in the course of this trial, I mean, the details that can easily be disputed, if in fact it was made up, who was present at different times, different things, different pieces of information or evidence, the fingerprints on the sexually explicit magazines, the presence of the doll. I mean, to be able to keep straight such things as him presenting himself naked on a particular occasion. They don't exaggerate it. They don't exaggerate it at all. They simply say, "He came in; he had no clothes on."

At one point he said, "This is natural. It's okay." Exactly the type of thing that you would expect in a grooming process.

Nothing is exaggerated. Nothing is made up.

The amount of detail that went into their testimony as they were on the witness stand for days at a time, and subjected to days of cross-examination - days - you got treated to about ten minutes of inconsistent testimony out of two days of cross-examination and three days of total testimony as to each one of those children. And Janet Arvizo was on the witness stand for four days. That's a combined 13 days of testimony. And you got about 40 minutes of inconsistent statements out of 12 days of testimony.

Their testimony was really rather remarkably consistent and it made sense, given what we know. It made sense, given the level of corroboration that we've been able to establish. We found the passports. We found all of the documentation. Ultimately the passports were in Mr. Geragos's office, something that he did not talk about in his closing argument, Mark Geragos, for good reason. We found all of the documentation of the visas, found all of the documentation. Everything that she was saying that had happened we were ultimately able to confirm. That she left the ranch at two o'clock in the morning we were able to confirm from the logs. That it was Jesus who took her out we were able to confirm from the logs.

As you go through your deliberations, you stop and ask yourself, with every single piece of information, how could they make that up? How could they make that up and keep the story straight like that?

She doesn't have that level of capability. Janet Arvizo, frankly, can't string two consecutive sentences together that make sense. But yet she is somehow going to convince her children to engage in this elaborate fraud because they might someday make a lot of money, and we know that's not true.

In fact, Larry Feldman and Kris Kallman both gave testimony that they settled those cases back in 1993, before the advent of the criminal investigation, which would make sense. Michael Jackson's running out of money anyway.

Now, it took some effort to go ahead and get this family to Santa Barbara. And in fact, the testimony of Steve Robel on the witness stand was this: "You have victims that are terrified in coming forward to law enforcement. That is to reassure them that they are not the suspects or they're not the victims in this case."

And he goes on to say, "And I was reassuring them through that and letting them know that they are doing the right thing, because they are terrified when they come forward. And it took us about two weeks to get them to come forward and up here to be interviewed."

Now, that is not the sign or the indication or the behavior of a family that is looking to, quick, grab the spotlight and cash this into money. It is a family that's frightened about taking on Michael Jackson and all who work for him, and subjecting themselves to this kind of ordeal.

And now I'd like to play for you about six minutes and 40 seconds of that first interview where he discloses what happened to him.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: "Input 4."

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, "Input 4," please.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, People's Exhibit 900, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. ZONEN: You just witnessed the seven worst minutes of this young man’s life, 13 years old, and you saw him disclose for the first time that he had been molested by Michael Jackson, a person that he had been close to, a person that he had loved, a person who had been a very important person in his life.

Mr. Mesereau has told you that that child made all that up and that is all an act; that’s a product of having been in an acting class some number of years prior. I’m telling you that your common sense will tell you otherwise.

This is an absolutely sincere revelation by this child that he had been sexually abused by a man that he had been previously close to. And his behavior here is completely consistent with exactly what you would expect a child to endure in disclosing this kind of offense.

Ladies and gentlemen, my closing argument is concluded. I’m telling you now that, as you go back in deliberation, you’re going to discover something. You’re going to discover, as the 12 of you get together and begin your deliberations, that the collective wisdom that you’re going to generate far exceeds the sum of its parts. You’re going to find it amazing, when you start talking among yourselves and looking at the evidence, as you’ll have to do, the revelations for you, what you’ll be able to discover in this case that you had previously not even thought about, and you’ll find that it will be quite possible to achieve justice in this case.

And you will find, as you deliberate, that these accusations are not false; that these accusations are entirely accurate, entirely appropriate, and in fact entirely truthful.

And we’ll ask you to go back and begin your deliberations in this case and return guilty verdicts as to all counts against Michael Jackson.

Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Zonen.

I have not intended, by anything I have said or done, or by any question that I have asked, or by any ruling that I may have made, to intimate or suggest what you should find to be the facts, or that I believe or disbelieve any witness.

If anything I have done or said has seemed to so indicate, you will disregard it and form your own conclusion.

The People and the defendant are entitled to the individual opinion of each juror. Each of you must consider the evidence for the purpose of reaching a verdict, if you can do so.

Each of you must decide the case for yourself, but should do so only after discussing the evidence and instructions with the other jurors. Do not hesitate to change an opinion if you are convinced it is wrong. However, do not decide any question in a particular way because a majority of the jurors or any of them favor that decision. Do not decide any issue in this case by the flip of a coin or by any other chance determination.

The attitude and conduct of jurors at all times are very important. It is rarely helpful for a juror at the beginning of deliberations to express an emphatic opinion on the case or to announce a determination to stand for a certain verdict. When one does that at the outset, a sense of pride may be aroused, and one may hesitate to change a position, even if shown that it is wrong.

Remember that you are not partisans or advocates in this matter. You are the impartial judges of the facts.

During deliberations, any question or request you may have should be addressed to the Court on a form that will be provided.

If there is any disagreement as the actual testimony, you have the right, if you choose, to request a read-back by the reporter. You may request a partial or total read-,back. But any read-back should be a fair representation of that evidence.

If a read-back of testimony is requested, the reporter will delete objections, rulings and sidebar conferences so that you will hear only the evidence that was actually presented. Please understand that counsel must first be contacted and it may take time to provide a response or read-back.

Continue deliberating until you are called back into the courtroom.

Do not disclose to anyone outside the jury, not even to me or any member of my staff, either orally or in writing, how you may be divided numerically in your balloting as to any issue, unless I specifically direct otherwise.

In this case, the defendant has been charged with one count of conspiracy, four counts of lewd act upon a child, one count of attempted lewd act upon a child, and four counts of administering an intoxicating agent to assist in the commission of a felony, all felonies.

You will be given separate verdict forms encompassing each of the charged crimes, and forms on which to record certain special findings in connection with Counts 1 and 2 through 5.

Since the lesser offense is included in the greater, you are instructed that if you find the defendant guilty of the greater offenses, you should not complete the verdict on the corresponding lesser offense, and that the verdict should be returned to the Court unsigned by the foreperson.

If you find the defendant not guilty of the felonies charged, you then need to complete the verdict on the lesser-included offense by determining whether the defendant is guilty or not guilty of the lesser-included crime, and the corresponding verdict form should be completed and returned to the Court signed by the foreperson.

You shall now retire and select one of your number to act as a foreperson. He or she will preside over your deliberations. In order to reach verdicts, all 12 jurors must agree to the decision and to any finding you have been instructed to include in your verdict. As soon as you have agreed upon a verdict, so that, when polled, each may state truthfully that the verdict expresses his or her vote, have them dated and signed by your foreperson.

A caveat there. The foreperson would place their number as their signature, not actually their name.

When you reach a verdict as to any particular count, place all verdict forms for that count in a sealed envelope, which will be held by the clerk until verdicts on all counts have been reached.

At that time, the sealed verdicts will be returned to the foreperson, and the jury will return with them to this courtroom. Also return any unsigned forms.

Before and within 90 days of your discharge as a juror in this matter, you must not request, accept, agree to accept or discuss with any person receiving or accepting any payment or benefit in consideration for supplying any information concerning the trial.

It’s the next one.

You must promptly report to the Court any incident within your knowledge involving an attempt by any person either to improperly influence any member of this jury or to tell a juror his or her view of the evidence in this case.

You will be permitted to separate during recesses and in the evening. During your absence, the courtroom will be locked. You are to return following the recess and following the evening recess on the next succeeding court day.

During periods of recess you must not discuss with anyone any subject connected with this trial, and you must not deliberate further upon the case until all 12 of you are together and reassembled in the jury room. At that time you shall notify the clerk or bailiff that the jury has reassembled and then continue your deliberations.

As to the alternate jurors, you are still bound by the admonition that you are not to converse among yourselves or with anyone else on any subject connected with this trial, or to form or express any opinion on this until the case is submitted to you, which means until such time as you are substituted in for one of the 12 jurors not deliberating on the case.

This also means that you are not to decide how you would vote if you were deliberating with the other jurors.

Now, we have quite a bit of evidence accumulated behind the clerk there. What I’m going to ask you to do, the 12 of you who are going to start deliberations, is to go into the jury room and select your foreperson. Once the foreperson has been selected, notify the bailiff, and then we will have the evidence brought to the jury room.

The foreperson will be responsible for keeping the evidence in its numerical order, in the boxes, so that it will be easy for the staff to ascertain that all the evidence is there at the end of each deliberating period.

For the alternates, we are going to call you when the jury advises us that they have reached verdicts, and give you the opportunity to come back and sit in the audience and hear the verdict. We will allow a little over an hour. I know some of you don’t live in this community. We’ll give you time, but we’re not going to be waiting beyond -- if we called your home or the number that you’ve left us to call and you weren’t there and you weren’t available, we will not be looking for you or waiting for you. Do you understand? We will call and give you the opportunity to be here.

I want to thank all of the alternates. You are not released. You understand that you may still be called if we had to replace a juror for any reason. It’s very important that you keep the pledge that you’ve made and not talk to anyone until after the verdicts are returned.

THE BAILIFF: Judge?

(Off-the-record discussion held between the bailiff and the Court.)

THE COURT: For the jury that's going to be deliberating, you will deliberate during the normal hours that we were holding court, so from 8:30 to 2:30 will be your deliberations. I would like you to take your breaks at the same time as you were taking breaks. And there's a reason for this. It has nothing to do with you, but it has to do with the whole rest of the Court.

The reason we ran such a strict schedule was the other courtrooms have to shut down. So many things happened that are not you, it's the rest of the whole system that we have to rely on. They have to rely on us operating on a certain time zone to take care of their ongoing business.

So I'd appreciate it if you would do that.

All right. I'm going to allow all of you to go out this way, because I assume that some of the alternates have personal belongings that they need to pick up. And then after the alternates have departed, then you may start your deliberations.

THE BAILIFF: Judge, you need to swear the bailiff.

THE COURT: All right. Would you swear the bailiff, please?

THE CLERK: Do you and each of you solemnly swear that you will keep the jury together in a private and convenient place, and do not speak to them or to allow anyone else to do so, except to ask them if they have agreed upon a verdict, and to return them into court when they have done so or upon the instructions of the Court, so help you God?

BAILIFF AVILA: I do.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: I do.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

(Whereupon, the jury retired to its deliberations at 12:20 p.m.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Counsel, a couple of items:

Number one, I need you to be available within ten minutes of the court in case there’s a request for information from the jury or instructions. I need you to give your phone number to the clerk where you will be during the deliberations. Keep her informed of your phone number of where you are at all times during the deliberations.

Mr. Jackson, I have no problem with you being at your residence on Figueroa Mountain.

Mr. Mesereau, is an hour sufficient time for him to come for a verdict?

MR. MESEREAU: I think so, Your Honor. Yes. Yes, it is, Your Honor.

THE COURT: If you were slightly delayed, I would rather be slightly delayed than to be -- you know, have you rush too fast. But I want -- that is a reasonable time?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. Is there an agreement with the attorneys that if, after the -- if the jury requests that testimony be reread, that after we meet and agree on what should be read to them, that the court reporter may go into the jury room and read the material, the requested material?

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I would say that we would probably agree to that, but I’d like to reserve that until we have the discussion, which we would have anyway. I would assume it would be okay, but I’d like to know what it’s about.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SNEDDON: It’s fine with us.

THE COURT: All right. Is there any matter either side would like to take up at this time?

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I would like to know what the procedure is going to be at the end of the day at 2:30.

Do you require counsel to be present when the jury is discharged or do you intend to just let them go at that point with an admonition?
THE COURT: I would request that counsel stipulate that the jury can convene and reconvene without your presence, my presence and without further admonition.
MR. SANGER: Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: That’s fine on our part, Your Honor.
MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor.
THE COURT: And if there is any request to change their hours, I will notify everybody as soon -- what I’m thinking of is that they might ask on a particular day to come in later or to leave early or something. I know some graduations are going to be taking place. Some of the jurors have undoubtedly -- might ask for that time. But if something like that happens, I’ll inform you so you know you don’t have to remain available during a period when you’re not needed.
MR. SANGER: Thank you, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. Is there anything else?
MR. MESEREAU: No, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: No, sir.
THE COURT: This Court is in recess.
(The proceedings adjourned at 12:30 p.m.)
